That this menace was at once brought to the notice of the Chinese Ministers by Sir H. Parkes, Her Majesty's Minister at Peking (see his despatch No. 23); and that a correspondence ensued in which a demand was made by the Chinese that a new trial of Logan should take place, and that the Portuguese, Diaz, who belonged to the British ship "Hankow," should be tried before a British Court (Sir H. Parkes, No. 30, and Mr. Grosvenor, Nos. 130 and 132).

That on the 21st ultimo Sir H. Parkes reported by telegram that the claims for losses sustained by foreigners at Canton on the 10th September had been presented to the Chinese Government on the part of Great Britain, Germany, France, and the United States. That the claims of the Germans amounting to 80,000 dollars, and of the French and Americans to about 10,000 dollars each, would be paid; but that the British claims, amounting to 180,000 dollars, would only be paid on condition that a heavier sentence be passed on Logan, that Diaz should be punished by the British authorities, and that indemnities be paid to the families of the two Chinese killed by Logan and Diaz.

That Sir H. Parkes subsequently reported that the Chinese Government were prepared to abandon the demand for a new trial of Logan, and would consent to pay the amount claimed for the British losses at Canton after joint investigation, provided that an indemnity be paid by Her Majesty's Government to the family of the Chinese boy who had been shot by Logan, and that Her Majesty's Government would move the Portuguese Government to allow Diaz to be tried at Hong Kong, as China had no Extradition Treaty with Portugal, and that the Chinese Government objected to his being tried at Macao.

That Logan did not appear to have been put on his trial for shooting at the woman "Chan Anan," and at the man "Ng Shap-ng," with intent to do them grievous bodily harm, and that the sentence of seven years for the manslaughter of the boy "Pak Wah-king" was defended on the ground that imprisonment for that term, in the Colony of Hong Kong (where the sentence was to be carried out), was a very severe punishment for an European, having regard to the climate.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the sentence imposed upon Logan was inadequate.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Sentence passed on Logan was inadequate.

That, in our opinion, the sentence passed upon Logan was inadequate.

His crime was a very bad case of manslaughter, approaching as nearly as possible to murder, and we think that a more severe sentence should have been inflicted. The trial of our own subjects being left to our own Tribunals, it appears to us most important that adequate punishment should be meted out for acts of violence against Chinese subjects.

It may be that, owing to the climate, a sentence of seven years' penal servitude in Hong Kong is a severer sentence than if it were passed in this country. But, although the fact that the health of a prisoner was in danger of suffering might be a ground for afterwards mitigating the sentence imposed, it does not seem desirable that, on this account, an apparently inadequate sentence should be passed in the first instance.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

1. Report of Trial of James Henry Logan in Her Britannic Majesty's Supreme Court for China at Canton.
2. Mr Grosvenor, No. 120.
3. Sir H. Parkes, No. 19.
4. Ditto, No. 23.
5. Ditto, No. 24.
6. Ditto, No 25.
7. Ditto, No. 30.
8. Mr. Grosvenor, No. 130.
9. Ditto, No 132.

---

No. 9.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 25, 1884.

Traffic across land frontier of China Franco-Chinese Treaty.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers in connection with the question of traffic across the land frontier of China.

That that question had been considered by us in 1882 in relation to certain stipulations of the Treaty (Kuldja) between China and Russia.

That it now again came under consideration, in consequence of the Convention between China and France signed on the 11th of last month.

That the text was inclosed of that Convention contained in the Declaration read in the French Senate and Chamber of Deputies by M. Jules Ferry on the 20th ultimo; and that our attention was called to the stipulations contained in the IIIrd Article, which provided for freedom of trade along the land frontier which divided China from Tonquin, subject to the conditions of a Treaty of Commerce and of Tariffs about to be framed, with a view to conferring special advantages on French commerce.

Can advantages conferred by the Treaty be claimed under most-favoured-nation clause? Ought notice of such claim to be given?

That the question arose whether, under the most-favoured-nation clause of the British Treaty with China, quoted in our above-mentioned Report, this country could claim to participate in the advantages thus conceded, or about to be conceded, by China to France; and, if so, whether it was advisable that notice should be at once given to the Chinese Government that that right would be claimed.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our opinion on the question submitted in that letter, and that we would favour your Lordship with any general observations which we might have to offer on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Cannot state British rights without knowing terms of Treaty.

That, until the conditions of the Treaty of Commerce are ascertained, it is impossible to say whether they are such as to entitle this country to participate in the advantages conceded by them, though it is probable they will be.

Not necessary to give notice to claim such rights

There is certainly no obligation on the part of this country to give notice, before the Treaty is concluded, that they will make such a claim. Whether this should be done is a matter of policy upon which we are hardly in a position to advise. But in the uncertainty which exists as to the terms of the Treaty, the expediency of doing so would seem doubtful.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

1884

List of Papers.

Law Officers, May 16, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 12.
Viscount Lyons, No. 288, May 20, 1884, with copy of Treaty of Tien-tsin.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet: Distinction between Frontier Trade and Trade by Sea, August 10, 1880. Confidential No 4278.
Law Officers, May 18, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 67.
Ditto, November 14, 1864. Confidential No. 1405, p. 129.
Attorney- and Solicitor-General, June 23, 1862. Confidential No. 1301, p. 161.
Law Officers, October 10, 1862. Confidential No. 1301, p. 245.

---

No. 10.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received August 26.)

Position of English Secretaries attached to Chinese, &c., Legations.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 26, 1884.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 12th instant, in which he transmitted to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, which relate to the position occupied by the English Secretaries attached to the Legations of China, Japan, and Siam in London; and he requested that we would take the same into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the communications which it was proposed to address to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Ministers were right and proper, and also with any general observations which we might have to offer on the subject to which they related.

Approving notes to Ministers refusing diplomatic immunities to.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in our opinion, the communications which your Lordship proposes to address to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Ministers are right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers accompanying Reference to Law Officers of August 12, 1884.

Inland Revenue, May 2; to Phya Damrong, May 8; Prince Narès, July 21, 1884. Drafts proposed to be addressed to the Marquis Tsêng, Mr. Ohyama, Prince Narès, Treasury, Home Office, and Lord Chamberlain. Extract from the "London Gazette," July 8, 1786. (1) To Treasury, inclosing correspondence respecting the Moncorvo case, May 13; (2) to Treasury, May 13, 1850. Confidential Print No. 5115.

---

Annex 1.

Draft of Letter from Earl Granville to Prince Narès.

M. le Ministre, Foreign Office, August , 1884.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 21st ultimo respecting the status of Mr. Frederick Verney in his capacity of English Secretary to the Siamese Mission at this Court; and as it appears that, owing to the insertion of Mr. Verney's name on the list of persons entitled to diplomatic privilege, which is annually furnished to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, some misconception has arisen as to the nature of the immunities actually accorded to him, I take this opportunity to place the matter clearly before you.

It has for many years been a settled principle that no British subject attached to a foreign Embassy or Legation, other than a domestic or domestic servant, is entitled to claim the protection afforded to the Diplomatic Body in this country by the Statute 7 Anne, cap. 12, of which I have the honour to inclose a copy; and so long ago as the year 1786 it was found necessary to insert a Notification in the "London Gazette" (of which I also inclose a copy), to the effect that the name of no British subject should be inserted in the list supplied to the Sheriffs excepting such persons as might be employed in a menial capacity.

In view of the difficulties which might arise by a departure from the rule laid down in the above-mentioned Notification, I have deemed it indispensable to direct that it should be strictly observed in the future; and I beg leave, therefore, to acquaint you that, after the close of the current year, the names of the English Secretaries to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Legations will be omitted from the list which is supplied to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex under the Statute 7 Anne, cap. 12.

I have the honour at the same time to state to you that Mr. Frederick Verney's name will still be retained on the Diplomatic List furnished to the Lord Chamberlain for Court and ceremonial purposes, and that, in all other respects, he will remain on precisely the same footing as heretofore; the object of the omission of his name from the list supplied to the Sheriffs being simply to make it clear that he is not entitled to claim immunities which cannot be extended to any British subject.

I feel sure that it is unnecessary for me to add that the exterritorial character of the Siamese Legation house will, as heretofore, be strictly respected, and that the privileges and immunities enjoyed by those who dwell therein will in no respect be infringed.

I have, &c.

---

Annex 2.

Extract from the "London Gazette," No. 12767, of July 8 to July 11, 1786.

Notification.

WHEREAS divers applications have of late been made, by people of different descriptions, to the foreign Ministers resident in England to be appointed Secretaries to some or other of the said foreign Ministers, in order to avail themselves of the protection due to persons in that situation against the ordinary course of legal proceedings in various cases; and whereas such indulgence is liable to many abuses: it is His Majesty's pleasure that henceforth no subject of His Majesty shall be permitted by the Secretary of State to have his name inserted at the Sheriffs' Office in the list of those who are to be deemed under the protection of any foreign Minister, excepting only such persons as may be employed by the said foreign Ministers in the capacity of menial servants.

(Signed) CARMARTHEN.

Whitehall, July 8, 1786.

---

Annex 3.

*Draft of Letter from Earl Granville to the Marquis Tsêng.

M. le Ministre, Foreign Office, August , 1884.

THE question of the position occupied by the English Secretaries attached to the Legations of China, Japan, and Siam in London has recently been brought to my attention by a claim preferred by Mr. Frederick Verney, English Secretary to the Siamese Legation, to exemption from inhabited house duty upon a house in Onslow Square occupied by him apart from the residence of the Siamese Minister.

You will be aware that, at the time when Her Majesty's Government acceded to the request of the Chinese Minister that Dr. Macartney should be attached to the Chinese Legation, it was explained that the rule in this country was not to recognize British subjects in such a capacity, and that although in this instance a departure from this rule was made in order to meet the special exigencies of the Chinese service, it was upon the understanding that Dr. Macartney could not be received as Chargé d'Affaires, and would not be entitled to claim diplomatic immunities.

It appears that, owing to the insertion of the names of the English Secretaries to the Legations of China, Japan, and Siam on the list of persons entitled to "diplomatic privilege," which is annually furnished to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, some misconception has arisen as to the nature of the immunities actually accorded to those gentlemen; and I desire, therefore, to take this opportunity of placing the matter clearly before you.

It has for many years been a settled principle that no British subject attached to a foreign Embassy or Legation other than a domestic or domestic servant is entitled to claim the protection afforded to the Diplomatic Body in this country by the Statute

---

* Also to Mr. Ohyama, Japanese Chargé d'Affaires.

1884

7 Anne, cap. 12, of which I have the honour to inclose a copy; and so long ago as the year 1786 it was found necessary to insert a Notification in the "London Gazette" (of which I also inclose a copy*) to the effect that the name of no British subject should be inserted in the list supplied to the Sheriff excepting such persons as might be employed in a menial capacity.

In view of the difficulties which might arise by a departure from the rule laid down in the above-mentioned Notification, I have deemed it indispensable to direct that it should be strictly observed in the future; and I beg leave, therefore, to acquaint you that, after the close of the current year, the names of the English Secretaries to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Legations will be omitted from the list which is supplied to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex under the Statute 7 Anne, cap. 12.

I have the honour at the same time to state to you that Dr. Macartney's name will still be retained on the Diplomatic List furnished to the Lord Chamberlain for Court and ceremonial purposes; and that in all other respects he will remain on precisely the same footing as heretofore, the object of the omission of his name from the list supplied to the Sheriffs being simply to make it clear that he is not entitled to claim immunities which cannot be extended to any British subject. I feel sure that it is unnecessary for me to add that the exterritorial character of the Chinese Legation house will, as heretofore, be strictly respected, and that the privileges and immunities enjoyed by those who dwell therein will in no respect be infringed.

I have, &c.

---

Annex 4.

Mr. Currie to Sir R. Lingen.†

Sir, Foreign Office, August , 1884.

I AM directed by Earl Granville to transmit to you, to be laid before the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, copies of notes which his Lordship has addressed to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Ministers at this Court, relative to the position occupied by the English Secretaries to their respective Missions.

Their Lordships will perceive that after the close of the current year the names of the three gentlemen who occupy the positions in question will be omitted from the List furnished to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex under the Statute 7 Anne, cap. 12, but that they will still be retained on the Diplomatic List furnished to the Lord Chamberlain for Court and ceremonial purposes.

I am to request that the Commissioners of Inland Revenue may be informed accordingly.

I am, &c.
(Signed) P. CURRIE.

---

No. 11.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 18, 1884.

Extradition of Chinese criminals from Hong Kong.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers noted in the accompanying list,‡ relating to the case of eleven fugitives from justice at Hong Kong, whose extradition was claimed by the Chinese Government under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin.

That the case of those fugitives had already been submitted to us with reference to the question how far Her Majesty's Government would be justified in continuing to surrender Chinese fugitives under the Treaty, without satisfactory guarantees against the application of torture of any kind or for any purpose whatever.

That Sir Julian was, in the first place, to refer us to our Report of the 22nd July, 1882, and to the reference on which it was founded, from which we would perceive that the fugitives in question (who originally numbered thirteen, and were charged with murder) were released on habeas corpus, by reason of some informality in their committal and in the return to the writ.

That the fugitives appeared to have left the Colony after their release, but, having subsequently been found again in Hong Kong, they were rearrested in 1883 on demand of the Viceroy of Canton.

That Sir Julian was now to invite our attention to a despatch from the Governor of Hong Kong to the Colonial Office, No. 358 of the 31st December, 1883, containing a full report of the proceedings on the new arrest of the fugitives, which resulted in two of them being discharged, and the remaining eleven being committed to prison to await the orders of the Governor respecting their extradition. That at that juncture the Roman Catholic Bishop of Hong Kong (Mgr. Raimondi) interposed, asserting that the prisoners were innocent, and that a correspondence ensued, which would be found in the inclosures to the Governor's despatch.

That the case having been referred home for instructions as to the action to be taken under the circumstances, the Governor of Hong Kong was directed to cause any further evidence to be taken in the case which Bishop Raimondi might be prepared to adduce in support of his allegation that the charge against the prisoners was a false one, and to report whether the "proof of guilt" was, on the whole, such as to satisfy the minds of the Council. (We were referred, as to the proof of guilt, to Law Officers' Report of the 24th February, 1863, and case of the Attorney-General of Hong Kong v. Kwok Asing, 5 Law Rep., Priv. Co. Appeal Cases, p. 199.)

That Sir Julian was next to refer us to the despatch of the Governor of Hong Kong to the Colonial Office, No. 178 of the 17th May, 1884, giving a full report of the further proceedings in the case, and requesting to be informed of the decisions of Her Majesty's Government thereon. That the following questions now arose:—

Questions as to—

1. Obligation to surrender.

1. Was the proof of guilt such as to render it incumbent on Her Majesty's Government to direct the extradition of the prisoners in execution of Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin?

2. Sufficiency of proof.

2. Would Her Majesty's Government, in view of the adverse opinions of the Governor and Executive Council of Hong Kong, be justified in holding that there was not such proof of guilt as might be required under Article XXI of the Treaty?

3. Prevention of torture, and access to prisoners.

3. If not, would Her Majesty's Government be justified in declining to surrender the prisoners without an undertaking, in writing, that no torture of any kind or for any purpose whatever be inflicted upon them, and that Her Majesty's Consul should have access to the prisoners at any time that he might require it—before, during, or after the trial?

That Sir Julian was also to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in Sir Julian's letter, and with any general observations we might have to offer on the case. That Sir Julian was also to request our immediate attention to the case, as the Governor of Hong Kong was awaiting telegraphic instructions.

We were also honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote of the 2nd ultimo, stating, with reference to his preceding letter of that date, relating to the case of eleven prisoners in Hong Kong, whose extradition was claimed by the Chinese Government under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction,

---

* See inclosure in draft note to Prince Narès.

† Also to Home Office and Lord Chamberlain's Office: the last paragraph being omitted.

‡ List of papers accompanying letter to Law Officers (A), August 2, 1884:—
  Law Officers, February 24, 1863, Confidential No. 1376, p. 55.
  Law Officers, November 25, 1865, Confidential No. 1489, p. 20.
  To Law Officers, June 14, 1882, Confidential No. 4783, p. 14, with inclosures, viz.:—
    Treaty of Tien-tsin, June 26, 1858, No 448.
    Ordinances of Hong Kong (No. 2 of 1850), Parliamentary No. 290.
    Ordinance No. 2 of May 29, 1871, State Papers, vol. lxiii, p. 1217.
    Mo-Wong Case, Parliamentary No. 995.
    To Consul Hewlett, Confidential, August 25, 1880.
    Consul Hewlett, No. 14, April 29, 1881.
    Colonial Office, March 2, May 5, May 8, May 19, and May 27, 1882.
    To Colonial Office, April 18, 1882.
  To Law Officers, June 30, 1882, Confidential No. 4783, p. 16, with inclosures, viz.:—
    Law Officers, November 25, 1865, Confidential No. 1489, p. 20.
    Foreign Office to Sir R. Alcock, December 11, 1865, and its inclosures; both in Confidential No. 1402, p. 72.

(Note continued from p. 12)—
  Law Officers, July 22, 1882, Confidential No. 1483, p. 17.
  Colonial Office, April 12, 1883.
  Colonial Office, February 8, 1884.
  To Marquis Tsêng, July 27, 1883.
  Colonial Office, January 15, 1884.
  To Colonial Office, February 23, 1884.
  Sir G. Bowen to Colonial Office, No. 358, December 31, 1883.
  Sir G. Bowen to Colonial Office, No. 178, May 17, 1884.

1884

a letter (which was inclosed) from the Colonial Office (July 26, 1884), inclosing a despatch from the Governor of Hong Kong (No. 207 of the 4th June, 1884) respecting a further demand by the Chinese Government for the extradition of two Chinese fugitives charged with murder. That the prisoners had been committed to gaol, to await the orders of the Governor as to their extradition, and that the question was raised by Sir George Bowen and the Executive Council, whether in view of the Report of the police magistrate on the case, the crime charged against the prisoners was of such a political character as to justify Her Majesty's Government in refusing their extradition.

That the same question also arose as in the other case of the eleven prisoners, whether Her Majesty's Government might properly insist on an undertaking in writing that no torture of any kind or for any purpose would be resorted to, and that Her Majesty's Consul should have access to the prisoners.

That Sir Julian was also to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

We were also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote of the 8th ultimo, stating that, with reference to his two letters of the 2nd August, respecting the cases of the Chinese whose extradition had been claimed by the Chinese Government under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking,[*] in which he called attention to the barbarous nature of the punishment inflicted upon five criminals by the authorities at Hankow. That Sir Julian was to request that we would take that despatch into our consideration, in conjunction with the previous correspondence submitted to us with his letters of the 2nd instant.

We were also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote of the 19th ultimo, stating that, with reference to his letters of the 2nd and 8th August, he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, a letter from the Chinese Minister[†] in this country, renewing the applications he had previously made for the extradition of certain Chinese subjects who were detained by the authorities at Hong Kong.

That Sir Julian was, at the same time, to call our attention to the extracts marked in the accompanying despatches,[‡] addressed to the Colonial Office by the Governor of Hong Kong, giving an account of the Triad Society, to which some of the prisoners were said to be affiliated; and that Sir Julian was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration, together with those previously referred to us, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion upon the case at our early convenience.

We were also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote of the 26th ultimo, stating that, with reference to the letter from your Lordship's Department of the 19th August, marked "Immediate," and to previous correspondence, he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, a letter from the Colonial Office,[§] inclosing copy of a further despatch from the Governor of Hong Kong, requesting that instructions in the matter of the Chinese whose extradition was demanded might be sent to him as soon as possible.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to the passage in the letter addressed to the Acting Colonial Secretary at Hong Kong on the 11th July by Messrs. Brereton, Wotton, and Deacon, in which it was stated that the provincial authorities of Canton were most desirous of yielding to the opinion of the British Government in such matters, so long as they were within the terms of the Treaty, or do not necessitate a wide departure from the laws and customs of the Empire, and also to the statement that the British Consul at Canton should have every opportunity and assurance for removing any doubt as to the strict fulfilment of the promise given, that no torture should be used in connection with the trial or punishment of the prisoners.

That Sir Julian was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration, together with those previously referred to us, and favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted at our earliest convenience.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

---

[*] Sir H. Parkes, No. 101, June 5, 1884.

[†] Marquis Tsêng, August 16; Colonial Office, August 14, 1884.

[‡] Sir G. Bowen, No. 71, in Colonial Office letter of April 29, and Nos. 82 and 90, in Colonial Office letter of May 2, 1884.

[§] Colonial Office, August 25, 1884.

---

That the questions submitted to us present features of great difficulty, and the opinion we express is by no means free from doubt.

Possibility of torture no ground for refusing extradition; but steps should be taken to prevent it, and to obtain access to prisoners.

Dealing first with the more general question relating to the infliction of torture upon rendered criminals, we are disposed reluctantly to agree with the views expressed by the Attorney and Solicitor-General in their opinion of the 25th November, 1865, and we think that under the XXIst Article of the Treaty of Tien-tsin Her Majesty's Government cannot of strict right refuse to deliver a criminal on the ground that there is reason for suspecting that torture will be applied to such criminal. But humanity requires that every step shall be taken, possibly even to the extent of determining the Treaty to prevent the action of the British Government assisting in any way the infliction of torture.

It appears from the letter of Messrs. Brereton, Wotton, and Deacon, dated the 11th July, that the Chinese Government are willing to extend the assurances already given, that no torture shall be inflicted on rendered criminals, and to afford to the British authorities practical opportunities for assuring themselves that the promises of the Chinese officials are fulfilled, and that no torture is inflicted. We suggest that, both in relation to the particular cases before us and to the general question, advantage should be taken of the opportunity afforded by this letter, and that the Representatives of Her Majesty's Government at Hong Kong should be instructed to consider the best practical means of maintaining communication with prisoners who have been rendered so as to ascertain if torture has or has not been inflicted. The result of such consideration should be communicated to the Chinese Government, and acquiescence in the proposed methods of protection from the infliction of torture should, if possible, be obtained.

The two prisoners should be surrendered unless charged with political offences.

In regard to the prisoners, the extradition of whom is now sought, we assume that if sufficient action can be taken in accordance with the terms of Messrs. Brereton and Co.'s letter to secure them from the infliction of torture, their cases ought to be dealt with apart from the consideration of the punishment which will be inflicted on them.

But as to the two men, Wong Ping Tai and Churn a King, the inquiry as to whose guilt has taken place before Mr. Wise, we incline to the opinion that if the offence charged prove to be one of a political character only, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in refusing to render a prisoner.

In the case of those men, Mr. Wise reports that "the evidence given before me does not disclose that the offence with which the prisoners are charged was in any way of a political nature" (and a perusal of the depositions confirms this view); but he proceeds: "But I have very strong reasons to believe that such was the case, and that the prisoners were concerned in the Triad revolt at Moni-share in February last."

Upon the whole, we have come to the conclusion that the legal evidence ought to control this case, and that if no further inquiry be instituted and the case be considered to be governed only by the evidence already taken, these two prisoners (the safeguards already mentioned being obtained) should be rendered to the Chinese Government.

The eleven others should not be rendered, as proof of their guilt is not sufficient.

In respect of the other eleven prisoners different considerations arise. Special directions were given by the Secretary of State for the Colonies on the 20th February, 1884, "that the proof of guilt should be such as on the whole to satisfy the minds of the Council."

These instructions were carried out, and the Executive Council appear to have made a very full inquiry, and to have considered the evidence given on behalf of the prosecution and the accused. They received, also, the assistance to be derived from the advice of the Attorney-General, and in the result the members of the Council, with one dissentient voice, have come to the conclusion "that the proof of guilt is not, on the whole, such as to satisfy the minds of the members." We feel great difficulty in advising that this decision should be repudiated, and we certainly do not feel competent to review the opinion thus given by the members of the Executive Council.

Again expressing an opinion which is not free from doubt, we think that the decision arrived at by the Executive Council should control this case, and that those eleven prisoners should not be rendered on the ground that their guilt has not been proved within the terms of the XXIst Article of the Treaty of Tien-tsin.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

1884

No. 12.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 18, 1884.

Island of Chusan.

Is Convention of 4th April, 1846, still in force?

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us a copy of the Convention between this country and China of the 4th April, 1846,* in regard to the Island of Chusan, and that he was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether that Treaty could be held to be still in force, or to have lapsed in consequence of the war which subsequently occurred between the two Powers, and which was terminated by the Treaty of Tien-tsin of the 26th June, 1858.†

That a copy of the last-named Treaty was inclosed for reference, and that we would observe that, whilst it confirmed the Treaty of Nanking of 1842, it made no reference to any other.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Articles II and III are maintained by Treaty of Tien-tsin, but cannot claim Article III without being bound by Article IV.

That we are of opinion that Article LIV of the Treaty of Tien-tsin has the effect of maintaining in existence Articles II and III of the Convention of the 4th April, 1846.

We have some doubt whether Article IV of the Convention is affected by Article LIV of the Treaty; but on the whole we think that the British Government could not in justice claim the advantages arising under Article III of the Convention without bearing the burdens cast upon them under Article IV.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 13.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 24, 1884.

Hostilities between France and China.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying despatch‡ from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking, inclosing a copy of a Circular in which he had furnished to Her Majesty's Consuls in China, for their guidance, a Memorandum by Mr. Wilkinson, the Crown Advocate at Shanghae, showing how the rights and position of British subjects in China were affected by the present relations of France and China.

Rights and position of British subjects in China.
Circular to Her Majesty's Consuls with Memorandum.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take Sir Harry Parkes' despatch and its inclosures into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the Circular might be approved.

That a printed copy of our Report of the 5th November in connection with the question was inclosed for reference.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Circular in the main correct, but object to some of views propounded as to.

That we do not think the Circular can be unreservedly approved in its present form. Though its substantial conclusions are in the main correct, we are unable to concur in some of the views propounded, and we fear that it might possibly lead to confusion, if accepted as a guide by the persons intended to act upon it who are not lawyers.

Privileges conferred by exterritoriality.

We cannot agree in the view that British subjects resident in China are to be treated as neutrals to a much greater extent than British subjects resident elsewhere. Nor do we think that the principle of exterritoriality is that they are to be considered as residing in their own territory, and that when effect can be given to this assumption it is to be given.

For the purposes of the matters which have now to be dealt with, we think that British subjects resident in China are, when that country is at war, in the same position as British subjects resident in the country of any other belligerent, except so far as their position is varied by the fact that they are not subject to the jurisdiction of the Chinese Tribunals.

---

* State Papers, vol. xxxiv, p. 26.

† Treaty No. 448.

‡ Sir H. Parkes, No. 212, October 13, 1884.

No doubt, speaking generally, ships and cargoes owned by British subjects residing in China are to be treated in the same way as if they were the property of British subjects resident in Great Britain. But this does not arise from the principle of exterritoriality; it would generally be true of cargoes and ships owned by British subjects residing in a belligerent country where there was no exterritoriality. In both cases they would be liable to seizure in respect of the breach of neutral obligations, as by breaking a blockade or otherwise; and in both cases the owners might render themselves liable to further penalties in respect of acts done in relation to them in the belligerent country where they were residing.

Assistance to belligerents.

We have already expressed our view, in our Report of the 5th November,* that very general prohibitions by the Chinese Government of particular acts calculated to assist the other belligerent should be enforced against British subjects in the manner we have pointed out.

Neutral obligations without declaration of war.

We think the fifth paragraph on p. 3, beginning "It is unnecessary," &c., states the proposition there laid down too broadly. Although it may be that neutral obligations to their full extent do not exist, Her Majesty's Government have, we believe, recognized the blockade of a certain part of the coast notified by France, which gives rise to certain neutral obligations.

Enlistment in service of belligerents.

As regards the concluding paragraph on p. 6 of the section on "Enlistment in the service of France or China," we do not think it desirable to lay down as a general proposition that a British subject who, in violation of British law, has entered the service of a belligerent "ought" to be considered to be under the protection of that State on his return to China. And we think that the prosecution should be, at all events, commenced, without waiting for the sanction of Her Majesty's Minister, if the offender would otherwise escape.

Contraband of war.

We think the section on contraband of war, as it stands, may lead to misunderstanding. It is, as we understand, intended to apply to all contraband, other than arms or munitions of war. So far as regards contraband dealt with by British subjects not resident in China, and not exported thence, it is accurate enough, but it ought to be distinctly recognized that the export of contraband which might be legitimate if from a neutral port, might not be permissible if sent from China by a British subject resident there, for the use of the French, and in defiance of a prohibition of such export by the Chinese.

Export of arms, &c.

The section on the export of arms and munitions of war, though not perhaps open to question, would be less likely to be misunderstood as would other parts of the Memorandum, if they were confined to the position of British subjects resident in China, and acts done by them in that country.

It hardly appears necessary to deal with the position of neutrals generally.

Chinese restrictions on trade.

We would only observe upon this section that, whilst agreeing that the measures taken by China in restraint of trade ought not to be more than the necessities of the case require, we think that the Chinese Government must be left to judge what is necessary. Any diplomatic representations on the subject should be left to Her Majesty's Minister.

Passage of rivers.

The same observation applies to the last paragraph of the Memorandum dealing with the passage of rivers, &c.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Sir H. Parkes to Earl Granville.—(Received December 8.)

(No. 212.) Peking, October 13, 1884.

My Lord,

I HAVE the honour to inclose a copy of a Circular, in which I have furnished to Her Majesty's Consuls in China, for their guidance, a Memorandum by Mr. Wilkinson, the Crown Advocate, showing how the rights and position of British subjects in this country are affected by the present hostile attitude of France and China.

---

* See No. 33, p. 50.

1884

I add five copies of this Memorandum, which I have thought desirable to have printed at Shanghae.

I shall be glad to be instructed whether the step I have thus taken, and the opinions furnished me by Mr. Wilkinson, receive your Lordship's approval.

I have, &c.
(Signed) HARRY S. PARKES.

---

Inclosure 1.

Circular addressed to Her Majesty's Consuls in China.

Sir, Peking, October 11, 1884.

I FORWARD to you a Memorandum, drawn up by Mr. Wilkinson, the Crown Advocate, at my request, which I trust will serve as a useful guide to Her Majesty's Consuls in dealing with the complicated questions to which the anomalous state of the relations between China and France give rise.

It shows how the position of British subjects in China is affected by the existing hostilities, which, so long as they are not recognized by one or other of the contending parties as amounting to open war, do not give to them the rights of belligerents; but it also shows that the Chinese Government are justified in taking such measures as are necessary for national protection, and the obligation devolving upon British subjects of conforming to the restrictions which the exercise of the right of self-defence imposes.

I have, &c.
(Signed) HARRY S. PARKES.

---

Inclosure 2.

Memorandum.

HOSTILITIES BETWEEN FRANCE AND CHINA AS AFFECTING BRITISH SUBJECTS IN CHINA.

Position of British Subjects in China towards the contending Parties.

THE position of British subjects in China with reference to hostilities carried on between China and France, or any other country at peace with Great Britain, is the resultant of their position—

1. As subjects of a neutral Power.
2. As residing in China.
3. As subjects of a Power having exterritorial jurisdiction in the country in which they reside.

As to the extent to which they are to be treated as filling these several capacities, it may be stated generally that they are to be treated as neutrals to a much greater extent than are British subjects living in countries in which Great Britain has no exterritorial jurisdiction.

As residents in China, were it not for the immunities which exterritoriality gives them, they would be liable to be treated, not for all purposes, but for nearly all purposes, by both France and China, as Chinese subjects. But the principle of exterritoriality, so far as it can be carried out, is that they are to be considered as residing in their own country, and when effect can be given to this assumption it is to be given.

Thus, ships or cargoes owned by British subjects resident in China are to be considered and treated, by both France and China, as the ships and cargoes of British subjects resident in Great Britain, that is, as being the property of neutrals. So far as regards the ownership of such ships and their cargoes, there is nothing in the fact of residence in China which need interfere with the full operation of the assumption of residence in England, or which need affix to the owner the obligations attaching to a residence in China rather than those attaching to a residence in England; and it has consequently always been the rule hitherto that ships or cargoes owned by persons in the position which British subjects occupy in China should be treated as being owned by persons domiciled in their own country.

The obligations, however, arising from residence are in conflict with the immunities which the principle of exterritoriality carried to its furthest extent would give. The fact that they are resident in China cannot be got rid of by an assumption to the contrary. The result is that, while their obligations accruing from their residence in China are very much modified by exterritoriality, they are still subject to the inconveniences which such residence of necessity entails.

And as residence in China circumscribes the immunities which exterritoriality, carried to its fullest extent, would give, so it is found that such residence interferes in many cases in the enforcement of the obligations which exterritoriality imposes.

The obligations of British subjects by reason of exterritoriality consist in this, that they are subject generally to the laws of their own country and to the Tribunals appointed by their own country to enforce those laws, and whatever laws Great Britain may have made to regulate their conduct towards either of the contending Parties, they are bound to obey. But it is found that the fact of their residence in China imposes some obstacles to the full enforcement of these laws.

As to the Commencement of War.

In examining what obligations these several relations involve, it is necessary to consider the stage at which hostilities have arrived.

The present state of affairs may be summed up shortly as follows:—

1. France has made an attack upon China (it is not necessary to consider why), and China has reason to apprehend a renewal of the attack, and is taking measures of defence.

2. The Chinese Government have requested that British subjects may be prohibited as neutrals from giving supplies to the French. They have also issued a Decree to Chinese subjects which, in Europe, would amount to a declaration of war, and this Decree has, in some instances, been communicated by the local authorities to Her Majesty's Consuls; but it has not been communicated by the Chinese Government to Her Majesty's Government; and the Chinese Government, on being referred to, have stated that it is not intended to communicate it to foreign Powers, as it is a domestic matter, and they have also intimated that, so far as neutral Powers are concerned, they do not wish to be considered as at war with France.

3. The French Government, on being referred to, have returned to Her Majesty's Government an answer amounting to an intimation that, so far as neutrals are concerned, France does not wish to be considered as at war with China.

4. Her Majesty's Government have so far recognized the existence of a state of war as to direct that the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act are to be enforced in Hong Kong; but, in the absence of a declaration of war, no Proclamation of Neutrality has been issued.

5. It is to be feared that eventually, and, perhaps, within a short time, war will be formally declared.

Under these circumstances, it must be considered that, as regards British subjects, as subjects of a neutral State, war has not yet commenced.

It is unnecessary to consider whether a notification to neutral Powers that war has commenced is necessary to entitle beligerents to exercise belligent rights over neutral property. It is clear that, when they declare to neutral Powers that they are not at war, they cannot claim over neutrals rights which are only exercisable when they are at war. So long, then, as France and China abide by the intimation which they have made to Great Britain, neither France or China can claim to exercise belligerent rights over the property of British subjects, as being the property of neutrals.

As regards British subjects as residents in China, and so far as they are identified with China by their residence, the matter is different. France and China are virtually at war with each other. No further declaration is necessary from the one to the other to entitle either of them to exercise rights of belligerents as against the other. So far, then, as British subjects are identified with China, their obligations arising out of a state of hostility between France and China have already commenced, and they must submit to the inconveniences which their residence on the soil of a belligerent of necessity entails.

China, moreover, is threatened with attack. She is entitled to defend herself. That right is one of the highest nature, and British subjects must submit to the inconveniences which necessary measures of defence may entail.

As regards the obligations of British subjects under exterritoriality also, war has commenced. These obligations depend upon the particular British laws imposing them, and it will be found that the laws in question contemplate an actual state of war, and an actual state of war exists.

1884

It is not proposed to attempt to deal with all the matters in respect of which British subjects are required to submit to the obligations and inconveniences arising from a state of war. The following are some of them:—

1. Enlistment in the service of France or China;
2. Contraband of war;
3. Export of munitions of war and stores from China;
4. Foreign Settlements;
5. Passage of rivers and access to ports.

1. Enlistment in the Service of France or China.

Great Britain, for the enforcement of the duties and obligations of neutrality devolving on her by the law of nations, has enacted "The Foreign Enlistment Act, 1870."

The greater part of the offences created by that Act can only be committed within Her Majesty's dominions. There is one, however, which is made an offence whether committed within or without Her Majesty's dominions; that is, the offence of illegal enlistment, under section 4, which provides as follows:—

"If any person, without the licence of Her Majesty, being a British subject, within or without Her Majesty's dominions, accepts, or agrees to accept, any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any foreign State at peace with Her Majesty. . . .

"He shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour."

By section 13 it is provided that—

"The term of imprisonment to be awarded in respect of any offence against this Act shall not exceed two years."

By the Interpretation Clause (section 30) it is provided that—

"'Military service' shall include military telegraphy and any other employment whatever in or in connection with any military operation.

"'Naval service' shall, as respects a person, include service as a marine, employment as a pilot in piloting or directing the course of a ship of war or other ship when such ship of war or other ship is being used in any military or naval operation, and any employment whatever on board a ship of war, transport, store-ship, privateer, or ship under letters of marque."

And section 12 provides that any person who aids, abets, counsels, or procures the commission of any offence against this Act shall be liable to be tried and punished as a principal offender.

France and China are at war with each other within the meaning of the Act, and any British subject entering the naval or military service of France or China renders himself subject to the penalties of the Act.

But, although by the terms of the Statute it is made an offence for British subjects to commit the acts therein referred to in China, and it is desirable that British subjects should know their liabilities in this respect, doubts have been raised as to whether it is intended that the penalties should be enforced in Her Majesty's Courts in China, and in no case whatever should any prosecution be instituted under this Statute by Her Majesty's Consuls without reference to Her Majesty's Minister.

For the good government of British subjects in China special provisions have been made under Order in Council.

Section 82 of the China and Japan Order in Council, 1865, makes it a misdemeanour for a British subject, without licence of Her Majesty, to take part in any operation of war in the service of the Emperor of China against any person engaged in carrying on war against the Emperor of China.

On the other hand, section 81 of the same Order makes it a misdemeanour in any British subject if he, in China, while Her Majesty is at peace with the Emperor of China, levies war or takes part in any operation of war against the Emperor of China, or aids or abets any person in carrying on war against the Emperor of China.

For any offence under these sections of the Order in Council a British subject may be tried and punished by a British Court in China.

But as a British subject in the military or naval service of any State ought to be considered to be under the protection of that State, great difficulties and inconveniences might arise from an attempt to exercise this jurisdiction, and, therefore, when it can be avoided, no prosecution ought to be instituted by Her Majesty's Consuls without first making reference to Her Majesty's Minister.

2. Contraband of War.

Until war has commenced there is no contraband of war, properly speaking; and until France or China choose to be considered at war, neither of them has a right, as a belligerent, to prevent British subjects, as neutrals, from supplying the other of them with stores or munitions of war.

When war has commenced, the right of prevention will arise; but, as a belligerent right over neutrals, it must be exercised by the belligerents themselves, and neither France nor China is entitled to require that British subjects, as neutrals, should be prevented by the British authorities from supplying stores or munitions of war to the other belligerent.

The practice of Great Britain, as a neutral State with respect to articles which may be deemed contraband of war, is governed by the general law of nations. Her Majesty's Government have always maintained that, by the law of nations, the neutral shipper of goods which may be deemed to be contraband of war commits no offence against his own Sovereign, and that a neutral State is not bound to restrain or punish its subjects who seek to carry such goods across the seas to a belligerent, the only penalty for so doing being the seizure and condemnation of the goods if intercepted by the enemy during their transport

When war has commenced, it will be open to France, on the high seas or in Chinese waters, to intercept stores and munitions intended for the Chinese; and it will, in like manner, be open to the Chinese to intercept stores and munitions intended for the French; and for this purpose either of them may visit and search British ships for contraband of war, and if any is found on board, may take in the ship with her cargo for adjudication, if captured by the French, to some port in the French territory, and if by the Chinese, to some port in Chinese territory.

Contraband is probably the only cargo for carrying which British ships will be seized. For, as to the freedom from condemnation of enemy's goods under the neutral flag, France will, of course, be guided by the Declaration of Paris of 1856; and although China has not signified her adhesion to that Declaration, it is not likely that she will wish to go beyond the limits which France has imposed on herself by her adhesion to it.

As to ships captured by the French, the adjudication will necessarily be in the French Prize Courts.

As to those taken by the Chinese, the Chinese will have the right of adjudication. The arrangement for joint investigation does not extend to such cases, and there is no British Tribunal which would have any jurisdiction to hear them. But adjudication should take place in accordance with the recognized rules of international law; and if a British vessel, captured by the Chinese, should be brought in for adjudication into any port, Her Majesty's Consul should see that she is not condemned by any but a duly constituted Tribunal; he should attend to watch proceedings, and should secure the owners of the ship and cargo a fair hearing; and, if the decision of the Tribunal should, in his opinion, be wrong, he should address a firm but temperate protest to the proper authorities, and ask that the condemnation should not be carried out until a reference has been made to Her Majesty's Minister.

3. Export of Munitions of War and Stores from China.

What has been said above applies to all articles contraband of war, whatever may be the place from which the articles may have been shipped. But with regard to munitions or stores exported or attempted to be exported from China, China has, as regards munitions of war, a right and power of prevention independently of any belligerent right.

By Article III of the Rules of Trade made under the Treaty of Tien-tsin, import and export trade are alike prohibited in gunpowder, shot, cannon, fowling-pieces, rifles, muskets, pistols, and all other munitions or implements of war.

So far as these articles are concerned, China can prevent the export at all times, and any munitions of war attempted to be shipped can be seized by the Chinese authorities. The consequences of seizure under this clause, however, are different from what would follow seizure under belligerent rights.

1884

The ship will not, as regards liability to confiscation, be subject to the law of nations as for breach of neutrality, but only to such liabilities as may be imposed by Treaty. The Regulations, moreover, for joint investigation will apply, and the procedure there laid down should be followed.

The right of China under Treaty to prohibit the export of articles included in the category of contraband of war does not extend to any article not properly answering the description of munitions of war. The prohibition does not extend to coal, and British subjects have under Treaty the right of free export of coal.

But this right is subject to China's paramount right of self-defence, and must yield to it so far as the necesssities of self-defence require China is entitled to prevent coal being exported from China for the purpose of being used against herself. She may, therefore, prohibit the export of coal for the use of the French fleet, and may take any measures that are absolutely required for securing the observance of that prohibition.

But such measures ought not to be more extensive than the necessities of the case demand. If a total prohibition of the export of coal were necessary to secure that coal exported should not reach the French fleet, it would have to be submitted to; but it seems practicable that within certain limits and with certain precautions coal might be shipped without incurring the danger of its falling into the hands of the French. Thus, bonds might be taken for its delivery at the port of destination. It is not every port to which the Chinese could fairly be asked to allow coal to be exported. They might reasonably require that its delivery should be verified by their own authorities. This could only be done at one of their own ports, or at a port where they have a Consul. Again, it would defeat the purposes of the prohibition if it were delivered at a defenceless port where it would easily fall into the hands of the French.

As to the enforcement of the prohibition, that should be left to the action of the Chinese authorities. They would not, with respect to a breach of the prohibition, acquire any belligerent rights, but they have ample means of securing its observance by refusing permission to ship Any coal shipped without a permit would be liable to confiscation under Article XXXIX of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, and the adjudication would be under the rules for joint investigation.

Although, as subjects of a neutral Power, British subjects are free to supply stores or munitions of war to either the French or the Chinese, subject only in time of war to the risk of hostile capture and confiscation, yet it is evident that, as resident in China, they ought not to make use of that residence for the purpose of aiding her enemies. If it were not for extra-territoriality they would be subject to any laws which China might make to prevent such a violation of the duties which residence imposes. Great Britain, in obtaining for her subjects exemption from the operation of Chinese laws, has recognized an obligation to legislate for the prevention of such acts as those laws might reasonably have prohibited.

A British subject in China supplying coals to French men-of-war, knowing that it was intended to use those coals in carrying on war against China, may fairly be considered as coming under the prohibition of the China and Japan Order in Council, 1865. section 81, as aiding and abetting in the carrying on of war against China. But the difficulty of proving such a case and of obtaining a conviction has to be taken into account, and it is desirable that the Chinese should, as far as possible, be left to enforce a prohibition of this sort by the means at their own disposal; and in no case where it can be avoided ought a prosecution under this section to be instituted by Her Majesty's Consuls without reference to Her Majesty's Minister.

4. Foreign Settlements.

Foreign Settlements are not neutral territory. They may be brought within the sphere of hostile operations; and foreign residents are liable to suffer all the inconveniences which hostile operations entail.

There are, indeed, two instances known to residents in China and Japan where the right to maintain the neutrality of a foreign Settlement has been asserted and successfully maintained: Shanghae in 1854, and Yokohama in 1868. But the circumstances in each of those cases were different from those which now exist.

Although, however, the neutrality of foreign Settlements cannot be maintained as a right, it is to be hoped that both belligerents will, as far as possible, avoid making them the scene of hostilities.

The danger to which such Settlements are more likely to be exposed is from armed stragglers and undisciplined mobs, and against such a danger foreigners are entitled to protect themselves.

It is primarily the duty of the Chinese Government to protect the foreign Settlements; but experience has shown that the efficacy of the arrangements made by them for that purpose cannot always be relied on. It is in view of this fact that the foreign Powers have taken measures for the protection of the Settlements. Those measures are likely to be more efficacious than any which foreign residents could of themselves take. But, so far as it may be necessary to do so, foreigners are entitled to combine in their own defence.

It is expedient, however, that any measures which they may take may be taken with the assent of the Chinese authorities, and so avoid, as far as possible, any questions as to the legality of such measures being raised. Her Majesty's Consuls may fairly give their good offices in obtaining the assent of the Chinese; but the latter should be given to understand that Associations such as these are organized only for defence; that their existence is due to the necessities of the case, and that Her Majesty's Government are in no way responsible for them.

5. Passage of Rivers and Access to Ports.

The rights which British subjects have acquired of free access to the Treaty ports must be subordinated to the rights of belligerency and self-defence. Neither the ports nor the rivers or passages leading to them have, by the operation of the Treaties, been neutralized. Either of the belligerents may extend to them the sphere of hostilities, and China is entitled to take any measures of self-defence which circumstances show to be absolutely necessary, even to the closing of the rivers altogether.

But such measures should be limited to the absolute necessity of the case, and when the necessity has ceased the obligation to keep open the ports will revive. It is, therefore, desirable, in the interests of the Chinese Government as in the interests of foreigners generally, that, in taking measures for the blocking of rivers or ports, such measures should, as far as possible, be taken as will allow of the removal of any obstructions that may be placed to free navigation when they are no longer required.

(Signed) H. S. WILKINSON, Crown Advocate.

Peking, October 6, 1884.

---

Colombia.

No. 14.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 13.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 13, 1884.

My Lord,

Case of the "Eliza, detained in port of David.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relative to the case of Thomas Murray, a British subject, master and owner of the schooner "Eliza," which put into the Colombian port of David (in the State of Chiriqui) in distress. That we were referred to the depositions taken before the Panamá authorities (3. Mr. Gastrell's No. 4 of the 8th January, 1883), from which it would be seen that the nationality of the "Eliza" was found to be very obscure, and that many circumstances connected with the vessel were not free from suspicion.

Suspicious nature of the vessel.

That Murray deposed that the vessel was formerly Ecuadorian, and known as the "Teofilo," and that he had been sailing her for about two years under the British flag, by virtue of a Provisional Register issued to him by the British Consul in Païta. But he did not produce such Register, and had it ever been issued, it would have been valid only for six months, to enable her to proceed to a British port of Registry.

THE OCEANA GROUP PUBLISHERS
1884

That the proceedings in the case extended over a period of two years, and a clear and concise statement of them would be found in Mr. Acting Consul Mallet's No. 42 of the 24th November last.

That Sir J. Pauncefote also referred us to the short statement "A," of the facts of the case, by Mr. C. T. Chamberlaine (formerly Acting British Consul at Panamá) to the Foreign Office Memorandum "B," and to the inclosures in Mr. Mallet's No. 42. Also to the opinion of the Attorney-General of Colombia, contained in Mr. Gastrell's No. 29 of the 25th March, 1883.

Proceedings of authorities illegal.

That all the proceedings in the case had been declared by the Supreme Court of the Federal Government to be illegal, and Acting Consul Mallet in his No. 42, after complaining of the indifference with which the repeated remonstrances of the British Consulate had been treated, reported that Thomas Murray, owing to long imprisonment and suffering, was shattered in health, and that having lost all his property by the arbitrary and unjust action of the Colombian officials implicated, he was now a ruined man, and actually dependent on the British Consulate for support.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to submit to us the draft of an instruction which it was proposed to address to Mr. Chapman, Her Majesty's Acting Consul-General at Bogotá, directing him to call on the Colombian Government for reparation.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether, in our opinion, the proposed instruction to Mr. Chapman was right and proper under the circumstances, and also to favour your Lordship with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed instructions to Mr. Chapman.

That, in our opinion, the proposed instruction to Mr. Chapman is right and proper under the circumstances.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

1. Inclosure 3 in Mr. Gastrell's No. 4, January 8, 1883.
2. " 32 " " "
3. " 34 " " "
4. Mr. Gastrell, No. 16, February 25, 1883 (with Inclosures 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13).
5. Mr. Gastrell, No 29, March 25, 1883 (with two Inclosures).
6. Mr. Chamberlaine's Memorandum, October 24, 1883.
7. Mr. Mallet. No. 42, November 24, 1883 (with 34 Inclosures).
8. Foreign Office Memorandum. January 10, 1884.

Annex.

Earl Granville to Acting Consul-General Chapman.

Foreign Office, February , 1884.

Sir,

THE proceedings of the Colombian authorities in the case of the schooner "Eliza," and the treatment of her owner and master, Thomas Murray, a British subject, have, for a considerable time, occupied the attention of Her Majesty's Government. It was only on receipt of Mr. Acting Consul Mallet's despatch No. 42 of the 24th November last that they had before them a complete statement of the facts of the case.

That despatch, together with its thirty-four inclosures, is transmitted to you herewith in original, for your assistance in dealing with the case. It contains a clear and concise narrative of the events from the commencement, and I would also draw your attention to its concluding remarks.

Mr. Mallet complains, with reason, of the indifference manifested by the Colombian authorities to the repeated remonstrances of Her Majesty's Consulate in a case in which their treatment of a British subject has been characterized by illegality and oppression, and British property has been unjustifiably sacrificed.

The result of their unwarrantable and arbitrary proceedings is that Murray is now shattered in health and reduced to extreme poverty, being, indeed, dependent on the British Consulate for support.

You will at once express to the Colombian Government the surprise and regret with which Her Majesty's Government have learnt all the details of this extraordinary case, and have noticed their unfriendly indifference in the matter; and you will add that Her Majesty's Government trust they will make all the reparation in their power by an immediate award of indemnity to Thomas Murray for the wrongs and the losses he has suffered at the hands of the Colombian officials implicated.

You will accordingly claim, on behalf of Her Majesty's Government, the payment of a reasonable indemnity to Thomas Murray, to be assessed in such manner as may be arranged, and, in the meanwhile, of a moderate sum on account for the relief of his pressing necessities; but you will not be guided by the particulars of claim furnished by Murray himself, which form Inclosure No. 28 in Mr. Mallet's despatch.

I am, &c.

---

Corea.

No. 15.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, June 4, 1884.

Consular jurisdiction in Corea. Order in Council to carry into effect Treaty of November 26, 1883. Draft for approval.

My Lord,

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th ultimo, transmitting the draft of an Order in Council for China, Japan, and Corea,* which had been prepared by Mr. R. S. Wright, under the instructions of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, to carry into effect those Articles of the Treaty concluded between Great Britain and Corea on the 26th November last,† which related to Her Majesty's jurisdiction.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the draft Order might properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft Order in Council.

That, in our opinion, the draft Order in Council may properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 16.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received August 8.)

Royal Courts of Justice, August 8, 1884.

Jurisdiction over British subjects.

My Lord,

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, with reference to the instructions given by Her Majesty's Minister in China to Her Majesty's Consul-General in Corea as to the exercise of jurisdiction, civil and criminal, over British subjects under the Treaty of the 26th November, 1883, pending the commencement of the Order in Council of the 26th June, which was passed to regulate such jurisdiction.

Question as to instructions issued by Sir H. Parkes, and issue of further Order in Council pending commencement of Order of June 26, 1884.

That those instructions form an inclosure in Sir H. Parkes' despatch No. 5 of the 30th April.

That, by a notice published in the "London Gazette" of the 8th ultimo, it was

---

* Confidential No. 4985*.

† Treaty No. 728.

1884

directed that the Order in Council should come into operation in China, Japan, and Corea respectively on and after the 1st day of October, 1884.

That the ratifications of the Treaty were exchanged on the 28th April, and that Sir H. Parkes had instructed the Consul-General to exercise a limited jurisdiction where necessary, as explained in his despatch, during the interval between that date and the commencement of the Order.

That our opinion was requested whether a further Order in Council should be passed legalizing all judicial proceedings by Her Majesty's Consul-General in Corea before the commencement of the Order in Council, or whether any such action might be deferred until the validity of those proceedings be contested; and also whether the course adopted by Sir H. Parkes, under the circumstances, might be approved.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Do not advise issue of Order as proposed;

That we think it very doubtful whether an Order in Council legalizing all judicial proceedings by Her Majesty's Consul-General in Corea before the commencement of the Order in Council would be of any avail. We do not, therefore, advise the making of such an Order.

We are not aware of the reasons which led to the determination to postpone the operation of the Order in Council, as regards Corea, until the 1st October next.*

but of Order fixing commencement of that of June 26, 1884.

But we submit for consideration that it would be expedient at once, by an Order in Council, to fix the date of such new Order as the date on which, so far as regards Corea, the Order in Council should come into operation.

Approve conduct of Sir H. Parkes.

We think the course adopted by Sir H. Parkes, under the circumstances, may be approved.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, July 17, 1884.

1. Treaty with Corea of November 26, 1883. Treaty, No. 728.
2. Order in Council for China, Japan, and Corea, June 26, 1884. Confidential No. 4985*
3. Notice in "Gazette" of July 8, 1884.
4. Sir H. Parkes, "Corea No 5," April 30, 1884.

---

Denmark.

No. 17.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 6.)

Royal Courts of Justice, December 6, 1884.

My Lord,

Administration of property of Danes dying in Great Britain.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 18th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers† relating to a question raised by the Danish Government as to the effect of Article XV of the Treaty of 1670‡ between Great Britain and Denmark on the administration of the property of Danish subjects dying in this country. That a copy of that Article would be found among the papers, and that we should observe that, in a letter dated the 3rd November, 1884, Mr. Robinson, of the Board of Inland Revenue, stated what were the views of that Department on the subject.

Property not exempt from charges imposed by the lex loci.

That they considered that the Article in question applied only to the safe custody of the assets, and did not exempt them from the charges imposed by the lex loci on the property of persons dying within the jurisdiction.

---

* See section 10 of Order in Council, and Notice prepared by Mr. Wright, with his letter of June 25.

† Mr. Vivian, November 7: Mr. Vedel, October 3, 1884; Article XV of Treaty of 1670; Mr. Robinson November 3, 1884.

‡ State Papers, vol. i., p. 381.

That our opinion was requested as to whether that construction of the Article was right and proper, and whether Her Majesty's Minister at Copenhagen might be instructed to inform the Danish Government to that effect.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve above construction put on Article XV of Treaty of 1670.

That, in our opinion, the construction put upon the Article is right and proper, and Her Majesty's Minister at Copenhagen may be instructed to inform the Danish Government to that effect.

It is to be observed that the provisions contained in the clause which are relied on by the Danish Government only apply where the subject of either country dies in the other without making a disposition of his property, and the words at the commencement of the clause empower him to make such disposition.

If, therefore, a Dane were to die in this country, having disposed of his property by a deed or other instrument, or by a will, Article XV would not apply. And there would be nothing to exempt the property in this country passing under the will from probate duty, or those claiming under such a will or deed from legacy or succession duty. This being so, we think it clear that the clause must be construed (as it is well capable of being, though somewhat loosely worded) as providing only for the safe custody of property which has been left by the deceased without any person having been designated to take charge of it either by deed or will.

No satisfactory reason can be suggested why property thus left should be exempt from burthens which would have to be borne by property of which the deceased has designated the destination and provided for the administration.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Egypt.

No. 18.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 23, 1884.)

[After recapitulating the following Reference, they report as on p. 29.]

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane.

Foreign Office, December 19, 1883.

Gentlemen,

Suez Canal Company. Rights of the Sultan, the Company, and the Khedive, with regard to alterations.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Secretary of State, the papers noted in the accompanying list,* and to submit the following points for your consideration and advice in relation to the recent negotiations which, as you are no doubt aware, have been carried on in this country between M. de Lesseps, on behalf of the Suez Canal Company, and "The Association of Steam-ship Owners engaged in Eastern trade."

I am, in the first place, to invite your attention to the correspondence (document A) which has taken place between the Association and the Foreign Office.

---

* (A) Correspondence between the Foreign Office and the Association of Steam-ship Owners engaged in the Eastern Trade; (B) British Suez Canal Directors, No. 60, December 5; (C) Ditto, No. 61, December 6; (D) Ditto, No. 62, December 6; (E) Law Officers' Report, May 26, Confidential No. 4974, p. 31; (F) To Law Officers, July 6; (G) Sir E. Malet, No 150, May 13; (H) Sir E. Baring, No. 504, November 12; (I) Ditto, No. 558, November 26; (J) Ditto, No. 564, November 28; (K) Ditto, No. 578, December 3, 1883; (L) Parliamentary Paper, "Egypt No. 23 (1883)," No. 2734.

1884

On the 12th October Mr. Westray, the Secretary of the Association, addressed a letter to Earl Granville, announcing their readiness to take measures for the examination of the Isthmus of Suez by competent surveyors, in order to define the best position for a new Canal, or to second the views of Her Majesty's Government in any direction tending to procure such an arrangement as would secure the facilities required by the commerce of this country on fair terms.

In reply to this letter, Earl Granville pointed out to the Association that they were proceeding on the assumption of the absence of any exclusive right appertaining to the present Suez Canal Company, whereas the right to construct a rival Canal was controverted, and was a matter for judicial decision; and his Lordship recommended them either to enter into direct communication with the Suez Canal Company, with a view to obtaining the facilities necessary to British commerce, without prejudice to whatever title they might have to proceed independently, or to furnish a statement of their views to Her Majesty's Government, who would thus be in a position themselves to enter into communication with the Company.

On the 9th November the Association again addressed Lord Granville, stating at length their reasons for rejecting both alternatives proposed by his Lordship.

However, M. de Lesseps and his son, M. Charles de Lesseps, having shortly afterwards visited this country, interviews took place between them and the Association, which resulted in an Agreement as to certain conditions for the future administration of the Suez Canal.

Those conditions were submitted to Lord Granville by the Association in their letter of the 30th November (document A). That letter was communicated to the British Suez Canal Directors for their observations, and I am now to refer you to their despatches No. 60, Confidential, of the 5th December instant (document B), No. 61 of the 6th December instant (document C), and No. 62 of the same date (document D).

You will observe that in those despatches the British Directors state that M. de Lesseps desires to receive from Her Majesty's Government some assurance that if the conditions above mentioned be conceded, they will constitute a final settlement of the question, and that Her Majesty's Government will not allow the Company to be prevented from carrying out the necessary works on the Canal by the Egyptian Government on the ground asserted by the latter, that no alterations in the existing Canal can be made without a fresh Concession from the Khedive. Further, that this settlement of the question is understood by M. de Lesseps as protecting the Company in future from all danger of competition.

Before committing themselves to any pledges or assurances to the Suez Canal Company, Her Majesty's Government desire to consider once more with great care the three principal questions involved, viz.:—

1. The right of the Sultan of Turkey to control any grant of a new Concession, or any extension of the present one.
2. The right to a monopoly in the Isthmus of Suez claimed by the Company.
3. The right claimed by the Khedive to object to any alteration in the existing Canal being made without his sanction.

As regards the first question, Lord Granville has already been favoured with your opinion, as stated in your Report of the 21st ultimo.

As regards the second question, I am to refer you to your Report of the 26th May last (document E), to the reference addressed to you from this Office on the 6th July last, and on which your Report has not yet been received (document F), to Sir Edward Malet's despatch No. 150 of the 13th May last, containing a copy of the opinion of the legal advisers of the Egyptian Government that such monopoly exists (document G), and to Sir E. Baring's despatch No. 504 of the 12th November, transmitting a note from the Egyptian Government, expressing their dissent from the views of their legal advisers on the subject, and stating that the point is undergoing more careful examination (document H).

As regards the third question, I am to refer you to Sir E. Baring's despatch No. 558 of the 26th November (Document I), containing a copy of the opinion of the legal advisers of the Egyptian Government, to the effect that the Company has no right to enlarge the present Canal without the sanction of the Khedive. Also to Sir E. Baring's despatch No. 564 of the 28th November (document J), transmitting a copy of the opinion of Borelli Bey, which is opposed to that view. Also to Sir E. Baring's despatch No. 578 of the 3rd December (document K), transmitting a copy of a note from the Egyptian Government to M. de Lesseps reserving their rights.

Copies of all the Concessions, Conventions, Statutes, and Resolutions of the Suez Canal Company and of the Sultan's Firman will be found in the Parliamentary Paper, "Egypt No. 23 (1883)" (document L).

The first of the three questions, as before stated, has been answered in your Report of the 21st ultimo, and I am now to request that you will take the papers transmitted herewith into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Granville with your opinion on the second and third questions submitted in this letter, and with any general observations which you may have to offer on the papers.

---

[After recapitulating the foregoing Reference, the Law Officers report as follows:—]

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

The Company possess a monopoly.

That we retain the opinion we have already expressed, that, having regard to the terms of the Concession to M. de Lesseps, it would be an inequitable violation of the rights granted to him if a rival Company were authorized by the Khedive to construct a Canal piercing the Isthmus of Suez. We have already expressed our view, and now repeat, that some "exclusive power" was granted, a fact which is admitted on all hands. We think the question what this exclusive power was must be determined by considering what it was the Khedive had power to grant or to withhold. This, it can scarcely be doubted, was the right to make a Canal through the isthmus.

The Khedive could neither permit nor prevent any one from forming a Company, but he could prevent any Company formed from making such a Canal.

It is, however, contended that, as soon as the Company was formed, the exclusive power was exhausted, or, at all events, as soon as the Canal was made. But we are unable to see that such a construction can be fairly considered the true construction, and to embody the real intention of the parties. If the true meaning of the Concession be—"We will give to you alone the power to form a Company which shall have the power to pierce the isthmus," we cannot think the meaning of the parties was, that as soon as such a Company was formed, or as soon as it had begun to work the Canal, the Khedive might empower a rival Company to make a competing one. The facts that the Egyptian Government was largely interested in the enterprise, that the Concession was only for a term, and that at the end of the term the Canal was to become the property of the Egyptian Government, appear to us to support the view we take.

At the same time, after the discussion which has occurred, and looking to the conflicting views that have been expressed, it is needless to say that it must be regarded as doubtful which is the true view.

Provided they can accommodate the traffic.

We ought to add, too, that the Concession no doubt imposes certain obligations to accommodate the vessels passing through the Canal. And if there were such an amount of traffic that the existing Company, after affording all the accommodation within its power, could not pass the traffic through the Canal, except with an unreasonable delay, we are by no means prepared to say that it would be a violation of the rights of the existing Company if another Canal were constructed, provided it were on such terms as would leave to the existing Company as much traffic as its Canal could reasonably accommodate.

The Company have power to make any alterations within the conceded territory.

2. It is clear that the Company cannot make any alterations of the existing Canal which involve works outside their present territory.

The question whether, within their limits, the Company can enlarge the Canal is not free from difficulty, but we have, though not without doubt, arrived at the conclusion that they can. It must be borne in mind that the main object of the Concessions was the formation of the Canal. It was the interest of the Egyptian Government, too, that the Canal should be as large as possible. We think, therefore, that the breadth and depth were fixed by the Commission, not for the purpose of restricting the Canal Company, but for the purpose of insuring that the Canal should not be less than the stipulated width and depth.

And the additional lands which were left to the Company by the Award of the Emperor of the French, were left to them as ancillary to the Canal and necessary for its effective working. If at any parts of the Canal it can be widened, still leaving enough of the Company's land on either side for the protection of the banks and the proper carrying on of the enterprise, we cannot conceive that this could be opposed to the intention of either party to the Convention.

The principal difficulty to our minds arises from the Ist and IInd Articles of the Convention of 1866, which provide that the Egyptian Government may occupy, within the limits of the lands reserved, as dependencies of the Maritime Canal, any place it might judge necessary for the defence of the country, provided it does not interfere with the navigation of the Canal, and also may occupy as custom-houses, barracks, &c., any land which can be so disposed of without interfering with the business of the Canal.

1884

It may be contended that if the Canal itself were widened, the lands which could thus be made use of by the Egyptian Government would be so far limited.

But we think that the only object of these provisions was to secure the full territorial powers which were necessary to the Government of Egypt for the defence of the country and the use by them for barracks, &c., of lands not wanted by the Company, and that it was not the intention of the parties to restrict the use by the Company, of the conceded lands, so as to prevent their applying them in the most effective manner for accomplishing the main object of the parties, viz., the creation and working of a Canal, suited for navigation by large vessels. If the breadth and depth originally fixed be taken as restrictive for all time, the Company would not be entitled even to deepen the Canal, to meet the exigencies of an altered construction of vessels, though no conceivable reasons can be suggested why the Egyptian Government should have imposed such a limitation upon the Company's powers. If it could be shown that the widening, at any part of the Canal, would interfere with strategic works necessary for the defence of the country, we must not be understood as saying that the widening could, in such a case, be carried out by the Company.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Royal Courts of Justice, January 22, 1884.

---

No. 19.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 12, 1884.

New Egyptian Loan.

Questions as to necessity for consent:—

1. Of Commissioners of Public Debt.

2. Of Powers.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th ultimo, submitting the following questions for our consideration and advice:—

1. Was it within the power of the Egyptian Government to raise a new loan, in the shape of an addition to the Unified Debt, with the consent only of the Commissioners of the Public Debt? or—

2. Should the consent of all the Powers who accepted the Law of Liquidation be signified with a view of rendering what, in that event, would be a modification of the Law of Liquidation binding upon the Mixed Tribunals?

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

An addition to the Unified Debt needs sanction of the Powers.

That we think the answer to the questions submitted to us depends upon whether under the Decree of May 1876, and afterwards under the Law of Liquidation, the revenues appropriated for the service of the Public Debt are to be treated as appropriated, in the manner therein prescribed, to the then existing Public Debt alone, or whether the provisions of those instruments are to be taken as applying also to any addition to the Public Debt sanctioned by the Commissioners. The latter view is open to argument, but we think the former is the more correct one. If so, it follows that an addition to the Unified Debt, with the incidents attaching to that debt, would be a modification of the Law of Liquidation, and, in order to render it binding upon the Mixed Tribunals, the consent of all the Powers who accepted the Law of Liquidation would be necessary.

Conditions under which Egypt can raise a loan with consent of Commissioners only.

We may observe that it would appear to be within the power of the Egyptian Government to raise a new loan, with the consent of the Commissioners, without requiring a modification of the Law of Liquidation, provided that the interest upon it was met and it was secured by other revenues than those which, under the Law of Liquidation, are appropriated to the Unified Debt dealt with by that law.

In expressing the above opinion, we have assumed that the first question submitted to us relates to a new loan to be paid out of the same revenues, and put on precisely the same footing as the existing Unified Debt.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers sent to Law Officers, March 24, 1884.

(A.) Decree of May 2, 1876; Confidential No. 3539, pp. 55 and 56.
(B.) Decree of May 7, 1876; Confidential No. 3539, pp. 53–55.
(C.) Decree of November 18 1876; Confidential No 3539, pp. 116-121.
(D.) Decree of March 31, 1880; Parliamentary No. 2278, p. 6.
(E.) Law of Liquidation of July 17, 1880; Parliamentary No. 2322.

---

No. 20.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 30.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 29, 1884.

My Lord,

Indemnities awarded by the International Commission.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 12th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us papers relative to a question which had arisen as to the obligation of the Egyptian Government to pay in full, and at once, the awards of the International Commission appointed to deal with the claims of those who suffered by the insurrection in Egypt in 1882.*

That that Commission was appointed by a Decree of the Khedive of the 15th January, 1883, of which the terms were approved by the Powers who were to take part in it, and who had consented to the issue of another Decree on the 4th November, 1882, declaring the Mixed Tribunals incompetent to adjudicate upon those claims in view of the constitution of a special Commission for that purpose.

That Article 1 of the Decree of the 25th January, 1883, gave exclusive jurisdiction to the Commission to receive and examine the claims, and to decide without appeal "souverainement" on each one, either by rejecting it or confirming it by an indemnity, and that Article 6 laid down that the time and ways and means of paying the indemnities awarded should be decided thereafter.

That the Egyptian Government was represented on the Commission by two members, the President and the Vice-President, and had taken every precaution to ascertain the particulars of each claim, and assess it at its reasonable valuation, Borelli Bey, Legal Adviser to the Government, being attached to the Commission for that purpose, and commercial questions involving large amounts being referred to the Under-Secretary of State for Finance.

That the despatches inclosed from the Earl of Dufferin and Mr. Cookson, the British members of the Commission, showed the endeavours made by that body to arrive at a just estimate of the claims, and by the Egyptian Government to protect itself against the award of excessive indemnities.

That the Egyptian Government made arrangement for paying in full all awards up to 200*l*., and that that decision had been advanced by a Committee styling itself the "Egyptian Indemnities Committee," in a Memorandum addressed to Her Majesty's Government, as an argument for treating all claims in the same manner.

That an Egyptian Law Officer who had recently been consulted on the subject had advised that the indemnities must be paid in full, that the French and Italian

---

* List of Papers:—
A. Earl of Dufferin, No. 15, January 14, 1884.
B. Sir E. Malet, No. 806, November 7, 1882.
C. Earl of Dufferin, No. 132, April 28, 1883.
  Mr. Cookson, No. 34, April 30, 1883; No. 60, August 26, 1883.
D. Earl of Dufferin, No 131, April 28, 1883.
E. M. Mansuardi, November 12, 1883.
  To Sir E. Baring, No. 327, December 18, 1883.
F. Sir E. Baring (Telegraphic), No. 229, March 18, 1884.
G. Sir E. Baring, No. 327, March 18, 1884.
H. Sir E. Baring, No. 356, March 25, 1884.
I. Sir E. Baring, No. 360, March 25, 1884.
K. To Sir E. Baring, No. 279, October 31, 1883.

1884

Governments had requested the Egyptian Government to take measures for their payment without delay, and that the Mixed Court of First Instance at Cairo, to which one of the claimants had appealed, had declared the competency of the Mixed Tribunals to entertain a suit brought against the Government for the recovery of an award made by the Commission, notwithstanding the Decree of the 4th November, 1882, and the fact that the time and means of payment had not yet been fixed as provided by Article 6 of the 13th January, 1883.

That, on the other hand, the Legal Adviser to the Egyptian Government had given his opinion that the Government was under no obligation to pay the indemnities in full, and that the matter depended on its resources, and on the amount awarded.

That there was no doubt that the present financial position of Egypt must render the payment of the indemnities extremely difficult, and that many of the awards were excessive, as was pointed out by your Lordship in a despatch of the 31st October, 1883, to Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo.

That our opinion was requested upon the question submitted in that letter, viz., whether the Egyptian Government was legally bound to pay the indemnities awarded by the Commission in full.

And whether, in view of the two Decrees above cited, it was competent to the Mixed Tribunals to entertain a suit for the recovery of the awards, or at all events before the time and mode of payment should have been fixed by a further Decree of the Khedive.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the 1st Article of the Decree of the 13th January, 1883 (which was issued with the consent of the Powers whose subjects were concerned), establishes an International Commission to examine the claims, and to determine upon each one of them "souverainement," either by rejecting it, or "en y faisant droit par la fixation d'une indemnité."

Indemnities must be paid in full.

It appears to us that where a claim has been allowed, and an indemnity fixed, the amount cannot again be called in question, and that all that remains to be done is, under Article 6 of the same Decree, to fix the time and ways and means of payment "des indemnités accordées par la Commission."

They are not due till date of payment has been fixed. Mixed Tribunals have no jurisdiction.

It appears to us, however, clear that, until this has been done, there can be no legal right to payment, and that the Mixed Courts are not competent to entertain a suit for the recovery of the amounts awarded.

The only right to these sums arises from the very Decree which in terms provides that the ways and means as well as the times of payment are to be thereafter provided for.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 21.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Lord Chancellor.

Nationality of the Judges of the International Court of Appeal.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE presents his compliments to the Lord Chancellor, and has the honour to transmit to him, by direction of Earl Granville, the accompanying despatch from Mr. Egerton, relating to the nationality of the Judges of the International Court of Appeal at Alexandria.*

The Règlement Organique, or Charter of the Mixed Tribunals, provides that the Court of Appeal shall consist of eleven Judges, of whom seven are to be foreigners and four natives.

It is now proposed to increase that number to twelve, by the addition of one more foreign Judge.

The foreign Judges are appointed by the Egyptian Government after consultation with the foreign Powers, and the Charter contains no provision as to their respective nationalities. Hitherto the Great Powers only have been represented on the Bench of the Appeal Court, in pursuance of a private understanding in that behalf.

The secondary Powers have urgently claimed that, in the event of any increase of the number of foreign Judges, they should also be represented on that Bench.

If the claims of the secondary Powers be considered with reference to their respective interests in Egypt, there is no doubt that the claim of Greece is superior to that of all the others, by reason of the importance of the Greek community established in that country; and, accordingly, the Greek Government have been unremitting in their efforts to secure the nomination of a Greek Judge of Appeal.

On the other hand, the Egyptian Government are strongly opposed to the system of packing the Appeal Court with representatives of particular nationalities, and desire to be left free to choose the most eligible candidates for the Bench, irrespectively of their nationality.

In the telegram of the 11th April last, referred to in Mr. Egerton's despatch, it was stated that Her Majesty's Government approved the addition of one Judge (if the penal jurisdiction should be extended), without reference to nationality, but that, if possible, a Greek should be selected. The question which now arises is, whether Her Majesty's Government may properly offer to waive all considerations of nationality in the selection of the Judges of Appeal, provided the other Great Powers are willing to do the same, or whether it would be preferable to continue the existing practice of selection with a view to equal representation of nationalities so far as may be possible.

A Memorandum by the late Sir Francis Reilly is inclosed (Memorandum II, October 27, 1881 [Confidential No. 4519], Organization and Jurisdiction of Mixed Courts) in which the subject of "Representations and Nationalities" is briefly treated at p. 3.

Should the principle of representation of nationalities be retained, or should the free choice of new Judges be left to the Egyptian Government?

Lord Granville would be much obliged to the Lord Chancellor if he would favour him with his opinion as to whether the principle of representation of nationalities in the Appeal Court is one which it would be desirable to retain, or whether it would be preferable to defer to the wishes of the Egyptian Government by leaving to them the free choice of new Judges among the candidates possessing the highest judicial qualifications.

Foreign Office, May 21, 1884.

---

[*] Mr. Egerton, No. 501, May 6, 1884.

---

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

If this question were to be dealt with on abstract principles, without reference to the particular circumstances of Egypt, or to the rule laid down by Her Majesty's Government in paragraph 18 of the Memorandum II of the 27th October, 1881 [4519], there would be much to be said for the view suggested in Mr. Egerton's letter of the 6th May, 1884, and for leaving the Egyptian Government free to choose the most eligible candidates for the Bench, irrespective of their nationality.

But the practical considerations appear to me to preponderate in favour of the opposite view, under the actual circumstances of Egypt. The very principle of the existing constitution of the Tribunal (from which it is not proposed to depart) with a certain numerical proportion of foreign Judges, appears to me to involve a departure, in two most important respects, from that abstract idea, which the Egyptian Government favour: (1) that the Bench cannot be constituted on the simple principle of personal fitness, without any reference to nationality; and (2) that, in its actual constitution, a certain balance is to be preserved between Egyptian and foreign interests. It would hardly be reconcilable with the preservation of this balance that the Egyptian Government should be absolutely free and unfettered by any rule in its choice of those persons who are to represent the foreign element; inasmuch as the consequence of this might be that persons might be chosen who, though not themselves Egyptian, might be too much under Egyptian influence, or too much identified with Egyptian interests, to enjoy the confidence of foreigners, and especially (if no regard were paid to any fair representation of different nationalities) of foreigners of different nationalities from themselves.

The principle of national representation should be observed.

These objections to the Egyptian view derive additional force from the principle, which Her Majesty's Government is stated (in the paragraph already referred to of the Memorandum No. 4519) to be determined to maintain, "that the following five countries shall always be represented on the Court of Appeal, viz., Austria, England, France, Germany, Italy." Admitted to that extent, it seems to me quite obvious that national representation (so far as relates to the foreign element in the Court) becomes the ruling principle; and I see nothing but danger and risk of jealousies and discontents if this principle is not fairly and consistently observed in all cases in which new Judges are chosen. The impossibility of representing every one of the lesser Powers interested in Egyptian affairs cannot be a sufficient reason why, in the event of any increase in the number of foreign Judges, they (or some of them) should not be represented on the Bench in preference to an increase of the numerical weight of one or more of the greater Powers already represented there.

1884

And I think that the present preponderating power and influence of Great Britain in Egypt would necessarily lead to an impression (in those foreign countries which might appear to be excluded from any share of representation) that the freedom of choice, nominally reserved to the Egyptian, was really under the control (actual or potential) of the British Government.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

May 22, 1884.

---

No. 22.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received October 30.)

Royal Courts of Justice, , 1884.

My Lord,

Mission of Lord Northbrook to Egypt as Her Majesty's High Commissioner.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 12th August, stating that he was to transmit to us drafts of a Commission and of a Credential Letter to enable the Earl of Northbrook to act as Her Majesty's High Commissioner to inquire into and report upon the present situation of affairs in Egypt, and that he was to request that we would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to whether the terms of the said Commission and Credential Letter were right and proper.

That copies of Commissions issued to the Earl of Durham in 1838, and to Mr. Gladstone in 1858, were inclosed for convenience of reference

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve drafts of Commission and Credentials.

That, in our opinion, the terms of the said Commission and Credential Letter, as settled, are right and proper.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

Annex.

Commission to the Earl of Northbrook as Her Majesty's High Commissioner to inquire and report upon the Affairs of Egypt, dated August 12, 1884.

(Large Signet.)

VICTORIA R. et I.

VICTORIA, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, Empress of India, &c., to Our right trusty and right well-beloved Cousin and Councillor, Thomas George, Earl of Northbrook, Knight Grand Commander of Our Most Exalted Order of the Star of India, &c.

Whereas there are at present certain weighty affairs to be adjusted in Egypt, especially in connection with the present exigencies of Egyptian finance:

Now know you that We, reposing especial confidence in the tried fidelity and prudence of you, the said Thomas George, Earl of Northbrook, have named, constituted, and appointed, and do by these presents name, constitute, and appoint you to be Our High Commissioner to repair to Egypt and to collect such information touching the premises as you may deem fitting, and to report and advise Her Majesty's Government touching the counsel which it may be fitting to offer to the Egyptian Government in the present situation of affairs in Egypt, and as to the measures which should be taken in connection with them; and We do hereby give and grant unto you, the said Thomas George, Earl of Northbrook, full authority to act in the premises as herein set forth; and We further desire you to submit to Us in writing, through one of Our Principal Secretaries of State, such information as you may be able to collect respecting the premises, together with such suggestions and recommendations as you may deem fitting.

In witness whereof We have signed these presents with Our Royal Hand.

Given at Our Court at Osborne, the 12th day of August, in the year of our Lord 1884, and in the 48th year of Our reign.

By Her Majesty's command.

(Countersigned) GRANVILLE.

---

Earl Granville to His Highness the Khedive of Egypt.

Foreign Office, London, August 12, 1884.

Sir,

The sentiments of friendship which the Queen entertains for your Highness, and the especial interest which Her Majesty feels in the well-being of the country under your rule, and in the prosperity of the inhabitants thereof, have made her desirous to afford a fresh proof of her solicitude in that behalf. I have therefore the honour to acquaint your Highness that Her Majesty has selected the Earl of Northbrook to proceed to Egypt as her High Commissioner to communicate with your Highness, to inquire into certain weighty affairs, especially in connection with the present exigencies of Egyptian finance, which are at present depending for adjustment therein, and to report to us thereupon.

The Earl of Northbrook, whilst upon his mission to Egypt, will have the advantage of the advice and assistance of Sir Evelyn Baring, whose experience and local knowledge, together with the confidence placed in him by your Highness and by the Egyptian authorities, will enable him to afford valuable assistance to the Earl of Northbrook.

I am commanded by the Queen my Sovereign to express the hope that your Highness will afford your countenance to her High Commissioner, and that his Lordship may receive every facility and assistance to enable him to execute the high duties with which he has been intrusted.

I avail myself with pleasure of the opportunity to renew to your Highness the expression of the respect and esteem with which I have the honour to subscribe myself,

Sir,
Your Highness' most obedient,
humble Servant,
(Signed) GRANVILLE.

---

No. 23.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 17, 1884.

My Lord,

Petition of A. de Gabriele for remission of sentence.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to a Petition from Andrea de Gabriele, a prisoner in the Malta civil prison, who prayed for the remission of the sentence passed upon him by Her Majesty's Consular Court at Alexandria.

That the Petition, together with the "particulars of the prison history of the prisoner," were transmitted to the Foreign Office through the Colonial Office (Colonial Office letter, 16th July last).

That the opinion of Mr. Cookson, Her Majesty's Consul, and the Judge of the English Consular Court at Alexandria, on that Petition would be found in his despatch No. 49 of the 27th ultimo; but that unfortunately the Judge's note-book, which contained the Minutes of evidence, was not forthcoming.

That it would be seen from the particulars of the prison history that no previous convictions were recorded against the prisoner, and that his conduct in prison had been good.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the sentence of Andrea de Gabriele should be wholly or partly remitted.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the notes of the evidence having unfortunately been lost, we are not fully in possession of the facts of the case.

Remainder of sentence may be remitted.

But we think enough appears to show that the allegations in the Petition of Gabriele are not without foundation. He has already suffered about three and a-half years' imprisonment, and we think that, under all the circumstances, the remainder of the sentence might properly be remitted.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colonial Office, July 16; Mr. Cookson, No. 49. October 27, 1884.

1884

No. 24.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November , 1884.

Importation of tobacco and maintenance of the "raftieh" system.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice's letter of the 11th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying Confidential Print of papers relating to the question of the importation of tobacco, and to the maintenance of the "raftieh" system in Egypt.*

Questions as to power of Khedive—

1. To regulate importation of tobacco, and decline to carry out "raftieh" system.

2. To free Egypt from Turkish Customs Regulations.

That Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice was to refer us, in the first place, to the Memorandum in the Print (No. 18, p. 34), which explained the two points under consideration, and indicated the particular documents which bore upon them. That the questions which had arisen were:—

1. Whether the Khedive has power under the Firmans to regulate the importation of tobacco into Egypt, without reference to the Turkish Customs Regulations on the subject, and to decline to carry out the "raftieh" system as regards tobacco.

2. Whether the Khedive has power by his own Decrees, and by Conventions with the foreign States possessing Treaty rights on the subject, to free Egypt from the Turkish Customs Regulations as regards all imports and exports, and, in fact, to establish the complete autonomy of Egypt in the matter of customs.

That, as regarded the first question, Lord E. Fitzmaurice was to refer us to our Report of the 29th May, 1883 (Print, No. 5, p. 8), and to the two Memoranda at the close of the Print (No. 17, p. 33, and No. 18, p. 34); also to the opinion of M. Padoa, the legal adviser of the Egyptian Customs (Print, No. 3, p. 4). That we would observe that no special undertaking had been given by Egypt to the Porte to maintain the "raftieh" system as applied to tobacco, but that "raftiehs" were demanded at Egyptian ports in pursuance of the Turkish Regulations applicable to the whole of the Ottoman dominions.

That, as regarded the second question, Lord E. Fitzmaurice was to refer us to the two Memoranda above mentioned (Print, No. 17, p. 33, and No. 18, p. 34), and to the documents referred to in No. 18.

That a copy of the Firmans was transmitted therewith,† and the Articles of the Capitulations of 1675, which bore on the subject under consideration, would be found in a Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet (Print, No. 15, p. 31). That the Treaty of 1861 between Great Britain and Turkey referred to in that Memorandum had expired, and the commercial relations between the two Governments were based (pending the conclusion of a new Treaty) on the right claimed by Great Britain to most-favoured-nation treatment in the Ottoman dominions.

That Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer thereon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Khedive can regulate importation of tobacco and decline to carry out the "raftieh" system.

1. That we think the Khedive has power, under the Firmans, to regulate the importation of tobacco into Egypt, without reference to the Turkish Customs Regulations on the subject, and to decline to carry out the "raftieh" system as regards tobacco.

Circumstances under which Porte may object to Agreement for importation of tobacco.

We agree generally with the opinion expressed by M. Padoa on this point. But we still entertain the doubt which we expressed in our Report of the 15th December, 1883, whether the Porte might not object to any Agreement for the importation of tobacco in Egypt, by a Power prohibited, under a current Treaty with the Porte, from importing tobacco into the Turkish dominions.

Khedive can free Egypt from Turkish Customs Regulations, except in case of a State having a current Treaty with Porte.

2. We think that, speaking generally, the Khedive has power, by his own Decrees, and by Conventions with the foreign States possessing Treaty rights on the subject, to free Egypt from the Turkish Customs Regulations as regards all imports and exports. But we should not feel warranted in expressing a positive opinion that, in the case of any State having a current Treaty, the Porte might not take exception to such a Convention, without carefully considering the terms of the particular Treaty.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Correspondence relating to "raftiehs." Confidential No. 5042.

† Firmans. Confidential No. 4747.

---

Equator.

---

No. 25.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received July 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 1, 1884.

Claim of Mr. Mackintosh on Ecuadorian Government.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relative to the claim of Mr. Mackintosh upon the Ecuadorian Government.

Original claim settled.

That the original claim, which was for a large amount, was settled by the Convention concluded with the Ecuadorian Government on the 24th July, 1857, and the Supplementary Agreement of the 4th March, 1858. That copies of those instruments were inclosed.

Present claim for difference caused by depreciation of dollar.

That the present question had only reference to the claim of Mr. Mackintosh to the payment by the Ecuadorian Government of the difference between the value of the dollar, which was fixed by the Agreement of 1858 at 5 dol. 25 c. to the pound sterling, and the present relative value of the dollar, in which a great depreciation had taken place since that date.

That the annexed Memorandum, which had been drawn up by the Librarian to the Foreign Office, would put us in full possession of the history of that claim, which, as we should observe, was referred to the Law Officers of the Crown on the 22nd July, 1875.

That they advised that the claim should be pressed by Her Majesty's Government, and it had accordingly been supported by them ever since. But that there was nothing to show that the attention of the Law Officers was at the time directed to the particular claim now set up by Mr. Mackintosh, and which appeared inconsistent with the Supplemental Agreement of 1858, whereby the rate of exchange was fixed at 5 dol. 25 c. to the pound sterling, without any provision to meet the case of depreciation of the currency.

If that rate of exchange be not binding on the parties notwithstanding any fluctuation in the rate of exchange, it seemed difficult to understand the purpose of the Supplementary Agreement.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether, in view of the explanations given by the Ecuadorian Minister (Inclosure 3 in Mr. Lawrence's despatch No. 13 of the 18th April, 1884), any further support could properly be given to the present claim.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

"Vales" to amount agreed upon having been given, claim cannot be further supported.

That we gather that "vales" to the amount agreed upon by the Convention of the 24th July, 1857, calculating each pound sterling of that amount at 5 dol. 25 c., have been given to Mr. Mackintosh as provided by the Agreement, and that the debt has been, in this manner, discharged. If this be so, we are of opinion that no further support can properly be given to the present claim.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers concerning Mackintosh claim:—
1. Mr. Lawrence's No. 13, April 18, 1884.
2. Mr. Mackintosh, June 9, 1884.
3. Law Officers, August 17, 1875. (Confidential No. 4370, p. 17.)
4. Convention concluded with Ecuadorian Government, July 24, 1857. (For copy see letter from Mr. Mackintosh of February 17, 1875.)
5. Supplementary Agreement of March 4, 1858. (For copy see letter from Mr. Mackintosh of February 17, 1875.)
6. Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum of June 13, 1884.
7. To Mr. Mackintosh, May 31, 1884.

1884

France.

No. 26.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 16.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 15, 1884.

My Lord,

Convention for protection of submarine cables.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the accompanying volume,* and to request our attention to the discussion in regard to the War Article in the proposed Convention for the protection of submarine telegraphs recorded at the pages noted in the margin of his letter.

That we advised on the terms of the English Article in our Report of the 28th February last† (of which a copy was inclosed).

Objections to English Article.

That its text as finally drafted in French was given at p. 103 of the inclosed volume. That the German Government, however, continued to object to that Article. That the grounds of their final decision had not yet been communicated to Her Majesty's Government, but that it was understood that they adopted the views expressed by Dr. Dambach, and recorded at pp. 68, 77 of the accompanying volume.

That it accordingly appeared that unanimity among the Powers could not be obtained for the adoption of the English Article.

Propose accepting Austrian Article with proviso as to action in time of war.

That, under those circumstances, your Lordship was disposed to think that, sooner than delay or abandon the Convention, it would be better that Her Majesty's Government should agree to accept the Austrian Article, which would be found at p. 103, provided that it be put on record that they understood the Article to mean that, in time of war, a belligerent who was a Contracting Party would be at liberty to act with reference to submarine cables as if the Convention did not exist.

That as the decision of Her Majesty's Government on that point had to be made known to Lord Lyons next week, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to whether the course proposed would sufficiently secure the end intended, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed course.

That, in our opinion, the course proposed will sufficiently secure the end intended.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 27.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 4.)

Royal Courts of Justice, June 3, 1884.

My Lord,

Exchange of territory [Pettahs] in India between Great Britain and France.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd February last, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,‡ which related to a proposed exchange of territory in India between Great Britain and France. That the nature of the transaction was explained in the draft of a Convention, which had been prepared to carry it out, and of which a copy was inclosed in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter to the India Office of the 16th November, 1883. That we would observe that in that letter the question was raised as to the right of the Crown, in time of peace, to cede British territory to a foreign Power without the previous assent of Parliament, and that reference was made to the cases cited in Forsyth's Constitutional Law, p. 182.

Question as to cession of territory without sanction of Parliament.

That the Indian precedents bearing on the question would be found in the Memorandum inclosed in the India Office letter of the 13th February, and that the letter from the Colonial Office to the India Office of the 31st December, 1883, contained Reports by the Law Officers on certain cases in point which had occurred in the Colonies.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the proposed Convention might lawfully be concluded by Her Majesty's Government without the previous assent of Parliament.

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd ultimo, in which he drew our attention to the case of Damoddar Gordham v. Deoram Kanji, reported in 1 Law Reports, E. J. & S. P. C. Appeal Cases, p. 332.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Such cession unconstitutional in case of a colony; but not of India.

That whatever may be the strict legal rights of the Sovereign with regard to the cession of territory, we think that the cession, in time of peace, of territory subject to Parliamentary government, whether of a part of the United Kingdom or a part of the Sovereign's colonial possessions having a representative Legislature, would be an unconstitutional act.

But we are not prepared to say that the Sovereign cannot exercise such a power as regards her Indian possessions. There are precedents in support of such a course, and one in particular which was recognized by, and received the implied sanction of, the Imperial Parliament.

It seems also clear, from the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council (which included the present and the late Lord Chancellors) in the Bhownugger Cession case, that that Tribunal leant to the view that the Sovereign did possess this power of cession in India.

Looking at the somewhat conflicting opinions which have been expressed, we cannot say that the question is free from doubt, but we think the sounder opinion is that the proposed Convention might lawfully be concluded without the previous assent of Parliament.

But expediency of such a course a matter for consideration.

We may add, however, that the tendency in later years has been in the direction of a limitation of the prerogative powers, and an increase of Parliamentary control. It is, therefore, a matter for serious consideration whether it would be expedient to conclude the proposed Convention without the assent of Parliament.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

Disagreement with above opinion.

I regret that I am unable to concur with the Attorney and Solicitor-General, and I have the honour to submit to your Lordship the following Report:—

Convention for cession of territory not legal without sanction of Parliament.

The Judicial Committee in the Bhownugger case expressed their opinion, or, at least, their "grave doubts, to say no more, of the soundness of the general and abstract doctrine," that it was beyond the power of the British Crown, without the consent of the Imperial Parliament, to make any cession of territory within jurisdiction of any of the British Courts in India, in time of peace, to a foreign Power.

That opinion is stated in the widest and most general terms, but it was given in a case where the cession was made to a native Power, and may not be extended to a cession, such as that proposed in the present Convention, to an absolutely foreign Power like France.

I conceive that it is not within the power of the Crown to take a part of the British territory in India, and cede such part to France, without the assent of Parliament, and consequently that the Convention cannot lawfully be concluded by Her Majesty's Government without the previous assent of Parliament.

I would add that the tendency, in later years, has been in the direction of a limitation of the prerogative powers, and an increase of Parliamentary control.

Questions expediency of cession.

The object of the Convention is to remove an administrative difficulty, and I respectfully submit to your Lordship whether, in a matter on which conflicting

---

* Volume of Minutes of Second Meeting of Submarine Cables Conference. See more particularly pp. 67-69, 78-80, 92-95, 99-106.

† Law Officers, February 28, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 59.

‡ 1. To India Office, November 16, 1883, with copy of Draft Convention.
2. India Office, February 13, 1884, containing Memorandum of September 8, 1873, and letter from Colonial Office, December 31, 1883, with Law Officers' Reports inclosed.

1884

opinions exist, it is worth while to risk a discussion in Parliament for apparently so small an object, and one which may probably be obtained as easily by some means other than the cession of territory.

I have, &c.
(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 28.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 4, 1884.

Injunction served on Consul Ward as to non-delivery of papers of the "Fire Queen."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 26th April last, transmitting to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris, forwarding a communication from Mr. Ward,* Her Majesty's Consul at Bordeaux, requesting instructions as to his course of procedure, under the following circumstances:—

That it appeared that a British steamer, the "Fire Queen," had been arrested at Bordeaux by order of the Civil Tribunal at that place, and that the Tribunal had served upon Mr. Ward, in his official capacity, an injunction, or writ, warning him not to deliver the ship's papers of the "Fire Queen," which had been deposited in the Consulate in the ordinary way, under penalty of being held personally responsible for the amount claimed against the ship.

That it was conceived that the Consul, in such a case, on being informed by the proper authorities of the Order of the Court in regard to the ship, was bound to abstain from any Act which would interfere with the course of justice, but that the question arose, whether the service upon him of an injunction or other process of the Court, in his Consular capacity, in relation to matters connected with his public duties and functions, was such an irregularity as to call for diplomatic representation.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to "Calvo," vol. i, sections 467 and 468, and to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the reply which should be returned to Mr. Ward's inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, though a Consul may not possess immunity from legal process, we think that an injunction requiring him to act in a manner inconsistent with the due discharge of his official functions would call for diplomatic representation.

Case does not call for diplomatic representation.

But the present case hardly falls within this category. The only duty imposed upon the Consul was to deliver the ship's papers to the master a reasonable time before his departure. And, as far as appears from the facts before us, obedience to the injunction of the Court did not involve any inability to discharge this duty.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 29.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 2, 1884.

Pending war between France and China.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that Her Majesty's Government, having received intelligence that a state of war was unhappily pending, if not existing, between France and China, and Her Majesty being resolved to maintain the strictest neutrality, Sir Julian Pauncefote was directed to request that we would immediately take into our consideration the annexed draft of a Royal Proclamation to that effect, to be issued in case of need, and also a draft of letters to the Boards of Admiralty and Treasury, and to the Colonial Office, War Office and India Office, announcing the same.

Drafts of Proclamation of Neutrality, and of letters to Public Departments.

That to facilitate the consideration of these documents Sir Julian Pauncefote was to transmit to us copies* of those issued for the same purpose at the breaking out of war between Russia and Turkey in 1877, together with a copy of the Report of the Neutrality Laws Commissioners,† in the appendix to which would be found documents of the same kind issued on former occasions.

---

* In Lord Lyons' No. 25, Consular, 1884.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to add that your Lordship would be glad to be informed at our earliest convenience whether the proposed drafts were in our opinion right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed drafts.

That we are of opinion that the proposed drafts are right and proper under the circumstances.

Should recite section 2 of Foreign Enlistment Act in Proclamation.

It may be well to recite section 2 of the Foreign Enlistment Act amongst the other portions of that Act recited in the Proclamation.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex 1.

(A.)

By the Queen.

A PROCLAMATION.

VICTORIA R.

WHEREAS We are happily at peace with all Sovereigns, Powers, and States:

And whereas a state of war unhappily exists between the French Republic and His Majesty the Emperor of China, and between their respective citizens and subjects and others inhabiting within their countries, territories, or dominions:

And whereas We are on terms of friendship and amicable intercourse with each of these States, and with their several citizens and subjects and others inhabiting within their countries, territories, or dominions:

And whereas great numbers of Our loyal subjects reside and carry on commerce, and possess property and establishments, and enjoy various rights and privileges, within the territory of each of the aforesaid States, protected by the faith of Treaties between Us and each of the aforesaid States:

And whereas We, being desirous of preserving to Our subjects the blessings of peace which they now happily enjoy, are firmly purposed and determined to maintain a strict and impartial neutrality in the said state of war unhappily existing between the aforesaid States:

We, therefore, have thought fit, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, to issue this Our Royal Proclamation:

And We do hereby strictly charge and command all Our loving subjects to govern themselves accordingly, and to observe a strict neutrality in and during the aforesaid war, and to abstain from violating or contravening either the Laws and Statutes of the Realm in this behalf, or the law of nations in relation thereto, as they will answer to the contrary at their peril:

And whereas in and by a certain Statute made and passed in a Session of Parliament holden in the 33rd and 34th year of Our reign, intituled "An Act to regulate the Conduct of Her Majesty's Subjects during the Existence of Hostilities between Foreign States with which Her Majesty is at Peace," it is, amongst other things, declared and enacted as follows:—

"This Act shall extend to all the dominions of Her Majesty, including the adjacent territorial waters.

"Illegal Enlistment.

"If any person, without the licence of Her Majesty, being a British subject, within or without Her Majesty's dominions, accepts or agrees to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any foreign State at peace with Her Majesty, and in this Act referred to as a

---

* Confidential Nos. 3166, 3167.

† Parliamentary No. 1147.

1884

friendly State, or, whether a British subject or not, within Her Majesty's dominions, induces any other person to accept or agree to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any such foreign State as aforesaid,—

"He shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

"If any person, without the licence of Her Majesty, being a British subject, quits or goes on board any ship with a view of quitting Her Majesty's dominions, with intent to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with a friendly State, or, whether a British subject or not, within Her Majesty's dominions, induces any other person to quit or to go on board any ship with a view of quitting Her Majesty's dominions with the like intent,—

"He shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

"If any person induces any other person to quit Her Majesty's dominions, or to embark on any ship within Her Majesty's dominions, under a misrepresentation or false representation of the service in which such person is to be engaged, with the intent or in order that such person may accept or agree to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with a friendly State,—

"He shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

"If the master or owner of any ship, without the licence of Her Majesty, knowingly either takes on board, or engages to take on board, or has on board such ship within Her Majesty's dominions any of the following persons, in this Act referred to as illegally enlisted persons, that is to say:

"(1.) Any person who, being a British subject within or without the dominions of Her Majesty, has, without the licence of Her Majesty, accepted or agreed to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State:

"(2.) Any person, being a British subject, who, without the licence of Her Majesty, is about to quit Her Majesty's dominions with intent to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with a friendly State:

"(3.) Any person who has been induced to embark under a misrepresentation or false representation of the service in which such person is to be engaged, with the intent or in order that such person may accept or agree to accept any commission or engagement in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with a friendly State:

"Such master or owner shall be guilty of an offence against this act, and the following consequences shall ensue; that is to say:

"(1.) The offender shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour; and

"(2.) Such ship shall be detained until the trial and conviction or acquittal of the master or owner, and until all penalties inflicted on the master or owner have been paid, or the master or owner has given security for the payment of such penalties to the satisfaction of two Justices of the Peace, or other magistrate or magistrates having the authority of two Justices of the Peace; and

"(3.) All illegally enlisted persons shall, immediately on the discovery of the offence, be taken on shore, and shall not be allowed to return to the ship.

"Illegal Shipbuilding and Illegal Expeditions.

"If any person within Her Majesty's dominions, without the licence of Her Majesty, does any of the following acts; that is to say,—

"(1.) Builds or agrees to build, or causes to be built, any ship with intent or knowledge, or having reasonable cause to believe that the same shall or will be employed in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State; or

"(2.) Issues or delivers any commission for any ship with intent or knowledge, or having reasonable cause to believe that the same shall or will be employed in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State; or

"(3.) Equips any ship with intent or knowledge, or having reasonable cause to believe that the same shall or will be employed in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State; or

"(4.) Dispatches, or causes or allows to be dispatched, any ship with intent or knowledge, or having reasonable cause to believe that the same shall or will be employed in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State:

"Such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence against this act, and the following consequences shall ensue:

"(1.) The offender shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

"(2.) The ship in respect of which any such offence is committed, and her equipment, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty:

Provided, that a person building, causing to be built, or equipping a ship in any of the cases aforesaid, in pursuance of a contract made before the commencement of such war as aforesaid, shall not be liable to any of the penalties imposed by this section in respect of such building or equipping, if he satisfies the conditions following; (that is to say):—

"(1.) If forthwith upon a Proclamation of Neutrality being issued by Her Majesty he gives notice to the Secretary of State that he is so building, causing to be built, or equipping such ship, and furnishes such particulars of the contract and of any matters relating to, or done, or to be done under the contract as may be required by the Secretary of State:

"(2.) If he gives such security, and takes and permits to be taken such other measures, if any, as the Secretary of State may prescribe for insuring that such ship shall not be dispatched, delivered, or removed without the licence of Her Majesty until the termination of such war as aforesaid.

"Where any ship is built by order of or on behalf of any foreign State when at war with a friendly State, or is delivered to or to the order of such foreign State, or any person who to the knowledge of the person building is an agent of such foreign State, or is paid for by such foreign State or such agent, and is employed in the military or naval service of such foreign State, such ship shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to have been built with a view to being so employed, and the burden shall lie on the builder of such ship of proving that he did not know that the ship was intended to be so employed in the military or naval service of such foreign State.

"If any person within the dominions of Her Majesty, and without the licence of Her Majesty,—

"By adding to the number of the guns, or by changing those on board for other guns, or by the addition of any equipment for war, increases or augments, or procures to be increased or augmented, or is knowingly concerned in increasing or augmenting, the warlike force of any ship which at the time of her being within the dominions of Her Majesty was a ship in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State,—

"Such persons shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

"If any person within the limits of Her Majesty's dominions, and without the licence of Her Majesty,—

"Prepares or fits out any naval or military expedition to proceed against the dominions of any friendly State, the following consequences shall ensue:—

"(1.) Every person engaged in such preparation or fitting out, or assisting therein, or employed in any capacity in such expedition, shall be guilty of an offence against this Act, and shall be punishable by fine and imprisonment, or either of such punishments, at the discretion of the Court before which the offender is convicted; and imprisonment, if awarded, may be either with or without hard labour.

1884

"(2.) All ships, and their equipments, and all arms and munitions of war, used in or forming part of such expedition, shall be forfeited to Her Majesty.

"Any person who aids, abets, counsels, or procures the commission of any offence against this Act shall be liable to be tried and punished as a principal offender."

And whereas by the said Act it is further provided that ships built, commissioned, equipped, or dispatched in contravention of the said Act, may be condemned and forfeited by Judgment of the Court of Admiralty; and that if the Secretary of State or chief executive authority is satisfied that there is a reasonable and probable cause for believing that a ship within Our dominions has been or is being built, commissioned, or equipped, contrary to the said Act, and is about to be taken beyond the limits of such dominions, or that a ship is about to be dispatched contrary to the Act, such Secretary of State, or chief executive authority, shall have power to issue a warrant authorizing the seizure and search of such ship and her detention until she has been either condemned or released by process of law: And whereas certain powers of seizure and detention are conferred by the said Act on certain local authorities:

Now, in order that none of our subjects may unwarily render themselves liable to the penalties imposed by the said Statute, We do hereby strictly command, that no person or persons whatsoever do commit any act, matter, or thing whatsoever contrary to the provisions of the said Statute, upon pain of the several penalties by the said Statute imposed, and of Our high displeasure.

And We do hereby further warn and admonish all our loving subjects, and all persons whatsoever entitled to Our protection, to observe towards each of the aforesaid States, their citizens, subjects, and territories, and towards all belligerents whatsoever, with whom We are at peace, the duties of neutrality; and to respect, in all and each of them, the exercice of those belligerent rights which We and Our Royal predecessors have always claimed to exercise.

And we hereby further warn all Our loving subjects, and all persons whatsoever entitled to Our protection, that if any of them shall presume, in contempt of this Our Royal Proclamation, and of Our high displeasure, to do any acts in derogation of their duty as subjects of a neutral Sovereign in a war between other States, or in violation or contravention of the law of nations in that behalf, as more especially by breaking, or endeavouring to break, any blockade lawfully and actually established by or on behalf of either of the said States, or by carrying officers, soldiers, despatches, arms, ammunition, military stores or materials, or any article or articles considered and deemed to be contraband of war according to the law or modern usages of nations, for the use or service of either of the said States, that all persons so offending, together with their ships and goods, will rightfully incur and be justly liable to hostile capture, and to the penalties denounced by the law of nations in that behalf.

And We do hereby give notice that all Our subjects and persons entitled to Our protection who may misconduct themselves in the premises will do so at their peril, and of their own wrong; and that they will in nowise obtain any protection from Us against such capture, or such penalties as aforesaid, but will, on the contrary, incur Our high displeasure by such misconduct.

Given at Our Court at , this day of , in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and , in the 48th year of our reign.

God save the Queen.

---

Annex 2.

(B.)

Earl Granville to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty.[*]

My Lords, Foreign Office,

HER Majesty being fully determined to observe the duties of neutrality during the existing state of war between the French Republic and the Emperor of China, and being moreover resolved to prevent, as far as possible, the use of Her Majesty's harbours, ports, and coasts, and the waters within Her Majesty's territorial jurisdiction, in aid of the warlike purposes of either belligerent, has commanded me to communicate to your Lordships, for your guidance, the following rules, which are to be treated and enforced as Her Majesty's orders and directions:—

Her Majesty's is pleased further to command that these rules shall be put in force in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands, on and after the , and in Her Majesty's territories and possessions beyond the seas, six days after the day when the Governor, or other chief authority of each of such territories or possessions respectively, shall have notified and published the same; stating in such notification that the said rules are to be obeyed by all persons within the same territories and possessions.

During the continuance of the present state of war, all ships of war of either belligerent are prohibited from making use of any port or roadstead in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of Her Majesty's Colonies or foreign possessions or dependencies, or of any waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, as a station, or place of resort, for any warlike purpose, or for the purpose of obtaining any facilities for warlike equipment; and no ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted to sail out of or leave any port, roadstead, or waters subject to British jurisdiction, from which any vessel of the other belligerent (whether the same shall be a ship of war or a merchant ship) shall have previously departed, until after the expiration of at least twenty-four hours from the departure of such last-mentioned vessel beyond the territorial jurisdiction of Her Majesty.

2. If any ship of war of either belligerent shall, after the time when this Order shall be first notified and put in force in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands, and in the several Colonies and foreign possessions and dependencies of Her Majesty respectively, enter any port, roadstead, or waters belonging to Her Majesty, either in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of Her Majesty's Colonies or foreign possessions or dependencies, such vessel shall be required to depart and to put to sea within twenty-four hours after her entrance into such port, roadstead, or waters, except in case of stress of weather, or of her requiring provisions or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew, or repairs; in either of which cases the authorities of the port, or of the nearest port (as the case may be), shall require her to put to sea as soon as possible after the expiration of such period of twenty-four hours, without permitting her to take in supplies beyond what may be necessary for her immediate use; and no such vessel which may have been allowed to remain within British waters for the purpose of repair shall continue in any such port, roadstead, or waters, for a longer period than twenty-four hours after her necessary repairs shall have been completed. Provided, nevertheless, that in all cases in which there shall be any vessel (whether ships of war or merchant ships) of the said belligerent parties in the same port, roadstead, or waters within the territorial jurisdiction of Her Majesty, there shall be an interval of not less than twenty-four hours between the departure therefrom of any such vessel (whether a ship of war or merchant ship) of the one belligerent, and the subsequent departure therefrom of any ship of war of the other belligerent; and the time hereby limited for the departure of such ships of war respectively shall always, in case of necessity, be extended so far as may be requisite for giving effect to this proviso, but no further or otherwise.

3. No ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted, while in any port, roadstead, or waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of Her Majesty, to take in any supplies, except provisions and such other things as may be requisite for the subsistence of her crew, and except so much coal only as may be sufficient to carry such vessel to the nearest port of her own country, or to some nearer destination, and no coal shall again be supplied to any such ship of war in the same or any other port, roadstead, or waters subject to the territorial jurisdiction of Her Majesty, without special permission, until after the expiration of three months from the time when such coal may have been last supplied to her within British waters as aforesaid.

4. Armed ships of either party are interdicted from carrying prizes made by them into the ports, harbours, roadsteads, or waters of the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands, or any of Her Majesty's Colonies or possessions abroad.

I have the honour to be,
My Lords,
Your Lordships' most obedient,
humble Servant,
GRANVILLE.

---

[*] Similar letters have been addressed to the Treasury, Home Office, Colonial Office, War Office, and India Office.

1884

No. 30.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 5, 1884.

Relations between France and China.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 27th ultimo, stating that he had to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* concerning the present state of the relations between France and China.

1. That the French Government having recently inquired, through Her Majesty's Ambassador in Paris (from Lord Lyons, No. 468), whether, in the event of telegraphic communication being interrupted between the French Government and their officers in China, Her Majesty's Government would consent that cyphered telegrams between the French Government and Admiral Courbet should pass through the British Consulate.

2. That Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires was instructed to inform the French Government, in reply, that Her Majesty's Government would readily accede to their request in that matter, when such an emergency as that referred to should happen, provided it did not occur at a time when Her Majesty's Government is precluded from doing so by the duties of neutrality. (To Sir J. Walsham, No. 728.)

3. In a conversation which occurred between Sir J. Walsham and M. Jules Ferry, the latter asked whether the case supposed in the above reply of Her Majesty's Government would be applicable to the present state of relations between France and China. His Excellency stated that there could not be said to be war between the two countries, and, consequently, the ordinary regulations for the guidance of neutrals in respect of belligerents might be held to have not yet come into action. (From Sir J. Walsham, No. 506, Confidential.)

4. That the views of the French Government in regard to the actual state of the relations between France and China, is described in Sir J. Walsham's despatch No. 507 of the 24th August, and the measures indicated by M. Ferry which were to be taken with reference to the Port of Kelung in the Island of Formosa, and the Chinese Arsenal at Foochow, have been carried into effect, both those positions having been bombarded by the French Admiral.

5. That in view of the present position of affairs between France and China, the Governor of Hong Kong had requested to be furnished, by telegraph, with instructions for his guidance, and Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies had also expressed a wish that, hostilities having then apparently commenced, more detailed instructions should be issued both for the guidance of the Governor of Hong Kong, and of other Colonial Governors in the East. (From Colonial Office, August 25, 1884.)

6. That Mr. Currie was to state that no official notification had, up to the present time, been received from either France or China that a state of war actually existed between them.

7. That Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the papers forwarded therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion on the following points:—

Questions as to—
(a.) Transmission of French cyphered telegrams through British Consulate.

(a.) Whether, considering the present state of the relations between France and China, Her Majesty's Government are precluded by the duties of neutrality from acceding to the request of the French Government that cyphered telegrams between the French Government and their Naval Commander in the China seas should pass through the British Consulate.

(b.) Instructions to Governors of Colonies.

(b.) What instructions should, under present circumstances, be sent to the Governor of Hong Kong and the other Governors of the British colonial possessions in the East.

(c.) Existence of a state of war.

(c.) Whether, in our opinion, such a state of war actually exists between France and China as to impose upon Her Majesty's Government the duties of neutrality, and, if so, what measures it would be advisable for Her Majesty's Government to take, with a view to preserve that neutrality.

---

* Papers in Foreign Office letter of August 27, 1884:—
Viscount Lyons, No. 468, Confidential; to Sir J. Walsham, No. 728, Confidential; Sir J. Walsham, No. 506, Confidential; ditto, No. 507, Confidential; Colonial Office, August 25, 1884.
Paper in Foreign Office letter of August 29, 1884:—
Sir H. Parkes, No 31 (Telegraphic), August 27, 1884.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

State of war exists.

That we are of opinion that a state of war now actually exists between France and China, and that Her Majesty's Government are precluded by the duties of neutrality from acceding to the request of the French Government that cyphered telegrams between the French Government and their Naval Commander in the China seas should pass through the British Consulate.

Transmission of cyphered telegrams inconsistent with neutrality.

Governors should be instructed to observe neutrality.

Instructions should be sent to the Governor of Hong Kong and to the other Governors of the British colonial possessions that war having broken out between France and China, the strictest neutrality should be observed on the part of the Representatives of Her Majesty's Government, and that no assistance to either belligerent in carrying on warlike operations should be afforded.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 31.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 27, 1884.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Question as to neutrality.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 9th instant, stating that our Report of the 5th September relative to the question of the observance of neutrality by this country in respect to the hostilities between France and China had been considered by your Lordship in communication with Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies; and that Mr. Currie was directed to inform us that your Lordship and the Secretary of State for the Colonies were of opinion that as France and China had both shown a desire that a state of war should not be held to exist, it would, on grounds of policy, be unadvisable to make at present any declaration of neutrality.

War not declared.

That a telegram had accordingly been sent to the Governor of Hong Kong informing him that, in the absence of any declaration of war by either the French or Chinese Government, it was not proposed to issue any formal proclamation of neutrality, but that the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act should be strictly observed.

That Mr. Currie was to inclose a copy of that telegram, together with our Report of the 5th instant, and that he was to request us to be good enough to inform your Lordship whether we concurred in the instructions sent to the Governor of Hong Kong, and whether we would, under the circumstances, consider it advisable so to modify our Report as to suspend the adoption of the course recommended by us until one or other of the parties had declared war.

That the papers previously submitted to us were sent therewith for convenience of reference.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

State of war not necessarily existing.

That isolated acts of hostility may no doubt be undertaken by one nation against another without their being at war, so as to bring into operation all those duties of neutral nations which result from a state of war.

So far as the French Government are concerned it appears that they intend, at present, their military operations to have this limited character; and the Chinese Government appear also indisposed to declare war.

Approve instruction sent to Hong Kong, none need be sent to other Colonies.

Under these circumstances, whilst we concur in the instructions sent to the Governor of Hong Kong, it may be that no instructions need be at present sent to the Governor of any other British possession; but it should be understood that any assistance afforded to the actual hostile operations of either belligerent would certainly be very objectionable.

Our Report of the 5th September did not contemplate any "declaration of neutrality," as appears to be suggested by Mr. Currie's letter of the 9th instant.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

1884

State of war exists.

Similar instructions should be sent to all Colonies.

I am still of the opinion given by the Attorney and Solicitor-General and myself in our Report of the 5th instant, that a state of war now actually exists between France and China, and, therefore, I am unable to see why, on legal grounds, different instructions should be sent to the Governor of Hong Kong and to the Governor of any other British possession, or instructions sent to the Governor of Hong Kong and not to the Governor of any other British possession, respecting their duties in relation to the state of things existing between France and China.

(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent in Foreign Officer letter of September 9, 1884.

Lord Lyons, No. 468, Confidential; to Sir J. Walsham, No. 728, Confidential; Sir J. Walsham, No. 506, Confidential; ditto, No. 507; Colonial Office, August 25; Sir H. Parkes (Telegraphic), No. 31, August 27; telegram to Hong Kong and Straits, September 2; Law Officers' Report, September 5, 1884.

---

No. 32.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received October 25.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 25, 1884.

Searching of British vessels by French naval authorities in China.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd instant, stating that, with reference to our Reports of the 5th and 27th September last, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a correspondence which had taken place respecting the searching of British vessels by the French naval authorities in China, to prevent the landing of contraband of war.

That the searching of these vessels was stated to have taken place off Tamsuy and Kelung, in the Island of Formosa, and, therefore, within the radius of the military operations carried on there by the French forces. That the British Admiral on the station protested against that proceeding, on the ground that the French Government denied the existence of war, and that representations were also addressed to the French Government through Her Majesty's Embassy at Paris. That the French Government admitted the irregularity of the proceeding, on the ground that no effective blockade had been established and notified.

M. Ferry's reply to Lord Lyons.

That on the 17th instant Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris was instructed to ask the French Government whether any instructions had been issued to their naval authorities in China to abstain from searching British vessels. That the answer of the Minister for Foreign Affairs (Lord Lyons' No. 612 of the 18th October) appeared to your Lordship to be most unsatisfactory. That M. Ferry again admitted that the searching of two British ships referred to was irregular, on the ground that no regular blockade was in force at the time, and that he stated that the French Admiral had been instructed to establish an effective blockade of Tamsuy and another port in Formosa; and added that it was held by his Government, and, as he understood, by the British Government also, that "an effective blockade, regularly notified, is valid," whether or no war had been formally declared. That he did not admit, however, that a state of war would be the legal consequence.

That the blockade of the ports of Formosa had since been formally declared and duly notified. (See Admiralty, 21st October, and M. Waddington, 22nd October; telegram from Sir H. Parkes, No. 39, 22nd October, and telegram from Lord Lyons, No. 27, 23rd October.)

That your Lordship apprehended that M. Ferry was right in stating that the blockade was valid, "though war has not been formally declared," for the reason that war might lawfully exist without such declaration, and that the notification to neutral Governments of a blockade jure gentium was of itself a declaration of the existence of a state of war (Law Officers' Report, Haïti, 6th May, 1876). That if so, the French Government could not any longer maintain that France was not at war with China (see Consul Hughes' telegram, 29th September). That your Lordship apprehended further that the right of searching neutral vessels for contraband of war was a belligerent right which was quite independent of the existence or non-existence of a belligerent blockade, and which could only be exercised during a state of war.

That, as regarded the searching of the British vessels in question, it would be observed that they were not visited on the high seas, but apparently in Chinese waters, at the entrance of the Chinese ports against which the French Admiral had established what appeared to have been intended for a "pacific blockade," as distinguished from a "belligerent blockade" (see "Hall on International Law," p. 312). But that a belligerent blockade of the ports of Formosa had now been established and formally notified to neutral Governments, and that it appeared somewhat doubtful from M. Ferry's language whether the French Government did not propose to exercise the right of visit both on the high seas and in Chinese waters, and yet to maintain the position that France was not at war because "war has not been formally declared."

That Her Majesty's Government still entertained some hope that an amicable settlement might be arrived at, and that they were reluctant to take any steps which might aggravate the situation; but that your Lordship felt some doubt as to whether, after the notification of blockade which had been addressed to them by the French Government, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in withholding any longer the issue of the usual Proclamation of Neutrality.

Should Proclamation of Neutrality be issued?

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose the latest despatches from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking, from which we would see that the Chinese Government were still indisposed to declare war against France, though they wished it to be understood that France was making war against China (see Sir H. Parkes' Nos. 161, 167, and 169), and that he was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, Her Majesty's Government, while recognizing the blockade which had been notified to them, and the existence of a state of war and the belligerent rights flowing therefrom, could properly abstain from issuing a Proclamation of Neutrality, and enforcing the strict provisions usually inserted therein (see Form).

As to limiting the Proclamation to Hong Kong and the Straits, and as to reply to M. Ferry.

That if not, whether the issue of the Proclamation and the enforcement of its provisions could be limited to the two British Colonies of Hong Kong and the Straits, which are situated near the seat of war; and, in either case, whether any further, and, if so, what, communication should be addressed to the French Government with reference to M. Ferry's reply to Lord Lyons' inquiry and to the present position of the question.

That it was presumed that the notification of blockade should be published at once in the "Gazette," and that it would accordingly appear in the issue of the 24th.

That a Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, showing precedents of wars during which no Proclamation of Neutrality was issued, was inclosed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Notification of a blockade might be treated as a notification of a state of war, and a Declaration of Neutrality might be issued.

That we think the notification of a blockade which has been received might properly be treated by Her Majesty's Government as a notification of a state of war, and a Declaration of Neutrality might be issued upon it.

It appears, however, that both the French and Chinese Governments are still unwilling to declare war, and whilst engaged in hostile operations are desirous of continuing dealings with neutrals in a manner which would be impossible if once war were declared.

Although our information on the subject is imperfect, we suppose that the imposition on Her Majesty's subjects of the full duties of neutrality would be more disadvantageous than to permit the present state of things to continue, perplexing as it is. If so, we think it would be competent for Her Majesty's Government to abstain from enforcing strictly all the neutral obligations of British subjects.

Not necessary to issue a Declaration of Neutrality.

It would be an answer to a complaint by either of the belligerent Powers that they had insisted that a state of war did not exist, and themselves acted upon that understanding. In any case, it does not seem necessary to issue a Declaration of Neutrality, though if it were determined to enforce a strict neutrality it would no doubt be expedient to do so.

Proclamation of Neutrality cannot be limited to the Colonies.

We do not think the issue of the Proclamation and the enforcement of its provisions can be limited to the Colonies near the seat of war, as suggested.

Action of Her Majesty's Government with regard to M. Ferry's reply to Lord Lyons must be governed by considerations of policy.

The question whether any, and, if so, what, communication should be addressed to the French Government with reference to M. Ferry's reply to Lord Lyons must be determined by the considerations of policy to which we have called attention. The terms of the communication would depend upon whether Her Majesty's Government desired to force the French Government to a declaration of war, and so to terminate the present ambiguous situation, or whether it were considered more expedient to avoid undertaking all the obligations of strict neutrality.

The action to be taken generally must, in our opinion, be governed by considerations of policy to which we have called attention, but upon which we do not feel competent to express an opinion.

1884

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

I have signed this Report, agreeing that the action of Her Majesty's Government may depend on considerations of policy.

Difficulty which may arise should the French seize a British ship.

A difficulty may, however, arise if the French should not only search, but seize, a British ship, either for breach of blockade or for carrying contraband of war This possible occurrence might, in my opinion, properly be suggested to the French Government, and lead to some protection of neutral rights.

(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent.

1. Law Officers' Report, September 5, 1884.
2. Ditto, September 27, 1884.
3. Admiralty, September 29, 1884.
4. Ditto, October 1, 1884.
5. Sir J. Walsham, No. 576, October 2, 1884.
6. Admiralty, October 8, 1884.
7. Sir J. Walsham, No. 599, October 11, 1884.
8. Lord Lyons. No. 612, October 18, 1884.
9. Mr. Plunkett (Telegraphic), October 18, 1884.
10. Ditto, ditto, October 21, 1884.
11. Admiralty, October 21, 1884.
12. M. Waddington, October 22, 1884.
13. Sir H. Parkes, No. 161, August 27, 1884.
14. Ditto, No. 167, August 29, 1884.
15. Ditto, No. 169, August 29, 1884.
16. Law Officers' Report, May 6, 1876, Confidential No. 4028, p. 41.
17. Form of Proclamation of Neutrality.
18. Sir H. Parkes (Telegraphic), No. 39, October 22, 1884.
19. Lord Lyons (Telegraphic), No. 27, October 23, 1884.
20. Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, October 23, 1884.

---

No. 33.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Sale of contraband of war by British subjects to the French, and transmission of telegrams for them by a British Company.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 23rd ultimo, he was to transmit to us correspondence,* in which the question was raised as to whether, during the existing hostilities between France and China, the Chinese Government were entitled to require that British subjects in China should refrain from selling contraband of war to the French, and that a British Telegraph Company, having stations in China, should not transmit messages in cypher through such stations to the French.

That it would seem that different conditions applied to British subjects residing in China, as regarded the observance of neutrality, from those which might be applicable in neutral territory. That although the sale to a belligerent of coal and munitions of war in neutral territory might not constitute a breach of neutrality, it was conceived that a prohibition by the Chinese Government against the sale of munitions of war to the French, during the existing hostilities between France and China, was binding on all foreigners residing in China, notwithstanding the immunity they enjoyed by Treaty from the action of Chinese Courts, and, if so, that such prohibition should be enforced on them by their respective Governments.

That Sir H. Parkes made no such distinction, but that M. von Brandt, the German Minister, differed with him on that point.

That Sir E. Hertslet's collection of Treaties between Great Britain and China was inclosed,* and that our opinion was requested as to whether the prohibition of the Chinese Government against the sale of munitions of war and the communication of cyphered messages to the French by British subjects in China, during the existing hostilities, should be enforced by Her Majesty's Government, and, if so, whether it could be done by a Regulation of Her Majesty's Minister at Peking, under sections 7 and 8 of the China Order in Council of the 25th October, 1881,† of which a copy was inclosed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, we think that if, during the existence of hostilities, the Chinese Government prohibit the selling munitions of war or transmitting messages in cypher to the French, by any person within Chinese territory, they are entitled to require that British subjects in China should refrain from violating such prohibition.

We concur in thinking that different conditions apply to British subjects residing in China from those which may be applicable in neutral territory.

But for the exterritorial jurisdiction possessed by Great Britain in China, the Chinese Government would be entitled to enforce against British subjects any violation of such a prohibition as that suggested.

And we think that this immunity from liability to Chinese Tribunals on the part of British subjects does not deprive the Chinese Government of the sovereign right to prohibit aid being given by persons resident in their territory, to the operations of those who are engaged in hostilities with them.

Prohibition of the Chinese Government should be enforced by Her Majesty's Government by a Regulation under Order in Council of the 25th October, 1881.

We think, therefore, that the prohibition of the Chinese Government should be enforced by Her Majesty's Government, and that this may properly be done by a Regulation of Her Majesty's Minister at Peking, under sections 7 and 8 of the China Order in Council of the 25th October, 1881.

We may add that we have expressed this opinion on the assumption that the prohibition of the Chinese Government applies equally to all persons within Chinese territory whether Chinese or British subjects, or the subjects of any other foreign Power.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 34.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 25, 1884.

Proposed Agreement between Great Britain and France relative to disposal of property left by subjects dying on board vessels of the other country.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers‡ relating to a proposal on the part of the French Government for the conclusion of an Agreement between Great Britain and France relative to the disposal of property of small value left by subjects or citizens of Great Britain and France dying on board vessels of the other country.

That our opinion was requested as to whether there would be any legal objection to such an Agreement as was proposed, provided it be made subject to the rights of any person claiming the property, and opposing, in which case the ordinary course of law would be followed, and also whether if, in our opinion, there was no objection to the conclusion of such an Agreement, it would be desirable to fix any limit as to the value of the property, which could be dealt with under its provisions.

In obedience to your Lordships commands we have the honour to report—

No objection to Agreement.

That we understand the proposal to be that the property left with the Consuls of Great Britain and France respectively should be deposited with them for safe custody in cases where no person is claiming the property or opposing its being so deposited. If this be so, we see no legal objection to an Agreement for the purpose of effecting such an object.

There appears to be no reason in point of law for making a distinction between property of large or small value.

---

* Sir H. Parkes, No. 169, August 29; ditto, No. 171, September 2; ditto, No. 172, September 3, 1884.

* Hertslet's Treaties on Trade. China.

† Order in Council, October 25, 1881, Confidential No. 4520*.

‡ Viscount Lyons, No. 38, Consular, June 17; to Board of Trade, June 20; Board of Trade, July 19; to Board of Trade, August 2; Board of Trade, August 16; to Treasury, August 25; Treasury, September 9, 1884.

1884

Limit of value should be fixed.

But we can conceive that it might be inconvenient to British Consuls to be made the depositaries of property of large value, and therefore, as the proposal of the French Government has reference to property of small value, it might probably be expedient to agree to fix a limit of value.

Limit of 50*l.* too small.

Having regard to the object in view, and to the fact that the proposed Agreement would apply principally to passengers' luggage, the suggested limit of 50*l.* appears too small to answer the purpose.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 35.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received December 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 11, 1884.

Steam-cutters being built at Cowes by Messrs. White for France.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, which related to the building by Messrs. White, of Cowes, of ten steam-cutters for the French Government.

War not yet declared by France or China.

That we would perceive from the printed correspondence between your Lordship and the French Ambassador, and from Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 27th November to the Treasury, that, in view of the existing state of relations between France and China, Her Majesty's Government had decided not for the present to issue the usual Proclamation of Neutrality, but to confine themselves to a strict enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Proposed note to French Ambassador.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that, in view of the opinion expressed by the Law Officers in their Report of the 30th March, 1881, your Lordship proposed to address a note to the French Ambassador in the terms of the draft inclosed, inquiring the purpose for which the steam-cutters in question had been ordered by the French Government.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposed note to the French Ambassador was right and proper; and whether, under the circumstances, it was desirable that Messrs. White should be required to give a bond in a sufficient sum that the boats should not be removed without the sanction of Her Majesty's Government; and that we would favour your Lordship with any suggestions we might have to make as to the course which it would be desirable to pursue in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, as we understand, the state of things existing at the time of our former Reports still continues, and neither France nor China has declared war publicly, or given notice to the neutral Powers that a state of war exists.

Assurance that they will not be used against China sufficient,

It appears that the steam-cutters building by Messrs. White are not themselves armed, even if intended for the equipment of vessels of war. Under the peculiar circumstances of the case, we would submit for consideration whether it would not be sufficient to obtain an assurance from the French Government that they shall not be used, directly or indirectly, in connection with the hostilities between France and China. Subject to this consideration we approve of the proposed draft.

and promise that they shall not leave the yard without permission of Her Majesty's Government.

It will not, we think, be necessary to require a bond at present from Messrs. White if they will give an undertaking, as communications are proceeding between Her Majesty's Government and the French Government on the subject, that the steam-cutters should not be allowed to leave their yard without the permission of Her Majesty's Government.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

List of Papers.

Treasury, December 5, 1884.
Printed correspondence with M. Waddington (see Confidential No. 5045):—
  M. Waddington, October 22 and 24, November 5 and 21, 1884.
  To M. Waddington, October 25 and 31, November 11 and 26, 1884.
To Treasury, November 27, 1884.
Proposed draft to M. Waddington.
Law Officers' Report, March 30, 1881 (Confidential No. 4637, p. 42).

Annex.

Draft of Letter to M. Waddington.

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, December , 1884.

I HAVE the honour to state to your Excellency that information has reached Her Majesty's Government that ten steam-cutters are now being built by Messrs. White, of Cowes, to the order of the French Government.

Your Excellency is aware from the terms of my note of the 26th ultimo that, in view of the existing hostilities between France and China, Her Majesty's Government feel it to be incumbent upon them to enforce the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

I have therefore the honour to state to your Excellency that Her Majesty's Government would be glad to be informed of the purpose for which the steam-cutters in question have been ordered by the French Government, and, if they are destined for the equipment of vessels of war, to receive an assurance that they shall not be used, directly or indirectly, in connection with the hostilities between France and China.

I have, &c.

---

No. 36.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville. – (Received December 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 22, 1884.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Observance of neutrality by Great Britain in absence of proclamation of war.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to the observance of neutrality by Great Britain during the hostilities at present existing between France and China.

That we would learn from the printed correspondence with the French Ambassador, and from the letters of the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, and to Her Majesty's Representatives in China and Japan, that Her Majesty's Government had decided, for the present, not to issue the usual Proclamation of Neutrality, but to confine themselves to a strict enforcement, throughout Her Majesty's dominions, of the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Question as to issue of definite instructions to Governors of Colonies.

That in the letter from the Colonial Office of the 22nd November it was suggested, with especial reference to Hong Kong, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements, that definite instructions should be given to the Governors of those Colonies as to their duties under section 11 of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

That your Lordship apprehended that no difficulty should arise on that section, and that no special instructions were required, as it did not apply to the furnishing of supplies to belligerent vessels, but only to the fitting out of naval or military expeditions, as to which the terms of the section presented no ambiguity. But that your Lordship concurred in the expediency of furnishing the Colonial Governors with general instructions for their guidance in carrying out the provisions of section 10, which related to aiding the warlike equipment of a belligerent vessel.

---

* Foreign Enlistment Act, 33 & 34 Vict., cap. 90; Printed Correspondence with M. Waddington, Confidential Print No. 5045; to Colonial Office, November 18; to Sir H. Parkes and Mr. Plunkett, November 17; Colonial Office, November 22; Marquis Tsêng, November 21; to Marquis Tsêng, November 26; Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, November 27; Memorandum by Captain W. Murray, 1883; Report by Law Officers, September 2, 1884, with draft Proclamation of Neutrality and letter to Departments (amended as suggested by Law Officers).

1884

That the Chinese Minister, in his letter of the 21st November last, drew attention especially to the question of coaling.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to the Memoranda by Sir E. Hertslet and Captain Wolfe Murray, which contained certain precedents and citations from various authorities upon those questions.

Suggesting limitation as to repairs, supply of coals, &c.

That your Lordship apprehended that Her Majesty's Government were not bound to enforce against French or Chinese vessels those precautions enjoined in the letters to the Admiralty and other Departments which usually accompanied the issue of a formal Proclamation of Neutrality, but did not come within the terms of the Foreign Enlistment Act, such, for instance, as the prohibition to remain in a British port for more than twenty-four hours. But that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to the instructions which might be given with regard to the extent of the repairs which should be allowed to a belligerent vessel, and the quantity of provisions, and especially of coal, which might be supplied to her consistently with the prescriptions of the Foreign Enlistment Act; whether, for instance, the supply of coal should be limited in the manner laid down in the Regulations issued by Her Majesty's Government during the Civil War in America, and cited in the passage from Sir E. Creasy's work, referred to in Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum, whether the repairs should be restricted to such as might be strictly necessary to enable a ship to hold the sea on a voyage to the nearest national port, and whether a similar limitation be imposed on the supply of provisions for the crew. Also whether the Governors of Colonies should be instructed to allow no repairs to be effected, and no supplies furnished to a belligerent vessel except under the supervision of the local authorties, whose duty it would be to report at once to the Governor any case in which the limits imposed were being transgressed.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Suggestions as to repairs of vessels and supply of coals and provisions.

That we think instructions should be sent to the Colonial Governors with reference to the supply of coal to the belligerents similar in spirit to those issued during the American war. But we would suggest for consideration whether, having regard to the local situation of the French and Chinese ports, the restriction should be precisely the same. The object should be to prevent such supplies as would assist the naval operations.

Approve limitations suggested. Supervision of local authorities.

We think that instructions should be given that the repairs to be done and provisions to be supplied should be limited in the manner suggested by your Lordship. We think, too, that the Governors should be instructed to allow no repairs to be effected and no supplies to be furnished to a belligerent except under the supervision of the local authorities, whose duty it would be to report at once to the Governor any case in which the limits imposed were being transgressed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 37.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 30.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 29, 1884.

British pilots on French ships during operations against Foochow. Chinese demand for their prosecution.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 15th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin,* from which it appeared that the Chinese authorities at Foochow had applied to Her Majesty's Consul at that place to proceed against two British subjects who had served as pilots on board French ships of war during the operations of the French fleet against that place on the 23rd August last (Sir H. Parkes, No. 205).

Sir H. Parkes' instructions.

That Sir H. Parkes also forwarded a Report, drawn up by the Crown Advocate at Shanghae, as to the manner in which the case of those men should be dealt with, which Report had been communicated to the British Consul at Foochow for his guidance in the matter.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Sir H. Parkes' instructions to Consul Sinclair might be approved.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Mr. Sinclair's answer not satisfactory.

That we think the answer of Mr. Sinclair to the Chinese authorities is not in all respects satisfactory.

Prosecutor should be appointed.

Breach of Foreign Enlistment Act and Order in Council possible without declaration of war.

Mr. Sinclair states that as he cannot be both Judge and prosecutor the Chinese authorities must appoint some person to conduct the prosecution. Now, the two pilots appear clearly to have committed an offence of a serious character against the British law. Under these circumstances, the British authorities may, we think, if it should become practicable to do so, be properly called upon by the Chinese Government to prosecute them. We do not see why the difficulty pointed out by Mr. Sinclair may not be met either by the British Minister appointing a person to conduct the prosecution, or in some other way. Mr. Sinclair further urges that it is not likely that a conviction could be obtained, because war had not been formally declared. But we are of opinion that there may be a breach both of the China Order in Council VI, 1881, and of the Foreign Enlistment Act, without a formal declaration of war. Upon this point, however, it would appear that Mr. Sinclair has been set right by the transmission to him, by Sir H. Parkes, of the Crown Advocate's opinion.

Qualified approval of instructions.

Subject to these observations, we think Sir H. Parkes' instructions to Consul Sinclair may be approved.

Difficulties as to arrest.

If the pilots should not return to China, and so render it impossible to arrest them until after the conclusion of peace, and if they should then still be in the French naval service, there may be a difficulty in prosecuting them in the Consular Court, but it is not necessary to consider this contingency at present.

They should, we think, in any case be arrested if they come within the reach of British authorities.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

General.

No. 38.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 28, 1884.

International Convention for the protection of industrial property, signed at Paris on the 20th March, 1883. Draft Order in Council as to accession of Great Britain.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers with reference to the issue of an Order in Council under sections 103 and 104 of the Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, to give effect to the accession of this country to the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property, signed at Paris on the 20th March, 1883.

That the draft of an Order in Council for the above purpose would be found in the letter from the Board of Trade to the Foreign Office of the 6th instant; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether, in our opinion, the draft was sufficient and might be submitted to the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

---

* China and Japan Order in Council, 1865 (Confidential No. 1354); Attorney-General, February 25, 1878 (Confidential No. 4280, p. 65); Solicitor-General and Dr. Deane, February 27, 1878 (Confidential No. 4280, p. 66); Law Officers, August 17, 1880 (Confidential No. 4539, p. 15); Sir H. Parkes, No. 205, October 8, 1884.

1884

Approve draft Order in Council.

That, in our opinion, the draft is sufficient, and may be submitted to the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers to accompany reference to Law Officers of the Crown, May 10, 1884:—
1. (A) Patents, Designs, and Trade Marks Act, 1883, 46 & 47 Vict., cap. 57.
2. (B) Print giving Convention, Protocol, Accession, and Acceptance, Treaty No. 729.
3. (C) Board of Trade Letter, May 6, 1884, inclosing draft Order in Council.
For proposed Order in Council see Confidential No. .

---

No. 39.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 11, 1884.

Liability of Resident Clerks to assessment under Schedule A of income tax in respect of their rooms at the Foreign Office.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 15th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the liability of the Resident Clerks in the Foreign Office to pay assessments under Schedule A of the income-tax in respect of their occupation of rooms in the Foreign Office.

That the Resident Clerks were members of the Foreign Office appointed by the Secretary of State to attend to any immediate and pressing work at the Foreign Office out of office hours.

That that entailed their residence in the Office, and that officially furnished rooms which formed an integral part of the Foreign Office were assigned to them for that purpose.

That the rooms occupied by them were not separated from the rest of the building by any structual division, as e.g., in the case of the apartments at Hampton Court Palace, and had no separate access to the public street. That the rooms were open to any one on official business, and that their occupation was compulsory and indispensable for the discharge of the public duties of the Resident Clerks.

That in 1857 the Law Officers of the Crown advised to the effect that if the Resident Clerks had "the exclusive occupation of their respective apartments as part of their official emoluments, which we collect from the facts to be the case, we think they are properly assessed to the property tax under the 8th Rule, No. 4, Section 60 of the Statute 5 and 6 Vict., cap. 35.

Whether the use of the apartments might be considered as part of their official emoluments is a question of fact as to which there may be a diversity of opinion. But that there could be no doubt that the occupation was compulsory for official purposes, and that on that point Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to a decision on Appeal in the Court of Exchequer in 1877.†

That in that case Chief Baron Kelly, in giving judgment in favour of the Appellant, laid down that compulsory occupation by a public officer was not such occupation as rendered him liable to the payment of income-tax in respect of the premises allotted for his residence in the discharge of public duties, a decision in which the Chief Baron was supported by Mr. Baron Cleasby and Mr. Baron Pollock.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the Resident Clerks have such an "occupation" of the rooms allotted to them as rendered them liable to assessment under the 8th Rule of No. 4, Section 60 of the Statute 5 and 6 Vict., cap. 35.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Want further information before giving any opinion.

That before expressing an opinion upon the question submitted to us, we desire further information in relation to the facts connected with the occupation of the rooms in question by the Foreign Office Clerks.

We especially wish to know whether the occupation of such rooms is allowed as any equivalent for salary, whether any Clerk has any particular room appropriated for his personal use (as, for instance, a bed-room) over which he has the sole control, and into which no one can enter without his permission.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Act 5 & 6 Vict., c. 35; "Bent v. Roberts," 1877, Exchequer Cases, pp. 203-4; to Treasury, May 8; Treasury, June 2; to Law Officers, July 16; Law Officers, December 19, 1857; Inland Revenue, March 21, 1884; Resident Clerks, April 5, 1870.

† "Bent v. Roberts," Exchequer Cases, pp. 203-4 (transmitted).

No. 39*.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Derby.—(Communicated in Colonial Office letter of June 23, 1886; received June 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 11, 1884.

Jurisdiction over other than British subjects in a Protectorate not British soil.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Robert Herbert's letter of the 31st October last, stating that he was directed to inform us that Her Majesty having assumed the Protectorate of a portion of the southern coast of New Guinea, it became necessary to consider by what means effect might be given to the statement made by Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons on the 11th August last, viz., "That within the limits of it (the Protectorate) the jurisdiction of the Government will be sufficient to afford protection to the natives against lawless action, by whomsoever taken, whether by British subjects or foreigners."

That by the Foreign Jurisdiction Act of 1843 (6 & 7 Vict., cap. 94, sec. 1), Her Majesty "may hold, exercise, and enjoy any power or jurisdiction which Her Majesty now hath, or may at any time have, within any country or place out of Her Majesty's dominions, in the same and as ample a manner as if Her Majesty had acquired such power or jurisdiction by the cession or conquest of territory."

That the preamble of the Act recited that such power or jurisdiction might be acquired "by Treaty, Capitulation, grant, usage, sufferance, or other lawful means."

That Orders in Council had been at various times issued under that Act and subsequent amending Acts for establishing Courts in foreign countries, e.g., China and Japan, for exercising over British subjects the jurisdiction possessed by Her Majesty in such countries; and that questions having arisen in South Africa as to the power of acquiring, by Treaty, jurisdiction over the subjects of foreign civilized States, the Law Officers, on the 3rd August, 1880, advised "that Her Majesty can by Treaty with a native Chief obtain jurisdiction over subjects of foreign civilized States resident within such territories, but that the exercise of such jurisdiction might be made the ground of diplomatic objection by the civilized State to whose subject it is extended, and that it should not, as a rule, be exercised without the concurrence of that State given generally or in the particular case."

That "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1878" (41 & 42 Vict., cap. 67, sec. 5), conferred power and jurisdiction over British subjects resorting to countries not subject to any Government from whom Her Majesty might obtain power or jurisdiction by Treaty or any of the other means mentioned in "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1843."

That it might be taken, for the purposes of the present reference, that there was not in New Guinea any Government from whom Her Majesty might obtain power and jurisdiction by any such means.

That one of the reasons, if not the principal reason, which induced Her Majesty to assume a Protectorate in New Guinea had been the desire to preserve the natives in the enjoyment of their lands, and to protect their persons and property from outrage at the hands of unprincipled white men, and that with that object to obtain and enforce, for the present, full control of all settlement upon the protected area.

Question as to protection of British subjects and natives in New Guinea.

That there would appear to be sufficient power under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts, 1843-78, to control the actions of British subjects by means of Orders in Council passed under those Acts; but that a jurisdiction which conferred no protection on British subjects against the acts of natives, and which conferred no protection on either natives or British subjects against the acts of foreigners, subjects of civilized States, did not meet the necessities of the present case.

That it therefore became important to consider whether the protected area should not be brought more directly under the sovereignty of the Queen, not with any desire for the acquisition of the soil, but as the best means of securing an effective and legal control over all persons resorting thereto.

That Sir R. Herbert was accordingly to request us to favour your Lordship with our opinion—

1. Whether legal jurisdiction over persons other than British subjects can in any way be acquired within the protected area if it does not become British soil?

2. Whether, if a British officer, acting under authority of Her Majesty's Government, were to proclaim the extension of Her Majesty's sovereignty to the territory in question, it would thereupon become part of Her Majesty's dominions?

3. Whether, in that case, it would be territory acquired by cession or conquest, so as to give Her Majesty the right to make laws within it?

4. Whether it would be competent to Her Majesty, by commission under her sign manual and signet, to appoint an officer to be administrator of the territory, and by Proclamation to make laws in the name and on behalf of Her Majesty?

1884

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Such jurisdiction cannot be acquired unless soil become British.

1. That we are of opinion that legal jurisdiction over persons other than British subjects cannot, under the circumstances, be acquired within the protected area in question if it does not become British soil.

We understand that there is no native power within that area capable of ceding to the Queen jurisdiction over the natives, or, in fact, over any one.

As to assumption of possession.

2. We are of opinion that if a British officer, acting under authority of Her Majesty's Government for that purpose, were to proclaim the extension of Her Majesty's sovereignty over the territory in question, and were also to assume possession of it, it would thereupon become part of Her Majesty's dominions.

And we think that if Her Majesty were to appoint an officer to administer and govern the territory over which the Protectorate has been declared, and to send him, in pursuance of that appointment, to such territory, that would amount to an assumption of possession on behalf of Her Majesty.

Acquisition of possession equivalent to settlement.

3. We much doubt whether, in such a case, the territory could be said to be acquired either by cession or by conquest. It appears to us that the acquisition must rather be regarded as by settlement; and if this be so, the Statute 23 & 24 Vict., cap. 121, which empowers the Crown to legislate by Order in Council, or to delegate legislative powers in the manner therein pointed out, in all possessions of Her Majesty not acquired by conquest or cession, and not within the legislative authority of any of Her Majesty's possessions abroad, will apply.

Powers of Crown as to administration of such country.

4. We are of opinion that it would be competent to Her Majesty, by commission under her sign manual, to appoint an officer to be Administrator of the territory. Such officer would not have power to make laws by Proclamation. We have already pointed out that the power to make laws in such a territory is conferred by the Statute 23 and 24 Vict., cap. 121.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

Germany.

No. 40.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 6, 1884.

Administration of oaths, &c., by Her Majesty's Consular officers in Germany to persons not British subjects.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 21st March, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us papers relating to the administration of oaths and the taking of affidavits by Her Majesty's Consular officers in Germany to persons not British subjects.

That the British Acts of Parliament giving discretionary power to Her Majesty's Diplomatic and Consular officers abroad to administer oaths* contained no restriction on that point.

Liability of a British Consul to prosecution and withdrawal of his Exequatur.

But that it appeared that the administration of oaths by a British Consul to any but British subjects was by the law of some of the German States an offence rendering the Consul liable to prosecution, and even to the withdrawal of his Exequatur.

Proposed Circular to Consular officers in Germany.

That Her Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin had obtained from the German Government an official Memorandum (Inclosure 1 in Lord Ampthill's No. 5) containing a statement of the German law on the subject; and that his Excellency had suggested that a Circular should be issued to Her Majesty's Consular officers in Germany, instructing them to abstain for the future from administering oaths in any form at their Consulates to persons not being British subjects, until satisfied that they were justified by the local law in so doing.

That a correspondence was inclosed which had lately taken place between the Foreign Office and the Board of Inland Revenue on the subject of the administration of oaths in this country by foreign Consuls, and that our attention was directed to section 13 of 5 & 6 Will. IV, cap. 62.

If foreign Consuls in the United Kingdom can administer oaths to persons of any nationality, propose to ask German Government to extend reciprocal facilities to British Consuls in Germany.

That if we should be of opinion that under the concluding words of that section a foreign Consul in the United Kingdom might lawfully administer oaths to persons of any nationality for the purposes of transactions pending or to be conducted in the country which he represents as Consul, your Lordship would be disposed to ask the German Government to extend reciprocal facilities to British Consuls in Germany.

That Mr. Lister was to request our opinion on the question raised as to the effect of the concluding words of section 13 of the Act above referred to, and also as to whether the proposed Circular, of which the draft was inclosed, might properly be issued.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Foreign Consuls in the United Kingdom may administer oaths to persons of any nationality.

That we are of opinion that a foreign Consul in the United Kingdom may lawfully administer oaths to persons of any nationality for the purposes of transactions pending or to be conducted in the country which he represents as Consul.

Approve proposed Circular with slight verbal alteration.

We also think that the proposed Circular may properly be issued, but we would suggest that, instead of the words, "that no local objection exists to your doing so," it might be well to substitute "that the local law justifies your doing so."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex 1.

Draft Circular from Lord Ampthill to Her Majesty's Consuls in Germany.

Sir, British Embassy, Berlin,

DOUBTS having been raised as to how far German law admits the rights of foreign Consuls to administer oaths and take affidavits in Germany, Her Majesty's Embassy has been at pains to obtain a clear statement of the German law in this respect from a competent source.

The information thus obtained will be found embodied in the annexed Memorandum, to which I invite your careful attention.

In view of this official statement of German law, and of the fact that Her

---

* 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87, sec. 20; 18 & 19 Vict., cap. 42.

1884

Majesty's Consular officers in Germany are subject to the jurisdiction of the local Courts, I have to instruct you to abstain from administering oaths in any form at your Consulate to persons not being British subjects until clearly satisfied that the local law justifies your doing so. You will also communicate this instruction to the Consular officers in your district for their future guidance.

I have, &c.

---

Annex 2.

Pro-memorid.

(Translation.)

There is no special provision of Prussian law expressly forbidding foreign Consuls to administer oaths or take sworn declarations from Prussian subjects.

But it has always been regarded as a fundamental principle of Prussian State law, that the right to administer an oath is derived from the sovereign rights of the State, and can only be exercised by those officials and persons upon whom it has been conferred by law or Treaty of the State. This principle is expressly laid down in the Memorandum which treats of the privileges conceded to foreign Consular officers in Prussian States, forming Appendix I to the official instructions to Prussian Consular officers of the 1st May, 1862.

Moreover, the Imperial Criminal Code, in adjudging the penalties laid down by sections 154 and 156, starts from the presumption that the false oath to be punished has been tendered to an official "competent to administer an oath." According to the provisions of the Civil Code of Procedure and of the Code of Criminal Procedure, an oath in civil suits and in criminal cases can only be administered by a Judge, i.e., oaths of witnesses, experts and parties, and judicial oaths. (Sections 356-58, 375, 410-437, Civil Code; Sections 60-63, 78, Criminal Code.)

How far other authorities are competent to administer oaths, i.e., oaths of office, of evidence in disciplinary inquiries, and of experts, is also laid down in the laws. No legal provision exists authorizing foreign Consuls to administer an oath. Consequently, foreign Consuls in Germany generally can only be considered competent to administer an oath in case the authority to do so has been conceded to them by Treaty or by Conventional usage.

Since the Consular Treaty with the United States of America of the 11th December, 1871 ("Reichsgesetzblatt, 1872," p. 95), in Article 9 decides that the Consuls, so far as they may be empowered by the Laws and Regulations of their own country, shall have power in their official or private dwelling-houses, in the houses of the parties interested, or on board their national ships, to take declarations on oath from ships' captains, crews, passengers, merchants, or other subjects of their own nationality, it must be inferred that American Consuls in Germany have also the right to take sworn declarations from subjects of the United States, while this right has not been conceded to them in regard to German subjects.

Although no similar agreement exists with England, still as recorded in the Appendix to the General Instructions to Prussian Consuls above referred to, English Consuls have also been allowed to take declarations on oath from subjects of their own nationality.

With special reference to the oath peculiar to English law, termed affidavits, it has been hitherto held that the above-mentioned Rules are also to be considered as applicable to this form of oath.

The Criminal Code of the German Empire only punishes those making oaths when they have knowingly or carelessly sworn falsely, in the case of a voluntary oath or counter-oath, or of an obligatory oath ("zugeschobener, zurückgeschobener, oder auferlegter Eid"), or when false evidence has been wilfully or carelessly tendered on oath before an authority competent to administer an oath, or when a false statement has been confirmed by an oath, or when a false evidence or false statement violates an oath taken before examination. (Sections 153, 154, 163, Criminal Code.) On the other hand, by section 132 of the Criminal Code, any person taking upon himself the performance of a public function, or doing any act which can only be legally done in virtue of an official commission ("Kraft einer offentlichen Amts"), is liable to be punished. Consequently, any person administering an oath without authority to do so is to be considered as punishable according to the circumstances of the case.

Foreign Office, Berlin, February 26, 1884.

---

No. 41.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 20.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 19, 1884.

Hermann Isaacs, naturalized British subject. His expulsion from Hamburgh.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 5th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's late Ambassador at Berlin,* accompanying a despatch, and its inclosures, from the British Vice-Consul at Hamburgh, relative to the expulsion of Hermann Isaacs, a naturalized British subject, from that city, the Senate of Hamburgh having rejected his appeal against the Decree of Expulsion which had been issued against him.

That Hermann Isaacs was charged with having obtained his "entlassungsschein" (or release from German nationality) under false pretences, and for the purpose of evading military service in 1872; but that instead of emigrating to the United States (under which pretence he obtained his release) he came to England, where, after residing the necessary period, he obtained a certificate of naturalization on a statutory declaration of his intention to reside in the United Kingdom.

His British certificate obtained under false pretences.

But that no sooner had he obtained the certificate than he returned to Hamburgh, and had resided there ever since, and that he thus appeared to have deceived both the English and German Governments. That the Decree of Expulsion having been confirmed on appeal, Her Majesty's Government were now requested to interfere diplomatically on Hermann Isaacs' behalf. That there was nothing to show that the "entlassungsschein" had been cancelled, for Isaacs was still described as a naturalized British subject; but that it appeared to your Lordship that his breach of faith in obtaining his British certificate without, as it appeared evident, any intention of residing in this country disentitled him to the support of Her Majesty's Government.

That Mr. Lister was to request our opinion as to whether the case called for any diplomatic action on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Case does not call for interference.

That we are of opinion that the case calls for no diplomatic action on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 42.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Marriage of William Rose.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 16th September last, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the case of William Rose, a British subject, who was married in 1877 at the British Embassy in Vienna to Barbara Zwicker, an Austrian subject.†

Dissolution of first marriage by Berlin Civil Court.

That the marriage had been dissolved by Decree of the Berlin Civil Court in March of the present year, and that Rose, being desirous to marry Caroline Maroni, an Italian subject, had applied to Her Majesty's Embassy at Berlin for the usual certificate, that by English law there was no impediment to such marriage.

Refusal of British Embassy to grant certificate for second marriage.

That he had been informed, in reply, that Her Majesty's Embassy could not grant the certificate until the first marriage at the British Embassy at Vienna had been dissolved by the competent Court in England.

That the case had been submitted by Her Majesty's Embassy at Berlin, to M. Dyenfurt, an eminent jurist at Berlin, for a report on the Judgment of the Berlin Court dissolving the marriage of Rose with Barbara Zwicker.

That we were referred to the documents transmitted with Mr. Lister's letter, and that he was to request our opinion as to whether the refusal to grant the certificate in question was under the circumstances right and proper, and if so, whether any further action was called for on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

---

* Lord Ampthill, No. 13, Consular, August 5, 1884.

† Lord Ampthill, No. 11, Consular, July 29; to Lord Ampthill, No. 226, August 11; Mr. Scott, No 250, September 1, 1884.

1884

Has Mr. Rose acquired any domicile in Germany?

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That before expressing an opinion upon the question submitted to us, we wish to be informed whether Mr. Rose had acquired any domicile in Germany, so as to affect his domicile of origin, or not.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Guatemala

No. 43.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 14, 1884.

Protection of British subjects.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands, signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to a question affecting the protection of British subjects in Guatemala.

Concession to Mr. Gillespie containing clause renouncing right to diplomatic intervention.

That it appeared from the despatches inclosed, from the Acting British Consul-General at Guatemala, that a Concession was granted by the Government of that Republic to a British subject named Gillespie to enable him to establish an ostrich farm.

That that Concession contained a provision binding Mr. Gillespie under no circumstances to have recourse to diplomatic intervention in case of need.

That as Mr. Bennett stated that that clause was now frequently introduced into Concessions granted by the Guatemalan Government to foreigners, and as, as he further pointed out, a case was certain sooner or later to arise where a "concessionnaire" who had thus, for the sake of securing a more lucrative business, bartered away his rights as a British subject, applied to his Legation for assistance, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether such a clause in a Concession to a British subject precluded Her Majesty's Representative from intervening diplomatically in his behalf, if he should think it expedient to do so, in a case where, but for such clause, diplomatic intervention would be justified.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Diplomatic intervention not necessarily precluded, especially if other British subjects are affected.

That in our opinion such a clause in a Concession to a British subject does not preclude Her Majesty's Representative from intervening diplomatically in his behalf if he should think it expedient to do so in a case where, but for such clause, diplomatic intervention would be justified.

At the same time, if the British subject who had agreed to such a clause had sustained only some personal pecuniary loss, owing to the failure of the Guatemalan Government to carry out their Concession, and the matter was not one affecting in principle or otherwise any other British subject except himself, these circumstances would be very important elements in determining whether, in such a case, Her Majesty's Representative should intervene on his behalf.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Mr. Bennett, No. 11, Confidential, February 7, 1884.
Ditto, No. 17, Confidential, February 14, 1884.
Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), March 31, 1884.
Law Officers, August 2, 1881, Confidential No. 4637, pp. 25, 26.
To Mr. Graham, No. 25, August 5, 1881.
Queen's Advocate, March 21, 1867, Confidential No. 1745, p 2.

No. 44.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received August 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 12, 1884.

Honduras boundary. Guatemalan protest against British occupation of territory.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th ultimo, transmitting papers relative to the protest of Guatemala against the continued occupation by Great Britain of a certain portion of British Honduras which was claimed by Guatemala.

That the two Memoranda of Sir E. Hertslet inclosed in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter fully and clearly explained the whole history of the case; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the following points:—

1. Whether Articles II, III, IV, and V of the Convention of 1859, which related to the recognition by Guatemala of the boundary of British Honduras, were invalidated by the non-fulfilment of Article VII of that Convention, which related to the construction of a road from Guatemala to Belize, under the circumstances mentioned in Sir E. Hertslet's Memoranda.

2. Whether, in the event of a Parliamentary vote for the purpose of carrying out Article VII of the Convention of 1859 being applied for and refused, Great Britain would be released from all obligation under that Article without prejudice to the other provisions of the Convention.

A

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Articles II, III, IV, and V of Convention of 1859 not invalidated by non-fulfilment of Article VII.

That, in our opinion, Articles II, III, IV, and V of the Convention of 1859 are not invalidated by the non-fulfilment of Article VII.

The latter Article is, so far as the terms of the Convention are concerned, an entirely independent stipulation. And the former Articles are explicit and absolute in their terms. and in no way made conditional upon the carrying out of Article VII.

We observe, however, that M. de Medina states in his letter that Article II "began to be fulfilled," and he appears to connect its not being further carried into effect with the controversy which arose under Article VII.

Should inquire as to non-fulfilment of certain Articles.

We are not aware what are the facts in relation to this, or whether it was with the assent of Her Majesty's Government that the proceedings provided for by Article II and the following Articles were abandoned.

It appears advisable that this should be inquired into.

Right of Guatemala to refuse to carry out Treaty partially.

We may add that, assuming the obligation created by Article VII to be still in force, it would, of course, be open to Guatemala to insist that, as there had been a breach of it by the British Government, she would retaliate by refusing to observe the other provisions of the Convention, even though they were unconnected with Article VII.

Obligations of British Government under Article VII.

2. Article VII clearly imposes an absolute obligation on the British Government. The undertaking is only to use their best efforts. If they did this by proposing and using all due efforts to carry a vote of money, we think their obligation under Article VII, would be fulfilled.

Whether they are still bound to do so, having regard to what has passed since the date of the Convention, we do not understand to be submitted to us.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

1. Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), July 28, 1880. Confidential No. 4719.
2. Señor Medina, April 5, 1884.
3. Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), June 17, 1884. Confidential No. 4982.
4. Convention between Great Britain and Guatemala of April 30, 1859, No. 432.
5. Convention between Great Britain and Guatemala of August 5, 1863 (not ratified).

1884

No. 45.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 25, 1884.

Honduras boundary. Guatemalan protest against British occupation of territory.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 1st September, stating that with reference to our Report of the 12th August relative to the protest of Guatemala against the continued occupation by Great Britain of a certain portion of British Honduras, which was claimed by Guatemala, and in which we suggested that an inquiry should be instituted into the circumstances under which the Boundary Commissioners appointed, under the Convention of 1859, ceased their labours, he was to transmit a copy of a further Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, prepared on the 24th December, 1883.*

That at pp. 4 and 5 would be found stated the causes which led the Boundary Commissioners, who met in 1860 for the purpose of executing the provisions of Articles II–V of the Convention of 1859, to suspend their labours in the following April.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether, in view of the facts, we were of opinion that Her Majesty's Government were morally bound to take steps to meet the obligations imposed on them by Article VII of the Convention of 1859, notwithstanding the failure of the Guatemalan Government to ratify, within the appointed time, the Supplementary Convention of 1863, for the construction of a road from Guatemala to the Atlantic, at a spot near Belize.

That the former papers and copy of our Report of the 12th August were inclosed.†

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the 1st Article of the Convention of 1859 states what always "was and is" the boundary of British Honduras. The next Article provides for its exact demarcation.

It now appears that the two Governments commenced, by their Commissioners, to mark out the boundary, and that, after a portion of it had been agreed upon, temporary physical difficulties prevented its being defined at a point north of Garbutt Falls. The Commissioner appointed by Her Majesty's Government was then ordered to cease going on with the work until further orders. The ground for this order seems to have been that Mexico claimed the territory north of Garbutt Falls, and also part of British Honduras itself. It seems, therefore, that the failure to define the boundary under Article II of the Convention was due solely to the action of Her Majesty's Government.

Failure to define boundary under Article II of Convention of 1859 was due to action of Her Majesty's Government.

There seems no doubt that, prior to the Convention of 1859, Guatemala claimed territory which the British then occupied. Sir C. Wyke, who negotiated that Convention, reported that Great Britain had no right, except actual occupation, to a large portion of the territory which the Convention recognizes as belonging to this country, that, but for some inducement, Guatemala never would have consented to Article I of the Convention, and that Article VII was, in fact, the fine paid to secure the consent of Guatemala.

Now, the Convention of 1863 does not purport, in terms, to be, of itself, a satisfaction of the obligation created by Article VII of the Convention of 1859, for, by the Vth Article of the Convention of 1863, it was provided that "the Republic accepts the said sum of 50,000*l.*, to be paid for the purpose of constructing the line of communication as a full and entire discharge of, and release from, all the obligations contracted by Her Britannic Majesty by the stipulations of the VIIth Article of the Convention of the 30th April, 1859."

The Convention of 1863 fell through, owing to the failure of Guatemala to ratify it within the appointed time, and consequently no payment has been made under it.

Her Majesty's Government are morally bound to take steps to give effect to Article VII of the Convention of 1859.

In these circumstances, it appears to us that it may well be urged that there is a moral obligation, if not, something more, to take some steps to give effect to Article VII of the Convention of 1859.

But in measuring the extent of this obligation, the changed circumstances and the increased difficulties, due to the delay which has taken place, and which are the

---

* Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), December 24, 1883, Confidential No. 4917.

† Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), July 28, 1880, Confidential No. 4719; Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), June 17, 1884, Confidential No. 4982; Señor Medina, April 5, 1884; Convention between Great Britain and Guatemala, April 30, 1859, Treaty No. 432; Convention between Great Britain and Guatemala, August 5, 1863 (not ratified); Law Officers, August 12, 1884.

fruits of the non-ratification of the Treaty of 1863, may well be taken into consideration.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Haïti.

No. 46.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 22, 1884.

Blockade of Jacmel.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, stating that, with reference to the Foreign Office letter of the 28th September last, and to previous correspondence upon the subject of the blockade of Haïtian ports, he was to transmit to us papers relative to the blockade of Jacmel.*

Steps taken to render it effective.

That Her Majesty's Consul at Port-au-Prince forwarded copies of two communications which he had received from the Haïtian Government: the first, requesting him to notify to the agents of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company that the blockade of Jacmel was then effective by the presence before that port of the Haïtian war-vessel "Dessaline," which had orders to sink any ship trying to force the blockade; and the second, stating that the President had received information that two British men-of-war were about to proceed to Jacmel in order to protect the Royal Mail steamer, which it was reported intended to force the blockade of that place on the 26th ultimo, and requesting that Mr. Hunt would take measures to prevent their interference.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to the reply which Mr. Hunt should be instructed to make in regard to the threat of the Haïtian Minister for Foreign Affairs, that vessels attempting to force the blockade would be sunk, a measure which it was conceived would not be warranted by international law.

Action of British vessels of war.

That, with reference to the reported action of Her Majesty's ships, Sir J. Pauncefote invited our attention to the passages marked in the accompanying letter which had been communicated by the Admiralty.† That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that it was proposed to issue, on the receipt of our Report, a notification of the blockade of Jacmel in the "London Gazette."

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

If blockade is effective, capture and destruction of vessels justifiable.

That if the blockade of Jacmel be effective, a Haïtian vessel of war would no doubt be entitled to capture any vessel attempting to break the blockade, and to prevent its being broken. And we apprehend that if a vessel persisted, in defiance of the opposition of the war-vessel, in its endeavours to reach the port, and refused to surrender, such conduct would justify hostile action. But we do not think a vessel of war would be justified in sinking a merchant-vessel, except as an extreme measure, in the case where such vessel was acting in defiance of the rights of the blockading force, and by its own action rendered such an extreme act of hostility absolutely necessary.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Mr. Hunt, No. 51, December 15, 1883.

† Admiralty, January 8, 1884.

1884

No. 47.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 30, 1884.

Claim of Mr. Breckenridge against Haïtian Government.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the claim of Mr. Breckenridge against the Haïtian Government on account of losses suffered by him through the disturbances which occurred at Port-au-Prince on the 22nd and 23rd September, 1883. That Mr. Breckenridge claimed as mortgagee of certain property destroyed on the above occasion, and that the papers which were transmitted to us, marked "A," were laid before the Mixed Commission appointed to investigate the claims of foreigners.

Claim rejected as being indirect.

But that the claim was rejected on the plea of its being an indirect claim, as shown by the various documents transmitted.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether it was competent for the Commission to bar Mr. Breckenridge's claim on the ground alleged.

That the records of proceedings in the cases of the "Circassian" and "Empress," dealt with by the Mixed Commission for the settlement of British and American claims under the Treaty of Washington of the 8th May, 1871, were also inclosed in connection with the point on which our opinion was asked.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, as we understand, Mr. Breckenridge's claim was rejected by the Commissioners as indirect, on the ground that an alien cannot hold landed property according to the law of Haïti, and that, therefore, the building destroyed was his mortgagor's and not his, the supposed transfer being void.

Claim appears to be an indirect one.

If this view of the law be correct the claim would certainly appear to be an indirect one, as the fire only destroyed part of the property of the mortgagor, and so diminished his resources.

And this distinguishes the present case from the two cases to which our attention has been called, dealt with under the Treaty of Washington.

We are without any direct information as to whether the suggested view of the law of Haïti be correct. The mortgage appears to have been registered in Haïti, and it may well be that the mortgagee has some rights there in respect of it.

It appears, however, that in the instructions given by the Haïtian Government to the Commission, they are not only required to reject indirect claims, but it is stated that the labours of the Commission will not be subject to revision, and that they are to judge absolutely and without appeal.

If British Governnent agreed to nstructions to Mixed ommission it is lifficult to insist upon eversal of decision.

If these instructions were agreed to by Her Majesty's Government, it is difficult to see how any review of one of their decisions can be insisted upon, because it is adverse to a British subject.

It is asserted in the instructions, which bear date the 27th March, 1883, that they have been communicated to the Chiefs of the English and French Legations, and have their complete concurrence.

How this was obtained does not appear from the documents before us, the only one written by Mr. Hunt appearing to be a letter of the 31st March, a few days afterwards, in which he merely acknowledges the receipt of a copy of the instructions.

But as no exception was taken to their terms, we presume the statement made by Mr. St. Victor was correct.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* (A) Mr. Breckenridge, November 22, 1884; (B) Procès-verbaux des Opérations de la Commission Mixte (in Mr. McGuffie's No 20, August 7, 1884); (C) Documents Diplomatiques (in Mr. Love's letter of September 9, 1884).

Italy.

No. 48.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 31, 1884.

Marriage of railway conductor Cornwell.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the propriety of Her Majesty's Consul-General at Florence celebrating a marriage between two British subjects under the following circumstances:—

As to residence, he having a room at Florence.

That Henry Cornwell, the intended husband, British subject, is a conductor in the service of the Wagon Lits Company, running its carriages on the French and Italian railways between Calais and Bologna, at the latter of which places the lady he intends to marry is resident, and he has held furnished rooms for more than two years, the actual time of his occupation of them being necessarily limited, as his time is principally passed on the road.

Reference to case of John Julian.

That the question arose whether Cornwell could, under the circumstances mentioned, properly make the declaration required under the Consular Marriages Act (12 & 13 Vict., cap. 68) as to residence within the Consular district during one calendar month, and as to his usual place of abode being within that district.

That the question appeared to your Lordship to be very analogous to that of John Julian, which was submitted to the Law Officers in 1877, and upon which an answer was returned in the affirmative.

That our opinion was requested on the question submitted in that letter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

He may make declaration under Consular Marriage Act.

That we think Cornwell can, under the circumstances, properly make the declaration required under the Consular Marriages Act.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Consul-General Colnaghi, No. 6, January 5, 1884.
Law Officers, October 9, 1877. Confidential No. 4216. p. 18.

---

No. 49.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 1, 1884.

Naples hospital. Application for loan from Burial Ground Fund on security of mortgage of hospital.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to an application by the trustees of the late Lady Harriet Bentinck's Hospital at Naples to the trustees of the Naples British Burial Ground Fund for the loan of 2,500*l.* on the security of a mortgage of the hospital.

That the hospital was founded in pursuance of the trusts of a Deed dated the 12th August, 1880 (Inclosure 2 in Mr. Consul Grant's despatch).

That the trustees of so much of the Naples British Burial Ground Fund as was invested in this country were the Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office, Mr. Bonham, formerly Her Majesty's Consul at Naples, and a British resident in that city, and that the money was invested in this country in their names under the provisions of section 12 of 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87 (copy inclosed).

That under those circumstances two questions had arisen—

1884

1. Whether the proposed loan could be legally made under the provisions of the Act.

2. Whether the trustees of the hospital had power to mortgage the hospital grounds.

That the history of the British Burial Ground Fund was given in the Foreign Office Memorandum (B). That it would be observed that the fund was invested in British consols under the authority of section 12 of the Act, which contained no power to vary the investment. It was true that under section 15 it was competent to a general meeting of subscribers to the fund to make such orders for the management of the burial ground, or for the proper control over and expenditure of the money raised by subscription, "or otherwise in relation to the matters aforesaid as may be necessary for carrying into execution the objects of the Act;" and if it should be considered that under section 15 a general meeting had power to vary the investment of the fund, and to advance the same upon mortgage of land in Naples by an order to be approved and confirmed as therein provided, the next question was whether the hospital trustees had power to raise money on mortgage.

That no such power was given to them by the trust deed under which they held the hospital grounds, but that it might be that under the lex loci they might be able to give a good security to the proposed mortgagees.

Proposed gift of 1,300*l.* from uninvested Burial Ground Fund to hospital.

That a further proposal was made in Consul Grant's despatch, viz., that if the 2,500*l.* could not be advanced on mortgage as desired, the Secretary of State should sanction the application of 1,300*l.*, part of the Burial Ground Fund at present uninvested and now lying in the hands of bankers in London and Naples, for the benefit of the hospital by way of gift to that institution.

That it was suggested that it was in the power of the Secretary of State to sanction such gift under section 20 of certain Regulations purporting to have been made and issued in 1848 by Her Majesty, through one of her Principal Secretaries of State, "under the authority of the 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87."

That a copy of those Regulations was inclosed.

That section 20 would appear to empower the Secretary of State to sanction a diversion of the Burial Ground Fund "to other purposes," but that the question arose whether those Regulations had any legal force. That they purported, as before stated, to have been issued "under the authority of the Act 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87," but that the only power given by the Act to make rules and regulations for the management of British Church affairs and burial grounds at foreign places was contained in section 15, and was limited to rules and regulations made at particular places by the subscribers to the Church and Burial Ground Funds assembled in general meeting under section 14.

That it appeared that the Regulations in question were originally issued in 1839, in consequence of disputes which had arisen with regard to the management of Church and Burial Ground Funds of Naples, and that they were amended and issued in their present form in 1848, in consequence of a controversy as to the right of the Bishop of London to appoint British Chaplains abroad. That the Regulations of 1839, as well as those of 1848, were submitted to and approved by the Queen's Advocate, but that there was nothing in his Reports to show upon what legal ground it was considered, at the time, that those Regulations rested, or why they were stated to be issued under the authority of the Act.

That it would be seen, however, from a Memorandum, which had now been furnished by the Chief Clerk of the Foreign Office, that those Regulations were only instructions to Consuls from the Secretary of State respecting the management of Church matters, under the Act, and that it would seem, therefore, that they could give no legal force or effect to any act not authorized by the Statute.

That our attention was invited to the Report of the Treasury Solicitor on the questions under consideration, which formed an inclosure in the Treasury letter of the 13th October last, and in which he expressed the opinion that the proposed mortgage could not legally be effected, but that under section 20 of the Regulations the Secretary of State has power to sanction the gift of 1,300*l.* to the hospital out of the uninvested portion of the Burial Ground Fund.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to observe, however, that the Treasury Solicitor had not before him at the time the Memorandum of the Chief Clerk explaining the origin and character of the Regulations.

That our opinion was requested on the questions submitted in that letter, and that we would favour your Lordship with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

---

Italy.

---

No. 49*.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 29.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 28, 1884.

My Lord,

"North Durham." Refusal of Sicilian authorities to grant pratique after expiration of quarantine.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, and transmitting to us the papers* relating to the claim for compensation made on behalf of the owners of the British steamer "North Durham."

That on the 14th August, when that ship was ready to leave Naples for Girgenti, the prescribed quarantine which vessels circumstanced as the "North Durham" had to perform before being admitted to pratique at Girgenti was ten days, but that before the ten days were accomplished the quarantine was raised to twenty-one days. But that even after the twenty-one days' quarantine she was refused pratique at Girgenti, and that that refusal was due to the attitude of the population.†

That such refusal to admit the "North Durham" to quarantine was an infraction of the orders issued by the Italian Government.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the claim put forward on behalf of the owners of the "North Durham" was one that might properly be pressed on the Italian Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Claim for detention a proper one.

That we think the claim in respect of the detention after the expiration of the extended quarantine (that is, during seven days) is one that may properly be pressed officially on the Italian Government. The refusal of pratique was, we gather, the act of Italian officials, and it was an act done by them in violation of the then existing law. This, we think, affords ground for a claim of redress.

Claim should not be extravagant.

At the same time, we would observe that the Italian authorities were, no doubt, in a position of great difficulty, and it would be undesirable to claim an amount which was at all extravagant.

Should obtain independent opinion as to reasonable compensation.

The claim of 30*l.* a-day strikes us as somewhat high, and we would suggest that, before the claim is put forward, inquiry should be made as to the tonnage of the "North Durham," and some independent opinion should be obtained as to the reasonable demurrage for a ship of that size.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* North of England Steam-ship Owners Association, September 11; to North of England Steam-ship Owners Association, October 18; North of England Steam-ship Owners Association, November 1; to Sir J. Lumley, No. 49. Commercial, September 15; Sir J. Lumley, No. 125, Commercial, September 19; to Sir J. Lumley, No. 61, Commercial, October 18, 1884.

† Sir J. S. Lumley, No. 125, Commercial, September 19, 1883.

1884

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Trustees of cemetery have no power to grant loan from invested funds.

That the documents before us show no power in the trustees of the hospital to mortgage the grounds. Whether the trustees could give a good title to any person lending money upon mortgage of them is a question to be determined by Italian law.

But even assuming that the trustees could give such a title, we think there is no power to dispose of the money already invested in that way.

Inclined to oppose grant of 1,300*l.* from uninvested funds.

Whether the 1,300*l* could be applied either in that way or as a gift is a matter of more doubt, but the inclination of our opinion is that it could not.

By section 15, the general meeting therein provided for, may make rules and orders in relation to the moneys raised for the several purposes specified.

And by that section Her Majesty may, through a Secretary of State, allow or disallow such rules and orders, either wholly or in part, or make amendments in or additions to the same.

But it would appear that no such Regulations have been made by a general meeting, and the Regulations before us purport to have been "made and issued by Her Majesty through one of her Principal Secretaries of State," and not to be an allowance, either with or without additions, of Regulations made by a general meeting.

We can find no authority sanctioning any such Regulations.

Not sufficiently clear that proposals can be acceded to.

Upon the whole, we think that it is not sufficiently clear that the burial ground money can be applied in the way suggested to justify that course being taken.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Consul Grant, No. 65, July 9, 1883.
(B.) Foreign Office Memorandum (A. W.) August 25, 188[illegible].
(C.) Act 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87.
(D.) Church Regulations, 1848. Confidential No. 5[illegible]7.
(E.) Treasury, October 13, 1883, with opinion of Treasury Solicitor.
(F.) Memorandum by Chief Clerk, February 28, 1884.

---

Japan.

No. 50.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 30, 1884.

Affray at Yokohama. John Collins and others killed by French sailors.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to an affray which occurred at Yokohama on the 1st October, in which three persons were killed by French sailors, belonging to the French Messageries steamships "Menzaleh" and "Volga," one of the victims being a British subject, named John Collins.

That a résumé of the case, and of the proceedings which followed, were inclosed in Mr. Plunkett's No. 205 of the 5th ultimo.

That your Lordship was disposed to think that the British Consul at Yokohama

---

* In Foreign Office letter of December 16, 1884:—Mr. Plunkett, No. 175, October 9; No. 193, October 22; No. 203, November 4; No. 204, November 5; No. 205, November 5; No. 206, Confidential, November 5, 1884. In Foreign Office letter of December 18, 1884:—Mr. Plunkett, No. 199, October 31, 1884.

1884

should have taken steps for prosecuting the French sailors before the French Consular Court. But that he contented himself with sending a list of witnesses, and declined to attend the inquiry before the French Consul, though invited to do so, for reasons which did not appear to your Lordship altogether satisfactory.

Nor did he depute any person to formulate any charge, or even to watch the proceedings.

That although it would appear that there had been a grave miscarriage of justice, it seemed difficult, in the absence of the evidence taken at the French inquiry, to make any representation to the French Government.

That our opinion was requested as to what action, if any, was called for in the matter, together with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to arrive at any clear opinion as to the exact circumstances of the affray on the evening of the 1st October last. It appears certain that weapons were used, and violence offered on both sides. It does not seem possible, even to say with certainty, who were the aggressors.

There is evidence both ways.

It is possible that the French went ashore resolved to provoke and commence a conflict, and that they, in fact, did so. But it is possible that their story may be true, that they went in large numbers as a demonstration to show that they would not submit to the attacks to which they had been subjected.

Under the circumstances, and so far as we can judge of the evidence before him, it would scarcely have been possible for the French Consul to have proceeded against any of the men for murder.

But there would seem to have been a miscarriage of justice in treating them as guilty of no substantial offence.

The Consul was apparently himself of that opinion, inasmuch as he sent three, whom he thought most implicated, to be dealt with at Saigon.

Cannot take action before termination of proceedings at Saigon. British Consul should have attended French inquiry.

Until the result and nature of the proceedings there are known, it is not, we think, possible for Her Majesty's Government to take any action in the matter.

We concur in your Lordship's view, that the British Consul should have either himself attended, or deputed some one to attend, the French Consular Court, to watch the proceedings, and to take care, as far as his position allowed him, that all the evidence available was put before the Court.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Madagascar

No. 51.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 15.)

/

Mail steamer "Taymouth Castle;" interference of French naval authorities.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 14, 1884.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 24th December last, he had the honour to transmit to us papers* relating to the interference by the French naval authorities at Tamatave with the mails on the English steamship "Taymouth Castle," and which contained the fuller information requested by us, as to whether the act was committed by the direct orders of the French Admiral.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the further papers transmitted

---

* To Sir D. Currie, January 4; from Sir D. Currie, January 8; ditto, March 12; to Post Office, March 24; from Post Office, March 26; from Captain Johnstone, April 10, 1884.

MADAGASCAR.

No. 50 A.

Colonial Office.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Derby.

Proclamation prohibiting exportation of arms and ammunition to Madagascar.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 21, 1884.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Bramston's letter of the 12th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the inclosed copy of a despatch from the Governor of Mauritius, together with the connected papers, relative to a Proclamation which had been issued by him prohibiting for six months the exportation of arms and ammunition to Madagascar.

That Mr. Bramston was to refer us, in connection with that question, to our opinion given on the 2nd December, 1882,* respecting the issue of a Proclamation by the Governor of Trinidad against the export of arms from that Colony to Venezuela.

That in that case we advised that the Governor had no power, under a clause in the Colonial Customs Ordinance authorizing the exportation of arms to be prohibited, to prohibit exportation to a particular country or place, and that the Governor was thereupon instructed to withdraw the Proclamation.

That since, however, the clause in the Mauritius Ordinance No. 14 of 1858 contained the words "to any port or place whatever," which were not in the clause of the Trinidad Ordinance, your Lordship had thought it desirable to request to be favoured with our opinion whether the Proclamation issued by Sir J. Pope Hennessy, on the advice of the Procureur-Général of Mauritius, was not valid.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Was legal.

That we think that Sir J. P. Hennessy had power to issue the Proclamation in question.

We do not understand that we are asked to express any opinion upon the policy or expediency of such a Proclamation.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

* No. 281 in Miscellaneous No. 51.

Canno
before procee
Britisl have a inquir

Mail s
"Tay interf naval

into our consideration, and that we would inform your Lordship whether they were sufficient to enable us to report on the question submitted to us, as to whether Sir Donald Currie's complaint was such as to call for a representation to the French Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think the circumstances are such as to call for a representation to the French Government, or, at all events, to render it proper that some explanation should be required.

Explanations should be required—

The Commander of the "Boursaint," who insisted as a condition of the master of the "Taymouth Castle" carrying the "Dryad's" mails, that they should be sent on board the Admiral's ship, appears to have been in command of the guard-ship, and to have had committed to him the enforcing of the regulations laid down by the French authorities.

both as to mails of the "Dryad,"

And it certainly seems to require explanation why he should have insisted that the despatches and letters from the ship of war of a friendly Power should be submitted to the French Admiral apparently for examination, before being carried by one of its own mail steamers.

We think further that the placing two armed men on board the "Taymouth Castle," even if it were for the purpose of preventing communication with the shore, was an unusual course.

and the placing of armed men on board.

Assuming that the French authorities had a right to prevent communication with the shore, the proper course would seem to have been to have prevented such communication by their own vessels or boats, and not to station a portion of their armed force on board a neutral vessel. On this point, too, therefore, we think an explanation may well be asked for.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 52.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received August 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 16, 1884.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit the papers* relative to the blockade of certain ports on the coast of Madagascar by the French fleet, and to the summary notice given on the first day of the blockade to the British vessel "Orenoque," ordering her to leave the last-mentioned port (Mahonovo) in five hours, although her loading was only half completed.

Blockade of ports of Madagascar. Case of the "Orenoque" at Mahonovo.

That the facts of the case were fully stated in the various documents therewith transmitted.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that the French Government had recently given the assurance that express instructions had been conveyed to their military and naval authorities to take all possible precautions to prevent Europeans suffering from the effect of hostile operations, and that Consul Graves had distinctly brought to the attention of the French Admiral the fact that the entire trade of the various ports mentioned was in the hands of British subjects, and that they would be the only sufferers from the blockade.

That the Lords of the Admiralty desired to learn your Lordship's opinion on the questions raised by Captain Boyle.

That on the 8th May the French Admiral intimated, in writing, both to Consul Graves and to Captain Boyle, his intention to establish the blockade very shortly, and on the 16th he notified to them that it would commence from the following day.

That it was presumed that no objection could be taken, so far, to the action of the French Admiral, and if so, the only question which would appear to arise was whether the notice to the "Orenoque" to leave in five hours, given on the first day of the blockade, was justified by international law and the rights of war, having regard to the usual practice as to egress in cases of blockade.

Was notice of five hours sufficient?

That our opinion was requested on the above question, and also as to whether the

Are there grounds for representation to French Government

---

* Consul Graves, No. 5, Commercial, May 31; Lord Lyons, No. 56, Africa, June 2, Confidential No. 4993; to Lord Lyons, No. 113, July 8; Admiralty, July 8, 1884.

1884

papers disclosed proper grounds for making a representation or complaint to the French Government respecting the treatment of the "Orenoque," or any other proceeding of the French naval authorities.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the "Orenoque" was certainly ordered to leave the blockaded port within an unusually short space of time. It has been customary, at all events in the more recent cases, to allow at least fifteen days for egress from a blockaded port; but the only practical grievance complained of by the "Orenoque" in relation to her hastened departure is that she was compelled to leave without completing her loading.

Now it is a well-settled rule of international law that a vessel is only entitled to leave a blockaded port with the cargo which was on board her at the time the blockade commenced.

After notice of the blockade she is not entitled to continue her loading and depart with the additional cargo so loaded, although in some recent cases express permission has been given to take out any cargo loaded within the time permitted for egress.

No ground for complaint on account of ship not being allowed to complete her loading.

Under the circumstances, therefore, we do not think a well-founded complaint can be made against the French Government, that the "Orenoque" was not allowed to complete her loading.

Should call attention of French Government to the unusual shortness of notice.

But in view of cases that may possibly arise hereafter, it might be well to call the attention of the French Government to the very brief time allowed for egress, which was certainly not in accordance with well-established modern usage.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 53.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 27, 1884.

British subject in service of Madagascar. Case of Colonel D. Willoughby.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul for Madagascar,* reporting that he had been informed that Colonel Digby Willoughby, a British subject, had taken military service under the Malagasy Government, and was in command of the Malagasy troops in front of Tamatave, and requesting instructions as to whether, in the event of that information proving to be correct, he should take proceedings against Colonel Willoughby under the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Question as to proceedings under Foreign Enlistment Act.

That our attention was directed to the Reports† of the Attorney-General of the 25th February, 1878, and of the Solicitor-General and Dr. Deane of the 27th February in the same year, and to our Report of the 17th August, 1880, relative to the liability of British subjects to be proceeded against in Her Majesty's Consular Courts under section 4 of the Foreign Enlistment Act in Turkey and in China for taking military service under the Porte and the Government of China in time of war with a foreign Power at peace with Her Majesty.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose Her Majesty's Order in Council for Madagascar, and the draft of an instruction which your Lordship proposed to address to Mr. Graves in reply to his despatch.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the proposed draft, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Consul has such jurisdiction; difficulty in enforcing it. Amending instructions.

That it is by no means free from doubt whether the Consul has jurisdiction to try an offence against the Foreign Enlistment Act. But upon the whole we are disposed to think that he has, though the practical difficulty exists of enforcing the jurisdiction, which has been pointed out in former Reports of the Law Officers.

---

* Consul Graves, No. 15, July 14, 1884.

† Confidential No. 4280, pp. 65–66, and Confidential No. 4539, p. 15.

We approve of the proposed instructions; but we would suggest the amendments which we have made in pencil on the draft.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Consul Graves.

Sir, Foreign Office, , 1884.

Earl Granville has received your despatch No. 46, Africa, of the 28th May, reporting that you had been informed that Colonel Digby Willoughby, a British subject, had taken military service under the Hova Government with rank of Adjutant-General, and was in command of the Malagasy troops in front of Tamatave, and requesting to be furnished with instructions as to whether, supposing that information to be correct, you should take proceedings against him under the Foreign Enlistment Act.

In reply, I am to state that you have jurisdiction, under Her Majesty's Order in Council of the 4th February, 1869, to try a British subject for an offence against section 4 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and that you should warn Colonel Willoughby against committing a violation of that Act, and call on him to retire from the Malagasy military service while the war with France continues.

Should he disregard that communication, you are authorized to put the law in force against him by sending him to Mauritius for trial under section 4 of "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1843," and paragraph 22 and 23 of the Order in Council, provided you find it practicable to effect his apprehension, as directed by section 13, without conflict with the Malagasy authorities.

I am, &c.

---

No. 54.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 25, 1884.

Complaint of the Hova Government of an alleged breach of neutrality by the British authorities at Mauritius in assisting French ships.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to a complaint by the Hova Government of an alleged breach of neutrality on the part of Her Majesty's Government, by giving assistance to French ships in Mauritius during the existing hostilities between France and Madagascar.

That the complaints were—

1. That the French vessel "Tonarez," carrying cattle from the French Island of Nossi Bé to the French fleet at Tamatave, touched at Mauritius and was there supplied with water and food for the cattle. That the particulars in regard to that proceeding, together with the Acting Procureur-Général's opinion on it, were given in the accompanying Colonial Office letter of the 19th May, forwarding copies of correspondence between Governor Hennessy and the Consul for Madagascar in the Mauritius. That your Lordship's reply to the Colonial Office was also inclosed.

2. That the French man-of-war "Boursaint" had been allowed to be docked and repaired in Mauritius. That the particulars of that complaint would be found in the inclosed Colonial Office letter of the 28th October.

That the complaints of the Hova Government were formulated in a letter addressed to your Lordship by the Foreign Secretary. That the letter was inclosed in Mr. Graves' despatch No. 79 of the 2nd September.

That a copy of the Treaty with Madagascar was also inclosed,† as well as the

---

* Colonial Office, January 10; to ditto, January 26; Colonial Office, February 2; to ditto, February 9; Colonial Office, March 17; to ditto, April 7; Colonial Office, April 14; ditto, May 19; to ditto, June 28; Mr. Ashley, August 7; to Colonial Office, August 20; Colonial Office, September 4; ditto, October 28; Consul Graves, No. 79, September 2; Foreign Secretary, Madagascar, August 18, 1884.

† Treaty No. 494.

1884

Colonial Office letter of the 17th March, containing our Report of the 10th March, respecting the export of arms, and their letter of the 14th April, containing the instructions sent to the Governor of Mauritius on the subject.

Draft despatch to the Foreign Secretary of Madagascar.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was at the same time to forward a draft of a despatch which it was proposed to address to the Foreign Secretary of Madagascar in reply to his letter of the 18th August, and to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the draft met with our concurrence and approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

There was no breach of neutrality.

That, in our opinion, there was no breach of neutrality either (1) in supplying the French vessel "Tonarez" with water and food for the cattle on board, or (2) in allowing the French man-of-war "Boursaint" to be docked and repaired in Mauritius.

Approve draft despatch with certain alterations.

We concur with the draft of the despatch transmitted to us; but we would suggest that on p. 4 the word "even" should be inserted at the commencement of the second line before the words "of contraband of war," inasmuch as it would rather appear, in the present case, that there was not an export of contraband of war. We would also suggest an alteration in the last paragraph. We are under the impression that, owing to the peculiar circumstances of the case, strict neutrality has not been maintained in the usual way in the hostilities between France and China, though no doubt both Powers have enjoyed the advantage of these departures from the rigid enforcement of neutral duties. The sentence might conclude with the words, "to observe impartially an attitude of neutrality."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter to the Foreign Secretary, Madagascar.

Sir, Foreign Office, , 1884.

I BEG to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's letter of the 18th August, containing copies of the correspondence which has recently taken place between the Governor of the Mauritius and Her Malagasy Majesty's Consul in that island on the subject of an alleged breach of neutrality which is said to have occurred in the assistance rendered in Port Louis to the French ship of war "Boursaint" and to the French vessel "Tonarez."

In reply, I have the honour to state to your Excellency that Her Majesty's Government are most anxious to maintain neutrality during the existing hostilities, although no declaration of war has been issued on the side of either the French or Malagasy Governments.

The Proclamation by the Governor of Mauritius against export of arms was originally issued in supposed compliance with Article VI of the Treaty of 1865 between Great Britain and Madagascar. Her Majesty's Government afterwards considered that the Treaty did not render this imperative except at the request of the Hova Government, and as the prohibition might have proved injurious to Madagascar, it was withdrawn.

As regards the case of the "Tonarez," it is a well-established rule that the export even of contraband of war from a neutral country is no violation of neutrality, the penalty being capture on the high seas; while, with reference to the "Boursaint," it is equally clear that a neutral country may allow a belligerent vessel of war provisions necessary for the crew, and repairs, provided that no increase be made to her crew or warlike armament, and that her efficiency as a ship of war is not otherwise added to. To that extent only were repairs allowed to the "Boursaint."

Her Majesty's Government will, however, take precautions to pervent any breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act in Mauritius, and to observe impartially an attitude of neutrality.

I have, &c.

---

Mexico.

No. 55.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 22, 1884.

Renewal of diplomatic relations.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th (? 3rd) instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the question of the renewal of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and the Republic of Mexico.

That those papers mainly consisted of the Treaties, Conventions, and Agreements which had been concluded between this country and Mexico since the promulgation of the Mexican Constitution of 1824, and of Memoranda thereon.

That it would be seen that the subjects of those Treaties might be classified under three heads—1. Commerce; 2. Slave Trade; 3. British claims.

1. That in regard to the Treaty of Commerce, it was outside the scope of the present letter, and need not now be alluded to.

2. With respect to the Slave Trade, that Traffic being now entirely suppressed in Mexico, the Treaty of 1841 might be said to have lapsed.

3. That the Memorandum drawn up by Sir E. Hertslet on the 1st November, 1881, analyzes the nature of the various Conventions concluded between Great Britain and Mexico for the settlement of the British claims.

That with regard to those claims it should be borne in mind that it was in consequence of the arbitrary and vexatious conduct of the authorities of the Republic of Mexico towards British, French, and Spanish subjects that those Governments concluded a Convention on the 31st October, 1861, of which a copy was inclosed, in which they agreed to have recourse to combined operations against Mexico, with a view to demand from those authorities more efficacious protection for the persons and properties of their subjects, as well as a fulfilment of the obligations contracted towards those Governments by the Mexican Republic.

That in 1864 Maximilian was duly elected Emperor of Mexico, and duly recognized by this country.

That statements with regard to the British claims had from time to time been formally presented to the Mexican Government, and that that fact was recorded in the Convention of the 26th June, 1866, concluded with the Government of the Emperor Maximilian, by which it was also agreed that a Mixed Commission should be appointed for their investigation and settlement.

That that Commission sat in Mexico from August 1866 until March 1867, when its sittings were temporarily suspended.

But that in August of that year diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Mexico were suspended owing to the determination taken by the Republican Government of Mexico, which succeeded that of the Empire, no longer to recognize the Agents of any Power which had acknowledged the Emperor Maximilian. In recognizing, however, the Empire, Her Majesty's Government simply adhered to its traditional policy of recognizing what was represented to it at the time as being the de facto Government of Mexico.

That the object of the Convention of 1866 was to refer to a Mixed Commission all claims which had not been dealt with in previous Conventions, whilst it declared to be valid all such as had already been recognized by the two Governments.

That the nature of those claims was described in the Memoranda by Sir E. Hertslet of the 5th November, 1881, and the 9th March last, to the former of which was attached the text of the different Conventions which had been concluded for the settlement of the British claims.

That the Government of Her Britannic Majesty and that of the Republic of Mexico had long desired to see the present estrangement between the two countries removed by a renewal of the friendly relations formerly existing between them.

Mexican conditions—(1) abrogation of Treaties; (2) diplo-

That negotiations had been on foot for some time past with that object, but that the Mexican Government had hitherto insisted upon attaching two conditions to the matic abandonment of claims.

renewal of relations:—(1) that all existing Treaties between the two Governments should be considered as abrogated; and (2) that no claims which arose before the resumption of friendly relations should be made the subject of diplomatic representation or demand.

That, at the same time, the Government of the Republic did not repudiate their obligation in regard to those claims.

That negotiations had recently taken place between the two Governments, and Special Envoys had been appointed with a view to ascertain on what basis diplomatic relations should be re-established, and how far the difficulties raised on either side could best be removed.

Draft of "preliminary Agreement."

That accordingly a draft of a "preliminary arrangement" between Great Britain and Mexico had been prepared, of which a copy was transmitted therewith.

That our attention was called to the 1st Article, which provided that Mexico would proceed forthwith to the examination of international claims and debts without reference to the disputed Conventions, which, for the purpose of the Agreement, should be considered as abandoned.

That our opinion was requested as to whether, having regard to the importance to Imperial interests of a renewal of relations between the two countries, the abandonment of the Conventions in question by Her Majesty's Government would be justified, and could be effected without incurring any liability from British subjects claiming any interest thereunder.

That on that point we were referred to our Report of the 20th May, 1882, in which we expressed our concurrence in an instruction to Her Majesty's Consul at Smyrna, wherein it was laid down, in regard to the question of the Smyrna quays, that "the settlement of such questions is an act of State in which Her Majesty's Government, however anxious to secure full justice for the British subjects aggrieved, incur no obligation towards them individually, and must be guided not only by the particular facts of the case, but also by considerations of public policy and convenience."

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

British Government would not incur any liability by its abandonment of Claims' Conventions,

That we do not think that Her Majesty's Government would incur any legal liability to the persons whose claims are the subject of Conventions between the Mexican and British Governments, in case the latter Government should agree to the abrogation of such Conventions. It is to be observed that the claims of the individuals interested against the Mexican Government are not created by the Conventions.

All that the Conventions do is to create an obligation as between the two Governments for the payment in the prescribed manner.

And it is, we think, competent for the Governments concerned to put an end to this international agreement.

At the same time, it would be a strong exercise of authority, which would probably be much criticized, and which the Government would be bound to justify; and in certain circumstances such a measure might give rise to an overwhelming equitable claim that the debts which were the subject of the abrogated Conventions should be discharged by the State.

In the present case the circumstances are no doubt peculiar. The claims are of long standing, and one Convention has been substituted for another, as the Mexican Government have proved unable or unwilling to fulfil their obligations.

And so long as diplomatic relations remain unrenewed the British creditors of Mexico have no prospect of seeing the terms of the Convention carried out. Moreover, the Mexican Government does not appear to be so anxious to renew diplomatic relations that any conditions can well be imposed.

But would be bound to justify such action.

Under these circumstances, it may well be that the best thing that could be done in the interest even of the creditors would be to enter into such an arrangement as that proposed. We have pointed out the considerations which appear to us to govern the determination of the question, but it is hardly within our province to say whether the abandonment of the Conventions by Her Majesty's Government "would be justified."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

1. Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), November 1, 1881 (Confidential Print No. 4945, p. 12 B).
2. Convention between Her Majesty the Queen of Spain and the Emperor of the French relative to combined operations against Mexico of October 31, 1861 (State Papers, vol. li, p. 63).
3. Convention between Great Britain and Mexico, signed June 26, 1866 (Confidential Print No. 4945, p. 26; Treaty No. 496).
4. Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), November 5, 1881 (Confidential Print No. 4945, p. 14, and Confidential No. 4554).
5. Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), March 9, 1883 (Confidential Print No. 4945, p. 63, and Confidential No. 4765).
6. Draft of "Preliminary Arrangement" (Confidential Print No. 4945, p. 169).
7. Law Officers, May 20, 1882 (Confidential Print No. 4783, p. 91).

---

Netherlands.

No. 56.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 25, 1884.

Capture of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th instant, transmitting papers relative to the case of the crew of the British steamer "Nisero," who were detained by the Rajah of Tenom in Sumatra. That by Article IX of the Treaty between Great Britain and Holland of the 17th March, 1824, all the English possessions on the Island of Sumatra were ceded to Holland, and that it was agreed that no British Settlement should be formed on that island, nor any Treaty be concluded by British authority with any native Prince, Chief, or State therein. That, by a Treaty of the 2nd November, 1871, Great Britain engaged to desist from all objections against the extension of the Netherlands dominion in any part of Sumatra. (See documents C, D, and E).

That since the date of the last Treaty the Dutch had extended their dominion over the whole of the Island of Sumatra, but that they had of late years been engaged in warfare with the Rajah of Tenom (F).

That the Rajah had long resisted the dominion of Holland, and his port had been blockaded by the Dutch for four years before he submitted to them. That he then lived on good terms with them until about a year ago, when the Dutch, believing him to have instigated an attack by Acheenese against them, closed his port and burned his residence.

That it was affirmed that he was quite innocent of any complicity in the attack, and that he had been treated with great injustice.

That since then he had been hostile to the Dutch (Colonial Office letter, March 6th, 1884).

That on the 7th November last, during the blockade of the Rajah's port (which still continued), the British steamer "Nisero" was wrecked on the coast, and became a total loss.

That the crew, twenty-eight in number, were seized by the Rajah, and, with the exception of the master and two others, were still detained by him as captives, his avowed object being to extort from the Dutch, through the intervention of Her Majesty's Government, compensation for the losses inflicted on him by the Dutch, the reopening of his port, and a guarantee against further molestation.

That all efforts to obtain the liberation of the captives had failed, owing to the nature of the conditions imposed by the Rajah.

That the Dutch having attacked him and burned his residence, he retired inland, taking the prisoners with him.

That a British Mission was dispatched to him from Singapore, with the assent of the Dutch authorities, and that they had succeeded in reaching the spot to which the 1884

Rajah had retired, and in carrying on negotiations with him; but that Mission, which had now returned, was unsuccessful.

That the terms still insisted on by the Rajah were a payment of 40,000*l.*, the reopening of his port to trade, and the protection of Great Britain against the Dutch.

That, after referring us to the documents transmitted with his letter, Sir Julian Pauncefote stated that the Netherlands Minister had informed your Lordship that a new Governor-General of the Dutch East Indies was on his way out to Acheen, with instructions to make fresh efforts to effect the liberation of the captives by compelling the neighbouring States in the interior to take up arms against the Rajah, thus forcing him into submission, but that the success of such an operation seemed very problematical.

That your Lordship was therefore disposed to act upon Governor Weld's suggestion, and to offer mediation on the ground of the alleged misapprehension as to the Rajah's complicity in the attack against them, which had led to the renewal of hostilities, as well as on account of the deep anxiety which the fate of the captives had aroused in this country.

That your Lordship would also point to the great injury to commerce in general, and especially to the commerce of the neighbouring British possessions, which that prolonged interruption of trade was causing, contrary to the expectations which had been formed on the conclusion of the Treaty of 1871.

That, before proceeding further in the matter, your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our views on the case, particularly with reference to the precise responsibility and obligations of the Netherlands Government, if any, under international law, in relation to the detention and liberation of the prisoners, having regard to the fact that they claimed dominion over the territory of the Rajah, and treated him as a rebellious vassal.

That our opinion was requested as to whether, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government would have the right, without regard to the relations between the Dutch and the Rajah, to dispatch a military force against him to effect the forcible rescue of the prisoners, should such a course be deemed expedient and practicable.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Dutch are bound, if the territory is theirs, to restore their authority and release the prisoners.

That, assuming the territory where the sailors were taken prisoners and are now kept in captivity to be Dutch territory, we think that the Dutch are bound to take the necessary steps to restore their authority within that territory, and to liberate the captives.

Whether the Dutch Government are under obligation to make compensation is a question of more difficulty.

Difficult to make out case for compensation, but want more information on point.

According to the view which has been taken in former cases, we do not think they are liable to do so, unless the occurrence arose from neglect on their part to take due precautions to protect the lives and liberty of persons who were within their territory and entitled to their protection.

As the capture appears to have taken place at a time when some of their subjects were in rebellion against them, and to have been, in fact, an act of hostility against the Dutch Government, we think it would be difficult to make out a case for compensation.

But we have hardly sufficient knowledge as to the state of things immediately preceding the capture to express a definite opinion upon the point.

If Dutch are acting in good faith for release of prisoners, a British expedition cannot be sent without their assent.

It would seem, from the information before us, that the Rajah of Tenom and his subjects had, at one time, become subject to the Dutch, and had authority exercised over them, but that they had thrown off this authority at the time of the wreck. If this be so, and provided the Dutch Government are, in good faith, taking all such steps as appear to them to be most calculated to effect the release of the captives, whether by force or otherwise, we do not think Her Majesty's Government would be justified, without their assent, in dispatching a military force against the Rajah to effect the forcible release of the prisoners.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

1. (A.) Treaty between Great Britain and the Netherlands, March 17, 1824 (Treaty No. 206).
2. (B.) Convention between Great Britain and the Netherlands, November 2, 1871 (Treaty No. 534).
3. (C.) Memorandum by Mr. Anderson, January 5, 1874 (Confidential No. 2398).
4. (D.) Memorandum by Mr. Sanderson, February 1, 1869 (Confidential No. 2440).
5. (E.) Memorandum by Mr. E. Hertslet, March 26, 1874 (Confidential No. 2447).
6. (F.) Map No. 2 annexed to Parliamentary Paper, "Netherlands No. 1 (1882)" (No. 2515).
7. Colonial Office, March 6, 1884 (Confidential No. 5047, p. 42).
8. Ditto, March 13, 1884 (Confidential No. 5047, p. 60).
9. (G.) Memorandum, with Inclosure, by Sir F. Denys, February 2, 1884.
10. Colonial Office, March 27, 1884.

---

No. 57.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 4, 1884.

Capture of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice's letter of the 22nd ultimo, respecting the case of the crew of the British steamer "Nisero," which formed the subject of our Report of the 25th April.

Refusal of Dutch Government to accept offered mediation.

That upon receipt of that Report your Lordship addressed a semi-official communication to the Netherlands Minister, offering the mediation of Her Majesty's Government in the affairs of Acheen. That Count de Bylandt's reply was inclosed, and was to the effect that his Government were unable to accept that offer.

Proposed draft renewing offer of mediation.

But that Her Majesty's Government were not disposed to accept this refusal as final; and that the draft of an official note which it was proposed to address to the Netherlands Minister, renewing the offer of mediation, was inclosed, together with the papers transmitted to us in the Foreign Office letter of the 7th April.

That Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice was to refer us especially to the final Reports of Mr. Maxwell, at pp. 89 and 100 of the Print, and to the Treaties between Great Britain and the Netherlands of 1824 and 1871, and to the printed Memorandum thereon.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether we concurred in the terms of the draft note, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote dated the 29th ultimo, inclosing a draft to Count de Bylandt, which it was requested might be substituted for the one previously submitted for our consideration.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed draft to Count de Bylandt.

That, in our opinion, the proposed draft despatch is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers submitted to Law Officers in Foreign Office Letter of May 22, 1884.

List No. 1.—1. Correspondence respecting the case of the "Nisero," printed for the confidential use of the Foreign Office, Confidential No. 5047.
2. Draft to Count de Bylandt, May , 1884.
3. Sir F. Weld, May 14, 1884.
4. Colonial Office, January 8, 1884 (Commercial Department paper).
List No. 2.—Papers sent to Law Officers on April 7, 1884.
See list annexed to Report of April 25, 1884.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter from Earl Granville to Count de Bylandt.

M. le Ministre, Foreign Office, May , 1884.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, in which you inform me that your Government decline to entertain the friendly proposal of mediation in the affairs at Acheen which was conveyed in my communication to you of the 29th ultimo.

1884

Her Majesty's Government have received this announcement with great regret, and they are unable to appreciate the reasons given for rejecting an offer calculated to terminate in an honourable and friendly manner the long-pending hostilities in that country, and the embarrassments which have arisen thereout and have culminated in the unhappy incident of the "Nisero."

The facts of that case are placed in the clearest light by the Reports of the British officers who took part in the recent Mission to Tenom.

Those Reports and other papers on the subject have just been laid before Parliament, and, according to the promise contained in my previous communication, I now have the honour to transmit to you a copy of them.

A perusal of the Blue Book must satisfy any impartial reader that the surmise expressed in your letter under reply, that the wreck of the "Nisero" was not attributable to accident, but to some criminal design, is totally without foundation; and the papers conclusively show that the motive of the Rajah of Tenom in detaining the crew was not to obtain payment of a debt from Khoo Tian Poh, the Penang trader, with whom he has always been on good terms, but the hope of obtaining relief, through the good offices of Her Majesty's Government, from the closing of his ports to commerce by the Dutch authorities.

I would particularly refer you, M. le Ministre, to the concluding Report of Mr. Maxwell, at p. 86 of the Parliamentary Papers,* which gives a clear, concise, and, as I believe, an accurate history of the whole case.

The detention of the crew of the "Nisero" has not only created the most painful anxiety in this country, but their prolonged captivity is producing a growing agitation which Her Majesty's Government cannot but view in a very serious light, as calculated to impair the friendly relations between the two countries. It is felt—not without reason—that the sovereignty claimed by the Netherlands Government over the territory in which these British subjects are detained carries with it obligations as well as rights, and among them the obligation that they should not permit the continued imprisonment of innocent persons, the subjects of a friendly Power. Unfortunately, all the endeavours of the Netherlands Government to fulfil that obligation since the date of the occurrence in November last have entirely failed.

Moreover, the steps they are taking cannot be said to hold out a reasonable prospect of obtaining the desired result at an early date; whereas Her Majesty's Government have good grounds for believing that their friendly intervention would probably be successful.

In these circumstances Her Majesty's Government feel that they have a right to urge the acceptance of their mediation on the Netherlands Government, and they believe that if it were agreed to abandon the commercial restrictions imposed at the Acheenese ports, the release of the captives could be effected.

Her Majesty's Government have had the advantage of personal communication with Sir Frederick Weld, the Governor of the Straits Settlements, who has recently arrived in England from that Colony, and he entirely confirms the statements of the other British officials as to the character of the war which has now desolated Acheen for thirteen years, and as to the hopelessness of any return to peace unless the Netherlands authorities are prepared to abandon the restrictions which they have imposed on the freedom of commercial communication on the coast by confining the general trade to particular ports, and by requiring the coasting trade to be carried on in vessels of very small tonnage.

That policy, M. le Ministre, is a departure from the spirit of the Treaty of 1824 between Great Britain and the Netherlands, and of the notes appended thereto, if not a violation of one of the most important stipulations of that Treaty, in consideration of which Great Britain consented to waive the rights and advantages which she possessed under her Treaty with Acheen of the 22nd April, 1819. The stipulation to which I refer is contained in Article IV, and under it the Netherlands Government engaged to respect the freedom of trade, and "in no way to impede a free communication of the natives of the Eastern Archipelago with the ports of the two Governments respectively, or of the subjects of the two Governments with the ports belonging to native Powers."

The objection put forward, as I understand, by the Netherlands authorities to carrying out this engagement in Acheen is the fear of arms and ammunition being smuggled into the country. But that objection is hardly an answer to the complaints of the British traders. Moreover, I would point out that sufficient precautions might be taken to guard against the danger apprehended, and that the authorities of the British possessions in those seas have hitherto co-operated in the most friendly manner with the Netherlands authorities to avert it, by prohibiting the export of munitions of war, notwithstanding the great injury inflicted on them by the restrictive measures complained of.

---

* "Netherlands No. 1 (1884)," No. 2843.

In the British note appended to the Treaty of 1824 the British Plenipotentiaries, after adverting to the fact that the Treaty was in some respects incompatible with the previous Treaty of 1819 between Great Britain and the King of Acheen (which it was intended to modify), expressed their confidence that "no measures hostile to the King of Acheen would be adopted;" and when Her Majesty's Government, by the Treaty of 1871, withdrew their objection to "the extension of the Netherlands dominion in any part of the Island of Sumatra," they little anticipated that the result would be the breaking out of hostilities between the Netherlands Government and the Acheenese, which have never ceased up to the present day.

Her Majesty's Government do not wish to enter into the causes of those hostilities, nor do they dispute the strict right of the Netherlands Government to make war on the Ruler of Acheen; but looking at the provisions and objects of the Treaties above referred to, at the prolonged captivity of British subjects in Tenom, and at the detriment caused to British interests by the existing state of affairs in Acheen, they consider that they are fully justified in giving expression to the feelings which these events have aroused in this country, and in offering their mediation for the restoration of peace and the re-establishment of trade on a basis of commercial freedom more consistent with the spirit and intention of the general settlement effected by the Treaty of 1824.

In the concluding part of his Report Mr. Maxwell observes that the difficulties between the Chief of Tenom and the Netherlands authorities, and the detention of the crew of the "Nisero," are but incidents in a contest in which the whole of the north of Sumatra has for years been engaged, and that it would be quite possible for the British Government to open negotiations with the titular Sultan of Acheen and his advisers at Kemala, and with the leaders of the war party in other parts of Acheen, with a view to arranging terms of peace.

Her Majesty's Government are prepared to send a Mission to Kemala with that object, if the Netherlands Government will undertake to restore the freedom of trade, which at all events would, in the opinion of the British officials, secure the liberation of the crew of the "Nisero."

I have to request, M. le Ministre, that you will be good enough to submit the foregoing observations to your Government, and to convey to them the earnest hope of Her Majesty's Government that they will see their way to respond to the friendly proposals which are reiterated therein for the pacific and honourable solution of their differences with the Acheenese, and the cessation of the injurious consequences which have resulted therefrom to this country.

I have, &c.

---

No. 58.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 6, 1884.

Capture of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was to transmit the papers* relating to the case of the "Nisero," which was the subject of our Report of the 25th April last.

That our attention was specially directed to the letters from the Foreign Office to the Treasury of the 18th and 30th July last (Print, pp. 215 and 237), and to the Treasury replies of the 23rd July and 6th August (Print, pp. 224 and 249), in which we should observe that the Lords Commissioners were of opinion that a sum of 300*l.*, contributed by them to the Mansion House Fund for the relief of the relatives of the captive crew of the "Nisero," should be recovered from the Netherlands Government.

That we were also referred to our Report of the 25th April (Print, p. 108), in which we expressed the opinion that the responsibility of the Netherlands Government was governed by the consideration whether or not the seizure and the detention

---

* Correspondence "Nisero" 1883-84, Confidential No. 5047; Mr. Thomson, received November 15; to ditto, November 21, 1884.

1884

of the crew arose from neglect on their part to take due precaution to protect the lives and liberty of persons who were within their territory and entitled to their protection.

That it appeared to your Lordship that the question raised by the Treasury with regard to the contribution of 300*l.* to the Mansion House Fund was equally applicable to the general expenditure incurred by Her Majesty's Government in supplying the captives with provisions, in carrying on the negotiations for their deliverance, and in providing for their final reparation.

That in applying the test laid down in our Report of the 7th April, your Lordship, as at present advised, failed to perceive on what grounds a charge could be sustained against the Netherlands Government of any neglect on their part to take due precautions for the safety of the crew of the "Nisero," or to use all the means in their power to effect their rescue.

That at the time when the "Nisero" was wrecked on the coast of Tenom the Rajah was in rebellion against the Dutch authorities.

The wreck of the vessel, for which the latter could not be held responsible, had the effect of throwing the crew into the hands of their enemy, and owing to the tactics of the Rajah in withdrawing inland with his captives immediately upon the commencement of hostilities, their forcible rescue was rendered impracticable without resorting to an expedition on a large scale, such as was subsequently contemplated by the British and Dutch Governments.

Indeed, in the opinion of many persons acquainted with the country, any attempt at a forcible rescue would have resulted in the massacre of the captives.

That the early history of the case was stated in the reference on which our Report of the 7th April was based (Print, p. 69).

That the measures taken by the Netherlands Government on hearing of the wreck and captivity of the crew were detailed in Consul Kennedy's No. 8 of the 19th January, and in the "historial statement" read in the Second Chamber by the Dutch Minister for the Colonies.

That we were referred to an important Memorandum by Mr. Maxwell, explanatory of the political situation in Acheen (Print, p. 100).

That it would appear from those documents that the Netherlands Government had been ready from the first to adopt any measures likely to effect the liberation of the captives, whether by naval or military operations, or by ransom.

That ultimately joint action was agreed upon by the two Governments, which happily resulted in the surrender of the captives on payment of a sum of 100,000 rupees by the Netherlands Government, and of a further sum of 10,000 dollars as a present to Tuku Yit, the Rajah's negotiator, as explained by Mr. Maxwell in his final Report of the 14th September (Print, pp. 348, 361).

That your Lordship proposed to ask the Netherlands Government whether they will repay the 10,000 dollars present to Tuku Yit under the circumstances reported by Mr. Maxwell, but that before making any other pecuniary claim on them, your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion on the question raised by the Treasury, whether Her Majesty's Government would, under all the circumstances of the case, be justified, consistently with international law, in claiming from the Netherlands Government the reimbursement of all or any of the expenses incurred by them on account of the captives and of their rescue, including the 300*l.* contributed by them to the Mansion House Fund for the relief of the relatives of the crew.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government cannot claim from Dutch Government the 300*l.* contributed to the Mansion House Fund.

That we do not think Her Majesty's Government are entitled, consistently with international law, to claim from the Netherlands Government the 300*l.* contributed by them to the fund for the relief of the crew.

Our reasons for this view are to be found in our Report of the 25th April, 1884. The fuller information now before us does not, in our opinion, establish that the captivity of the crew arose from neglect on the part of the Dutch authorities of the duties incumbent upon them.

Dutch Government may be asked to pay expenses incurred by Her Majesty's Government in rescuing captives.

Whether a claim for the expenses incurred by Her Majesty's Government on account of the rescue of the captives can in strictness be maintained may be doubtful, but it appears to us that representations might be made to the Dutch Government that these expenses ought, as a matter of right, to be borne by them.

The Dutch Government were, we think, bound under an international obligation to take all reasonable measures to reassert their authority, and release the captives.

Now there can be little doubt that, but for the co-operation of Her Majesty's Government and the expenses incurred by them, the task of the Dutch Government would have been more prolonged, difficult, and expensive.

It would seem only fair, therefore, that they should recoup to Her Majesty's Government the expenses to which they have been put to, which have diminished the xependiture which the Dutch Government must otherwise have incurred in the performance of their international duties.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 59.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 30, 1884.

Detention of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom. Claim of W. Bradley for compensation

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 20th instant, transmitting to us a Memorial* addressed to your Lordship by William Bradley, late Third Engineer on board the "Nisero," praying for compensation on account of the sufferings and losses entailed upon him in consequence of his detention by the Rajah of Tenom as one of the crew of the "Nisero."

Other similar applications received.

That that Memorial was one of several which had been addressed to the Foreign Office, and that our opinion was requested as to the reply which should be returned to that and similar applications.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

He has no claim on Her Majesty's Government.

That, in our opinion, the petitioner has no legal or valid claim to compensation by Her Majesty's Government.

Owing to an error of navigation, he was shipwrecked on the coast of Acheen, and there imprisoned and kept in confinement by an uncivilized Chief.

His imprisonment did not, either in its inception or continuance, result from any act or default of Her Majesty's Government.

He should be informed he has no valid claim.

We therefore suggest that the petitioner should be informed that Her Majesty's Government, whilst deeply regretting the loss and injury to which he has been subjected, are not in a position to make him any compensation in respect of them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Pacific Islands.

No. 60.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 9, 1884.

Responsibility of Government for acts of Ministers.

Grant to Mr Flowerden of Tramway concession.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch† respecting the claim of Mr. Flowerden on the Government of Hawaii. That Mr. Flowerden, a British subject, had obtained a Concession to lay down tramways in Honolulu from the Hawaiian Minister of the Interior, within whose competence the Minister for Foreign Affairs stated the matter to lie.

---

* In Messrs. Bell, Broderick, and Gray's letter of December 18, 1884.

† Major Wodehouse, No. 18, Commercial, November 15, 1883.

1884

That Mr. Flowerden thereupon went to San Francisco, and incurred considerable expense in purchasing plant and securing the services of an engineer.

That, meanwhile, a change of Ministry occurred, and when Mr. Flowerden came back he was informed by Mr. Guleck, the new Minister, that by a Hawaiian Law the power of a Minister in any proposed work of public improvement depended on the consent of the King in Privy Council, and that his scheme must be so submitted. To that Mr. Flowerden made no objection.

That the matter was not, however, brought before the Privy Council, and that Mr. Flowerden announced his intention of commencing work on the strength of the authority granted by the ex-Minister.

That thereupon Mr. Guleck applied for and obtained an injunction from the Supreme Court restraining Mr. Flowerden from proceeding.

That Mr. Flowerden, on the advice of Her Majesty's Consul-General, filed an answer to the injunction, but that the suit was decided in favour of the Government, and the injunction was made perpetual.

That, under those circumstances, your Lordship proposed to address to Her Majesty's Consul-General in Hawaii an instruction, draft of which was inclosed, but that your Lordship before doing so would be glad to be favoured with an expression of our opinion on it, and that in case it did not meet with our approval with our advice as to the alterations which should be made in it.

That a copy of the Law Officers' Report in 1878* on the case of the "Jane Francis" was inclosed, which had some bearing on the present case.

Approve proposed instructions to Major Wodehouse.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, we have the honour to report that we approve of the proposed instruction, the draft of which is inclosed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Major Wodehouse.

(No. Commercial.)
Foreign Office, January , 1884.

Sir,

Grant of concession by Minister was ultra vires.

I AM directed by Earl Granville to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch No. 18, Commercial, of the 15th November, forwarding correspondence respecting Mr. Flowerden's claim on the Hawaiian Government. In reply, I am to state that, as at present advised, his Lordship is of opinion that the grant of the Tramway Concession having been pronounced by the Supreme Court to be ultra vires on the part of the Minister of the Interior, that decision must, until reversed, be taken as the law; and that that being so, the Government is not legally responsible, the act of the Minister of the Interior having been in excess of his authority, and not within the scope of his functions as an agent of the Government. Nevertheless, Mr. Flowerden's case is a hard one, and although he may have a personal remedy in an action for damages against the Minister, I am to instruct you to express to the Hawaiian Government the hope of Her Majesty's Government, that they will be disposed to take an equitable view of the case, without prejudice to their legal rights in the matter, and award of their own accord to Mr. Flowerden such reasonable indemnity as the nature of the case may warrant.

Government not legally responsible.

To apply for indemnity.

I am, &c.

---

No. 61.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 11.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, September 11, 1884.

Case of the "Madras."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers† relative to the case of the "Madras" at Honolulu. That the circumstances under which that vessel arrived at that port with small-pox on board, and applied to be admitted to quarantine, but was not so admitted till after a delay of sixty-two days had elapsed, would be found set forth in the Judgment* delivered in a suit connected with the case by the Supreme Court of Hawaii.

Delay in admission of vessel to quarantine.

That the owners of the "Madras" had preferred a claim against the Hawaiian Government on account of the loss incurred through the ship not having been at once admitted to quarantine. That the statement of the claim was Inclosure No. 10 in Major Wodehouse's No. 2 A, Commercial, of the 15th April, 1884.

That it appeared from an opinion on the case by Mr. Preston,† who was counsel to the ship's agents, and had several times been Attorney-General of Hawaii, that, although the owners of the "Madras" had a good cause of action against the Hawaiian Government, they could not prosecute it with any chance of success owing to the absence of the material witnesses in the case, and that he "considers that in fact they have no remedy in the Courts."

Failure to obtain legal remedy.

That Major Wodehouse reports that, in view of the attitude assumed by the Hawaiian Government in regard to that claim, it would be useless for him to continue his endeavours to obtain compensation for the owners or to attempt a reference of the matter to arbitration.

That Mr. Lister was to draw our attention to the instructions sent to Consul-General Wodehouse in the Foreign Office despatch, and to his despatch in reply thereto, and to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion, whether those instructions were right and proper under the circumstances and should still be adhered to, and, if not, what further instructions should be sent to the Consul-General in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve instructions to Consul General.

That we are of opinion that the instructions sent to Consul-General Wodehouse on the 31st May were right and proper, under the circumstances.

It now appears from Mr. Preston's opinion that, even if a cause of action at law exists against the Hawaiian Government, no remedy can be obtained by the owners of the "Madras" by means of an action, in consequence of the absence of the necessary witnesses.

Should make strong representations to Hawaiian Government.

Under these circumstances, we think that your Lordship may well consider the propriety of making strong diplomatic representations to the Hawaiian Government in support of the claim of the owners of the vessel, especially as that claim is founded upon conduct by the Hawaiian Government which, if persisted in, might prove most injurious to the interests of British ship-owners generally.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Persia.

No. 62.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane.

Foreign Office, November 24, 1884

Gentlemen,

Herapit and Aratoon bankruptcy case.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Secretary of State, the papers noted in the margin,‡ which relate to the bankruptcy of the Persian firm of Herapit and Aratoon, merchants of Tehran.

---

* Law Officers, June 25, 1878, Confidential No. 4280, p. 79.

† List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, August 25, 1884, about "Madras:—"
Mr. Chapman, August 23; Major Wodehouse, No. 17, Commercial, November 1, 1883; ditto, No. 1, Commercial, February 1; ditto, No. 2 A, Commercial, April 15; Board of Trade, May 23; to Major Wodehouse, No. 4, Commercial, May 31; Major Wodehouse, No. 4, Commercial, July 15, 1884.

* Inclosure No. 1 in Major Wodehouse's No. 17 of 1883.

† Inclosure No. 2 in Major Wodehouse's No. 4, Commercial, of 1884.

‡ Sir R. Thomson, No. 5, Consular; Memorandum thereon by Sir E. Hertslet, October 15; Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co., November 3, 1884.

1884

In his despatch No. 5, Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran states that as the bankrupts had large dealings with foreign houses of English, French, Russian, and Dutch nationality, "it was decided, in accordance with treaty rights, that the settlement of its affairs should be intrusted to a Mixed Commission consisting of a Persian President, a member of each of the Legations interested, and the Dutch Consul-General."

The only Treaty stipulation which can be found on the subject in the archives of the Foreign Office is the Arrangement of 1844, referred to in Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum of the 15th October. But that Arrangement does not appear to touch the present case.

Although the Queen by Treaty enjoys ex-territorial jurisdiction in Persia, no Order in Council has been issued to regulate such jurisdiction, and claims of British subjects are settled by arrangement through the British Legation and Consulates. In the present case, the liquidation of the bankruptcy, as before stated, has by general agreement been intrusted to a Mixed Commission, and liquidators have been appointed.

Dispute as to liquidation.

A complicated case has arisen in connection with the liquidation involving important questions of law, and Sir R. Thomson requests that the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown may be taken thereon. The dispute is between the liquidators of the bankrupt firm, Messrs. Malcolm and Co., of Bushire (a British protected firm), and Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co., of London. Malcolm and Co. at the date of the bankruptcy (9th October, 1882) held a consignment of tobacco for sale on account of the bankrupts. The tobacco was sold through D. Sassoon and Co., who detain the proceeds under a claim of lien for a general balance. In consequence of this claim Malcolm and Co. demand the return of a sum of about 800*l*. paid by them to the liquidators, under a written guarantee. The facts of the case and the various points at issue are somewhat complicated, and it does not appear that all the parties are agreed as to the facts.

Demand of Malcolm and Co. for return of 800*l*. paid to liquidators.

The case on behalf of the liquidators is stated in Sir R. Thomson's despatch and its inclosures, and that of Messrs. Sassoon and Co. is stated in their letter of the 3rd November instant, and in the declaration of Mr. T. J. Malcolm inclosed therein.

I am to request that you will be good enough to inform Earl Granville whether those documents are sufficient to enable you to advise on the points of law raised by Sir R. Thomson on behalf of the liquidators, or whether you consider it necessary that all parties should agree to a statement of the facts.

Should the latter course appear to you unnecessary I am to request that you will take the papers transmitted herewith into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Granville with your opinion on the questions submitted in Sir R. Thomson's despatch.

I have, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

[After recapitulating the foregoing Reference the Law Officers and Dr. Deane report as follows:—]

Information not sufficient for clear opinion.

That it is impossible with the information before us to express any clear opinion upon the case.

The facts stated in the letter of Messrs. Sassoon and Co. convey a somewhat different view from that which is suggested in the Memoranda and letters forwarded by Sir R. Thomson.

Messrs. Sassoon and Co. state that the tobacco was forwarded to Messrs. Malcolm and Co. by Herapit and Aratoon with instructions that part of the parcel was to cover their account with Messrs. Malcolm and Co., and the remainder of the parcel was to be sent on to the consignment of Messrs. Sassoon as cover against their account. And this statement is supported by the declaration of Mr. T. J. Malcolm. We have only one of the letters written by Malcolm and Co. before us, and, though not perhaps inconsistent with the declaration now made, it does not specifically set up the case disclosed by the declaration. Probably some of the letters sent by Herapit and Aratoon to Malcolm and Co., or some of the letters of Malcolm and Co. would show clearly the nature of the transaction.

Observations as to right to goods disposed of before and after the bankruptcy by Malcolm and Co.

No doubt, if the tobacco was sent to Malcolm and Co. to cover their account, and was received by them before the bankruptcy, they were fully entitled to hold it. And if other portion of it was shipped by Malcolm and Co. by the direction of Herapit and Aratoon, consigned to Sassoon and Co., for the purpose of covering their account, and the shipment took place so that the goods or documents of title to them were in the hands of Sassoon and Co., or their agents, prior to the bankruptcy, the claim of Sassoon and Co. to hold the proceeds would be beyond question.

As to the 100 bags, which were in the hands of Malcolm and Co. at the time of the bankruptcy, and which they afterwards shipped to Sassoon and Co., the case seems entirely different; though the intention may have been to ship them as cover for the debt due to Sassoon and Co., they were held, as it appears to us, by Malcolm and Co. as agents for Herapit and Aratoon, at all events down to the time of shipment; and, accordingly, upon their bankruptcy would be held for the liquidators; and we do not think that, by subsequent dealing with the goods, they could give Sassoon and Co. a good title as against the liquidators. We suggest that a copy of the letter of Sassoon and Co., and the inclosed declaration should be transmitted to Sir R. Thomson with the above observations.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

December 12, 1884.

---

No. 63.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane.

Gentlemen, Foreign Office, December 19, 1884.

Herapit and Aratoon bankruptcy.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Secretary of State, the papers noted in the margin,* which relate to the bankruptcy of the Persian firm of Herapit and Aratoon, merchants of Tehran.

Lord Granville will, in accordance with the last paragraph of your Report of the 12th instant, which is herewith returned to you for convenience of reference, transmit to Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran copy of Messrs. Sassoon and Co.'s letter together with your observations on the case. But before doing so his Lordship would be glad to be favoured with your opinion or observations on the second inquiry put forward by Sir R. Thomson, respecting the claim of Malcolm and Co. to the repayment of the 800*l*. given up by them to the liquidator under the letter of guarantee.

Claim of Malcolm and Co. for repayment of 800*l*. given to the liquidator.

I have, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

[After recapitulating the foregoing References the Law Officers and Dr. Deane report as follows:—]

Further information necessary.

That the 800*l*. received from Malcolm and Co. appear to have been paid by them in the belief that they had been credited with that sum in account by Sassoon and Co., as the proceeds of tobacco, whereas it now turns out that this firm claim to hold the tobacco and its proceeds against their own debt. If this claim of Sassoon and Co. be well founded it seems only right that the money should be returned. Upon this point and upon the position of Malcolm and Co. and Sassoon and Co., in relation to the tobacco, we are unable, as stated in our former Report, to advise without further information. And we understand that the question now submitted to us was inferentially answered in that Report.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

December 30, 1884.

---

* Sir R. Thomson, No. 5, Consular; Memorandum thereon by Sir E. Hertslet, October 15; Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co., November 3; to Law Officers, November 24; Law Officers, December 12, 1884.

1884

Peru.

No. 64.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 2.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 2, 1884.

My Lord,

Peruvian Nitrate Certificate Holders.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the following papers, consisting of:—

(A.) Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru.

(B.) Letter from the Secretary of the Committee of English Holders of Nitrate Certificates issued by the Government of Peru.

(C.) Despatch of Mr. St. John of the 12th November, 1883, with observations on Memorial.

That we should observe the memorialists applied for the intervention of Her Majesty's Government to secure the rights of the certificate-holders, which they alleged had been sacrificed by the Chilean Government in violation of the rules of international law under which a State acquiring new territory by cession or conquest was under the obligation of respecting the rights of private property, and of assuming the responsibility for the public debts charged on such territory.

That the Memorial contained an elaborate statement of facts and arguments presented by the Italian certificate-holders to the Government of Chile, the reply of the Government to that statement, and a rejoinder by the Italian certificate-holders. That at p. 64 we should find a Circular of the Chilean Government, in which it was declared that the rights which might be alleged with respect to the territory in question would be decided in accordance with the rules of international law.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion, whether the facts stated by the memorialists were sufficient to justify the intervention of Her Majesty's Government in their behalf.

Proposed intervention in favour of.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that Her Majesty's Government were much pressed by the Governments of France, Italy, and Spain to join with them in such intervention, and that, as the Peruvian Congress would assemble on the 1st March next for the ratification of the Treaty of Peace, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our Report at our earliest convenience.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the case of the Nitrate certificate-holders appears to stand in much the same position as that of the bondholders.

Opinion in Report of same date as to Peruvian bondholders applies to present case.

We beg therefore to refer to our Report on the reference of the 22nd January with regard to the bondholders,* and to request that it may be considered as repeated upon this reference.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru of October 22, 1883; Inclosure in Mr. A. St. John's No. 131, Confidential, of November 25, 1883, Confidential No. 5070, p. 2.

(B.) Letter from Mr. Marras, Secretary of the Committee of English Holders of Nitrate Certificates of June 28, 1883, Confidential No. 4936.

(C) Sir S. St. John, November 12, 1883.

---

* See No. 65.

No. 65.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 2, 1884.

Claims of Peruvian bondholders.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the following papers, consisting of:—

(A.) Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru, with Protocol annexed.

(B.) Memorial of Mr. Guedalla, 13th December, 1883.

(C.) Letter of Sir H. Tyler, transmitting:—

1. Resolution of General Meeting of Peruvian Bondholders.
2. Decree of Chilean Government, dated 9th February, 1882.
3. Protocols of Peace between Chile and Peru, May 12, 1883.
4. Memorial of Peruvian Bondholders.

(D.) Circular of Chilean Government of 2nd December, 1880.

(E.) Mr. St. John's No. 83 of 3rd September, 1883.

Proposed intervention in regard to cession of hypothecated territory.

That we should observe that the object of the Memorials was to obtain the intervention of Her Majesty's Government to secure the recognition and maintenance of the rights and claims of the Peruvian bondholders before the Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru was ratified, especially with regard to any territory or other property the subject of hypothecation to the bondholders that might be ceded to Chile.

That the facts of the case and the arguments in support of those Memorials were fully and clearly stated in the above papers, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was only to add that, though it was contrary to the practice of Her Majesty's Government to intervene officially in favour of creditors of foreign States, the present case appeared to raise a question of international right in regard to the obligation of a State acquiring new territory by conquest or cession to respect the private rights of property therein, and to assume the obligation of discharging the public debts charged on such territory.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the grounds stated in the Memorials were sufficient to justify the intervention of Her Majesty's Government for the purpose indicated.

That the Peruvian Congress would assemble on the 1st March next for the ratification of the Treaty of Peace, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was therefore to request our opinion at our earliest convenience.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No settled rule as to division of debt on cession of territory.

That although it would be more equitable that when a part of the territory of one State is acquired by another by conquest, a part of the debt of the conquered country, if any exist, proportionate to the territory so acquired, should be taken over with it; yet there cannot be said to be any absolutely settled rule of international law to that effect. An equitable apportionment of the debt has been frequently, but not invariably, provided for in Treaties of Peace. If, therefore, there were no special circumstances in the present case, it might be doubted whether there was ground for intervention on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

In present case intervention justified.

The circumstances which exist in the present case are, however, certainly peculiar. There can be no doubt that the money was lent by the bondholders, in reliance mainly on the security of the valuable guano deposits belonging to the Peruvian Government. And, as one of the most important of these deposits is included in the territory to be ceded, we think there is an equitable claim on the part of the bondholders of a special character, which may justly be strongly urged upon the consideration of the Governments.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru of October 22, 1883; and Protocol, signed at Lima, October 20, 1883; Inclosures in Mr. A. St. John's No. 131, Confidential, of November 25, 1883, Confidential No. 5070, p. 3.

(B.) Memorial from Mr. H. Guedalla of December 13, 1883.

(C.) Sir H. Tyler, January 10, 1884, Confidential No. 5046, p. 76.

(D) Circular of Chilean Government of December 2, 1880.

(E.) Mr. A. St. John's No. 83 of September 3, 1883, Confidential No. 5046, p. 66.

1884

No. 66.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Claims of foreign creditors of Peru.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 28th August last, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the claims of the foreign creditors of Peru.

That we were referred to two Reports of the 2nd February and accompanying papers for the general facts of the case up to that date.

Appropriation by Chile of Peruvian guano secured to bondholders.

That in response to a proposal made to them by the French Government, through their Ambassador at this Court, Her Majesty's Government informed his Excellency that instructions would be sent to the British Representatives at Lima and Santiago to unite with those of France, and of any other Power interested in the matter, in addressing a representation to the Chilean and Peruvian Governments respectively, with a view to obtain an equitable settlement of the question before the ratification of the Treaty (Print, p. 97, No. 84).

That identic notes with that object were accordingly presented to both Governments by the Representatives of France and Great Britain (pp. 102, 126—173).

That similar action was also taken by the Representatives of some of the other foreign Powers.

That the German Government, which had been invited to join in the action of the British and French Governments, while concurring in principle declined to join, on the grounds stated in Count Hatzfeldt's letter to Lord Ampthill (p. 113).

That in a note, dated the 8th April last, M. Waddington stated that the Peruvian Government refused to recognize the right of foreign Governments to intervene in the matter, and suggested whether, in the case of an unsatisfactory reply from the Government of Chile, it would not be advisable to protect the rights of the holders of the securities in question, by forcibly preventing the exportation of the guano and mineral products of Peru, which Chile proposed to appropriate without regard to the charges to which they were subject (pp. 124, 125, No. 138).

That your Lordship's answer to that communication, dated the 17th April last (p. 128), explained the object and meaning of the joint protest addressed to the Chilean and Peruvian Governments, as understood by Her Majesty's Government, and declined the French proposal.

That the reply of the Chilean Government to the identic note had been received (Mr. Pakenham's No. 40 of the 20th June).

Chile insists that bondholders' remedy is in Chilean Courts, &c.

That the Chilean Government demurred to the terms of the protest and to the rights claimed by the bondholders as incumbrancers, and insisted that their remedy was in the Chilean Courts, and that they expressed their willingness to enter into an equitable understanding with the creditors of Peru.

That a similar reply had been addressed to the Governments of France, Belgium, Italy, and the Netherlands.

That Mr. Currie referred us to the note of the Italian Ambassador at this Court of the 2nd July, 1884, in which he communicated the views of his Government on the Chilean reply.

That the Italian Government held that the competence of the ordinary Tribunals of the country, to which the Chilean Government had intimated their readiness to submit the claims in case of dispute, could not be recognized in questions involving the illegality or legality, from an international point of view, of the legislative or belligerent acts of the Chilean Government.

That the position hitherto taken up by Her Majesty's Government was apparently supported by the German Government in Count Hatzfeldt's letter above alluded to, and that as regarded the terms of hypothecation of the public domain and revenues of Peru, on which the bondholders rely, Mr. Currie referred us to the Memorandum by Mr. Jervoise (p. 25), and to the Memorial addressed to the Foreign Office by Sir Henry Tyler, the President of the Committee of Peruvian Bondholders (p. 76), in which extracts were given from the general bonds, securing the issues of 1870 and 1872, and from the Decree of the Chilean Government of the 9th February, 1882, providing for the sale and realization of 1,000,000 tons of guano to be taken from Peruvian territory.

That by certain Articles of the Treaty of Peace the Province of Tarapacá was ceded absolutely to Chile, and the provinces of Tacna and Arica for a period of ten years certain, with provisions as to the disposal of the guano and nitrate deposits in the ceded territory.

That our opinion was requested on the Chilean reply to the identic note, and on the views of the Italian Government in regard to it, as contained in Count Nigra's note of the 2nd July last.

That your Lordship would be glad also to be favoured with our opinion as to the substance of the rejoinder which should be returned to the Chilean reply.

We have also the honour to acknowledge a further letter from the Foreign Office on this subject, dated the 25th September last, in which Mr. Lister transmits further papers* for our consideration with those previously transmitted.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government, without conceding soundness of Chilean arguments, may accept promise to consider the position of the creditors.

That, in view of the object and meaning of the joint protest pointed out by your Lordship in your Lordship's despatch of the 17th April, 1884, we do not think it is necessary to examine critically all the propositions put forward in the reply of the Chilean Minister for Foreign Affairs, inasmuch as in the concluding paragraph the Chilean Government declare that they will not refuse to enter into an equitable understanding with the creditors of Peru, who may have rights that merit consideration, and which have originated in acts and contracts legally established. And this declaration is in addition to an admission that if there be creditors who have the rights of mortgagees in respect of the property ceded to Chile, they are still entitled to enforce those rights.

We think that, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government, in reply to the note of the Chilean Minister, may, whilst not conceding the soundness of all the propositions put forward in it, accept the assurance contained in the concluding declaration, that the position of the creditors of Peru in relation to the ceded territory, and as affected by the cession, will be equitably considered by the Chilean Government.

With regard to the passage to which attention is called by the Italian Minister, we may observe that its meaning is not altogether clear.

No objection to examination of other creditors' claims.

The passage commences by stating that should there be creditors who, by virtue of other rights than those of a pretended mortgage, ought to be attended to, the Government of Chile would examine to what extent those claims could be equitably considered.

This appears to us to be an undertaking on the part of the Government independent of the decision of any Tribunal, or of strict legal right.

And we are not sure that the passage which follows is intended to do more than apply to cases where there may be a dispute as to the right of particular claimants, as, for example, whether they were the holders of securities belonging to a class in respect of which concessions or arrangements may be made by the Chilean Government.

If this is all that it means, it would not, we think, be open to objection.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers.

1. Peruvian 6 per Cent. Loan of 1870, p. 25.
2. Peruvian Government 5 per Cent. Consolidated Loan of 1872, p. 25.
3. Treaty of Peace between Chile and Peru of October 20, 1883, Confidential No. 5070.
4. Sir H. Tyler, January 11, 1884, p. 76.
5. Law Officers, February 2, 1884, p. 93.
6. Ditto, ditto, p. 93.
7. To M. Waddington, February 9, 1884, p. 97.
8. To Mr. St John, No. 12, and Mr. Pakenham, No. 14, February 15, 1884, p. 101.
9. Mr. St. John, No. 36, March 29, 1884, p. 136.
10. Mr. Pakenham, No. 19, February 29, 1884, p. 126.
11. Ditto, No. 28, April 14, 1884, p. 143.
12. Lord Ampthill, No. 46, February 28, 1884, p. 113.
13. M. Waddington, April 8, 1884, p. 124.
14. To M. Waddington, April 17, 1884, p. 128.
15. Mr. Pakenham, No. 40, June 20, 1884, p. 157.
16. Count Nigra, July 2, 1884, p. 150.

The above Papers are contained in Confidential No. 5046.

* Sir H. Tyler, September 15, 1884, in Confidential No. 5070.

1884

Portugal.

---

No. 67.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 25.)

Royal Courts of Justice, June 24, 1884.

My Lord,

Collision between the "City of Mecca" and "Insulano."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 13th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the case of the collision between the British steamer "City of Mecca" and the Portuguese steamer "Insulano."

That the Judgments of the Portuguese Tribunals in that case had formed the subject of numerous references to the Law Officers of the Crown, and that all the facts and arguments on both sides were in the accompanying printed correspondence.

That Her Majesty's Government had protested against the Judgments of the Portuguese Tribunals, whereby the "City of Mecca" was declared wholly to blame for the collision, and liable to pay all the damages and costs on both sides, on the ground that those Judgments were inconsistent with the International Sailing Rules, to which Portugal was an acceding party.

Conditional acceptance of proposal for submission of case to arbitration.

That Her Majesty's Government having failed to obtain redress for the owners of the "City of Mecca," proposed to submit the case to international arbitration. That that proposal was rejected by the Portuguese Government on the ground that the national sovereignty would be thereby infringed. But that in a Memorandum from the Portuguese Legation of the 29th February last, it was stated that the Portuguese Government would accept arbitration, provided the proposal did not "imply a rupture of national sovereignty, or involve the obligation of answering for the acts of another nation."

That the last words referred to the enforcement of one of the Judgments complained of, at Havre, by the French Tribunals there.

That the last paragraph of the Memorandum referred to documents in the correspondence, in which the objections of the Portuguese Government to an arbitration were stated in detail.

That your Lordship was disposed to think that the most simple and convenient course would be to invite the Portuguese Government to accept certain propositions of international law, as governing the question in dispute, and to leave it to the arbitrators to apply them to the facts. That if we should concur in that view, Sir Julian Pauncefote was further to submit for our consideration the three following Rules:—

Proposed rules for guidance of arbitrator.

1. That every nation is bound to bring its legislation into harmony with its Treaties.
2. That the Tribunals of every nation are bound to give effect to its public Treaties.
3. That the Government of a nation bound by a Treaty, whose Tribunals fail to give effect to such Treaty, to the detriment of the subjects of another nation, party to the Treaty, and in violation of their rights, is responsible for the injury occasioned thereby, and liable to indemnify the sufferers.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Proposed rules not entirely in accordance with international law.

That we do not think that the three propositions suggested could, in the exact terms in which they are laid down, be supported as in accordance with international law.

The first proposition is probably not open to question. But until the law of a country has been brought into harmony with a Treaty, we do not think it is universally true that its Tribunals are bound to give effect to it. Indeed, according to our municipal law, the Tribunals cannot have regard to a Treaty or enforce its provisions except so far as it is in accord with law.

It cannot, therefore, be said that a Government is always responsible for the injury occasioned by the failure on the part of its Tribunals to give effect to the Treaty.

If they so fail to give effect to it because the Government has not taken all reasonable steps to bring the law into accord with the Treaty, that would no doubt afford legitimate ground of complaint.

But supposing the law of the country to be in harmony with the Treaty, and that effect is not given to it only by reason of an erroneous interpretation being put upon it, we are not prepared to say that if such an error was made in good faith, there would be any right, according to international law, to claim redress at the hands of the Government whose Tribunal had so erred.

If there were any want of good faith, or the Treaty was wilfully disregarded or set aside, the case would, no doubt, be different.

Cannot suggest any advantageous modifications.

Neither do we see our way to suggest any modification of the propositions which would be likely to obtain the assent of the Portuguese Government, and, at the same time, to be of advantage to the owners of the "City of Mecca."

There seems to be no doubt that the mischief sustained by the owners resulted mainly from the Judgment of the French Courts. Inasmuch as those Tribunals did not enforce the Portuguese Judgment as such, but held themselves entitled to examine and review the grounds on which it was based, and founded their Judgment on an independent consideration of the facts and the law of the case, it is difficult to see how the Portuguese Government could be made liable by any Tribunal of Arbitration for the damages arising from such a cause, and they certainly would not be likely to assent to a reference in such terms as could possibly make them so liable.

No chance of any advantage from such an arbitration as Portugal would agree to.

It is a matter for consideration, in all the circumstances of the case, whether any benefit is likely to be derived from such an arbitration as the Portuguese Government would be willing to assent to.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

A. "Correspondence respecting the 'City of Mecca'" ("Commercial, No. 46. 1882"), Foreign Office No. 2672.

B. "Further Correspondence respecting the 'City of Mecca'" ("Commercial, No. 13, 1883"), Foreign Office No. 2673.

C. Ibid. ("Commercial, No. 7, 1884"), Foreign Office No. 2787.

D. Memorandum received from Portuguese Legation, February 29, 1884.

---

No. 68.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, September 11, 1884.

My Lord,

Oyster fisheries at Lisbon. Claim of Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the claim of the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company to certain oyster fisheries at Lisbon.

That the facts of the case were briefly as follows:—

That a Concession to work certain oyster fisheries was granted by the Portuguese Government to Senhor V. Barboso du Bocage; that that Concession contained a stipulation to the effect that it should not be transferred without the previous consent of the Portuguese Government.

That it was transferred with that consent to M. Place, who thus became the legal possessor of it.

Transfer by M. Place of Concession to Company without consent of Government.

That an English Company, called the "Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company," subsequently contracted with M. Place for the transfer to them of his rights under the Concession, but they omitted to obtain the previous consent of the Portuguese Government to the transfer.

1884

Bankruptcy of M. Place's estate and sale of his interest in the Concession.

That the business continued to be worked in the name of M. Place, but for the benefit of the Company, of which M. Place became a Director; that he thus held the Concession in trust for the Company.

That M. Place committed suicide, and his estate was made bankrupt in France; the French Syndic, or Liquidator, of his bankrupt estate caused his interest in the Concession, whatever that might be, to be sold by auction; that the English Company lodged a protest against the sale.

That nevertheless M. Place's interest in the Concession was sold in Paris by auction, and was purchased by M. Amorous, who had been recognized by the Portuguese Government as the legal assignee of the rights and interest of M. Place in the Concession, and whose title thereto had been confirmed, on his application, by a Portuguese Decree, which nevertheless bound him to answer before a Portuguese or foreign Court for any contracts made by M. Place, or for any action which might be brought with reference to the Concession.

That the Company had obtained a Judgment from the High Court of Justice declaring them to be entitled to the Concession, and that they had asked your Lordship to cause that Judgment to be served on M. Amorous, through Her Majesty's Consulate at Lisbon, but that that request had been refused as being contrary to the practice of the Foreign Office, and that the Company had been informed that they must effect service through their own agents.

That they also asked that Her Majesty's Representative in Lisbon might be instructed to deliver a copy of the Judgment to the Portuguese Government, but that that request had also been refused pending our report on the case.

Portuguese Government decline to interfere.

That Her Majesty's Minister at Lisbon had already represented the case to the Portuguese Minister for Foreign Affairs, and that the reply of the Portuguese Government was that they could not interfere in the matter, which was one to be settled by the Courts of Law; that the Company had nothing to hope from any administrative aid in Portugal, and that the question for them to decide was whether to bring an action to upset the validity of M. Amorous' purchase, and establish their right to the Concession in a Portuguese, a French, or a British Court of Justice. That the Company had, as before stated, obtained a Judgment in the High Court of Justice against M. Amorous, declaring them to be entitled to all M. Place's rights under the Concession.

But they had taken no proceedings in France to set aside the sale of the property to M. Amorous, nor did they propose to take any proceedings in the Portuguese Tribunals to enforce the English Judgment. That they applied for the assistance of Her Majesty's Government with the view to a vindication of their rights by further diplomatic action.

That we were referred to the documents in the case, and especially to those enumerated (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6) in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter.

That we were requested to take those papers into our consideration, and to favour your Lordship with our opinion as to what further diplomatic action, if any, Her Majesty's Government could properly take in the matter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No diplomatic action can be taken until the Tribunals have decided the question.

That we are of opinion that no diplomatic action can at present properly be taken.

It appears that a bonâ fide claim to the oyster beds is made by M. Amorous. His rights, as well as those of the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Fisheries, can, and ought to be determined by the legal Tribunals competent to entertain the questions involved, and we see no reason why the legal rights of M. Amourous should be interfered with by means of diplomatic action.

We can only suggest that if, at a time when those legal rights are duly determined it may be of service to the Anglo-Portuguese Company that the Portuguese Government should waive any rights resulting from the permission to transfer not having been obtained, the question whether Her Majesty's Government should interfere to the extent of requesting the Portuguese not to rely on such rights may be considered.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, November 16; to ditto, November 22; to Mr. Baring, No. 34, November 23; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, November 24; Sir C. Wyke, No. 109, December 17; to ditto, No. 40, December 29; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, December 29, 1883; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, January 23; to Sir C. Wyke, No. 3, January 28; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, January 28; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, February 1; to ditto, February 4; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, March 29; ditto, April 3; to Mr. Petre, No. 35, April 8; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, April 8; Mr. Petre, No. 45, April 21; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 6; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 12; to ditto, May 16; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 28; to Mr. Petre, No. 44, May 30; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 30; ditto, May 31; Mr. Petre, No. 54, May 31; to ditto, No. 45, June 5; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 7; Mr. Petre, No. 55, June 4; ditto, No. 57, June 7; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 12, Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 13; to ditto, June 14; to ditto, June 18, 1884.

Further Paper sent in Foreign Office letter of 30th August, 1884:—Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, August 27, 1884.

---

No. 69.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received October 30.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 29, 1884.

Collision between the "City of Mecca" and the "Insulano."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 12th August last, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers[*] relative to the case of the "City of Mecca." That our Report of the 24th June last, as to the bases of arbitration which it was proposed to submit to the Portuguese Government for acceptance, was inclosed.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe, as regarded the second proposition therein laid down, that the legal power of the Tribunals to give effect to the Treaty was intended to be implied. But that one qualification of the third proposition rendered it very difficult to deal with the matter in the manner proposed. But that at the same time it was important that the question between the two Governments should be brought to a close, and, if possible, that Her Majesty's Government should make a proposal to the Portuguese Government of a final character by suggesting certain questions which would leave the fullest latitude to the Arbitrators to decide whether there was a valid claim on the Portuguese Government, and if so, to what extent.

Proposed questions for arbitration as to:—

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to suggest two such questions as the following:—

1. Judgment of Court of Appeal.

1. Was the final Judgment of the Court of Appeal, throwing the whole blame and the whole damages on the British steamer, inconsistent with the International Sailing Rules, having regard to the admitted violation of Article XIV by the Portuguese steamer? and

2. Extent of liability of Portugue e.

2. If so, what, if any, is the extent of the liability of the Portuguese Government to indemnify the owners of the British vessel for the consequences of that Judgment?

That should the course proposed meet with our concurrence, Sir Julian Pauucefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether we approved of the two questions above suggested, and, if not, that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any other questions could be fairly pressed on the acceptance of the Portuguese Government as a basis of arbitration so as to exhaust the discussion on that long-pending dispute.

That our attention was invited to the documents specified by Sir J. Pauncefote and transmitted therewith.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not expedient to suggest above questions.

That we do not think it would be expedient to suggest the proposed questions even if the Portuguese Government would be willing to agree to them.

Judgment not inconsistent with Sailing Rules.

We do not think that the Judgment throwing the whole blame on the British steamer can be said to be inconsistent with the International Sailing Rules by reason of the admitted violation of one of them by the Portuguese steamer.

For some years after the Sailing Rules were agreed upon such a Judgment might have been given by the Courts of this country, and we should certainly not have admitted that it was inconsistent with our international obligations.

It was only in the year 1873 that the Legislature of this country enacted the provision that a ship breaking any of the Regulations should be deemed to be in fault.

---

[*] (A) Correspondence respecting the "City of Mecca," "Commercial No. 46 (1882)," Parliamentary, No. 2672; (B) Further correspondence respecting the "City of Mecca," "Commercial No. 13 (1883)," Parliamentary, No. 2673; (C) Further correspondence respecting the "City of Mecca," "Commercial No. 7 (1884)," Parliamentary, No. 2787; (D) Memorandum received from the Portuguese Legation, February 29, 1884; Law Officers, June 24, 1884.

1884

Cannot suggest other questions.

We are unable to suggest any questions in substitution of those submitted to us which are likely to be accepted by the Portuguese Government, and upon which an Award advantageous to the owners of the "City of Mecca" might be expected.

Arbitration without prospect of success inexpedient.

And we submit that it would be inexpedient to enter upon any arbitration unless there were a prospect of a favourable result.

Should consult Lord Chancellor.

When the proposal for an arbitration was first put forward by Her Majesty's Government the matter was laid before the Lord Chancellor for consideration, and we would suggest that it might be expedient that it should now be again considered by him in its present aspect.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 70.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 27, 1884.

Claim of Mr. J. Dixon for line built for Minho District Railway Company and sold to the Guimarães Company.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 19th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to the claim of Mr. John Dixon, of London, a civil engineer, against the Guimarães Railway Company, as a creditor of the late Minho District Railway Company in Portugal.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was, in the first place, to invite our attention to the statement of facts contained in Sir R. Morier's note to the Portuguese Minister of the 2nd March, 1881 (Parliamentary Paper, Part I, p. 1).

That the late Minho District Railway was formed by an English Company in 1876, under a Concession granted by the Portuguese Government. That Mr. Dixon contracted with the Company to build a section or sections of the line. That the Company went into liquidation, leaving Mr. Dixon, as he alleged, in possession of the portion of the line he had constructed, and on which he claimed a lien for the sums due to him by the Company. That the line was, however, seized by the liquidator of the bankrupt Company and sold by auction to a new Company called the Guimarães Railway Company, which had been formed by some of the shareholders of the bankrupt Company.

That copies of the Portuguese Decree revoking the Concession to the bankrupt Company, and of the Decree granting a Concession to the new Company, would be found at pages 11 and 12 of the Parliamentary Paper, Part I.

That in the new Decree of Concession it was stipulated that the new railway Company must prove before the Government, within a period of six months, that they had acquired the portion of line already constructed, and that it was declared that "by the fact of such acquisition they became obliged to answer in the terms of Portuguese law and in the competent Tribunals for all claims which referred to acts done by the bankrupt Company."

That the portion of the line completed by Mr. Dixon was sold to the new Company at the auction without reserve for 7,000*l*., although it had been valued by a Commission of Engineers appointed by the Commercial Tribunal in Oporto at over 18,200*l*. That that was accounted for by the fact that the Company, being the holders of the above-mentioned Concession, were in reality the only parties to whom the line could be of any value, and that they consequently had no competitors.

That Mr. Dixon had instituted proceedings in the Portuguese Courts to establish his lien on the line and to prevent its sale, but that the decision was adverse to his claim.

That the period of six months allowed to the Guimarães Company to acquire the line and otherwise carry out the stipulations of their Concession was several times extended by the Portuguese Government, thus enabling the Company to defer the settlement of Mr. Dixon's claim.

---

* "Commercial No. 31 (1882)," Part I, Parliamentary, No. 2587; "Commercial No. 24 (1884)," Part II, Parliamentary, No. 2842; Mr. Petre, No. 49, May 1; Mr. Dixon, June 4; to ditto, June 9; Mr. Dixon, June ; to ditto, June 10; Mr. Dixon, June 12; ditto, June 28; to ditto, July 5; Mr. Petre, No. 67, July 10; Mr. Dixon, July 14; to ditto, July 18; Mr. Dixon (2), August 23, 1884

Representations to Portuguese Government.

That in consequence of representations made by Her Majesty's Legation at Lisbon to the Portuguese Government, it was arranged between Mr. Baring, Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires, and Senhor Serpa, the Portuguese Minister for Foreign Affairs, that Mr. Dixon should commence legal proceedings against the new Company for the amount due to him by the bankrupt Company, and that thereupon the Portuguese Government would issue a "Portaria," or Declaration, to the effect that the Company would not be considered regularly constituted until it had paid up the liabilities of the old Company as assessed by the competent Court. (See Parliamentary Paper, Part II, pp. 1, 2; Nos. 3 and 4.)

That Mr. Baring was further verbally assured that the Portuguese Government would then decline to grant the new Company running powers, and would refuse them all privileges and facilities till such time as the claims of the creditors had been judicially settled. (Ibid., p. 4, No. 9; and Mr. Petre's No. 67 of 10th July, 1884.)

That Mr. Dixon commenced his action, and the Declaration, or "Portaria," was issued. (Ibid., pp. 5, 6; No. 13.) But that when the line was completed the Portuguese Government held that they had no power to withhold from the Company permission to open their line pending the decision of the Courts in the action instituted by Mr. Dixon. (Ibid., p. 16; No. 28.)

That the Portuguese Government denied having given the verbal assurances reported in Mr. Baring's despatch of the 16th November, 1882 (ibid., p. 4; No. 9), and that the railway was accordingly opened.

That Mr. Dixon was then informed that Her Majesty's Government could take no further action pending the decision of the Courts on his claims. (Ibid., p. 34; No. 48.)

Repudiation of debts of old Company by the new one.

That in the meanwhile the new Company, encouraged by the support they had received from the Government, did not hesitate to repudiate openly their obligation to satisfy the debts of the old Company, and that Mr. Dixon had before him the prospect of a very lengthy and costly litigation with a public Company.

That the position of the case and the grounds upon which Her Majesty's Government considered that they had reason to complain of the attitude of the Portuguese Government in the matter were clearly explained in the following documents, to which our particular attention was invited:—

Sir C. Wyke to your Lordship, 18th February, 1884 (ibid., p. 34, No. 50.); your Lordship to Sir C. Wyke, 23rd February, 1884 (ibid., p. 36, No. 52); Mr. Petre to your Lordship, 6th March, 1884 (ibid., p. 37, No. 54); your Lordship to Mr. Petre, 23rd April, 1884 (ibid., p. 38, No. 55); and Mr. Petre to your Lordship, 1st May, 1884 (ibid., p. 38, No. 56).

That Mr. Dixon, in a letter to your Lordship, dated the 23rd August last, stated in effect that he had no reasonable hope of obtaining justice from the Courts of Law, and asked therefore that the Portuguese Government might be held liable for the value of the line as estimated by the Commission of Engineers (see Sir R. Morier's note to Senhor Braamcamp of the 2nd March, 1881; Parliamentary Paper, Part I, p. 1; No. 1), or that such other steps might be taken on his behalf as might be deemed advisable.

That it was apprehended that the Portuguese Government had incurred no legal liability towards Mr. Dixon, and that the latter had no alternative but to prosecute his claim before the Portuguese Tribunals.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and inform your Lordship whether we concurred in that view; and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any further diplomatic action could properly be taken at present in support of Mr. Dixon's claim.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Portuguese Government not legally liable. Mr. Dixon must apply to the Tribunals.

That we concur in the view that the Portuguese Government have incurred no legal liability towards Mr. Dixon, and that the latter has no alternative but to prosecute his claim before the Portuguese Tribunals.

No further diplomatic action can be taken at present.

In our opinion no further diplomatic action can properly be taken, at present, in support of Mr. Dixon's claim.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

1884

No. 71.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Lord Chancellor.

Collision between "City of Mecca" and "Insulano."

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE presents his compliments to the Right Honourable the Lord Chancellor, and has the honour, by direction of Earl Granville, to submit the papers marked in the margin* respecting the case of the "City of Mecca."

Rejection by Portugal of proposal for arbitration.

The Lord Chancellor will find at p. 97 of Part II of the inclosed Print a Memorandum expressing his opinion that it might be advisable, notwithstanding the difficulty of clearly establishing a definite ground of international complaint, to press the Portuguese Government to refer the case of the "City of Mecca" to international arbitration. Such arbitration was accordingly proposed (Part II, No. 50, p. 99), but was refused by the Portuguese Government (Part II, No. 60, p. 105) A further effort was, however, made to induce them to accept arbitration (Part II, No. 72, p. 147), but without success (Part III, No. 1, p. 1). It then appeared to Lord Granville that it would be useless to prolong the discussion, and Her Majesty's Minister at Lisbon was instructed so to inform the Portuguese Government, and to enter a protest against the attitude adopted in the matter by Portugal (Part III, No. 12, p. 22).

Conditions on which Portugal will accept arbitration.

In answer to a question in the House of Commons, it was announced that arbitration had been definitely refused, but it was thereupon said, in a Memorandum from the Portuguese Legation which was communicated to Earl Granville, that the Portuguese Government would accept arbitration provided the proposal did not imply an infraction of the national sovereignty of Portugal, or involve the obligation on the part of Portugal of answering for the acts of another nation.

Difficulty as to framing questions to Arbitrators.

Earl Granville was then disposed to think that it would be desirable to make a further attempt to bring about an arbitration by submitting to the Portuguese Government, for their concurrence, some general propositions of international law which the Arbitrators should apply to the facts of the case. Certain propositions were accordingly framed and referred to the Law Officers of the Crown, but the Lord Chancellor will perceive from their Reports at pp. 5 and 7 of Part III of the printed correspondence, that they were not approved by them. It was then proposed to frame some questions for reference to the Arbitrators which should leave them the greatest latitude to decide whether there was a valid claim, and if so, to what extent.

Two questions were accordingly submitted to the Law Officers.

Law Officers want Opinion of Lord Chancellor.

It will be seen, however, that the Law Officers were unable to approve of them, or to indicate any others which would be likely to meet with acceptance by the Portuguese Government (Law Officers' Report of the 29th October, 1884). They deprecate an arbitration without a prospect of a favourable result, but they suggest that, as the Lord Chancellor was good enough to consider the matter in its earlier stages, it would be expedient to invite his Lordship's opinion on it in its present aspect.

Lord Granville, therefore, would be much obliged to the Lord Chancellor if he would favour him with his observations on the case.

Foreign Office, November 27, 1884.

---

Note by the Lord Chancellor.

Lord Chancellor's Opinion.

I understand the present position of the matter to be this: The Portuguese Government have professed to be willing to submit this case to arbitration on two conditions:—

Conditions on which Portugal will accept arbitration.

1. That it should be referred in such terms as to exclude any possible implication of a waiver by Portugal of any of "the prerogatives of national sovereignty;" and
2. That the possibility of Portugal being made answerable for damages awarded against the "City of Mecca" by the French Tribunals should also be excluded.

The suggestions made by Sir J. Pauncefote's letters of the 13th May, 1884 (Correspondence, Part IV, No. 3), and the 12th August, 1884 (referred to in the Law Officers' Report, ibid., No. 8) appear to have been intended, as far as possible, to satisfy those conditions.

Indemnification of owners by Portugal against decisions of French Courts.

How far any suggestions of that kind which could possibly be framed would be accepted by Portugal as excluding any possible derogation from her "prerogatives of national sovereignty" it may be difficult to say, but I take it to be quite clear that these particular suggestions would not have satisfied the conditions insisted on as a sine quâ non that all possibility of Portugal being held liable to indemnify the owners of the "City of Mecca" against the consequences of French decisions should be excluded. And I am bound to add that I agree entirely with the opinion expressed by the Law Officers in their Report of the 24th June, 1884 (last paragraph but one), that the contention of Portugal on that point is in substance right. Furthermore, I cannot but regard this French decision as introducing into the whole case of the British Government a new difficulty, so serious as in itself to make it inexpedient to persevere in the attempt to overcome the objections of Portugal to an arbitration. For if the French Courts, examining and reviewing the grounds on which the Portuguese Judgment was based, and founding their Judgment on an independent consideration of the facts and law of the case, came to the same conclusion, and if the actual damage has been sustained under the French rather than the Portuguese Judgment, it is not apparent what case there can be against Portugal, founded upon the International Sailing Rules, which there would not equally be against France: and, if so, the objection would be obvious, and must be fatal before Arbitrators, that we were seeking an indemnity against the weaker, which might, with equal or greater propriety, have been sought against the stronger, Power; but has not been so sought.

Nature of miscarriage of justice in Portuguese Courts.

Apart from these considerations, the attempt to formulate any propositions with a view to confine the question to be submitted to Arbitrators to that element in the case which is properly international is open to objection on the double ground: (1) that it is hardly possible to formulate any such propositions in a manner which might not admit of applications and consequences more dangerous to the independence of the judicature of each nation within its proper province than any result of the proposed arbitration could be beneficial to ourselves (which I understand to be the view taken by the Law Officers); and (2) that the case on which we desire to go to arbitration is not capable of being presented upon such a basis alone, without also taking into account other elements in the question before the Portuguese Courts, as to which, if they stood alone, there could be no ground for international complaint, however contrary to justice the decisions of those Courts may have been. The real miscarriage of justice in those Courts has been, not in holding the "City of Mecca" to blame, but in exonerating the "Insulano" from contributory fault. But the law as to the effect of contributory fault or negligence depends in each country upon the lex fori, and not upon international obligations or international compacts. So much is this the case, that in England two different rules prevailed until lately on this subject, one in the common Law, and another in the Admiralty, Courts. In Portugal the rule on this subject is contained in the 1568th Article of the Portuguese Commercial Code. If we went to arbitration in a form so limited as to exclude the question whether the "City of Mecca" ought not to have had the benefit of that Article (which is purely Portuguese law), we should not, in my opinion, have any case; and if it be true, as alleged by Senhor de Serpa (Correspondence, Part III, p. 3), that this benefit was not claimed, in the manner required by Portuguese law, by the pleading on the part of the "City of Mecca," this also is purely a question of the lex fori.

There must either be an arbitration on the whole case or none at all.

The result is, that I agree with the Law Officers in thinking that a limited arbitration is in this case unadvisable, and practically impossible. It must be either an arbitration at large upon the whole circumstances of the case (which the Portuguese Government have refused), or none.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

30, Portland Place, December 1, 1884.

---

* Correspondence: "City of Mecca," Part I, Confidential No. 4243; ditto, Part II, Confidential No 4781*; ditto, Part III. Confidential No. 4782.

1884

Russia.

---

No. 72.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 4, 1884.

Power of attorney executed by Mr. Walker in favour of Mr. Haworth.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 30th January last, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relative to an inquiry by the Russian Ambassador, on behalf of his Government, as to whether the terms of a certain power of attorney executed by Mr. Walker before the Russian Consul-General in London in favour of Mr. Haworth, residing in Russia, was sufficient according to English law to authorize and empower the latter gentleman to represent his constituent before the Russian Tribunals in a certain suit. That it would appear from Prince Cantacuzène's letter of the 3rd October last, that a M. Boulygunie instituted a suit against Mr. Walker in relation to an estate in the district of Samara, of which Mr. Haworth had the general management, under the power of attorney in question, and that the latter presented himself before the Court to represent the interests of Mr. Walker.

That his right to do so under his power of attorney had been disputed. That a copy of the power of attorney was inclosed in Count Mohrenheim's note of the 19th January last.

That by section 707 of the Russian Code any document signed abroad acquired in Russia the same force with which it was invested in the country in which it is issued.

Terms of the document.

That according to the terms of the document in question, full powers were conferred on Mr. Haworth to manage the estate, to dispose of it by sale, to grant leases, to dismiss the employés, as well as to transfer his powers to a substitute, but that no express power was given to represent the interests of Mr. Walker before the Russian Tribunals.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and further [sic] your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, according to British law, the power to represent Mr. Walker in a suit relating to the estate in question would be implied from the general terms of the document.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

It will, according to English law, enable Mr. Haworth to act in law suit in Russia.

That we think that, according to British law, the power to represent Mr. Walker in a suit brought against him in relation to the estate in question would be implied from the general terms of the document.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 73.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Case of the British ship "Otome," confiscated by the Russian authorities of Eastern Siberia for infraction of the Fur-hunting and Fishing Regulations.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the case of the British ship "Otome," which was confiscated by the Russian authorities of Eastern Siberia for an alleged infraction of the Russian Regulations concerning fur-hunting, fishing, &c., in the Russian waters of the Pacific.

That the master's narrative was inclosed in Mr. Trench's No. 150 of the 13th October, 1883, to which was attached a copy of the master's protest addressed to the Governor of Petropaulovski.

That the Russian Hunting Regulations were also in the same despatch (No. 4).

That the master's protest to the Governor of Vladivostock formed the inclosure in Mr. Trench's No. 153 of the 22nd October, 1883.

That a representation as to the case was made by Her Majesty's Ambassador at St. Petersburgh to the Russian Government, whose reply would be found in Sir E. Thornton's No. 71 of the 7th August.

That Messrs. Wylie and Co., the representatives in this country of the parties interested in the "Otome," did not accept the note as a satisfactory explanation of the case, or as a correct statement of the facts mentioned in it. That the case, however, seemed to be one of grave suspicion, and that we were referred particularly to the comments thereon in Mr. Trench's No. 150.

Should any further representation be made to the Russian Government?

That a draft of an instruction to Her Majesty's Ambassador at St. Petersburgh had been prepared for consideration, and that our opinion was requested as to whether the circumstances warranted any further representation to the Russian Government, and, if so, whether the draft instruction submitted therewith was proper and sufficient.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Believe that an offence against the Regulations was committed.

That there appear to be strong grounds for believing that an offence against the Russian Regulations was committed, and it appears probable, too, that it was committed with a knowledge of the Regulations.

But even if the Regulations were knowingly violated, there are two matters upon which well-founded representations may, in our opinion, be made to the Russian Government.

Nature of the representations which may be made to the Russian Government.

These are the long-continued detention of the persons charged prior to the case being disposed of, and the allegation that no opportunity was given to them of defending themselves, and that there was no judicial inquiry at which they could establish their innocence.

We think, too, that the fact that the Regulations were not communicated to Her Majesty's Representative at Yokohama, or elsewhere, affords a proper ground for representation.

We see no objection to communicating to the Russian Government the version by the owner, captain, and crew of the "Otome" of the transaction in question, and their assertion of their innocence.

But we would suggest the expediency of keeping the representation of these matters distinct from representations on the more general points to which we have called attention, as the latter may have a bearing on future cases, and are of wider application than the question of the seizure of the "Otome."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. Kennedy, No. 238, October 4, 1883.
Mr. Kennedy, No. 239, October 5, 1883.
To Mr. Kennedy, No. 33, Commercial, October 13, 1883.
Mr. Trench, Telegraphic, October 18, 1883.
Mr. Kennedy, No. 249, October 16, 1883.
Mr. Kennedy, No. 254, October 17, 1883.
Mr. Kennedy, No. 255, October 18, 1883.
Mr. Kennedy, No. 100, Commercial, October 19, 1883.
To Sir E. Thornton, No. 36, Commercial, November 2, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 150, October 18, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 151, October 18, 1883.
To Mr. Trench, No. 122, November 30, 1883.
To Sir E. Thornton, No. 45, Commercial, November 30, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 149, October 18, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 157, November 5, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 153, October 22, 1883.
To Sir E. Thornton, No. 51, Commercial, December 22, 1883.
Sir E. Thornton, No. 137, Commercial, December 19, 1883.
Mr. Trench, No. 161, November 26, 1883.
To Sir E. Thornton, No. 2, Commercial, January 2, 1884.
Sir E. Thornton, No. 1, Commercial, January 2, 1884.
To Sir E. Thornton, No. 14, Commercial, April 10, 1884.

---

* Prince Cantacuzène, October 3; ditto, October 18, 1883; Baron Mohrenheim, January 19, 1884.

1884

Sir E. Thornton, No. 30, Commercial, April 23, 1884.
To Mr. Plunkett, No. 33, May 1, 1884.
Wylie, Fulton, and Co., July 17, 1884.
To Wylie, Fulton, and Co., July 22, 1884.
To Sir E. Thornton, No 39, Commercial, July 22, 1884.
Sir E. Thornton, No. 73, Commercial, August 16, 1884.
Sir E. Thornton, No. 71, Commercial, August 7, 1884.
To Wylie, Fulton, and Co., August 15, 1884.
Wylie, Fulton, and Co., September 9, 1884.
To Wylie, Fulton, and Co., September 15, 1884.

---

Siam.

No. 74.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 14, 1884.

Jurisdiction over British subjects in Chiengmai, Lakon, and Lampoonchi. Submitting draft of Order in Council.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the draft of an Order in Council for Siam, which had been prepared by Mr. R. S. Wright under the instructions of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in connection with the Treaty between Great Britain and Siam to regulate the jurisdiction over British subjects in the territories of Chiengmai, Lakon, and Lampoonchi, which was signed at Bangkok on the 3rd September last; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether it might properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to add that the concurrence of Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies had been obtained to those sections of the draft Order which affected the Supreme Court of the Straits Settlements.

That a copy of the Treaty was inclosed, together with certain other documents, for convenience of reference.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft as altered.

That in our opinion the draft Order in Council, as altered by us, may properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Colonial Office, March 28, 1884.
Order in Council, July 28, 1856. Confidential No. 575.
Ditto, September 12, 1863. Confidential No. 1288.
Ditto, November 10, 1866. Confidential No. 1469.
Ditto, October 23, 1876. Confidential No. 2963.
Treaty with Siam, April 18, 1855. Treaty No. 411.
Supplementary Agreement, May 13, 1856. Treaty No. 411.
Treaty with Siam September 3, 1883. Treaty No. 731.
To Mr. Wright, January 2, 1884.

For draft Order in Council, as altered by the Law Officers, see draft kept with MS. copy of their Report of May 14; and for Order as finally issued June 26, 1884, see Confidential No. 4986*.

---

No. 75.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 21, 1884.

Jurisdiction over British subjects in Chiengmai, Lakon, and Lampoonchi. Order in Council.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 18th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a revised copy of the draft Order in Council for Siam which formed the subject of our Report of the 14th ultimo.

Proposed grant of power to Chief Justice of Singapore to try certain offences at Bangkok.

That since the date of that Report a despatch had been received from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Bangkok, in which he recommended to favourable consideration a suggestion made by the Siamese Government, that the necessary power should, if practicable, be given to the Chief Justice of Singapore to hold a Court at Bangkok for the purpose of trying prisoners when, owing to the gravity of those offences, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General had no power to punish.

That the Consular Court in Siam was not presided over by a professional Judge, and that your Lordship was of opinion that it would greatly facilitate the administration of justice if power were given to any Judge of the Supreme Court of the Straits Settlements to try cases generally in Bangkok, and especially to try on the spot cases which were beyond the competency of the Consular Court, and were at present sent for trial at Singapore.

That a clause had accordingly been added to the draft Order in Council to that effect, which was numbered 14 in the printed copy sent therewith.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the draft Order, with the addition of clause 14, might properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

That it was important that the Order should be passed without delay, and that Mr. Currie was to request the favour of an early reply.

That the papers which accompanied the Foreign Office letter of the 22nd April were inclosed, together with Mr. Satow's despatch above referred to, and further correspondence.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve additions. Draft Order in Council.

That in our opinion the draft Order, with the addition of clause 14, may properly be laid before the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Treasury, June 14, 1884.
Mr. Wright, June 14, 1884.
Mr. Satow, No. 17, April 8, 1884.
Law Officers, May 14, 1884.
Colonial Office, June 6, 1884.
Papers submitted to Law Officers, April 22, 1884 (see their Report of May 14, 1884).

For copy of draft Order in Council, as amended by the Law Officers, see the MS. copy of their Report of June 21, 1884; and for Order in Council as finally issued June 26, 1884, see Confidential No. 4986*.

---

No. 76.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 25, 1884.

Slave-dealing in Siam. Bills of sale whereby the services of an individual are sold to a purchaser.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit papers relating to bills of sale in Siam,* whereby the services of an individual are sold to a purchaser in consideration of a certain sum paid down to the parent or relation exercising parental authority over the person whose labour is thus disposed of.

---

* Mr. Satow, No. 44, June 25; ditto, No. 60, August 13; ditto, No. 65, August 19, 1884; Law Officers, October 22, 1867, Confidential No. 1745, p. 166; ditto, September 29, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 8.

1884

That it appeared that the purchase of services in that form by British subjects had always been regarded as an infraction of the English laws relating to slave-dealing, and punishment had, in such cases, been inflicted on the purchaser.

Attempts to evade criminal liability through a second contract.

That attempts, however, had been made to evade criminal liability by cancelling the original bill of sale and preparing a fresh contract, whereby the parents agreed that, in consideration of a sum paid down, the individual concerned should serve his new master, and that a certain amount should be deducted from the principal sum for every month's service.

That Mr. Satow, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Siam, had asked for instructions as to the manner in which such contracts are to be regarded, and whether a British subject could plead in defence that they were recognized by Siamese law.

That the Law Officers' Reports of the 22nd October, 1867, and 29th September, 1883, bearing on the subject of contracts made by British subjects for the services of slaves in countries where slavery was permitted by law were inclosed, and that our opinion was requested as to whether both or either of the forms of contract of which copies were inclosed in Mr. Satow's despatch No. 65 would, if entered into by a British subject in Siam, be illegal under the Slave Trade Acts, and render him liable to criminal proceedings before the Consular Court at Bangkok.

That copies of the Orders in Council regulating the exercise of Her Majesty's jurisdiction in Siam were sent therewith,* and that we were referred more especially to Articles 13, 14, and 21 of the Order of 1856, which dealt with the criminal jurisdiction of Her Majesty's Consular Court at Bangkok.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Contract No.* 1. Is illegal under the Slave Trade Acts, and renders a British subject liable to criminal proceedings before the Consular Court.

That, in our opinion, if the form of Contract No. 1† were entered into by a British subject in Siam, it would be illegal, under the Slave Trade Acts, and render him liable to criminal proceedings, and we see no reason why such proceedings should not be taken before the Consular Court of Bangkok.

Contract No.* 2.

The question with regard to the form of Contract No. 2‡ is one of considerable difficulty. In form it is not a transfer of the slave from the former owner, but an agreement to render services to a person who has provided the money for his manumission.

How affected by the Slave Trade Acts.

By the 2nd section of the 6 & 7 Vict., cap. 18, persons held in servitude or pledge for debt are to be deemed slaves within the meaning of the Slave Trade Acts. But we think that the case can only come within the Act of Geo. IV, if it can be said to amount to a dealing in sale or transfer or contract for the dealing in sale or transfer of a slave.

And we feel great difficulty in saying that it can properly be so described. So far as the British Courts and authorities are concerned, it would of course be regarded as a mere contract of service, giving no personal right over the slave, and no right to enforce the continuance of the service, the only remedy for its breach being an action for damages. And for any imprisonment or ill-treatment of the person agreeing to serve him, a British subject might be made amenable in the British Consular Court.

If merely colourable, British subject might be dealt with by criminal law.

If it can be shown that the form of the contract is merely colourable, as, for instance, if an attempt were made to enforce the servitude by an appeal to the Siamese Tribunals or authorities, we think that the real transaction would be regarded as a dealing in the transfer of a slave, and in such a case we think the British subject might be brought within the reach of the criminal law.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex No. 1.

Contract No. 1.

(Translation.)

MADE at Bangkok the twelfth day of the waning of the moon of the ninth month, 1246, c.s.

I, Im, make a bill of sale with you, Ma Rern. I receive 1 chang, 8 tamlungs, and 3 ticals from you. I agree to be your slave giving my labour in lieu of interest and doing all kinds of work with you, the owner of the money, in accordance with the laws and customs.

I, Im the slave, have made this Agreement, and give it over to you, Ma Rern, as a proof.

(Signed) KHOON ROU RAN CHAI, Amphor.
RERN, the Money Master.
NAI TUEY, Witness.
NAI TET, the Clerk.
IM, the Slave.

---

Directions to the Presiding Official.

I, Mhun Rou Ran Chai, the Amphor, being present with Nai Tet, the clerk; Nai Tuey, the witness, having carefully and repeatedly questioned the parties to this Agreement, and explained it to them, believe that this is a proper Agreement, and that both parties fully understand it.

I believe that this Agreement is in full accordance with the laws in all particulars.

I have entered the descriptions of the parties to this Agreement in the schedule, and have affixed my signature and seal as evidence thereof.

| Name of Parties. | Father or Mother, Child or Wife, of Parties. | Age. | Mark. | Colour. | Appearance. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Im, the slave .. | Ma Puey .. | 27 | Scar on right shoulder | Reddish brown .. | Middle height. |
| Rern, the money master. | | | | | |

Annex No. 2.

Contract No. 2.

(Translation.)

The ninth month, eighth day of the waxing moon, 1246.

I, Mun Roug Chai, Amphor, at my house below the Chao Fa Oug Noi's house, in Bangkok, presiding.

Nai Mahomet Alli, on the one part, and Amdeng Im, on the other part, come and make an Agreement before the Amphor, who witnesses it.

I, the Amphor, have carefully explained to both parties all the clauses of this Agreement, and I believe that they both fully understand it; for as neither of the parties can read, Nai Tong has explained the matter fully to both.

I, Mun Roug Chai, the Amphor, believe that this is a proper Agreement in every respect. The date, the clauses of the Agreement, the signatures, and the descriptions of the parties, and other proofs, I have entered in my register.

I have put down the Agreement in the paper attached to this.

I have signed my name and attached my seal as proof.

| Parties to the Agreement. | Child. Wife. | Age. | Mark. | Appearance. | Signature. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Im, the debtor .. | .. | 29 | Scar on right shoulder | Brown, middle height | Im. |
| Mahomet Alli, the creditor. | .. | .. | .. | .. | Mahomet Alli. |

Wednesday, the eighth day of the waxing moon of the ninth month, 1246.

I, Amdeng Im, come and make an Agreement with you, Mahomet Alli.

I, Amdeng Im, was a slave with you, Ma Formerly, in the ninth month, 1245, I, Amdeng Im, was a slave with you, Ma Rern, being indebted 1 chang, 8 tamlungs, 3 ticals. Now I obtain this money from Mahomet Alli, who has brought it and deposited it, as my price, with you, Ma Rern, the former money master. I have borrowed 1 chang, 6 tamlungs, and 1 tical in addition; altogether it is 2 chang, 15 tamlungs. I agree to be a servant for and

---

* Order in Council, July 28, 1856, Confidential No. 575; ditto, September 12, 1863, Confidential No. 1288; ditto, November 10, 1866, Confidential No. 1469; ditto, October 23, 1876, Confidential No. 2963; ditto, June 26, 1884, Confidential No. 4986*.

† Annex No. 1.

‡ Annex No. 2.

1884

with you, Mahomet Alli. Mahomet Alli will deduct from my debt 4 ticals every month.

I have signed my name, "Im," as proof.

At the time above noted, I, Mun Roug Chai, the Amphor, who presides, together with Nai Term, the clerk; Nai Tong, the witness; have questioned both parties, and they acknowledge it to be right. I have now affixed my seal as proof.

---

Spain.

No. 77.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 25.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 22, 1884.

Pursuit and search of the "Scud" by the "Almendarez."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* which related to the proceedings of the Spanish gun-boat "Almendarez" in pursuing and searching the British cutter "Scud" on the 6th July last when on the high seas on a voyage from Jamaica to Mount Bay, with passengers and a general cargo.

That the facts were briefly stated in the complaint of the master made the day after the occurrence, and that they appeared in greater detail in the depositions of the master, crew, and passengers of the "Scud."

That the explanations of the Spanish Commander were given in the letter of the Spanish Consul to the Colonial Secretary of Jamaica.

That the motive of the Spanish Commander was, no doubt, to intercept a rebel Chief in a supposed attempt to join the insurgent forces in Cuba. But those forces had not been accorded the status of belligerents, and it was apprehended that the belligerent right of search on the high seas did not exist in the present case, and that the utmost right which the Commander of the gun-boat could exercise was to verify the nationality of the "Scud" in the manner provided by the Admiralty instructions to British cruizers, issued in pursuance of an understanding between the Governments of Great Britain, France, and the United States in 1858, which regulated the right of visit in time of peace, and might be taken as laying down the correct rule of international law on the subject.

That on that point Mr. Currie was to refer to "Kent's International Law by Abdy," cap. 9, in which those instructions were cited in a note at p. 365: ed., 1878.†

That Mr. Currie was to annex the draft of an instruction to Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid, founded on the above view of the case, and that he was to request our opinion as to whether it was right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in the main, we approve of the proposed instructions.

Conduct of Spanish officer not justifiable, and claim for compensation should be supported.

The Spanish officer has acted in a high-handed and oppressive manner without any justification whatever, and if the owners of the English vessel make any claim for specific compensation, we think that their claim should be strongly supported by Her Majesty's Government.

Approve instructions with slight alterations.

We are in doubt whether the words "suitable redress," at p. 7 of the despatch, will be read as including a specific claim for compensation.

We also suggest that the words "and her nationality had been verified," on p. 6, should be struck out.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colonial Office, June 16; to ditto, June 28; Governor of Jamaica to Sir R. Herbert (Print), July 9; Colonial Office, August 11; Admiralty, August 13; Colonial Office, August 21, 1884; draft to Sir R. Morier.

† 8vo., 4542.

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Sir R. Morier.

(No. .)

Sir, Foreign Office, , 1884.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith a correspondence, as marked in the margin,* respecting the action of the Commander of the Spanish gun-boat "Almendarez" in boarding and searching the British cutter "Scud" on the high seas on the 6th July last. The "Scud" was at the time on a voyage from Jamaica to Mount Bay with passengers and a general cargo, and the Commander of the gun-boat alleges certain suspicious circumstances in connection with the movements of the "Scud" in vindication of the extreme measures adopted by him.

The facts of the case appear briefly in the statement of the master of the "Scud" made the day after the occurrence, which you will find in the Colonial Office letter of the 11th August (Inclosure 4), together with a letter from the Spanish Consul to the Colonial Secretary of Jamaica justifying the action of Don Francesco Catestany, the Commander of the "Almendarez," but they are more fully detailed in the depositions of the master, crew, and passengers of the "Scud," which form Inclosure 2 in the Colonial Office letter of the 21st August.

According to these documents the "Almendarez" fired a shot across the bows of the "Scud," upon which the master of that vessel ran up the British ensign and hove to: she was then overhauled by the "Almendarez," an officer and four armed men boarding her for that purpose, the hatches being removed, and the main and after hold rummaged, and other forcible acts committed which are detailed in the depositions; after which the Captain of the "Almendarez" appearing satisfied, the "Scud" was allowed to proceed on her course.

I have now to request that you will represent the circumstances of this case to the Spanish Government, and protest against the high-handed proceedings of the Commander of the Spanish gun-boat.

The Spanish Government will no doubt readily admit that no belligerent right of search existed in the present case, and that as soon as the "Scud" had hoisted her colours (and her nationality had been verified) the "Almendarez" could no longer pretend to exercise any control over her, and that the further action of Don Francesco Catestany was a violation of international law for which suitable redress is due (including reasonable compensation to the owners of the "Scud," Messrs. Hankey and Co., of London).

You will be good enough to return the papers now sent in original.

The earlier correspondence with the Colonial Office refers to the proceedings of a certain "General Bonachea," who was suspected of preparing an expedition against the Government of Cuba, and it has therefore some bearing on the motives which actuated the Commander of the Spanish gun-boat in his proceedings against the "Scud."

I am, &c.

---

No. 78.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 12, 1884.

Arrest of Spaniards at Gibraltar for smuggling tobacco into Spain.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 4th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us a letter which had been received from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies,† inclosing copy of a despatch from the Governor of Gibraltar, reporting the capture of certain Spaniards on the north front of that fortress.

That it appeared that those Spaniards were arrested while endeavouring to smuggle tobacco into Spain, and were subsequently handed over by the Governor to the Spanish authorities, the tobacco amounting to about 3 tons, which was found in the neighbourhood, being confiscated.

That the attempt to smuggle the tobacco into Spain was no offence against British law, and the Governor admitted that the offenders were only liable to a fine for being within the garrison without a permit.

But they had committed an offence against Spanish law.

---

* See list of papers in footnote on previous page.

† Colonial Office, October 28, 1884.

1884

Was the Governor justified in handing them over to the Spanish authorities and in confiscating the tobacco?

That your Lordship entertained some doubt as to whether the Governor was justified in handing over the offenders to the Spanish authorities, and in confiscating the tobacco.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether we concurred in the proposed approval of the Governor of Gibraltar in that matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Action of the Governor should not be approved.

That we do not think the action of the Governor should be approved of. There does not appear to be any warrant in point of law either for handing over the persons implicated to the Spanish authorities or for confiscating the tobacco.

We think that Spanish subjects within British territory at Gibraltar should only be handed over to the Spanish authorities under and in conformity with the requirements of the Extradition Treaty.

At the same time, we feel that the use of Gibraltar for smuggling purposes, by Spanish subjects, is likely to give rise, as it has done in the past, to natural irritation on the part of the Spanish Government.

We are not aware whether any legal power now exists in the British authorities to deal with persons thus abusing British territory.

Legal powers should be given to the British authorities to deal with Spaniards thus abusing British territory.

If not, we would submit for consideration whether it might not be well to make provision that Spaniards so offending should be expelled from British territory and subjected to penalties in case they return without permission, and that tobacco or other articles found, as in the present instance, in the course of being smuggled, should be confiscated.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 79.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 29.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 28, 1884.

My Lord,

Execution in Spain of a Judgment obtained in England by Mr. G. C. Stewart against Mr. Forrest.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 25th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers* relating to a Judgment obtained by Mr. G. C. Stewart in the Court of Queen's Bench against a Mr. Forrest on account of money advanced on a mortgage on certain ships belonging to the defendant, and to the communication which had taken place between Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid and the Spanish Government with a view to obtaining their assistance in enforcing the Judgment against Mr. Forrest in Spain; both parties were British subjects, and the ships in question were within Spanish jurisdiction.

Spanish Government apply rule of reciprocity in such cases.

That Sir R. Morier had reason to believe that the rule which the Spanish Government applied to such cases was that of reciprocity, so that if a Judgment of the Spanish Courts could, in an analagous case be executed in the United Kingdom, Her Majesty's Government could demand, as a right, that similar treatment should be conceded to them in Spain.

That in reply to Sir R. Morier's inquiries on that point he was instructed to explain to the Spanish Government that the British Law Courts had power, in their exercise of their general jurisdiction, to enforce the Judgments of foreign Tribunals on proper proceedings being instituted, unless the foreign Judgment should be impeached as being contrary to natural justice, or on the ground of its being irregulary obtained.

The Judgment was obtained by default of appearance, and Spanish law does not permit execution of a sentence "en rebeldia."

That Sir R. Morier reported that the Spanish Government, on receiving those explanations, had promised to refer the case to the Supreme Court for such action as could properly be taken in the matter, but in a subsequent despatch (No. 10 of the 14th November) he stated that as the Judgment of the British Court was obtained by default of appearance, a difficulty had arisen inasmuch as Spanish law did not permit the execution of a sentence "en rebeldia."

---

* Mr. G. C. Stewart, March 26; to Mr. G. C. Stewart, March 31; Mr. G. C. Stewart, April 3; to Consul Young, No. 2, March 31; Mr. Stewart, April 17; ditto, May 3; to Mr. Stewart, May 16; to Mr. de Bunsen, No. 14, Consular, August 6; Sir R. Morier, No. 6, Consular, August 18; to Sir R. Morier, No. 16, Consular, September 8; Mr. Stewart, September 29; to Sir R. Morier, No. 20, Consular, October 7; Sir R. Morier, No. 9, Consular, October 13; ditto, No. 10, Consular, November 14, 1884; Law Officers, September 14, 1880, Confidential No. 4539, p. 59; "Piggott on Foreign Judgments," 8vo. 6006, Part II, p. 120.

But that Sir R. Morier added that he had obtained a high legal opinion to the effect that, if English law allowed of a Spanish sentence being executed in this country, reciprocity could be claimed.

That on that point Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to "Piggott on effect of Foreign Judgments in English Courts," p. 120.

That it would be seen from Mr. Stewart's letter of the 27th September and Sir R. Morier's despatch of the 14th instant, that it was of great importance that there should be no unavoidable delay in dealing with this case, as it was feared that Mr. Forrest might sell his ships, which formed Mr. Stewart's security.

That our opinion was requested as to the reply which should be returned to Sir R. Morier's inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Judgment of a Spanish Court, even though "en rebeldia," would be executed in England.

That we are of opinion that the Judgment of a Spanish Court, even though "en rebeldia," if regularly obtained, would be given effect to by the Courts of this country.

Explains Judgment for default of appearance.

We may add that a Judgment for default of appearance is not, we think, founded on the contumacy of the defendant in not appearing to defend, but on the view that by such non-appearance the party sued admits the justice of the claim made against him.

Sir R. Morier will be better able to judge than we are, whether this view can be made use of with any advantage.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Switzerland.

No. 80.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 25.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 24, 1884.

My Lord,

Expulsion of Miss Booth from Cantons of Neuchâtel and Geneva.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 15th ultimo, he was to transmit to us papers* which contained three Reports which had been obtained from Professor König, in accordance with our suggestion, upon the question of the legality of Miss Booth's expulsion from the Canton of Neuchâtel, under the Decree of the 3rd October, 1883, and of her previous expulsion from the Canton of Geneva, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote requested that we would favour your Lordship with any observations which we might have to offer thereon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Case as to illegality of proceedings.

That the Reports of Professor König appear to us to make out a strong case in support of the view that the expulsions of Miss Booth from Geneva and Neuchâtel were illegal, and such as to afford just ground of complaint by Her Majesty's Government.

Appeal still open.

It appears, however, from these Reports that it is open to Miss Booth still to appeal to the Federal Assembly as regards the Geneva expulsion, and to the Federal Council, and, if necessary, the Federal Assembly, as regards the Neuchâtel expulsion. And it is possible that upon such appeal the decision complained of might be reversed.

Objections to taking action before knowing Miss Booth's intentions.

We think that before any further steps are taken by Her Majesty's Government it would be well that Mr. Booth should be informed that Her Majesty's Government

---

* Mr. Thornton, No. 152, December 28, 1883, two inclosures.
Mr. Adams, No. 4, January 4, 1884, one inclosure.
Printed correspondence, Confidential No. 4924.

1884

had been advised by their legal adviser in Switzerland that the rights of appeal referred to above exist; and that inquiry should be made whether Miss Booth intends to avail herself of them.

It might perhaps be added that, unless the power of appeal has been exhausted, Her Majesty's Government would be met, in any representations they might make, by the very strong observation, that the highest Swiss authority had not been appealed to for its decision in the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No 81.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received July 19.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 18, 1884.

Establishment of the "Salvation Army" in Switzerland.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 27th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relative to the so-called "Salvation Army"* under the Treaty between Switzerland and this country, and to the declared intention of Mr. Clibborn to proceed to Switzerland this month to establish "the Army" in various cantons.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Mr. Booth's letter of the 13th June might properly be answered in the terms of the inclosed draft reply.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approving letter to Mr. Booth, as altered, respecting impossibility of granting diplomatic assistance.

That we approve of the proposed answer to Mr. Booth's letter, save that we would suggest that the words appended to this Report should be substituted for the passage beginning, "The Government of the country have declared," &c., on p. 2, and continuing to the end of the draft.

We think it desirable to leave open the question whether the decisions have not been so clearly opposed to Swiss law as to justify diplomatic action.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

"But they have no greater rights than Swiss subjects possess. The question raised by the appeal of Miss Booth to the Swiss Federal Assembly is whether her expulsion was in accordance with, or contrary to, the law of that country.

"And it does not appear how any expression of opinion as to her Treaty rights could assist the determination of this question.

"The Tribunals have hitherto decided that certain proceedings of members of the Salvation Army in Switzerland are in violation of the law of the country.

"These decisions have not yet been adjudicated upon by the highest Tribunal, and your attention has already been drawn to the difficulty of interfering by any representations to the Swiss Government until this has been done.

"In these circumstances, if any British subjects should repeat in Switzerland acts which the Tribunals of that country have held to be illegal, it will be impossible for Her Majesty's Government to protect them from the risk they would incur by so acting."

---

* Mr. Booth, June 13; to Mr. Booth, 1884; Treaty, Great Britain and Switzerland, September 6, 1855, No. 401; Law Officers' Reports of March 8, November 1, and December 15, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, pp. 113, 115; and January 24, 1884.

No. 82.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 10, 1884.

Prohibition of Salvationist meetings in certain cantons.

We were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 19th ultimo, stating that, with reference to previous correspondence respecting the proceedings of the Salvation Army in Switzerland, Mr. Lister transmitted to us the papers noted in the margin* of his letter, which related to the right of the Swiss authorities to suspend temporarily certain existing laws for the better enforcement of good order in connection with certain tumultuous proceedings which had arisen at Bienne, in the Canton of Berne, arising out of the meetings of the Salvation Army.

That Mr. Lister was to refer us to our Report of the 18th July (print, p. 15). and to the reply sent in conformity therewith to Mr. Booth's letter of the 13th June (print, p. 17); also to Mr. Booth's further letter of the 1st ultimo,† and Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship whether we concurred in the terms of the reply which it was proposed to return thereto, of which the draft was inclosed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve answer to Mr. Booth.

That we concur in the terms of the reply which it is proposed to return to Mr. Booth's letter of the 1st August.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of Letter to Mr. Booth.

Sir, Foreign Office, September , 1884.

EARL GRANVILLE has had under his consideration your letter of the 1st instant on the subject of his Lordship's reply to your letter of the 13th June last, in which reference is made to the recent procès-verbal of the authorities of the Cantons of Berne, Vaud, and Neuchâtel, and the nature of the prohibition on the future meetings of the Salvation Army in those cantons, and certain other restrictions on the proceedings of the Army.

In referring to the occurrences which took place towards the end of last month at Bienne, in the Canton of Berne, you express the wish that Her Majesty's Government should make some representation to the Swiss Government calculated to prevent the issue of Decrees of Expulsion against persons who, as you state, are now admitted to have contravened no Swiss law. &c.

Her Majesty's Government decline to support resistance to the prohibition.

I am now to observe to you, in reply, that if the persons in question contravened no Swiss law in holding the meeting at Bienne, there is no ground for supposing that they have rendered themselves liable to any penal action by expulsion or otherwise; but their meetings having since been prohibited in consequence of the tumult thereby created, Her Majesty's Government cannot support them in resisting that measure, which has been found necessary for the maintenance of the public tranquillity.

I am, &c.

---

No. 83.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 10, 1884.

Salvation Army. Mr. Clibborn forbidden to enter Neuchâtel.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that, with reference to previous correspondence respecting the proceedings of the Salvation Army, he had to transmit to us the accompanying letter from Mr. Booth,[*] inclosing a copy of the official Gazette of the Canton of Geneva, from which it appeared that, for the reasons set forth in the Decree dated Neuchâtel on the 13th instant, which was therein published, Mr. Clibborn had been forbidden to enter the territory of Neuchâtel.

* Mr. Booth, June 13; to Mr. Booth, July 25; Mr. Booth, August 1; to Mr. Booth (Draft), 1884.

† Confidential Print No. 4924.

1884

That we would see that Mr. Booth asked to be furnished with "a decided opinion as to whether, in the view of Her Majesty's Government, Colonel Clibborn, under present circumstances, has the right to enter the canton, or to pass through it, as he will frequently have to do, in attending to the various corps already existing in the Cantons of Berne and Geneva and in the east of France."

The procès-verbal of the 9th July last, especially referred to by Mr. Booth, and the previous Decrees of the 15th June and 8th October last year, will be found at pp. 16 and 17, Part II, and pp. 108, 109, and 133, Part I, of the accompanying printed papers.[†]

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to the answer which should be returned to Mr. Booth's letter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

He will be liable to arrest if he acts contrary to Decree, and Her Majesty's Government might be unable to interfere.

That we are of opinion that Mr. Booth should be informed, in answer to the question contained in his letter of the 19th August, that Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that Colonel Clibborn will be liable to arrest and expulsion if he attempt to enter the Canton of Neuchâtel in violation of the terms of the Decree of the 13th August, 1884.

We have already, in our opinion of the 1st November, 1883, expressed the view that Decrees for expulsion of British subjects for good and sufficient legal cause may be justified by the Swiss Government, and if a British subject can legally be expelled from Swiss territory there must be a like power to prevent him re-entering it.

We conceive therefore that Mr. Clibborn cannot treat this Decree as a nullity, and if, in opposition to its terms, he were to enter the canton, Her Majesty's Government (in the absence of any ground for supposing that the Decree has not been made in good faith) might find great difficulty in interfering on his behalf.

The question whether the Decree is so harsh as to justify any diplomatic representation by Her Majesty's Government is not before us.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 84.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received September 19.)

Royal Courts of Justice, September 19, 1884.

My Lord,

Suppression of Salvationist meetings in Berne.

Decree and Circular

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 10th instant, stating that with reference to previous correspondence respecting the proceedings of the Salvation Army in Switzerland, he was to transmit to us the papers[‡] relating to a Decree issued by the Government of Berne, with a view to the suppression of salvationist meetings in that canton, as well as to a Circular stated to have been addressed by the same authority to the Prefectures of the canton, explaining the measures to be adopted for carrying it into effect.

That the Decree was of general application, and not levelled particularly at foreigners; but that its validity had been impugned on the ground that it was opposed to the Swiss Constitution.

That it was presumed that the question of the validity of that law could only be decided by the judicial or other competent authority of the country, and that until it had been repealed, or declared invalid, British subjects must conform thereto.

That your Lordship desired our opinion as to whether any, and, if so, what action should be taken by Her Majesty's Government with reference to that matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think no action should be taken by Her Majesty's Government in reference to this matter. The Decree of the Government of Berne is a general one, affecting Swiss subjects as well as foreigners.

---

[*] Mr. Booth, August 19, 1882.

[†] Confidential Print Nos. 4924 and .

[‡] Confidential Paper No. 4924; Mr. Adams, No. 62 August 27; No. 64. August 30, 1884; Treaty, No. 401.

No action should be taken in the matter.

It seems to us that the Decree is one which may well be within the competency of a Government to make for the purpose of regulating its internal affairs.

There seems to be a question whether, according to the Federal Constitution, the Decree is within the Cantonal Government, and this question appears to have been raised by an appeal by certain Swiss citizens to the Federal Council

But we do not think a foreign Government would be justified, under existing circumstances, in making any diplomatic representations on the subject.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 85.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 12.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 11, 1884.

My Lord,

Illegitimate infant daughter of Marie Gouder, a British subject.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us papers relating to the case of the illegitimate infant daughter of Marie Gouder, a British subject resident in Switzerland.[*]

That the infant in question, having been born out of Her Majesty's dominions, and being illegitimate, was not entitled to the status of a British subject; but that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request whether, under the circumstances, there would be any objection to the name of the infant being included in the British passport given to the mother, so as to get over the difficulties raised by the Swiss authorities by reason of her having no recognized nationality.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her name may be included in her mother's passport. Strictly speaking, she is not a British subject.

That we do not think there would be any objection to the name of the infant being included in the British passport given to the mother.

Strictly speaking, the child is no doubt not a British subject; but the Swiss do not claim her, and we do not see that any objectionable consequences can arise from adopting the course suggested.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 86.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, December 17, 1884.

My Lord,

Expulsion of Salvationists. Case of Mr. Rabey.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 21st October, stating that he was to transmit to us, with reference to his letter of the 10th September, despatches[†] relating to the expulsion from the Canton of Neuchâtel of Mr. S. Rabey, a British subject, on account of proceedings connected with the Salvation Army.

That your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether any, and if so, what, action should be taken by Her Majesty's Government with reference to that matter.

We are also honoured with a letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 19th ultimo, stating that in compliance with the request of Her Majesty's Solicitor-General, conveyed by Mr. Davidson in a note dated the 28th October, he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Berne,[‡] inclosing copies of the

---

[*] Mr. Thornton, No. 24, Treaty, 1884; Circular to Consuls, No. 1270, May 29, 1876.

[†] Mr. Thornton, No. 72, October 10, and No. 73, October 14, 1884.

[‡] Mr. Thornton, No. 76, November 10, 1884; Decree of October 8, 1883; in Parliamentary No. 2847, p. 122; Procès-verbal of July 9, 1884, Parliamentary No. 2889, p. 7; Inclosure in Mr. Rabey's letter to Mr. Thornton of October 13, 1884.

1884

documents referred to in the letter above mentioned, together with the opinions furnished by Professor König and by M. Monnier, upon the subject of the so-called "Édit de Berne," and the proceedings of the Salvation Army.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 19th ultimo, he had the honour to transmit to us a despatch* from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Berne, inclosing a copy of the exact text of the so-called "Edict of Berne," which limited the restrictive measures with regard to the proceedings of the Salvation Army to meetings of a public character; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take that document into our consideration, together with the other papers relating to the same subject which were then before us.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Expulsion under Arrêté of October 7, 1884, a violation of Treaty of 1856.

That we think the expulsion of Mr. Rabey, a British subject, under the Arrêté of the 7th October, 1884, was a violation of the rights accorded to British subjects by the Treaty between this country and Switzerland of the 8th February, 1856.

By the terms of that Treaty British subjects are entitled to reside and sojourn in any part of Swiss territory under the same title and the same conditions as the Swiss themselves, provided that they conform to the laws of the country.

Now the expulsion of Mr. Rabey is founded upon an Arrêté of the 8th October, 1883, by which the Conseil d'État ordered the expulsion of the chiefs of the Salvation Army, who were foreigners.

It cannot be pretended that the merely being an officer of the Salvation Army is any violation of the Swiss law. If not, it appears impossible, consistently with the Treaty, to refuse to allow British subjects to remain in Switzerland on account of their being chiefs of the Salvation Army, whilst Swiss subjects are subject to no such treatment.

Should call attention thereto, and to second ground of expulsion, viz., disobedience to Regulations laid down by Conference at Berne.

We think, therefore, that the attention of the Swiss Government should be drawn to this violation of the Treaty and explanations requested.

It would be well at the same time to call attention to the other ground upon which the expulsion is based, viz., disobedience to the Regulations laid down by the Conference of Berne.

The Reports of Professor König and M. Monnier afford good grounds for believing that these Regulations were beyond the competence of the Cantonal authorities, and were, according to the terms of the Federal Constitution, invalid.

If so, Mr. Rabey cannot be said to have failed "to conform himself to the laws of the country," and had done nothing to disentitle him to the benefit of the provisions of the Treaty, entitling him to reside in Swiss territory.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Tunis.

No. 87.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 1.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 1, 1884.

British Consular jurisdiction in Tunis. Proposed Order in Council abandoning.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 26th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the accompanying draft of an Order in Council, which it was proposed to pass on the 1st January next,† for the abandonment of Her Majesty's Consular jurisdiction in Tunis.

That that jurisdiction was at present regulated by the Ottoman Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, and the Ottoman (Tunis) Order in Council of 1881 (Confidential No. 2873).

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to invite our attention to your Lordship's letter to the French Ambassador of the 16th November, 1883, in which certain conditions were laid down on which the consent of Her Majesty's Government to abandon British Consular jurisdiction in the Regency was made to depend.

That those conditions had been acceded to by the French Government, and that they were most anxious that the new régime should be introduced on the 1st January, 1884.

That the French Law establishing the new Tribunals would be found at p. 39 of the printed correspondence (Tunis 4853, 1882-83). That it was dated the 27th March, 1883, and was published in the Tunisian Government Gazette (Ibid. p. 35).

That by a Decree of the Bey of Tunis of the 5th May last (Correspondence, p. 41) it was declared that the subjects of foreign Powers whose Consular jurisdiction should have been abandoned, should have become justiciable by the French Tribunals under the same conditions as French subjects.

That as regarded the form of the Order in Council, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to a Memorandum by the late Sir F. Reilly of the 15th June (Correspondence, p. 48). That since that date the French Tribunals had been actually established, and that their power to exercise jurisdiction over foreigners was derived from Article 2 of the French Law of the 27th March (Correspondence, p. 39), and the Decree of the Bey of the 5th May (Ibid., p. 41). That we would observe that the draft Order had been prepared substantially in the form suggested by Sir F. Reilly, and in accordance with the precedent referred to in his Memorandum, which we would find at p. 147 (Confidential No. 2873) of the accompanying collection of Orders in Council for Turkey and Egypt. That Her Majesty's Court for Tunis would still continue to exercise its powers for the purpose of disposing of pending cases, and of cases relating to real property, as to which Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to the French Memorandum (Correspondence, p. 61), under the title "Observations Générales."

That Sir Julian was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the draft Order might properly be submitted to the Queen for Her Majesty's approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed Order in Council.

That we are of opinion that the draft Order may properly be submitted to the Queen for Her Majesty's approval. The Order may be made to come into force on such day as one of Her Majesty's Secretaries of State shall direct.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 88.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 22, 1884.

Settlement of Tunisian debts French proposal.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th November last, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers relative to the Act agreed upon by the Finance Commission for the settlement of the Tunisian debts, signed at Tunis on the 23rd March, 1870, and to the new financial régime which it would appear that France contemplated establishing in Tunis in lieu of that now existing under that Act in the Regency.

That we should perceive that your Lordship had been in communication with the Italian Ambassador at this Court upon that subject, and that the Italian Government were desirous of knowing the views of Her Majesty's Government with respect to the proposed action of the French Government. That our attention was directed to the following documents: (1) Act of Finance Commission; (2) Mr. Reade's No. 40 and inclosure; (3) Mr. Plunkett's No. 500 and inclosure; (4) Mr. Plunkett's No. 631; (5) Article VII of the Treaty between France and Tunis of the 12th May, 1881; (6) Lord Granville to Lord Lyons, two despatches, 20th May, 1881; and "Tunis No. 6 (1881)," pp. 52 and 55, 56.

---

* Mr. Thornton, No. 81, Very Confidential, November 22, 1884.

† See "London Gazette" of January 4, 1884, Confidential No. 4905*.

1884

That in the absence of more definite information and of any direct proposals from the French Government up to the present moment upon that subject, your Lordship was scarcely prepared to express a formal opinion upon the bearings of the contemplated measure; but as the question raised by the British members of the Finance Commission would now arise, Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, under the existing arrangement, the Bey of Tunis does not possess the power to abolish the Finance Commission proprio motu, on payment in full of the debt, in the manner therein stipulated, although it was provided that the debt "sera liquidée par la Commission." (See Act of Finance Commission, p. 502.)

That that appeared, from Mr. Plunkett's despatch No. 631 of the 18th September last, to be the contention of M. Billot.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That by the Act of 1870 for the settlement of the Tunisian debts it is provided that the obligations issued thereunder should enjoy, "jusqu'à leur rachat intégral," precedence over future debts contracted by the Tunisian Government.

Mode of redemption provided by Act of 1870 must be carried out;

They were each to have attached thirty half-yearly coupons, and those which were not "amorties" at the expiration of the fifteen years were to be exchanged for new obligations. It was further provided that if the revenues hypothecated exceeded 6,500,000 fr., but were less than 8,000,000 fr, the difference should be employed "à l'amortissement de la dette par la voie du rachat au cours du jour;" and the obligations bear upon the face of them a reference to the Act of 1870, and to the fact that they are to be redeemed "par voie du rachat."

but not necessarily through Finance Commission.

If the mode of redemption thus provided for be carried out, and the bonds completely extinguished, we think it would not be material that this should be effected through the Financial Commission. But it appears to us that the creditors are entitled to require that the mode of redemption provided for by the Act of 1870 should be pursued.

Not competent to give opinion as to exact method.

We are not sure that we completely understand what the exact method pointed out is, and we do not therefore feel competent to express an opinion with regard to it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

To Sir A. Paget, No. 362 A. December 7, 1882; Confidential No. 4775, p. 121*.
Mr. Plunkett, No. 497, August 3, 1883, in Confidential No. 4923.
„ „ No. 500, August 7, 1883, ibid.
Count Nigra. August 14, 1883, ibid.
Mr. Reade, No. 40, August 6, 1883, with Memorandum thereon by Sir E. Hertslet, August 22, 1883, ibid.
To M. Catalani, September 5, 1883, ibid.
To Mr. Reade, No. 15, September 5, 1883, ibid.
To Mr. Plunkett, No. 849, September 5, 1883, ibid.
Mr. Plunkett, No. 631, September 18, 1883, ibid.
Count Nigra (Translation), September 17, 1883, ibid.
To Count Nigra, September 22, 1883, ibid.
Treaty. France and Tunis, May 21, 1824; State Papers, vol. xiv, p. 712.
„ „ „ August 8, 1830; „ vol. xix, p. 1050.
Beylical Decree, July 5, 1869, Confidential No. 2785.
Act of Finance Commission (Tunis), March 23, 1870; State Papers, vol. lxvii, p. 500.
General Convention between Great Britain and Tunis, July 19, 1875, No. 586.
Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet) respecting Tunis Finance Commission, May 12, 1881; Confidential No. 4846.
„ „ Increase in Tunisian Import Duties, December 7, 1882; Confidential No. 4775, p 120.
Treaty. France and Tunis, May 12, 1881. "Tunis No. 6 (1881)," Parliamentary No. 2415.

---

No. 89.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 4, 1884.

My Lord,

Tramway concession. Claim of Esparto Fibre Company, on account of refusal of permission to carry it out.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relative to the claim of the Franco-English Tunisian Esparto Fibre Company to compensation, on account of the refusal of the French authorities in Tunis to allow them to construct a tramway for the conveyance of their produce, which right they claimed as holders of a Concession granted by the Bey of Tunis to a French subject, the late M. René Duplessis.

That the original Concession was sold by M. Duplessis to Mr. E. J. Hough, of London, from whom the Company afterwards acquired it by purchase.

That for particulars of this claim we were referred to the Company's letters of the 18th December, 1883, the 7th January, 1884, and the 3rd March.

That in reply to their representations, the Company were informed by the Foreign Office on the 25th February that their claims should be dealt with in accordance with the understanding recently arrived at with the French Government for the settlement of outstanding British claims upon the occasion of the abandonment of the right of British Consular jurisdiction in Tunis, and that, consequently, if an amicable arrangement was not effected, recourse must be had to arbitration.

That such was the agreement come to with M. Waddington, the French Ambassador at this Court, with regard to that particular class of claim. (Nos. 30, 34, 38, and 39 in Parliamentary Paper C.)

That it appeared, however, from a telegram from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Tunis, dated the 5th March, that M. d'Estournelles, the French Chargé d'Affaires, contended that the claim of the Company did not come within the operation of the agreement for the settlement of British claims by arbitration, because it was specially provided by Article 7 of the Concession to M. Duplessis that all differences which might arise between the Tunisian Government and the grantees or assignees of the Concession should be decided by the French Tribunal at Tunis.

That Article 7 of the Concession would be found at p. 4 of Paper (A).

That it might be contended, however, that the provision in question was intended only to specify the Tribunal before which legal proceedings, if found necessary, should be instituted; whereas the object of the agreement for the settlement of British claims by arbitration, was to obviate the necessity of any recourse to Courts of Law.

Question as to validity of French objection to arbitration.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to the validity of the objection put forward by the French Chargé d'Affaires to the settlement of the claims of the Company by arbitration.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 12th ultimo, stating that with reference to his letter of the 10th ultimo he was to transmit copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Franco-English Tunisian Esparto Fibre Supply Company,† requesting that a decision upon the point raised by M. d'Estournelles, the French Chargé d'Affaires at Tunis, might be deferred until the Company have had an opportunity of submitting evidence which they believe would rebut the view held by the French Chargé d'Affaires.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 17th ultimo, in which he stated that with reference to his former letters, he was to transmit to us a letter from the Secretary of the above-

---

* List of Papers referred to Law Officers, March 10, 1884:—
(A.) Esparto Fibre Company, December 18, 1883.
(B.) Ditto, January 7, 1884.
(C.) Parliamentary Paper, "Tunis No. 1 (1884)." Foreign Office No. 2767.
(D.) Mr. Reade (Telegraphic), No. 6, March 5, 1884.
(E.) Esparto Fibre Company, March 3, 1884.

Also to M. Waddington, January 24, 1884.
Mr. Reade, December 29, 1883.
Esparto Fibre Company, January 31, 1884.
To Mr. Reade, No 7, February 25, 1884.
To Esparto Fibre Company, February 25, 1884.
Esparto Fibre Company, March 1, 1884.
Ditto, March 3, 1884

† March 11, 1884.

THE OCEANA GROUP PUBLISHERS

1884

mentioned Company,* stating at length the objections of the Company to the contention of the French Chargé d'Affaires at Tunis, that their claim to compensation, arising out of the refusal of the French authorities to allow them to construct a tramway for the conveyance of their produce, must be submitted to the French Tribunal at Tunis, under Article 7 of the original Concession.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion at our earliest convenience on the question submitted in his letter of the 10th ultimo.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 1st instant, stating that with reference to his letters of the 17th, 12th, and 10th ultimo, he was to transmit to us a note from the French Ambassador at this Court,† supporting the contention that the claim of the Franco-English Tunisian Esparto Company was not one for reference to arbitration, under the arrangement recently made between Her Majesty's Government and the Government of France, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that your Lordship might be favoured with a Report upon that matter at our early convenience.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think there can be no doubt that the Company possess only such rights under the Concession as were possessed by M. Duplessis, and cannot claim any independent rights.

Company can only claim rights granted to M. Duplessis, the original concessionnaire."

They are therefore bound by all the Articles of the Concession, just as M. Duplessis would have been—so far, at all events, as they can be practically given effect to. And it is expressly provided by Article 7 that that Article shall apply even though M. Duplessis should cede his rights.

It may be that if a difference had arisen resulting in a claim by the Bey against the English Company, there would have been a difficulty in enforcing the provisions of Article 7, and compelling them to be bound by the decision of the French Tribunal, though we are by no means sure that this difficulty would have been found insuperable. But, in the present case, the difference is one which results in a claim by the Company against the Bey.

It is clear that this could not have been determined by the British Consular Court; and if the Bey were willing to submit to the jurisdiction of the French Tribunal, and to be bound by its decision, we see no greater difficulty in carrying out the provisions of Article 7 now than if M. Duplessis were himself the claimant. Nor do we think that the change from the French Consular Tribunal to the Court now substituted for it makes Article 7 inapplicable, always assuming that the Bey can and will submit himself to, and be bound by, the existing French Tribunal.

Grounds on which to base request for arbitration.

The only ground, therefore, on which reliance can, in our opinion, be placed in urging the propriety of an arbitration is the arrangement come to between the English and French Governments with reference to the settlement of outstanding claims.

We think it is fairly open to the contention that the intention was to withdraw all outstanding claims by British subjects against the Government of Tunis from the French Tribunals about to be recognized.

And the case seems one within the spirit of the agreement between the two Governments, and in which hardship may not improbably be suffered by the English Company if they are compelled to resort to the French Tribunals.

Great force in French objection under Article 7 of Concession.

At the same time we feel that there is great force in Baron d'Estournelles' view, and that Her Majesty's Government would not stand on very firm ground in insisting upon an arbitration.

It will be, therefore, for the consideration of Her Majesty's Government how the matter should be pressed if it should be determined to urge the claim to an arbitration.

We may observe that in M. Waddington's letter of the 29th December, 1883, he limits the claims which are to be referred to arbitration to "claims as to personal property" between the Tunisian Government and English subjects.

As it is not for "personal property," the claim should be made for damages.

This creates some additional difficulty, for it may be insisted that the dispute which has arisen is not a claim for "personal property."

The difficulty, if raised, may, however, possibly be met by the view that the claim is for damages for not having been allowed to make the tramway provided for by the Concession; but the point is one of difficulty.

Further French objections:—

From the despatch of M. Waddington of the 29th March, now submitted to us, it appears that two points are taken against the reference of this case to arbitration, in addition to that arising from the terms of the 7th Article of the Concession.

---

* Esparto Fibre Company, February 13, 1884.

† M. Waddington, March 29, 1884.

1. That Company is French;

The first, viz., that the Company is a French Company, is, as far as we are aware, erroneous in point of fact.

2. That claim is "immobilière."

The second objection is that the claim is "immobilière" in its nature. To this point we alluded in the earlier part of our Report, which was prepared before we received the further communication from your Lordship of the 1st instant.

First is erroneous; but the second is formidable.

It is certainly a formidable one if the Company are claiming that they shall be empowered to make the railway, and specifically to enforce such right in place of claiming damages for not being allowed to construct it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 90.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 25.) ✓

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 24, 1884.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to a correspondence that had lately passed between the French Residency and Her Majesty's Consulate-General at Tunis respecting two negress slaves who recently escaped from the house of their master, and, taking refuge in Her Majesty's Consulate-General, demanded and obtained certificates of manumission, but who had since been claimed as wives by two black servants or slaves of the master from whose house those women had escaped.

Negress slaves taking refuge in British Consulate;

Claimed as wives of servants of house they escaped from.

Supposed conspiracy to reduce them to slavery.

That it would be observed from the inclosures to Mr. Reade's despatch that the Consul-General contended that the Cadi's Judgment was only part of a conspiracy to reduce those women into slavery.

That having regard to the fact that the French were now responsible for the general administration of justice in the Regency, that they called on Consul Reade to give up the women, and that it had been agreed that the inviolability of Her Majesty's Consulate-General should not be resorted to to obstruct the course of justice, the question gave rise to some difficulty.

As to handing them to French Consul General.

That your Lordship was disposed to think that the best course might be to hand over the women, not to the Cadi, but to the French Consul-General and Agent, placing them under his protection under the circumstances communicated by Mr. Reade, and leaving to him the responsibility of further action.

That our opinion was requested as to the best course to be followed under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the question raised is one of extreme difficulty. On the one hand, the claim for the delivery up of the negresses is advanced by the French Chargé d'Affaires, whose Government is administering affairs in Tunis, and is responsible for the general administration of justice in that country, the demand being founded on the decision of a local Court. On the other hand, there seems to be considerable weight in the criticisms of Mr. Reade upon that decision, and in the suggestion made by him that the story of the marriages is a mere device to secure the return of the women to slavery.

Lay case before French Government, making them responsible.

Perhaps the best course will be for Her Majesty's Government to lay all the circumstances of the case before the French Government, pointing out how serious a matter it would be if the betrothals were merely colourable pretexts for the purpose of replacing the women in a state of slavery, and the danger there would be in encouraging and assisting slavery, if such allegations were yielded to, supported by no better evidence than exists in the present case. It might also be pointed out that the French authorities, equally with ourselves, are interested in, and must be desirous of putting a stop to such practices. And they might be strongly urged themselves to make a further and more careful investigation into the matter, inasmuch as if the women are given up and it should turn out that they have been really remitted to slavery, the responsibility for such an unfortunate occurrence would rest with the French authorities.

1884

Meanwhile, keep them under protection of British Consul.

Until the result of such representation is known, we think the women should be allowed to remain under the protection of the British Consul.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Printed Correspondence relative to abandonment of Consular jurisdiction in Tunis. (?) Confidential 4853.
Consul-General Reade, No. 15, April 16.

---

No. 91.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 10, 1884.

Fugitive negress slaves in the British Consulate-General.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that with reference to our Report of the 24th June last, he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin* which related to the case of two negress slaves who escaped from the house of their master, and took refuge in Her Majesty's Consulate-General, but had been claimed as wives by two black servants of the master from whose house they had escaped.

That a copy of the note which Lord Lyons had addressed to the French Government, in accordance with instructions which were sent to his Excellency, founded on our above-mentioned Report, was inclosed in his Excellency's despatch No. 71 of the 21st July; and that the reply of the French Government to that communication would be found inclosed in Sir J. Walsham's No. 90, Africa, of the 8th October, together with a copy of the Report on the case which had been furnished to his Government by the French Minister resident in Tunis.

That Mr. Reade's despatch, reporting the case with its inclosures, was also inclosed for reference.

That our opinion was requested on the reply of the French Government, and as to the course which should be pursued in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

They should not be given up without Her Majesty's Government being satisfied that the Decree of the Tunisian Court is absolutely binding.

That whilst there is so much strength in the views put forward by the French Government, that Her Majesty's Government may have ultimately to yield to them, we feel that every care should be taken not to direct the rendering up of the refugees in question, without Her Majesty's Government being satisfied that the Decree of the Tunisian Court is absolutely binding.

Mr. Reade should be asked to explain the correctness of his statements.

We observe that Mr. Reade, in his letter of 3rd April, 1884, to Baron d'Estournelles, alleges (1) that the claim of the husbands of slaves for their restitution has never been admitted by the English Government; (2) that the Judgment of the Cadi, and the whole proceedings are opposed to the 37th Article of the Anglo-Tunisian Treaty of 1875.

We think that inquiry should be made from Mr. Reade as to the correctness of these statements, and the grounds which exist for making them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 92.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 11, 1884.

G. Jackson, Petition for remission of sentence.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 14th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin,* which related to a Petition from George Jackson, a prisoner in Malta Gaol, who prayed for the remission of the sentence passed upom him by Her Majesty's Consular Court at Tunis.

That the Petition, together with the particulars of the prison history of the prisoner, were transmitted to the Foreign Office through the Colonial Office, and would be found in the inclosures to the Colonial Office letter of the 30th June last.

That the opinion of Mr. Reade, Her Majesty's Consul-General at Tunis, would be found in his despatch No. 16, Consular, of the 5th August, which also inclosed a copy of the Minutes of Evidence of Dr. Arpa, the Judge of the Court before whom the case was tried.

That it would be seen from the particulars of the prison history that the prisoner was a dangerous criminal and an old offender, against whom fourteen previous convictions were recorded, and that your Lordship doubted whether the case was one in which the sentence should be interfered with.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the sentence on George Jackson should be wholly or partly remitted.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in our opinion, there do not appear at present to be sufficient grounds for interfering with the sentence.

At present no sufficient grounds for interfering.

Neither Jackson himself, in terms, nor Giarraffo assert Jackson's innocence, but the evidence, beyond his presence in the hut, is slight. It seems to consist of his running away and his jacket being off.

We would suggest that Mr. Reade, who says he has "carefully investigated this case," and recommends it for favourable consideration, should be asked whether he has any facts in his possession beyond those disclosed by the evidence, and, if so, what they are. He could probably obtain information from the Italian Consuls, if he does not possess it already, as to what led to the acquittal of Giarraffo.

Mr. Reade shoulb be asked for any further evidence he may have as to the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 93.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 24, 1884.

G. Jackson's Petition for remission of sentence of Consular Court at Tunis.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us, with reference to our Report of the 11th November respecting the case of George Jackson, a despatch from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Tunis,† containing the further particulars asked for in our Report.‡

That the papers which were previously submitted to us were also inclosed, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with any further observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Sentence should be reduced from five to three years.

That having taken into consideration the contents of Mr. Reade's despatch of the 27th November, we suggest that your Lordship will be justified in partially remitting the sentence of George Jackson, by reducing the original sentence from five years' imprisonment to three, thus liberating the prisoner in September 1886.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Viscount Lyons, No. 71, Africa, July 31; Sir J. Walsham, No. 90, Africa, October 8; Mr. Reade, No. 15, April 16, 1884.

* Colonial Office, June 30; Mr. Reade, No. 16, Consular, August 5, 1884.
† Mr. Reade, No. 20, November 27, 1884.
‡ See Report of November 11, 1884.

1884

Turkey.

---

No. 94.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 31, 1884.

Registration of native Indian subjects in Turkey.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relative to the registration of native Indian subjects in the dominions of the Sublime Ottoman Porte, and that he was to request our opinion as to whether the proposed answer to Mr. Fawcett was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approving answer.

That, in our opinion, the proposed answer to Mr. Fawcett is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. Fawcett, No. 9, January 7. 1884.
Ottoman Orders in Council, Confidential No. 2354.
Draft of proposed instruction to Mr. Fawcett.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Consul-General Fawcett.

Sir, Foreign Office, February , 1884.

Indians not bound to register themselves, but cannot sue in Consular Courts unless registered.

WITH reference to the question raised in your despatch No. 9 of the 7th instant, as to whether Consular officers should or should not afford protection to Indian subjects of Her Majesty who, being involved in legal proceedings, come to the Consular office at the last moment to register themselves, I am directed by Earl Granville to inform you that his Lordship is advised that, under section 17 of the Order n Council of the 12th December, 1873, native Indian subjects are not bound to register themselves, but that unless they do so, they cannot sue in the Consular Courts in civil cases, though themselves liable to be sued before them.

Consular Courts have no jurisdiction unless Indian subject was registered at time of committing the offence.

As regards criminal cases, the Consular Courts have no jurisdiction if the native Indian subject was not registered at the time of committing the offence, and he or she must be tried by the Turkish Courts, but, subject to that provision, Indians are entitled to British protection in the Ottoman dominions immediately on registration.

I am, &c.

---

No. 95.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 5, 1884.

Application of new Bankruptcy Act to Ottoman dominions

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers noted in the margin,* which related to the carrying out of the provisions of the new Bankruptcy Act by Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople and by Her Majesty's Court for Egypt.

That Mr. Fawcett, the Judge of the Supreme Consular Court, raised the question whether the new Act was applicable at all to the Ottoman dominions; while Mr. Cookson, the Judge of the Court for Egypt, asked for the appointment, by the Board of Trade, of an Official Receiver, under section 66 of the new Act, and proposed that Her Majesty's Vice-Consul at Alexandria should be appointed to that office.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to section 6 of Her Majesty's Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, for the regulation of British jurisdiction in the Levant, which provided that the Imperial statute law in force for the time being should be applied "as far as circumstances admit;" and also to section 87 of the same Order, conferring bankruptcy jurisdiction on the Consular Courts, "as far as circumstances admit."

That it had generally been considered that, under such provisions, the Judge might himself discharge any duties vested by the Imperial Act in any officer of the Court in England; and that as Mr. Cookson had urgently applied, by telegram, for an immediate reply to his despatch No. 4 of the 7th January (see telegram of the 19th January), he had been informed that the question had been referred to the Law Officers of the Crown, and that in the meanwhile he might himself discharge the functions of Official Receiver.

That your Lordship presumed that the new Act superseded the old one in the Ottoman dominions, and must be applied by Her Majesty's Consular Courts "as far as circumstances admit." But that the question arose whether the Official Receiver should be appointed by the Board of Trade or by the Secretary of State under section 13 of the Order in Council.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take these papers into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and in the despatches of Mr. Fawcett and Mr. Cookson, and, with any general observations which we might have to offer on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

New Act is applicable.

That Lord Granville is correct in presuming that the new Act supersedes the old one in the Ottoman dominions, and must be applied by Her Majesty's Consular Courts "as far as circumstances will admit."

Board of Trade cannot appoint Receivers.

We do not think the Board of Trade has jurisdiction to appoint the Official Receivers.

Duties of Receiver should be assigned by Judge.

We think that the duties of Official Receiver should be assigned by the Judge, with the approval of the Secretary of State, under section 13 of the Order in Council.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 96.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 11, 1884.

Service of process on British subjects in England by order of Consular Court in Ottoman dominions.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the inclosed despatch from Consul-General Fawcett,* the Judge of Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople, in which he asked for instructions as to the power of British Consular Courts in the Ottoman dominions to order service of process on British subjects in England.

That that question was answered negatively in our Report of the 2nd July, 1881, of which a copy was also inclosed, together with the Order in Council for the regulation of Her Majesty's jurisdiction in the Ottoman dominions.†

That your Lordship would be glad to be informed whether we saw any ground to modify the opinion expressed in that Report; and, if not, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether, in cases where

---

* Mr. Fawcett, No. 12, January 11, 1884; the new (1883) Bankruptcy Act, 46 & 47 Vict., cap. 52; the Bankruptcy Act (1869), 32 & 33 Vict., cap. 71; Ottoman Orders in Council, Confidential No. 2873; Mr. Cookson, No. 4, January 7; Mr. Cookson (Telegraphic), January 19, 1884.

* Consul-General Fawcett, No. 15, January 26, 1884.

† Law Officers' Report, July 2, 1881 (Confidential No. 4637, p. 87); Order in Council for the Ottoman Dominions, December 12, 1873 (Confidential No. 2873).

1884

the defendant was out of the jurisdiction, but the cause of action arose within it, the Consular Court could order service to be effected in one of the methods prescribed by section 53 of the Ottoman Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Court has not power to order such service.

That we see no reason to modify the opinion expressed in our former Report, that the Judge of the Consular Court has no power to order service of process upon British subjects in this country.

Not proper to give opinion on questions as to service other than personal.

This, however, does not determine the question whether, in any particular case, he may properly order the service to be other than personal, and to be effected in either of the modes prescribed by section 53 of the Ottoman Order in Council.

We do not think it would be proper for us to express an opinion whether an order could fitly be made for the service to be thus effected in the case referred to in Mr. Fawcett's letter, seeing that the point might possibly be raised for judicial decision.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 97.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 17.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 15, 1884.

Jurisdiction of British Consular Court at Constantinople over foreign sailors charged with murder on British vessel.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Mr. Fawcett, Her Majesty's Consul-General and Judge of the Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople, relative to a charge of murdering a sailor on board a British vessel in the harbour of Sulina, brought against a German and an Italian, both being also sailors belonging to the same ship, in which he raised the question whether the British Consular Court had jurisdiction in the case.

That Mr. Fawcett referred to the instructions which were sent to him in 1877 in the case of Stiglitz, an Austrian sailor belonging to a British vessel, who murdered a shipmate on shore.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of the instructions referred to, also copies of "The Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1878," and of Her Majesty's Order in Council of the 3rd May, 1882, whereby section 11 of "The Merchant Shipping Act, 1867," was made applicable, with certain limitations, to the Ottoman dominions; and Sir E. Hertslet's collection of Treaties with Turkey; also a copy of our Report of the 7th September, 1880, on the case of J. M. Ross in Japan.

Proposed instruction. Court has no power to try foreign sailors belonging to British vessel.

That your Lordship proposed, with our concurrence, to inform Mr. Fawcett, in reply to his inquiry, that Her Majesty's Consular Courts in Turkey could only exercise criminal jurisdiction over British subjects, and, consequently, that they have no power to try a foreign seaman belonging to a British ship for any offence committed within or without the Ottoman dominions.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the proposed instruction was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve instruction.

That, in our opinion, the proposed instruction is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Mr. Fawcett, No. 13, January 15, 1884.
To Mr. Fawcett, No. 8, March 20, 1877.
"The Foreign Jurisdiction Act (1878)," 41 & 42 Vict., cap. 67.
Order in Council, May 3, 1882 (Confidential No. 4635*).
Treaties with Turkey. Collection by Sir E. Hertslet.
Law Officers, September 7, 1880 (Confidential No 4539), p. 62.

---

No. 98.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 10.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 9, 1884.

Navigation of the Tigris and Euphrates.

Claim of Porte to stop traffic of Company.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 19th February last relating to the difficulty which had arisen between Her Majesty's Government and the Sublime Porte touching the right claimed by the Turkish Government to stop the traffic of the Tigris and Euphrates Steam Navigation Company.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 25th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us papers relating to the navigation of the Tigris and Euphrates with reference to those then before us.

That the first portion of the inclosed papers related to the rumoured desire on the part of the Ottoman authorities at Baghdad to settle the matters in dispute by buying up the existing Tigris and Euphrates Navigation Company, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to ask whether, in our opinion, any communication should be addressed to the Porte on the question of that rumoured action of their authorities at Baghdad.

That the second portion of the papers related to the claims of the Company to compensation for the losses they may have suffered through the action of the Porte; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to ask for an expression of our opinion on the action, if any, which Her Majesty's Government should take in regard to these claims.

That the particulars respecting the Company's claims would be found at p. 119 of the printed correspondence which was inclosed in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 19th February.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion on the questions submitted in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letters.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Turkish note may be answered as proposed.

That we think the note of the Turkish Ambassador may properly be answered in the sense of the observations submitted thereon.

We may add that in the light of the fuller information now before us with reference to the extent to which navigation on the Tigris existed prior to 1846 and otherwise, we think the Vizirial letter of 1846 affords more evidence in support of Lord Stratford de Redcliffe's statement of the arrangement arrived at than it appeared to us to do when we made our former report.

Position of British Government stronger than stated in their previous report.

The position of the British Government seems therefore to be somewhat stronger than we then thought, though the difficulties arising from the action of the Embassy at Constantinople subsequent to 1846 still remain.

With regard to the further questions submitted in Sir Julian's Pauncefote's letter of the 25th March, it hardly seems necessary to make any communication at present to the Porte, as sanction only has as yet been given to the formation of an Ottoman Company on condition that it does not infringe upon the rights of Messrs. Lynch's Company.

Expedient to postpone action as to claim of Company.

We submit that it would probably be expedient to postpone any action for the purpose of enforcing the claim of the Company until an understanding has been arrived at upon the main question.

Opinion as to claims 2 and 3.

Claims 2 and 3 appear right in principle if the Company were entitled to run the barges, which, however, as appears from our former Report, is not altogether free from doubt.

The amounts strike us as somewhat exaggerated.

Information as to claim 1 not sufficient for forming opinion.

We are not sufficiently informed of the facts to express an opinion whether the first claim is one that can be supported.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

1884

List of Papers sent February 19, 1884.

(A.) "Correspondence respecting the Question of the Navigation of the Tigris," Confidential No. 5017.
(B.) Memorandum (Mr. Kennedy), July 20, 1883, Confidential No. 4838.
(C.) Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), March 27, 1881, Confidential No. 4439.
(D.) Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), July 28, 1881, Confidential No. 4835.
(E.) Memorandum (Mr. Plowden), July 31, 1883, Confidential No. 4838, p. 17.
(F.) Law Officers, November 18, 1881, Confidential No. 4637, p. 98.
(G.) Correspondence 1873-74, MS. vol.
(H.) Memorandum (Lord E. Fitzmaurice), August 18, 1883.
(I.) Musurus Pasha, December 28, 1883, Confidential No. 5017, p. 122.
(J.) Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), February 8, 1881, Confidential No. 4802.
(K.) Memorandum (Sir L. Pelly), Confidential No. 4838, pp. 15 and 16.

---

APPENDIX.

No.

1. Firman, December 29, 1834, Confidential No. 4838.
2. Vizirial Letter, September 13, 1842, ibid.
3. Firman, December 17 (27), 1834.
4. Firman, September 8 (17), 1841.
5. Despatches from Sir S. Canning: No. 45, March 18, 1846; No. 53, April 4, 1846, Confidential No. 4838.
6. Vizirial Letter, April 2, 1846, ibid.
7. Vizirial Letter, January 15, 1861, ibid.
8. Note by Mr. Redhouse, Oriental Translator, January 5, 1884.

---

List of Papers inclosed in Sir Julian Pauncefote's Letter of March 25, 1884.

Lord Dufferin, No. 53, Commercial, March 15, 1884; ditto, No. 57, Commercial, March 17, 1884.
Tigris and Euphrates Navigation Company, March 20, 1884; ditto, March 5, 1884.
To Tigris and Euphrates Navigation Company, March 10, 1884.

---

No. 99.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 29.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 28, 1884.

My Lord,

Right of British vessels to navigate the Tigris and Euphrates.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 19th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers, together with a copy of our Report of the 9th ultimo, on the case of the Tigris and Euphrates Steam Navigation Company and the general question of the right of British vessels to navigate the Tigris and Euphrates.

That in that Report we stated that, in our opinion, the note of the Turkish Ambassador of the 28th January last might properly be answered in the sense of the observations thereon which were submitted in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter to us of the 19th February.

That a draft reply to the Turkish note had accordingly been prepared, and that he was to request that we would take the same into our consideration, together with the other papers transmitted, and that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship whether the draft met with our approval or required any amendment.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the draft meets with our approval.

Approve draft to Turkish Ambassador, with slight alteration.

The only amendment we would suggest is that made by us in the last paragraph but two. As worded at present, it might be taken as expressing a willingness to waive absolutely for the future any right to the claim of general navigation if the rights hitherto enjoyed by the Company are respected and maintained.

We do not gather that this is the intention of the Government.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

For List of Papers marked (A) to (K), and Appendices 1 to 8, see Law Officers' Report of April 9, 1884.
(L.) Draft to Law Officers, February 19, 1884.
(M.) Law Officers, April 9, 1884.
(N.) Draft to Musurus Pasha.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter from Earl Granville to Musurus Pasha.

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, , 1884.

HER Majesty's Government have given their most careful attention to your Excellency's note of the 28th December last respecting the forcible stoppage of the traffic of the Tigris and Euphrates Steam Navigation Company by the local authorities at Bagdad, and the general question of the right of British vessels to navigate the Tigris and the Euphrates. I now have the honour to communicate to your Excellency the replies of Her Majesty's Government to the various arguments adduced in that note.

Your Excellency denies that a general right to navigate the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates was ever conceded by the Porte to British vessels, and with regard to the Vizirial letters of 1846 and 1861, you argue that if those documents had been intended to concede a general right of navigation, the reference to the Firmans of 1834 and 1841 in the Vizirial letter of 1861 would have been superfluous; that it is impossible to hold that such a right could be accorded by simple Vizirial letters; that it must necessarily have formed the subject of a Treaty, the benefit of which, moreover, would be claimed at once by all the other Powers entitled to most-favoured-nation treatment. That the Vizirial letters had no reference to British vessels entitled to carry the British flag, but only to British-owned native craft which improperly carried the British flag, and thus escaped the payment of dues. That the object of the Vizirial letters was only to record the decision of the Porte, that British-owned native craft might continue to navigate the rivers on payment of the same dues as the vessels belonging to Ottoman subjects, and that accordingly they had continued to do so to this day, subject to such payment and without carrying the British flag. That the Report of the "Hôtel des Monnaies" referred to in the Vizirial letter of 1846 was only intended to lay down that native craft owned by foreigners engaged in the internal trade must pay the same dues as vessels owned by Ottoman subjects, and engaged in the same internal trade, and not to decide the question whether British vessels had the right to navigate the rivers, such a question not being within the competence of that Department. That owing to the vague terms of the Vizirial letters there had been confusion on the part of Her Majesty's Government between British vessels entitled to carry the British flag and British-owned native vessels, which caused them to place on those letters an interpretation as erroneous as it was inadmissible. Your Excellency added that the Tigris and Euphrates Steam Navigation Company would do well, therefore, to abandon untenable pretensions, and to restrict itself to the privilege conferred by the Firmans, which was limited to the navigation of the Euphrates only, by two British steamers. That right of navigation you maintain is derived solely from the Firmans of 1834 and 1841.

Her Majesty's Government are unable, however, to agree to this statement of the facts of the case, or to the interpretation thus sought to be placed on the documents relating to it.

In the first place, I would observe that the above-mentioned Firmans have no reference to the steamers of the Tigris and Euphrates Steam Navigation Company, but only to the two British Government steamers, which were authorized by those Firmans to ply on the Euphrates, and which had ceased to navigate that river long before the Company was established.

The Company was created in 1862, for the purpose of establishing a line of steamers between Mohammerah, Bussorah, and Bagdad, and in order to prevent any opposition on the part of the local authorities, the British Ambassador applied to the Porte for a renewal of the orders given to the Vali of Bagdad in a Vizirial letter dated the 2nd April, 1846.

That letter had been addressed to the Vali in 1846 in execution of an Agreement arrived at between Sir Stratford Canning and the Porte, by way of settlement of a dispute concerning the navigation of the rivers by British vessels and the payment of dues in the internal trade.

Sir Stratford Canning, in his despatches of that date, reports that the dispute had been settled as follows: That whereas British-owned native boats had for forty years carried on the internal trade on the rivers under the British flag and without payment of dues, they should in future pay the same dues as the native-owned boats engaged in the same trade. On the other hand, that British vessels entitled to carry the British flag would be entitled to navigate the rivers under their national colours, either for the purposes of the foreign trade or of the internal trade, subject to the payment of the local dues or Treaty Customs duties applicable to such trades respectively, and as regards British vessels passing up the rivers beyond the customary port of entry (Bussorah), subject to the payment of an anchorage due of 5 piastres only.

1884

The corresponding record of the Agreement will no doubt be found in the archives of the Sublime Porte.

In February 1860 Messrs. Lynch and Co., being desirous of establishing a line of steamers on the rivers, applied to the Foreign Office for information as to the right of navigation, and they were informed in reply of the arrangement concluded by Sir Stratford Canning.

In 1861, with a view to the carrying out of their project, the Grand Vizier, at the request of the British Ambassador, addressed a letter to the Vali of Bagdad, dated the 15th January, 1861, renewing the orders given in the Vizirial letter of 1846.

The same orders were renewed again in 1862, when the Company formed by Messrs. Lynch put their first steamer on the Tigris, and opened their line between Bagdad and Bussorah, and that line has been in active operation ever since.

Your Excellency, with a view to vindicating the recent action of the Porte, endeavours to show that the two Vizirial letters of 1846 and 1861 have a totally different meaning from that which Her Majesty's Government attach to them. But the interpretation which your Excellency asks Her Majesty's Government to place on those letters appears inconsistent with the express terms of the documents.

The Grand Vizier, in the letter of the 2nd April, 1846, after distinctly stating that the British Ambassador had claimed the right of British vessels to trade in both rivers on payment of the dues "established by Treaty," cites the Report of the "Hôtel des Monnaies," to which the British Embassy had given its adhesion, and which had been submitted to and approved by the Sultan.

That Report declares what are the proper dues payable by vessels engaged in the internal trade, "under whatever flag they may sail," and those payable by British vessels entering the rivers, or issuing therefrom, for the purposes of the external trade, and it prescribes the amount of anchorage toll for the latter. The Grand Vizier then proceeds to declare that His Imperial Majesty had approved the Report, and had ordered that it should be put into execution; and he accordingly directs the Vali to levy on British-owned vessels engaged in the internal traffic the same dues as on native vessels, and to levy on the cargoes of British vessels "qui viennent du dehors et qui vont à l'étranger," the established customs duties, and an anchorage toll of 5 piastres.

The Vizirial letter of the 15th January, 1861, is still more explicit on the point.

The Grand Vizier commences by stating that the British Ambassador had requested "a renewel of the orders which were sent concerning the British steamers and boats authorized by His Majesty to ply on the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates;" and after referring to the privileges formerly granted by Imperial Firmans in 1834 and 1841, he proceeds to set out the Vizirial instructions issued in 1846 at the request of the British Embassy. He cites the distinction therein laid down between the internal trade and the trade carried on "by British vessels, whether coming loaded from abroad and entering one of those two rivers with their cargoes, or issuing therefrom to the sea laden with Ottoman produce, and bound for foreign countries," which (he states) are liable only to the Treaty Tariff and to the mooring toll "on entering or leaving the Tigris or Euphrates, like all other foreign ships coming to other ports of the Ottoman Empire;" and he renews the order that those rules should be carried out.

The above passages would be inexplicable were your Excellency's interpretation of the Vizirial letters to be accepted. On the other hand, they are entirely consistent with the Agreement of 1846, above mentioned, and recorded in Sir Stratford Canning's despatches of that year.

With respect to your Excellency's argument, that such an Agreement could not be concluded otherwise than by a Treaty, it is to be observed that if such an Agreement was made it is not the less valid as an International Agreement because the Porte did not think fit to give effect to it by an Imperial Firman, or to insist on making it the subject of a formal Treaty.

But even if it be conceded that the Contracting Parties were not ad idem in respect of the Agreement, and that there was no intention on the part of the Porte to grant to British shipping in general the right of navigating the rivers, Her Majesty's Government contend that the Vizirial letter of 1861, having been issued for the very purpose of enabling the Company to put their two steamers on the Tigris and Euphrates, was intended to confer, and did confer, that privilege on them.

The Company have enjoyed that privilege ever since, with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Porte.

It is true that, as stated by your Excellency, disputes have arisen as to the substitution of new steamers for old ones, the towing of barges, and other matters; but the right of navigation of the two steamers of the Company has never before been contested. This shows that the attitude of the Porte during the last twenty-two years has not been one of "friendly tolerance," as suggested by your Excellency, but one of acquiescence in a claim of right. On the faith of that acquiescence the Company have invested a large capital in depôts at convenient points on both rivers, and in establishments for working the mail, passenger, and cargo services, and they have developed a large trade, to the great benefit of the country.

Her Majesty's Government are not necessarily called upon, therefore, to invoke, in the present case, the general right of navigation claimed by them on the Rivers Tigris and Euphrates.

Whatever may be the true construction of the Agreement of 1846 as to the general right of navigation, Her Majesty's Government consider that the attitude of the Porte during the last twenty-two years debars them from now disputing the validity of the rights claimed and exercised by the Company under the Vizirial letter of 1861, and that they are entitled to insist on the status quo of the Company being maintained.

It is in that sense that during the discussion of the case it was pointed out to your Excellency that if Her Majesty's Government were to waive at the present time, insisting upon their claim to the right of general navigation, the rights hitherto enjoyed by the Company on the rivers must be respected and maintained.

Your Excellency remarks that the question is not one affecting the interests of British commerce in general, but of a private Company, and that if the British Parliament and public should evince so much solicitude for a private Company, how much more is the Porte bound to safeguard the rights of its subjects in general, and to secure to them the advantages of inland navigation, following therein the example of other civilized States. On this point it is hardly necessary for me to state that whatever solicitude may be evinced by Parliament and by the public in the case, it will not have for its object the pecuniary advantages of a private Company, but the maintenance of the just rights of a British Company, legitimately acquired by Agreement between the British Government and the Porte, and confirmed by long usage and acquiescence.

I have only to observe in conclusion, M. l'Ambassadeur, that the abrupt and arbitrary action of the Porte in forcibly stopping the traffic of the Company without notice, and for no other cause than the desire to secure their business and profits for an Ottoman Company, is marked by a singular lack of friendliness and courtesy towards Her Majesty's Government, and presents an incident unparalleled in the history of the commercial relations of this country in any part of the world.

I have, &c.

---

No. 100.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received July 2.)

Royal Courts of Justice, July 1, 1884.

My Lord,

Bankruptcy Act, 1883. Difficulty of applying, under Order in Council of 1883.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 16th May last, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relative to the difficulty of applying the administrative powers of the Bankruptcy Act of 1883 under the Ottoman Order in Council of 1883, and the desirability of making provision to obviate doubts and prevent inconsistencies, not only in the case of the Ottoman Order in Council, but in all other cases in which a similar difficulty might arise.

As to general Order in Council, as in Colonies, applying laws as they stand.

That it was suggested for consideration that it might be desirable, in view of these difficulties, to pass a general Order in Council for amending all the foreign jurisdiction Orders by adopting the principle already adopted in the case of Charters for Crown Colonies, where it had been usual to provide that the English law in force at the date of the Charter should be applied (and subsequent alterations of English law did not affect the Colony until applied to it by local legislation), and thus providing that the English law in force at the date of the Charter* should be applied, and should not be affected by subsequent alterations of the English law [? unless] applied to it by specific legislation.

1884

That Mr. R. S. Wright, who had been consulted on that proposal, had furnished the accompanying Memorandum thereon, in which he reported favourably, and further suggested that it might retrospectively be applied in the case of the Bankruptcy Act, with the proper savings.

That our opinion was requested as to the advisability of the course suggested, and that we would also favour your Lordship with any general observations which we might have to offer.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not advisable in Turkey.

That we doubt whether it would be advisable to adopt the course suggested, at all events as regards the Ottoman dominions. We have not before us the terms of the Capitulations which give this country jurisdiction within those dominions. But, as far as we are aware, the Orders in Council relating thereto have hitherto been confined to the creation of Tribunals and the regulation of their jurisdiction, the law from time to time existing in this country being, as circumstances will permit, applied by those Tribunals to British subjects within the Ottoman dominions.

The Orders in Council have, indeed, created some new offences, but these have been intended to prevent friction and difficulty arising with the Turkish authorities owing to our ex-territorial jurisdiction.

It is now proposed to make the law as it exists at a particular time alone applicable to British subjects in the Ottoman dominions, subject to its being changed from time to time by legislation by means of Orders in Council.

Question might arise as to power to legislate by Order in Council.

We think that this might possibly give rise to grave questions as regards the power to legislate by Order in Council, not merely as regards local matters, but generally in relation to British subjects in the Ottoman dominions.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Mr. Wright, April 4, 1884.
Law Officers, February 5, 1884.

---

No. 101.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received October 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 20, 1884.

Petitions for remission of sentences on J. MacDonald and G. Mercieca.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 8th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,† which related to two Petitions from John MacDonald and Giuseppe Mercieca respectively, who were prisoners in the Corradino Civil Prison, Malta, and prayed for a remission of the sentences passed upon them by Her Majesty's Supreme Court at Constantinople.

That those Petitions, together with the "Particulars of Prison History" of the prisoners, were transmitted to the Foreign Office through the Colonial Office, and that they would be found in the inclosures to the Colonial Office letter of the 16th July last (marked A).

That a Report on the Petitions of both prisoners, by Consul-General Fawcett, would be found in his despatch No. 59 of the 25th August last.

Will not grant in case of Mercieca.

That, in view of that Report, and of the antecedents of Giuseppe Mercieca, your Lordship did not propose to accede to the prayer of his Petition. But that as regarded John MacDonald, your Lordship called for copies of the notes of evidence in his case, with a view to considering whether, having regard to the medical Report on his state of health (which was annexed to his Petition), the whole or any part of the residue of his sentence might properly be remitted.

---

* Sic. Query "at the date of the Order in Council." See Draft to Law Officers of the 16th May.

† Mr. Fawcett, No. 59, August 25; ditto, No. 63, September 22; Inclosure in Colonial Office letter of July 16, 1884.

That the evidence would be found in Mr. Fawcett's despatch No. 63 of the 22nd September last.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, on the ground stated, the sentence of John MacDonald should be wholly or partly remitted.

We also beg to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 9th instant, transmitting some further papers* relating to the case of MacDonald.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Proper to release J. Macdonald at once.

That, in our opinion, it would be proper, under the circumstances, to release John MacDonald at once.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 102.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Investigation by Greek Tribunals of disputed questions of title to land held by Turkish subjects in districts ceded to Greece under the Convention of the 24th May, 1881.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 13th September last, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the adjudication of questions of title to land held by Turkish subjects in the districts ceded to Greece, under the Convention of the 24th May, 1881, between Great Britain, Germany, Austria, France, Italy, Russia, and the Porte.

That on the 24th April last the Turkish Ambassador communicated to your Lordship a despatch from the Porte, dated the 14th April, protesting against the proceedings of the Hellenic authorities, who, notwithstanding Articles IV and VI of the above Convention, insisted on the investigation by the Greek Tribunals of all disputed titles to real property in the districts in question (A).

That his Excellency, in handing that despatch to your Lordship, remarked that the proper way of settling the question was to appoint a Mixed Commission to investigate disputed claims.

That Article IV of the Convention of the 24th May, 1881, provided that the right of property on the farms, as well as on the pasturages, meadows, grazing grounds, forests, and every kind of lands, or other real estate, held by private individuals and communes in virtue of Firmans, hodjets, tapous, and other titles, or else by the Ottoman Law in the districts ceded to Greece, would be recognized by the Hellenic Government.

That, in accordance with Article XVIII, a Convention containing the same provisions was subsequently concluded between the Porte and Greece.

That we were referred to the reply returned to Musurus Pasha's communication.

That on the 25th June a further note from the Porte was communicated to your Lordship by Musurus Pasha, stating that the Greek Government had informed the Representatives of the Powers at Athens that the above-mentioned Articles of the Treaty did not indicate the procedure to be followed in contested cases relating to real property, that the Convention could not contain provisions contrary to the public law of Greece, that the Tribunals of the country were alone competent to decide as to the validity of titles to property, and that the Greek Government could not consequently, without violating the fundamental laws of the kingdom, decide "par voie administrative" as to the validity or otherwise of titles to property produced by Ottoman subjects.

That the Greek Minister for Foreign Affairs added that the Greek Government would never refuse its assistance in cases in which titles were not contested, but that they could not pronounce an opinion in contested cases without exposing themselves to claims on the part of one of the contending parties, who would consider himself deprived of his property in an arbitrary manner.

That in the same note the Turkish Government contended that that reply of the Greek Government was not justified by the terms of Article IV of the Convention of the 24th May, which it alleged imposed on the Greek Government the obligation to recognize "purement et simplement" the Turkish titles and the possession of the land founded thereon, and that the Porte expressed the desire that instructions should be sent to Her Majesty's Minister at Athens to require from the Greek Government compliance with the terms of the said Convention.

---

* Colonial Office, October 6, 1884.

1884

That the reply which your Lordship returned to that note would be found in Paper (E).

That the Turkish Ambassador, on the 2nd September, addressed a note to your Lordship, inclosing a further despatch from the Porte, in which the text of Articles IV and VI of the Convention of the 24th May was cited, and the request contained in the former despatches with regard to instructions to Her Majesty's Minister at Athens was reiterated.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the contention of the Greek Government was well founded, that disputed questions of title to land in the ceded provinces must be referred to and disposed of by the Greek Tribunals.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Such questions must be referred to the Greek Tribunals.

That we think that disputed questions of title to land between individuals in the ceded provinces must be referred to the Greek Tribunals, and that it is no violation of the Convention that disputes should be thus decided.

If the Tribunals were shown to disregard or to refuse to recognize the Firmans, hodjets, &c., under which properties were held, the Greek Government might justly be called to account.

We do not feel sure, however, that the complaint of the Turkish Government does not apply to something more than the mere reference to the Tribunals of disputed claims to particular properties.

If Greek authorities do not treat Turkish titles as they treat Greek titles, Turkish Government have ground for complaint.

Looking at the language used in the despatch of Aarifi Pasha of the 14th April and of Assim Pasha of the 21st August, it would seem that the Greek authorities did not treat the Turkish titles referred to in the Convention in the same manner as they would Greek titles, and as being primâ facie valid.

If this be so, we think the Turkish Government would have just ground for complaint; but in the absence of particulars of the dealings of which the Turkish Government complains, we are unable to form an opinion upon the point.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers in Foreign Office Letter of September 13.

(A.) Porte to Musurus Pasha, April 14, 1884.
(B.) Convention of May 24. 1881 (see Treaty No. 678).
(C.) To Musurus Pasha, May 9, 1884.
(D.) Porte to Musurus Pasha June 11, 1884.
(E.) To Musurus Pasha, July 26, 1884.
(F.) Musurus Pasha, September 2, 1884.
(G.) Convention of July 2, 1881, between Turkey and Greece (see Parliamentary Paper No. 2585).

---

No. 103.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

Case of Pitts v. Fawcett.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 27th August last, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relative to the case of Pitts v. Fawcett, which had been the subject of various reports by ourselves and previous Law Officers of the Crown.

That Mr. Fawcett, Her Majesty's Consul-General at Constantinople, and Chief Judge of Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court for the Levant, was the defendant in an action for damages instituted against him in this country by Mr. Jos. Pitts (lately deceased), in respect of certain acts alleged to have been maliciously done by the defendant in his judicial capacity. That the action was about to be set down for trial when the plaintiff died. That Mr. Fawcett had now submitted to your Lordship the printed Memorandum contained in his letter of the 23rd May, in which he set out all the facts of the case, and asked to be indemnified by Her Majesty's Government against "the very heavy legal and other expenses" which the action had entailed upon him.

---

* Mr. Fawcett, May 23; Lake and Beaumont, July 16, 1884; Law Officers, August 8; ditto, August 14, 1878; ditto, April 18, 1879; ditto, September 21, 1881; Mr. Reeve, December 8, 1880 (with two Judgments of Privy Council, bound volume, Consul-General Fawcett's Judgments, &c., 1878–82).

Application of Mr. Fawcett for reimbursement of his legal and other expenses.

That when the action was first commenced in 1881 Mr. Fawcett applied for the support of Her Majesty's Government in defending it, and that application having been submitted to us for our opinion (Law Officers, 21st September, 1881), we advised that there were no special circumstances in the case which should lead Her Majesty's Government to defend the action on behalf of Mr. Fawcett, or to support him in defending the action. But that we added "when the case is concluded it may be further considered whether any relief should be afforded to Mr. Fawcett."

That the complaints against Mr. Fawcett were that he declined to carry out the Judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for reasons considered insufficient (Mr. Reeve's letter, 8th December, 1880), and that he took no steps to communicate to the proper Turkish Tribunals the reversal by the Court of Appeal of the orders made by him in the suit of Pitts v. Lafontaine, in pursuance of which Mr. Pitts was deprived of his property.

That as regarded the claim of Mr. Pitts in his action for damages against Mr. Fawcett for having imprisoned him for an alleged contempt of Court, Mr. Currie was to refer us to the Law Officers' Report of the 18th April, 1879, and to the printed Memorandum* which accompanied the reference.

That your Lordship was sensible of the difficulty of advising on Mr. Fawcett's Memorial, owing to the collapse of the action by reason of the sudden death of Mr. Pitts, but that your Lordship would be glad to know whether, on the facts submitted to us in Mr. Fawcett's Memorial and other papers transmitted therewith, we considered that there were sufficient grounds to justify your Lordship in submitting Mr. Fawcett's application to the favourable consideration of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, and that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No misconduct has been established against him.

That the action of Pitts v Fawcett having terminated, no misconduct or insufficiency in the performance of his judicial duties has been established against Mr. Fawcett.

His application may go to Treasury, but he should only be paid expenses actually incurred.

We therefore are of opinion that your Lordship will be justified in submitting Mr. Fawcett's application to the favourable consideration of the Treasury.

We think that the assistance to be rendered to Mr. Fawcett should be limited to a moderate amount, and to the expenses actually borne by him.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 104.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 11, 1884.

Consular jurisdiction beyond limits assigned by Berat.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 13th September last, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch, with its inclosures, No. 57, Consular, of the 18th August, 1884, from the Earl of Dufferin, Her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople, and other papers† relating to a question which had been raised as to the right of Her Majesty's Consul at Trebizond to exercise jurisdiction over British subjects in the Vilayet of Sivas, which was included in his Commission, but for which the Porte had refused to grant him a Berat.

That in his despatches Nos. 22 and 29, Lord Dufferin explained the reasons of the Porte for refusing to grant the Berat in question.

That Mr. Lister was to invite our attention to the two Memoranda by Sir E. Hertslet, on the subject of Consular jurisdiction in Ottoman dominions, to which were annexed a copy of the Capitulations of 1675, and of the Protocol of the 28th July, 1868.

---

* Memorandum, Sir J. Pauncefote, March 10, 1879, Confidential No. 3859.

† The Earl of Dufferin, No. 22, Consular, April 11; ditto, No. 29, Consular, May 1; Memorandum (E. H.), September 4; ditto, September 5, 1884; Capitulations of 1675, Confidential No. 86. Protocol, July 28, 1868, Treaty No. 510.

That our opinion was requested as to whether a British Consular officer who had received a Berat might or might not exercise jurisdiction over British subjects anywhere within the limits of the Consular district assigned to him by his Commission, without reference to the limits of his Berat.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Information on various points needed before giving opinion.

That the question submitted to us is one of very considerable difficulty, and we think it desirable that we should have further information before advising upon it.

We wish to see the form of Berat which has been in use, and also to know whether it has been the universal practice to define in the Berat the territorial limits within which the Consular jurisdiction is to be recognized, or whether it has followed the terms of the Consul's Commission. Also, whether there is any precedent for refusing to recognize a person who has been duly appointed Consul for a part of the district to which the Sovereign has appointed him. All the cases referred to by Sir E. Hertslet left the territorial jurisdiction of the Consular officer unchanged, and only affected his personal status and authority.

We also desire to be informed whether in the case of an ordinary Exequatur being granted, it has been the practice to grant it to the person, the extent of his jurisdiction being defined by his Commission from his own Sovereign.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 105.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 23, 1884.

Passenger traffic in the Gulf of Smyrna.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the right of British vessels to participate to carry passengers in the Gulf of Smyrna.

Right of British vessels to engage in.

That British vessels had long engaged in that traffic when an attempt was made by the Ottoman authorities to stop it by force, but, on representations being made to the Porte by Her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople, the Governor-General of Aidin was instructed to permit the British vessels to run as usual, and the Ottoman Government expressed their regret that the incident should have arisen. (Lord Dufferin's despatch No. 76 of the 6th April.)

Claim of Porte to grant a monopoly to Turkish Company.

But that it appeared from the note of the 30th June last from the Ottoman Ambassador at this Court that the Porte had given those orders provisionally only, so that it might explain to Her Majesty's Government the grounds on which it claimed for the Imperial Government the right to prohibit the British steamers from engaging in the passenger traffic in the port and Gulf of Smyrna, and to grant a monopoly thereof to an Ottoman Company.

That his Excellency Musurus Pasha was then informed generally that Her Majesty's Government could not concur in the arguments he had put forward (see draft of the 3rd October, 1884). That his Excellency then called at the Foreign Office and expressed a wish that a more detailed reply might be given to his note, and that the draft (A) had been prepared, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether we concurred in its terms.

That the information in regard to right generally of British subjects to engage in the coasting trade of the Ottoman Empire, and in regard to the case of the British vessels which at one time carried passengers in the Bosphorus, we were referred to Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum of the 28th November, 1872, at the end of which would be found extracts from the Treaties bearing on that question, and his further Memorandum of the 16th July, 1883, and the legal opinions thereto annexed.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve, with slight alteration, note to Turkish Ambassador denying right to grant such monopoly.

That we concur in the terms of the draft marked (A). We have, however, to suggest the substitution of the words "by Treaty" for the words "by the XLIst Article of the Capitulations." If the right rested only on the terms of that Article it would be open to much controversy.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

To Colonel Rose (Constantinople), No. 12, January 17, 1853.
To Sir H. Elliot, No. 80, Commercial, December 23, 1872.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, November 28, 1872; appended to which will be found the extracts from the Treaties between Turkey and foreign Powers bearing on the question. Confidential No. 2575.
Mr. Goschen, No. 27, Commercial, April 18, 1881.
To Mr. Goschen, No. 38, Commercial, April 28, 1881.
Lord Dufferin, No. 65, Commercial, July 17, 1881.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 72, Commercial, July 28, 1881.
Mr. Wyndham, No. 17, Commercial, January 27, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 22 and 52, Commercial, February 10 and March 6, 1883.
Consul Dennis, Nos. 4 and 7, Commercial, June 1 and June 9, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, No. 158, Commercial, June 22, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 96, Commercial, June 29, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 156, 167, and 174, Commercial, June 20, 29, and 30, 1883.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, July 16, 1883: Confidential No. 4793; appended to which will be found the Reports from the Law Officers on the subject of the Ottoman coasting trade.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 122A, Commercial, July 31, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 226, 227, 247, and 264, Commercial, July 25, July 26, August 10, and August 22, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 154, Commercial, September 4, 1883.
Consul Dennis, No. 10, Commercial, August 31, 1883; ditto, Telegraphic, September 13, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 272, 278, and 281, Commercial, August 30, September 3, and September 5, 1882.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 161, Commercial, September 17, 1883.
To Consul Dennis, No. 1, Commercial, September 19, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 165, Commercial, September 19, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 304, 309, and 312, Commercial, September 20 and 22, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 176 and 177, Commercial, October 2, 1883.
Consul Dennis, No. 11, Commercial, October 4, 1883.
Lord Dufferin, No. 329, Commercial, October 17, 1883.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, October 28, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 204 and 205, Commercial, November 21, 1883.
To Consul Dennis, No. 2, Commercial, November 21, 1883.
Lord Dufferin, No. 357, Commercial, December 13, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 231, Commercial, December 24, 1883.
Lord Dufferin (Telegraphic), March 2, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 27, Commercial, March 3, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 4, 1884; ditto, Nos. 36, 37, 38, and 39, Commercial, February 25, March 1, and March 4, 1884.
Consul Dennis (Telegraphic), March 11, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 46, Commercial, March 7, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 12, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 30, March 12, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 41, 42, and 50, Commercial, March 2, 4, and 11, 1884.
Consul Dennis (Telegraphic), March 17, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 33 and 34, Commercial, March 18, 1884.
Consul Dennis, No. 13, March 11, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 58, Commercial, March 18, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 25, 1884; ditto, No. 51, Commercial, March 12, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 37, Commercial, March 27, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 62, Commercial, March 24, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 41, Commercial, April 1, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 63, 68, and 71, Commercial, March 25 and 31, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 49, Commercial, April 16, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 76 and 78, Commercial, April 6 and 10, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 52 and 53, Commercial, April 28, 1884.
To Musurus Pasha, April 29, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 111, Commercial, June 7, 1884.
Musurus Pasha, June 30, 1884; with a Memorandum thereon by Sir E Hertslet, respecting the case of the British steamers which at one time carried passengers on the Bosphorus.
To Musurus Pasha, July 5, October 3 and 21.

1884

Annex.

Draft of Letter (A.) from Earl Granville to Musurus Pasha.

(A.)

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, , 1884.

FROM the conversations which took place between your Excellency and Lord E. Fitzmaurice on the 14th and 15th instant, and the explanations which your Excellency then gave of the contents of your note of the 30th June last in regard to the passenger traffic in the port and Gulf of Smyrna, I gathered that the Sublime Porte lays especial stress on the view which is urged in that part of the abovementioned note in which your Excellency says:—

"I consider myself under no present obligation to discuss either the question of the coasting trade, or that of the right of Great Britain to most-favoured-nation treatment, or the right to which any foreign Power might be entitled, by basing itself upon that right, to claim for its subjects the benefit of the Articles of the Treaties of Commerce made by Belgium and Holland with the Sublime Porte in regard to the coasting trade, which Treaties covenanted expressly for reciprocity.

"I confine myself to putting on record that the Concession accorded by Imperial Firman to the Smyrna Steam Navigation Company is founded on a right inherent in the Sovereign Power of every independent State, and of which no Treaty and no State Paper interdicts the exercise by the Sublime Porte or subordinates to consultation with any foreign Power . . . . It is in virtue of this right, and within its limits, that the Sublime Porte has conceded by Imperial Firman to a native Company a monopoly of the passenger traffic in the port and Gulf of Smyrna."

In conversation your Excellency urged that a right to grant monopolies similar to that now contended for by the Sublime Porte, in the passage I have just quoted, was claimed and exercised by Her Majesty's Government, and you instanced the case of private Acts of Parliament, which, you argued, gave monopolies to Companies to perform the traffic between particular places. I desire at once to point out to your Excellency that such a view of the private legislation of Parliament is not one which would be accepted in this country.

Monopolies have long since been abolished in England, and are alien to the spirit of our laws.

When an Act of Parliament gives the right to a Company to perform a particular service, it does not grant a monopoly to that Company, neither would Parliament be estopped from granting to another Company the right to perform an analogous service as soon as it could be shown that such a concession would be to the public advantage.

But even were Parliament to grant a monopoly, it would certainly not be one which would conflict with the Treaty rights of foreigners.

The contention of your Excellency, therefore, that the Porte are only claiming for His Imperial Majesty the Sultan a right to grant monopolies which is exercised in this country by Parliament cannot be supported.

Her Majesty's Government have never denied the right inherent in the Sovereign Power of every independent State, as regards the grant of monopolies, to which your Excellency appeals, provided such grant did not invalidate any Treaty right; and this brings me to the important statements in your Excellency's note that the right claimed by the Porte to grant the monopoly in question is not affected by Treaty or other obligation towards foreign Powers; and further, that the right contended for was admitted by Her Majesty's Government in 1853 in the case of the Chirket-i-Khaïrie Company, to which exclusive power was granted to carry passengers in the Bosphorus.

On those two points I regret to say, M. l'Ambassadeur, that we are entirely at issue.

Her Majesty's Government have invariably maintained that the right to carry passengers between Turkish ports was secured to British vessels by the XLIst Article of the Capitulations. That right has been confirmed by long enjoyment, and indeed the Porte has not only acquiesced in it, but on the occasion of the correspondence relating to the passenger traffic in the Bosphorus, to which your Excellency refers, the Porte expressly admitted that "British vessels had a right to carry passengers from one Turkish port to another in the Danube, the Sea of Marmora, and the Dardanelles, but not in the Bosphorus, on the ground that the Bosphorus, including Constantinople and all the straits of the Black Sea, was one port; and that therefore these Bosphorus boats, being like 'caïques,' omnibuses, and hackney coaches, ought to be under the control of the police."

Her Majesty's Government did not admit the arguments, but owing to the particular circumstances of the locality in question, they offered no further opposition, providing no injury was inflicted on British subjects, and on certain other conditions which were clearly laid down at the time, and which had reference to the true meaning and extent of the "Bosphorus passenger traffic," and to the application of the same prohibition to all foreign vessels of whatever nationality.

The case of the Bosphorus, or port of Constantinople, has therefore no analogy to that of the Gulf of Smyrna, and any attempt to interfere with the passenger traffic of British vessels between Turkish ports or places in that gulf or along the Ottoman coasts would, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, constitute a violation of the rights of this country and of the other Powers, founded on the Capitulations, on prescription, and on the express provisions of certain Treaties of the Porte with Greece and Belgium to which your Excellency refers in your note of the 30th June, and of which the benefit is claimed by Great Britain under its right to most-favoured-nation treatment.

In the course of our conversation your Excellency alluded to the fact that it was not unusual for one country, in concluding a Treaty of Commerce and Navigation with another country, to insert a clause expressly reserving its coasting trade; but your Excellency is well aware that, where no such reservation has been made, it has been held that the coasting trade was open, or, in other words, was included in whatever privileges of navigation may have been conceded by such Treaty; and no such reservation has ever been made in the Treaties concluded between this country and the Porte.

As regards the effect of those Treaties, I can only express my entire concurrence in the views which are set forth with great clearness in Lord Dufferin's note to his Excellency Aarifi Pasha of the 8th December, 1883.

With respect to the general question of monopolies, there can be no doubt that they are opposed to the spirit of the commercial engagements of Turkey towards foreign Powers.

By the laws of the Ottoman Empire the State reserves to itself, as is well known, a monopoly in regard to the manufacture of salt, powder, and tobacco, and also in regard to the sale of stamps, and such monopolies do not infringe any Treaty rights. But no mention is made of other monopolies, and this is the first time that an attempt has been made by the Porte to increase its revenue by the sale of monopolies intended to deprive foreigners in Turkey of the right to continue a trade in which they have invested a large capital, and which they have carried on for many years by usage and acquiescence, and, as I have shown, by right of Treaty.

The proposed monopoly of the passenger traffic in the Gulf of Smyrna to a Turkish Company is an innovation which strikes at the root of the commercial relations established ab antiquo between Turkey and the Powers of Europe, who are all equally interested in the question; and Her Majesty's Government are not prepared to waive the right they claim for British vessels to participate in the passenger traffic between Turkish ports until such claim shall have been shown to be unfounded, and is abandoned by all the other Powers concerned.

I have, &c.

---

United States.

No. 106.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 14, 1884.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 5th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers relating to certain lands in the United States' Territory of New Mexico, the property of Mr. J. Gerald Potter, a British subject, which were likely to be seriously affected by a Bill for dealing with private land claims now before the United States' House of Representatives.* That Mr. Potter invoked the aid of Her Majesty's Government to obtain the President's veto to the Bill in question.

1884

Mr. J. G. Potter's property in New Mexico. Likely to be affected by United States' Bill as to private land claims.

That the facts of the case were clearly stated in Mr. Potter's letter and its inclosures; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take that matter into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Her Majesty's Government could properly interfere in the matter officially or otherwise, and, if so, as to the nature of the representation which Her Majesty's Minister at Washington might be instructed to make on the subject to the United States' Government.

That the Treaties between the United States and Mexico of the 2nd February, 1848, and of the 30th December, 1853, referred to in the papers, were also transmitted.†

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the Bill referred to in Mr. Potter's letter to Lord Hartington deals with a subject clearly within the legislative competency of the House of Representatives, and affects all holders of land within the Territory, be they American citizens or foreigners.

Her Majesty's Government cannot interfere diplomatically or make representations to President.

We think, therefore, that Her Majesty's Government are precluded by well-established principles from interfering diplomatically, or from making any representation in order to influence the President of the United States to veto the Bill.

But may assist Mr. Potter in bringing the matter under notice of President.

But, whilst such is the case, the provisions of the Bill will so seriously affect Mr. Potter's interests that we think he may be informed that Her Majesty's Government will assist him in bringing to the President's notice any representation he may wish to make as to the effect the Bill will have in depriving him of his property.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Uruguay.

No. 107.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 20.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 19, 1884.

Proposed sale of British cemetery at Monte Video to Uruguayan Government.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the British cemetery at Monte Video.‡ That the history of that cemetery was as follows: That Mr. John Hall, of the firm of Hall, Dutton, and Co., purchased of a priest named Solinas, out of funds subscribed by British residents, a piece of land to be turned into a cemetery for the use of the British community.

That on the 14th April, 1828, the property was transferred "to the British nation in the name of Mr. Hood, His Majesty's Consul for the time being."

That in consequence of a doubt having arisen as to the validity of the original title of the land held by Solinas, inasmuch as he had received it for a gift from the Portuguese Government when ruling the country, the Uruguayan Government confirmed by a Decree dated the 11th January, 1837, the validity of the title (Major Munro, No. 31, 9th June, 1874).

That that Decree granted "for the benefit of the pious establishment, &c., all the rights which may appertain to the land which was purchased by the said Consul" on certain conditions.

That a further Decree, dated the 22nd September, 1837, which was also quoted in the title "deeds" pp. 7 and 8), ordered that the "title of ownership" be "made out in favour of Mr. C. Hood and successors, Representatives of the British nation."

That in a Declaration signed by President Blanco and Mr. Hood (title-deeds, pp. 9-11), the date of which was not clear, but which appeared to be the 5th May, 1838, it was declared "expressly and definitely that the aforesaid land is the absolute and exclusive property of the British nation, and for that nation or her respective Consuls and Representatives in this Republic."

That the British cemetery, which was formerly on the outskirts of the city of Monte Video, was now, owing to the extension of that city, in a very central position, and was considered injurious to public health.

That the Uruguayan Government required it for the erection of public offices, and have expressed their intention of resorting to the expropriation of it for public purposes, under the provisions of the law, if they cannot obtain it by voluntary purchase.

Opposition of British community.

That negotiations had been going on for some time between that Government and the Government of Her Majesty for its purchase, and an arrangement satisfactory to both parties was on the point of being concluded, when the determined protest and opposition of the British community induced Her Majesty's Government to suspend the negotiations.

That in the voluminous correspondence which had taken place since the land was conveyed to His Majesty's Consul in 1828, it had been assumed by Her Majesty's Consuls and by the Uruguayan Government that the cemetery had become the absolute property of the British Government, without reference to the fact that it was originally purchased out of private funds for the use and benefit of the British community.

That it had been assumed also at times that the cemetery came under the provisions of the 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87. But that with the exception of a contribution of 1,265*l*. 16*s*. by the Treasury in 1841, towards inclosing the cemetery and building a chapel, and another of 295*l*. 2*s*. 5*d*. and 200*l*. respectively in 1873 and 1882, towards the expense of paving an adjoining street, an obligation imposed by the local authorities, there seemed to have been no donation of public funds towards the purchase of the cemetery, or annual contributions to its maintenance, as contemplated by the Act.

That there appeared various inaccurate statements in the "title-deeds," to which our attention was drawn by Sir Julian Pauncefote.

That so far as any opinion could be formed on the facts, from the point of view of English law, it would seem that the land was vested in Her Majesty's Consul as a trustee for the British community, for whose benefit it was purchased out of private funds, and that Her Majesty's Government could not dispose of it without the consent of the parties beneficially interested.

Proposed instructions leaving matter in the hands of Uruguayan Government.

That under those circumstances your Lordship was disposed to instruct Her Majesty's Consul to inform the Uruguayan Government that the power of Her Majesty's Government to dispose of the cemetery, without the assent of the British community, was extremely doubtful, and that as the latter had signified their opposition to the proposed sale, Her Majesty's Government must leave the matter in the hands of the Uruguayan Government, with a view to their taking such measures as the public necessities might require and as the law provides for the expropriation of the land, expressing a hope, at the same time, that proper care would be taken to provide for the removal of the graves in such a manner as might be satisfactory to the British community.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposed instruction was right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in our opinion, the proposed instruction is right and proper under the circumstances.

We would, however, suggest, for consideration, whether it would not be well,

---

* Mr. Potter to the Marquis of Hartington, March 31, 1884.

† State Papers, vol. xxxvii, p. 567, and vol. xlii, p 724.

‡ Mr. Hood, No. 16, July 16, 1832; Major Munro (Memorandum), received October 9, 1872; Major Munro, No. 31, Consular, June 9, 1874, with title-deeds; Act 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87; Mr. Monson, No 3, January 9; ditto, No. 5 January 16, 1884.

1884

Approve instructions, subject to slight alterations.

instead of the words in the last paragraph, "Her Majesty's Government must leave the matter in the hands of the Uruguayan Government, with a view to their taking such measures," &c., to substitute the words, "Her Majesty's Government must leave the Uruguayan Government to take such measures," &c.

The expression now used seems rather to invite the action of the Uruguayan Government which is deprecated by the British community, whilst the modification suggested would be free from any such objection.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Venezuela.

No. 108.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received November 6.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 5, 1884.

My Lord,

Request of Venezuelan Government that the action of General Pulgar may be watched.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit papers[*] relating to a request made by the Venezuelan Government through their Representative at this Court, that the action of the revolutionary General V. Pulgar might be watched during his residence in this country.

That the usual application in that sense having been made to the Board of Customs, through the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, the Board had now requested to be supplied with the names of any foreign Powers whom they should, at present, regard as "belligerent" in the sense of our Report of the 30th March, 1881.[†]

That a draft of the reply which it was proposed to return to the Board of Customs, through the Lords of the Treasury, was inclosed, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether we concurred in its terms.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft reply to Board of Customs.

That we concur in the terms of the proposed reply.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

[*] List of Papers.

1. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 29, August 8, 1884.
2. General G. Blanco, September 10, 1884.
3. To Treasury and Home Office, September 22, 1884.
4. Treasury, September 24, 1884.
5. Home Office, September 26, 1884.
6. Treasury, October 1, 1884.
7. To Treasury, October 8, 1884.
8 Treasury, October 14, 1884.
9. Treasury, October 22, 1884.
10. To Treasury, October 25, 1884.

[†] Confidential No. 4637, p. 42.

Annex.

Draft of Letter to the Treasury.

Foreign Office, , 1884.

Sir,

In reply to your letter marked $\frac{16842}{84}$ of the 22nd ultimo upon the subject of the movements of General Pulgar, I am directed by Earl Granville to state to you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, that it would be difficult to comply with the request of the Commissioners of Customs to be supplied with the names of any foreign Powers whom they should at present regard as "belligerent," inasmuch as hostilities may be going on in various parts of the world, in which the parties are not accorded the "status" of belligerents, but which are nevertheless within the purview of the Foreign Enlistment Act; such, for instance, as the hostile attempts made against Cuba, Venezuela, Haïti, and other countries by rebellious subjects.

Wars carried on between States are of public notoriety, and are usually made known by the Manifestoes and Proclamations of the belligerents and of the neutral States; but, in the absence of such documents, it is sometimes difficult to determine at what period a state of war has actually commenced.

Under these circumstances, it appears to Lord Granville that the best course to follow is that recommended by the Law Officers of the Crown in the second paragraph of their Report of the 30th March, 1881, namely, to keep watch on all vessels of war building in private yards, and to report all the information which the Customs officers can obtain respecting their ownership and destination, without undue interference, so as to enable Her Majesty's Government to take such further steps in any particular case as the circumstances may warrant.

I am, &c.

---

No. 109.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received December 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, December 17, 1884.

My Lord,

Vessels of war being built for belligerents in private yards.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, stating that with reference to our Report of the 5th November, he was to transmit papers,[*] and to invite our attention to the letter dated the 10th November, which, with our concurrence, as expressed in our Report above-mentioned, your Lordship caused to be addressed to the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, and to the reply, dated the 18th November, which had been received thereto.

That in that reply the Lords Commissioners take exception to the course of action recommended, as inaccurately conveying the opinion contained in our Report of the 30th March, 1881, to which reference was made in the Foreign Office letter.

That your Lordship understood the last-mentioned Report as laying down, in effect, that a watch should be kept on all vessels of war being built in private yards, and further, that those vessels suspected of being built for a foreign State which was at war, or for hostile use against a State at peace with the Queen, should be reported.

That if so, your Lordship considered that the last paragraph of the Foreign Office letter of the 10th November substantially conveyed our meaning, and laid down a proper and convenient rule, having regard to the practical difficulty which the Customs authorities would experience if left to determine what cases should or should not be reported.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether we concurred in the above view, and, if not, that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to what modification should be made in the practice recommended in the last paragraph of the letter from the Foreign Office to the Treasury of the 10th November last.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Course to be followed by Customs with regard to reports as to.

That we think the Customs authorities can hardly be in a position effectively to discharge the duty of reporting upon any vessels of war building in private yards which may be suspected as being in course of building or equipment for a foreign Power which is at war, unless they keep themselves informed as to all vessels of war building for foreign Powers in private yards. Of course, if they had reason to believe that any such vessels were building for belligerents, greater vigilance would be required.

---

[*] Law Officers' Report, March 30, 1881, Confidential No. 4637, p. 42; Treasury, October 22; to Treasury, November 10; Law Officers' Report, November 5; Treasury, November 18, 1884.

But we cannot see any objection, provided the caution suggested by us in the third paragraph of our Report of the 30th March is observed, to the Customs authorities reporting, for the information of the Foreign Office, such facts as they may ascertain with regard to vessels of war building for foreign Powers in private yards.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

APPENDIX.

General.

In reply to the following Home Office letter, submitting to them at length the case of Mr. Walter Goldschmidt, of the material facts of which a short abstract is appended, the Law Officers gave on the 13*th May*, 1884, their opinion as below:—

"Sir, "Whitehall, March 28, 1884.

Nationality of son, born abroad before, but resident in England at time of, his father's naturalization under Act of 1844. Case of Mr. W. Goldschmidt.

"I AM directed by the Secretary of State to transmit to you herewith a Memorandum, stating a case for the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown as to the nationality of Mr. Walter Goldschmidt, who, born at the time when his father, Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, was a citizen of Hamburg and resided in that town, subsequently accompanied his father when he removed to and became naturalized in this country under "The Naturalization Act, 1844," and has since resided with his father in the United Kingdom, together with copies of letters from Sir Henry Thring, K.C.B., on the subject in question. And I am to request that you will lay the same before the Attorney- and Solicitor-General, and move them to favour the Secretary of State with their opinion thereon.

"I am, &c.
(Signed) "GODFREY LUSHINGTON.

"The Solicitor to the Treasury."

---

The following is an extract from the Memorandum* referred to:—

"Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, a subject of Hamburg, was naturalized under 7 and 8 Vict., cap. 66, by a certificate of the Home Secretary, dated the 1st August, 1861. He had a son Walter, born abroad, but at the time of Mr. Goldschmidt's naturalization Walter Goldschmidt, then a child of eight years old, was resident with him in England, and has continued to be resident ever since, having been educated as an Englishman and taken his degree at Oxford. Mr. Walter Goldschmidt has never himself obtained a certificate of naturalization. A question has now arisen as to his nationality."

The Law Officers are requested to advise the Secretary of State with respect to Mr. Walter Goldschmidt (a person who was born in a foreign State, his father being at the time a foreign subject, and who has never himself obtained a certificate of naturalization, but who at the time of his father obtaining a certificate under 7 and 8 Vict., cap. 66, was an infant residing in this country with his father, and has continued thenceforth to reside here).

Questions as to—
1. Retrospective action of Act of 1844.

1. Whether the Act of 1870, section 10 (5), applies retrospectively to the case of a person who was naturalized under the Act of 1844, and, if so, whether Mr. Walter Goldschmidt is not a naturalized British subject (by

---

* This Memorandum contains extracts from, and copies of, the following documents:—
The Naturalization Act, 7 & 8 Vict., cap. 66 (1844), secs. 6 and 8.
Certificate of Naturalization granted to Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, August 1, 1861.
Blackstone (sixth edition by Stephen), vol. ii, p. 438.
Law Officers' Report of August 13, 1860. see L.O. Reports of 1887 Conf. No 5597/30.
Naturalization Act, 33 Vict., cap. 14 (1870), sec. 7; and sec. 10, sub-sec. 5.
Sir H. Thring to Mr. Lushington, March 25, 1884.
Sir H. Thring to Mr. O. Goldschmidt, March 17, 1884.

1884

naturalized is meant invested with the rights of a person who has obtained a certificate of naturalization under the Act of 1870).

2. Position of Mr. W. Goldschmidt by Common Law under Act of 1844.

2. If the Act of 1870 does not apply retrospectively, then, considering the effect according to Common Law or otherwise of a certificate under the Act of 1844, is Mr. Walter Goldschmidt an alien or a natural-born British subject, or a naturalized British subject? (By naturalized is meant invested with the rights of a person who has obtained a certificate of naturalization under the Act of 1844.)

3. If an alien, as to grant of special certificate.

3. Whether, in the event of the Law Officers being of opinion that Mr. Walter Goldschmidt is, or would probably be deemed, an alien, it would be competent to the Secretary of State to treat him as a person with respect to whose nationality as a British subject a doubt exists, and accordingly give him a certificate as prescribed by paragraph 4 of section 7 of "The Naturalization Act, 1870."

---

Opinion.

1. Act of 1870 not retrospective.

1. We do not think the Act of 1870, section 10 (5), applies retrospectively to the case of a person naturalized under the Act of 1844. The difficulties in the way of such a construction appear to us to be insuperable.

2. As to position at Common Law.

2. We do not think that at Common Law, or otherwise, the effect of the certificate under the Act of 1844 is to put Mr. Walter Goldschmidt in the position either of a natural-born or naturalized British subject.

3. No ground for special certificate.

3. We cannot advise that Mr. Walter Goldschmidt is a person with respect to whose nationality as a British subject any doubt exists, within the meaning of paragraph 4 of section 7 of "The Naturalization Act, 1870." It seems to us clear that he was an alien down to the year 1870, not having been born within the realm, or the son of a father, or grandfather, who were natural-born British subjects, and, as we have already stated, we do not think he became naturalized by virtue of the provisions of the Act of 1870.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

Royal Courts of Justice, May 13, 1884.

1885

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. April 1886.

CONFIDENTIAL.

REPORTS

BY THE

LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN.

1885.

1885

LIST OF REPORTS.

(Arranged according to Countries.)

AFRICA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | Lord Chancellor . | Jan. 3, 1885 | West African Conference. Third basis. Inexpediency and difficulty of making new Rules as to annexations and Protectorates. Distinction between annexations and Protectorates. | 1 |
| 2 | Law Officers .. | 7, | West African Conference. Proposed third basis. Formalities to be observed in acquisition of territory. Observations on acquisitions of territory by cession, and by occupancy or settlement. No difficulty with regard to points actually occupied, but only with regard to limits of appurtenant territory | 2 |
| 3 | Attorney-General and Dr. Deane | Communicated Jan. 8, 1885 | West African Conference. Project of Declaration on the third basis. Suggesting alterations | 4 |
| 4 | Lord Chancellor . | Jan. 8, 1885 | West African Conference. Project of Declaration respecting third basis. Objections and alterations | 4 |
| 5 | Law Officers .. | 10, | West African Conference. "Projet" of Declaration as to third basis. Suggesting instructions as to alterations | 5 |
| 6 | Lord Chancellor . | 11, | West African Conference. "Projet" of Declaration respecting third basis. Obligations arising out of Protectorates. Undesirable effect of disregard in "Projet" of distinction between annexations and Protectorates. Difficulty of confining effect of "Projet" to Africa alone. Extent to which "Projet" ought to be recognized. Approve Sir J. Pauncefote's amendments to paragraph 1 | 6 |
| 7 | Lord Chancellor . | 18, | West African Conference. "Projet" of Declaration as to third basis. Objections of Protectorates. Drafts (A) and (B). Returns draft (B); has no objection to it if his alterations are accepted | 7 |
| 8 | Lord Chancellor . | 20, | West African Conference. Third basis. Sends draft of form of engagement as to protected territories in Africa. If it is not accepted by the Powers, explanations should be given | 8 |
| 9 | Lord Chancellor . | 23, | West African Conference. Third basis. Sir E. Malet's objections to course proposed by Her Majesty's Government. Objects to proposed engagement, but will acquiesce in it on certain conditions. Difficulties in way of accepting it | 8 |
| 10 | Lord Chancellor . | Feb. 16, | Neutralization of Conventional Basin of the Congo. No objection to proposal for | 10 |
| 11 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 25, | Jurisdiction on the West Coast. Approve generally proposed Order in Council conferring it on Consuls, Commissioners, and officials of the National African Company. Remarks on the maintenance of power to inflict capital punishment | 10 |
| 12 | Law Officers .. | July 11, | Claim of F. D. Holder on the German Government for compensation for injuries to himself and property during the bombardment of Joss Town. No claim should be made on the German Government | 11 |
| 13 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 8 and 20, 1885 | Royal Charter for the National African Company for administration of the Niger districts. Question as to grant of. Crown has power to confer jurisdiction on a private Company, but it is more usual for it to exercise such jurisdiction directly. Method of establishing jurisdiction over foreigners. Addendum stating that it is not desirable to grant Charter as asked for | 12 |

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 14 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 19, 1885 | Bombardment of Hickory Town, &c., in Cameroon River. No ground for applying for compensation to German Government for damage to property of Baptist Missionary Society and of Messrs. Lucas, Brothers. No objection to submitting claims to their friendly consideration | 15 |
| 15 | Law Officers .. | , | Application of the National African Company for a Charter and powers to govern the Niger districts. Approve proposed letter refusing the Charter. The Treaties with the native Chiefs and General Act of Berlin Conference do not confer jurisdiction over foreigners. Approve scheme for government of the Niger districts, subject to certain observations | 16 |
| 16 | Lord Chancellor . | Nov. 24, | Charter for the National African Company. (Missing.) | |

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 17 | Law Officers .. | June 13, 1885 | Claim of Mr. Cantlon for losses and injuries caused by soldiers of the National Guard. Mr. Cantlon has cause for complaint. Impossibility of now proving facts before the Courts ought not to bar claim. Claim is exaggerated; details should be asked for. Government equally responsible for acts of National Guard and those of regular troops. Case is one for diplomatic intervention | 18 |

BRAZIL.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 18 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 9, 1885 | Marriage, by Acting Consul at Pernambuco, performed during interval between transfer of late Consul and issue of marriage warrant to new Consul. As to late Consul's warrant having lapsed. Marriage legal, but Act of Parliament might be passed to remove all doubt | 21 |

BURMAH.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 19 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 18, 1885 | Conquest of Upper Burmah. Extinction of Burmese independence confers right of annulling Burmese Treaties with foreign Powers. Opinion as to communication of such extinction to foreign Powers, administration of country, cession of conquered territory, and steps for preventing revival of Treaties on restoration of independence | 22 |

CHILE.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 20 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 13, 1885 | Claims of neutrals in Peru for losses sustained in late war between Chile and Peru. Proposing answer to Memorial addressed to foreign Representatives at Lima, and sending Memorandum on various points raised as to qualifications and rights of British subjects; exclusion of evidence by Commission; non-liability of invaders for losses caused by war if carried on according to recognized usages; application of martial law to neutrals and natives; and admission of hearsay evidence | 23 |

1885

CHINA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 21 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 6, 1885 | Surrender of Chinese criminals from Hong Kong. Demand of Chinese Government. Approve answer to Chinese Government refusing to order their extradition .. .. | 25 |
| 22 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 3, | English Secretaries attached to Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Legations. Approve proposal that the Crown should remit certain taxes in their favour .. .. | 26 |
| 23 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 20, | Pillage of the stranded vessel "Flodden." No claim, owing to the negligence of master and crew, can of strict legal right be enforced. It should be urged on Chinese Government, but should not be enforced if disputed .. .. | 27 |
| 24 | Law Officers .. | 24, | Abduction of Chan Tim from Hong Kong. Supposed to have been decoyed under instructions of Chinese Government. Remonstrance already made should not be withdrawn, but evidence not sufficient to justify a demand for his restoration to the Colony .. .. .. | 28 |
| 25 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 19, | Extradition of fugitives from Hong Kong. Further Chinese demand under Treaty of Tien-tsin. Extradition Acts of 1870 and 1873 not applicable to Treaty, but bear upon the case. Procedure regulated by Colonial Ordinances. Discharge of prisoners not an infraction of British law. As sufficient "proof of guilt" has been given, cannot advise refusal of demand; torture should be guarded against. Dr. Deane of opinion that there are legal grounds for refusing to grant the extradition as demanded .. .. | 29 |

COLOMBIA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 26 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 2, 1885 | Revolution in Colombia. Decrees, stated to be illegal, closing ports of Savanilla and Barranquilla, and blockade of Carthagena. The text of Reports announcing should be published without any introductory remark. No objection to notification of blockade .. .. .. .. | 32 |
| 27 | Law Officers (A.) | June 23, | Revolution in Colombia. Decrees, &c., closing ports and declaring vessels of insurgents to be pirates. Colombian Government not warranted in declaring insurgent vessels to be pirates. Cannot express opinion as to validity of Decree closing ports. Such Decrees would have no exterritorial effect. No action necessary with regard to telegram from President of Colombia published by Governor of Jamaica declaring insurgent vessels to be pirates .. | 33 |
| 28 | Law Officers (B.) | 23, | Convoy of British vessels carrying supplies into port of Carthagena when besieged by rebels. Concur in view of Captain Curtis that such convoy would be breach of neutrality .. .. .. .. .. | 34 |
| 29 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 24, | Payment a second time of import duties already levied by rebels. Ports occupied by rebels were not blockaded, but closed by Decree. Her Majesty's Government entitled to object to Venezuelan Decree enforcing such payment, with fine in case of refusal .. .. .. .. | 36 |
| 30 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 13, | Seizure of goods supplied by Messrs. Schloss, Brothers, and others, to Messrs. Cerruti. Approve, as altered, instruction not to press claim, but to support Italian Representatives in doing so .. .. .. .. .. | 36 |

ECUADOR.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 31 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 27, 1885 | Closing Ecuadorian ports by Decree of Government. No objection to publication of Notice in "Gazette".. .. | 37 |

EGYPT.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 32 | Lord Chancellor . (Memorandum) | Jan. 6, 1885 | Caisse v. the officers of the Egyptian Government. Condemnation of the latter. Question as to jurisdiction of the International Tribunals—(1) under the Règlement of 1874; (2) under Khedivial Decree establishing Caisse; (3) under the Law of Liquidation. Of opinion that the Tribunals are not competent to entertain suit, except as against the Egyptian Government represented by the Finance Minister; against the Egyptian Government they cannot execute their Judgment .. .. .. .. .. | 38 |
| 33 | Lord Chancellor . | 8, | Caisse v. the officers of the Egyptian Government. Points in Memorandum of the 6th January overruled, but still thinks them good. Law Officers should be consulted .. | 40 |
| 34 | Law Officers .. | 14, | Caisse v. the officers of the Egyptian Government. Views of the Lord Chancellor as to incompetence of International Tribunals to entertain suit. These views should be advanced before the Court of Appeal. Agree that Caisse cannot be considered as a foreigner. Object of grant of powers by Article 38 of Law of Liquidation. Difficulty created by necessity for discharge from Commissioners of Public Debt. Want to see reasons for Judgment before advising as to basis for resistance in event of adverse decision of Court of Appeal .. .. .. .. | 40 |
| 35 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 14, | Egyptian tribute to Sultan as Suzerain. Khedive can only get rid of liability for whole tribute, in spite of diminution of territory, by an agreement with the Sultan. The tribute is a first charge on the revenue of Egypt .. .. | 42 |
| 36 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 10, | Xuereff v. Xuereff. Claim of widow of G. Xuereff (intestate) to share of his real estate. Question of jurisdiction of Consular Courts. The Consular Courts are not competent to entertain her claim .. .. .. .. | 44 |
| 37 | Law Officers .. | 12, | Registration of British officers of the Army of Occupation and in the Egyptian service, their families, and servants. No objection to continuance of non-registration of such officers, &c., though they concur in Mr. Cookson's opinion . .. .. .. .. .. | 45 |
| 38 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 10, | Arrest of Zebehr Pasha and his party, and their detention at Gibraltar. Approve the Ordinance legalizing such acts, with certain exceptions .. .. .. .. | 45 |
| 39 | Law Officers .. | 15, | Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien" newspaper. French demand for cancellation of Decree carrying out. Cases of suppression of the "El Ahram," "Levant Herald," &c., and seizure of books in case of Stephanos Xenos. Egyptian Government appear to have right of suppression. Further information as to effect of. Protocols signed by France and Great Britain with Turkey necessary before giving opinion .. .. .. .. .. | 46 |
| 40 | Law Officers .. (Memorandum) | 18, | Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien." Egyptian Government have right of suppression of; in this case good cause for it. Proper procedure in such cases. Remedy for wrong to be sought from International Tribunals. The Government exceeded their powers in closing M. Serrière's printing-office .. .. .. .. .. | 48 |
| 41 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 22, | Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien" and forcible closing of the printing-office. Provisions of the Press Law of 1881 affecting the case. Action of the Egyptian Government not strictly legal owing to the absence of the withdrawal of Serrière's authorization to act as printer. Question as to the entire or partial applicability of the Press Law to French subjects. There are strong arguments in favour of the French view against such applicability. Case as to closing of Serrière's office one for the consideration of Her Majesty's Government. Advisable to have communicated with the French Government before taking forcible action. The suppression of the paper and the closing of the printer's office are distinct .. .. .. .. | 48 |

1885

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 42 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | May 20, 1885 | Egyptian Loan. As to issue of without waiting for the approval of 'the Austro-Hungarian Chambers. Egyptian Government would be justified in issuing it. The prospectus should contain the VIIth Article of the Convention and a statement that the matter will be submitted to the Austro-Hungarian Parliament | 52 |
| 43 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 22, | Decree of 12th April deducting 5 per cent. from the coupons of the Egyptian Debt. Protest of Austria, France, Germany, and Russia. Egyptian Government not legally justified in issuing the Decree. Issue of the Decree need not be postponed until the guarantee of the loan has been approved by the Chambers of the different Powers concerned. Course to be taken is a question of policy | 52 |
| 44 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 22, | Egyptian Loan. As to ratification of the Convention by the Sultan. Egyptian Government may issue the loan without waiting for the approval of the guarantee by the Parliaments of the Powers. Suggestions on questions of policy. Disastrous effects of further delay in issuing the loan should be strongly urged on the different Governments. Mode of dealing with the difficulty in respect of the taxation of the coupons now falling due. Form of the prospectus to be adopted. As to necessity for the declaration appearing on the bonds | 54 |
| 45 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 24, | Egyptian Loan. Difficulty in framing a form of guarantee to appear on the bonds. Submit a form, and suggest that its adoption should be notified to the Contracting Governments before issuing the bonds | 56 |
| 46 | Solicitor-General. | 24, | Egyptian Loan. Approves draft Circular generally, but proposes addition showing that Her Majesty's Government do not admit that the issue of the loan must be delayed until the Powers have brought the matter before their Parliaments | 56 |
| 47 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 29, | Sinking fund of the Domains Loan. Claim of Commissioners for its payment. Legally the demand should be paid, but consequences of the absence of such demand and payment are not substantial. Matter a question of policy. Considerations by which it should be governed | 57 |
| 48 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 29, | Tax of 5 per cent. on coupons of Domains Loan. Money to meet it cannot be retained by Messrs. Rothschild, as interest must be paid in full | 59 |
| 49 | Law Officers | June 10, | Antoun Yousef Abdel Messieh (son of British Indian parents, born at Bagdad). Question as to his nationality, with reference to jurisdiction in case of his property. Proceedings of the relations and Egyptian Government. The Consular Court should decide, without interference, the question of its jurisdiction. Egyptian Government can take diplomatic action afterwards | 59 |
| 50 | Law Officers | 19, | G. Tabone. The Petition for the remission of the sentence passed by the Consular Court at Alexandria may be granted | 60 |
| 51 | Law Officers | Sept. 21, | Antoun Yousef Abdel Messieh. Succession to property of the late. No reason for departure from previous decision as to staying of proceedings during discussion respecting his nationality | 61 |
| 52 | Law Officers | Received Sept. 23 | Defence of Zebehr Pasha. Request of Messrs. Treherne and Gadesden for facilities in communicating with him and for information. They are not entitled to such facilities or to receive special information. Suggesting answer | 61 |
| 53 | Law Officers | Oct. 17, | Zeyla tribute. Egyptian Government must continue to pay it until relieved from the obligation to do so by the Porte | 62 |
| 54 | Law Officers | 24, | Conviction and punishment of Saïd John for assault by Acting British Vice-Consul at Zeyla. Refusal of French demand for his surrender. Illegality of proceedings. Prisoner should be liberated | 64 |

FRANCE.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 55 | Law Officers | Jan. 3, 1885 | Steam-cutters being built at Cowes for French Government. French assurance as to their not being used against China not satisfactory. Should point out matter to French Ambassador | 65 |
| 56 | Law Officers | 9, | Suspected sale of British steamers to French Government. Evidence not sufficient to justify the seizure of the vessels, but their delivery to French agents should be prevented. Suggest warning to owners. Dr. Deane of opinion that vessels should be detained; he has not, therefore, signed above Report | 66 |
| 57 | Law Officers | 15, | Cutters being built for French Government at Cowes. Under the circumstances, the order for the delivery of the boats was justified | 66 |
| 58 | Law Officers | 19, | The "Ingeborg" at Kelung. Detained for three days, and not allowed to discharge cargo. No grounds for claim for compensation on part of the owners in view of the action of the French | 67 |
| 59 | Law Officers | 27, | Convention for the protection of submarine telegraph cables. May be ratified within the stipulated time, without waiting for the passing of the Act. Will take steps for drafting Bill | 67 |
| 60 | Law Officers | 28, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Instructions to Governors of Colonies for carrying out the Foreign Enlistment Act. Objections to the use of the words "nearest port" with regard to the supply of coals to belligerent vessels | 68 |
| 61 | Law Officers | 28, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act. Difficulty in relaxing its provisions with regard to the supply of coal. Export of arms and supply of coal not on same footing. To point out officiously to Chinese Minister that the French abstention from exercise of right of search depends on their being allowed to obtain coal | 69 |
| 62 | Law Officers | 29, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Approve proposed answer that the Messageries mail-steamers may enjoy their Treaty rights in British Colonies unless they take part in French operations. Chinese Revenue cruizers, if only such, may be supplied with coal | 70 |
| 63 | Law Officers | Feb. 6, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Exercise of right of search of neutral vessels by France. Public notification thereof should be made | 71 |
| 64 | Law Officers | 7, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Australian coal consigned to foreigners at Chinese ports. Coal not contraband unless for use in warlike operations | 72 |
| 65 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 10, | Hostilities between France and China. Sending amended Notification as to strict exercise of belligerent rights by France, including right of search | 72 |
| 66 | Law Officers | 18, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. French request for prohibition of export of arms from Hong Kong. They have no right to make such a request. No objection to suggestion that their request should be complied with in exchange for the renunciation of the right to search neutral ships. The question is, however, a matter of policy | 73 |
| 67 | Law Officers | 20, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Right of search of neutral ships. Should communicate with French Government as to seizure, &c., of vessels sailing before the issue of the Notification, and inform correspondents of the fact. Inexpedient to advise private traders as to liability of contraband of war shipped to China, and of gunpowder shipped to Hong Kong, to seizure. Concur in answer as to supply of coals to French cruizers | 74 |

1885

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 68 | Law Officers | Feb. 20, 1885 | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Supply of coals to vessels chartered by French to carry coals to their depôt at Haiphong. With reference to question of its being permitted, it is inexpedient to deal with special cases by a general rule. Should not give a categorical reply, but forward to Mr. Segrave a copy of the instructions to Governors of Colonies | 75 |
| 69 | Law Officers | 24, | Proposed sale of vessels to a French subject. Question as to its legality. Concur in answer that Her Majesty's Government will not interfere so long as the Foreign Enlistment Act is not violated | 76 |
| 70 | Law Officers | 24, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Rice as contraband of war. Measure proposed by France for, not warranted. Conditions under which provisions are contraband of war. Should not assent to right to declare rice contraband of war, nor acquiesce in suggestion as to date for the enforcement of the Notification on the subject | 76 |
| 71 | Law Officers | 25, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Liability of the "Galley of Lorne," with cargo of merchant powder, to seizure. Reply of Admiralty incorrect. A belligerent has no right to seize a cargo on a neutral vessel consigned to a neutral port. Circumstances under which a ship with contraband is liable to confiscation | 77 |
| 72 | Law Officers | 26, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war only when destined for ports north of Canton. Nothing in mention of north ports to modify their former opinion | 78 |
| 73 | Law Officers | Mar. 5, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war. Best form of notification of French intention. Should make statement in Parliament against admission of legality of French action | 78 |
| 74 | Law Officers | 5, | Shooting of deserters from the French transport "Chandernagore" in British waters. Should make a representation. Course adopted by the French a violation of neutral territory, and cannot be justified by international law | 79 |
| 75 | Law Officers | 5, | Hostilities between France and China. Service of British subjects as pilots on French ships of war. Approve despatch authorizing prosecution, without instructions, of British subjects who take part in operations against China; but in case of those in Chinese service instructions are still necessary. Suggested notification should be avoided | 80 |
| 76 | Law Officers | 10, | Supplies, &c., for French hired and Government transports at Singapore. Approve action of Governor in refusing to delay execution of his instructions to enforce the Foreign Enlistment Act | 80 |
| 77 | Law Officers | 11, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war if shipped to ports north of Canton. Objections to publication of answer to French Government. Should make protest public by answer to question in Parliament | 81 |
| 78 | Law Officers | 12, | Supply of coals at Singapore to homeward-bound French ships. Approve reply to Colonial Office that matter should be left to the discretion of the Governor, and that a declaration as to the use of the coal should be obtained | 82 |
| 79 | Law Officers | 21, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Capture of neutral ships carrying contraband of war. Under circumstances of the case, should protest against intention to capture ships that sailed before the issue of the Notification | 82 |
| 80 | Lord Chancellor (Memorandum) | 30, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Claim of France to treat rice as contraband of war. Necessity for resisting such a claim and consequences of acquiescing in it. An answer should be sent in reply to French arguments. We ought not to be bound by decisions of Prize Courts unless the rice has a warlike destination | 83 |

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 81 | Law Officers | Mar. 31, 1885 | Franco-Chinese hostilities. French claim to treat rice as contraband of war. Approve reply to French note as to rice; decisions of Prize Courts; protest against right of belligerents to decide what constitutes contraband and treatment of rice as such | 84 |
| 82 | Law Officers | Apr. 1, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. French hired transports should be treated as in the service of France within the meaning of the Foreign Enlistment Act | 85 |
| 83 | Law Officers | 2, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Export of arms from Hong Kong to China. Should refuse to interfere with the trade of Hong Kong by acceding to French demand for its prohibition, and protest strongly against search, &c., of neutral vessels bound for a neutral port. Geographical position of a neutral port does not justify such action | 86 |
| 84 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | 2, | Convention for the protection of submarine cables. Undesirable to enact Convention in French. Opinion as to limitation and application of proposed Bill | 87 |
| 85 | Lord Chancellor | 3, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. French claim to treat rice as contraband of war. Suggesting amendments in reply to French note of the 10th March | 87 |
| 86 | Lord Chancellor | 8, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Export of arms, &c., from Hong Kong. We have power to prohibit it as requested by the French. Is inclined to do so. In case of our refusal French would act on extreme views of their rights as to neutral cargoes, &c. Claim to intercept cargoes for China through Hong Kong not untenable | 88 |
| 87 | Law Officers | 16, | Franco-Chinese hostilities. Export of arms, &c., from Hong Kong. Refusal to accede to French request for its prohibition a question of policy to be settled by the Cabinet. View taken of such restrictions during Franco-German war. Disadvantage to trade of prohibition without warning. | 89 |
| 88 | Law Officers | 16, | Messageries Maritimes ships at Hong Kong. Not necessary to take any steps regarding them, as they are not assisting the military operations | 90 |
| 89 | Law Officers | 16, | Coaling and refitting of French cruizers in British Eastern ports. Request from Lloyd's for its prevention. Possible necessity for restricting use of those ports for protection of British vessels. Suggesting reply | 90 |
| 90 | Law Officers | 16, | Steam-cutters required for the French Government. May assure French Government, as requested, that views of Her Majesty's Government as to their being built are unchanged | 91 |
| 91 | Lord Chancellor. (Memorandum) | 24, | Treatment of rice as contraband of war. Danger to Great Britain, if such a system is adopted, in event of war. Denunciation of Declaration of Paris would be necessary | 91 |
| 92 | Lord Chancellor. (Memorandum) | May 1, | Export of arms from Hong Kong. French request for its prohibition. Object of such prohibition. Distinctions with regard to the trade in arms. Approves reply to French | 92 |
| 93 | Law Officers | 2, | Export of coals and provisions from Hong Kong. Approve proposed reply to Governor of Hong Kong that there is no ground for interfering with it | 93 |
| 94 | Solicitor-General. | 6, | Restrictions on coaling of French war-vessels. May be removed if French refrain from exercising right of search and seizure | 93 |
| 95 | Law Officers | 22, (A) | Restrictions on coaling by French and Chinese war-ships in British Eastern ports. Refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c. Proposed terms of reply to French. Ground for British policy as to neutrality and French right of search. On cessation of war that course of action was changed. Her Majesty's Government should therefore protest against French action. | 94 |

1885

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 96 | Law Officers | May 22, 1885 (B) | Restrictions on coaling as well as equipment of French vessels. They may now be removed. Cannot distinguish between different kinds of equipment. Cases of exercise of belligerent rights against British vessels | 95 |
| 97 | Law Officers | 22, (C) | Supply of coal to French cruizers in British ports. May now be carried on as state of war has ceased | 96 |
| 98 | Law Officers | 27, | Seizure and detention of the "Waverley." Should protest against exercise of belligerent rights by the French, and reïmpose restrictions under Foreign Enlistment Act in event of its continuance | 96 |
| 99 | Lord Chancellor (Memorandum) | June 1, | Restrictions on coaling by French and Chinese war-ships in British ports, and refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c. Differs from Law Officers' opinion of the 22nd May, and agrees with Mr. Bergne. Opinion as to representation which should be made to French Government | 97 |
| 100 | Law Officers | 6, | Detention of the "Surat," while conveying Her Majesty's mail, by a French cruizer. Letter from the Peninsular and Oriental Company respecting. Opinion as to reply to be sent to the latter | 98 |
| 101 | Law Officers | 8, | Restrictions on coaling by French and Chinese war-ships in British ports, and refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c. Approve draft letters to French Ambassador and Colonial and India Offices. Reasons for opinion given in their Report of the 22nd May | 98 |
| 102 | Law Officers | 10, | Protection of submarine telegraph cables in time of war. Powers of naval officers not affected by Convention of the 14th March, 1884. Neutral vessels attempting to injure cables may be punished, they may be searched and captured, and the materials for injuring cables seized. Circumstances under which such materials are contraband | 100 |
| 103 | Law Officers | 13, | Shipment of treasure in neutral vessels, and detention of the "Kow-shing" by French cruizers. Conditions under which money and treasure may become contraband. Unnecessary to make a representation to the French Government. Memorandum by Lord Chancellor annexed | 101 |
| 104 | Law Officers | Sept. 21, | C. Borg. In reply to his Petition for its remission, his sentence may be mitigated | 101 |
| 105 | Law Officers | Oct. 13, | Murder and mutiny by British subjects (R. Martin and A. Trimingham) on the Uruguayan ship "Don Juan," now in custody at Brest. They may be left in French custody. No action necessary unless they are brought before a Tribunal which has no jurisdiction | 102 |

GENERAL.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 106 | Law Officers | Jan. 5, 1885 | Liability of Resident Clerks to income tax in respect of their rooms at the Foreign Office. No liability with regard to sitting-, but there may be with regard to bed-rooms | 103 |
| 107 | Law Officers | Mar. 23, | New Tables of Consular Fees (General and China, &c.). Approval of proposed Orders in Council | 104 |

GERMANY.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 108 | Law Officers | Jan. 5, 1885 | Divorce of William Rose. He is still a British subject. His German divorce not valid in England. No statement as to its validity should be made by Embassy at Berlin | 104 |
| 109 | Dr. Deane | 15, | Divorce of W. Rose. Approval of refusal to grant a certificate as to is correct | 105 |

HAÏTI.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 110 | Law Officers | Aug. 11, 1885 | Claim of the late Mrs. Maunder. We may insist on Mr. J. B. W. Maunder's British nationality, and grant him protection. It rests with Haïtian Government to prove Mrs. Maunder's Haïtian nationality, of which the evidence is, so far, insufficient | 105 |
| 111 | Law Officers | Oct. 5, | Maunder claim. Approve draft of despatch to Mr. Hunt as to grant of protection to Mr. J. B. W. Maunder on ground of his British nationality, but the demand for settlement will not of itself be sufficient | 109 |

ITALY.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 112 | Law Officers | Feb. 17, 1885 | Detention of the "North Durham" in quarantine at Girgenti. Italian reply, stating that claim is not well founded, is not satisfactory. Should call their attention to certain points | 110 |
| 113 | Law Officers | Nov. 12, | Signor L. Ferrato. Approve proposed certificate as to transfer of contract required for legal proceedings | 112 |

JAPAN.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 114 | Law Officers | Jan. 9, 1885 | Tenure of land in Japan. Land not personalty, and therefore not liable to probate duty. Charge of such duty on property not liable to it is anomalous. Abolition of distinction between personalty and realty requires an Order in Council | 112 |
| 115 | Law Officers | Mar. 3, | Breaking of Custom-house seals on the "Emily." Protest of Japanese Government against acquittal of boatswain. Approve instructions to Mr. Plunkett, as altered, as to Dutch version of Trade Regulations being considered the original, and appeal against future decisions of Consular Court | 113 |

MADAGASCAR.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 116 | Law Officers | Mar. 5, 1885 | Engagement of Colonel Willoughby in Malagasy military service. Do not disapprove Consul Graves' abstention from his forcible arrest. A continuance of such service an offence against the Foreign Enlistment Act | 114 |

MOROCCO.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 117 | Law Officers | Jan. 19, 1885 | Attacks on Moorish Government by newspapers at Tangier. The editors British subjects. Approve instructions to Sir J. D. Hay as to suppression and warning of | 115 |
| 118 | Law Officers | Sept. 11, | Sanitary Regulations. Enforcement of their observance by fine or otherwise. Consul may make proposed British Regulation, and enforce it by fine. Fines must be paid to public account, not to local funds | 116 |
| 119 | Law Officers | Nov. 20, | Intervention of unqualified persons, Messrs. Cohen and Meakin, editors of newspapers, in Consular Court. Sir J. D. Hay may refuse to admit such intervention, but must not ignore the status of a legally appointed agent | 117 |

1885

NETHERLANDS.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 120 | Law Officers | Jan. 6, 1885 | Detention of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom. Unwise for Her Majesty's Government to make claim on Dutch for cost of joint operations, as a refusal is inevitable | 118 |

PACIFIC ISLANDS.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 1 | Law Officers | May 21, 1885 | Case of the "Madras." Further facts have caused them to modify their opinion of the 11th September, 1884. Mutinous condition, &c., of the passengers formed ground for vigilance of action on part of the Hawaiian Government. Her Majesty's Government ought not to determine whether such action is justifiable. No reason to suppose that justice will be denied to owners of "Madras," if they again institute legal proceedings. Previous decision does not determine the question involved in the claim for compensation. As to attendance of witnesses. Hawaiian Government should be informed that Major Wodehouse has not misrepresented the facts of the case | 119 |

PERSIA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 122 | Law Officers | Feb. 24, 1885 | Mr. Arsenian, a Persian naturalized as a British subject. Seizure of his goods by Persian authorities at Constantinople. Proceedings in Persian Consular Courts, and protection granted to him at Tehran. Further explanations and Persian proposals. He may properly be left to prosecute appeal to Tehran under British protection | 120 |
| 123 | Law Officers | Apr. 28, | Case of Mr. Arsenian, a naturalized British subject, born in Persia, whose goods were seized by Persian authorities at Constantinople. Nothing in the further papers to modify previous opinion | 122 |
| 124 | Law Officers | June 23, | Bankruptcy of Herapit and Aratoon. Lien on tobacco consigned, on their behalf, to D. Sassoon and Co. Further Reports on case. Conclude, in absence of satisfactory explanations, that Sassoon and Co.'s claim is not well founded. Want further explanations before giving opinion | 123 |

PERU.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 125 | Law Officers | Jan. 6, 1885 | Seizure of the British vessel "Overdale" off Mollendo. The blockade was not valid. The seizure of the vessel was illegal, and her release should be demanded | 124 |
| 126 | Law Officers | 12, | Seizure of the "Overdale" for breach of blockade of Mollendo. Should pay fine under protest if it is not large, and release of ship cannot otherwise be obtained | 125 |
| 127 | Law Officers | Feb. 3, | Seizure of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade at Mollendo. Approve instructions as to release and amount of fines. Should point out to owners the objections to their refusal to pay fine under protest | 125 |
| 128 | Law Officers | 7, | Seizure of the British vessels "Overdale" and Kirkloch" for breach of blockade of Mollendo. Aspect of case altered by telegram. The Admiral should explain the grounds for change of opinion as to legality of seizure and fine | 126 |

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 129 | Law Officers | Feb. 11, 1885 | Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade at Mollendo. Information insufficient. Closing of port for fiscal purposes might be justifiable; a notification of a blockade for belligerent purposes does not justify seizure. More prudent for owners to pay fine under protest | 127 |
| 130 | Law Officers | 12, | Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade at Mollendo. Approve telegram to Mr. Barrington, with alterations, making inquiry as to object of closing port | 128 |
| 131 | Law Officers | 17, | Detention of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" at Mollendo. Aspect of case changed by the further information as to closing of port. More information on certain points necessary. Should inform the owners of the advisability, under the circumstances, of paying fine, and protest against Peruvian claim to regard the "Overdale" as a prize | 129 |
| 132 | Law Officers | Apr. 10, | Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" at Mollendo. Statement of case of both ships. Seizure of the "Kirkloch" wholly illegal. Unable to give opinion as to the "Overdale" pending receipt of Report | 130 |
| 133 | Law Officers | 15, | Reimposition by Peruvian Government of taxes already paid to revolutionists. Approve instructions to Mr. Barrington as to protest in case of British subjects | 133 |
| 134 | Law Officers | Aug. 8, | Seizure of the "Overdale" for breach of order closing the port of Mollendo. Action taken in the case of the "Kirkloch." Further demand for compensation may now be made | 134 |
| 135 | Law Officers | Oct. 28, | Seizure of the "Kirkloch" by Peruvian vessel on the high seas for breach of Decree closing the port of Mollendo. Peruvian reply does not modify conclusion as to illegality of the seizure | 135 |
| 36 | Law Officers | Nov. 20, | Seizure of the "Kirkloch" by Peruvians on the high seas. Approve instructions to demand a settlement of the case | 138 |

PORTUGAL.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 137 | Law Officers | Sept. 21, 1885 | Oyster fisheries at Lisbon. Claim of Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company. Refusal of Portuguese to enforce British Judgment on account of informal service of citation. Certificate of British procedure should be declined; proof by other means should be adopted | 139 |
| 138 | Law Officers | Nov. 7, | Detention, after landing, of passengers from "Spartan" in lazaretto at Funchal. Validity of claim on part of Major Reeve and others depends on Portuguese law. Her Majesty's Government cannot demand any indemnity until the legal remedies have been exhausted | 140 |
| 139 | Law Officers | Dec. 17, | Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company. Certificate required to prove practice of English Law Courts (for production in Portuguese Court of Law). No objection to form of certificate, but adhere to Report of the 21st September | 141 |
| 140 | Law Officers | Dec. 19, | Detention, after landing, of passengers from the "Spartan" in lazaretto at Funchal. Concur in opinion that claim cannot be pressed | 142 |

1885

RUSSIA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 141 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 23, 1885 | War between Great Britain and Russia. Position of British shipping bound to, or lying in, Russian ports in event of. Approve reply to Messrs. Cooper and Mr. A. Grant, M.P., as to allowance of time for loading and discharge of cargoes | 143 |
| 142 | Law Officers .. | May 1, | Right to seize, or lay embargoes on, enemy's ships on commencement of hostilities. In answer to Lloyd's, should refer to letter of the 24th ultimo, and explain privately the impolicy of a statement on the subject.. .. .. | 144 |
| 143 | Law Officers .. | May 6, | Notice to shipping before declaration of war. Approve reply refusing to give such notice. Impolicy of giving it .. | 144 |
| 144 | Law Officers .. | June 12, | War between Great Britain and Russia. Approve Circular to Representatives abroad and note to foreign Governments with regard to the Declaration of Paris. Proposal to send same to countries not parties to the Declaration. Not expedient to demand assurance against privateering. Course to be followed in event of withdrawal of Russia from the Declaration .. .. .. .. .. | 145 |
| 145 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 17, | Anglo-Russian war. Use of naval yards and hospitals in Japan in event of. Approve proposed instructions as to extent of rights to be claimed under Treaty .. .. | 149 |

SIAM.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 146 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 5, 1885 | Registration of British subjects in Japan. The proposed Regulations are not objectionable in form. They should not apply to travellers, and therefore Regulation 8 should be modified .. .. .. .. .. | 150 |
| 147 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 18, | Siamese proposals as to—(1) marriages of British subjects; (2) registration of protected subjects; (3) compulsory registration of British subjects. Approve proposed reply, with slight alteration, as to (1) recognition and validity of marriages, and conditions necessary in case of mixed marriages; (2) registration of British-protected subjects, and question as to status of Siamese women cohabiting with British subjects, and also as to the distribution of property of such British subjects when dying intestate .. | 152 |
| 148 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 17, | Opium-smuggling in Siam. Observance by British subjects of Siamese law. With regard to arrest of Mong Chu, Attorney- and Solicitor-General of opinion that Mr. Satow's conduct should not receive formal approval; Dr. Deane of opinion that it should. Concur in remainder of draft to Mr. Satow approving Regulations as corrected .. .. | 153 |

SPAIN.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 149 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 10, 1885 | Claim, on part of Don A. M. Regidor, for capture in 1796 of the Spanish vessel "San Juan de Dios," alias "Vascongada," by His Majesty's ship "Magicienne." Claim not well founded, and cannot be entertained .. .. | 155 |
| 150 | Law Officers .. | 26, | Boarding of the British vessel "Virgin de los Angelos" by Spanish gun-boat "Salamandra" near Gibraltar. Approve proposed reply to Colonial Office as to taking exception to statements of Spanish Commander, and failure of Spaniards to hold an inquiry.. .. .. .. | 155 |
| 151 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 20, | Imprisonment in Cuba of J. Thomson, a British seaman on the Haïtian vessel "Independiente," which flew the French flag. Spanish reply to claim for compensation not satisfactory. Further action called for .. .. .. | 156 |

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 152 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 28, 1885 | Imprisonment in Cuba of J. Thomson, of the "Independiente." Reasons for insufficiency of the Spanish reply, and suggestions as to further representation . .. | 157 |

SWITZERLAND.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 153 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 26, 1885 | Expulsion of Mr. Rabey, of the Salvation Army, from Neuchâtel. Opinion on further representations as to delay in Swiss answer to British note.. .. .. .. | 158 |
| 154 | Law Officers .. | June 23, | Expulsion of Mr. Rabey, of the Salvation Army, from Neuchâtel. Is now justified under the Regulations of the Conference at Berne. No representations can be made before the annulment of these Regulations .. .. | 159 |

TUNIS.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 155 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 24, 1885 | G. Pace. Imprisoned at Malta for murder. No ground for acceding to Petition for remission of his sentence .. | 159 |
| 156 | Law Officers .. | May 11, | Petitions for remission of sentences from Spiteri, Busattil, and Francalanzu. No grounds for acceding to, except in case of Francalanzu, in which two years of the sentence may be remitted .. .. .. .. .. | 160 |

TURKEY.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 157 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 9, 1885 | E. Fisher. Incorrectness of views of Consul as to his deportation from Smyrna. Approve instructions, though Fisher was not born in Her Majesty's dominions .. .. | 161 |
| 158 | Law Officers .. | 27, | Consular jurisdiction. Refusal of Porte to grant a Berat co-extensive with the Consul's Commission. The question a very serious one. Should make the strongest possible protest. Course to be adopted in event of refusal of Porte to act on British representation. Difficulties must be dealt with as they arise .. .. .. .. .. | 162 |
| 159 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 6, | Titles to land held by Turks in provinces ceded to Greece. Turkish objections to investigations of Greek Tribunals as to. Inquiry into genuineness of documents reasonable. Should ask for instances of proceedings complained of, and for text of Decree or Order refusing to recognize titles .. | 163 |
| 160 | Law Officers .. | 24, | Alleged murder at Kerbellah by British Indian subject. Under Order in Council case cannot be tried by Consular Court at Bagdad, but must be decided by Judge sent from Constantinople, or tried at Bombay. No objection to latter course if the witnesses can be secured at Bombay .. | 164 |
| 161 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 26, | Alleged murder at Kerbellah by a British Indian subject. Objections to proposal to appoint Consul-General at Bagdad as Acting Assistant Judge, with a barrister to assist him .. | 164 |
| 162 | Law Officers .. | 26, | Pitts v. Fawcett. Mr. Fawcett's expenses. Agree that personal expenses should not be paid for. Sum claimed for legal expenses large; it should be taxed .. .. | 165 |
| 163 | Law Officers .. | June 11, | Claim of Messrs. Shalom and Zagal on Her Majesty's Government for compensation on account of the closing of their warehouses, &c., by British Consular authorities. The closing was illegal, and their claim should be admitted. Mr. Henderson should negotiate the amount .. .. | 166 |

1885

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 164 | Law Officers .. | June 11, 1885 | Coasting trade of the Ottoman Empire and passenger traffic in the Gulf of Smyrna. Right of British vessels to take part in. No new points raised in Turkish reply. Remarks on arguments used as to (1) monopolies; (2) right of British subjects; (3) limits of port of Smyrna; (4) distinction between such traffic in local vessels and in vessels from abroad; (5) distinction between present case and that of the Compagnie du Bosphore Chirket-i-Khairié | 167 |
| 165 | Law Officers .. | 12, | Mrs. Kendall v. Madame Auriol. Refusal of Consul-General to grant protection to the former, as the claim had accrued prior to her registration as a British subject. Consul should have granted her protection | 168 |
| 166 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 21, | Farrer v. Asche. Cases in which a foreigner becomes amenable to the jurisdiction of a British Consular Court. Assent of German Government to proceedings against Mr. Asche at Busrah should be obtained, and their Representative at Constantinople should be fully informed of facts of case | 169 |
| 167 | Law Officers .. | 21, | Status of the Turkish ship "Djanik" of the Mahsoussieh line. She is exempt from operations of the Malta Ordinance of 1882 when carrying prisoners and calling at Malta | 170 |
| 168 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 5, | Farrer v. Asche. British Consular jurisdiction over a protected foreigner. Strong grounds for urging German Government to assent to such jurisdiction in case of Mr. Asche | 171 |
| 169 | Law Officers .. | 28, | Murder of Himmut Bahadur and Hidayat Ali at Kerbela by British Indian subjects. No reason for mitigation of sentences on prisoners | 172 |
| 170 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 10, | Coasting trade of Ottoman Empire and passenger traffic in Gulf of Smyrna. No sound distinction can be drawn between such traffic when carried on in vessels coming from abroad and when carried on in local vessels | 172 |

UNITED STATES.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 171 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 5, 1885 | Detention of the "Anjer Head" at San Francisco. Claim for indemnity. No objection to refer matter to Court of Claims, but should intimate that it is done at instance of claimants | 174 |
| 172 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 5, | Marriage at British Legation under 4 Geo. IV, cap. 9. Question as to its validity if celebrated by any minister other than a clergyman of the Church of England. It must be celebrated by a Church of England clergyman, and United States' law and Foreign Office Circular of 1873 be complied with | 175 |
| 173 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 19, | Murder of Mr. J. H. Tunstall in New Mexico. Claim for compensation should not, under the circumstances, be pressed further | 176 |

VENEZUELA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 174 | Law Officers .. | June 23, 1885 | Claims arising out of the seizure of the "Josephine" and the "Henrietta" by the Venezuelan authorities. Are they such as to justify diplomatic intervention, or should they be brought before the Venezuelan Courts? Opinion as to when diplomatic intervention is justifiable. It is so in present case, but if judicial proceedings are pending, the claim should be deferred | 178 |

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 175 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 6, 1885 | Detention of the "Henrietta" on charge of smuggling. Claim should be proceeded with. Proposed instructions not desirable | 179 |
| 176 | Law Officers .. | 25, | General Pulgar's revolutionary movement. Case of the "Justicia Nacional." Venezuelan demands. Opposed to action against the revolutionists, except in event of breach of Foreign Enlistment Act. Directions for observance of Act will meet the second demand. Should not detain vessels, except for piracy or breach of the Act. Approve action of Governor of Trinidad | 180 |
| 177 | Law Officers .. | 27, | Rebellion in Venezuela under General Pulgar. Approve note, with an omission, to Venezuelan Minister denying alleged breach of neutrality by Great Britain | 182 |
| 178 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 8, | Seizure and sale of the "Western Star" for entering the port of Ciudad Bolivar without proper papers. No claim on Venezuelan Government can be made under the circumstances | 183 |

1885

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

(Names and Subjects.)

1885.

---

[The figures refer to the numbers of the pages.]

---

ABD—ANG.

A.

Abduction from Hong Kong. Case of Chan Tim, 28, 29.
Abdul Ghani, 172.
Abdul Rahim, 172.
Abyssinian. British Consular jurisdiction over, non-existent, 65.
Act. Extradition (1870 and 1873) and Treaty of Tien-tsin, 26, 30, 31.
,, Foreign Enlistment. Instruction for carrying out in Colonies, 68, 69, 74, 75.
,, ,, ,, Arrest for offence against, 115.
,, ,, ,, Hired transports. Treatment of, 81, 85, 86.
,, ,, ,, Conditional relaxation of, 70.
,, ,, ,, Delay in carrying out, 81.
,, ,, ,, Reimposition of restrictions, 94, 97, 99.
,, ,, ,, Enforcement until signature of Treaty of Peace, 96.
,, ,, ,, Entry into military service an offence against, 114, 115.
,, ,, ,, Observance with reference to revolution in Venezuela, 181–183.
,, ,, ,, Sale of vessels. See Vessels.
,, ,, ,, Treatment of belligerent vessels. See Vessels.
,, ,, ,, See also Coal, Contraband of War, &c.
,, Foreign jurisdiction, powers under, 13, 14.
,, Legalization of marriage by Acting-Consul, 21.
,, Marriage (4 Geo. IV, cap. 91), 175, 176.
,, Ratification of Treaty, 68.
,, ,, ,, in foreign language, 87.
Act of Berlin Conference as to Niger. General, 16, 17.
Aden, Gulf of. Egyptian tenure of territory in, 43.
Administration of landed estates in Japan, 112, 113.
,, of conquered territory, 22.
Agents. Status of in Consular Court, 117.
"Alabama," case of the, 88.
"Ambrose Light," the, 181.
Ammunition. Export of. See Arms.
Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Fisheries Company, 139–142.
"Anjer Head." Detention of the, at San Francisco, 174, 175.

ANN—BEL.

Annexations. Proposed Rules as to necessary formalities, 1–9.
,, ,, ,, Limitation to Africa, 6–9.
,, and Protectorates. Distinction between, 1, 6, 9,
Antoun Yousef Abdel Messieh, 59–61.
Appeal from Consular Court to Privy Council, 60.
Aratoon. Messrs. Herapit and, 123.
Arbitration proposed as to Maunder claims. See Claims.
Arms. Export from neutral ports, 70, 86–90, 92, 93.
,, ,, ,, ,, Prohibition of, 73, 74, 88–90, 92.
,, ,, Distinction as to, 92.
,, Capture of. Abandonment of right, 70.
Army. Responsibility of a Government for acts of soldiers, 19, 20.
,, British, in Egypt. Registration of officers, 45.
Arrest abroad. For offence against Foreign Enlistment Act, 115.
,, of Zebehr Pasha, 45, 46.
Arsenian, Mr. A Persian naturalized as a British subject, 120–122.
Asche. Farrer versus, 169–171.
Assault by Abyssinian at Zeyla. Illegal trial and sentence for, 64, 65.
Associations, private. Grant of sovereign rights to, 13.
Auriol, Mme., 169.
Austrian Lloyd's. Participation of in Turkish coasting trade, 168, 173, 174.

B.

Bagdad. Consular Court not able to try capital cases, 164, 165.
Bankrupt. Claim for supply of goods to, 37.
Bankruptcy. Herapit and Aratoon, in Persia, 123.
Baptist Missionary Society. Claims on account of bombardment, 15.
Barranquilla. Closing of port by Decree. Notification, 32–34, 36.
Belligerent rights. Exercise of at sea. See Search. Seizure, right of.
,, ,, See also Rice. Treatment as Contraband.
,, ,, Conditional abstention from exercise of, 73, 74.
,, ,, Exercise of during temporary cessation of hostilities, 94.
,, ,, ,, of on cessation of hostilities, 96, 97.

BER—CHA.

Berat. Limits of, not co-extensive with Consul's Commission, 162, 163.
Berne. Conference of, as to Salvation Army, 159.
Bill, for ratification of Submarine Cables Convention, 68, 87.
Blockade of Mollendo. See "Kirkloch," "Overdale."
,, ineffective. Seizure of vessels during, 124.
,, of Carthagena during revolution, 32, 33.
,, ,, Convoy of vessels into port, 34, 35.
,, of Puerto Plata in 1878, 124.
,, by Decrees and Orders, 124.
,, Seizure of vessels for breach of. See "Kirklock," "Overdale."
Boats. Building for belligerent. See Vessels.
Bombardment. Places in Cameroon River. Claims, 11, 12, 15.
Bombay. Trial of murder case from Bagdad, 164, 165.
,, Imprisonment of British Indians for offences committed in Turkey, 172.
Bonds. Egyptian form of guarantee appearing on, 55, 56.
Books. Seizure of offensive, in Turkey, 47.
Borg, C. Petition for remission of sentence, 101, 102.
Borneo Company, British North. Charter of, 12, 13.
"Bosphore Égyptien." Suppression of the, 46–51.
Bosphorus. Participation of foreigners in local traffic, 168, 173, 174.
Burmah. British. Conquest of, 22, 23.
Busattil. Remission of sentence. Petition for, 160.
Busrah. Case of Farrer v. Asche. British jurisdiction over a protected German, 169–171.

C.

Cables. Submarine. See Telegraphs.
Caisse de la Dette Publique (Egypt). Suit against Government officials, 38–42.
Cameroon River. German bombardment of places in, 11, 12, 15.
Cantlon, Mr. P. Claim on Argentine Government, 18–20.
Capital punishment on West Coast of Africa. Sanction of, 10, 11.
Capital cases. Consul not competent to try, 164.
Capitulations. Effect on Press Law in Turkey and Egypt. See Newspapers, suppression of.
Cargo. Vessel in port hostilely occupied not allowed to discharge, 67.
,, Time allowed for loading and discharging in event of Russian war, 143.
,, consigned to belligerent through a neutral port. Seizure of, 88, 89.
,, as contraband of war. Destination conclusive, 77.
,, neutral, consigned to a neutral. Seizure of, 70, 77, 78.
Carthagena. Convoy of British vessel into port during siege by rebels, 34, 35.
,, Blockade of. Notification, 33, 34.
Ceded territories. Inquiry into titles to land in, 163, 164.
Cerruti, Messrs., 36, 37.
Certificate. As to validity of divorce, 105.
,, ,, procedure in British Courts, 139–142.
,, ,, transfer of contract, 112.
,, of registration of British subjects in Siam, 152.
Cession of conquered territory, 22.
"Champlain," the, 98.
Chancellor, Lord. Memoranda, &c., by, 1, 4, 6–10, 18, 83, 84, 87, 88, 91, 92, 97, 101.
,, ,, Opinion as to Declaration of Paris, 91.
"Chandernagore." French transport. Deserters from, shot in British waters, 79.

CHA—COH.

Chan Tim. Abduction of, from Hong Kong, 28, 29.
Charter. Grant of, to National African Company, 10–14, 16–18.
,, East India Company's, 13.
,, Hudson's Bay Company's, 13.
,, British North Borneo Company's, 12, 13.
,, Right to cancel, 17.
Chirket-i-Khairié. Compagnie du, 168.
Circular. Draft. Egyptian Loans, 56, 57.
,, Foreign Office. Marriages at Legations, 176.
,, Haïtian. Closing ports, 124.
,, British. As to Declaration of Paris, 145, 146.
Citation. Informal service of, in Portugal, 139–142.
Ciudad Bolivar. Seizure of vessel at. See "Western Star."
Claim. Detention of vessel at Kelung by French, 67.
,, ,, vessels by Venezuelan authorities, 178–180.
,, ,, "North Durham" in quarantine, 110–111.
,, ,, "Anjer Head" at San Francisco, 174, 175.
,, ,, "Overdale," 38, 124–132, 134, 135.
,, ,, "Kirkloch," 125–132, 135–139.
,, by neutrals for losses during Chileo-Peruvian war, 23, 24.
,, Injuries caused by National Militia, 18–20.
,, on Holland for cost of relieving crew of "Nisero," 118, 119.
,, Mrs. Kendall on Mme. Auriol, 168, 169.
,, Closing of warehouses by Consul (Messrs. Shalom and Zagal), 166, 167.
,, Detention of passengers in lazaretto, 140–143.
,, of Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Fisheries Company to Lisbon Fisheries, 139–142.
,, Murder of J. H. Tunstall, 176–178.
,, Mrs. Maunder's, 105-110.
,, Bombardment of places in Cameroon River, 11, 12, 15.
,, Delay in admission to quarantine, 119, 120.
,, Pillage of wrecked vessel in China, 27, 28.
,, Imprisonment of British seamen in Cuba, 156, 157.
,, Schloss, Brothers, for goods seized in Colombia, 36, 37.
,, for capture of the "San Juan de Dios" or "Vascongada" in 1796, 155.
,, Seizure of vessels for want of proper papers, 183.
,, Necessity for proof of facts before Courts, 19, 20.
Clerks. Resident, at Foreign Office. See Foreign Office.
Coal. Supply to belligerent vessels in neutral ports, 68–72, 75, 82, 90, 91, 93–99.
,, ,, vessels carrying coals to belligerent coaling station, 75, 76.
,, ,, homeward-bound belligerent ships, 82.
,, ,, belligerents on cessation of hostilities, 94–99.
,, ,, insurgents, 181, 182.
,, when not contraband of war, 72.
,, in neutral vessel for ports of belligerent, 72.
,, consigned by Australians to foreigners in Chinese Treaty ports, 72.
,, Export from neutral port near seat of war, 93.
,, ,, ,, ,, during war, 93.
Coasting trade. Ports closed by Decree to, 32, 33.
,, Turkish. Participation of foreigners in, 167, 168, 172–174.
,, ,, Distinctions as to local traffic, 168, 172–174.
Cohabitation of Siamese woman with British subject. Effect on status, 152.

1885

Cohen, Mr., 117.
Colonies, British. Supply of coal to belligerent ships. See Coal.
,, ,, Instructions to Governors as to neutrality, 68, 69, 71, 75.
,, ,, Export of arms from. See Arms, Export.
,, ,, Return of revolutionists to, 181, 182.
Colony, Crown. Government vested in private Company, 10–14, 16–18.
Commission. Consul's not co-extensive with Berat, 162, 163.
,, ,, Limitation of, 162.
Commission on claims for losses during Chileo-Peruvian war, 24.
Companies. Grant of Charters to, 10–14, 16–18.
Company, National African. Proposal to confer jurisdiction on officials of, in British Colony, 10–14, 16–18.
,, ,, ,, Charter for, 10–14, 16–18.
,, ,, ,, Government of Crown Colony vested in, 10–14, 16–18.
,, British North Borneo. Charter for, 12, 13.
,, Anglo-Portuguese Oyster, 139–142.
,, subjects of belligerent. Sale of vessels by neutrals to, 66.
,, Hudson's Bay. Charter for, 13.
,, East India. Charter for, 13.
Compensation. See Claims.
Concessions. Turkish coasting trade. See Coasting trade.
Conference, West African. Third basis. Formalities for annexations, &c., 1–9.
,, ,, ,, Third basis. Declaration as to, 4–9.
,, ,, ,, Regulations as to Protectorates, &c. Limitation to Africa, 7–9.
,, ,, ,, 1–10.
,, of Berne as to "Salvation Army," 159.
Confiscation of neutral vessels carrying contraband of war, 78.
,, See also Seizure.
Congo. Conference as to. See Conference, West African.
,, Conventional Basin. Neutralization of, 10.
Conquered territory. Adminstration of, 22.
,, ,, Cession of, 22.
Conquest. Effect in annulling Treaties, 22, 23.
Constantinople, port of. Local traffic not open to foreigners, 173, 174.
Consul-General. Appointment as Acting Assistant Judge in Turkey in capital case, 165.
,, at Constantinople. Payment of law expenses, 165, 166.
,, Barrister sent to assist judicially, 165.
,, Not competent to try capital cases, 164.
Consul. Berat and Commission of, not co-extensive, 162, 163.
Enforcement by, of Regulations by fine, 116, 117.
Acting. Marriage by, in interval before issue of warrant to new Consul, 21.
,, Persian, in Turkey. Jurisdiction over British naturalized Persian, 120, 121.
,, Refusal to recognize, 162.
,, Protection by, of British subjects engaged in law-suits, 168, 169.
,, Closing of warehouses by, 166, 167.
Consular Court. See Court.
,, fees. See Fees.
,, jurisdiction. See Jurisdiction.

Contraband of war. Advice to private traders as to, 74, 75.
,, ,, consigned to neutral port. Liability to seizure, 77, 78, 88, 89.
,, ,, Rice declared to be. See Rice.
,, ,, Provisions as, 77, 83, 93, 101.
,, ,, Right of belligerents to define, 85.
,, ,, Materials for injuring submarine telegraph cables, 100.
,, ,, Money and treasure as, 101.
,, ,, Search of neutral ships carrying. See Search, Right of.
,, ,, Seizure of neutral ships carrying. See Seizure.
,, ,, Destination of cargo conclusive, 77.
,, ,, See also Arms; Coal; Declaration of Paris; Search; Seizure; Vessels.
Contract. Certificate as to transfer of, 112.
Convoy of vessels. See Vessels.
Costs, Law. Payment for Consul-General and Judge, 165, 166.
Court, Consular. Mitigation and remission of sentences of, 60, 61, 101, 102, 159, 160, 172.
,, ,, at Bagdad. Trial of case of murder, 164, 165, 172.
,, ,, Appeal against decisions of, 60.
,, ,, Provincial. Powers as to punishment, 65.
,, ,, in Morocco. Intervention of unqualified persons, 117, 118.
,, ,, ,, Status of agents in, 118.
,, ,, Jurisdiction of. See Jurisdiction.
,, of Claims in United States, 175.
Courts. Proof of facts as to claims. See Claims.
,, Procedure in British. Certificate as to, 139–142.
,, Prize. Decisions when binding on neutrals, 84, 85.
Crimes by British subjects on foreign ships on high seas, 102.
Curtis, Captain A., 34, 35.
Customs. Seals broken. Case of "Emily," 113, 114.
Cutters being built for French during hostilities with China. See Vessels.

D.

Debt, Egyptian. Deduction of 5 per cent. from coupons, 52–55, 57.
Declaration of Paris, 83.
,, ,, British Circular as to, in event of war with Russia, 145–148.
,, ,, Denunciation by Great Britain, 91.
,, ,, British adherence to, 147–149.
,, ,, French notification as to, in 1870, 145. 149.
,, Finances of Egypt. See Treaty.
,, Third basis of West African Conference. See Conference.
Decree, Colombian, closing ports to trade, 32–34, 36.
,, ,, declaring insurgent vessels to be pirates, 33, 34.
,, ,, reimposing duties paid to rebels, 36.
,, Ecuadorian, closing ports to trade, 37, 38.
,, Egyptian, establishing Caisse, 39–41.
,, ,, as to Loan, 64.
,, ,, suppressing newspapers, 46, 48.
,, ,, Deduction from coupons of debt, 52, 53, 55, 57.
,, ,, Deduction from coupons of Domains Loan, 58, 59.

Decree, Peruvian. Closing ports to trade, 124, 135.
Deportation of British subjects not born in Her Majesty's dominions from Turkey, 161, 162.
Deserters. Shooting of, in neutral waters, 79.
Detention of vessels. See Vessels; Seizure.
Diplomatic privilege as to taxes in England. Grant to English Secretaries in Foreign Missions, 26, 27.
,, intervention, when justifiable, 179.
,, ,, in Maunder claim. See Claim.
Divorce. German not valid in England, 104, 105.
,, Certificate. Refusal to grant, 105.
"Djanik." Status of the, 170, 171.
Dockyards in Japan. See Naval Yards.
Domains Loan, Egyptian. See Loan, Decree.
Domicile of British subjects in Peru. Effect on rights, 24.
Domiciliary visit in Egypt, 47, 48.
"Don Juan," the, 102.
Duty on probate, &c., of land in Japan, 112, 113.
,, Reimposition after payment to revolutionists. See Taxes.

E.

East India Company's Charter, 13.
Egypt. Jurisdiction of the International Tribunals, 38–42.
,, Authorities for tenure of territory in Red Sea, &c., and Equatorial Africa, 43, 62.
,, Order of succession, 62, 63.
"El Ahram" newspaper. Suppression in Egypt, 47.
Embargo on vessels. See Vessels.
"Emily." Customs seal on hatches broken, 113, 114.
Evidence, hearsay. Acceptance before Claims Commission, 24.
Expulsion. Salvationists from Switzerland, 158, 159.
Extradition from Hong Kong, 25, 26, 29–31.
,, ,, Regulations for, 25, 26.
,, ,, Acts of 1870 and 1873 not applicable, 26.
,, ,, Legality of refusal of demand for, 30, 31.
,, Proof of guilt, 26, 30, 31.

F.

Farrer v. Asche, 169–171.
Fawcett, Consul-General. Payment of expenses of suit against, 165, 166.
Fees. Consular (General and for China, Japan, &c.), 104.
,, Probate, in Japan, 112, 113.
Ferrato, Signor L., 112.
Fines. Enforcing Sanitary Regulations (Morocco), 116, 117.
,, must be paid to public account, 117.
,, for breach of blockade. See "Overdale."
Firmans as to Egypt, 43, 62, 63.
Fisher, E. Deportation of, from Smyrna, 161.
Flag. Haïtian vessel sailing under French, 156, 157.
,, Vessel sailing under improperly used, 157.
"Flodden." Wreck pillaged in China, 27, 28.
Flogging. Power of Provincial Court to inflict sentence of. See Said, John.
Food as contraband of war. See Rice, Contraband, Provisions.
Foreign Enlistment Act. See Act.
,, Jurisdiction Act. See Act.
,, language. Enactment of Treaty in, 87.
Foreigners. Jurisdiction over in Protectorates. See Charter, grant to Company.
,, See also Jurisdiction and Protection.
,, in Egypt. Rights of, 47.
Foreign Office. Resident Clerks and income tax, 103.

Framalauza. Mitigation of punishment of, 102.
Francalanza. Petition for remission of sentence, 160.
Fugitives in Hong Kong. Extradition of, 25, 26, 29–31.

G.

Gadesden and Treherne, Messrs. Defence of Zebehr Pasha, 62.
"Galley of Lorne," with powder for neutral ports. Liability to seizure, 77, 78.
"Garstang." Pillaged by Chinese wreckers, 28.
George, Mr. Case of, in Ireland, 177.
Gibraltar. British vessel boarded by Spanish gunboat near, 155, 156.
,, Detention of Egyptians (Zebehr Pasha, &c.) at, 45, 46, 62.
Girgenti. Detention of vessel in quarantine, 110, 111.
Great Britain. Registration of subjects in Siam, 150–153.
,, ,, Subjects, rights and qualifications in Peru, during war, 24.
Guarantee of Egyptian Loan by Powers, 52, 53–56.
,, Form of, on Egyptian bonds, 55, 56.
Guilt, proof of, for extradition, 26, 30, 31.
Gunpowder, shipped to a neutral port by neutrals. Liability to seizure, 77, 78.
,, merchant, consigned to a neutral port. Seizure of, 77, 78.

H.

Haiphong. French coaling-station. Supply of coals to vessels carrying coals to, 75, 76.
Hamidieh Company. Grant of monopoly in Turkish coasting trade, 173, 174.
"Henrietta." Seizure of, by Venezuelan authorities, 178–180.
Herapit and Aratoon. Bankruptcy case, 123.
Hickory Town bombardment. Claims, 11, 15.
Hidayat Ali. Murder of, at Kerbela. See Kerbela.
Himmut Bahadur. Murder of, at Kerbela. See Kerbela.
Hogg and Robinson, 77.
Holder, F. D., 11.
"Hong Kong." Pillaged by Chinese wreckers, 28.
Hong Kong. Extradition. See Extradition.
,, Export of arms from. See Arms.
,, Gunpowder shipped by neutrals to. Liability to seizure, 77, 78.
,, Cargoes through, for China. Interception of, 88, 89.
,, Messageries Maritimes steamers at, during hostilities, 90.
,, Abduction of Chinaman from, 28, 29.
,, Power of Governor to discharge prisoners, 30.
,, Export of coal from. See Coal.
Hospital, Naval, in Japan. Use of, in event of war, 149, 150.
Hostilities. France and China. Foreign Enlistment Act. See Act.
"Huascar." Case of the, 181.
Hudson's Bay Company's Charter, 13.

I.

Imprisonment, without trial, of British seaman in Cuba, 156, 157.
,, of British Indians for offences in Turkey, 172.
Income tax. Liability of Foreign Office Resident Clerks, 103.
Incorporation. Charter of, See Charter, grant of.
"Independiente," Haïtian vessel, accused of piracy by Spaniards, 156, 157.
Indian, British, born in Turkey. Jurisdiction over property of deceased, 59–61.

1885

ING—KOU.

"Ingeborg" detained, and not allowed to unload at Kelung, 67.
Instructions to Governors of Colonies as to Foreign Enlistment Acts. See Colonies.
„ to Naval Commanders (Franco-Chinese war), 71.
Insurgents, vessels of, declared to be pirates, 33, 34.
„ Trade with, forbidden, 38.
Insurrection. Closing of ports by Decree, &c., during. See Ports.
International Tribunals, Egypt. See Tribunals.
Intestate estates of British subjects in Siam, 152.
„ „ of Europeans in Egypt. Consular jurisdiction over, 44.
Invaders. Liability to neutrals for losses, 24.
Invasion. Position of neutrals during, 11.

J.

Jacmel. Blockade of, 124.
"Jonge Margaretha," 77.
"Josephine." Seizure of, by Venezuelan authorities, 178, 179.
Joss Town. Bombardment, 11, 12.
Journalists. Interference of, in Consular Court, 117, 118.
Judge. Appointment at Bagdad to try murder, 164, 165.
Judgment. Enforcement of British, in Portugal, 139–142.
Jurisdiction. International Tribunals in Egypt, in suit of Caisse v. Officers of Egyptian Government, 38–42.
„ Consular Courts in Egypt. Real property in intestate estate, 44.
„ Proposed Order in Council for West Coast of Africa, 10, 14, 17, 18.
„ conferred on officials of National African Company, 10–14, 16–18.
„ Consular, in Turkey. Berat not co-extensive with Commission, 162, 163.
„ „ Court in Egypt. Property of deceased British Indian, 59-61.
„ British Consular, over protected foreigners in Turkey, 169–171.
„ over British subjects committing offences on foreign vessels on high seas, 102.
„ „ foreigners in Niger districts, 14, 16–18.
„ „ „ in protected territory, 6, 9, 14, 16–18.
„ Act, Foreign. See Act.
„ Acting Consul at Zeyla, 64, 65.
„ Persian Consular, over Persians naturalized as British subjects, 120–122.
"Justicia Nacional," 181.

K.

Kelung. Detention of vessel by French when occupying. See "Ingeborg."
Kendall, Mrs. E., 168, 169.
„ v. Auriol, 168, 169.
Kerbellah. Murder of British Indian subject. Trial for, 164, 165, 172.
Khedive of Egypt, the, 39, 40, 43.
„ „ Conditions of grant of sovereign rights to, 43.
"Kirkloch." Seizure for breach of order closing port, 125–132, 135–139.
"Kou-shing." Detention for having treasure on board, 101.

LAN—MEM.

L.

Land in Japan. Real not personal property, 112, 113.
„ „ Probate. Duty on, 112, 113.
„ in territory ceded to Greece. Inquiry into titles to, 163, 164.
Lapraike, Mr. J. S., 175.
Law of Liquidation in Egypt, 39–42.
„ of Egyptian press of 1881. Applicability to French subjects, 48–51.
„ „ „ Provisions as to suppression of papers, 46–51.
„ Martial. Application of, to neutrals and natives during invasion, 24.
„ French, as to Submarine Cables Convention, 68.
„ Moorish, as to newspapers, 116.
„ suits. Consular protection of British subjects in, 168, 169.
„ foreign, as to marriages. Observation of, 176.
Lazaretto. Detention in. See Quarantine.
Legation. Marriages at. See Marriages.
"Levant Herald" newspaper. Suppression of, 47, 50.
Liquidation. Egyptian Law of, 39–42.
Loan, Egyptian, 52, 54–57.
„ „ Issue of, without approval of Austrian Parliament, 52, 54.
„ „ Issue of, without approval of Parliaments of the Powers, 52–56.
„ „ Draft Circular, 56, 57.
„ „ Form of guarantee to appear on the bonds, 55, 56.
„ „ and Decree, deducting 5 per cent. from coupons of National Debt. See Debt.
„ „ Domains. Non-payment of sinking fund, 57, 58.
„ „ „ Tax of 5 per cent. on coupons, 59.
„ „ Form of prospectus, 52, 55, 56.
„ „ Sultan's sanction necessary, 54, 55.
„ „ Convention and Declaration as to. See Treaty.
Lucas, Brothers', Messrs., claim. Bombardment of Hickory Town, 15.

M.

"Madras." Delay in admission to quarantine, 119, 120.
"Magicienne," Her Majesty's ship, 155.
Mahsoussieh Company. Status of vessels of, 170, 171.
Mail. Detention of vessel conveying, 98.
„ steamers, French, at Hong Kong. See Messageries Maritimes.
Malcolm and Co., 123.
Malta. Status of Turkish vessel with prisoners, 170, 171.
Marriages at Legation by other than clergyman of Church of England, 175, 176.
„ in Siam. Validity, 152.
„ „ Mixed, 152.
„ by Acting Consul in interval before issue of warrant to new Consul, 21.
„ in heathen countries, 152.
„ Foreign Office Circular as to, 176.
„ Foreign law to be observed, 176.
Martial Law. See Law.
Martin, R., 102.
Massowah. Egyptian tenure under Firman, 43, 63.
Maunder, Mrs., 105–110.
„ Frédéric, 106, 110.
„ Joseph, 106–109.
„ J. B. W., 107–109.
Meakin, Mr., 117.
Mehdi Hussein, 172.
Memorial. To foreign Representatives at Lima. Claims of neutrals, 23, 24.

MEM—NAT.

Memorandum (Lord Chancellor). Annexations and Protectorates, 1.
„ „ „ Caisse v. Egyptian officials, 38–40.
„ „ „ Rice as contraband of war, 91, 92.
„ „ „ Export of arms from Hong Kong, 92.
„ „ „ Niger Charter, 18.
„ „ „ Coaling belligerent vessels, 97.
„ „ „ Treasure as contraband, 101.
„ (Law Officers). Losses by neutrals during war, 24.
„ „ „ Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien," 48.
„ „ „ West African Conference, 4.
„ Neutrals. Position of, in an invaded country, 11.
„ West African Conference. Third basis for, 2.
„ Foreigners. Losses by, during revolutions, 19.
„ „ Outrages on, in British dominions, 177.
„ Turkish coasting trade, 173.
„ Registration of British subjects in Siam, 151.
„ Vessels using flag improperly, 157.
„ Consular jurisdiction. Limits of, 162.
Merchant powder. See Gunpowder.
Messageries Maritimes. Steamers of, at Hong Kong during Franco-Chinese hostilities. Position of, 70, 71, 90.
„ „ Participation of vessels of, in Turkish coasting trade, 168, 172–174.
Messieh, Antoun Yousef Abdel, 59–61.
Military service of belligerents. Engagement of neutrals in, 114, 115.
„ „ of China. Prosecution of British subjects in, 80.
Militia. Government responsible for misdemeanours of, 19, 20.
Mollendo. Blockade of. See "Kirkloch" and "Overdale."
„ Closing of port. See "Kirkloch" and "Overdale."
Momance estate. See Claim, Mrs. Maunder's.
Money, when contraband of war, 101.
Mong Chu. Arrest of, in Siam, 153, 154.
Monopoly in Turkish coasting trade, 168.
Munitions of war. See Arms.
Murder. Remission of sentence for, 159, 160, 172.
„ at Kerbellah. Trial at Bagdad Consular Court, 164, 165, 172.
„ „ „ at Bombay, 164.
„ „ „ Appointment of Assistant Judge, 164, 165.
„ „ „ Mitigation of sentence, 172.
„ by British subjects on foreign vessels. Trial, &c., of, 102.
„ of J. H. Tunstall in New Mexico. Claim for, 176–178.
Mutiny by British subjects on foreign vessel, 102.

N.

National African Company. Charter for, 10–14, 16–18.
Nationality. Registration of. Effect on grant of protection, 168, 169.
„ of son of British Indian born at Bagdad, 59–61.
„ of Maunder family. See Claim, Maunder's.

NAT—OFF.

Nationality of children and grandchildren, born in Peru, of British subjects, 24.
Naval yards in Japan. Use of, in event of Anglo-Russian war, 149, 150.
„ service. Engagement of neutrals in, 80.
„ officers. Powers under Convention for protection of submarine telegraph cables, 100.
Neuchâtel. Expulsion of "Salvationists" from, 158, 159.
Neutral cargoes. Seizure of. See Cargo.
„ vessels. Search and seizure of. See Search, and Seizure, right of.
„ waters. Violation of, by shooting deserters from transport, 79.
Neutrality. British observance of. See Act, Foreign Enlistment.
„ Convoy of British vessels into besieged port a breach of, 34, 35.
„ of Conventional Basin of Congo, 10.
„ Alleged British breach of, with reference to Venezuelan rebellion, 182.
„ Proclamation of, not issued in absence of declaration of war, 69, 70.
Neutrals. Sale of vessels by, to belligerents. See Vessels.
„ Boats built by, for belligerents. See Vessels.
„ Service of, as pilots on belligerent ships, 80.
„ Seizure of goods belonging to, when consigned to a neutral port, 77, 78.
„ Claims for losses during invasions, 23, 24.
„ Binding effect of Prize Courts on, 84, 85.
„ Punishment for damaging submarine telegraph cables, 67, 68, 87, 100.
„ Position of, in invaded territory, 11.
„ Enforcement of rights of, 69.
„ Right of, to trade with belligerents, 86, 88.
New Mexico. Murder of J. H. Tunstall. See Tunstall.
Newspapers. Right of Government to suppress (Morocco), 115, 116.
„ Attacks of, on Moorish Government, 115, 116.
„ Suppression of, in Egypt, 46–51.
„ „ in Turkey, 47.
„ See also Journalists.
Niger. Scheme for government of districts of, 10–14. 16–18.
„ Jurisdiction over foreigners on, 14, 16–18.
„ British Protectorate over, 12.
„ Free navigation of, 12.
„ Protection of foreigners navigating, 16.
"Nisero." Detention of crew by Rajah of Tenom, 118, 119.
„ Ditto. Claims on account of, 118.
Northbrook, Lord. Report on Egypt, 63.
"North Durham." Detention of, in quarantine, 110, 111.
Notification. Closing of ports by Decree, 32–34, 38.
„ Search of neutral vessels by belligerents, 71–73.
„ Treatment of rice as contraband of war, 77–79.
„ Occupation of territory. Proposed, 3, 4, 5.
„ „ „ Consent of Powers, 4, 5.
„ to shipping as to declaration of war, 144, 145.
„ as to Declaration of Paris. See Declaration of Paris.

O.

Occupation of territory. Claims on account of. See Territory.
Officers of British Army of Occupation in Egypt. Registration of, 45.
„ British, in Egyptian service, registration, 45.

1885

Opium smuggling in Siam. Regulations, 153, 154.
„ „ „ Observance of Siamese Law by British subjects, 153, 154.
„ Illicit dealing in, in Siam, 153.
Order in Council. Jurisdiction on West Coast of Africa, 10, 14, 17, 18.
„ „ Consular Fees (General), 104.
„ „ „ „ (China, Japan, &c.), 104.
„ „ Probate duty in Japan, 112, 113.
Ordinance. Malta, of 1882, 170, 171.
„ Hong Kong, as to extradition, 26, 30, 31.
„ authorizing detention of Egyptians at Gibraltar, 45, 46, 62.
„ for Morocco, 117.
Outrages on foreigners in British dominions. Memorandum, 177.
„ on British subjects by public officers abroad, 177.
„ See Murders, &c.
"Overdale." Seizure off Mollendo for breach of order closing port, 38, 124–132, 134, 135.
Oyster fisheries. See Fisheries.

P.

Pace, G., 159.
Papers. Vessel seized for want of proper, 183.
Paris. Declaration of. See Declaration.
Passengers. Vessels of belligerents carrying. Treatment of, 90.
„ Detention in quarantine, 140–143.
Pernambuco. Marriage by Acting Consul at, 21.
Personalty and realty. Distinction between, 113.
Petitions for remission of sentences. See Sentences.
Pilots. Neutrals serving as, on belligerent vessels, 80.
Piracy. Haïtain vessel flying French flag declared to be guilty of, 156, 157.
„ Detention of vessels accused of, 181, 182.
Pirates. Decree declaring insurgents to be, 33, 34, 181.
Pitts v. Fawcett. Payment of Consul-General Fawcett's expenses, 165, 166.
Political prisoners. See Prisoners.
Ports. Closing of, by Order or Decree, 32–34, 36–38, 127.
„ „ for fiscal purposes justifiable, 128.
„ „ See also Blockade.
„ Geographical position of neutral, and right of search, &c., 89.
„ Chinese, occupied by French. Vessel detained. See "Ingeborg"
„ Use of, by belligerents, restricted, 90.
„ Neutral. Repairs of vessels of belligerents. See Vessels.
„ Blockade of. See Blockade.
Press Law. See Law and Newspapers.
Printer. Closing establishment of, in Egypt, 47–51.
„ „ „ in Turkey, 50.
Prisoners. Political. Communication of solicitor with, 61, 62.
„ „ See also Zebehr Pasha.
„ Turkish vessel with, in British waters. Status of, 170, 171.
„ Right of Colonial Governor to discharge, 30.
Private individuals. Answers and advice to, 74, 75.
Privateering and Declaration of Paris. Threatened war with Russia, 146–149.
„ Demand on neutrals as to, 146.
Privy Council. Appeal from Consular Court to, 60.
Prize. Claim to regard vessel as, for breach of Decree closing port, 130.
„ Courts. Decisions when binding on neutrals, 84, 85.
Probate duty. See Duty.
Procedure in British Courts. Certificate as to, 139–142.
"Progrès d'Orient." Suppression of the, 47.

Property of deceased British Indian born in Turkey, 59–61.
„ „ „ subjects in Siam, 152.
„ Real. See Real property.
„ Landed, in Japan. Duty on probate. See Duty.
Prosecution of British subjects serving belligerents. Instructions, 80.
Protected persons in Siam. Registration of, 152.
„ „ (foreigners). British jurisdiction in case of, 169–171.
Protection of naturalized Persians at Tehran, 120–122.
„ Refusal with reference to cases arising previous to registration, 168, 169.
„ British, of foreigners. Jurisdiction in case of, 169–171.
„ in cases of double nationality, 108.
„ Maunder family. See Claim, Maunder's.
„ British subjects in Siam. Registration. See Registration.
Protection. Submarine cables. See Telegraph.
Protectorate, British, over Niger districts, 12.
Protectorates. Proposed rules as to. See Conference, West African.
„ and annexations. Distinction between, 1, 6, 9.
„ Rules as to. Limitation to Africa, 6–9.
„ Obligations arising out of, 5, 6, 12.
„ Jurisdiction in. See Jurisdiction.
Protests, British, against declaration of rice as contraband of war, 81, 85.
„ „ „ capture of neutral vessels by belligerents, 82, 83.
„ „ „ decision by belligerents of what constitutes contraband of war, 85.
Protocols, English and French, with Turkey, as to real property, 47.
Provisions. Supply to belligerent vessels. See Vessels, supplies to.
„ regarded as contraband of war, 77, 83, 93, 101.
„ Ditto. See also Rice.
„ Export from neutral ports during war, 93.
Puerto Plata. Blockade of, 124.
Pulgar, General, 180–183.
Punishments. Power of Provincial Consular Courts, 65.

Q.

Quarantine. Detention of passengers in lazaretto at Funchal, 140–143.
„ Delay in admission of vessel. "Madras," 119, 120.
„ Detention of vessel in. Claim, 110, 111.

R.

Rabey, Mr. Expulsion from Neuchâtel, 158, 159.
Real property. Jurisdiction over, in Egypt (intestate estate), 44.
Realty and personalty, distinction between, 113.
Rebellion in Venezuela. British neutrality. See Revolution.
Rebels treated as pirates, 33, 34.
„ See also Insurgents.
Red Sea. Tenure of territory by Egypt in, 43.
Reeve, Major, 141–143.
Regidor, Don A. M., 155.
Registration. British subjects in Siam. Regulations, 150–153.
„ „ officers in Egypt, 45.
„ „ „ in Egyptian army, 45.
„ „ „ Families of, in Egypt, 45.
„ „ „ Servants of, in Egypt, 45.
„ „ subjects. Effect on grant of protection, 168, 169.

Registration. British subjects in Siam. Compulsory, 152.
„ of protected persons in Siam, 152.
„ See also Claim, Maunder's.
„ of British subjects when travelling, 151, 152.
„ of wives of British subjects abroad, 151.
Règlement, Egyptian (Tribunals), of 1874, 39–41.
Regulations. Registration of British subjects in Siam, 150–153.
„ Trade in Japan, 113, 114.
„ Sanitary, in Morocco. Enforcement by Consul, 116, 117.
„ of Conference of Berne as to Salvationists, 159.
„ British, as to opium smuggling, &c., in Siam, 154.
„ „ in Morocco, 117.
„ Marriages of British subjects in Siam, 152.
Rendition of criminals. See Extradition.
Repairs of vessels. See Vessels.
Report, Lord Northbrook's, on Egypt, 63.
Revenue cruizers belonging to belligerents. Supplies of coal to, 70, 71.
Revolution in Venezuela. Action of British Government with regard to, 180–183.
„ British neutrality, 182.
„ Closing of ports during, by Decree. See Ports.
Rice. Declared contraband of war by France, 76–79, 81, 83–85, 87, 88, 91.
„ Liable to seizure when shipped to certain ports, 78, 81.
„ Contraband of war. British protest against, 81.
Right of search. See Search.
Rose, W. Certificate as to divorce of, 104, 105.

S.

Said, John, 64, 65.
"Salamandra," the, 155, 156.
Salvation Army. Expulsion from Switzerland, 158, 159.
San Francisco. Detention of the "Anjer Head" at, 174, 175.
Sanitary Regulations in Morocco. Enforced obedience to, 116, 117.
"San Juan de Dios." Claim for capture of, 155.
Santa Marta. Closing of port by Decree, 33, 34.
Sassoon, D., and Co., 123.
Savanilla. Port closed by Decree during revolution. Notification, 32–34, 36.
Schloss, Brothers, 36, 37.
Seals, Custom-house, on vessel. Breakage of, 113, 114.
Search. Right of, of neutral vessels at sea, 70–75, 78, 82, 83, 93, 94.
„ „ of neutral vessels bound for neutral ports, 86–88.
„ „ Notification of, 71–73.
„ „ Conditional abstention from exercise of, 73, 74.
„ „ Continuance after cessation of hostilities, 93–95, 98, 99.
„ „ See also Seizure.
Secretaries, English, attached to foreign Legations in England. Taxation of, 26, 27.
Seagrave, Mr., 75.
Seizure by belligerents of neutral cargo consigned to a neutral, 70, 77, 78.
„ „ neutral vessels carrying contraband of war, 74, 75, 82–85, 87, 88.
„ „ neutral vessels after cessation of hostilities, 96, 97, 99.
„ „ goods for enemy through a neutral port, 88, 89.
„ of the "Waverley" by French, 96, 97.
„ of vessels for smuggling, 178–180.

Seizure of vessels in his ports by enemy, 144.
„ „ for breach of blockade. See "Kirkloch" and "Overdale."
„ „ on high seas. See "Kirkloch."
„ „ for want of proper papers, 183.
„ of goods in Colombia. Claim for, 36, 37.
„ See also Search, right of.
Sentence of Consular Courts. Petitions for remission of, 60, 61, 101, 102, 159, 160, 172.
Serrière, printer of the "Bosphore Égyptien." Closing of offices of, 48–51.
Servants of officers. Registration of, in Egypt. See Registration.
Shalom and Zagal, Messrs., 166, 167.
Shipping. See Vessels.
Singapore. Export of arms, &c. See Arms, Coal, &c.
Slavery. Cessation of, in territory annexed by Great Britain, 9.
Smuggling. Arrest of vessels for, 178–180.
Smyrna. Deportation of British subject from, 161, 162.
„ Limits of port, 168, 174.
„ Passenger traffic in port, 168, 172–174.
„ Coasting trade from, 167, 168, 172–174.
„ „ „ Monopoly, 168.
Soldiers. See Army.
Sovereign rights. Grant to private Associations, 13.
"Spartan," the, 140, 141–143.
Spiteri. Petition for remission of sentence, 160.
"Spring Bird." Seizure by Venezuelan authorities, 179.
Suakin. Authority for Egyptian tenure of, 43, 62.
Submarine telegraph cables. See Telegraph.
Succession in Egypt. Order of, 62, 63.
Sultan. Egyptian tribute to. See Tribute.
"Surat." Detention of, while conveying Her Majesty's mail, 98.
Suzerain. Tribute to. See Tribute, Egyptian.

T.

Tabone, G., 60, 61.
Tax, income. See Income Tax.
„ Remission of, in favour of English Secretaries of foreign Missions in England, 26, 27.
„ Reimposition by Government after payment to rebels, 36, 133.
Telegraph cables, submarine. Protection of, 67, 68, 87, 100.
„ Convention. French Law as to, 68.
„ „ Powers of naval officers under, 100.
Tenom. Detention of crew of "Nisero" by Rajah of, 118, 119.
"Terceira" affair, the, 181.
Territorial waters. Violation of, by shooting deserters in, 79.
Territory. Cession of conquered, 22.
„ Diminution of tribute on abandonment of, 43.
„ Occupation of. Claims arising from, 1.
„ occupied. Definition of limits, 3, 4.
„ Neutralization of, 10.
„ Occupation of. Rules, &c., for, 1–9.
„ See also Protectorate.
Thomson, J. Imprisonment in Cuba, 156, 157.
Tien-tsin. Treaty of, 26, 29–31.
Titles to land. Inquiry into, 163, 164.
Tortuga Island. Maunder claim. See Claim.
Torture of extradited prisoners in China, 31.
Trade. Closing of ports to, 32–34, 36–38, 127, 128.
„ Regulations in Japan. Dutch version the original, 113, 114.
„ Coasting in Turkey, 167, 168.
„ „ Ports closed to, 32, 33.
„ with rebels forbidden, 38.
„ of neutrals with belligerents, 86, 88.
Traders. Advice to, 74, 75.

1885

Transports of belligerents Supplies to, 80, 81.
" Deserters from, shot in neutral waters, 79.
" hired, treated as Government ships, 85, 86.
Treasure, when contraband, 101.
Treaties. Effect of conquest of country on, 22, 23.
" Revival of, on restoration of independence, 23.
" Formalities for conclusion of, as to occupations, &c., 1–9.
" British, with Niger Chiefs, 12, 13, 16–18.
" National African Company with Niger Chiefs, 12, 13.
Treaty. Protection of submarine cables, 67, 68, 87, 100.
" Declaration of Paris, 83, 91, 145, 149.
" of Tien-tsin, with reference to extradition, 26, 29–31.
" Enactment of, in a foreign language, 87.
" Guarantee of Egyptian Loan, 52, 54-58.
" of 1840 as to Egypt, 62.
" Draft Declaration as to West Coast of Africa, 4–9.
" Anglo-Japanese. Use of naval yards under, 149, 150.
" " " of 1858, 113, 114.
" " Siamese, 153, 154.
" " Swiss. Expulsion of Salvationists not a violation of, 159.
" obligations under, subject to rules of international law, 150.
"Trent." Case of the, 84, 89.
Trial for murder at Kerbellah, 164, 165, 172.
, of British subjects for murder of a foreigner on a foreign ship on the high seas, 102.
Tribunals. International, in Egypt. Jurisdiction in suit of Caisse v. Officers of Egyptian Government, 38–42.
" " Legal remedy to be sought from, by foreigners, 48.
Tribute. Egyptian, to Sultan. Liability for whole amount, 43, 63, 64.
" " " First charge on revenue, 43.
" " " for Zeyla. Cessation of payment, 43, 62–64.
" " " assigned to bondholders, 43.
" " " Reduction due to loss of territory, 43.
" " " Origin of, 62.
" " " Firmans regulating, 43, 62, 63.
Trimingham, A., 102.
Tunstall, J. H., 176, 178.

V.

"Vascongada." See "San Juan de Dios."
Vessels, belligerent. Neutrals serving as pilots on, 80.
" " Equipment in neutral ports. Distinctions as to, 95.
" " Supplies to, in neutral ports, 68–70.
" " Repairs of, in neutral ports, 68–70, 90, 91.
" " Revenue cruizers, supplies to, 71.
" " Transports, supplies to, 80–81.
" British, not allowed to discharge cargo by belligerent, 67.
" " in Russian ports, in event of Anglo-Russian war, 143, 144.
" " boarded by Spanish gun-boat near Gibraltar, 155, 156.
" building for a belligerent. Delivery of, 66, 67.

Vessels building for a belligerent. Assurances required as to, 65, 67, 91.
" Capture of in 1796 by one of Her Majesty's ships (Spain). Claim, 155.
" Detention of boats building for a belligerent, 65–67, 91.
" " by forces occupying an enemy's port, 67.
" " crew of wrecked. See "Nisero."
" " while conveying mails, 98.
" " Claim for, 174, 175.
" " in quarantine, 110, 111.
" " insurgent, in British Colonies, 181, 182.
" " for having treasure on board, 101.
" Foreign, on high seas. Offences by British subjects on, 102.
" Haïtian, flying French flag. Accused of piracy, 156, 157.
" Insurgent. Treatment of, in British Colonies, 180–182.
" " Declared pirates, 33, 34, 181.
" " Supply of stores to, 181, 182.
" Mail. Enjoyment of rights while not taking part in warlike operations, 70, 71, 90.
" " Detention of, 98.
" Neutral. Right of search. See Search.
" " convoy into port besieged by insurgents, 34, 35.
" Notice to, on declaration of war, 144, 145.
" Passengers on belligerent. Treatment of, 90.
" Sale of, to subjects of a belligerent Power, 66, 76.
" " to a belligerent, 66.
" Seizure of, for breach of blockade. See "Kirkloch" and "Overdale."
" " neutral, with contraband of war. See Search and Seizure.
" " neutral, with contraband of war consigned to a neutral port, 74, 86–88.
" " neutral, when damaging submarine cables, 100.
" " or embargo on enemy's, at commencement of war, 144.
" " by Venezuelan authorities, 178–180.
" " for want of proper papers, 183.
" " for breach of Decree closing port. See "Kirkloch" and "Overdale."
" Supply of coal to belligerent homeward-bound, 82.
" " belligerent vessels, 68–72, 75, 82, 90, 91, 93–99.
" " Revenue cruizers of belligerents, 70, 71.
" " Conditional suspension of restrictions, 93, 94.
" " vessels carrying coal to belligerent station, 75, 76.
" " belligerents on cessation of hostilities, 94–99.
" " insurgents, 181, 182.
" " See also Coal.
" Turkish, with prisoners, in Maltese waters. Status of, 170, 171.
" Wreck of, when in custody. Responsibility for, 180.
" " in China. Pillage of, 27, 28.
" See also Mails and Messageries Maritimes.
"Virgen de los Angeles," 155, 156.

W.

War. France and China. Foreign Enlistment Act. See Act.
" Claims of neutrals for losses during, 23, 24.

War. Losses during. Liability of belligerents for, 23, 24.
" Anglo-Russian. Position of British vessels in Russian ports, 143.
" Seizure of, or embargo on, shipping on declaration of, 144.
" Notice to shipping before declaration of, 144, 145.
" Anglo-Russian. Circular, &c., respecting Declaration of Paris, 145, 146.
" Munitions of. See Arms.
" Anglo-Russian. Use of Japanese naval yards, 149, 150.
" Declaration of, and Proclamation of Neutrality, 69, 70.
Warehouses. Closing by British Consul, 166, 167.
Warrant, Marriage. See Marriage.
"Waverley." Seizure by French of, 96, 97.
"Western Star." Seizure and sale of, for want of proper papers, 183.
White, Messrs., 65–67, 91.
Willoughby, Colonel. Engagement of, in Malagasy army, 114, 115.

Witnesses. Claim for compensation for attendance, 120.
Wreck. Pillage of in China, 27, 28.
Writ. Service of. See Citations.

X.

Xenos, Stephanos. Seizure of books of, at Smyrna, 47.
Xurueff, G., 44.
Xurueff, Madame, 44.

Z.

Zagal, Shalom, Messrs., 166, 167.
Zebehr Pasha. Defence of, 61, 62.
" Arrest and detention of, 45, 46, 61, 62.
" Communication of solicitors with, 62.
" Information for solicitors for defence, 62.
Zeyla. Egyptian tribute on account of, 43, 62–64.
" Illegal sentence on Abyssinian, by British Vice-Consul, 64, 65.

---

1885

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. April 1886.

CONFIDENTIAL.

REPORTS BY THE LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN: 1885.

Africa.

No. 1.

Note by the Lord Chancellor.

West African Conference, third basis.

Inexpediency of new rules as to annexations and Protectorates.

I SEE nothing to differ from at all in the draft Report of the Law Officers,[*] but the considerations which they advert to, and all others which present themselves to my mind, appear to me to point strongly in the direction of the inexpediency of any attempt to settle, on the subject of annexations and Protectorates, new rules, or positive definitions, of international law.

The world has gone on until now well enough without them, and the questions are, in their own nature, such as hardly admit of solution on mere abstract grounds without reference to particular facts.

Difficulty of framing them.

So far as relates to annexations of territory, properly so called, the extravagant latitude of the pretensions sometimes advanced to claim, by reason of the occupation, or first discovery, of some points or point on a coast-line, the whole inland tract watered by any rivers or streams discharging themselves on that coast, is justly pointed out by the Law Officers, and yet it is probable that no nearer approach to a general abstract rule than this can be collected from the writings of jurists, or from the arguments which have been from time to time employed when controversies as to boundaries have arisen between States.

Distinction between annexations and Protectorates.

The Law Officers do not expressly advert to the distinction, which I think important (and which appears to me to be well elucidated by Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum of the 24th April, 1883), between annexations and Protectorates. Annexation is the direct assumption of territorial sovereignty. Protectorate is the recognition of the right of the aboriginal, or other actual inhabitants, to their own country, with no further assumption of territorial rights than is necessary to maintain the paramount authority and discharge the duties of the protecting Power.

In a case (such as that of even our New Guinea Protectorate) the measure of the Protectorate, if assumed or asserted in general terms, would probably be the extent of territory occupied or inhabited by the races or tribes whom we have taken under our protection, from the coast-line inland until some natural or tribal boundary was reached.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

January 3, 1885.

---

[*] See Report by the Law Officers of the 7th January, 1885.

1885

No. 2.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 7.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 7, 1885.

My Lord,

West African Conference. Proposed third basis. Formalities to be observed in acquisition of territory.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the following papers:—

(A.) Invitation to the Conference stating three bases. (Baron von Plessen, 8th October, 1884, Confidential 5023, p. 8.)

(B.) Summary by Mr. Hill of results of the Conference up to the present time. (23rd December, 1884, Confidential No. 5051, p. 149.)

(C.) Memorandum on the third basis by Mr. Hemming, of the Colonial Office (one of the British Delegates at Berlin). (Confidential No. 5051, p. 139.)

(D.) Two letters on the third basis from Sir Travers Twiss, Q.C. (Legal Adviser to Her Majesty's Embassy at Berlin during the Conference). (19th and 20th December, 1884, Confidential No. 5051, pp. 127-129.)

(E.) Earl Granville's despatch No. 59 of the 7th November, 1884, recording Count Münster's explanation of the meaning of the third basis. (Confidential No. 5033, p. 51.)

That we would observe from a perusal of the above papers that the Conference, which was adjourned on the 22nd ultimo until the 5th instant, would, on resuming its labours, proceed to the discussion of the third basis, namely, "the definition of the formalities to be observed in order to render future occupations on the coasts of Africa effective."

That in the Memorandum by Mr. Hemming (C), the subject was divided into two parts: (1) the formalities to be observed in the conclusion of Treaties for the acquisition of new territories, or the establishment of Protectorates thereover; (2) the formalities to be observed to constitute an effective occupation of newly-acquired territories as against other Powers.

That as regarded the first division above mentioned, it seemed doubtful whether it came within the third basis, having regard to the explanation of that basis given by the German Ambassador, and recorded in your Lordship's despatch No 59 of the 7th November (E), namely, that its object was to obtain assurances that, in future, the principles unanimously laid down by the jurists and Judges of all lands, including England, should be practically applied. That, indeed, so long as the parties to the transaction recognized it as binding, and the rights of third parties were not affected thereby, it would seem undesirable to open a door for challenging the title of the new occupant on the ground of the omission of some condition, or the non-observance of some formality to be prescribed by the Conference.

That the second division of the subject was therefore the one which would probably be alone discussed in the Conference, and to which the arguments on the third basis would be restricted.

That on that point Sir Julian Pauncefote was to invite our attention to the observations of Mr. Hemming as to the probable attitude of Germany at the Conference, and to the letters of Sir Travers Twiss (D), in which he stated his views as to the rules to which Her Majesty's Government might properly assent under the third basis of discussion.

That your Lordship would be glad to be informed whether we concurred in the views expressed by Sir Travers Twiss, and, if so, whether we had any further suggestions to make for the assistance of your Lordship in framing instructions to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin on the subject.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer thereon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the recognized modes of acquiring new territory are (1) conquest, (2) cession, and (3) occupancy or settlement.

Observations on acquisition of territory by cession;

We apprehend that it is only to the latter of these modes of acquisition that the third basis, proposed in Baron Plessen's despatch, is intended to apply. Supposing it to apply also to the acquisition of territory by cession, the points suggested by Mr. Hemming in his Memorandum deserve consideration. But the importance of requiring that a cession of territory should be recognized as acquired by a Sovereign Power only applies when the cession has been made to a recognized and authorized Agent of such Power would not be great if a cession of sovereign rights to individuals is still to be recognized. For it would be impossible to prohibit individuals who had obtained such sovereign rights from afterwards ceding their rights to the Sovereign Power whose subjects they were. We have hitherto, as in the case of the Borneo Company for example, recognized as valid the transfer of sovereign rights to individual subjects of our own. We gather, too, that we have acknowledged the acquisition of such rights by the International Association, and we presume that it would not be consistent with our policy in this respect to deny the right to obtain future cessions of the same description.

by occupancy or settlement.

We proceed to deal with the question of the formalities to be observed to render future occupations on the coast of Africa effective, assuming it to apply to the acquisition of territory by occupancy or settlement. This is obviously a question of great difficulty; the more so as the explanation given by Count Münster asserts that it is not intended to establish, by agreement, any new basis, but only to secure in the future the observance of established principles of international law.

It is impossible, therefore, to consider it apart from its relation to acquisitions of territory past, as well as future, in other parts of the world. In this view we would suggest that information should be obtained from the Colonial Office with reference to our modern acquisitions of territory by occupation, more especially as regards the extent and definition of the territory over which sovereignty has been assumed beyond that actually occupied.

No difficulty regarding points occupied;

As regards the territory actually occupied, there is no substantial difficulty. The hoisting of the flag, and the assumption of sovereignty, whether with or without a notification of such assumption, would, no doubt, according to international law, be sufficient to establish a valid title to the territory.

but only regarding limits of appurtenant territory.

The real difficulty arises with reference to the extent of territory around and beyond that actually occupied, to which the assumption of sovereignty may extend, and which can be regarded as appurtenant to the territory so occupied. This is obviously a matter of cardinal importance.

We concur with Sir Travers Twiss in the view that the general principle is, that if a nation has made a settlement it has a right to assume sovereignty over all the adjacent vacant territory, which is necessary to the integrity and security of the Settlement. But the application of this principle manifestly gives rise to great practical difficulties. We agree that where there are natural boundaries, such as mountains or rivers, these may well be held to be the natural boundaries of the Settlement. But we think such a proposition must be taken to be subject to the proviso that these boundaries are within a reasonable distance of the Settlement, as the boundaries of some Settlements might otherwise be extended beyond any rational limits. But if there are no such boundaries, how are the limits to be defined? There are two elements which bear, in our opinion, upon the extent of territory which may be annexed with any Settlement. We think the Power annexing territory should be prepared to discharge the duties of sovereignty, in the way of protection and otherwise, to those within its boundaries. And we think the extent may also be influenced by the magnitude and population and probable growth of the Settlement.

If the matter be looked at with an eye to the future only, it would certainly appear to be expedient, and to the interest of this country, to agree to bases which should limit rather than extend the acquisitions, by means of settlement, and the assumption of sovereignty of and over territory contiguous to the Settlement. The spirit of annexation which apparently affects the Powers of Europe at present is likely otherwise to result in grave difficulties and complications.

It is conceivable that a Power might, by hoisting its flag on a spot upon the coast of Africa, claim sovereign rights to an indefinite extent in the interior of that continent.

But it is impossible to leave recent occurrences out of sight in dealing with this question. We are not aware what amount of occupation there has been by us of the southern coast of New Guinea, and our position in this respect will have to be kept in view in discussing the proposed basis.

We certainly think it desirable that any Power annexing territory in connection with a Settlement should be required to define, with reasonable accuracy, the limits of the territory over which sovereignty is so assumed, and a public notification to other Powers would probably be desirable.

But we think the suggestion of Sir Travers Twiss, that not only should notification be given, but that if no claim or objection be made for a year and a day the right to object should be gone, requires grave consideration. We entertain considerable doubt whether it would, on the whole, be advantageous, though it possesses some obvious recommendations.

1885

It is, at least, possible that the existence of such a rule might lead to objection and difficulty being raised within the prescribed time, which otherwise would never occur at all.

It will be observed that we have not touched upon any questions arising out of the establishment of a Protectorate, as distinguished from occupation, inasmuch as they present considerations distinct from those affecting "the third basis."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE

---

No. 3.

Memorandum by the Attorney-General and Dr. Deane.—(Communicated to Earl Granville, January 8, 1885.)

West African Conference.

ASSUMING, as we do, that there is no desire to make any objection to the proposed Declaration respecting the third basis, unless it be one of substance, it will probably be thought that Sir E. Malet* should be instructed that no sufficient grounds exist for refusing assent to the Declaration in its principle.

Project of Declaration on third basis.

Suggesting alterations.

But we submit for consideration whether, in paragraph 1, it may not be well (if the telegram gives the project literally) to insert, for the sake of clearness of expression, the words "or assume protection" after "possession" in line 1, and to strike out the words "or shall assume protection of it" in lines 3 and 4.

It is a matter of policy, and therefore not for us to determine whether the two concluding lines of paragraph 1 may not be advantageously struck out. They must be read either as limiting the power of future objection or inviting the attempt to establish objections in the present. If action on receiving the notification be left ungoverned and unfettered by these words we think some advantage may arise therefrom.

Upon paragraph 2 we have only to observe that the word "jurisdiction" may be well explained or supplemented by the insertion of the words "or lawful authority," and that after the word "peace," in line 5, the words "order and tranquillity" may be inserted.

We are in doubt as to the meaning intended to be given to the words "respect for rights acquired," and probably Sir E. Malet might obtain some more clear expression of the meaning intended.

As we presume the telegram represents a translation of the original document, it may be that some of the above observations are not applicable to the wording of the original.

Whilst we suggest for consideration that the above observations, if carried out, may improve the Declaration as submitted to us, we do not suggest that they are objections which should be insisted upon as of vital consequence.

H. J.
J. P. D.

---

No. 4.

Note by the Lord Chancellor.—(Received January 9.)

West African Conference.
Project of Declaration respecting third basis.

Objections and alterations.

1. THE first clause in the "Project of Declaration respecting the third basis" is open to the objection stated by Sir Travers Twiss, that it might be taken to imply the necessity of consent or recognition by the Powers to which the notification is made. I would alter it, on this point, not by merely omitting the words objected to by Sir T. Twiss, but by making it run, "so as to enable them, if they have any objections to make thereto, to state such objections."

It will be observed that the point taken by the Law Officers as to the importance of defining the extent of territory to which the notification is meant to be applicable is not at all met. Whether it has been considered I do not know; but it is obvious that there is comparatively little use in a notification which leaves the subject to which it is meant to be applicable in any degree uncertain.

---

* Sir E. Malet's telegrams Nos. 4, 5, and 6 of the 7th January, 1885, Confidential No. 5080, pp. 20 and 21.

2. The words "or taken under their protection" ought, in my opinion, to be omitted from the second clause, and it should run, "occupied or taken possession of by them." So limited, I do not differ from the opinion which the Law Officers have expressed in favour of the principle, that "the Power annexing territory should be prepared to discharge the duties of sovereignty." But the Law Officers justly remark, at the end of their Report, that a Protectorate "presents considerations distinct from those affecting the third basis." It appears to me to be neither necessary, nor reasonable, nor expedient, that, in every case of a Protectorate, the protecting Power should take upon itself an obligation "to establish and to maintain" in and throughout the protected territory "a jurisdiction sufficient" for the purposes mentioned in the second clause.

To this objection, which is certainly not "captious" (Sir E. Malet's word), I attach great importance.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 8, 1885.

---

No. 5.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 13.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 10, 1885.

West African Conference.
"Project" of Declaration respecting third basis.

My Lord,

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 7th instant, stating that with reference to Sir J. Pauncefote's letter* of the 29th ultimo, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the telegrams noted in the margin,† which contained the Project of Declaration respecting the third basis of the programme of the Berlin Conference.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the telegrams into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion in order that (if possible) Sir E. Malet might be furnished with instructions before the Conference met to consider it.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Suggesting instructions as to alterations.

That assuming, as we do, that there is no desire to make any objection to the proposed Declaration respecting the third basis, unless it be one of substance, it will probably be thought that Sir E. Malet should be instructed that no sufficient grounds exist for refusing assent to the Declaration in its substance. But we submit for consideration whether in paragraph 1 it may not be well (if the telegram gives the project literally) to insert, for the sake of clearness of expression, the words "or assume protection" after "possession" on line 1, and to strike out the words "or shall assume protection of it" in lines 3 and 4.

It is a matter of policy, and therefore not for us to determine, whether the two concluding lines of paragraph 1 may not be advantageously struck out. They must be read either as limiting the power of future objection, or inviting the attempt to establish objection in the present. If action, on receiving the notification, be left ungoverened and unfettered by them, we think some advantage may arise therefrom.

Upon paragraph 2 we have only to observe that the word "jurisdiction" may be well explained, or supplemented, by the insertion of the words "or lawful authority," and that after the word "peace" in line 5 the words "order and tranquillity" may be inserted.

We are in doubt as to the meaning intended to be given to the words "respect for rights acquired," and probably Sir E. Malet might obtain some more clear expression of the meaning intended. The words "and where necessary" may perhaps advantageously be omitted.

As we presume, the telegram represents a translation of the original document; it may be that some of the observations are not applicable to the wording of the original.

Whilst we suggest for consideration that the above observations, if carried out,

---

* To Law Officers, 29th December, 1884. Confidential No. 5051, p. 182.

† Sir E. Malet's telegrams Nos. 5 and 6 of the 7th January, 1885. Confidential No. 5080, pp. 20, 21.

1885

may improve the Declaration, as submitted to us, we do not suggest that they are objections which should be insisted on as of vital consequence.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 6.

Further Note by the Lord Chancellor.—(Received January 12.)

West African Conference.

Project of Declaration respecting third basis. Obligations arising out of Protectorates. Remarks on letter of Sir T. Twiss.

I DO not construe Sir Travers Twiss' letter of the 9th January* (so far as relates to the subject of Protectorates) as Sir Julian Pauncefote appears to do.

Sir T. Twiss expresses his agreement with the distinction, as I had stated it, between the nature of an annexation and the nature of a Protectorate. He justly observes that this distinction is disregarded in the "Projet" as now framed; and that, if the Powers "accept the terminology of the 'Projet' they will, in fact, ignore it, and will affirm that a protecting Power has the same rights and obligations, as regards foreigners, as a Sovereign Power." In the sentence which follows, beginning with the words, "It may, however, possibly be decided to tear away the veil from the modern international Protectorates," &c., I do not understand him as expressing his own opinion to the effect that it is desirable "to affirm directly that a protecting Power" has the same rights and obligations, as regards foreign subjects and foreign Powers, as a Power avowing itself to be Sovereign," but merely as recognizing the possibility that, in view of the thinness of the line (in some cases) between annexation and Protectorate, those who have to decide the question of international policy may think the establishment of that principle desirable.

Undesirable effect of disregard in "Projet" of distinction between Protectorates and annexations.

To myself it appears to be eminently undesirable to lay down a principle; the inevitable effect will be to turn every Protectorate into an annexation. I think that, in many cases (e.g., our present Protectorate, whether so-called or not, of Afghanistan, and the possible cases—though not contemplated by the policy of this Government—of our establishing a Protectorate over Zanzibar or Egypt) this would be in the last degree inexpedient, and would also be unjust towards the actual Rulers and inhabitants of the protected countries. I also think that to assume unnecessarily the burden of establishing in all parts of any protected territories Courts and magistrates with jurisdiction or authority capable of redressing all wrongs of which foreigners may complain; or, in the alternative, to accept a direct responsibility for all such wrongs, would be impolitic and unreasonable. Take, for instance, the case of New Guinea. Are we to make ourselves answerable for everything which the natives of the whole southern coast of New Guinea may do to any foreigners, in the same way as if it were territory annexed to the British Crown? I think we ought not to do so.

Difficulty of confining effect of "Projet" to Africa alone.

Sir Julian Pauncefote seems to lay stress upon the limitation of the present "Projet" to Africa, and upon some possible preponderance of interest, which we may have (in Africa only) in favour of making the assumption of a Protectorate burdensome to the Power assuming it. I always feel great respect for Sir Julian Pauncefote's opinions, but in this case I cannot but think that it would be most fallacious and dangerous to assent to the rules and principles of this "Projet" as to Africa, without being prepared to admit their application practically in other parts of the world also. If in Africa occupation and Protectorate mean the same thing, and are to carry with them the same obligations, why not in the rest of the world also? Can we assent to such a principle there, where possibly it might work in our favour, and deny it, where it might work against us? But the hypothetical cases which I have put of Zanzibar, &c., make it very doubtful to me whether, even in Africa, it would necessarily work in our favour.

Extent to which "Projet" ought to be recognized.

If it is thought expedient not (as I should myself think wisest) to leave all questions of obligations arising out of Protectorates to be settled as particular cases arise between the Powers interested in them, but to recognize in this "Projet" such obligations as may really in principle exist, I would certainly not go further than engage to use such means as may be in our power, in all countries over which we have established a Protectorate, to cause justice to be done to foreigners in any disputes between them and the natives of these countries.

---

* Confidential No. 5080, p. 31.

Approve Sir J. Pauncefote's amendments to paragraph 1.

As to the first paragraph of the Declaration, I have no objection to Sir Julian Pauncefote's proposed amendments, and I do not insist on any definition (however imperfect a notification may be without it) of the occupied or protected territory.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 11, 1885.

---

No. 7.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Lord Chancellor.

West African Conference.
"Projet" of Declaration respecting third basis.
Obligations of Protectorates.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE presents his compliments to the Lord Chancellor, and has the honour, by direction of Earl Granville, to transmit to his Lordship the telegrams noted in the margin* from Sir E. Malet, showing the opinion of the Representatives of the Powers at the Berlin Conference on the points raised by Her Majesty's Government upon the Projet de Déclaration submitted by the German Government in regard to the third basis, relating to "nouvelles occupations sur les côtes d'Afrique."

Sending drafts (A) and (B).

A copy of the instructions to Sir E. Malet of the 14th instant, founded on the notes of the Lord Chancellor of the 3rd, 8th, and 11th January, is inclosed.† They were received by Sir E. Malet before the discussions of the Commission recorded in his telegram No. 11 took place. Sir Julian Pauncefote is now directed to submit to the Lord Chancellor the draft marked "A," which contains the form of paragraph proposed by Sir E. Malet with respect to Protectorates.

It will be observed that it throws on the protecting Power the obligation to "establish and maintain" sufficient authority to secure the objects therein mentioned, an obligation which the Lord Chancellor has already objected to as inadmissible. Sir Julian is therefore directed to submit, for the Lord Chancellor's consideration, the alternative draft, marked "B," and to request the favour of his Lordship's opinion as to whether Her Majesty's Government may properly accede to the views of the Commission to the extent indicated in draft (B), or whether they should adhere to the last paragraph of the instructions to Sir E. Malet of the 14th instant.

A copy in French of the German Projet is inclosed for convenience of reference.

Lord Granville is not aware when the Conference will meet, but Sir Julian is directed to say that his Lordship would be glad to be favoured with an early expression of the Lord Chancellor's opinion.

A telegram has been sent to Sir E. Malet, asking what meaning is attached by the Commission of the Conference to the term "côtes d'Afrique," to which alone the Declaration is apparently meant to apply.

Foreign Office, January 17, 1885.

---

Draft (A).

THE said Powers recognize the obligation to establish and maintain, in the territories taken under their protection, an authority sufficient "pour faire observer la paix, respecter les droits acquis, et, le cas échéant, les conditions sous lesquelles la liberté du commerce et du transit aura été garantie."

[For draft (B) see below.]

---

The Lord Chancellor to Sir J. Pauncefote.—(Received January 19.)

Dear Sir Julian, Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 18, 1885.

Returns draft (B) amended.
No objections to it if his alterations are accepted.

I RETURN these papers. It seems to me that, even in the most limited form which it can be made to take, any engagement exceeding that suggested in my last Memorandum as to protected territories ought to be mentioned to the Cabinet before it is undertaken. But if the form (B) (as I have altered it in red ink) should be adopted, I should not myself object.

---

* Sir E. Malet, No. 10, Telegraphic, January 15; No. 11, Telegraphic, January 16, 1885; Confidential No. 5080, pp. 57 and 60.

† To Sir E. Malet, No. 14, January 14, 1885; Confidential No. 5080, p. 51.

1885

So altered, it would be (like Article 1) a Conventional arrangement limited to African Protectorates only; and, as to these, I appreciate your own view, that we should probably gain more by imposing it on other Powers than we should be liable to suffer by accepting it ourselves. For in the hypothetical cases which I before suggested of Zanzibar or Egypt, the "sufficient authority" does and would exist; and the burden we should be accepting is, in fact, no more than a certain degree of responsibility to foreign Powers for the petty native States under our protection on the Gold Coast and the banks and mouths of the Niger.

I think it of great importance to avoid the words "recognize the obligation," which imply a principle applicable (if sound) in all parts of the world, and not a limited local agreement.

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

Draft (B).—Protectorate.

THE said Powers undertake to secure that in the territories on the coasts of Africa taken under their protection a sufficient authority shall be maintained to preserve order and respect for private rights, and, if necessary, the observance of the conditions under which liberty of commerce and of transit may have been guaranteed.

---

No. 8.

The Lord Chancellor to Earl Granville.—(Received January 21.)

West African Conference.
Third basis.
Sends draft form of engagement as to protected territories in Africa.
If it is not accepted explanations should be given.

Dear Lord Granville, 30, Portland Place, W., January 20, 1885.

I INCLOSE a draft which I have prepared, as promised, of the form in which we might enter into an engagement as to protected territories in Africa, so as to give effect to the view taken by Gladstone, which is the same (in principle) with my own.

Perhaps it would not be necessary to ask questions if this is accepted. But, if the other Powers press for more, I would suggest that some practical explanation should be given of the sense attached to the supposed obligation: as, e.g., whether Germany would hold herself bound to create and maintain judicial establishments capable of securing the objects in view throughout the extent of the 300 miles coast-line of which she has assumed the Protectorate at Angra Pequeña, &c., and hold us bound to do the same throughout every district protected by us on the banks and near the mouths of the Niger; or, in the alternative, to admit a direct and absolute responsibility, under all circumstances, for all wrong-doings towards foreigners of the natives of the protected territories?

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

Draft as to Protected Territories in Africa.

THE Signatory Powers also undertake, so far as relates to any territories on the coasts of Africa placed under their Protectorate, to use, in favour of foreigners of every nation, as effectual means of insuring the maintenance of peace, and obtaining justice or due reparation in respect of privately acquired rights, and securing liberty of commerce and of transit in the conditions in which they may have been established as they are enabled to use in favour of their own rights, or of the rights of their own subjects.

---

No. 9.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Lord Chancellor.

West African Conference.

SIR J. PAUNCEFOTE presents his compliments to the Lord Chancellor, and has the honour, by direction of Earl Granville, to transmit herewith a copy of a telegram

Sir E. Malet's objections to course proposed by Her Majesty's Government respecting the third basis.

from Sir E. Malet[*] stating the objections felt by himself and his advisers to the course in regard to the third basis proposed by Her Majesty's Government in the telegram sent to Berlin after the Cabinet Council of yesterday, which is also inclosed, for convenience of reference.[†]

Sir Julian is directed to state that Earl Granville would be glad to be favoured with the Lord Chancellor's opinion on Sir E. Malet's telegram.

Foreign Office, January 22, 1885.

---

The Lord Chancellor to Sir J. Pauncefote.—(Received January 24.)

Objects to proposed engagement, but will acquiesce in it on certain conditions.

My dear Sir Julian Pauncefote, Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 23, 1885.

IT is evident (and perhaps it may not be unnatural) that our diplomatists at Berlin place the smooth working of the Conference which is going on there upon a higher level than all other considerations connected with the question at issue. It is perhaps equally natural that I should place the principles involved, and the possible future consequences of a false step upon this occasion, upon a higher level than the temporary considerations connected with our being, or not being, in a minority of one at the Conference. If the greater matter of the European negotiations about Egypt were not regarded by the Foreign Office as indirectly relevant to what may, or may not, be done at this Conference, I should have certainly thought it wiser and more consistent with the position and dignity of this country to maintain our own ground on this point, though we might stand alone. But if it be the view of the Foreign Office that it is desirable to accept, so far as relates to Africa, the engagement proposed, I have already said (and I now repeat) that if Gladstone and my other colleagues acquiesce in that view I also am prepared to acquiesce in it, so long as the form of the engagement does not "recognize" the "obligation," which, I think, cannot safely or properly be recognized as a universal obligation in all cases of Protectorates, and does not bind us to "establish" jurisdiction, or authority, even in our Protectorates in Africa. The form which I would acquiesce in (though not liking it) was stated in my last Memorandum.

Difficulties in the way of accepting it.

I must observe that, of the Powers assembled in Conference, none are (at present) really interested in this matter except ourselves, Germany, and France; and the interests of Germany and France, besides being recent, and not yet subjected to the test of experience, is that of Powers who are much more certain to exact from us the fulfilment of any obligation which we may undertake, than loyally to fulfil towards us the like obligation themselves. (This remark, of course, ought to be taken as strictly confidential; nevertheless, I should not make it if I did not believe it to be true.) And, besides this, there is no substantial obstacle, in their case, to their treating the distinction between Protectorate and annexation as purely nominal; so that by Protectorate they mean (as Sir Travers Twiss said) annexation under another name. But it is otherwise with us, and that for reasons, some of which are of peculiar force in Africa. If we annexed any territory in Africa, the immediate consequence must be that, in that territory, slavery must at once cease to exist. I am not aware that any other Power is embarrassed with this difficulty; and, if to-day's intelligence about the German proceedings at the Cameroons is correct, the German idea of a Protectorate must be in other respects very different from ours.

It must never be forgotten that the engagement, in the terms in which it is proposed to us, seems to make us responsible for all that foreigners, as well as British subjects or natives, may do within British Protectorates, e.g., in Pondoland; but the Law Officers have only just advised that over foreigners, in a protected territory which is not actually for all purposes part of the Queen's dominions, we cannot exercise any authority or jurisdiction; and for that very reason we have now determined to assume the direct sovereignty of that part of New Guinea in which we had before established a Protectorate.

I cannot think that on this subject the views of the "Colonial advisers" of Sir E. Malet at Berlin ought to have any preponderating weight. It is just one of those subjects on which the Colonial and the Imperial views may naturally differ.

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

[*] Sir E. Malet, No. 17, Telegraphic, Africa, January 22, 1885, Confidential No. 5080, p. 90.

[†] To Sir E. Malet, No. 11, Telegraphic, Africa, January 21, 1885, Confidential No. 5080, p. 85.

1885

No. 10.

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Lord Chancellor.

Neutralization of conventional basin of the Congo.

Proposal for.

SIR J. PAUNCEFOTE presents his compliments to the Lord Chancellor, and has the honour, by direction of Earl Granville, to submit the inclosed papers relating to the question of the neutralization of certain of the territories of Africa, known as the conventional basin of the Congo, which is now occupying the attention of the Berlin Conference.*

Sir E. Malet is anxious not to delay the meeting of the Conference, and Lord Granville would be glad if the Lord Chancellor would favour him, at his early convenience, with his opinion as to the answer which should be returned to Her Majesty s Ambassador.

Foreign Office, February 16, 1885.

---

The Lord Chancellor to Sir J. Pauncefote.—(Received February 17.)

Dear Sir Julian, Blackmoor, Petersfield, February 16, 1885.

I AM disposed to agree with Mr. Villiers Lister, that it is difficult to foresee all the bearings and consequences of a proposition of this kind, and that it would be a good thing (if practicable) to communicate upon the subject with Sir J. Kirk.

No objection to proposal.

But, as far as my own judgment goes, I see no objection to the proposal.

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

No. 11.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 25.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 25, 1885.

Jurisdiction on the West Coast of Africa. Proposed Order in Council.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 21st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying draft of an Order in Council,† prepared by Mr. R. S. Wright, giving jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters to Consular officers of Her Majesty and other persons on the West Coast of Africa.

That the details had been carefully considered in the Foreign Office, and had been examined and approved by the Treasury and the Colonial Office.

That it was originally intended that powers should be conferred by it on Consular officers only, but that recent events had rendered it necessary to empower the Secretary of State to vest judicial powers in persons not holding Consular posts.

That in the large districts on and near the Niger, taken under the Protectorate of Her Majesty, the officials might not be styled Consular officers, but possibly Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners; further, that it would be impossible to station Government officials at all points where Courts might be required in those Protectorates; and that it might be advisable to have power to confer judicial powers on officers of the National African Company, to which Company it was proposed to grant a Charter under such conditions as might thereafter be decided upon.

That the 3rd clause of the Order had been added by Mr. R. S. Wright to effect the above object; and that your Lordship would be glad to learn whether it met with our approval.

That the favour of an early answer was urgently requested, as it was important that the Order should be passed at the meeting of the Privy Council appointed for the 26th instant.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve Order generally.

Remarks on maintenance of power to inflict capital punishment.

That the draft Order was only received by us on the 23rd instant. We have considered its terms as carefully as was possible under the circumstances, and we approve of its contents generally. But we observe that where sentence of death is pronounced it is to be left to the Secretary of State to determine whether that sentence should be carried into effect, or what other sentence should be imposed.

---

* Protocol No. 6 and Annexes, "Africa No. 4 (1885)," Parliamentary No. 2951, p. 178; Sir E. Malet, No. 105, Africa, February 14, 18‑5; and Sir E. Malet, No. 33, Telegraphic, February 15, 1883; Confidential No. 5103, pp. 59 and 63.

† For Order in Council as published, see Confidential No. 5094*.

In the case of the Consular Courts in Turkey and elsewhere, the sentence in capital cases is reserved for the consideration of the Secretary of State; but he can only sanction a sentence of penal servitude or imprisonment. If a sentence of death were directed by the Secretary of State to be carried out, as it might be according to the proposed West African Order, a long period would elapse between the sentence and its execution.

But we presume the expediency of maintaining the power of inflicting capital punishment, under the circumstances, has been carefully considered.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 12.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received July 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 11, 1885.

Claim of F. D. Holder on the German Government on account of injuries to himself and property during bombardment of Joss Town.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers* relating to a claim which had been preferred against the German Government by a British subject named F. D. Holder for personal injuries received and damage done to his property during the bombardment of a German naval force at Hickory Town and Joss Town, on the Cameroons River, on the 20th December last.

That it appeared from Mr. Holder's statement that while he was peacefully and legally engaged in carrying on his business at the latter place the German flotilla appeared on the river, and, without any intimation or other declaration, began firing into the towns in question; his dwelling-house and premises, though situated at a considerable distance from the latter place, were completely riddled with shell, one of which wounded him in both legs.

Owing to the wound he received he was incapacitated from business, and had to place himself under a doctor for a period of three weeks.

That Mr. Holder further asserted that when he saw the flotilla coming up the river he hoisted his ensign and kept it flying all day, so that it could easily be seen that the premises belonged to a British merchant, and that Mr. Holder consequently claimed 1,000*l*. damages from the German Government.

That from a despatch from Consul Hewett, which which was also inclosed, it would be seen that the German officer in charge of the boats reported to the Admiral that his reason for getting his guns to bear on Mr. Holder's house was that he had seen natives firing from it. That that, however, was positively denied by Mr. Holder, who maintained, on the contrary, that there were no natives within 50 yards of his house at the time.

That Mr. Lister was to inclose a Memorandum, prepared in the Foreign Office, respecting the position of subjects of a neutral State residing in the country of a belligerent during a hostile invasion.

That that Memorandum, which was submitted to and approved by the Law Officers of the Crown, dealt, at p. 2, with the principle applicable to such claims as the present one, and that Mr. Lister was to observe that, having regard to the conflict of evidence, the claim was not likely to be admitted by the German Government, who would probably insist that the onus of showing that the circumstances of the case took it out of the general rule, that the belligerent was not liable for injuries caused by military operations, rested with the claimant.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether a claim should be made on the German Government for compensation to Mr. Holder, and, if so, whether the sum of 1,000*l*. asked for by him was fair and reasonable.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

---

* Confidential Print (Niger River), No. ; Consul Hewett, No. 2, Africa, January 4; Mr. F. D. Holder, March 25, 1885; Memorandum, October 20, 1883, Confidential No. 5015.

1885

No claim should be made on German Government for compensation.

That, on the evidence submitted to us, no claim should be made on the German Government for compensation to Mr. Holder.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 13.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 10.)

Royal Courts of Justice, August 8, 1885.

My Lord,

Royal Charter for the National African Company for administration of the Niger districts. Question as to grant of.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the papers* which relate to an application by the National African Company (Limited), for the grant of a Royal Charter of Incorporation, with the necessary powers to enable the Company to undertake the administration of the Government of the Niger districts on the West Coast of Africa.

That the Company had long been established there, and had entered into so-called Treaties with the native Chiefs, vesting in them, as a Company, sovereign rights of government over the territory in question.

That since the date of those so-called Treaties the same Chiefs had entered into Treaties with Her Majesty the Queen, in pursuance of which a British Protectorate had been formally established over the district in question, as notified in the "London Gazette."

That it was to be observed that one of the results of the recent Berlin Conference was that the Powers there represented recognized the preponderance of British influences in the Niger districts, and that the responsibility of protecting the free navigation of the River Niger was left to Great Britain alone, although the duty of securing the free navigation of the Congo had been confided to an International Commission.

That Her Majesty's Government were therefore under an obligation towards other civilized Powers to make suitable provision for insuring the free navigation of the Niger, and in view of the assumption of a Protectorate by Great Britain over the Niger districts, to provide for the maintenance of peace and good order therein.

That it was in the month of February last, and consequently before the Proclamation of the British Protectorate, that the Company addressed their first application to Her Majesty's Government for the grant of a Royal Charter.

That that application, dated the 13th February, was made by Lord Aberdare, the Chairman, and was transmitted therewith, with its inclosures, consisting of a Petition and draft Charter, conferring on the Company authority to exercise the powers of government over the Niger districts, vested in them by their various Concessions from the native Chiefs.

That the draft Charter was prepared on the model of the Charter granted to the British North Borneo Company in 1881.

That it was unnecessary to consider whether at that period a Royal Charter of Incorporation similar to the Borneo Charter might have been granted to the National African Company. Such a Charter would have conferred no new powers of government on the Company, but would have controlled them in the exercise of the powers conferred upon them by the native Chiefs.

That on that point it might be convenient to draw attention to Lord Granville's despatch to Sir R. Morier of the 7th January, 1882, explaining the character of the Borneo Charter and its legal effect.

That from that despatch it would be seen that the Crown assumed no dominion or sovereignty over North Borneo, and, therefore, could confer no powers of government over it.

That the Borneo Charter merely conferred incorporation on the North Borneo Company, and, in return, reserved certain rights of control over the Company in their exercise of the powers of government vested in them by the territorial Sovereigns, the Sultans of Sulu and Brunei.

But that in the case of the National African Company and the Niger districts, it was conceived that the so-called Treaties between the Chiefs and the Company, whatever powers they may have conferred, became merged and extinguished in the Treaties subsequently entered into between the same Chiefs and Her Majesty the Queen, and that the establishment of a British Protectorate over those districts rendered it necessary that the Crown should provide directly for the administration of government and the maintenance of peace and good order therein.

That the conditions under which a Charter was granted to the North Borneo Company were therefore entirely different from those under which the application of the North African Company was made for a similar grant.

That, nevertheless, the Company insisted that it was competent to the Crown to grant to them a Charter which should vest in them, as a Company, the fullest powers of government over the Niger districts; that there was nothing to prevent the Crown vesting in a private Company the government of a Crown Colony, and in support of that view they instanced the case of the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter.

That it was not denied that under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts the Queen might (as in the case of Cyprus, which was not British territory), appoint a High Commissioner and a Legislative Council for the Niger districts; and provide for the good government of those districts by employing the officers of the Company in the service of the Crown. But that was not what the Company desired.

They contended that it was competent to Her Majesty the Queen by Royal Charter, to confer on them, as a private Association, full powers of government over the territories in question, including the administration of civil and criminal justice.

That in order that we might be put in full possession of the exact views of the Company, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to invite our attention to a letter addressed to him on the 15th May by Mr. Goldie Taubman, the Secretary of the Company, and to his (Sir Julian Pauncefote's) reply dated the 22nd May.

Also to a letter from Lord Aberdare to your Lordship, dated the 1st July, inclosing a printed letter from Mr. Goldie Taubman to Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 18th June, in which it was argued that the Hudson's Bay Company's Charter was a precedent for the application of the National African Company, inasmuch as the Hudson's Bay Company exercised judicial, legislative, and executive powers, "solely under their Charter, and without any authority whatever from Parliament."

That Sir Julian Pauncefote observed, with reference to that last statement, that the administration of justice in the territories of the Hudson's Bay Company was provided for by two Statutes: 43 Geo. III, cap. 138, and 1 & 2 Geo. IV, cap. 66, and that it was notorious that the validity of the powers which that Charter purported to confer was hotly contested, and that the rights of the Company were chiefly supported by the recognition which they appeared to have received in certain Acts of Parliament.

That the same might be said of the Charters granted to the East India Company.

That there was no instance in modern times, in this country, of the grant by Royal Charter to a private Association of sovereign rights and powers of government, including the administration of civil and criminal justice over territories situated either within or without the British dominions.

That it was conceived that, whether in Crown Colonies or in foreign places where the Queen has power and jurisdiction by Treaty, usage, or sufferance, such power and jurisdiction must be exercised in her name by responsible officers, appointed by and under the control of the Crown.

That it was no doubt of pressing importance to decide what steps should be taken to provide for the maintenance of peace and good order in the Niger districts; and that, if we should be of opinion that the government of those districts could legally be vested by Royal Charter in the National African Company, your Lordship would consider at once the expediency of recommending the issue of such a Charter.

---

* (A.) List of papers forwarded to the Law Officers in Sir J. Pauncefote's despatch of July 21, 1885:—
(B.) Map of Niger districts on the West Coast of Africa. (Admiralty Chart, Africa, No. 24 B.)
(C.) Copies of Treaties concluded between Company and native Chiefs (Confidential No. ).
(D.) Copies of Treaties concluded between the Queen and native Chiefs (Confidential No. 5064).
(E.) Notice in "London Gazette" of establishment of British Protectorate (Confidential No. 5119*).
(F.) Application for Charter, June 18, 1885.
(G.) Charter of North Borneo Company (Confidential No. 4528).
(H.) Parliamentary Papers, "Spain No. 1 (1882)," vide Parliamentary No. 2514, p. 202.
(I.) Mr. Goldie Taubman, May 15, 1885 (Confidential No. ).
(J.) To Mr. Goldie Taubman, May 22, 1885 (Confidential No. ).
(K.) Lord Aberdare, July 1, 1885.
(L.) Report of Parliamentary Committee on Hudson's Bay Charter.
(M.) West African Order in Council (Confidential No. 5095*).

1885

That if we should be of opinion that such a Charter could not properly be granted, the only other course which had suggested itself at the date of Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter was to issue an Order in Council under which a British Commissioner might be appointed on the spot, with power to nominate a local Council, and to make Rules and Regulations for the good government of those districts, to be approved by one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

That the administration of justice could be carried on under the new Order in Council for the West Coast of Africa, and the local officers of the Company could practically be intrusted with all the powers of government, by being appointed to civil and judicial posts, and by forming the local Council.

That the administration would thus be in the hands of the Crown, though practically carried out by the officers of the Company.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take all the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, having regard to the Treaties between Great Britain and the Niger Chiefs, and the British Protectorate established over the Niger districts, the government of those districts, and their civil and judicial administration, could be vested in the National African Company by Royal Charter, and, if not, that we would advise your Lordship as to the course which should be followed to provide for the maintenance of peace and good order in those districts.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Crown has power to grant jurisdiction to a Company.

That the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts have conferred upon Her Majesty the most ample discretion as to the mode of exercising any power and jurisdiction which Her Majesty has acquired by Treaty, usage, or sufferance, in the Niger districts.

In our opinion it would not be beyond the power of the Crown to vest such power and jurisdiction in a chartered Company, which should be authorized to exercise there, all such power and jurisdiction as Her Majesty may possess.

More usual for Crown to exercise direct jurisdiction.

It is, at the same time, more in accordance with precedent, that in such places as the Niger districts, Her Majesty's power and jurisdiction should be exercised under the authority of Orders in Council, and by officers directly responsible to the Crown. But by neither of these methods can any jurisdiction be acquired over the subjects of any civilized Power within territories which are not part of Her Majesty's dominions, but only under her protection.

Method of establishing jurisdiction over foreigners.

If it is necessary to the peace and good order of the Niger districts, and to the fulfilment of international obligations, that such jurisdiction should be obtained, it can only be done by establishing the sovereignty of Her Majesty over those territories, in the same manner as that of the German Emperor has been established in the territories to the west of Zanzibar.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

AS TO GRANTING A CHARTER TO THE NATIONAL AFRICAN COMPANY.

Addendum to the Law Officers' Report of the 8th August, 1885.

Not desirable to grant Charter.

ALTHOUGH in our Report of the 8th August, 1885, we expressed our opinion that it would not be beyond the power of the Crown to grant the Charter proposed, we are clearly of opinion that it would not be desirable, especially in a case in which, as in the Niger district, the Crown has not assumed sovereignty, and we intended to indicate this view in the concluding passages of our Report.

(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Royal Courts of Justice, August 20, 1885.

---

No. 13*.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Colonel Stanley.

Sir, Royal Courts of Justice, August 10, 1885.

Jurisdiction in Protectorates over foreigners.

WE were honoured with Mr. Wingfield's letter of the 11th ultimo, stating that he was directed to request our opinion upon the following matter:—

That in 1884 Her Majesty assumed a Protectorate over Bechuanaland, in South Africa, and that finding in the autumn that it was necessary to enforce her authority, she appointed Sir Charles Warren to be Special Commissioner for that country, under a Commission, of which a copy was inclosed. That that officer was also placed in military command of a force sent out with the object of repressing disorders caused by the actions of armed bodies of men from the adjacent South African Republic and elsewhere.

Order in Council of 1885.

That in order to provide some judicial machinery for the territory included in the Protectorate, an Order in Council under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts, 1843 to 1878, was passed on the 27th January, 1885, empowering the High Commissioner (Sir H. Robinson) to establish Courts within certain geographical limits.

That a copy of that Order was inclosed, together with printed copies of three Reports of the late Law Officers, dated 3rd August, 1880,[*] 15th November, 1884,[†] and 23rd December, 1884.

That the Order in Council was duly published at Cape Town on the 6th March, 1885, and thereupon came into operation.

Districts affected by that Order.

That the country lying within the limits of the Order might be divided into three classes:—

(a.) The territories of the Chiefs Mankoroane and Montsioa.
(b.) The territories of certain other native Chiefs.
(c.) A portion of territory known as Stellaland.

That by virtue of Treaties with the Chiefs Mankoroane and Montsioa, which were recited in the Order in Council, Her Majesty had, it was apprehended, acquired full and definite legal jurisdiction over all persons within the territories of those Chiefs, with large powers of legislation and administration; and that Mr. Wingfield was to state that the primary object of the Order in Council was to provide a Court to deal with the case of a British subject named Bethell, who had been murdered in the territory of Montsioa.

That in the territories of the other Chiefs referred to above Her Majesty had not acquired jurisdiction by Treaty, but that having taken these Chiefs and their territories under her protection, it was apprehended that she had, by sufferance or other lawful means, acquired power and jurisdiction which she might enforce by Order in Council under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts over British subjects, and over any natives living under her protection.

That Stellaland was formerly native territory, but was now the territory of certain persons who, as volunteers assisting certain contending native Chiefs, named Montsioa and Mankoroane, had possessed themselves of the land and had formed an independent Republic, and had appointed officers of Government. That our attention was invited to the documents printed at pp. 55 and 67 of Blue Book C.—3419.

That British officials had exercised much influence in the country; and that on the 8th September, 1884, an Agreement was come to between the Stellaland officials and Mr. C. J. Rhodes, British Commissioner, that, "pending the annexation to the Cape Colony, Stellaland shall continue its own government; however, recognizing Her Majesty's Protectorate, and subject to the conditions that all executive acts must be taken in concert with and with the consent of the Commissioner of Bechuanaland."

That that Agreement was again approved on the 24th December, 1884, at a meeting between Mr. Rhodes and the Stellaland officials; and that it might be taken that a Civil Government existed in Stellaland on the 14th February, 1885.

Sir C. Warren's Proclamations.

That on that day Sir Charles Warren, who was in Stellaland with a body of Her Majesty's forces, issued a Proclamation (printed in the accompanying Blue Book, C.—4432) to which our attention was specially invited.

That that Proclamation contained this sentence: "Military rule is hereby declared in Stellaland while Her Majesty's troops are in occupation, to be applied so far as is necessary to supplement the existing inadequate machinery of government."

That that Proclamation was withdrawn by another Proclamation of Sir Charles

---

[*] Confidential No. 4539, p. 55 A.

[†] Confidential No. 5121, p. 2 A.

Warren, on the 15th April, 1885, of which a copy was inclosed in the accompanying despatch No. 200 from Sir H. Robinson of the 10th June, 1885.

Government of Stellaland.

That in the interval a body styled the "Bestuur" was elected, and exercised functions which, for the purposes of this case, might be taken to be a continuance of the system of government which had existed in Stellaland prior to the 15th February. That it was alleged that the operation of the Order in Council of the 27th January had been to deprive of legal validity the Bestuur and all other establishments not created by the High Commissioner under that Order; and that Mr. Wingfield was to invite our attention to paragraphs 3, 4, 5, and 6 of Sir H. Robinson's despatch of the 29th April, 1885, at p. 193 of C.—4432. That that was despatch No. 148 mentioned in the accompanying telegram from Lord Derby of the 25th May; and that Mr. Wingfield was also to inclose the telegram in reply of the 31st May.

That we were also desired to peruse the accompanying despatch No. 191 from Sir H. Robinson of the 3rd June, 1885, and the opinion inclosed in it, together with his No. 200 referred to above.

That we were also requested to read the telegram No. 1 of the 23rd March from Sir H. Robinson to Sir Charles Warren, at p. 101 of C.—4432, and two telegrams of the 10th April and the 12th April, between those officers, printed at pp. 146, 147 of C.—4432.

That those documents raised important questions as to the effect of the establishment of military rule upon the constitution of Stellaland.

That it was not clear what Sir Charles intended by the use of the term "military rule," but that, in fact, he detailed two military officers to supervise the actual civil government of the country as administered by the local officials; that his second Proclamation of the 15th April threw additional light upon the meaning of the former one. That it was alleged that the election of the present Bestuur during the existence of military rule was of no avail, especially as a large proportion of the electors abstained from voting.

Questions for opinion as to effect of Proclamations on Government of Stellaland:

That we were accordingly requested to advise as to what, in our opinion, was the effect upon the constitution of Stellaland of the Proclamation of the 14th February and of the second Proclamation of the 15th April, as to the effect of the Order in Council in Stellaland, and as to the legal status of the existing Bestuur and any other establishments which were not created under the Order in Council, but which apart from that Order would be properly constituted according to the law of the country.

That Mr. Wingfield was to add that specific questions had not been stated for our opinion, as the documents appeared to show clearly enough the view taken by the advisers of Sir Hercules Robinson; and that you would be glad if we would be good enough to state fully how far we agreed with them.

Effect of Order on Protectorates acquired by Treaties;

That Mr. Wingfield was further to inquire what, in our opinion, was the effect of the Order in Council as regarded the territories of the Chiefs Mankoroane and Montsioa, and whether in those territories Her Majesty had acquired, under the Treaties with these Chiefs, a general power of legislating by Order in Council for all purposes of government.

Powers in other Protectorates.

That lastly, whether in the territories of other Chiefs within the Protectorate Her Majesty had power and jurisdiction (a) over her own subjects; (b) over natives under her protection; and whether the Order in Council was a proper exercise of that power and jurisdiction.

That our reply was requested as early as might be possible, for in the circumstances of those territories it was desirable that the legal position of affairs should not be left undetermined longer than could be avoided.

In compliance with the request contained in Mr. E. Wingfield's letter, we have the honour to report—

British jurisdiction extends to British subjects only.

That, in our opinion, neither the native African Chiefs nor any of the bodies of freebooters settled in Bechuanaland could, either by Treaty or sufferance, confer upon Her Majesty jurisdiction over the subjects of any civilized Power other than Great Britain.

Meaning of Sir C. Warren's Proclamations.

The Proclamation of the 14th February was an announcement by Sir Charles Warren of his intention to disregard any authority then de facto existing in Stellaland, and to use his military power in a certain way and for certain purposes. It had no legal effect upon the laws and constitution of Stellaland, if any at that time existed.

The Proclamation of the 15th April is a mere withdrawal by Sir Charles Warren of his previous announcement, and is equally without operation on the laws and constitution of Stellaland.

Status of Government of Stellaland.

The so-called independent Government of Stellaland, being formed by a lawless association of freebooters, has, in our opinion, no legal status; its laws and Tribunals have no validity whatever as regards the subjects of other civilized Powers, and none as regards British subjects, except so far as such validity is given to them by the acts of Her Majesty's Commissioners.

Order of 1885 does not affect foreigners.

The effect of the duly promulgated Order in Council of the 27th January, 1885, is to enable the High Commissioner to constitute Tribunals in Bechuanaland, having jurisdiction over British subjects and protected natives, but not over the subjects of other civilized States.

Sir C. Warren's powers;

The Order in Council overrides, but does not supersede, Sir Charles Warren's Commission. Subject to the express provisions of that Order Sir Charles Warren may exercise the powers conferred on him by his Commission and instructions.

and status of the Bestuur under the Order.

The Bestuur or any other establishments in Stellaland which Sir Charles Warren has created or sanctioned, so far as they are consistent with the Order in Council, may be regarded as the particular methods by which he has thought fit to exercise his jurisdiction over British subjects and protected natives in Stellaland. In this sense, but in no other, they have a legal status. The subjects of other civilized States who are in Stellaland cannot be interfered with by the Bestuur, or any Tribunals that may be instituted under its authority, without the consent of their own Governments.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.

1885

No. 14.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 19.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 19, 1885.

Bombardment of Hickory Town, &c., in Cameroon River, by Germans.

Claims of Baptist Missionary Society and Messrs. Lucas Brothers for damages done.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying papers* relative to claims by the Baptist Missionary Society and by Messrs. Lucas Brothers for damage done to their property during the bombardment of Hickory Town and other places in the Cameroon River by German ships of war in December last.

That the two claims being precisely of the same character, it was proposed to deal with them together.

That the previous correspondence in each case was annexed, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to the replies which were returned by the Foreign Office to those claims respectively on the 23rd July last. That the Baptist Missionary Society, in their letter of the 27th July, and Messrs. Lucas Brothers, in their letter of the 4th August, had set out the special grounds and arguments on which they founded their respective claims to indemnity at the hands of the German Government.

That in both cases the buildings of the claimants had shared the fate of other property which, during the bombardment, was exposed to the fire of the German forces.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of our Report of the 11th August† on the claim of Mr. Holder arising out of the same bombardment, and that he was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether there were any special circumstances which would warrant Her Majesty's Government in applying to the German Government for compensation on behalf of the complainants.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No ground for applying for compensation.

No objection to submitting claims for friendly consideration.

That, in our judgment, there are no special circumstances in the cases of the Baptist Missionary Society and Messrs. Lucas Brothers which would warrant Her Majesty's Government in applying to the German Government for compensation on behalf of the complainants. But there would be no objection to the Government submitting the claims to the friendly consideration of the German Government.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers sent to the Law Officers in Sir Julian Pauncefote's despatch of August 20, 1885:—

1. Baptist Missionary Society, January 27, 1885.
2. " " February 20, 1885.
3. To Baptist Missionary Society, July 6, 1885.
4. Baptist Missionary Society, July 8, 1885.
5. To Baptist Missionary Society, August 1, 1885.
6. Messrs. Lucas Brothers, June 30, 1885.
7. To Messrs. Lucas Brothers, July 6, 1885.

(A.) To Baptist Missionary Society, July 23, 1885.
(B.) To Messrs. Lucas Brothers, July 23, 1885.
(C.) Baptist Missionary Society, July 27, 1885.
(D.) Messrs. Lucas Brothers, August 4, 1885.

† Not inclosed.

1885

No. 15.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 30.)

[After recapitulating the following Reference, the Law Officers report as on page 17.]

---

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane.

Gentlemen, Foreign Office, September 7, 1885.

Application of the National African Company for Charter and powers to govern the Niger districts.

WITH reference to your Reports of the 8th and 20th ultimo, on the application of the National African Company for a Royal Charter of Incorporation with powers of government over the Niger districts, I have the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Secretary of State, a further letter from the Company, dated the 15th ultimo, in which they suggest that, as a temporary measure, an Order in Council should be issued vesting in some of their principal local officers the necessary powers to exercise the Queen's jurisdiction in the Niger districts, such officers "reporting to and following the instructions of the Company as heretofore."

Proposed letter refusing Charter.

As regards the original application of the Company for a Royal Charter, I am to inclose the draft of a letter which it is proposed, with your concurrence, to address to them, to the effect that their application for a Charter, such as they desire, cannot be acceded to, and I am to request that you will be good enough to inform the Marquis of Salisbury whether you approve of the terms of that letter.

In view of the opinion expressed in your Reports against the grant of such a Charter, it becomes necessary to consider in what manner and to what extent the services of the Company and of its officers can be utilized in carrying on the Government of the Niger districts under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts.

In the first place, I am to invite your attention to Article 30 of the General Act of the Berlin Conference (Protocols of West African Conference: "Africa No. 4, 1885," p. 312*), under which Great Britain undertakes to protect foreign merchants and all the trading nationalities on so much of the waters of the Niger, its affluents. branches, and outlets as may be under her sovereignty or "protection," as if they were her own subjects, provided they conform to the rules to be made for the navigation.

By Articles 31 and 32 a similar obligation is accepted by the other Powers as regards any portion of the Niger, its affluents, branches, or outlets, which may come under their sovereignty or protection respectively.

The above Articles, which have not before been brought to your notice, would seem to constitute an agreement as to the exercise of jurisdiction over foreigners of all nationalities by the protecting power in the territory in question.

If that be so, having regard to the Treaties between the Queen and the Niger Chiefs, under which jurisdiction over foreigners is conceded to Her Majesty, it is presumed that the difficulty pointed out in your Reports as to the exercise of such jurisdiction without the assumption of sovereignty would be practically disposed of.

As regards the scheme of government to be adopted for the Niger districts, I am to observe that the Act 6 Vict., cap. 13, makes provision for the government of Her Majesty's "Settlements" on the Coast of Africa by means of resident Commissioners, to whom the Queen may delegate her powers and authorities; and although it may be doubtful whether that Act applies to territories not placed under the sovereignty of the Queen, it is suggested that a similar system of government might be established under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act in the Niger districts, and that Her Majesty's power and jurisdiction might be delegated to certain officers of the National African Company as Commissioners, under instructions from the Crown, and under the control of Her Majesty's Government, to be exercised through the Company in manner hereinafter mentioned.

Proposed scheme for Government of the Niger districts.

The following is a brief outline of the scheme:—

1. The Company to receive a Royal Charter of Incorporation, which should provide for the formation of a Council to be placed under the immediate control and authority of Her Majesty's Government with respect to all matters relating to the exercise of the Queen's jurisdiction by its officers.

2. Certain resident officers of the Company to be appointed Commissioners to administer the government of the districts in accordance with instructions from the Crown.

3. The communications between the Crown and the Commissioners, and other officers of the Company intrusted with any public functions in connection with the government of the districts, to be usually carried on through the Council of the Company.

4. The administration of justice to be carried on under the West Africa Order, 1885, by officers of the Company appointed by the Crown under Article 3 of that Order.

5. Full power to be reserved to the Crown to exercise directly any of the authorities delegated to the Commissioners, as provided in the Act 6 Vict., cap. 13.

6. The scheme to be carried out by a short Order in Council based on the Act 6 Vict., cap. 13. The Order to contain no reference to the Company, and be equally applicable whether the government of the districts be carried on in connection with the Company or not.

7. The Charter of Incorporation to contain all special provisions necessary for carrying on the government of the districts through the Company and its officers, and to reserve to the Crown an absolute power of terminating the arrangement, and also of cancelling the Charter in case of the violation or non-observance of any of its provisions.

The above proposals are submitted for your consideration, and, if they should not meet with your approval, Lord Salisbury would be glad to be favoured with any suggestions you may have to offer as to the best mode of providing for the government of the Niger districts.

I am to request that you will take the papers transmitted herewith into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Salisbury with your opinion on the questions submitted in this letter, that is to say:—

1. Whether the letter proposed to be addressed to the Company respecting their application for a Charter is right and proper.

2. Whether, under the Treaties with the native Chiefs and Article 30 of the General Act of the Berlin Conference, the Queen has power to exercise jurisdiction in the Niger districts over the subjects of the States represented at the Conference or who may adhere to the General Act.

3. Whether the scheme of government for the Niger districts of which an outline is given in this letter is open to any objection, or may properly be adopted by Her Majesty's Government, and, if not, what other mode of dealing with the subject you would advise.

I have, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

Report.

Approve proposed letter.

1. That we approve the letter proposed to be addressed to the Company, subject to the slight alteration which we have made.

Treaties with Chiefs and General Act not sufficient to confer jurisdiction over foreigners.

2. Treaties with the native Chiefs and Article 30 of the General Act of the Conference of Berlin (p. 312 of Blue Book "Africa No. 4, 1885") are not sufficient of themselves to enable Her Majesty the Queen to exercise jurisdiction over the subjects of the States represented at the Conference, or who may simply adhere to the General Act. The Government of Her Majesty would not be secure in asserting jurisdiction in the Niger territories over the subject of any civilized State which had not assented to the exercise of such jurisdiction.

Approve scheme of Government subject to alterations.

3. A scheme of government for the Niger districts of the character given in outline may properly be adopted by Her Majesty's Government, subject to the following observations:—

Para. 1. A Council of which the powers are limited as therein provided, is not open to objection.

Paras. 2 and 4. The officers should be appointed under the West Africa Order of the 10th April, 1885,* which covers the district in question, and contains ample provisions.

Para. 3 should be omitted. It is not desirable to fetter in any way the means of

---

* Parliamentary No. 2951.

* Order in Council of the 26th March, 1885, published in 'London Gazette" of the 10th April, 1885. Confidential No. 5094*.

1885 communication between Her Majesty's Government and the Representatives of the Crown.

Para. 5 is unnecessary if, as we suggest, the Commissioners are appointed under the West Africa Order of the 10th April, 1885. The Act 6 Vict., cap. 13, has no application to the present case.

Para. 6. No further Order in Council is necessary, the provisions of the West Africa Order, 1885, being sufficient for the purposes required.

Para. 7. We see no objection to the general propositions of this paragraph, but we must reserve our opinion upon the special provisions indicated, as well as upon the proposed Charter as a whole, until the same are placed before us in detail.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of Letter to the National African Company (as approved by the Law Officers).

Sir, Foreign Office, September , 1885.

I am directed by the Marquis of Salisbury to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th August, and to request that you will inform the Directors of the National African Company that their application for a Royal Charter, with powers of government over the Niger Districts, has been carefully considered by his Lordship, in consultation with the Law Officers of the Crown, who have reported that it is advisable that Her Majesty's power and jurisdiction in such places should be exercised under the authority of Orders in Council and by officers directly responsible to the Crown; and they are clearly of opinion that it would not be desirable to grant the Charter in the form proposed.

In these circumstances, Lord Salisbury is unable to accede to the application of the Company; but his Lordship is in consultation with the Law Officers on another proposal, which, if it should meet with their approval, would carry out substantially the objects in view; and a further communication will be addressed to the Company as early as possible.

I am, &c.

---

No. 16.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor, November 24, 1885, on the Niger Charter.

[Missing.]

---

Argentine Republic.

No. 17.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 13, 1885.

Claim of Mr. Cantlon for losses and injuries caused by men of National Guard.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 14th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the accompanying papers relating to a claim brought against the Argentine Government by a British subject named Patrick Cantlon.

That it appeared from the correspondence on the subject that Mr. Cantlon, when removing his effects on or about the 30th June, 1880, from a house in the country to the town of Chirilcoy during an insurrection, was attacked by a soldier, who ordered him to go to a neighbouring camp, and that on his refusal to do so was subsequently maltreated by an officer and some soldiers belonging to the National Militia, when he received a bullet in his side, another passing through his right hand, as well as two minor wounds; that he was removed by his assailants to the town, and that on being brought before a magistrate the case was dismissed for want of evidence. (See paper marked A.)

That Mr. Cantlon estimated his losses at 1,000*l*., and left the amount to be paid on account of his bodily injuries for arrangement by Her Majesty's Minister. (See paper Inclosure 2 in paper F.)

That the case was brought to the notice of the Argentine Government at the time, and on subsequent occasions, by Her Majesty's Representatives at Buenos Ayres, and that on the 2nd March last Her Majesty's Minister was informed by Dr. Ortiz, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, that the lapse of time rendered investigation of the case impossible, and that therefore the Government, assuming that Mr. Cantlon's story was correct, would offer him a reasonable compensation. (See paper E.)

That accordingly Mr. Monson had informed Mr. Cantlon that the Argentine Government was willing to pay him the sum of 1,000 dollars in satisfaction of his claim, and that he inquired whether Mr. Cantlon would accept that arrangement. That no reply to that offer had yet been received from Mr. Cantlon.

That in a note renewing the above offer Señor Ortiz remarked that "acts of the nature in question, committed by collectitious troops such as the National Guard, which is a force independent of the regular army, are not subject to recognition by Government, and that complaints and claims against violent proceedings and attacks on the person must be brought before the judicial Tribunals for the purpose of obtaining the punishment of the offenders." (See Inclosure 6 in paper F.)

That Mr. Monson had subsequently reported that the Argentine Government had changed their ground, and that they had insisted that Mr. Cantlon solely was responsible for the treatment he had received at the hands of the soldiers of the National Guard, basing that view on a Report of the Justice of Peace of Chirilcoy, dated 28th December, 1880. (Inclosure 4 in paper G 1, and Inclosure 2 in paper G 2.)

That they had also denied, on the grounds stated by Señor Ortiz in his note of the 20th March, 1885 (Inclosure 2 in paper G), that any responsibility attached to them for the acts of the forces of the Government, and had asserted that Mr. Cantlon's case was not one for diplomatic intervention.

That in connection with the principle thus laid down by Dr. Ortiz, Mr. Currie was to call our attention to a Memorandum drawn up in the Foreign Office (K, pp. 9 to 12), to the Law Officers' Reports of the 12th September, 1876, and the 2nd August, 1879 (L and M), and to the instructions that had at various times been given to Her Majesty's Representatives as to the liabilities of the Governments of Central America for damages sustained by foreigners in times of revolution. (N, R, T.)

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the instructions which should be given to Her Majesty's Representative at Buenos Ayres in regard to claiming compensation from the Argentine Government for the treatment to which Mr. Cantlon had been subjected, and also with any observations which we might have to offer as to the position taken up by Señor Ortiz with reference to the liability of his Government in the case, and his denial of the right of diplomatic interference in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That three points appear to be raised by the letter of Dr. Ortiz:—

1. The question whether Mr. Cantlon sustained any wrong at all, or whether he merely suffered the consequences of his own misconduct in refusing to accompany the soldiers to head-quarters, and in offering a violent resistance to them.

2. That the Argentine Republic are not liable for the wrongful acts of the National Guard.

3. That even supposing a wrong to have been committed by the agents of the Government, it is not a case for diplomatic intervention, but Mr. Cantlon ought to be left to his remedy before the Tribunals.

Mr. Cantlon has cause of complaint.

The first question is purely one of fact. We think the evidence is strong to show that even if there was some cause of complaint as regards Mr. Cantlon's acts, the violence used by the soldiers was wholly unjustifiable. But the question of fact thus raised undoubtedly increases the difficulty of insisting upon compensation by means of diplomatic intervention. The Law Officers pointed out in their Report of the 26th August, 1879, that where the facts are in dispute legal proceedings ought to be taken, seeing that no claim for compensation can fairly be made against a

1885

Government for the wrongful acts of its agents unless it has been established that such wrongful acts have been committed.

Impossibility of now proving facts before Courts ought not to bar claim.

We concur generally in this view. But there may be cases, and the present appears to be one, where the effect of insisting upon such a course would be to preclude the possibility of any relief. Mr. Cantlon obviously could not hope to discover and bring to justice the authors of the outrage against him, seeing that the Government have, during all these years, been unable to do so. And looking at the late stage at which the suggestion that the soldiers of the National Guard were not to blame has been put forward, and to the fact that the Argentine Government were at one time prepared to make compensation, we think that, so far as this particular point is concerned, it ought not, in the peculiar circumstances of this case, to be regarded as a bar to a claim for compensation through diplomatic channels.

Claim exaggerated.

Details should be asked for.

At the same time, it appears to us that there has been a disposition on Mr. Cantlon's part rather to exaggerate his pecuniary losses, and it seems to us a matter for regret that the 500*l.* which at one time could have been obtained was not accepted. If the claim is to be insisted upon, and not settled by some moderate sum being agreed to, we think Mr. Cantlon should be required to give a detailed statement showing how the sum of 1,000*l.* at which he estimates his pecuniary loss is made up.

Government equally responsible for acts of National Guard and regular soldiers.

2. The second point raised appears to us to be wholly without foundation. When the National Guard are called out, and the Government are availing themselves of their services and assistance, we think the relation of the Government towards them, and the responsibility of the Government for their acts, must be precisely the same as in the case of the officers and soldiers of a regular army.

Case is one for diplomatic intervention.

3. We think the present is a case in which no adequate remedy is provided by the municipal law of the Republic, and we concur with the view of the Law Officers in their Reports of the 12th September, 1876, and 26th August, 1879, that in such a case diplomatic intervention may be resorted to.

There seems no reason to suppose that any compensation could be obtained, whatever legal proceedings were taken by Mr. Cantlon before the Tribunals of the Republic. And seeing that the Government of the Republic have been engaged in diplomatic negotiations upon this case for some years, it seems too late for them, after a delay which must necessarily increase the difficulty of pursuing any legal remedy, to remit Mr. Cantlon to the Tribunals. If such a course was to be taken it ought to have been adopted as soon as the complaint was laid before the Minister of the Republic.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, May 14, 1885.

(A) Mr. Monson. No. 95, November 27, 1884.
(B) Mr. Cantlon, December 8, 1884.
(C) To Mr. Cantlon, January 19, 1885.
(D) To Mr. Monson, No. 1, January 19, 1885.
(E) Mr. Monson, No. 20, March 2, 1885.
(F) Mr. Monson, No. 25, March 16, 1885.
(G) (1) Mr. Monson, No. 33, March 31, 1885.
(2) Mr. Monson, No. 38, April 16, 1885.
(H) Treaty between Great Britain and the Provinces of Rio de la Plata of February 2, 1825 (Treaty No. 211).
(I) To Mr. West, No. 14, April 10, 1877 (in Argentine Confederation vol., January to December 1877).
(K) Memorandum respecting Outrages on Foreigners in British Dominions and on British Subjects Abroad (Confidential No. 3279).
(L) Law Officers, September 12, 1876 (Confidential No. 4028, p. 45).
(M) Law Officers, August 26, 1879 (Confidential No. 4328, p. 30).
(N) To Mr. Corbett, No. 5, 1869 (in Guatemala vol., 1869).
(O) Mr. Graham, No. 79, 1879 (in Guatemala vol., 1879).
(P) (1) Mr. Graham, No. 87, 1879 (in Guatemala vol., 1879).
(2) To Mr. Graham, No. 7, 1880 (in Guatemala vol., 1880).
(Q) Mr. Howard, No. 161, 1883.
(R) To Mr. Bennett, No. 6, 1884.
(S) Mr. Harriss-Gastrell, No. 91, 1884.
(T) Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, October 21, 1884.
(U) To Mr. Harriss-Gastrell, No. 53, 1884.
(V) Memorandum by Mr. Oakes, December 6, 1884 (in Confidential No. 5071).

---

Brazil.

No. 18.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 10.)

Royal Courts of Justice, December 9, 1885.

My Lord,

Marriage by Acting Consul at Pernambuco before issue of warrant to newly-appointed Consul.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list* relating to a marriage performed by the Acting British Consul at Pernambuco, under the following circumstances:—

That Mr. Gollan, late Her Majesty's Consul at that port, was absent from his post, with the permission of the Secretary of State, since the 16th March, 1884, and that Mr. Hughes was placed in charge of the Consulate as Acting British Consul, which position he held till the 25th of September last, when Mr. Cohen, who succeeded Mr. Gollan, took charge of the Consulate.

That Mr. Hughes, in his capacity of Acting British Consul, was empowered (see 31 & 32 Vict., cap. 61) to solemnize marriages of British subjects under the marriage warrant issued to Mr. Gollan under the 12 & 13 Vict., cap. 68, sec. 19.

That no marriage warrant was therefore issued to Mr. Hughes.

That, on the 15th June last, Mr. Gollan was transferred to another post, and, on the same day, Mr. Cohen was appointed his successor, but, by an oversight, no marriage warrant was at the time issued to him, and that it was not until after your Lordship had succeeded Lord Granville as Secretary of State, which event took place on the 24th June, that a marriage warrant was issued to Mr. Cohen, which bore date the 25th of that month.

That inquiry having been made whether Mr. Hughes had celebrated any marriages between the 15th and 25th June, Mr. Cohen had reported by telegraph that one marriage had been solemnized on the 17th of that month. That at that date there was no Consul authorized to solemnize marriages at Pernambuco, Mr. Gollan having vacated the post on the 15th June, and no marriage warrant having been issued to his successor, Mr. Cohen, until the 25th.

Question as to warrant of late Consul having lapsed.

That the question arose whether, looking at the terms of the Act 31 & 32 Vict., cap. 61, sec. 2, Mr. Gollan's marriage warrant became null and void on his vacating the Consulship, or whether it remained in force as regards the authority of the Acting Consul to solemnize marriages thereunder, until the latter had notice of its determination by reason of Mr. Gollan's transfer.

That your Lordship desired our opinion as to whether the marriage solemnized by Mr. Hughes on the 17th June is invalid, or whether its legality could be supported on the ground above suggested.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Marriage valid, but Act should be passed to remove all doubt.

That, in our opinion, the marriage solemnized by Mr. Hughes on the 17th June was valid; but we suggest that an Act of Parliament might properly be passed to remove all doubt upon the matter.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* To Mr. Cohen (Telegraphic), October 27; Mr. Cohen (Telegraphic), October 28, 1885; 31 & 32 Vict., cap. 61.

1885

Burmah.

---

No. 19.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 19.)

Royal Courts of Justice, December 18, 1885.

My Lord,

Conquest of Upper Burmah.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that the British military expedition which was dispatched last month to Upper Burmah had resulted in the surrender to Her Majesty's forces by King Theebaw of the capital, and that the King himself had been removed to British territory.

Annulment of Treaties with foreign Powers.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, a letter from the India Office,* inclosing copies of telegrams which had passed between the Secretary of State for India and the Viceroy, together with a Minute by Sir Henry Maine, relative to the procedure which should be adopted in order to annul the Treaties and engagements which had been contracted by King Theebaw and his predecessors with foreign Powers, while reserving for further consideration the question of the precise position in which the Burmese territory should eventually stand towards the British Crown and the Government of India.

That the points to which our attention was specially invited were contained in the Minute, which formed Inclosure 3 in the India Office letter.

That with reference to Sir H. Maine's observations as to the power of the Crown to cede British territory, Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a Report of the Law Officers of the 3rd June, 1884, in which various authorities were cited.

That copies of the Treaties† between Burmah and foreign Powers, so far as they were known at present to exist, were transmitted therewith.

That our opinion was requested on the points referred to in the communication received from the India Office, together with any further observations we might have to offer on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Extinction of independence confers right of annulling Treaties.

That the conquest of the King of Burmah and the military occupation of his territory have given the Crown the right to extinguish the independent existence of the State of Upper Burmah.

If the Crown thinks fit to exercise this right, all Treaties which the King or his predecessors may have made with foreign Powers will thereupon cease to exist.

Communication of fact to foreign Powers.

The fact of their having so ceased may properly be communicated by Her Majesty's Government to foreign Powers.

Administration of country.

The territory thus acquired by conquest may be administered during the pleasure of the Crown by officers under its immediate orders. If the Viceroy of India is to perform this duty, he should be furnished with special authority and instructions in that behalf.

Cession of conquered territory.

Without expressing an opinion upon the general question, whether the Crown can cede any part of the British dominions without the authority of Parliament, we think territories acquired by conquest may be so ceded, at least so long as the power of the Crown in that respect has not been limited, either by its own acts or by Legislation.

Steps for preventing revival of Treaties on restoration of independence.

In case the full right of sovereignty over Upper Burmah should be hereafter ceded to King Theebaw, or to any one who may be regarded as his successor in title, we think that unless a formal notification be now given by Her Majesty's Government that Upper Burmah has, by conquest, become part of Her Majesty's dominions, the Powers who have made Treaties with Burmah would probably contend—

---

* India Office, December 9, 1885.

† Italy and Burmah, Treaty, March 3, 1871; ditto, Notes explanatory of Articles X and XI, December 19 and 24, 1872; ditto, Additional Article, Consular, December 26, 1872; France and Burmah, January 24, 1873. (State Papers, vol. lxiii, pp. 644, 1171, and 1325.)

1. That the action of the British Government in Burmah partook of the character of a mere military occupation as distinguished from a conquest.
2. That the Burmese sovereignty was suspended rather than extinguished.
3. That therefore the Treaties with foreign Powers, which were in abeyance during the military occupation of Upper Burmah by the British troops, had revived, and were in full force.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Chile.

No. 20.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 14.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 13, 1885.

My Lord,

Claims of neutrals in Peru for losses sustained in late war between Chile and Peru.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 29th January, stating that he was to transmit to us the despatch noted in the margin,* containing a joint Memorial addressed to the Representatives in Lima of Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy by the International Committee acting on behalf of the foreign residents in Peru who had presented claims against the Chilean Government on account of losses sustained by them during the late war between Chile and Peru.

That that document dealt with certain principles which had governed the decision of the Tribunal in its rejection of several British claims, the particulars of which were given in an Appendix.

That those principles were enumerated at p. 4, and that it was contended by the memorialists that they were of such a character as would tend to render the supposed rights attaching to the status of neutral of no avail, and would, at all events, very gravely impede the prospect of neutrals obtaining ultimate redress.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to transmit to us, for convenience of reference, a printed copy of our Report of the 28th November last, together with the papers† which had been previously referred to us; and that he was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the reply which might properly be returned to the Memorial, and with any general observations which we might have to offer in regard to the points submitted by the memorialists.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Proposed answer to Memorial.

That we are of opinion that Mr. Barrington may properly be requested to inform the memorialists that your Lordship has given very full consideration to the matters referred to in the Memorial dated the 15th November, 1884, and that your Lordship has forwarded to Mr. Drummond Hay, the British Agent appointed under Article V the Convention, the views your Lordship entertains in relation to the different points raised by the memorialists.

---

* Mr. Barrington, No. 117, November 24, 1884.

† (A.) Count Nigra, October 30, 1884, with translation. Confidential No. 5070.

(B.) Report by Her Majesty's Agent of proceedings and Awards of the Mixed Commission on British and United States' Claims. Parliamentary No. 1631.

(C.) Correspondence, "Conduct of War between Chile and Peru" (1882). Confidential No. 4764.

(D.) Ditto (1882-83). Confidential No. 4936.

(E.) Memorandum (J. P.), "Position of Neutrals in an invaded country," October 20, 1883. Confidential No. 5015

1885

Sending Memorandum on points raised in Memorial.

We have drawn up, and forward herewith, a Memorandum expressing our opinion upon the seven points raised in the Memorial (see p. 4), and we suggest that, if your Lordship approves of such opinion, the Memorandum may be forwarded to the British Agent with directions to urge the views so expressed before the International Commission.

It must be for your Lordship to determine whether the contents of such Memorandum should, or should not, be communicated to the memorialists.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Memorandum.

Qualifications and rights of British subjects in Peru.

1. It seems clear that the mere fact of a person having been born in Peru ought not to disentitle him to be regarded as a British subject. A person, being the child or grandchild of English subjects, and born in Peru, is primâ facie clearly a British subject; and inasmuch as the Convention is entered into by England on behalf of its subjects, it must be taken that those who are English subjects according to the law of England are entitled to its benefits.

The fact of a British subject being domiciled in Peru clearly does not interfere with his rights as such.

Exclusion of evidence by the Commission.

2 and 3. The terms of Article IV of the Convention give such a wide discretion to the members of the Commission, in relation to the admission and rejection of evidence, that it seems difficult to interfere with any reasonable exercise of such discretion. But the refusal to receive the evidence of Chilean officers, and that of a person, who is a claimant, in support of a claim not his own, seems so extraordinary that we think the injustice of excluding such evidence should be most strongly urged upon the Commission.

Non-liability of invaders for losses caused by war.

4 and 5. It is no doubt correct to say that an invading Power is not liable to afford recompense for acts which are the natural consequence of carrying on military operations, and in relation to such acts neutrals are in the same position as the natives of the invaded State. But this general rule must be accepted subject to the exceptions mentioned in our Report of the 28th November, 1884, and which we ask may be regarded as incorporated in this Memorandum.

If war is carried on according to recognized usages.

6. As a general principle the exigencies of war exempt Governments from responsibility. But to effect this exemption the war must be carried on according to the recognized usages of warfare.

Application of martial law to neutrals and natives.

7. If martial law be proclaimed it applies, with equal force, to neutral and native inhabitants of the invaded country.

Admission of hearsay evidence.

General.—The view taken by the memorialists that "la notoriété" should be treated as evidence may well be dissented from by the members of the Commission, but it certainly should be pointed out that if hearsay evidence be admitted on behalf of the Chilean Government, it should equally be received when tendered by claimants.

H. J.
F. H.
J. P. D.

---

China.

No. 21.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 7.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 6, 1885.

My Lord,

Surrender of Chinese criminals from Hong Kong, demand of Chinese Government for.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to an application made by the Chinese Minister at this Court for the rearrest and surrender to the Chinese Government, under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, of the eleven Chinese prisoners whose extradition had lately been refused by the Government of Hong Kong. That that request having been referred to the Colonial Office, a reply had been received from that Department, dated the 15th ultimo, and that, in accordance with Lord Derby's suggestion, the accompanying draft reply to the Marquis Tsêng's communication had been prepared.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposed reply to that fresh application for the surrender of the eleven fugitives to the Chinese authorities was right and proper.

Approving answer to Chinese Government refusing to order the rearrest of fugitives.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in our opinion, the proposed reply is right and proper.

There appears to be a clerical error in the last word but four of the draft, which should be "rearrest," instead of "discharge."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers submitted to the Law Officers, February 2, 1885.

A. Treaty of Tien-tsin of June 26, 1858, Treaty No. 448.
B. Ordinance of Hong Kong, No. 2, 1850.
C. Marquis Tsêng, August 16, 1884.
D. Marquis Tsêng, September 24, 1884.
E. Law Officers, September 18, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 12.
F. To Colonial Office, September 30, 1884.
G. Colonial Office, October 3, 1884.
H. To Colonial Office, October 4, 1884.
I. Colonial Office, October 7, 1884.
J. To Colonial Office, October 9, 1884.
K. Colonial Office, October 14, 1884.
L. To Marquis Tsêng, October 18, 1884.
M. Colonial Office, December 5, 1884.
N. Marquis Tsêng, December 8, 1884.
O. Colonial Office, January 15, 1885.
P. To Marquis Tsêng.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter to the Marquis Tsêng.

Foreign Office, February , 1885.

M. le Ministre,

I HAVE had under my careful consideration the requisition preferred in your letter of the 8th December for the rearrest and surrender to the Imperial Government of the eleven Chinese prisoners whose extradition under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin was lately refused by the Government of Hong Kong.

In reply, I now beg leave to submit to you the following observations on the grounds stated in your letter for that application:—

In the first place, you call attention to the bearing of the Extradition Acts of 1885

1870 and 1873 on the case, and you suggest that, according to the Extradition Act of 1870, the magistrate having committed the prisoners, it only remained for the Governor to issue the usual warrant of surrender required in extradition cases, and further, that by the Extradition Acts of 1870 and 1873 it is not given to the Executive, or to any authority whatever, either to review the decision of the magistrate, or, after the commitment of the prisoner by the magistrate, to refuse to issue the warrant of surrender, excepting in the case of the Executive being of opinion that the offence of the fugitive criminal is of a political nature.

On these points I have to observe that the Extradition Acts of 1870 and 1873 do not apply to the case under discussion.

The extradition of Chinese fugitives in Hong Kong is exclusively regulated by Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin and the Colonial Ordinances passed to carry it into effect.

In regard to the interpretation to be attached to the words "proof of guilt" occurring in Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, I have to state that the Treaty does not prescribe the manner in which the question of the proof of guilt required by that Article is to be ascertained. By section 3 of the Hong Kong Ordinance of 1850, to which reference has been made in previous correspondence, the magistrate is empowered, if there appears to him to be probable cause for believing the person to have committed the offence, to commit him to prison "until the gaoler shall receive some order from the Governor relative to the further detention, discharge, or transmission of such person to the Chinese authorities; but before deciding to discharge a prisoner already committed by the magistrate, the Governor would naturally consult his Council."

Her Majesty's Government, however, cannot admit that the Government is bound either by the Treaty or the Colonial Ordinance to accept the decision of the magistrate as conclusive, especially when further evidence is forthcoming after the magistrate has committed or discharged the person whose extradition is sought.

They do not contend that the words "proof of guilt" mean such absolute proof as would be necessary to support a final conviction. But in the case of the eleven prisoners who have been discharged from confinement, it would appear that the Governor's Executive Council were not satisfied that there was presumptive proof of their guilt.

On these grounds I regret to have to state to you, M. le Ministre, that Her Majesty's Government are unable to comply with the request made in your letter of the 8th December for the rearrest of these fugitives.

I have, &c.

---

No. 22.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 3, 1885.

English Secretaries attached to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Legations.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 20th ultimo, transmitting to us the papers* relating to the position occupied by the English Secretaries attached to the Legations of China, Japan, and Siam, in London, and to the question of their exemption from the payment of taxes.

Proposal that Crown should remit certain taxes in their favour.

That, from communications with the respective Legations, it was believed that what was desired was, not that the practice of inserting the names of the English Secretaries in the lists furnished to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex should be continued, but that they should be relieved from the payment of such taxes as the Crown had legal power to remit in this country, and had hitherto been remitted by the Crown in favour of Mr. Stuart-Lane, the English Secretary of the Japanese Legation for many years past.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to state that your Lordship was disposed to think that that course would be an equitable settlement of the question, and that it might be adopted in favour of the present three English Secretaries (the first ones employed by the three Legations) as a matter of favour, in view of the fact that, until the question was recently raised, no taxes had been demanded of them by the

---

* (A.) Print, August 11 to November 26, 1884. Confidential No. ; (B.) Marquis Tsêng, January 19, 1885; (C.) Jushie Kawasé, January 28, 1885

Board of Inland Revenue, and that one of them had enjoyed the exemption for nine years.

That our opinion was desired as to whether the course above indicated might properly be followed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed course.

That we think the course suggested may properly be followed.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 23.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 22.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 20, 1885.

Pillage of the stranded vessel "Flodden."

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying papers* relative to the case of the British barque "Flodden," which was stranded on the south bank of the River Yang-tze on the 23rd August, 1883.

That the facts of the case were briefly stated in Mr. O'Conor's despatch No. 136 of the 30th March last, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to Sir H. Parkes' letter to the Yamên of the 6th February, 1884, and to the Minutes and finding of the Naval Court which inquired into the circumstances attending the loss of the vessel. That that Report, which would be found in Inclosure No. 13 of Mr. O'Conor's despatch, tended to show that blame attached to the master of the vessel for having failed to take sufficient precautions for the protection of the cargo and hull, and for not having reported, by letter to Shanghae, the circumstances under which the "Flodden" was stranded, and returned himself with his crew to look after her safety, instead of abandoning her to the rapacity of the natives.

That although the Chinese local authorities might have been remiss in not affording timely or sufficient protection, the question arose whether, under all the circumstances, and in view of the Report of the Naval Court, the claim for indemnity could properly be pressed in this case.

That, as regarded the liability of the Chinese Government, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to Articles XIX and XX of the Treaty of Tien-tsin of the 26th July, 1858; and that he was to state that the Chinese Government had admitted their

---

* List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, July 29, 1885:—
- (A.) Mr. O'Conor, No. 136, March 30, 1883.
- (B.) Inclosure No. 78 in Mr. O'Conor's No. 136, 1883.
- (C.) Inclosure No. 13 in Mr. O'Conor's No 136, 1883.
- (D.) To Mr. Grosvenor, No. 109, July 24, 1883.
- (E.) Mr. Grosvenor, No. 111, October 15, 1882.
- (F.) ,, ,, No. 143, November 25, 1882.
- (G.) ,, ,, No. 2, January 4, 1883.
- (H.) ,, ,, No. 4, January 13, 1883.
- (I.) ,, ,, No. 97, June 23, 1883.
- (J.) ,, ,, No. 105, July 16, 1883.
- (K.) ,, ,, No. 139, November 9, 1883.
- (L.) Sir H. Parkes, No. 340, December 30, 1884.
- (M.) Mr. O'Conor, No. 148, April 6, 1885.
- (N.) ,, ,, No. 176, April 20, 1885.
- (O.) Mr. Grosvenor, No. 106, July 16, 1883.
- (P.) Board of Trade, November 3, 1883.
- (Q.) To Board of Trade, November 13, 1883.
- (R.) Board of Trade, November 20, 1883.
- (S.) To Sir H. Parkes, No. 83, November 23, 1883.
- (T.) Board of Trade, December 1, 1883.
- (U.) To Sir H. Parkes, No. 104, 1883.
- (V.) Messrs. Miles, Brothers, and Co., September 10, 1884.
- (W.) To Sir H. Parkes, No. 196, September 17, 1884.
- (X.) Messrs. Miles, Brothers, and Co., September 18, 1884.
- (Y.) ,, ,, ,, January 29, 1885,
- (Z.) To Sir H. Parkes, No. 35, February 2, 1885.
- (AA.) To Messrs. Miles, Brothers, and Co., February 2, 1885.
- (BB.) Hertslet's Treaties on Trade—"China," 1877.

1885

responsibility to make compensation in numerous cases of the same kind on the representations of Her Majesty's Government, and of various foreign Governments, some of the latter of which were enumerated in Lord Granville's despatch to Mr. Grosvenor No. 109 of the 24th July, 1883, in which instructions were given to him to demand redress for the pillage by Chinese wreckers of the British vessels "Garstang" and "Hong Kong," a demand which was eventually complied with.

That we would observe that the Chinese Government had not denied their liability in the present instance.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to a Proclamation issued in the month of March 1883 by the Chinese authorities of the Province of Fuhkien, reissuing certain Salvage Regulations promulgated in 1876, in which officials and people were warned alike against plundering shipwrecked vessels, and copies of which were inclosed in Mr. Grosvenor's despatch No. 106 of the 16th July, 1883.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration and favour your Lordship with our opinion whether, under the circumstances of the case, the claim for compensation on account of the plunder of the "Flodden" and her cargo could properly be urged on the Chinese Government.

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's note of the 12th instant, inclosing a further letter from Mr. O'Conor, dated the 12th June, 1885.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No strictly legal right to compensation.

That if this matter be treated as one of strict legal right no claim can, in our opinion, be properly enforced against the Chinese Government for compensation on account of the plunder of the "Flodden" and her cargo, inasmuch as it is clear that the master and crew of the "Flodden" were guilty of negligence in leaving the ship and her cargo unprotected, and that but for this negligence the plunder would either not have occurred, or might have been, to a great extent, prevented.

Case should be urged on Chinese Government, but should not be enforced if disputed.

It may, however, be urged, that notwithstanding such negligence on the part of the master and crew, the Chinese authorities did not fulfil the obligations of Article XX of the Treaty of the 26th June, 1858, and that although the claims should not be enforced by extreme measures, they might be urged upon the Chinese Government with a view to settlement.

The letter of Mr. N. R. O'Conor of the 12th June, 1885, which was handed to us on the 13th instant, indicates that the Chinese Government do not wholly repudiate the claim, and this being so, we think they should be urged to deal with it, though we do not consider it a case in which it should be enforced if ultimately disputed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 24.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 24, 1885.

Abduction of Chan Tim from Hong Kong.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the papers* relating to the alleged abduction of a Chinaman named Chan Tim from Hong Kong by the Chinese authorities.

That the man was said to have been charged with being a rebel, and to have been tortured after his arrest.

That it would be seen that the Ministers of the Tsung-li Yamên alleged that no violation of British territory took place; that the man was decoyed from Hong Kong by his own relatives, and that the Chinese authorities had a right to arrest him on Chinese territory without inquiring how he came there.

Supposed to have been decoyed under instructions of Chinese Government.

That, on the other hand, the information furnished by the Governor of Hong Kong hardly left room for doubt that the persons who decoyed the man from Hong Kong were acting as the paid agents of the Chinese authorities and under their instructions.

That, if so, the Chinese authorities had committed a violation of the rules which govern the relations between civilized States, and had departed from the stipulations of the Treaty which laid down the course to be pursued for the recovery of fugitive criminals.

That the facts were fully stated in Sir G. Bowen's despatch to Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, of which a copy was transmitted.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the circumstances of the case were such as to call for a remonstrance on the part of Her Majesty's Government, and whether the evidence was sufficient to justify a demand for Chan Tim's restoration to the jurisdiction of the Colony, as suggested by the Attorney-General of Hong Kong.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Remonstrance should not be withdrawn.

That a remonstrance on the part of Her Majesty's Government appears to have been already addressed to the Chinese Government.

We do not think it necessary that this remonstrance should be withdrawn. If it is allowed to take its course, further evidence may be forthcoming before negotiations are closed.

Evidence not sufficient to justify a demand for his restoration.

But we are of opinion that the evidence at present in possession of Her Majesty's Government is not sufficient to justify a demand for Chan Tim's restoration to the jurisdiction of the Colony.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

* List of papers:—
(A.) Mr. O'Conor, No. 174 of 1885.
(B.) Ditto, No. 202, May 1, 1885.
(C.) Colonial Office, June 23, 1885.
(D.) Ditto, June 26, 1885.

---

No. 25.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 19.)

Royal Courts of Justice, September 19, 1885.

My Lord,

Extradition of fugitives from Hong Kong;

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th ultimo, stating that, by direction of the Secretary of State, he had the honour to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, which related to an application made by the Chinese Minister in London for the rearrest and extradition from Hong Kong of eleven fugitives from justice who were detained originally on an extradition demand, but who were discharged by the Governor of the Colony after a long and careful inquiry.

Further demand for.

That the surrender of Chinese fugitives by the Government of Hong Kong was regulated by Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin (A), and by the Colonial Ordinances No. 2 of 1850 (B) and No. 2 of 1871 (C).

That the history of the case would be found in the following Reports of the Law Officers of the Crown, and in the documents to which they referred:—

(D) Law Officers' Report of the 14th June, 1882.
(E) Law Officers' Report of the 18th September, 1884.
(F) Law Officers' Report of the 6th February, 1885.

Proceedings on former demands.

That the demand for the surrender of the fugitives in question, and others, numbering in all thirteen, was originally made in 1881. They were arrested in Hong Kong, but released by the Supreme Court of the Colony on habeas corpus, by reason of some informalities.

They left the Colony, but subsequently returned, and in 1883 they were rearrested on a fresh demand of the Viceroy of Canton. Two of them were discharged, and the remaining eleven were committed to prison to await the orders of the Governor respecting their extradition, as provided by Ordinance No. 2 of 1850.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to the Report of the Law Officers of the 18th September, 1884 (E), and to the despatches of the Governor of Hong Kong therein referred to, and transmitted therewith, for a full account of the subsequent proceedings, which resulted in the discharge of the prisoners, on the ground that the "proof of guilt" required by Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin was not on the whole such as to satisfy the minds of the Governor and Executive Council.

1885

That the Chinese Minister thereupon addressed a letter, dated the 8th December, 1884, to the Secretary of State, demanding the rearrest and surrender of the eleven fugitives, on the ground set out in his communication (G). That demand was refused, for the reasons stated in the reply to the Marquis Tsêng of the 9th February, 1885, which had been approved by the Law Officers, and a copy of which would be found appended to their Report of the 6th February, 1885 (F). That the Marquis Tsêng, being dissatisfied with that reply, addressed a further letter to the Secretary of State, dated the 13th June, 1885, in which he still insists on the rearrest and surrender of the fugitives (H).

That that letter was referred to the Colonial Office, who, in their reply of the 25th June, 1885 (I), dealt with the arguments of the Chinese Minister, and suggested a further reference to the Law Officers.

That it appeared to your Lordship that the answer of the Colonial Office contained a satisfactory refutation of the contention of the Chinese Minister on all points, both of law and of fact; and Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take all the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the demand of the Chinese Minister should again be refused, and, if so, whether his letter of the 13th June last might properly be answered in the sense indicated by the Colonial Office in their letter to the Foreign Office of the 25th June.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to add, with reference to paragraph 2 of that letter, that the Imperial Extradition Acts had not been applied by Order in Council to section 21 of the Treaty of Tien-tsin.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That our reply to the questions contained in the Colonial Office letter of the 25th June is as follows:—

Extradition Acts not applicable to Treaty of Tien-tsin, but bear upon case.

1. The Extradition Acts 1870 and 1873 do not apply to the Treaty of Tien-tsin; but the provisions of those Acts, which might at any time, at the will of Her Majesty's Government, be applied to the Treaty of Tien-tsin, have some bearing on the controversy, as showing the measures taken by Her Majesty's Government to fulfil their Treaty obligations for the surrender of fugitive criminals to Governments other than the Chinese, and especially that in the case of other Treaties, the proof of the guilt of any person whose surrender is claimed is left to the Judicial and not to the Executive authorities.

Ordinances regulating procedure.

2. The procedure in cases under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin is at present regulated by Colonial Ordinances No. 2 of 1850 and No. 2 of 1871.

Discharge of prisoners not an infraction of British Law.

3. We think it is the intention of the Colonial Ordinance No. 2 of 1850 that the "proof of guilt" required by Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin shall be submitted to, and judged of by, the magistrate. But we cannot say that the terms of the Ordinance excludes the exercise by the Governor of a discretionary power to discharge a prisoner who has been committed to prison by a magistrate. We are therefore of opinion that the discharge of the Chinese prisoners by the Governor of Hong Kong was not an infraction of British Law.

But we are asked a further question in your Lordship's letter. Whether the demand of the Chinese Minister shall be again refused?

What constitutes sufficient "proof of guilt"?

We must observe that the Treaty obligation of Her Majesty's Government to that of China cannot be diminished or qualified by the municipal law at any time existing in Hong Kong. Upon tendering "proof of guilt," the Chinese Government is entitled by the Treaty to have a fugitive criminal surrendered.

As to what is "proof of guilt" under the Treaty, we concur with the opinion of the Law Officers in 1863, that "reasonable evidence ought to be accepted as sufficient, such, for example, as would lead a Grand Jury in this country to find a true Bill, where the evidence is ex parte only, or such as, with evidence on both sides, would induce a magistrate to commit for trial."

This view is confirmed by the opinion of the Privy Council in the case of the Attorney-General of Hong Kong v. Kwok-a-Sing (5 L. R., P. C., App. 199), and in the despatch of Lord Granville to Marquis Tsêng of the 9th February, 1885, it is admitted that "proof of guilt" does not mean such absolute proof as would be necessary to support final conviction.

We think that in the present case such proof of guilt as is required by the Treaty has been brought forward by the Chinese Government. The two magistrates at Hong Kong who successively heard the evidence against the prisoners thought there was probable cause for believing that the prisoners had committed the crime alleged, and accordingly committed the prisoners under section 3 of the Hong Kong Ordinance No. 2 of 1850. The Governor of Hong Kong and the majority of his Council "concur with the magistrates who tried the case, and saw the demeanour of the accused and of the witnesses, that there is a primâ facie case against the prisoners." They had, however, received instructions from the Colonial Office that "proof of guilt should be such as, on the whole, to satisfy the minds of the Council;" and this they seem to have erroneously understood to mean that it should be such as to support a final conviction.

On legal grounds do not advise refusal of demand.

We cannot therefore advise your Lordship upon legal grounds to again refuse the demand of the Chinese Minister.

There may be considerations of expediency which, in the judgment of Her Majesty's Government, justify such refusal.

Torture should be guarded against.

We feel as strongly as any one that if it be the fact that prisoners so surrendered are subjected to torture means should, if possible, be taken to render it impossible that torture should be applied. We think, further, that it would be preferable that there should be no agreement for the surrender of prisoners to the Chinese Government as long as there is substantial reason to believe that the horrible practice of torturing accused persons is followed. But we, as the Legal Advisers of the Government, are bound, with great reluctance. to express our opinion that the Chinese Government have done what is requisite to entitle them under the Treaty of Tien-tsin to the surrender of the persons in question.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.

---

Report that the Ordinance No. 2, 1850, governs this case.

Procedure not regulated by Extradition Acts;

The Treaty of Tien-tsin, Article XXI, merely directs that Chinese criminals, upon requisition by the Chinese authorities, shall, on proof of their guilt, be delivered up.

The Treaty is silent as to the course to be taken with the view of deciding finally on proof of guilt.

The Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, do not apply.

The several Extradition Treaties can be referred to but as analogies, or illustrations, if they can be used even to that extent; they are binding only as between the two countries who enter into the particular contract.

but by Hong Kong Ordinance.

The course of procedure must therefore be sought for, and is to be found in the Ordinance, which it was, I conceive, within the power of the Legislative Council of Hong Kong to issue.

Article 1 of this Ordinance gives the magistrate or Court the power to detain the person charged with the commission of a crime and to investigate the alleged crime.

Article 3 gives the magistrate, if there is probable cause for believing that the said person has committed the crime, power to commit him to prison for safe custody, and to direct the gaoler to detain him in prison until the said gaoler shall receive some order from the Governor relative to the further detention, discharge, or transmission of such person to the Chinese authorities. And the said magistrate or Court shall, upon making such committal as aforesaid, transmit to the said Governor the Minutes of such investigation, and all documents in his or its possession connected with the charge against such person, in order that such person may be dealt with according to the Treaties aforesaid.

Governor has power to discharge prisoners.

This Article, in my opinion, gives the Governor authority to inquire into the charge and the evidence adduced before the magistrate or the Court. (The Minutes and documents are sent to him seemingly for that purpose.)

The Governor, in accordance with his view of the charge, and evidence in support of the charge, may order the further detention, discharge, or transmission of the person committed by the magistrate.

The Governor has in this instance, upon a review of the proceedings, ordered the release or discharge of the men.

Disagreeing as to necessity for granting demand for extradition.

I am unable to agree with the Attorney- and Solicitor-General in advising your Lordship that there are no legal grounds for refusing the demand of the Chinese Minister, for I consider that the demand may properly be refused upon legal grounds.

I have, &c.
(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

1885

List of Papers.

(A) Treaty of Tien-tsin, June 26, 1858 (Treaty No. 448).
(B) Hong Kong Ordinance No. 2 of 1850.
(C) Ditto No. 2 of 1871 (Confidential No. 2855).
(D) To Law Officers, June 14, 1882, with Report attached (Confidential No. 4783, p. 14).
    Inclosures: Consul Hewlett, No. 14, of April 29, 1881; Colonial Office, March 2; ditto, May 5; ditto, May 8; ditto, May 19; ditto, May 27; to Colonial Office, April 18, 1882; to Sir R. Alcock, December 11, 1865.
(E) Law Officers, September 18, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, p. 12).
    Inclosures: Law Officers, February 24, 1863; ditto, November 25, 1865; Colonial Office, April 12, 1883; Law Officers, July 22, 1882; to Marquis Tsêng, July 27, 1883; Colonial Office, January 15; ditto, February 8; to Colonial Office, February 23, 1884.
(F) Law Officers, February 6, 1885.
    Inclosures: Marquis Tsêng, August 16; Law Officers, September 18; Marquis Tsêng, September 24; to Colonial Office, September 30; Colonial Office, October 3; to Colonial Office, October 4; Colonial Office, October 7; to Colonial Office, October 9; Colonial Office, October 14; to Marquis Tsêng, October 18; Colonial Office, December 5, 1884; ditto, January 15, 1885.
(G) Marquis Tsêng, December 8, 1884.
(H) Ditto, June 13, 1885.
(I) Colonial Office, June 25, 1885.

---

Colombia.

No. 26.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 3.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 2, 1885.

Revolution in Colombia.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, transmitting to us papers* relating to the state of affairs in the Republic of Colombia in consequence of the outbreak of a revolution in that country.

Ports of Savanilla and Barranquilla closed by Decrees.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to point out that Decrees had been issued at Panamá and Carthagena on the 14th and 17th January last respectively by the President of the State of Panamá and by the Fiscal Inspector of the Custom-houses of the Atlantic coast, declaring the ports of Savanilla and Barranquilla to be closed to foreign trade, as well as to the coasting trade of the Republic of Colombia, during the time a state of war exists in the said ports of the State of Bolivar. That it appears that neither of those ports were actually blockaded up to the 4th February, and that up to that date ships had continued to enter and leave without interruption, although the mail and other steamers did not touch there, in consequence of those Decrees.

Decrees stated to be illegal.

That the authorities at Barranquilla declared the Decrees to be illegal, inasmuch as neither of the functionaries named had been delegated by the National Executive with the requisite authority, notwithstanding the fact that the Fiscal Inspector of the Custom-houses, in one of the Decrees, declared himself to be the immediate representative of the National Executive Power.

Blockade of Carthagena.

That the Secretary-General of the State of Bolivia had also addressed a note to Her Majesty's Consul at Barranquilla, stating that the port of Carthagena would be blockaded by a man-of-war belonging to that State.

That our opinion was requested as to whether, under the circumstances stated in the correspondence, it would be advisable to insert a notice in the "London Gazette" of the closing of the ports of Savanilla and Barranquilla, and of the intended blockade of the port of Carthagena, and, if so, whether a notice in the accompanying form would be right and proper.

---

* Consul Stacey, No. 3, Political, February 4; ditto, No. 7, Political, February 21, 1885; Proposed Notice in the "London Gazette."

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should merely publish text of reports as to closing of ports.

That the information before us is not sufficient to enable us to determine with certainty whether the closing of the ports in question was or was not effectual in law.

We think, under the circumstances, the best course would be to publish in the "Gazette" the text of Mr. Stacey's Reports, without any introductory words such as those suggested in the draft, which would seem to recognize that the ports were validly closed.

No objection to notification of blockade.

As regards the intended blockade of Carthagena, there seems to be no objection to notifying it in the ordinary way.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 27.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 24.)

(A.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 23, 1885.

Revolution in Colombia.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 10th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the state of affairs in the Republic of Colombia, arising out of the revolutionary outbreak in that country.

Decrees, &c., closing ports and declaring vessels of insurgents to be pirates.

That Mr. Currie was especially to call our attention to two despatches from Mr. West, referring to a correspondence between the Colombian Minister at Washington and the United States' Government in regard to two Decrees by the Colombian Government.

That by the first of those Decrees it was notified that the ports of Savanilla, Santa Marta, and Barranquilla were closed to foreign commerce; by the second Decree, it was declared that the existence and action of the vessels belonging to the insurgents stationed at the entrance to the Bay of Carthagena put them beyond the pale of international law (Mr. West's Nos. 173 and 175, 27th and 28th April, 1885).

That a telegram had also been addressed by the President of the United States of Colombia to the Governor of Jamaica, announcing that the Colombian Government had declared the vessels which blockaded the port of Carthagena to be pirates. That that notice had been published in the Jamaica Gazette for general information.

That a despatch had been received from the British Consul at Barranquilla, reporting that the right of the Fiscal Inspector of the custom-houses of the Atlantic and of the President of the State of Panamá to declare the ports of Barranquilla and Savanilla to be closed to foreign shipping was contested by the Commander-in-chief of the revoluntary forces and the Chief of his Staff.

That a copy of our Report of the 2nd April relative to the closing to foreign trade of the ports of Savanilla and Barranquilla, and to the blockade of the port of Carthagena by a man-of-war belonging to the State of Bolivar, with the papers on which it was founded was annexed for convenience of reference.

Action of Governor of Jamaica in publishing telegram from President of Colombia.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the right of the Colombian Government to assume the position they have taken up with regard to the vessels belonging to the revolutionary party, and as to the propriety of the action taken by the Governor of Jamaica in publishing the telegram received by him from the President of the United States of Colombia; and also with any observations we might have to offer upon the correspondence alluded to in Mr. West's despatches above referred to relative to the closing of certain ports in the possession of rebels against the Federal Government of Colombia, and to the status of vessels belonging to the insurgents.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Colombian Government not warranted in declaring insurgent vessels to be pirates.

That we do not think it was in accordance with the usage of civilized nations to declare the vessels of the revolutionary party to be pirates. That party appear clearly to have acquired the status of belligerents, and to have been so treated by the Colombian Government. And we entirely concur with the United States' Minister that such a Decree should not be regarded by other Powers as warranted by the circumstances.

1885

Cannot express opinion as to validity of Decree closing ports.

We are not sufficiently informed as to the relation to each other, and to the central power of the different authorities, or the position of the belligerents, to enable us to express any opinion as to the validity of the Decree purporting to close the ports.

Such Decrees would have no exterritorial effect.

We quite agree with the United States' Minister in thinking that such Decrees would have no exterritorial effect, and would not justify any exterritorial action.

No action necessary with regard to telegram published by Governor of Jamaica.

How far they might be legitimate for fiscal purposes, and would justify municipal action by the competent authority, is a different question. It would, we think, have been better if the Governor of Jamaica had not published the telegram, but it hardly seems necessary now to take action in relation to such publication.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, June 10, 1885.

(A.) Consul Stacey, No. 3, February 4, 1885.
(B.) Ditto, No. 7, February 21, 1885.
(C.) To "London Gazette," April 6, 1885.
(D.) Ditto, April 6, 1885.
(E.) Admiralty, April 9, 1885.
(F.) Messrs. Leech, Harrison, and Forwood, April 14, 1885.
(G.) Admiralty, April 14, 1885.
(H.) Ditto, April 20, 1885.
(I.) Mr. West, No. 173, April 27, 1885.
(K.) Ditto, No. 175, April 28, 1885.
(L.) Mr. St. John (Telegraphic), May 9, 1885.
(M.) Admiralty, May 23, 1885.
(N.) To Admiralty, May 27, 1885.
(O.) To Mr. St. John (Telegraphic), May 27, 1885.
(P.) Colonial Office, June 4, 1885.
(Q.) Consul Stacey, No. 13, April 21, 1885.

---

No. 28.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 24.)

(B.)
Royal Courts of Justice, June 23, 1885.

My Lord,

Convoy of British vessels carrying supplies into Port of Cartagena, now besieged by rebels.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 19th instant, stating that with reference to Mr. Currie's letter of the 10th instant he was to transmit to us a letter from the Board of Admiralty,* inclosing a copy of a letter from Captain Curtis, of Her Majesty's ship "Canada," with remarks by Vice-Admiral Sir J. Commerell, relative to the question of convoying into the port of Cartagena British vessels containing provisions, &c., for the forces of the National Government of Colombia; that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration with the correspondence already before us,† and favour your Lordship with any observations we might have to make thereon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Concur in view of Captain Curtis, that such convoy would be a breach of neutrality.

That we concur in the view taken by Captain Curtis.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* June 15, 1885.
† See List of Papers annexed to Law Officers' Report of June 23 (marked A).

Annex No. 1.

(Inclosure 1 in Admiralty Letter of June 15, 1885.)

Relative to Convoying British Vessels into the Port of Cartagena.

H.M.S. "Canada," at Halifax, May 20, 1885.

Sir,

IN compliance with your order to me to give you my opinion on the question of convoying British vessels containing provisions, &c., for the national forces into the port of Cartagena, I have the honour to say that, if such were done, it would be a distinct breach of neutrality, in the interest of President Nunez and against that of the insurgents.

2. By the constitution of the Republic of Colombia each State is entitled to sovereign rights, and as a de facto Government has been established in the State of Bolivar by the insurgents after successes in the field I maintain that they are entitled to all the rights of belligerents, and to convoy British vessels into the port of Cartagena, if it is still being besieged, would be a direct interference with those rights, for by so doing the siege might be indefinitely prolonged.

I have, &c.
(Signed) A. CURTIS, Captain.

Vice-Admiral Sir J. E. Commerell, K.C.B., V.C.,
Commander-in-chief.

Submitted, in compliance with the directions contained in your telegram of the 15th instant and my reply thereto dated the 19th instant, observing that in forwarding the inclosed letter from Captain Curtis relative to the state of affairs at Cartagena, I would beg to observe that the directions received by telegram would conflict very much with the orders of strict neutrality which my Lords have already sanctioned.

2. No doubt the town of Cartagena was (at last accounts) in an efficient state of siege, though not of blockade; any vessels endeavouring to enter the inner harbour were fired upon by a battery on Manzanilla Point, and prevented from doing so.

3. Assistance to English vessels wishing to trade with Cartagena means informing the opposition General, Gaylan, that any fire (in their undoubted right) opened upon English ships entering the harbour would be returned.

4. The question is, are my Lords prepared to adopt this course, or to remain as before in a position of neutrality? I am in accord with Captain Curtis, and strongly of opinion that the latter course should be adhered to.

(Signed) J. E. COMMERELL, Vice-Admiral.

The Secretary to the Admiralty.

Annex No. 2.

(Inclosure 2 in Admiralty Letter of June 15, 1885.)

Telegram of May 30 to British Admiral at Halifax.

(No. 23.)

YOUR No. 14.

Direct British Naval Officer Cartagena to protect British subjects and property afloat, if actually in danger of injury by rebels or other persons, avoiding giving assistance to either party.

Telegram of June 11 to British Admiral, Halifax.

(No. 27.)

MY No. 23.

After "other persons" read "unless British vessel is attempting to break a blockade or to infringe the laws involved by a state of siege."

1885

No. 29.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 26.)

Royal Courts of Justice, August 24, 1885.

My Lord,

Payment a second time of import duties already levied by rebels.

Venezuelan Decree enforcing, with fine in case of refusal.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Bogota, inclosing a translation of a Decree of the Columbian Government, dated the 10th February last, whereby it was declared that payment of import duties made to the rebel forces in temporary possession of any custom-house of the Republic would be exacted over again by the Government, together with an additional duty, by way of fine, in case of refusal by the importers to make such second payment.

That it was admitted that the importers affected by the above Decree paid the import duties under compulsion at the ports in possession of the rebel forces.

Ports occupied by rebels not blockaded, but closed by Decrees.

That no blockade of those ports had ever been established, but that they were closed to foreign commerce in January last under Decrees, of which copies were transmitted in Mr. Consul Stacey's despatch of the 4th February, published in the "London Gazette" of the 10th April, to which our attention was invited.

That the question arose whether, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government were entitled to object to the exaction of such second payment by British subjects of import duties, and of an additional duty in case of refusal.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose copies of the Treaty between Great Britain and Colombia the 16th February, 1866, and of the "London Gazette" of the 10th April, 1885.

That, as bearing upon that question, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to the Reports from the Queen's Advocate and from the Law Officers of the Crown, inclosed.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the above question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government entitled to object to such exaction.

That Her Majesty's Government are entitled to object to the exaction of such second payment by British subjects of import duties, and of an additional duty in case of refusal, in respect of the importation of goods into territory which was not under the de facto sovereignty of the Colombian Government at the time of such importation.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Mr. F. St. John, No. 3, Commercial, May 3, 1885.
Treaty, Great Britain and Colombia, February 16, 1866, No. 495.
"London Gazette," April 10, 1885.
Queen's Advocate, May 15, 1858.
Ditto, July 26, 1858.
Ditto, November 21, 1859.
Ditto, May 18, 1860.
Ditto, May 6, 1861 (Confidential No. 1123, p. 87).
Ditto, May 11, 1865 (Confidential No. 1489, p 96).
Law Officers, July 22, 1872 (Confidential No. 4098, p. 100).
Ditto, July 13, 1875 (Confidential No. 4370, p. 50).

---

No. 30.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 14.)

Royal Courts of Justice, October 13, 1885.

My Lord,

Seizure of goods supplied by Messrs. Schloss, Brothers, to Messrs. Cerruti.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* relative to the seizure in the United States of Colombia of certain goods supplied by Messrs. Schloss, Brothers, of London, and other British firms, to Messrs. Cerruti and other firms trading in Colombia, under circumstances which were fully set forth in the accompanying despatches from Her Majesty's Legation at Bogotá.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was also to inclose a draft of a despatch which your Lordship proposed to address to Mr. O'Leary, with regard to the matter, but that your Lordship would first be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the instructions therein contained might properly be sent to Mr. O'Leary under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve, as altered, instructions not to press claim, but to support Italian Minister in doing so.

That, in our opinion, the instructions contained in the draft despatch which has been submitted to us may properly be sent to Mr. O'Leary.

We have made a slight alteration, and approve the draft.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Mr. O'Leary.

(No. . Commercial.)

Foreign Office, October , 1885.

Sir,

I have received your despatch No. 7, Commercial, of the 2nd August, respecting the case of Messrs. Cerruti and Co. and others. No application has yet been addressed to this Office by or on behalf of Messrs. Schloss, Brothers, and indeed it would be difficult to support any claim against the Colombian Government, based on the ground of any alleged property in or title to the goods which have been seized on the part of the sellers.

Those goods appear to have been actually sold and delivered to Messrs. Cerruti and Co. The property in them has, therefore, passed to the buyers, and the sellers, in the absence of any special contract to the contrary, have lost all title to the goods, and their only remedy for non-payment of the purchase-money is by action in the Courts of Law. If from any other cause Messrs. Cerruti and Co. had become insolvent there could be no question of "stoppage in transitu," the goods having been delivered, and the sellers could not have recovered the goods, but would have had to be content with the dividend under the bankruptcy. If the goods had been sent to Messrs Cerruti and Co., as agents for sale against advances, different considerations might arise.

The case of Messrs. Cerruti and Co. is one in which the Italian Government will probably continue to press for restitution; and I have to instruct you to give to the Italian Representative all the support you can by reason of the hardship inflicted on British firms by the seizure of Cerruti and Co.'s goods.

I am, &c.

---

Ecuador.

No. 31.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 27.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 27, 1885.

My Lord,

Closing of Ecuadorian ports by Decree of Government.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 21st instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship

---

* Mr. F. St. John, No. 4, Commercial, June 20; ditto, No. 5, Commercial, June 29; Mr. O Leary No. 7, Commercial, August 2, 1885.

1885

to transmit to us the accompanying despatch* from Her Majesty's Minister at Quito, reporting that the Commander of the Government troops in the coast provinces of Ecuador had published a Decree stating that, as almost all the inhabitants of the Province of Manabi took part in the rebellion organized by General Alfaro, and had fought against the national troops, all commerce by sea or land between the Provinces of Manabi and Esmeraldas with foreign countries and the rest of the Republic was forbidden until the chiefs of the late rebellion should have submitted to the Government authorities.

That the question how far a Government was legally justified in closing one or more of its ports in times of civil commotion to the commerce of all nations was recently submitted to us in the case of the "Overdale" at Mollendo, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take Mr. Lawrence's despatch into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether there was any objection to the announcement in the "Gazette" of the closing of the ports in question, under the circumstances reported by Mr. Lawrence.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No objection to notice in "Gazette" of the closing of the ports.

That we think there is no objection to the announcement in the "Gazette" of the closing of the ports in question, under the circumstances reported by Mr. Lawrence.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Egypt.

No. 32.

The Lord Chancellor to Earl Granville.—(Received January 7.)

Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 6, 1885.

Dear Lord Granville,

Caisse v. the officers of the Egyptian Government. Condemnation of the latter.

I HAVE been studying the text of the Law of Liquidation and the Khedivial Decrees establishing the Caisse, and of the Law establishing the International Tribunals, in order to see what grounds there may be for contesting the validity of the Judgment pronounced in the suit of the Caisse, against which the Egyptian Government, and the individuals condemned, have appealed.

It appears to me that the jurisdiction of the International Tribunal to entertain, or adjudicate upon, the suit, may be open to a substantial question, upon the grounds which I shall proceed to indicate, and which (unless, upon full consideration, they should appear to be of less weight than I am at present disposed to think) ought to be urged before the Court of Appeal, whether they were or were not urged before the Court of First Instance.

By the Judgment ("Egypt: Finance, No. 107," Inclosure in No. 1),† it appears, first, that the Tribunal declared its own competency; second, that the parties defendants were "the Egyptian Government" (by that designation); Nubar Pasha (who was exonerated); Moustapha Pasha Fehmi (I presume, the "Minister of Finance," though this does not expressly appear, but I infer it from the statement, that "the State" was "represented by its Finance Minister"); the four Mudirs of (I presume) the four provinces of which the revenues are specially assigned to the Caisse; the Director of Customs and "Le Mesurier and Ali Pasha" jointly—whose character is not described, but whom I presume to constitute the Railway Administration.

Of these, Moustapha Pasha Fehmi is condemned (together with "the Egyptian Government") in the whole amount, the others in the sums for which (as I presume) they were severally considered accountable.

---

* Mr. Lawrence, No. 1, January 7, 1885.

† See Confidential No. 5108, pp. 25, 26.

Competence of the International Tribunals:

How is the competency of the International Tribunals to pronounce such a Judgment against these parties established? It must, I suppose, be either (1) by the "Règlement d' Organisation Judiciaire pour les Procès Mixtes en Égypte" of 1874;* or (2) by the Decrees establishing the Caisse;† or (3) by the Law of Liquidation.‡ If none of these confer such a jurisdiction it seems to follow that it does not exist, and that the Tribunals were incompetent.

(1) under Règlement of 1874;

1. The "Règlement" of 1874, under Head (II) "Compétence," Articles 10 and 11, provides (Article 10) that "the Government, the Administrations, the Daïras of His Highness the Khedive, and the members of his family shall be subject to the jurisdiction of these Tribunals, 'dans le procès avec les étrangers;'" and (Article 11) that these Tribunals ("without having power to determine anything as to the property in the public Domains, or to interpret, or stop the execution of, any administrative measure") shall "have power to judge, in the cases provided for by the Code Civil, les atteintes portées à un droit acquis d'un étranger par un acte d'administration."

The 11th Article seems to me to be clearly inapplicable to this case. The applicability of the 10th Article depends on the question, whether this is a "procès avec les étrangers?" It seems to me that it is not such a "procès."

The Caisse, under the Khedivial Decree of 2nd May, 1876, is not a Body either itself "foreign" (in the proper sense of the word "étranger"), or representing, properly and exclusively, merely foreign interests. It is "a special (Egyptian) Treasury, charged with the regular service of the Public Debt;" its members are expressly declared to be appointed by the Khedive "in the quality of Egyptian officials." The Law of Liquidation makes no difference in this respect; and the Italian Government has lately excused itself on this very ground from all responsibility for the acts, as a member of the Caisse, of the Commissioner nominated by it, Signor Baravelli. It is true that (in Article 4 of the same Khedivial Decree, to which I shall presently have occasion to refer) the Caisse and its Directors are authorized to take certain proceedings "in the name and in the interests of the creditors," who are there described as "mostly of foreign nationality." But, even if the proceeding actually taken had been such, and only such, as is there contemplated and authorized, I should not have thought that it was a "procès avec les étrangers" within the meaning of Article 10 of the "Règlement."

(2) under Decrees establishing the Caisse;

2. The next question is, whether Article 4 (the only Article in point) of the Khedivial Decree of the 2nd May, 1876, authorizes this suit and Judgment? It appears to me that this Article contemplates and authorizes a suit before the International Tribunals, to enforce the provisions of the same Decree by which the Debt "confided to the said Treasury" (i.e., the Caisse) is guaranteed, not against individual subordinate officers of the Egyptian Government (coming or not coming within the several descriptions contained in the preceding Article 2), but "against the financial administration, represented by the Minister of Finance"—that is, against the Government of Egypt, to be sued for this purpose in the name of its Finance Minister. But there is nothing here (as it seems to me) to give the Tribunals jurisdiction over the individual filling the office of Finance Minister in his personal as distinguished from his official capacity, or to make him personally liable to be condemned to pay any sum which might be claimed in any such suit.

(3) under Law of Liquidation.

3. The 38th Article of the Law of Liquidation is, in substance, a reproduction of the 4th Article of the Decree of 1876, and (so far as there is any difference in its terms) it appears to me to confirm the view which I have suggested.

Tribunals not competent, except as against Egyptian Government, against which they cannot execute their Judgment.

The conclusion appears to be, that these Tribunals were not competent to entertain the suit of the Caisse, except as against the Egyptian Government, officially represented by the Minister of Finance. And as against the Egyptian Government so represented they do not appear to have any power to execute their Judgment.

Against this view it may be urged that Article 2 of the Decree of 1876 and Article 31 of the Law of Liquidation provide that (in the terms of the latter Article) "the accountable heads of these provinces and administrations, whose revenues are appropriated to the service of the Privileged Debt and of the Unified Debt, shall pay these revenues direct to the Caisse of the Debt, and shall only be relieved by the discharge of the Commissioners of the Debt." But this does not appear to me to be enough to give the International Tribunals jurisdiction over the persons so accountable (of whom, it is to be observed, the Finance Minister is not one) unless it is otherwise given them.

As these views (if well founded) may be important, not merely for the purpose of argument before the Appellate Court, but (if necessary) for the ulterior purpose of protest and resistance as against a usurped and incompetent jurisdiction, I would

---

* See Confidential No. 2548, p. 194.

† Confidential No. 3539, p. 59.

‡ Parliamentary No. 2322.

1885

suggest that the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown should immediately be taken upon them.

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

No. 33.

The Lord Chancellor to Earl Granville.—(Received January 9.)

My dear Lord Granville,
Blackmoor, Petersfield, January 8, 1885.

Caisse v. officers of the Egyptian Government.

I WRITE this as a sort of P.S. to my Memorandum of the 6th January on the question of the competence of the Mixed Tribunals in the action of the Caisse against the officers of the Egyptian Government.

I had not then seen the Confidential papers, "Egypt: Finance, No. 17," s. No. 108, which only reached me this morning.

Points in his Memorandum overruled, but still thinks them good.

The inclosure in No. 1 of that section gives the full reserved Judgment of the Tribunal on the question of competence. I am glad to see that my points were taken, and, though they were overruled, I continue to think them good.

Should consult Law Officers.

The attention of the Law Officers will of course be called to this "Jugement in extenso."

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

No. 34.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 15.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, January 14, 1885.

Caisse v. the officers of the Egyptian Government. Observations of Lord Chancellor.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 8th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the recent Judgment of the International Tribunals in Egypt, in the suit of the Caisse de la Dette Publique, and to submit to us the following observations, which had been communicated to your Lordship by the Lord Chancellor as to the grounds which might exist for contesting the validity of that Judgment, against which the Egyptian Government and the individuals concerned have appealed.

That the jurisdiction of the International Tribunals to entertain or adjudicate upon the suit might be open to a substantial question upon the grounds hereafter indicated, and which might be urged before the Court of Appeal, whether they were or were not urged before the Court of First Instance.

That by the Judgment (A) it appeared, first, that the Tribunal declared its own competency; secondly, that the parties defendants were the Egyptian Government (by that designation); Nubar Pasha (who was exonerated); Moustapha Pasha Fehmy (presumably the Minister of Finance, though that did not expressly appear, but it might be inferred from the statement that the State was represented by its Finance Minister); the four Mudirs of (presumably) the four provinces of which the revenues were specially assigned to the Caisse; the Director of Customs and Le Mesurier and Ali Pasha jointly—whose character was not described, but who constituted the Railway Administration.

That of those Moustapha Pasha Fehmy is condemned (together with the Egyptian Government) in the whole amount; the others in the sums for which they were severally considered accountable.

Question as to competence of the International Tribunals:

That the question arose, how the competency of the International Tribunals to pronounce such a Judgment against those parties was to be established? That it must be either (1) by the "Règlement d'Organisation Judiciaire pour les Procès Mixtes en Égypte" of 1874 (B), or (2) by the Decrees establishing the Caisse (C), or (3) by the Law of Liquidation (D). That if none of those conferred such a jurisdiction it seemed to follow that it did not exist, and that the Tribunals were incompetent.

under Règlement of 1874;

(1.) The "Règlement" of 1874, under Head (II) "Compétence," Articles 10 and 11, provided (Article 10) that "the Government, the Administrations, the Daïras of His Highness the Khedive, and the members of his family, shall be subject to the jurisdiction of these Tribunals 'dans les procès avec les étrangers;'" and (Article 11) that those Tribunals (without having power to determine anything as to the property in the public Domains, or to interpret or stop the execution of any administrative measure) should have power to judge in the cases provided for by the Code Civil, "les atteintes portées à un droit acquis d'un étranger, par un acte d'administration."

That the 11th Article seemed to be clearly inapplicable to that case. The applicability of the 10th Article depended on the question whether there was a "procès avec les étrangers?" That it seemed that it was not such a "procès."

That the Caisse, under the Khedivial Decree of the 2nd May, 1876, was not a Body either itself "foreign" (in the proper sense of the word "étranger"), or representing, properly and exclusively, merely foreign interests. That it was "a special (Egyptian) Treasury, charged with the regular service of the Public Debt; its members were expressly declared to be appointed by the Khedive in the quality of Egyptian officials." That the Law of Liquidation made no difference in that respect; and the Italian Government had lately excused itself on that very ground from all responsibility for the acts, as a member of the Caisse, of the Commissioner nominated by it, Signor Baravelli.

That it was true that (in Article 4 of the same Khedivial Decree to which reference would be made hereafter)—

1. The Caisse and its Directors were authorized to take certain proceedings in the name and in the interests of the creditors, who were there described as mostly of foreign nationality.

But that, even if the proceeding actually taken had been such, and only such, as is there contemplated and authorized, it was doubtful whether it was a "procès avec les étrangers" within the meaning of Article 10 of the "Règlement."

under Khedivial Decree;

2. That the next question was, whether Article 4 (the only Article in point) of the Khedivial Decree of the 2nd May, 1876, authorized that suit and Judgment?

That that Article seemed to contemplate and authorize a suit before the International Tribunals to enforce the provisions of the same Decree by which the Debt confided to the said Treasury (i.e., the Caisse) was guaranteed, not against individual subordinate officers of the Egyptian Government (coming or not coming within the several descriptions contained in the preceding Article 2), but against the financial administration, represented by the Minister of Finance—that is, against the Government of Egypt, to be sued for that purpose in the name of its Finance Minister.

But that there seemed to be nothing there to give the Tribunals jurisdiction over the individual filling that office in his personal as distinguished from his official capacity, or to make him personally liable to be condemned to pay any sum which might be claimed in any such suit.

under the Law of Liquidation.

3. That the 38th Article of the Law of Liquidation was, in substance, a reproduction of the 4th Article of the Decree of 1876, and so far as there was any difference in its terms it appeared to confirm the view above suggested.

Not competent, except against Egyptian Government.

That the conclusion appeared to be that those Tribunals were not competent to entertain the suit of the Caisse, except as against the Egyptian Government, officially represented by the Minister of Finance. And that, as against the Egyption Government so represented, they did not appear to have any power to execute their Judgment.

That against that view it might be urged that Article 2 of the Decree of 1876 and Article 31 of the Law of Liquidation provide that (in the terms of the latter Article) the accountable heads of those provinces and administrations whose revenues were appropriated to the service of the Privileged Debt and of the Unified Debt should pay those revenues direct to the Caisse of the Debt, and should only be relieved by the discharge of the Commissioners of the Debt. But that this did not appear to be enough to give the International Tribunals jurisdiction over the persons so accountable (of whom, it was to be observed, the Finance Minister is not one) unless it is otherwise given them.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the advisability of these views being advanced not only in argument before the Appellate Court, but, if necessary, for the ulterior purpose of protest and resistance as against an usurped and incompetent jurisdiction.

That Mr. Currie was to include amongst the papers for our consideration a copy of the Act just received from Cairo, in which the Egyptian Government gave notice of appeal against the Judgment delivered by the Court of First Instance at Cairo.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Above views should be brought before Appellate Court.

That we think it advisable that the views suggested by the Lord Chancellor should be advanced in argument before the Appellate Court.

We gather that they were not put forward in the Court of First Instance in the precise manner now suggested, for no reference is made in the Judgment, which deals at length with the arguments used, to that which seems to lie at the very root of the

1885

Agree that Caisse cannot be considered a foreigner.

question, viz., that the jurisdiction of the Mixed Tribunals to determine causes instituted against officials of the Government exists only where the person instituting such process is a foreigner. And we agree with the Lord Chancellor in thinking that the Caisse cannot be said to be a foreigner, or foreign subject, seeing that it is the creature of an Egyptian Decree constituting as a Caisse of the Public Debt certain persons who, though "indicated" by foreign Governments as "fit to fill the post," were, nevertheless, "appointed" by the Khedive as "Egyptian officials."

Object of powers granted by Law of Liquidation.

If this view be correct, it answers a great part of the reasoning of the Judgment of the Court of First Instance. The argument that acts done by Egyptian officials and the Egyptian Government are primâ facie within the competence of the Tribunal, and that the special provisions of Article 38 of the Law of Liquidation do not derogate from this general jurisdiction, are all beside the point, if the suit, not being by a foreigner, was one which the Tribunal was, primâ facie, not competent to entertain. And the incompetence of the Tribunals to entertain otherwise an action by the Caisse seems to explain the introduction of Article 38, giving the Caisse power to bring an action before the Mixed Tribunals against the Government, represented by the Minister of Finance.

We observe that the objection to the jurisdiction, resting on the fact that the Caisse cannot be regarded as a foreigner, is not specifically taken in the Notice of Appeal, but it is probably covered by the first objection.

Difficulty created by need for discharge from Commissioners of Public Debt.

We may add that the provision, that the heads of the provinces and administrations whose revenues are appropriated to the service of the Debt shall only be relieved from payment by a discharge from the Commissioners of the Debt, certainly creates considerable difficulty.

It is clearly inserted for the purpose of securing the arrangement made by the Decree constituting the Caisse. And if it can in no way be enforced by the Caisse, it is difficult to see what effect would be given to it. At the same time, if no power existed in the Caisse to sue before the Tribunals except that created by the Decree and Law of Liquidation, we do not see that, in the face of the express provisions of Article 38, any other power could be inferred.

Resistance in event adverse decision of Court of Appeal.

Want to see reasons for Judgment before advising as to.

As regards the question, whether these views should be the foundation of resistance as against an usurped and incompetent jurisdiction in case the Court of Appeal should affirm the Judgment against the individuals sued other than that against the Minister of Finance in his official capacity, we should desire to see the reasons on which the Judgment is founded before definitely advising such a course.

We feel that possibly there may be some arguments in support of the jurisdiction, based on matters not within our knowledge.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers inclosed in Foreign Office Letter of January 8, 1885.

(A.) Judgment of the Court of First Instance. (In Sir E. Baring's No. 1137, December 14, 1884. See Confidential No. 5061, p. 230, and No. 5108, p. 25.)
(B.) Règlement d'Organisation Judiciaire pour les Procès Mixtes en Égypte, 1874. (See Sir H. Elliot's No. 69 of March 4, 1873, Confidential No. 2548, p. 194).
(C.) Decree of May 2, 1876, establishing the Caisse. (Confidential No. 3539, p. 59).
(D.) Law of Liquidation. (In Sir E. Malet's despatch of July 23, 1880: "Egypt No. 4 (1880)," Parliamentary, No. 2322).
(E.) Appeal against the Judgment. (In Sir E. Baring's No. 1196 of December 31, 1884, Confidential No. 5108, p. 29.)

---

No. 35.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 14.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 14, 1885.

Egyptian tribute to Sultan as Suzerain.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, transmitting to us the papers* relating to the question whether the tribute paid by the Khedive of Egypt to the Sultan as Suzerain is a first charge upon Egyptian revenues, and whether His Highness was bound to continue to pay it in its entirety, even if the territory which he holds under the Sultan was diminished in extent, owing to circumstances over which he had no control.

Is Khedive liable for the whole in spite of diminution of territory?

That the question of the continued liability of the Khedive had been raised by Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo in his No. 1164 of the 22nd December, with reference to the proposed abandonment by the Egyptian Government of its jurisdiction over certain territories on the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, which were ceded to His Highness' predecessor under Firmans, or Hatts, from the Sultan.

That our attention was called to the Firman of May 1865, under which the Khedive held the ports of Massowah and Suakin on the Red Sea, the tribute being fixed at 33,250*l.*, and to the Imperial Hatt quoted by Sir E. Baring, which showed that the cession to His Highness of the Government of Zeyla, on the Gulf of Aden, entailed an annual payment of £ T. 15,000.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to explain that the Khedive, having found that the revenues of Egypt were insufficient to meet the expenses of administering those territories, had requested the Sultan to resume direct control over them, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inquire, in the first place, whether, in our opinion, His Highness would be justified in claiming a reduction of the tribute by the amount paid for the territories in question.

Is tribute a first charge on Egyptian revenue?

That, secondly, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to observe that a question had been raised as to whether the Khedive, who held Egypt in consideration of the payment of a large tribute to the Sultan, was bound to treat that tribute as a first charge on Egyptian revenues, regardless of the claims of the bondholders under the Law of Liquidation, to the interest on the Egyptian Debt. That it had been suggested that the tribute might properly be classed as an administrative charge on a footing analogous to the Civil List in this country, which comes after the National Debt.

That a collection of the Firmans relating to Egypt was inclosed, and that our attention was called to certain passages marked therein.

That we were also referred to the opinion of the Earl of Northbrook as to the danger of interfering with that charge, expressed at the end of his despatch of the 5th October, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to point out that the tribute had always been dealt with by the Sultan as his property, and was assigned by His Majesty as a security to the Turkish bondholders before the passing of the Law of Liquidation.

That that measure could only be looked upon as a private transaction between the Khedive and his creditors, irrespective of the conditions under which he held Egypt.

That our opinion was requested upon the two questions submitted in that letter, together with any general observations we might have to offer thereupon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Liability for whole tribute must be got rid of by agreement with Sultan.

That, the territories having been ceded to the Khedive upon the terms of his paying a certain tribute to the Sultan, we are of opinion that that arrangement can only be got rid of, so far as the liability to the Sultan is concerned, by a new agreement with him, except it may be in the case of the territories being lost to Egypt by conquest.

If the Sultan should consent to resume direct control over them, it would be a matter of agreement on what terms he did so, and certainly, in such case, it would be reasonable that the tribute should cease.

The tribute is a first charge on the Egyptian revenue.

As to the second question submitted to us, we are clearly of opinion that the payment of the tribute is a first charge on the revenues of Egypt. Perhaps, strictly speaking, it ought to be put even higher than that, for the payment is one of the terms upon which the Khedive has acquired such sovereign rights as he now possesses.

The Sultan only gave up the right to exercise sovereign rights in relation to the direct receipt of the revenue on the condition of receiving this payment, and he might, with great force, insist that he was entitled to resume his sovereign power in this respect, if default were made in payment of the tribute.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* A. Sir. E. Baring, No. 1164, December 22, 1884, Confidential No. 5056, p. 262.
B. Inclosure in above.
C. "Egypt No. 4 (1880)," Parliamentary No. 2322.
D. Firmans, &c., 1841-1879, Confidential No. 4747.
E. Lord Northbrook, October 5, 1884, Confidential No. 5061, p. 112.

1885

No. 36.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 10, 1885.

Xuereff v. Xuereff. Jurisdiction of Consular Courts over real property of European dying intestate.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the question of the jurisdiction of Consular Courts in Egypt over the succession to the real property of Europeans in Egypt dying intestate. That in the despatch from Mr. Fawcett, Her Majesty's Consul-General, and the Judge of the British Consular Court at Constantinople (A), the question was raised in the case of one Giuseppe Xuereff, a Maltese, who died at Malta intestate, leaving real and personal property in Egypt. That the facts were stated in that despatch, as also in the letter of M. Mattei to the Foreign Office of the 11th December last (G), from which it appeared that the widow of Xuereff claimed a share of the real estate from her stepsons, who were in possession of the land. That Mr. Cookson, the Judge of the British Consular Court at Alexandria, who was in England when Mr. Fawcett's despatch was received, was consulted on the subject, and that his opinion would be found in his note of the 26th September (B). That his opinion was to the effect that the Consular Courts in Egypt have not the power to deal with the succession to the immovable property of foreigners in Egypt in cases of intestacy, and that the British Consular Court at Alexandria had consequently no jurisdiction to entertain the claim of the widow of the intestate against his stepsons for a share of the realty.

Claim of widow to share of real estate of G. Xuereff.

That, on the receipt of that opinion, Sir E. Baring, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Egypt, was instructed (D) to obtain the opinion of the Egyptian Government as to what Tribunal in Egypt was competent to deal with the succession to landed property there of a foreigner dying intestate, and that that Government, in reply, communicated to Sir E. Baring the opinion of the legal adviser of the Egyptian Foreign Office, M. Pietri (Inclosure 2, E), to the effect that the Consular Tribunals in Egypt were competent to take cognizance of questions of inheritance even in cases including landed property left by a foreigner dying intestate, unless foreign law has expressly taken away the competency of the Consular Tribunal and transferred it to another.

That as that opinion differed from that given by Mr. Cookson, it was submitted to him for his observations, and that his Report, in which he adhered to his former opinion, would be found in Sir E. Baring's despatch (F).

That Sir J. Pauncefote inclosed a Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet on the question (C), in addition to the various documents referred to in the correspondence; and that he was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question whether the British Consular Court at Alexandria was competent to entertain the claim of Mme. Xuereff.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Consular Court not competent to entertain her claim.

That, in our opinion, the British Consular Court at Alexandria is not competent to entertain the claim of Mme. Xuereff.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers.

(A.) Mr. Fawcett, No. 61, Judicial, September 8, 1884.
(B.) Mr. Cookson, September 26, 1884.
(C.) Sir E. Hertslet's Memorandum, October 9, 1884.
(D.) To Sir E. Baring, No. 52, Consular, October 25, 1884.
(E.) Sir E. Baring, No. 80, Consular, December 22, 1884.
(F.) Sir E. Baring, No. 9, Consular, January 25, 1885.
(G.) M. Mattei, December 11, 1884.
(H.) Levant Order in Council (Confidential No. 2354).
(I.) Turkish Real Property Law and Protocol (Treaty No. 410).
(J.) Egyptian Codes (Mixed Tribunals), (12mo. 1053).
(K.) Sultan's Firmans of 1873 and 1879 (Confidential No. 4747).
(L.) Law Officers' Report (with reference as to effect of Firmans) of November 21, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 37).

No. 37.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 12, 1885.

Registration of British officers of the Army of Occupation and in Egyptian service, their families, &c.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul at Cairo,* in which a question was raised as to the application of section 4, paragraphs 16–19, of the Ottoman Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873,† to British officers in Egypt, forming part of the Army of Occupation or serving in the Egyptian army, and to their wives, children, and English servants.

That we were referred to the opinion of Mr. Cookson, Judge of Her Majesty's Consular Court at Alexandria, on the particular points raised by Mr. Borg; and that a copy of the Order in Council was transmitted to us by Sir J. Pauncefote.

That our opinion was requested as to whether we concurred in the opinion of Mr. Cookson.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Concur in Mr. Cookson's opinion, but no objection to non-registration of such officers, &c.

That we concur in the opinion of Mr. Cookson.

At the same time, we think that the case of an English officer, by the permission of his Government in the Egyptian service, though within the letter, is perhaps hardly within the spirit of the Ottoman Order in Council. And if it has not been the practice to require such persons to register themselves, and it should be thought expedient to continue this practice, we do not see any serious objection to it.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Consul Cookson to Vice-Consul Borg.

Sir, Alexandria, January 17, 1884.

IN reply to the questions in your despatch of the 10th instant as to the registration of officers in the service of the British Government, and their families, I am of opinion—

1. That officers and men in Her Majesty's Army of Occupation are not bound to register themselves, and that their wives and children are in the same position.

2. That the servants of officers of the Army of Occupation, being British subjects, and not forming part of the Army of Occupation, are bound to register themselves.

3. That British officers in the service of His Highness the Khedive, though still holding commissions in Her Majesty's army or navy, are bound to register themselves as British residents in Egypt.

I am, &c.

(Signed) C. A. COOKSON.

---

No. 38.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received April 10.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 10, 1885.

Arrest of Zebehr Pasha and his party, and their detention at Gibraltar.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 6th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the inclosed letter from the Colonial Office,‡ relating to the arrest of Zebehr Pasha and his party, and their detention at Gibraltar.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the terms of the Ordinance issued, in order to legalize such detention, by the Governor of Gibraltar, might properly be approved, provided that the words "Ottoman subjects within the jurisdiction of the Khedive of Egypt," be substituted wherever the words "Egyptian subjects" at present occur.

---

* Mr. Borg, No. 4, February 17, 1885.

† Confidential No. 2354.

‡ April 4, 1885.

1885

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve Ordinance with certain exceptions.

That we think that the terms of the Ordinance are sufficiently correct in form, and, therefore, may be approved.

We should have suggested some verbal alterations, but as we understand that the Ordinance is already published, we do not consider them so vital as to justify the cancellation of the present and publication of a second Ordinance.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 39.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 15, 1885.

Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul-General at Cairo,* forwarding a letter addressed to him by Nubar Pasha, stating that, in the opinion of the Government of the Khedive, the publication of the "Bosphore Égyptien" should, in the present state of public opinion, no longer be allowed.

That Nubar Pasha inclosed a statement showing the occasions on which such action had been taken by the Egyptian Government, and sent copy of an arbitral sentence delivered in 1871 in the case of a French newspaper, which supported his contention that the Government had a right to suppress any newspaper.

That Nubar Pasha further stated that, as the action of the Egyptian Government might give rise to remonstrance on the part of the French Government, he would be glad to know beforehand whether he might count on the diplomatic support of Her Majesty's Government.

That the substance of that despatch was received at the Foreign Office on the 29th ultimo, by telegraph, and that, on the 1st instant, a telegram was sent to Sir E. Baring,† stating that, as the suppression of the paper appeared to be subject to a legal appeal, Her Majesty's Government saw no cause for interfering adversely to stop or impede the action of the Egyptian Government.

That a copy of a telegram from Sir E. Baring‡ was inclosed, stating that the "Bosphore Égyptien" was suppressed on the 8th instant, and that the French Consul-General had opposed the measure on the ground that the Egyptian Government had not legal power to suppress.

French demand for cancellation of Decree.

That a subsequent telegram from Sir E. Baring stated that the Acting French Consul had informed Nubar Pasha that he was instructed to ask that the Decree should be cancelled, and that the officials who had taken part in the suppression should be dismissed.

That Nubar Pasha declined to cancel the Decree, on the ground that he considered that the action taken was perfectly legal.

That he also declined to dismiss the officials, who, he explained, had acted under his orders.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the precedents relied on by Nubar Pasha were valid, and such as legally to justify Her Majesty's Government in giving their diplomatic support to the Egyptian Government in their refusal to comply with the demands of the French Government.

We are also honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's further letter of the 14th instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 13th instant, he was to transmit further papers§ relative to the suppression of the French newspaper the "Bosphore Égyptien" by the Egyptian Government.

That in his despatch No. 297 of the 2nd April, 1885, Sir E. Baring inclosed copy of a Judgment recently given by the Mixed Court of First Instance at Alexandria, in the case of the newspaper "El Ahram," published by a French subject, which was lately suspended by the Egyptian Government. That the Court fully admitted the right of the Government to execute its own Press Law, and rejected the claim for damages by reason of the suppression of the paper.

Case of the suspension of the "El Ahram" and closing of the printing-office.

That, on the other hand, damages were given for the suppression of the printing establishment, considered as a commercial undertaking, independently of its work connected with the printing of the "El Ahram" newspaper.

That copy of the Press Law, referred to in the Judgment, was inclosed.

That in his telegram of that day's date Sir E. Baring forwarded the text of the Decree authorizing the suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien."

That our attention was also called to Article LXX of the French Capitulations of 1740 (Hertslet, Treaties on Trade, Turkey, p. 130), which provided that officers of justice shall not, without necessity, enter a house inhabited by a Frenchman, and that when the case should necessitate an entrance the Ambassador or Consul shall be informed thereof, and the interested parties shall proceed to the place in question with the person who shall have been charged (appointed) by them, and if any one infringes this disposition he shall be punished.

Protocols signed by France and England with Turkey.

That in the Protocol signed by the Representatives of France and Turkey on the 9th June, 1868 (State Papers, vol. lix, p. 389), it was stipulated that "the dwelling of every person inhabiting the Ottoman territory being inviolable, and no one being entitled to enter it without the consent of its master, unless in virtue of orders issued by the competent authority, and with the assistance of the magistrate or functionary invested with the necessary powers, the dwelling of a foreign subject is inviolable by the same right, in conformity with the Treaties; and the officers of police cannot enter therein without the assistance of the Consul of the country to which the foreigner belongs or of his Delegate."

That a similar Protocol was signed on the 28th July, 1868, between Great Britain and Turkey, of which a copy was inclosed.

That we were requested to take those papers into our consideration, together with those previously forwarded to us.

Further cases of suspension of papers and seizure of books in Turkey.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Mr. Currie on the above subject, and transmitting to us the Reports of our predecessors* relating to the suspension of the "Levant Herald" at Constantinople in 1867 and 1872, and the refusal by Her Majesty's Government to interfere on the editor's behalf; also to the suppression of the "Levant Times" and the "Progrès d'Orient" at Constantinople in 1874 and 1875.

That Mr. Currie also transmitted a Parliamentary Paper† on the confiscation at the Smyrna Custom-house of certain books by M. Stephanos Xenos, which were considered offensive by the Turkish Government, a matter also in which Her Majesty's Government also declined to interfere.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Government appears to have power to suppress.

That, upon the imperfect information before us we are only able to express to your Lordship the opinion that there appears to be a legal power in the Egyptian Government to suppress, in the interest of public order, any newspaper published within the jurisdiction of the Khedive, whether belonging to a native or a foreign resident.

In this latter case, however, it appears that by virtue of the Protocol of the 9th June, 1868, entrance into the dwelling of a French resident cannot, even when orders have been issued by a competent authority, "be made without the assistance of the Consul of the country to which the foreigner belongs."

Effect of the Protocols.

But it will be observed, by reference to the Protocols, both French and English, that this assistance is only required when the entrance is on the actual house of residence of the foreign subject.

In the case of the residence, the Protocols require that upon notice to the Consul, he shall, within a limited time, render the assistance required.

Further information necessary.

But we are not in a position to apply such principles and rules to the circumstances of the present case, inasmuch as we are not informed what course was pursued in relation to or by the French Consul on the occasion in question, or what was the nature of the premises entered, and the action taken in order to

---

* Sir E. Baring, No. 286, March 29, 1885.

† To Sir E. Baring, No. 94, Telegraphic, April 1, 1885, Confidential No. 5148, p. 1.

‡ Sir E. Baring, No. 195, April 9, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 17.

§ Sir E. Baring, No. 297, April 2, Confidential No. 5148, p. 2; ditto, No. 209, Telegraphic, April 14, 1885, Confidential No. 5148, p. 37; Anglo-Turkish Protocol, July 28, 1868 (Treaty No. 510); Egyptian Press Law of November 26, 1881, Parliamentary No. 2552.

* Queen's Advocate, February 14, ditto, March 23, ditto, May 7, 1867 (in Confidential No. 1745); Law Officers, July 25, ditto, August 9, 1872 (in Confidential No. 4098); ditto, October 12, 1874 (in Confidential No. 4331); ditto, March 8, 1875 (in Confidential No. 4370).

† Parliamentary Paper, Stephanos Xenos, August 12, 1871, No. 1403.

1885

carry the decree of suppression into effect, and whether the printing establishment has been interfered with.

And before we express a definite opinion we ought to be supplied with specific information as to the nature of the French complaint, i.e., whether it is founded upon the fact of the suppression having taken place at all, or whether on the ground of informality with respect to the French Consul or otherwise.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 40.

Memorandum by the Law Officers respecting the "Bosphore Égyptien."

Right of Government to suppress a newspaper.

IT seems clear that the Egyptian Government has the right to suppress a newspaper the publication of which tends to create disorder. Such being the right in respect of the natives of the country, it equally exists in relation to foreigners, of course including French subjects.

Proper procedure in such cases.

The procedure in order to carry such suppression into effect (in cases where it is necessary to enter a dwelling-house) is regulated and controlled by the Protocol, under which, if the domicile, a dwelling-house of a Frenchman, be entered, notice of the intended entrance should be given to the French Consul.

Good cause for suppression in this case.

In the present case we think there can be no doubt that the Egyptian Government had good cause for, and was well within its right, in suppressing the "Bosphore Égyptien." Such would have been the case if the newspaper had been published by an Egyptian subject, and in relation to the Press Laws a Frenchman seems to be in no way exempt from their operation, they being equally applied. If, in the execution of these Laws, a wrong be done to a Frenchman, his remedy is to be sought from the International Tribunals, which have full authority to afford redress.

Remedy to be sought from International Tribunals.

Government exceeded their powers in closing the printing-office.

So far as we can gather from the facts before us, the suppression of the newspaper was justified for the reasons we have referred to, and therefore, so far as the substance of the complaint extends, the Egyptian Government has a good answer to make. But the right to suppress the newspaper gives no excuse for doing more than taking possession of the paper itself and preventing its publication.

It seems, however, that the Police Agent, Mr. Fenwick, has entered the printing-office belonging to Serrière, caused the printers to leave the office, and closed its doors so as to prevent the business of the printer being there carried on. That business does not appear, as far as we can judge, to have reference only to the printing of the "Bosphore Égyptien." It seems likely to be of a more general character. But whether such be the case or not, we think that there has been an excess of interference with Serrière's property and his right of action, in closing the printing-office and preventing any business being there carried on.

The distinction we have thus drawn between the suppression of a newspaper and the closing of premises upon which the business of printing was carried on was fully recognized in a case lately determined by the International Tribunal at Alexandria, in which it was held that a French subject had no cause of complaint on account of the suppression of the newspaper belonging to him, but that he was entitled to recover substantial damages in respect of the closing of his printing business, an act held not to be necessary for, or incidental to, the suppression of the newspaper.

April 18, 1885.

---

No. 41.

Opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown with regard to the Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien."

April 22, 1885.

Suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien," and forcible closing of the printing-office.

WE have now obtained possession of much fuller information than when we wrote the former Memorandum for Lord Granville's assistance.

It seems now clear that the Egyptian Government, in issuing the Decree of the 14th April, and in acting under it, assumed that they were putting in force the Press Law of 1881.

Provisions of the Press Law of 1881 affecting the case.

It becomes necessary, therefore, in the first instance, to determine what are the powers conferred by that Law. By Article 1 no person can carry on the business of a printer in Egypt without the authorization of the Minister of the Interior, and such authorization can always be withdrawn "s'il y a lieu."

Article 2 provides that clandestine printing establishments shall be closed, and the owners and occupiers punished with a penalty of 5,000–15,000 piastres and the confiscation of the material; and every printing establishment not authorized is to be deemed to be "clandestine."

Under Article 13 the Egyptian Government has the power, in the interests of good morals, religion, or order, to suppress or suspend any newspaper by Decree of the Minister of the Interior after two warnings, or without warning by virtue of a decision of the Council of Ministers.

Article 16 provides that if the publication of a newspaper ordered to be suppressed continues under the same or a disguised title, the authors, managers, or printers shall be punished with a money-penalty for each number published in contravention of such order, without prejudice as against the printer to the withdrawal of his authorization, and the closing of the printing establishment.

By Article 20 seizures and confiscations are to be effected by administrative process, and in the same Article it is provided "that the penalty, the suppression, and suspension in the cases dealt with by the present Law shall be inflicted, without appeal, by our Minister of the Interior, independently of all judicial action."

Such appear to be the portions of the Press Law affecting the present case. But we postpone the consideration of the question whether this Law, as a whole or in part, affects French subjects. We proceed to consider what have been the acts and proceedings of the Egyptian Government in connection with, and incidental to, the suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien."

Action of the Egyptian Government in connection with the suppression.

It appears that on the 29th February, 1884, an Order was issued by which the "Bosphore Égyptien" was suppressed; but no step was taken to carry such Order into effect until the events of the 10th April, 1885. At that date the newspaper was printed by a French subject—one Serrière—who appears to have carried on a general printing business at a distance from the office where the "Bosphore Égyptien" was edited.

We can find no trace of any withdrawal from Serrière of the authorization which he had received to act as a printer.

On the 8th April the Order under which the seizure took place was published. It recites the former Order of Suppression (29th February, 1884), that, notwithstanding that Order, the publication of the journal had continued, and that, in certain numbers, most objectionable articles had been published; that, without authorization, the newspaper had been published in Arabic; and then orders that, by virtue of the Press Law of the 26th November, 1881, the Governor of Cairo is charged to proceed to the closing of the printing establishment of the "Bosphore Égyptien," in order to prevent the printing of the newspaper.

In pursuance of this Decree, and in order to carry it into effect, the Egyptian police proceeded to enter, by force, upon the premises on which Serrière carried on his printing business. They expelled his employés, and then closed and sealed the doors and put a guard upon them, a condition of things which has been substantially maintained until the present time.

Egyptian action not strictly legal;

Still, considering the bare question whether the terms of the Press Law justified the proceedings, if taken in respect to an Egyptian subject, we are of opinion that the course pursued was not strictly legal.

The entry upon and closing of the printing premises must be justified, if justification can be found, under Article 16 of the Press Law, above set out; but that Article appears to us to impose, for the continued publication of a journal after suppression, a money penalty; and in the case of the printer the withdrawal of the authorization and the closing of the printing establishment are reserved, as not being interfered with by the imposition of the money penalty. The authorization and closing referred to in this Article 16 must have reference to the authorization and power of closing mentioned in Articles 1 and 2. It will be observed that the closing of the establishment mentioned in Article 2 can only take place after the authorization has been withdrawn.

As we have above stated, the authorization which had been granted to Serrière does not appear to have been withdrawn; and the Decree itself does not allege in its recitals that he was carrying on his printing business without authorization, and therefore the condition precedent to the right to enter upon and close the printing establishment appears to be wanting.

1885

owing to the absence of the withdrawal of the printer's authorization.

The result, therefore, we have arrived at is, that in the absence of the withdrawal of Serrière's authorization, there was no legal power in the Egyptian Government to enter upon and close the printing establishment, even if it had belonged to an Egyptian subject.

Question as to the applicability of the Press Law of 1881 to French subjects.

But the grave question now arises whether the Press Law of 1881 applies wholly or in part to French subjects.

The Capitulations which confer rights upon foreigners are in many respects based upon the view that the Ottoman Tribunals are not sufficiently trustworthy to administer justice to foreigners, and therefore the result appears to be arrived at that if it be sought to punish subjects of the nations enjoying the benefit of the Capitulations, either in respect of their person or property, the necessary trial should be held before, and sentence imposed by, a foreign and not a native Tribunal.

On the other hand, apart from this consideration of inflicting punishment for offences, the Egyptian Government retains to itself the right to regulate and control the manner in which its internal affairs shall be conducted, and if its laws be equally applicable to natives and foreigners, foreign subjects who seek the protection of the Egyptian laws by residing in Egypt become subjected to them.

It, therefore, has to be determined whether the penalties and suppression of the Press Law can, in accordance with Article 20, be imposed and carried into effect by means of an administrative act as would be the case if the offender were an Egyptian subject, or whether the proceedings are so much of a punitive character as to entitle the French subject to claim that his liability to them should be imposed by a Judical Tribunal of foreign composition.

It is material to this consideration (and also to the diplomatic view of the case) to remember that the French Government have protested that French subjects were not bound by the Press Law of 1881 in its entirety. And this view appears to a certain extent not to be unreasonable, because the present English Law Officers, on the 1st February, 1882, expressed the opinion which appears to have been in accordance with the views of the Foreign Office, that whilst the portion of the Press Law, which regulated the terms upon which newspapers might be published, was well enacted by the Egyptian Government, yet that some of the Articles (amongst others Article 20) were objectionable in their character, and ought to be modified. But applying the French protest against the Press Law to Article 20 only, which raises the question whether that Article is of a penal character or only one of regulation, it is a most important fact, when determining that question, to remember that in 1880, when the Turkish Government called upon the British Consul at Constantinople to be present when the Turkish officials entered upon the domicile of the editor of the "Levant Herald," whose printing press had been ordered to be closed "par voie administrative," the English Government refused to accede to such request, upon the ground that there had been no previous trial and Judgment in accordance with the Capitulations.

There is no doubt that if the view be adopted that the Egyptian Government cannot by a mere administrative act close the printing establishment of a foreigner, it may cause considerable embarrassment and difficulty to that Government. On the other hand, it must be borne in mind that if the Turkish or Egyptian Government could in any part of the Ottoman dominions by administrative acts affect the persons or property of foreigners to the extent even of closing their premises against them, the protection intended to be secured by the Capitulations might be most seriously interfered with.

Strong arguments in favour of French view.

It appears to us therefore that a question of much gravity is raised by the contention in this respect of the French Government, which can be supported by strong arguments, and certainly cannot be said to be groundless.

It must also be remembered that the protest now made against the action of the Egyptian Government is not made in consequence of these very acts. The protest against the applicability of the Press Law to French subjects was made some time ago, and has been persisted in ever since.

Case as to closing of Serrière's office one for consideration of Her Majesty's Government.

The proceedings immediately preceding and in relation to the entry and closing of Serrière's establishment have still to be dealt with. Notice appears to have been given to the French Consul of the intention to enter upon the premises, and this notice was no doubt intended as a compliance with the Article of the Capitulations which requires such notice to be given before the premises of a Frenchman are entered.

The French Consul, in reply to this notice, protested against the threatened action of the Egyptian Government, contending that they were not entitled to take such steps against a French subject; and he stated that he should feel it his duty to resist the attempt by force.

Notwithstanding this intimation the police authorities proceeded to the premises of Serrière, and upon an official of the French Consulate, who arrived on the spot, protesting against their action, and saying he would only yield to force, Major Fenwick, the officer in command of the police, touched him on the shoulder, which it was agreed should be regarded as an intimation that Major Fenwick was prepared to remove the French official by force, and the establishment was then cleared of the employés of Serrière and closed. Although no actual violence was used, the intervention of the French Consular Officer was thus forcibly put aside.

It is entirely for Her Majesty's Government to determine what is the proper deduction to be drawn from the above facts.

Advisable to have communicated with the French Government before taking forcible action.

There is, as we have pointed out, much to be said in support of the view taken by the French Government, that the action of the Egyptian Government in closing the printing establishment was wholly illegal. And, though there are arguments of weight on the other side, it certainly cannot be said that their view is clearly wrong. Under these circumstances, even if the better opinion be that French subjects are liable to such administrative action as that complained of, it is matter for consideration whether, in view of the protest of the French Consul, it was right to settle the controversy by forcibly removing the Representative of the French Government, and whether the proper course would not have been, in view of the attitude which he announced his intention of taking, to communicate first with the French Government on the subject.

Suppression of the paper and closing of printing office are distinct matters.

Whilst, therefore, it seems that the Egyptian Government was well within its right in suppressing the "Bosphore Égyptien," a view which M. de Freycinet himself appears to accept, we think that that subject must be separated from the proceedings taken to close the business premises of a Frenchman under the circumstances above related.

Upon the legality of this latter proceeding we have already expressed our doubts, and have also pointed out the considerations affecting it from a diplomatic point of view.

H. J.
F. H.

---

List of Papers.

Sir E. Baring, No. 286, March 29, 1885.
To ditto (Telegraphic), No. 94, April 1, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 1.
Sir E. Baring (Telegraphic), No. 195, April 9, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p 17.
Ditto, No. 297, April 2, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 2.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 209, April 14, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 37.
Anglo-Turkish Protocol, July 28, 1868. Treaty No. 510.
Egyptian Press Law, November 26, 1881: "Egypt No. 5 (1882)," Foreign Office No. 2552, p. 18
Hertslet's Treaties on Trade, Turkey, p. 130.
State Papers, vol. lix, p. 389.
Queen's Advocate, February 14, 1867. In Confidential No. 1745.
Ditto, March, 23, 1867. In Confidential No. 1745.
Ditto, May 7, 1867. In Confidential No. 1745.
Law Officers, July 25, 1872. In Confidential No. 4098.
Ditto, August 9, 1872. In Confidential No. 4098.
Ditto, October 12, 1874. In Confidential No. 4331.
Ditto, March 8, 1875. In Confidential No. 4370.
Parliamentary Paper, Stephanos Xenos, August 12. 1871, No. 1403.
To Sir E. Baring (Telegraphic), No. 106, April 14, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 37.
Sir E. Baring (Telegraphic), No. 211, April 15, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 41.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 213, April 16, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 49.
Hertslet's Treaties, vol. xiv, p. 305: Organic Law of the Mixed Tribunals.
Lord Lyons (Telegraphic), No. 13, April 16, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 50.
Sir E. Baring (Telegraphic), No. 216, April 17, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 51.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 219, April 18, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 54.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 221, April 19, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 55.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 227, April 21, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 63.
Ditto (Telegraphic), No. 228, April 21, 1885. Confidential No. 5148, p. 63.

1885

No. 42.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 21.)

Egyptian Loan.

as to issue of without waiting for approval of the guarantee by the Austro-Hungarian Chambers.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 20, 1885.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 14th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying copy of a Convention* between Her Majesty's Government and the Governments of Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Italy, Russia, and Turkey relative to the raising of a loan for the Egyptian Government.

That Mr. Currie was to call our attention to Article VII, by which the Signatory Powers undertook to guarantee, jointly and severally, or to ask authority of their Parliaments to guarantee, jointly and severally, the regular payment of the annuity of the loan in question.

That Mr. Currie was to state that Her Majesty's Government had urged the Governments of those countries which had representative institutions to obtain legislative sanction to the guarantee with as little delay as possible, and that as regarded France, Italy, and Germany, they had received assurances which lead them to hope that the necessary Bills would be brought in and passed by the Chambers in the course of the present month.

That as, however, the Austrian Parliament was about to be dissolved, the Austro-Hungarian Government had decided to defer the consideration of the matter until the meeting of the new Chamber in the autumn, when they had no doubt of obtaining Parliamentary assent to the Convention; and that Mr. Currie was to request us to favour your Lordship with our opinion whether, in those circumstances, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in proceeding forthwith with their arrangements for the issue of the loan without waiting for the necessary Bill to be passed by the Austro-Hungarian Chambers. Whether the guarantee of the Austro-Hungarian Government (without the sanction of their Parliament) should be expressed in the prospectus for the bonds; or whether the arrangements should be made altogether irrespective of Austria-Hungary; and generally as to what course we would recommend for adoption by Her Majesty's Government under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordships commands we have the honour to report—

Convention empowers Egyptian Government to issue the loan.

That by Article I of the Convention power is given to the "Egyptian Government" to issue the loan "under the guarantee resulting from the present Convention."

Egyptian Government may issue it without waiting for the consent of the Austro-Hungarian Chambers.

By Article VII the Governments named do not absolutely undertake to guarantee the interest, but they only undertake either to guarantee, jointly and severally, or to ask authority from their Parliaments to guarantee, jointly and severally, the regular payment of the annuity. Under these circumstances we think the Egyptian Government would be justified in issuing the loan without waiting for the necessary Bill to be passed by the Austro-Hungarian Chambers.

Suggesting form of prospectus.

We think the best course would probably be to set out in the prospectus the VIIth Article of the Convention; and to state that the Austro-Hungarian Government propose submitting the matter to their Parliament in the coming autumn.

We gather that it is not intended to issue the prospectus until the matter has been submitted by the other Governments to their Parliaments.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 43.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 22.)

Decree deducting 5 per cent. from the coupons of the Egyptian Debt.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 22, 1885.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 21st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us therewith the papers noted in the accompanying list,† relative to the issue on the 12th ultimo by the Egyptian Government of a Decree authorizing the deduction of 5 per cent. from the coupons of the Egyptian Debt falling due on the 15th April and 1st instant.

---

* "Egypt No. 7 (1885)." Treaty No. 740.

† (A.) Declaration of March 17, "Egypt No. 6 (1885)," Treaty No. 739; (B.) Sir E. Baring, No. 203, Telegraphic, April 11, Confidential No. 5147, p. 14; (C.) Sir E. Baring, No. 323, April 14, Confidential No. 5147, p. 22; (D.) Sir E. Baring, No. 282 Telegraphic, May 20, 1885, Confidential No. 5147, p. 44.

That by the Declaration signed in London on the 17th March (Inclosure A), the Governments of Great Britain, Germany, Austro-Hungary, France, Italy, and Russia declared their willingness to accept a Decree of His Highness the Khedive expressed in the terms of the draft Decree annexed to that Declaration, and by Article 12 of that Decree a tax of 5 per cent. was established on the amount of the coupons of the Egyptian Debt; the tax, however, only to be levied on the amount of the half-yearly payments falling due in 1885 and 1886.

That it would be seen from the telegram from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo, of which a copy was inclosed (Inclosure B), that the Egyptian Government having informed the Treasury of the Public Debt that that Decree would be promulgated on the 11th April, and that in virtue of that Decree 5 per cent. should be deducted from the coupon of the Preference Debt due on the 15th, the Commissioners replied by expressing the opinion that the Decree could not be considered valid until the guarantee of the loan, provided for by Article 2 of the Declaration of the 17th March, had been approved by the Chambers of the different Powers concerned. That they, however, stated that they were prepared to deduct the 5 per cent. on the strength of a temporary Decree to be issued by the Khedive.

That the Egyptian Government accordingly issued the Decree, of which a copy was annexed (Inclosure C), authorizing the Treasury of the Public Debt and other officials concerned to levy the tax in question upon the amount of the coupons falling due on the 15th April and 1st May.

Protest of Austria, France, Germany, and Russia.

That Mr. Currie was to forward a copy of a telegram from Sir E. Baring (Inclosure D), in which he stated that the German Consul-General at Cairo had protested against the Decree, that action being supported by the Representatives of Austria, France, and Russia.

That Nubar Pasha had replied that, as the Decree was considered illegal, it should be at once cancelled, and that the 5 per cent. which had been deducted should be repaid to the bondholders. That a Decree, cancelling that of the 12th April, had been signed by the Khedive, but that Sir E. Baring had requested Nubar Pasha not to issue it until he had time to refer the question home.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the Egyptian Government were legally justified in issuing a temporary Decree directing the 5 per cent. deduction to be made before the Parliaments of the several countries, parties to the Convention of the 17th March, had given their assent to its provisions, and, if so, in what terms a statement to that effect should be addressed to the protesting Powers, either by the Egyptian Government, or by Her Majesty's Government; and if such provisional Decree was not proper, in what manner its withdrawal should be made and announced to the Powers, parties to the Convention.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, by the second paragraph of the Declaration issued on the 17th March, the Governments of Germany, Austria, France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia undertake to sign a Convention in the terms of the annexed draft. They also "declare their willingness to accept a Decree of His Highness the Khedive expressed in the terms of the annexed draft Decree."

Egyptian Government not legally justified in issuing the Decree.

We reserve for consideration the question whether this Decree is dependent on, and can only be issued after the consent of the various Parliaments have been obtained to the Convention, and consider, first, whether the temporary Decree of the 12th April was one which the Egyptian Government was legally justified in issuing. It appears to us that it was not. It was designed to give effect to one only of the many provisions contained in the draft Decree annexed to the Declaration of the 17th March. And we do not think that the Governments which had declared their willingness to accept a Decree "in the terms of the annexed draft" were precluded from objecting to the temporary Decree of the 12th April.

Issue of the Decree need not be postponed until the guarantee of the loan has been approved by the Chambers of the different Powers concerned.

We turn now to the question whether the Khedive is in a position to issue the Decree in the terms annexed to the Declaration, without waiting for the Parliamentary sanction of the different countries to the guarantee contemplated by the Convention. We can find nothing in the terms of the Declaration, or of the draft Decree itself showing that the issuing of the Decree must be postponed.

The declaration of the willingness of the Governments to accept the Decree is made in explicit terms, and does not purport to be subject to any condition. It immediately follows the undertaking to sign the Convention, and is couched in similar language; and the undertaking was clearly intended to create an immediate obligation, which was, in fact, at once fulfilled.

The terms of the draft Decree appear to us to support the same view. Article 1 merely states the authority to issue the loan, leaving the rate, conditions, and dates of issue for a subsequent Decree. Moreover, Article 12, which provides for the tax on the coupons, limits its operation to the half-yearly payments falling due in 1885 and 1886, clearly implying, as it seems to us, that the Decree was to be issued prior to the first half-yearly payment in 1885.

1885

And it could not have been anticipated that all the Parliamentary sanctions would have been obtained by that date. If the contention that the Decree cannot legally be issued until after their Parliamentary sanctions are obtained be well-founded, the two years for which the tax is established might not improbably be reduced to one.

In our opinion, therefore, the true view is that the issuing of the Decree need not be postponed, as the Commissioners of the Caisse contend, until the guarantee of the loan has been approved by the Chambers of the different Powers concerned.

If, indeed, the Egyptian Government were not in a position to raise the 9,000,000*l.* at 3½ per cent. interest, it might be contended that the foundation of the whole transaction failed; but we apprehend this is not the case.

Course to be taken is a question of policy.

What course should be taken under the circumstances is a question of policy which cannot be dissociated from the point raised in your Lordship's second letter of the 21st May, and we have made such suggestions as occur to us in our Report in answer to that letter.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 44.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 22.)

(B.)

My Lord,

Royal Courts of Justice, May 22, 1885.

Egyptian Loan.

As to issue of without waiting for approval of the guarantee by the Parliaments of the Powers.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 21st instant, stating that, by direction of your Lordship, he had the honour to inform us that, subsequently to the reference to us upon the subject of the proposed issue of the Egyptian Loan contained in his letter of the 14th instant, your Lordship received from Her Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin a despatch* stating that, in reply to an intimation from him to the German Minister for Foreign Affairs of his regret that the Bill concerning the guarantee of the loan had not been submitted to the German Reichstag, Count Hatzfeldt observed that the loan could not be raised until all the Powers had obtained the sanction of their Parliaments to the guarantee, except in the case of Russia, and that time would not be lost through the delay, as a similar delay was unavoidable in the case of Austria.

That the present position as regarded the guarantee of the several Powers was as follows:—

The Austro-Hungarian Government has deferred bringing the matter before its present Parliament, as it is about to be dissolved, and intends to submit the question to the new Parliament, probably in September.

The German Government defers submitting the guarantee to its Parliament, on the alleged ground that until the Austro-Hungarian Parliament can be consulted the loan cannot be issued.

The French Government has brought in a Bill to authorize the ratification of the Convention. It has been favourably reported upon by the Committee of the Chambers to which it was referred, and the French Minister for Foreign Affairs has informed Her Majesty's Ambassador that he has every reason to expect that the Bill will be passed with fair speed by both Chambers.

The Italian Government laid the Bill, to sanction the Convention, before the Chamber of Deputies on the 28th ultimo, and the question will be discussed as soon as the necessary papers have been printed.

That there being no Parliament to consult, either in Russia or Turkey, no question arose as to delay being caused by a reference to such a body, but that Article I of the Convention recorded the consent of the Sultan to the issue of the loan (the Khedive being precluded from issuing loans without the assent of the Sultan), and that until the Convention should have been formally ratified, it might be contended that it was not technically valid.

That, under the circumstances above set forth, and those stated in Mr. Currie's letter to us of the 14th instant, your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion on the course which should be pursued by Her Majesty's Government as to the issue of the loan before assent had been given to the Convention by the Parliaments of some, or all, of the countries concerned, or which had been ratified by the Sultan and the Emperor of Russia, and also as to the form in which the prospectus should be drawn in the event of our advising that the loan could properly be issued at once, and what communications should be addressed by Her Majesty's Government to the other Powers on the subject.

That Mr. Currie was further to call our attention to the fact that your Lordship had been in communication with Russia, Italy, Germany, and Austria as to the declaration of the guarantee on the bonds being signed on their behalf by a French and an English official, and that the question arose as to the terms in which the Declaration should be worded in the absence of the Parliamentary confirmation of the Convention of one or more of the countries concerned.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

As to ratification of the Convention by the Sultan.

That we are not sure that we understand what is meant by the ratification of the Convention by the Sultan. We presume that both the Declaration and the Convention have now been signed by the Turkish Ambassador, under the authority of his Sovereign. If so, there would appear, as far as we are able to judge from the information before us, to have been a sufficient consent by the Sultan to the loan.

Egyptian Government may issue the loan without waiting for the approval of the guarantee by the Parliaments of the Powers.

We have already expressed our view that upon the true construction of the Convention the Egyptian Government may issue the loan without waiting for the submission to the various Parliaments provided for by Article VII.

In addition to the reasons for this opinion contained in our Report of the 20th May, we would point out that by the terms of the Convention, the Agreement embodied in it has immediate effect, and that the Convention is binding on the different Powers, without its being referred to the Parliaments of the different countries, to which bodies the question of the guarantee alone has to be submitted. The considerations to which we have drawn attention in our Report of this date on the question of the temporary Decree, afford further arguments in support of the same view.

Suggestions on the question of policy.

Upon the question of policy we feel that we can only submit certain suggestions for your Lordship's consideration. If your Lordship concurs in the opinion which we have expressed that the Egyptian Government is entitled to issue the loan without waiting for the approval of the guarantee by the Parliaments of the Powers, we suggest that this view should be communicated to the Powers, and enforced by the arguments which exist in its favour. It would also be desirable strongly to urge upon the different Governments the disastrous effects of any further delay in issuing the loan.

Disastrous effects of further delay in issuing the loan should be strongly urged on the different Governments.

As it is impossible to anticipate the replies that may be made to such representations, we can offer no advice as to the course that should be taken until the replies have been received. In connection with these representations to the Powers, we think great stress should be laid upon the fact that it was clearly intended by the parties to the Declaration of the 17th March that the half-yearly coupons falling due in the present year should be subject to the tax provided for by Article 12 of the Decree.

Mode of dealing with the difficulty in respect of the taxation of the coupons now falling due.

There seem to be only two ways of dealing with the difficulty which arises in respect of the taxation of the coupons now falling due. The one course would be to issue the Decree in its entirety, and act under it. But this step gives rise to substantially the same questions as those which affect the immediate issuing of the loan, and would have to be dealt with on the same basis of argument, when communicating upon the subject with the other Powers. We must, however, point out that it is very unfortunate that in the temporary Decree of the 12th April it is recited that the Decree annexed to the Declarations of the 17th March cannot be promulgated until the guarantee "sera définitive." Although it appears to be in contemplation to recall this Decree, this admission will probably be strongly urged against any departure from the terms of such recital. But the only alternative course would be to adhere to action under the temporary Decree, a course which we have already stated, in our opinion, cannot be maintained against the opposition of the Powers. Whether that opposition can be removed, and the consent of the Powers to a solution of the existing difficulty, by the issue of such a Decree, can be obtained, it is for your Lordship to consider.

Form of the prospectus to be adopted.

As regards the questions of form submitted to us, we do not regard your Lordship as desiring us to express our opinion upon the form, in all particulars, of the

---

* Sir E. Malet, No. 218, May 12, 1885. Confidential No. 5147, p. 42.

1885

prospectus to be adopted when the issue of the loan is determined on; we would refer your Lordship to our Report of the 20th May as indicating our views as to the statements relating to the position of the guarantee, which should be contained in the prospectus.

As to necessity for the Declaration appearing on the bonds.

We do not understand that there is any necessity for the Declaration appearing on the bonds. They are issued by the Egyptian Government, and the guarantee resulting from the Convention is only collateral to the principal contract.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 45.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 25.)

The Attorney-General's Chambers, New Court, Temple,
May 24, 1885.

My Lord,

Egyptian Loan.

Difficulty in framing a form of guarantee to appear on the bonds.

IT is impossible to frame any form of guarantee to appear on the bonds without raising grave questions of substance.

In 1855 England and France had finally acquiesced as to their joint guarantee and its terms, and we presume the form of the bonds was approved by both countries. In the present instance, although it cannot yet be anticipated whether Austria-Hungary and Germany, or even France, will or will not acquiesce in the present issue of the loan, there can be no doubt the two former countries will not be disposed to regard any guarantee at the present time as absolute.

If, therefore, the Egyptian Government were to make any statement on the bonds appearing to pledge the absolute credit of those Governments, grave complaint would be made both on the part of the Governments and of the subscribers to the loan.

The answer of the German Government to the representation about to be made in respect of the necessity of immediately issuing the loan may tend to mitigate the difficulty. But under present conditions, if it be regarded as absolutely necessary to refer in the bonds to the guarantee, we think it will be difficult to do more than state—

Submit form of statement to appear on the bonds.

"That this bond is issued under and by virtue of the powers conferred on the Khedive of Egypt by the Declaration and Convention of the 17th March, 1885, agreed to by common consent between the Governments of Great Britain, Germany, Austria-Hungary, France, Italy, Russia, and Turkey."

If the French and English signatures be attached to this statement, probably it will be regarded as sufficient by persons desirous of subscribing to the loan.

If before the loan be issued a protest should be received from any of the Governments against its being issued before their Parliaments have been consulted, we think that the desirability of making even the above statement may have to be reconsidered.

Its adoption should be notified to the Contracting Governments before issuing the bonds.

We would also suggest, for your Lordship's consideration, whether, before issuing the bonds containing any reference to the Declaration, some notification of the fact should or should not be conveyed to the Contracting Governments.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 46.

The Solicitor-General to Mr. Currie.—(Received May 25.)

Dear Mr. Currie,
Paris, May 24, 1885.

Egyptian Loan.

Approve draft Circular generally, but propose addition as to views of Her Majesty's Government relative to delay in issue of loan.

THE Attorney-General and I have perused the draft forwarded by you to us. We approve of it generally, but suggest certain alterations in pencil.

It occurs to us that the draft should contain also some reference to the question of delaying the issue of the loan until all the Parliaments have joined in the guarantee; otherwise it might be taken that Her Majesty's Government concur in the view that the loan cannot be issued until that date. Mr. Gladstone suggested that we should take credit with the Powers for a willingness to assist in issuing at an early date the loan which all the Powers thought expedient and urgent, and to the immediate issue of which with the guarantee their Parliamentary difficulties are the only suggested obstacle, and that we should not admit that the Khedive cannot issue the loan until all the Contracting Parties have brought the matter before their Parliaments, inasmuch as we do not entertain this view.

Yours, &c.
(Signed) FARRER HERSCHELL.

P.S.—Whether what we suggest above should be an addition to your draft or form the subject of a despatch of cotemporaneous date it will be for you to consider. Subject to your better opinion I venture to suggest the former.

F. H.

---

Annex.

(Circular as finally amended.)

Earl Granville to Viscount Lyons.[*]

(No. 531.)
Foreign Office, May 26, 1885.

My Lord,

IT appears from a remark recently made to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin by Count Hatzfeldt, that the German Government do not consider that the new Egyptian Loan can be raised until all the Powers parties to the Convention of the 17th March, except Russia, shall have obtained the sanction of their Parliaments to the guarantee.

Her Majesty's Government are unable to concur in this view.

By the terms of the Convention the agreement embodied in it has immediate effect, and the Convention is binding on the different Powers without its being referred to the Parliaments of the respective countries. It is the question of the guarantee alone which has to be submitted to the Parliaments.

By Article VII of the Convention the Governments therein named do not absolutely undertake to guarantee the interest on the loan, but they only undertake either to guarantee jointly and severally, or to ask authority from their Parliaments to guarantee jointly and severally, the regular payment of the annuity; and by the 1st Article power is given to the "Egyptian Government" to issue the loan "under the guarantee resulting from the present Convention."

By the second paragraph of the Declaration signed on the 17th March the Governments of Germany, Austria, France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia undertook to sign a Convention in the terms of a draft thereto annexed. They also declared "their willingness to accept a Decree of His Highness the Khedive expressed in the terms of the annexed draft Decree."

Under the circumstances above set forth, and those described in my despatch of this day relating to the deduction of the 5 per cent. from the coupons, Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that the Egyptian Government would be justified in issuing the loan without waiting for the sanction of the guarantee by all the Parliaments concerned.

I am, &c.
(Signed) GRANVILLE.

---

No. 47.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 30.)

[In reply to the following Reference, the Law Officers report as below:—]

Mr. Currie to the Law Officers of the Crown.

Foreign Office, May 28, 1885.

Gentlemen,

Sinking fund of the Domains Loan.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by Earl Granville's direction, the inclosed telegram (A) from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo,

---

[*] Also to Sir J. S. Lumley (No. 156), Sir A. Paget (No. 116), Sir E. Malet (No. 245), and Sir E. Thornton (No. 204). See Confidential No. 5147, p. 60.

Claim of Commissioners for its payment.

relative to the question of the claim by the Commissioners of Domains against the Egyptian Government for the payment of the sinking fund of the Domains Loan, which, by Article 16 of the draft Decree annexed to the Declaration recently signed in London, was to be suspended from the date of the signature of the Convention of the 18th March (Inclosure B). I am to state that, in view of the embarrassment in which the Egyptian Government may be placed if this claim is pressed, as under the contract of April 1880 between Messrs. Rothschild and the Egyptian Government (Inclosure C) the Province of Keneh may become pledged to the Domains Loan, his Lordship addressed a letter to Messrs. Rothschild, as the agents for the loan (Inclosure D), suggesting that the Commissioners of Domains should be advised not to make it; as the provision of the Decree, whenever its issue was authorized, would be retrospective, and would necessitate the refunding of the money to the Egyptian Government. Messrs. Rothschild replied (Inclosure E), proposing that Her Majesty's Government should instruct the Domains Commissioners, through them, temporarily to suspend the sinking fund, and undertake to protect them against the consequences.

I am to request you to favour his Lordship with your opinion whether such an instruction or such an indemnity could properly be given, and whether it would require Parliamentary authority, and with any further observations you may have to offer on the subject.

I am, &c.
(Signed) PHILIP W. CURRIE.

---

Report.

Legally, demand should be paid.

Treating the question submitted to us from a strictly legal point of view, we think that the Commissioners of the Domain Loan ought to demand the sum necessary to meet the sinking fund, and that the Egyptian Government should pay it.

Legal consequences of absence of demand and payment not substantial.

But the legal consequences arising from the absence of such demand and payment cannot be of a substantial character. Until the Decree is issued there will be no person in a position to complain of actual individual loss in consequence of the necessary sum not having been applied to the sinking fund (which creates a substantial distinction between the matter now under consideration and the question submitted to us in relation to the right to deduct a portion of the interest due to the bondholders). As soon as the Decree is issued its retrospective character will render legal the suspension of the operation of the sinking fund.

Matter a question of policy. Considerations for deciding.

The determination of the course to be taken appears, therefore, to us to depend on considerations of policy. If the payment of the sinking fund would be a cause of serious embarrassment to Egyptian finance, it may be worth while to incur some risk. But not only the financial risk, which seems inconsiderable, must be kept in view, but it is also necessary to consider how far the suspension of this particular sinking fund would be likely to give rise to difficulties with the other Powers. On this question of policy the information before us does not enable us to do more than point out to your Lordship the considerations by which it appears to us a decision must be governed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

Paris, May 29, 1885.

---

List of Papers.

(A.) Sir E. Baring, No. 286, May 21, 1885. Confidential No. 5147, p. 45.
(B.) Convention of March 18, 1885. Treaty No. 740.
(C.) Contract of April 14, 1880. Confidential No. 4295, p. 307.
(D.) To Messrs. Rothschild, May 21, 1885.
(E.) Messrs. Rothschild, May 26, 1885.

No. 48.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 30.)

[In reply to the following Reference, the Law Officers report as below:—]

Mr. Currie to the Law Officers of the Crown.

Foreign Office, May 28, 1885.

Gentlemen,

Tax of 5 per cent. on coupons of Domains Loan.

I HAVE the honour, by Earl Granville's direction, to state that the Commissioners of Domains in Egypt, who had intended to pay to Messrs Rothschild, as agents for the Domains Loan, the amount of the coupon due on the 1st June, less 5 per cent. to be deducted under the Convention inclosed in my letter of to-day, have now paid the whole amount, without deduction, in consequence of the protest of the Representatives of those Powers who hold that the provisions of the Decree attached to that Convention cannot yet be enforced.

Proposed retention by Messrs. Rothschild of money to meet it.

His Lordship accordingly drew the attention of Messrs Rothschild to the fact that, although the money for the coupon had been paid to them in full by the Commissioners, a claim might be set up by the Egyptian Government for the deduction of the 5 per cent., and that they might therefore perhaps consider it advisable to retain the 5 per cent. in their hands for the present in paying their bondholders.

I am to inclose their reply* stating that they cannot withhold the money from the bondholders without the authority of Her Majesty's Government; and I am to request that you will take this matter into your consideration, in connection with the papers inclosed in my other letter of to-day, and favour his Lordship with your opinion as to the course which Her Majesty's Government should pursue.

I am, &c.
(Signed) PHILIP W. CURRIE.

---

Report.

It cannot be retained, as interest must be paid in full.

We are of opinion that, as each individual bondholder has at present a legal claim for the full amount of the interest due on the bonds held by him, it will be impossible for Messrs. Rothschild to retain any of the money placed in their hands to meet the payment of interest in full without rendering themselves liable to an action at the suit of every bondholder; and we therefore think that Messrs. Rothschild should be allowed to pay over the interest without deduction.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

Paris, May 29, 1885.

---

No. 49.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, June 10, 1885.

My Lord,

Antoun Yousef Abdel Messieh. Question as to his nationality with reference to jurisdiction regarding his property.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers† relating to the question of the nationality of the late Antoun Yousef Abdel Messieh, which had been raised by certain relatives of the deceased before Her Majesty's Consular Court at Cairo, and before Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General, by the Egyptian Government.

That the history of that case would be found fully stated in the despatch from Sir E. Baring No. 25, Consular, of the 18th, and its inclosures; and that Mr. Lister was to draw our particular attention to the letters from Mr. Pini of the 5th and 6th ultimo and to that from Mr. Pears of the 25th April, and also to the despatches from Mr. Borg, Her Majesty's Consul at Cairo, to Sir E. Baring, Nos. 6, 13, and 15, which formed inclosures in Sir E. Baring's despatch No. 27 of the 27th April.

That Yousef was stated to have been born in Bagdad, of British Indian parents,

---

* Messrs. Rothschild, May 22, 1885.

† Sir E. Baring, No. 25, Consular, April 18; ditto, No. 27, Consular, April 27; Mr. E. Pears, April 25; Mr. S. Pini, (received) May 5; ditto, May 6, 1885; Levant Orders in Council (Confidential 2354).

1885

to have resided in India during his youth, and to have been recognized during his whole life as a British Indian subject.

That he was also stated to have been during many years registered in Her Majesty's Consulates, at Jeddah and Cairo, as a British subject, and to have received from the Turkish "Bureau de Nationalité" a certificate recognizing him as a British subject conformably to the Ottoman Laws of 1869.

That he married a British subject before Her Majesty's Consulate in compliance with the Consular Marriage Act, and died in Egypt in February last, leaving his widow his executrix, and his property was, in the usual course, taken possession of by Her Majesty's Consul at Cairo.

Caveat lodged by his relatives.

Claim of Egyptian Government to dispose of property.

That a caveat had, however, been lodged in Her Majesty's Consular Court by the relatives, who disputed the British nationality of the testator, and the Egyptian Government also, through Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General, alleged that he was an Ottoman subject, and claimed that his property should be handed over to them, and they had further applied to have the question of nationality decided by diplomatic action, against which course the widow and executrix protested.

That it was urged that the question of the jurisdiction of Her Majesty's Court for Egypt and of Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople in that case should be decided on the caveat which had been lodged by the parties who contested the British nationality of the deceased. That from the decision of the latter Court an appeal lay to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and it was contended that the case was not therefore one for diplomatic interference—at all events, while the Consular Court was seized of it, and that the Secretary of State was not justified in giving any directions to the Supreme Consular Court to stay its hand.

That your Lordship was not aware of any precedent for interfering with the ordinary course of justice in such a case.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question whether the British Consular Court should proceed with the case on the caveat lodged, and decide the question of its jurisdiction, or whether it should decline to proceed with the case until the question of the testator's nationality had been decided diplomatically.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

The Consular Court should decide the question of its jurisdiction.
Its action should not be interfered with.
Egyptian Government can afterwards take diplomatic action.

That, in our opinion, the British Consular Court should proceed with the case on the caveat lodged, and decide the question of its jurisdiction. And we do not think the Secretary of State should interfere with its action in this respect.

This course will not deprive the Egyptian Government of the right of taking diplomatic action in case they should conceive that there is ground for it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 50.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 20.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 19, 1885.

Giuseppe Tabone. Petition for the remission of sentence of Consular Court at Alexandria.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the Petition received from Giuseppe Tabone, a prisoner in Malta Gaol, praying for a mitigation of the sentence passed upon him by Her Majesty's Consular Court at Alexandria.

That the Petition, together with the "particulars of the prison history" of the prisoner, were transmitted to the Foreign Office through the Colonial Office, and would be found in the inclosures to the Colonial Office letter of the 28th April.

That the papers had been referred to Mr. Cookson, Her Majesty's Consul and Judge at Alexandria, who tried the case, and that it would be seen, from his despatch No. 25 of the 18th ultimo, that he had been unable to refer to the notes of the evidence, which were burnt in the fire of July 1882.

That he reported, however, that, having made inquiries into the antecedents of the prisoner, he was of opinion that Her Majesty's clemency might be exercised towards him, by a partial remission of his sentence.

That it would also be seen, from the particulars of the prison history, that no previous convictions had been recorded against Tabone. That our opinion was requested as to whether there would be any objection, under the circumstances, in the remission of the remainder of the sentence.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Sentence may be remitted.

That we think that, in this case, the remainder of the sentence might properly be remitted.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 51.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 21, 1885.

Anton Yussuf Abdel Messieh. Succession to property of the late.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th September instant, stating that, by your Lordship's direction, he had to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* relating to the nationality of the late Anton Yussuf Abdel Messieh, together with the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown thereon, dated the 10th June last.

Question as to suspension of legal proceedings during discussion as to his nationality.

That the Turkish Ambassador in London had informed your Lordship that the Porte had telegraphed instructions to request that, as the nationality of Yussuf was under discussion at Constantinople, Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court might be ordered to suspend proceedings in the case until the question of nationality was decided.

That the case was one involving the succession to personal property of large amount, and the widow and executrix, through her legal advisers, has represented that it is for the British Court to decide whether it has jurisdiction, and that there is no ground at present for interfering with the ordinary course of justice. That that view was supported by the Law Officers in their Report above referred to, and Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose the draft of the instructions which were sent to Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Egypt founded on that Report.

That the papers which accompanied the former reference to the Law Officers were sent therewith, and Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the same into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the Secretary of State had power to direct a stay of proceedings in the case, and that we would inform your Lordship whether we saw any reason for departing from the decision already arrived at.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No reason for departure from previous decision.

That this is not a case in which the Secretary of State should direct a stay of proceedings, and we see no reason for departing from the decision already arrived at in accordance with the Report of the late Law Officers of the 10th June, 1885.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 52.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September , 1885.

Defence of Zebehr Pasha.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 8th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter which had been

---

* Papers sent to Law Officers, September 7, 1885:—Sir E. Baring, No. 25, April 18; ditto, No. 27, April 27; Mr. E. Pears, April 25; Mr. S. Pini, May 5; ditto, May 6, 1885; Levant Orders in Council, Confidential No. 2354; Law Officers' Report, June 10; to Sir E. Baring, No. 32, June 26, 1885.

1885

Request of Messrs. Gadesden and Treherne for facilities for communication, and for information.

received from Messrs. Gadesden and Treherne,* stating that they had been instructed to take in hand the defence of Zebehr Pasha, and inquiring whether he was in the custody of the military or civil authorities, and what facilities would be afforded for communicating with him either verbally or by letter.

That we should perceive by the correspondence also inclosed therewith† that Zebehr Pasha was arrested in Egypt by the British military authorities, and placed on board Her Majesty's ship "Iris," in which vessel he was conveyed to Gibraltar. That he was there detained with certain others under a special Ordinance, of which a copy would be found among the papers.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the applicants were entitled, under the circumstances, to hold communication and to receive any further information beyond what was matter of public knowledge, and generally as to the answer which should be returned to them.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

They are not entitled to communicate with him or receive special information.

That we are of opinion that the applicants, Messrs. Gadesden and Treherne, are not entitled at present to hold communication with Zebehr Pasha, or to receive any further information beyond what is matter of public knowledge.

Suggesting answer to them.

That a reply should be sent to Messrs. Gadesden and Treherne's letter of the 31st August, to the effect that Zebehr Pasha is in custody under a special Ordinance of the 27th March, 1885, and that before deciding whether any facilities can be afforded for communicating with him, Her Majesty's Government will require further information as to the person by whom any communication, if verbal, is to be made, and, if in writing, the nature of the communication proposed to be made.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 53.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 17.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 17, 1885.

Tribute paid to Turkey. Question as to non-payment of that for Zeyla.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was to lay before us the following facts relating to the Egyptian tribute now paid to the Sultan of Turkey, and to submit, for our consideration and advice, the question hereinafter stated.

Origin of tribute.

That the Egyptian tribute owed its origin to the Treaty of the 15th July, 1840, between Great Britain, Austria, Russia, Prussia, and the Porte, establishing the political relations between Turkey and Egypt.

That those were recorded in a succession of Firmans issued by the Sultan between 1841 and 1879, most of which dealt with the question of tribute. (Print D.)

That the Firman of the 28th May, 1841, declared that the amount of the tribute should not be fixed at a quarter of the revenue, as provided in a previous Firman, but that it should be fixed at 80,000 purses (363,640*l.*). (Print D, pp. 14 and 5.)

That by a Firman dated the 13th February, 1841, instructions were given respecting the administration of the Provinces of Nubia, Darfour, Kordofan, Sennaar. (Print D, p. 39.)

That by a Firman dated May 1865, Suakin and Massowah were ceded to the Khedive, in consideration of an increase in the tribute of 7,500 purses, or 34,090*l.* (Print D, p. 20.)

That by a Firman dated the 26th May, 1866, the order of succession was changed, and that the tribute was increased from 80,000 to 150,000 purses, or 681,820*l.* That it was again fixed at that sum in the Firman of the 8th June, 1873, and in the Firman dated the 2nd August, 1879. (Print D, pp. 21 and 29.)

For an account of the circumstances attending the issue of the last-mentioned Firman, we were referred to the statement embodied in the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown of the 27th August (? 21st November), 1883, from which it would be seen that the Firman was issued in communication with the British and French Governments, and had the character of an international engagement. (Memorandum: Confidential Print, Part XV, No. 5056, p. 250.)

Additional tribute on account of Zeyla.

That in addition to the amount of tribute fixed by that Firman, the Khedive paid to the Sultan a sum of 14,000*l.*, in consideration of the cession to him, by the Porte in 1875, of Zeyla. That that territory was ceded by an Imperial Hatt dated the 1st July, 1875, of which no copy was in possession of Her Majesty's Government, but that the Turkish Ambassador communicated to them copy of a telegraphic despatch he had received from the Porte, which purported to convey its substance.

It stated that Zeyla was administered by a Sheikh, and brought in £ T. 800 to the Treasury, and that, as its position might facilitate the communications of Egypt with Darfour, the Sultan had deigned to cede it to the Khedive in consideration of an increase of 14,000*l.* in the Egyptian tribute.

That since then great changes had taken place, and the greater portion of the territory which was added to Egypt after 1841 had been alienated from the Khedive.

That the question how far Egypt was now entitled to claim a reduction generally in the amount of the tribute by reason of the great diminution in the extent of her territory, since that amount was fixed, had lately occupied the attention of Her Majesty's Government, and might possibly become the subject of negotiations with the Porte.

Necessity for immediate decision.

But that the case of Zeyla was exceptional, and called for immediate decision, by reason of the following circumstances:—

That in November last the Egyptian Government notified to the Porte their inability to retain possession of the coast of the Red Sea south of Massowah to Zeyla, and, in fact, surrendered that territory to the Porte. That the utility of Zeyla as a means of communication with Darfour had ceased, and the Egyptian Government in its note to the Porte gave most cogent reasons for abandoning that part of the coast.

That the Porte had been repeatedly pressed on the subject, but that no satisfactory reply had been received, and that Her Majesty's Government were, at the present time, holding Zeyla, as caretakers, until such time as the Sultan might reoccupy it.

That the Egyptian Government were about to publish their Budget for 1886, and in it they had made no provision for the payment of the 14,000*l.* to the Porte on account of Zeyla.

That that omission in the Budget had been made advisably and in accordance with the recommendation contained in the Report of the Earl of Northbrook of the 20th November, 1884, which was communicated to the Powers, and laid before Parliament. (Print F.)

That his Lordship (Lord Northbrook) was of opinion that as the Egyptian Government were about to evacuate Zeyla, they could not fairly be called upon to pay the rent specially fixed as the consideration for the original cession of that territory.

But that the retrocession of Zeyla not having been accepted by the Porte, the Law Officers of the Crown advised that the tribute of Egypt could not be reduced except by agreement with the Sultan, or in the case of the territories in question, by being lost to Egypt by conquest.

Exceptional position of Zeyla tribute.

That there was a distinction, however, between the case of Suakin and Massowah, and that of Zeyla, which was not brought to the notice of the Law Officers at the time.

That it was to be observed that the payment of 7,500 purses, or 34,090*l.*, in respect of the former, became merged in the general tribute of 150,000 purses, or 681,820*l.*, payable under the Firmans of 1866, 1873, and 1879, whereas the payment of 14,000*l.* on account of Zeyla was a separate and additional payment not mentioned in any of the Firmans. Moreover, the object of the acquisition of Zeyla, as stated in the Imperial Hatt of the 1st July, 1875, viz., the facilitating of communication with Darfour having now failed, by the loss of the latter province, it might be urged that the Egyptian Government had an equitable right to be relieved of the obligation to retain it.

That the question was somewhat complicated by the fact that Lord Northbrook's estimate had been accepted as the basis of the amount at which the Egyptian

---

* August 31, 1885.

† Sir E. Baring, No. 137 (Telegraphic), March 7; ditto, No. 237, March 11; ditto, No. 146 (Telegraphic), March 11; ditto, No. 147 (Telegraphic), March 11; ditto, No. 240, March 12; to Sir E. Baring, No. 74 (Telegraphic), March 12; Sir E. Baring, No. 247, March 12; ditto, No. 157 (Telegraphic), March 14; ditto, No. 158 (Telegraphic), March 14; to Colonial Office, March 25; Colonial Office, April 4; ditto, April 7; to Colonial Office, April 8; Colonial Office, April 11; to Colonial Office, April 13; ditto, April 21; Law Officers, April 10, 1885.

1885

expenditure was fixed in the Khedivial Decree relative to the new Egyptian Loan, annexed to the Convention of 18th March, 1885.

That the question arose, therefore, whether, under all the circumstances, the Egyptian Government were justified in declining to continue the payment of 14,000*l.* to the Porte on account of Zeyla, in addition to the 681,820*l.* fixed as the amount of tribute by the Firmans, or whether they should make provision in their yearly Budget for such payment until the Porte has formally accepted the retrocession of Zeyla, and relieved the Egyptian Government of the obligations in relation thereto.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion on the question above stated.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Egypt must pay Zeyla tribute until relieved by Porte from obligation.

That, in our opinion, the Egyptian Government are not justified in declining to continue the payment of 14,000*l.* to the Porte on account of Zeyla, in addition to the 681,820*l.* fixed as the amount of tribute by the Firmans, but should make provision in their yearly Budget for such payment until the Porte has accepted the retrocession of Zeyla, and relieved the Egyptian Government of the obligation in relation thereto.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Sir E. Baring, No. 1164, December 22, 1884 (Confidential No. 5056, p. 262).
(B.) Inclosure in above (Confidential No. 5056, p. 264).
(C.) "Egypt No. 4 (1880)" (Foreign Office No. 2322).
(D.) Firmans, &c., 1841–79 (Confidential No. 4747).
(E.) Lord Northbrook, October 5, 1884 (Confidential No. 5061, p. 112).
(F.) Extract from Lord Northbrook's Report of November 20, 1884 (communicated to the Powers and laid before Parliament). "Egypt No. 4 (1885)" (Foreign Office No. 2940, p. 39).
(G.) Law Officers, February 14, 1885.
(H.) Mr. Egerton, No. 627, August 29, 1885 (Confidential No. 5158, p. 114).
(I.) Memorandum (Confidential No. 5056, p. 250).
(J.) Law Officers, November 21, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 37).
Three volumes of printed correspondence.

---

No. 54.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 24, 1885.

Conviction and punishment of Saïd John, by Acting British Vice-Consul at Zeyla, for assault.

French demand for his surrender, which has been refused.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, transmitting to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Acting Consul-General and Agent in Cairo,* relating to a demand by the French Consul at Zeyla, in Egypt, that one Saïd John, who had been tried and convicted before the British Acting Vice-Consul at that port, for assault, causing grievous bodily harm, should be delivered up to him to be tried for the same offence in the French Consular Court, on the ground that the prisoner is a French-protected person, and, as such, not subject to the jurisdiction of the British Consular Court.

That our attention was invited to the Report of the proceedings on the trial, from which it would be seen that the case was one of assault endangering life, that the prisoner did not state at the trial that he was under French protection, and, far from objecting to the jurisdiction, expressly submitted to it.

That the sentence passed was six months' imprisonment in the Aden Gaol, and a public flogging. That the sentence had been carried out as regarded the flogging, when the French Acting Consul addressed to the British Acting Vice-Consul, before whom the prisoner had been tried, the letter, demanding the delivery of the prisoner.

That the demand was refused, and the matter had been referred by Mr. Egerton to Her Majesty's Government.

Illegality of the proceedings.

That the matter was complicated by the circumstance (which appeared to have escaped the British authorities in Egypt), that the Acting British Vice-Consul, apart from the question of French protection, had no jurisdiction over the prisoner, and no legal authority to hold a Court at all, under the Ottoman Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873,* and that the whole proceedings were illegal from beginning to end, for the following reasons:—

1. That neither Captain Mein nor Lieutenant Peyton, for whom he was acting, held any Consular Commission nor any authority in writing under the hand and seal of the Judge of the Supreme Consular Court, and therefore they could not hold a Provincial Court (Order in Council, sections 15 and 4).

2. That if the Court had been lawfully held, yet it had no jurisdiction over the prisoner, as he was an Abyssinian, and not under British protection.

3. That the case was one which could only have been tried with assessors (section 271).

4. That no Provincial Court has power to impose flogging, the limits of punishment being fixed by section 271.

That, in those circumstances, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the prisoner should be set at liberty.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Prisoner should be liberated.

That, in our opinion, the prisoner, Saïd John, should be set at liberty.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

France.

No. 55.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 3, 1885.

Steam-cutters being built at Cowes for French Government.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 31st ultimo, stating that with reference to our Report of the 11th December last, he had, by your Lordship's direction, to transmit to us the accompanying note† which he had received from the French Ambassador relative to the steam-cutters which were being built by Messrs. White to the order of the French Government, and Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our immediate opinion whether, in view of the explanation thus given by the French Government, it will be right and proper to permit those cutters to leave British waters.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

French assurance as to their not being used against China not satisfactory.

That although too weak to carry artillery the boats may, nevertheless, be within the Foreign Enlistment Act; and the assurance given by M. Waddington is not what was asked for. He states that they have not been ordered, directly or indirectly, in view of the operations in China, not that they will not be so used. Probably this is unintentional. But it would seem desirable to point the matter out to M. Waddington, and to obtain the assurance asked; otherwise difficulty might occur hereafter when similar questions arise.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

[*] Mr. Egerton, No. 677, September 16, 1885.

[*] Confidential No. 2354.

[†] M. Waddington, December 25; to M. Waddington, December 16; Law Officers, December 11, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 52.

1885

No. 56.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received January 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 9, 1885.

Suspected sale of British steamers to French Government.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 5th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us papers* relating to negotiations which were stated to be in progress for the sale, ostensibly to a French Company, but in reality for the use of the French Government, of certain steamers of the "Castle" and "Monarch" Lines.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the course which it would be proper to pursue in view of the information, of a somewhat vague description, which Her Majesty's Government had, at the date of his letter, been able to procure on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Evidence not sufficient to justify seizure of vessels; but delivery of vessels to French Agents should be prevented. Suggest communication with owner son subject.

That we are of opinion that there is not at present sufficient evidence to justify the seizure or detention of the vessels in question.

At the same time, great vigilance should be employed in order to prevent, if possible, any delivery of the vessels to the Agents of the French Government.

We suggest that there is no objection to communicating to the owners that information has reached Her Majesty's Government, which gives rise to the belief that the vessels are intended to pass into the hands of the French Government for the purpose of being employed in warlike operations; that any such sale would be contrary to the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and would subject the vendors and persons concerned to heavy penalties. The owners may also be requested to say distinctly whether such sale is intended.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

Annex.

Dr. Deane to Sir J. Pauncefote.—(Received January 9.)

My dear Sir Julian, 3, Paper Buildings, Temple, January 9, 1885.

Reasons for not signing above Report.

I HAVE signed the Report on the sale of ships of the "Castle" and "Monarch" Lines for the Attorney- and Solicitor- General, who are out of town.

Vessels should be detained.

They are probably right, but the circumstances are to my mind so unequivocal, seeing the need of the French Government for transports to take reinforcements out to the Chinese Seas and the selling owners may so easily ignore the intended real destination and use of the ships, that, in my opinion, the ships should be detained. I have, therefore, not signed the Report myself. I send it to avoid delay.

I remain, &c.
(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No 57.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 15, 1885.

Cutters being built for French Government at Cowes.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 10th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 3rd instant, he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, a copy of a note which was received on the 2nd instant from the French Ambassador,† relative to the cutters being built by Messrs. White, in which it was stated that his Excellency's previous note on that subject was to the effect that those cutters "n'étaient destinés à servir ni directement ni indirectement, en vue des mesures de rigueur que la France exerce en ce moment contre la Chine."

* Marquis Tsêng, December 23; to Treasury, December 23; Treasury, December 26; to Marquis Tsêng, December 31; to Treasury, December 31, 1884. Treasury, January 3, Confidential No. 5163, p. 1; ditto, January 3, 1885, Confidential No. 5163, p. 2.

† M. Waddington, January 2, 1885.

No. 55*.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Colonial Office.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 7, 1885.

Extradition of Marcelin from New South Wales to French.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Bramston's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us copies of a letter from the Colonial Office (with its inclosures) to the Foreign Office, and of the reply from the latter Office, respecting the circumstances under which C. M. H. Marcelin, accused of embezzlement, was surrendered in New South Wales to the French authorities.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the doubt expressed in the Foreign Office letter was well founded.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

With consent of the accused, he may be surrendered before expiration of fifteen days.

That we are of opinion that the delay of fifteen days is interposed for the protection of the fugitive criminal, and to give him an opportunity of contesting the propriety of the proposed surrender, and we think, therefore, that if he desires to be sooner surrendered it may lawfully be done.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

1885

That as it was further stated that the period within which the cutters were to be delivered would expire on the 5th January, and that as our Report of the 3rd instant had not then been received, your Lordship was of opinion that the language of the French Ambassador's note of the 2nd instant, read in connection with his Excellency's previous note of the 25th ultimo, conveyed in sufficient terms the assurance contemplated in the second paragraph of our Report of the 11th December last.

Orders for delivery of boats given.

That in view, therefore, of the urgency of the case, your Lordship desired that the Board of Treasury would signify to Messrs. White the permission of Her Majesty's Government for the cutters to be handed over to the French authorities.

That your Lordship trusted that we should be of opinion that that action was justified by the circumstances of the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Under circumstances course adopted was justified.

That we are of opinion that the action taken by your Lordship in the matter was justified by the circumstances of the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 58.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 20.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 19, 1885.

The "Ingeborg," at Kelung, detained for three days, and not allowed to discharge cargo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 5th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers[*] relating to the case of the British steamer "Ingeborg," which was prevented from landing her cargo at Kelung by the French naval authorities.

That it appeared from the inclosures in the despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking that the vessel was chartered by a Chinaman (Mr. Plunkett's No. 184), cleared from Shanghae for Kelung with a general cargo on the 30th September, and that on her arrival at her destination on the 3rd October she was boarded and overhauled by an officer from the French flag-ship "Bayard," who informed the master that the port was in the possession of the French, and that the cargo was not to be landed without the permission of Admiral Courbet.

That after a detention of three days, permission was given to the "Ingeborg" to discharge her cargo into junks, but not to land it; that that offer was, however, declined by the supercargo, and the ship thereupon proceeded to Nagasaki. That the agents for the owners of the ship had entered a formal protest before Her Majesty's Consul-General at Shanghae. That Mr. Currie was to request our opinion as to whether the circumstances of the case disclosed any grounds for a claim for compensation on the part of the owners of the "Ingeborg," in view of the military occupation of Kelung by the French forces at the time of the act complained of.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No grounds for claim on part of owners.

That, in our opinion, the circumstances disclose no grounds for a claim for compensation on the part of the owners of the "Ingeborg."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 59.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 27, 1885.

Convention for the protection of submarine cables.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 26th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the Convention for the protection of submarine telegraph cables, signed at Paris on the 14th March last.

---

[*] Sir H. Parkes, No. 269, November 12; Mr. Plunkett, No. 184, October 18, 1884.

1885

That it would be seen that the French Government had inquired at what date Her Majesty's Government expected to be ready to ratify the Convention; and that the Board of Trade had communicated, for any observations which your Lordship might have to offer on its provisions, copy of a draft Bill for giving effect in this country to the Convention in question.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would be so good as to take the papers into consideration, and favour your Lordship with (1) any advice which we might have to give in regard to that draft Bill, for communication to the Board of Trade; and (2) with our opinion whether, in that instance, Her Majesty should be advised to ratify the Convention forthwith, without waiting for the passing of the Act for giving effect to the Convention in this country.

That Article XVII of the Convention provided that the ratification should take place, "at the latest," at the expiration of a year from the date of signature, which would be the 14th March next. That Article VIII provided for the case where the Tribunals might not yet have legal power to deal with offences, and that Article XVI provided that the Convention should not come into force until the Powers, parties to the Convention, agreed to the date when it should be brought into force.

That under those circumstances your Lordship presumed that the Convention might be ratified within the period stipulated.

We have also the honour to acknowledge a further Memorandum from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 15th instant, inclosing a note from the French Ambassador,† communicating copies of the Law passed in France for carrying out the Convention of the 14th March, 1884.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

May be ratified within stipulated time, without waiting for passing of Act.

That we think the Convention may be ratified within the period stipulated, and that there is no objection to its being ratified without waiting for the passing of the Act for giving effect to it.

The date when the Convention is to come into force is, by Article XVI, postponed until a date to be fixed by agreement between the Powers. And by Article XII the High Contracting Parties only engage to take, "or to propose to their respective Legislatures," the necessary measures for insuring the execution of the Convention.

Will take steps for drafting Bill.

We will confer with Mr. Jenkyns as to the drafting of the proposed Bill.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 60.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 28, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Instructions to Governors of Colonies for carrying out the Foreign Enlistment Act.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd January, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 22nd ultimo, he was to transmit to us the papers‡ relating to the special telegraphic instructions addressed to the Governors of the Colonies of Hong Kong, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements for their guidance in enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act during the hostilities then existing between France and China.

That those instructions, which had been framed generally on our Reports above referred to, would be found in the Colonial Office letter (inclosure) of the 20th instant. That it was thought desirable to dispatch them without the delay of a further reference to us, and that our opinion was requested as to whether they were proper and sufficient, or whether we considered that they required any modification or addition.

---

* Text of Convention, "Commercial No. 15 (1884)," Parliamentary No. 2812; Viscount Lyons, No. 75, Treaty, November 28; Board of Trade, December 3, with draft Bill; Viscount Lyons, No. 398, Commercial, December 21, 1884.

† M. Waddington, January 10, 1885.

‡ Colonial Office, January 12; to ditto, January 15; Colonial Office, January 20, 1885, see Confidential No. 5163, pp. 4, 5, and 7; Law Officers' Report, December 22, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 52; Memorandum (E. H.), November 27, 1884.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think the instructions sent may give rise to some difficulty.

Objections to the use of the words "nearest port."

They direct that coals should only be supplied to belligerent ships in such quantities as would be necessary for moving to "the nearest port where no naval operations are being carried on." And repairs and the supply of provisions are to be limited to such as are strictly necessary to enable belligerent ships to hold the sea on their voyage "to such place as aforesaid."

Now the "nearest port" within the unqualified terms of these instructions might be a Chinese port, where no coal or provisions could be obtained by a French ship of war.

During the American War of Secession the prohibition was against a supply of coals greater than would be sufficient to carry the vessels to "the nearest port of their own country, or some nearer destination."

It may be that the local circumstances require some modification of this, but it does not seem satisfactory to limit the supply in the manner provided for by the instructions. It might in some cases be equivalent to a total prohibition, if "the nearest port" were a port of the other belligerent, where no hostile operations were carried on. And if "the nearest port" were another British port, it would involve a double responsibility and oversight on the part of British authorities.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Instructions to Governors of Eastern Colonies.

Referring to 10th section of Foreign Enlistment Act, public ships of either belligerent should not be allowed supplies such as would assist naval operations. Therefore, no more coal should be furnished to any belligerent ships than would be necessary for moving to the nearest national port or nearer destination. Also, repairs of belligerent ships and supply of provisions for crew should be restricted to such as are necessary to enable belligerent ship to hold the sea on voyage to such destination as aforesaid. You should allow no repairs to be effected or supplies furnished to belligerent ship except under supervision of local authorities, whose duty it would be immediately to report to the Governor in each case in which the limits imposed were being infringed.

---

No. 61.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 28, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities.

Enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 27th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 22nd ultimo, and to his letter of the 23rd instant, relative to the enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act in the Colonies of Hong Kong, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements, he had the honour, by direction of your Lordship, to transmit to us, for our further consideration, the papers* containing the correspondence which had passed between your Lordship and the French Ambassador on that subject in October and November last.

That the existing understanding between the two Governments, as appeared from the above correspondence, was that, in view of the absence of any declaration of war, and in consideration of the assurance by France of her intention not to exercise the belligerent right of search on the high seas, Her Majesty's Government had declared that they would not issue a Proclamation of Neutrality, but confine themselves to the observance of the Foreign Enlistment Act, without enforcing all the strict rights of neutrals.

---

* M. Waddington, October 22 and 24; to ditto, October 25 and 31; M. Waddington, November 5; to ditto, November 11; M. Waddington, November 21; to ditto, November 26, 1884; Colonial Office, January 24, 1885, Confidential No. 5163, p. 9.

That our attention was also invited to a letter from the Colonial Office of the 24th instant, from which we should perceive that large exports of arms were stated to be shipped from Hong Kong for the use of the Chinese.

That the special instructions which had recently been issued to the Governors of the Eastern Colonies for their guidance in enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act had been made public in Hong Kong, and had caused much dissatisfaction to the French Government, for that, while the export of munitions of war from Hong Kong was unrestricted, the French had voluntarily debarred themselves from pursuing their remedy by capture on the high seas as contraband of war.

That, under those circumstances, the French Government were placed at some disadvantage, and the question which now arose was whether, in view of the large export of arms from Hong Kong to China, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in relaxing the enforcement of section 10 of the Foreign Enlistment Act as against the vessels of both belligerents, especially with respect to repairs and the supply of provisions and coal which they might require.

That our opinion was requested, at our earliest convenience, on the questions submitted in that letter, together with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Difficulty in relaxing provisions of the Act with regard to coals, &c.

That we see great difficulty in making any relaxation of the Foreign Enlistment Act so as to permit coals to be unrestrictedly supplied, even although the French may be willing in return to refrain from exercising their right of seizure and search. Her Majesty's Government have communicated to both belligerents their intention to enforce the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and it seems impossible, without the assent of the belligerents affected by any departure from the Act, to fail fully to carry out this undertaking.

Export of arms and supply of coal not on same footing.

It may be pointed out to the French Government that the mere export of munitions of war by any one amounts to no infringement of the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act or breach of the obligations of neutrals, and such would be the case even if a Proclamation of Neutrality were issued.

On the other hand, the supply of coal direct to a belligerent vessel is regarded as an act of equipment, and, if exceeding the allowed limited restrictions, would be a breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

To point out officiously to Chinese Minister that French surrender of right of search depends on supply of coal.

We suggest that it may be well to point out officiously to the Chinese Minister that if the French are to be no longer allowed to be supplied with coal, it cannot be expected that they will continue to give up their right of seizure and search in respect of munitions of war exported from Hong Kong and other places into China, and that, therefore, in order to maintain immunity from such search, it will, in the interests of the Chinese, be advisable to cease to make any representations in respect of supplying coal to French ships.

In the event of the Chinese Minister not accepting this view, it seems to us that whilst on the one hand the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act may have to be enforced, we may find difficulty in insisting upon the continuance of the French undertaking not to exercise their right of search and seizure.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 62.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 2.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 29, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 28th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin,* which related to certain inquiries addressed by the Governor of Hong Kong to the Colonial Office, and to which a telegraphic answer was required.

That his Excellency desired to know whether the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes and the Chinese revenue cruizers touching at Hong Kong were to be considered "public ships," within the meaning of the telegraphic instruction which was sent to the Governors of Hong Kong, Ceylon, and the Straits Settlements, of which a copy was inclosed in the Colonial Office letter of the 20th instant, and which was referred for our opinion as to the sufficiency of its terms in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd instant.

---

* Colonial Office, January 23, 1885, Confidential No. 5163, p. 8; Postal Convention, Great Britain and France, September 24, 1856, Treaty No. 412.

That the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes were mail-steamers, and that the Company was subsidized by the French Government.

That their steamers enjoyed, by virtue of the Postal Convention of 1856 between Great Britain and France (of which a copy was inclosed), the immunities of foreign vessels of war in British ports. That it was not unlikely that, under the Company's contract of subsidy, those steamers were under some obligation to serve the Government in time of war, if called on to do so.

Proposed answer that Messageries steamers may enjoy their Treaty rights unless they assist French operations.

That your Lordship therefore proposed, with our concurrence, to reply that the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes, while continuing to enjoy their Treaty immunities, must be treated as passenger-ships, provided they took no active part in belligerent operations, as transports or otherwise, but that if they should be employed by the French Government to assist the French military operations in China, the fact should be reported home by telegram, with particulars of the services required of them in connection with the existing hostilities.

Question as to position of Chinese revenue cruizers.

That as regarded the question whether the Chinese revenue cruizers were to be treated as belligerent ships, your Lordship believed that they were in fact vessels of war; but that that was a question which could best be elucidated on the spot, and that your Lordship proposed to reply that the Governor of Hong Kong should be instructed, if he should have any doubt on the subject, to telegraph for information on the point to Her Majesty's Minister at Peking.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to whether the inquiries of the Governor of Hong Kong might properly be answered in the sense above indicated.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve answer as to Messageries steamers.

That we think the question as to the steamers of the Messageries Maritimes may properly be answered in the sense above indicated.

Revenue cruizers, if only such, may be supplied with coal.

With regard to the revenue cruizers, even assuming them to be vessels with some warlike equipment, if there is every reason to believe that they are merely to be employed for revenue purposes, and not in the military or naval service of China, we do not think that supplying coals would be within section 8 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, or "an equipment for war" whereby "the warlike force of the ship was increased" within section 10.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 63.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 7.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 6, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 4th instant, stating that, with reference to our previous Reports on the subject of the enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act in view of the existing hostilities between France and China, he had the honour, by direction of your Lordship, to transmit to us the correspondence, marked in the margin,* which has passed between your Lordship and the French Ambassador on that question.

Exercise of right search of neutral vessels by France.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to state that, in consequence of the decision of the French Government to exercise strict belligerent rights, including that of search of neutral vessels on the high seas, the Colonial and India Offices had been requested to cause the necessary notifications to be issued in the Indian and colonial ports, and that instructions on the subject had been sent to Her Majesty's Representatives and Consuls in China and Japan, and to the Commanders-in-chief of Her Majesty's vessels on the East India and China Stations.

---

* M. Waddington, January 29; to ditto, January 31, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, pp. 15 and 17.

1885

That the question on which your Lordship now desired our opinion was whether it would be desirable and proper that some public notification should be made in this country of the intention of the French Government to exercise the right of search of neutral vessels on the high seas for contraband of war.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Public notification should be made.

That we think it would be desirable and proper that some public notification should be made in this country of the intention of the French Government to exercise the right of search of neutral vessels on the high seas for contraband of war being carried to Chinese ports.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 64.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 7.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 7, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Australian coal consigned to foreigners at Chinese port.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 5th instant, stating that he was to transmit a copy of a letter* which your Lordship had caused to be addressed to the Colonial Office on the subject of the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong to China, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was also to inclose a letter† from that Department in which the inquiry was made whether Australian coal in British ships, consigned to other than Chinese merchants, would be jeopardized on a voyage to a Chinese Treaty port, in view of the recent decision of the French Government to exercise the right of search on the high seas.

That our opinion was requested as to the reply to be made to that inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That in 1859, and again in 1870, France declared coal not to be contraband of war. England, in 1870, considered that its character was to be determined by its destination, though she refuses to class it, as a general rule, as contraband. Thus vessels were, during the war of 1870, prohibited from sailing from English ports with coal directly conveyed to the French fleet in the North Sea.

Coal is so largely used for innocent purposes that no sufficient presumption that it is intended for warlike use is afforded by the simple fact of its destination to a belligerent port.

Coal not contraband unless to be employed for warlike purposes.

We think, therefore, that where coal is being conveyed in the ordinary course of business, consigned to a merchant at a belligerent port, it ought not to be regarded as contraband of war.

But if its use for warlike purposes is extremely probable, as by its consignment to a naval arsenal or station, it might be regarded as contraband.

It does not seem likely, having regard to the view on this subject which has hitherto been insisted upon by France, that she will take an extreme view upon the subject.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 65.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received February 10.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 10, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of yesterday's date, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 6th instant, he was to transmit to us a draft of a Notice which your Lordship proposed to insert in the "London Gazette" with regard to the exercise of strict belligerent rights by France during the continuance of hostilities between France and China, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to inquire whether we approved of its terms, or whether we were of opinion that the 2nd paragraph should be omitted, so as to avoid any similarity to the issue of a Proclamation of Neutrality.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we suggest that some alteration may advantageously be made in the form of the Notification.

Send amended Notification.

We have therefore redrafted it, and submit it in such amended form for the consideration of your Lordship.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

Annex.

Draft Notice.

As to strict exercise of belligerent rights by France, including right of search.

It is hereby notified for public information that it has been announced to Her Majesty's Government by the Government of the French Republic that it is their intention to exercise, during the continuance of the present hostilities between France and China, the rights of belligerents which are recognized by the law of nations, including the right to search neutral vessels on the high seas for contraband of war.

H. J.
F. H.

---

No. 66.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 19.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 18, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Export of arms from Hong Kong. French request for prohibition of.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the French Ambassador, and the papers noted in the accompanying list,* relative to a request by the French Government that the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong should be prohibited during the continuance of hostilities between France and China, under the powers conferred on the Governors of the Colony by Ordinance No. 3 of 1862. That that Ordinance was an adaptation of section 150 of the Customs Consolidation Act (16 and 17 Vict., cap. 107), as to which Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to the Law Officers' Report of the 14th October, 1870, in which it was shown that the provision in question applied only where this country was at war, and was intended only for national protection, and not for the purpose of securing neutrality.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that, as stated by the French Ambassador, the Hong Kong Ordinance had been occasionally put in force when Great Britain had not been at war, namely, where civil commotions had broken out in the mainland of China near Hong Kong; that a similar course had been followed in the Straits Settlements when riots had broken out among the natives in the neighbouring Dutch possessions.

Suggesting grant of request in exchange for renunciation of right of search of neutral ships.

But that those cases afforded no precedent for prohibiting the export of arms to secure neutrality in a war between two foreign nations. That it was pointed out, however, in the Reports of the Law Officers above referred to, that an exceptional course had been taken in consequence of special provisions in Treaties, and that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion whether there would be any objection to a proposal being made to the French Government for a special arrangement whereby the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong to China should be prohibited under the Colonial Ordinance in question, on condition of the French Government abstaining from enforcing the belligerents' right of search of neutral vessels on the high seas.

That our opinion was also requested as to the reply which should be returned to M. Waddington's letter conveying the request of his Government that the export of arms from Hong Kong should be prohibited under the Colonial Ordinance above referred to.

---

* To Colonial Office, February 5, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 25.
† Colonial Office, February 5, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 25.

* M. Waddington, February 4; Colonial Office, February 10, 1885, with Hong Kong Ordinance No 3, of March 17, 1862, see Confidential No. 5163, pp. 23 and 32; Law Officers' Reports of July 25 and October 14, 1870, Confidential No. 3660, pp. 123, 130.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

French have no right to make such a request.

That we are of opinion that the request of the French Ambassador should not be complied with. That request is simply a demand on the part of the French Government that the exportation, from English territory, of contraband of war should be forbidden in the interests of France.

There can be no right in a belligerent State to call upon a neutral Government to prevent the exportation of goods from its territory, on the ground that they may be used for belligerent purposes. It may be well to remind the French Ambassador that the French nation would have had great ground of complaint if this country had complied with the request of the German Government in 1870 to prohibit the exportation of arms and munitions of war from this country.

No objection to suggested arrangement, which is a matter of policy.

Upon the further question submitted to us, we are of opinion that it is competent for the Governor of Hong Kong to exercise the powers contained in the Ordinance of 1862, and to prohibit the exportation of arms, &c., to all places generally, and we think that Her Majesty's Government might sanction such prohibition, not because it is demanded by France, but in the interests of this country. Such interests may depend upon the necessity to fulfil Treaty obligations, or upon the ground that it is to the advantage of this country and the Colony that such exportation should be prohibited. Whether such an arrangement as that suggested would be, on the whole, for the advantage of the Colony, and in other respects is proper to be carried into effect, resolves itself into a question of expediency and policy upon which we do not offer an opinion; but we must point out that the effect of enforcing the prohibition will necessarily be injurious to Chinese interests, though beneficial to those of France.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 67.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 21.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 20, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Exercise of right of search of neutrals.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the letters* which had been addressed to your Lordship by Lloyd's and by various Insurance Companies and shippers with respect to the announcement by the French Government of their intention to exercise the belligerent right of search over neutral vessels on the high seas for contraband of war during the existing hostilities in China. That in letters (A), (B), and (C) inquiry was made by three Insurance Companies whether vessels which sailed with contraband of war prior to the time at which the French Government announced their intention of exercising the right of search were liable to capture. That in letter (D) Mr. A. Holt asked for an authoritative statement as to the position of shippers to China of rifles and other articles contraband of war, and whether presence of contraband of war on board of a vessel rendered the vessel and other cargo liable to confiscation.

Questions as to position of vessels carrying contraband of war.

Liability of gunpowder for Hong Kong to seizure.

That in letter (E) Messrs. John Hall and Son, the gunpowder manufacturers, inquired whether, under the circumstances mentioned, gunpowder shipped from London to Hong Kong was liable to capture.

Supply of coal to French cruizers.

That in letter (F) the Committee of Lloyd's inquired whether Her Majesty's Government intended to close British ports in the Eastern seas to French cruizers in case they should desire to be refitted or supplied with coal.

That as regarded the questions raised in the first three letters, your Lordship desired to be informed whether, in our opinion, any communication should be made to the French Government with a view to some understanding on the subject, and, if not, what answer should be returned to the inquiry.

That as regarded the questions raised in letters (D) and (E) from Mr. Holt and Messrs. Hall and Son, Sir J. Pauncefote invited our attention to the reply of the Law Officers of the Crown of the 23rd August, 1870, in which they advised the Secretary of State, during the Franco-German war, that it was not the duty of Her Majesty's Government to advise private traders as to the legality of contemplated transactions. But that if we should be of opinion those inquiries should be answered, your Lordship would be glad to be informed of the reply which should be returned thereto.

That as regarded letter (F) from Lloyd's, your Lordship would propose, with our concurrence, to reply that Her Majesty's Government had decided to confine their action at present to the strict enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should communicate with French as to seizure of vessels sailing before issue of Notification.

That, in our opinion, it would be most unjust for the French Government to direct that the power of search and seizure should be exercised in respect of vessels which sailed before notification of the intention to exercise that power. And we think that representations should be made to that effect to the French Ambassador.

And inform inquirers of fact.

And the inquiries contained in the letters (A), (B), and (C) may be answered by informing the writers that your Lordship is in communication with the French Ambassador on the subject.

Inexpedient to advise private traders.

With regard to the question asked by Mr. Holt—letter (D)—we agree with the view expressed by the Law Officers in their Report of the 23rd August, 1870. We think it neither expedient nor safe for Her Majesty's Government to undertake to answer such questions.

This applies also to the question put by Messrs. Hall—letter (E).

And we think the inquirers should be informed that, in not answering their questions and giving them advice, your Lordship is following the course which has been pursued in the case of former wars.

Concur in answer to third question.

We concur in the reply proposed to be given by your Lordship to letter (F).

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Papers in Confidential No. 5163, pp. 25–38, viz.:—(A) Union Insurance Company, February 12; (B) Society of London Underwriters, February 12; (C) North China Insurance Company, February 13; (D) Mr. A. Holt, February 14; (E) Messrs. J. Hall and Son, February 14; (F) Lloyd's, February 16, 1885; (G) Law Officers' Report, August 23, 1870, p. 39 (No. 62), Confidential No. 3660.

---

No. 68.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 21.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 20, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Supply of coals to vessels chartered by French to carry coals to depôt at Haiphong.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris,* inquiring whether a vessel chartered by the French Government to carry coals to their depôt at Haiphong would be permitted to take in fuel at British coaling-stations on the way out.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of the Special Instructions† to the Governors of the Eastern Colonies for their guidance in enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and that he was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the answer which should be returned to the inquiry of the French Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Inexpedient to deal with special cases by general rule.

That we think it will be very inexpedient to attempt to deal with every particular case which may arise by any general definition of the conduct which should be pursued towards belligerents. For instance, the supply of coal by a neutral to a belligerent must depend upon conditions and circumstances which cannot in all cases be foreseen.

Should not give a categorical reply but forward copy of Instructions to Governors to Mr. Segrave.

We think it therefore unadvisable that a categorical answer should be given to the question put to Mr. Segrave, and that it will be wise to forward to that gentleman a copy of the Instructions on the subject given to the Governors of our Eastern

---

* Lord Lyons, No. 84, of February 8, 1885. Confidential No 5163, p. 30.
In letter to Colonial Office of January 29, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 16.

1885

Colonies, and to inform him that he is at liberty to state that such Instructions will doubtless be acted upon.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 69.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 24.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 24, 1885.

My Lord,

Proposed sale of vessels to French subject. Question as to its legality.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th February instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Treasury, dated the 7th instant, inclosing a Report from the Board of Customs on the subject of the proposed sale to a French subject of certain vessels belonging to the "Castle Mail Packets Company," and in which the Treasury requested to be informed of the answer which should, in your Lordship's opinion, be returned to Messrs. Donald Currie and Co., the Managers of the Company, as to the proposed sale.

That it appeared from the letter of Donald Currie and Co. to the Customs* that the purchaser has represented that the vessels in question are intended for employment on the Congo.

That the Foreign Enlistment Act forbade the dispatching, or causing or allowing to be dispatched, any ship with intent or knowledge, or having reasonable cause to believe, that the same shall or will be employed in the military or naval service of any foreign State at war with any friendly State, but that there was apparently no prohibition against the sale of any vessel in this country to a belligerent Government.

That your Lordship desired to be informed whether, in our opinion, your Lordship might properly recommend the Commissioners of Customs to decline answering the inquiry, and merely to reply that, "so long as the parties concerned do not violate the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, Her Majesty's Government have no wish to interfere with their transactions."

That if the above reply should not meet with our concurrence, Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the answer which might properly be returned.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Concur in answer as to non-interference of Her Majesty's Government.

That the above reply meets with our concurrence, with the exception that for the words, "Her Majesty's Government have no wish to," we think it would be better to substitute, "it is not within the province of Her Majesty's Government to."

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 70.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received February 24.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 24, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a note from the French Ambassador at this Court, dated the 20th instant, in which he stated that the French Government had determined to consider rice as a contraband of war, and that the French Naval Commanders had been instructed to treat it as such from the 26th instant.

That a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Peking was also inclosed.†

That our opinion was requested as to whether the measure announced by the French Government was warranted, under the circumstances, by the law of nations.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to the observations on that point in 4 Calvo, p. 22, § 2452, and in Hall's International Law, p. 583, § 245, and also to Wheaton (by Lawrence), p. 781, citing Valin and Pothier as to French law.

---

* In Treasury letter of February 7, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 29.

† Sir H. Parkes, No. 319, December 13, 1884. Confidential No. 5144, p. 115.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Measures not warranted.

That we are of opinion that the measure announced by the French Government is not warranted by the law of nations.

The French Ambassador, in his letter of the 20th instant, announces the intention of his Government to consider and treat rice generally as contraband of war. There is no qualification of any kind in respect of the destination of the rice or the purposes for which it is intended to be applied. We are of opinion that such a position cannot be maintained.

Conditions under which provisions are contraband of war.

We understand the rule on the subject to be that provisions generally are not contraband, but may become so "under circumstances arising out of the particular situation of the war, or the condition of the parties engaged in it." (Lord Stowell, 1 Christopher Robinson, 193.)

Thus, if provisions were consigned to a port of a belligerent (even if it be one of naval equipment) they are not, therefore, regarded as contraband, but if such supplies were consigned directly to the fleet of a belligerent, or to a port where such fleet was lying, and facts existed raising the presumption that the provisions were about to be employed in victualling the fleet, the enemy of the belligerent would be entitled to seize the provisions as contraband on the ground that they would enable warlike operations to be carried on. This view is concisely expressed by Lord Stowell in the case of the "Jonge Margaretha" (1 C. Robinson, 194), when he says, "But the most important distinction is whether the articles were intended for the ordinary use of life, or even for mercantile ships' use, or whether they were going with a highly probable destination of military use."

We believe that this country, at the end of last century, endeavoured to act upon a different principle, and sought to prevent provisions entering any French port, but such action has been condemned by other nations and by many writers of authority, and such a view certainly cannot now be maintained.

Should not assent to right to declare rice contraband,

We therefore think that the French Ambassador should be informed that Her Majesty's Government cannot assent to the right of the French Government to declare rice generally as contraband of war.

nor acquiesce in suggestion as to date for enforcing notification.

We may also point out that the suggestion that the notification should take effect from the 26th instant is one that could not under any circumstances be acquiesced in, as many vessels laden with rice may have already commenced their voyages.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 71.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 26.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 25, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Liability of the "Galley of Lorne" with cargo of merchant powder to seizure.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 24th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Admiralty* relative to the liability to search or seizure by French men-of-war of the steam-ship "Galley of Lorne," bound for the Straits and Hong Kong, with a cargo of merchant powder, in addition to a consignment of Government arms and munitions of war for delivery at Singapore and Hong Kong.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that the reply of the Admiralty to Messrs. Hogg and Robinson did not appear to be consistent with the law as laid down in section 178 of Lushington's "Naval Prize Law," p. 37, to the effect that the destination of the vessel was conclusive as to the destination of the goods.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether your Lordship could properly express your concurrence in the terms of the reply which had been returned by the Admiralty to Messrs. Hogg and Robinson's inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Incorrectness of Admiralty reply.

That we think that so much of the Admiralty reply as suggests that, because it "would not be easy to prove that the merchant powder is not intended for sale to the Chinese," that portion of the cargo, and perhaps the vessel, may be liable to seizure,

---

* Admiralty, February 17, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 41.

1885

should not be approved. Assuming that the destination of the vessel is Hong Kong and Yokohama (both neutral ports), and that she is not intended and cannot be required to call at any Chinese port, we think that, primâ facie, the powder must be deemed to have a neutral destination.

There is authority for the view that, even if the contraband article is, in fact, intended by the shippers to be ultimately supplied to a belligerent, yet it is not liable to seizure so long as it is in course of conveyance from a neutral port to a neutral port in a neutral ship. (Hobbs v. Heming, 17 C.B., N.S., 791.)

A belligerent has no right to seize a cargo on a neutral vessel consigned to a neutral port.
Circumstances under which a ship with contraband is liable to confiscation.

But, however this may be, we think it clear that, in the absence of simulated papers, or other circumstances of suspicion, ascertained by the exercise of the right of search or otherwise, a belligerent has no right to seize as contraband a cargo on board a neutral vessel, bound to a neutral destination. We may add that the ship which carries a contraband cargo is not liable to confiscation unless either the ship and cargo belong to the same owner, or the ship is sailing under a false destination.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 72.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received February 26.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 26, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war only when destined for ports north of Canton.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 23rd February, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a further note from the French Ambassador* notifying that the intention of the French Government was to treat as contraband of war those cargoes of rice only which were destined for Chinese ports to the north of Canton.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken M. Waddington's note into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

Nothing in mention of north ports to modify former opinion.

That we see nothing in the distinction between the north and south ports to cause us to modify the opinion we expressed in our Report of the 24th instant.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 73.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 5, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband of war by France.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that, with reference to our Reports of the 24th and 26th ultimo, relative to the notice given by the French Government of their intention to treat rice as contraband of war, he was directed by your Lordship to request our opinion as to whether it would be proper and desirable to make any public notification of the decision of the French Government on that point.

That Her Majesty's Government contested the right of the French Government to treat rice generally as contraband of war; but that it was presumed that they could not interfere with the seizure of British vessels carrying cargoes of rice destined for the northern ports of China; and that they must await the decision of the French Prize Court on the subject before taking any action to obtain redress.

That in the meanwhile it might be deemed expedient to give notice to British shippers of the risk to which they were exposed.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a copy and translation of a Notice† issued on the subject by the German Government, and to request that, if we should be of opinion that a public Notice should be issued by Her Majesty's Government, we would be good enough to draft one for your Lordship's consideration.

---

* M. Waddington, February 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 55.

† Inclosure 2 in Sir E. Malet's No. 95, February 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 65.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Best form of Notification.

That we think it would be well to notify in the "Gazette" the decision of the French Government, and that this may best be done by stating that "The following despatch has been received from the French Government," and setting out its terms verbatim.

Statement should be made in Parliament against legality of action of France.

To avoid misunderstanding hereafter, we suggest that it would be well that simultaneously with, or immediately after, the announcement in the "Gazette" it should be stated in Parliament (which can be done in answer to a question) that Her Majesty's Government do not admit the legality of the action which the French Government has notified their intention to take.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 74.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 6.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 5, 1885.

My Lord,

Shooting of deserters from the French transport "Chandernagore" in British waters.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the shooting by their officers of certain French soldiers who deserted from the French hired transport "Chandernagore" while the ship was in British waters at New Harbour, Straits Settlements, on the 28th December last, en route for Tonquin. That the Colonial authorities had no power to surrender military deserters, and it was possibly for that reason that the extreme measure was resorted to by the Commander of the battalion on board of the French transport of firing upon deserters in the act of swimming ashore in British waters.

That according to Calvo, vol. i, p. 469, private vessels chartered for the exclusive purpose of transporting troops of a foreign State, and commanded by naval officers of that State, were accorded by the practice of nations the immunities of vessels of war; but that the "Chandernagore" was not commanded by a French naval officer.

That, moreover, the acts complained of, though done on board the transport, took effect externally.

That, on the other hand, the injury was confined to members of the military force conveyed on board the transport, and that it might be urged that the case was not dissimilar to that of troops passing through a friendly territory, which carry with them their own military law and complete immunity from the territorial jurisdiction.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the circumstances of the case called for any representation to the French Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should make representation to French Government.

That we think the circumstances of the case call for a representation to the French Government.

Question as to violation of neutral territory.

Even if the fusillade had been a source of danger only to the deserters, inasmuch as they were struck in British waters, outside the French vessel, we think a question arises whether a violation of neutral territory has not been committed.

Course adopted by France not legally justifiable.

But as it appears that some of the bullets reached the shore, and there endangered the life of at least one British subject, we think it clear that the course taken cannot be justified by international law.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colonial Office, February 6; ditto, February 12; Memorandum (E. H.) February 21, 1885.

No. 75.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 6.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 5, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities.

British pilots on French war-ships in River Min.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the question of the two British subjects who had served as pilots on board French ships of war during the operations of the French fleet in the Min. That the instruction to Her Majesty's Minister at Peking of the 6th January was founded on our Report of the 29th December last, but that it had not reached Sir H. Parkes' hands when he wrote his despatch of the 20th December last.

That your Lordship requested to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the proposed reply to the inquiry put by Sir H. Parkes was right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Opinion as to prosecution of British subjects.

That we see no objection to the proposed reply so far as it authorizes the prosecution, without waiting for special instructions, of British subjects offending by taking part in belligerent operations against China.

But, having regard to the complications, of a practical character, which may arise, as pointed out in former Reports, if prosecutions are instituted, in the Consular Courts in China, against British subjects in the Chinese military or naval service, we think it would be well still to require, in these cases, special instructions from the Foreign Office before proceedings are commenced.

Notification should be avoided.

And, if this view be adopted, we think that any public notification, such as that suggested, should be avoided.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Sir H. Parkes.

(No. .)

Sir, Foreign Office, , 1885.

I HAVE received your further despatch No. 329 of the 20th December last, inclosing copies of a correspondence which has passed between the Tsung-li Yamên and yourself in regard to the question of the prosecution of two British subjects who had served as pilots on board French ships of war during the operations of the French fleet in the Min.

The views of Her Majesty's Government upon this subject have already been conveyed to you in my despatch No. 9 of the 6th January last.

In reply to your inquiry, I authorize you to direct the prosecution of all British subjects offending against the Order in Council or the Foreign Enlistment Act, without waiting for special instructions from me, and you will issue a public notification to that effect.

I am, &c.

---

No. 76.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 10, 1885.

My Lord,

French transports. Supplies, &c., for, at Singapore.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,* inclosing copies of correspondence which had taken place between the Acting Governor of the Straits Settlements and the French Consul at Singapore respecting the enforcement of the 10th section of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

That our opinion was requested as to whether your Lordship could properly concur in the Earl of Derby's proposal to approve the action taken by the Acting Governor of the Straits Settlements in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Can approve action of Governor in refusing to delay execution of his instructions.

That, in our opinion, your Lordship can properly concur in the Earl of Derby's proposal to approve the action taken by the Acting Governor of the Straits Settlements in the matter.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 77.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 11, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Treatment of rice as contraband if shipped to ports north of Canton.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 5th instant, on the subject of the decision of the French Government to treat rice generally as contraband of war if carried to Chinese ports north of Canton, he was directed to state that your Lordship inclined to the opinion that if the notes from the French Ambassador, announcing that decision of his Government, were published in the "Gazette," it would be desirable to publish simultaneously your Lordship's reply of the 27th ultimo.†

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of that document, and to request us to favour your Lordship with our opinion whether there was any objection to its publication as suggested.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Objections to publication of answer to French Government.

That we think the publication, in the "Gazette," of your Lordship's reply of the 27th ultimo to the French Ambassador might give rise to misunderstanding.

It appears to us that it might create the impression that Her Majesty's Government would not permit the seizure of rice cargoes as contraband, and that their shipment might safely be continued. Whilst, in fact, the remedy of the owner of the cargo, if it should be condemned in the Prize Court, would be limited to seeking redress, through an application to the French Government, by Her Majesty's Government. It would be obviously undesirable to create a false security, and thus perhaps increase the number of such claims.

Should make protest public by answer to question in Parliament.

We suggested, in our former Report, the making public, by an answer to a question in Parliament, the protest which your Lordship had made, in order to prevent the French Government drawing the inference, from the publication of their Ambassador's despatch in the "Gazette," that the position taken up by your Lordship had been abandoned, and we adhere to the opinion already expressed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Sir H. Parkes, No. 205, October 8, Confidential No. 5045, p. 666 A; Law Officers, December 29, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 54; (A) to Sir H. Parkes, No. 9, January 6, 1885, Confidential No. 5144, p. 32; (B) Sir H. Parkes, No. 329, December 20, 1884, Confidential No. 5144, p. 125 A; (C) proposed draft to Sir H. Parkes.

* Colonial Office, February 27, 1885, Confidential No. 5163, p. 63, with inclosures, on the subject of the refusal of the Governor of Singapore to comply with the demand of the French Consul for a delay of twenty-five days in carrying out his instructions to enforce, in case of French Government and hired transports, section 10 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, 33 & 34 Vict., cap. 90.

† To M. Waddington, February 27, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 65.

1885

No. 78.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 13.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 12, 1885.

My Lord,

Supply of coals to homeward-bound French ships.

WE were honoured by your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the question of supplying coal at the Straits Settlements to homeward-bound French vessels.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the reply which your Lordship proposed to make to the Colonial Office was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed reply to Colonial Office.

That, in our opinion, the reply which your Lordship proposes to make to the Colonial Office is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Sir J. Pauncefote to Sir R. Herbert.

Foreign Office, March , 1885.

Sir,

I am directed by Earl Granville to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant, inclosing a copy of a despatch from the Officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements, asking whether section 10 of the Foreign Enlistment Act is to be enforced against homeward-bound vessels belonging to France in the same way as against vessels proceeding to the East.

Matter should be left to Governor.

Should obtain declaration as to use of coal.

In reply, I am to request you to state to the Earl of Derby that Lord Granville is of opinion that cases of this kind might with propriety be left to the discretion of the Governor, but that if French vessels are supplied with coal under such circumstances a declaration should be obtained from the Commander to the effect that the coal is to be used solely for the purpose of taking his ship home.

I am, &c.

---

No. 79.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 23.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 21, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Capture of neutral ships carrying contraband of war.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 20th ultimo, he was to transmit to us a note† which your Lordship had received from the French Ambassador in reply to the request which was addressed to his Excellency that vessels which had started on a voyage with contraband of war, before the French Government notified their intention to exercise strict belligerent rights, should not be exposed to capture.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether it would be proper for Her Majesty's Government to make a protest on the subject, in order to reserve their rights of diplomatic remonstrance hereafter, in case the French Prize Courts should uphold the views expressed in M. Waddington's note.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Under the circumstances should protest against intention to capture ships that sailed before issue of the notification.

That we think it will be proper for Her Majesty's Government to make a protest on the subject, as suggested.

It would, we suggest, be expedient to call the attention of the French Ambassador to the peculiar circumstances of the case. The French Government abstained advisedly from a declaration of war, and the usual Proclamation of Neutrality was accordingly not issued.

---

* Colonial Office, March 3, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 69. To ditto, March , 1885.

† M. Waddington, March 9, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 76.

They adopted the course of endeavouring to limit the area of belligerency, and the incidents attaching to it. And they abstained for a considerable time after belligerent operations had commenced, from exercising any right of search for contraband of war. Under these circumstances it does not appear reasonable that they should affect immediately, by the announcement of their intention to exercise the right of search, those who had dispatched cargoes on the faith, reasonably entertained, that this state of things would continue.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 80.

The Lord Chancellor to Earl Granville.—(Received March 31.)

House of Lords, March 30, 1885.

My dear Granville,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Claim of France to treat rice as contraband of war.

THE French Yellow Book,* containing the diplomatic correspondence as to the claim of France to treat rice as contraband of war, has just been put into my hands; and I have so, for the first time, become acquainted with the text of the despatches which have passed on that subject between our own and the French Government. I cannot say that I am easy at, or satisfied with, the position in which they leave us; and, as it does not seem that any reply has yet been sent to M. Ferry's letter to Waddington of the 13th March (p. 41 of that book), I venture to suggest that such a reply to that document may be sent as will prevent any possible misconstruction of your letter to Waddington (Ibid., p. 48) with which the book closes.

Necessity for resisting French claim.

It is hardly necessary for me to repeat (what I have already more than once said to you) that it is of most vital importance to all nations who, like ourselves, depend for the food of our population on imports from abroad, to maintain the right of neutrals to trade with us (or with any other country) in time of war, in provisions and other commodities, which are neither in their own proper nature contraband of war, nor intended for naval or military use, without being liable to capture; and to resist, inflexibly, the proposition, put forward by M. Ferry in his letter to M. Peyron 14th February, 1885, Yellow Book, p. 16), that "no rule of international law prevents the treatment, 'accidentellement,' as contraband of war, of 'une denrée, dont la privation pourra conduire l'ennemi à demander la paix' "—which proposition is reinforced in his Circular of the 21st February, 1885, ibid., pp. 18-20); where he says, that the stoppage of the export of rice from Shanghae to Northern China is a measure "susceptible d'exercer une action efficace sur le Gouvernement de Pékin," with which France cannot dispense, without losing "l'arme la plus puissante que les circonstances placent dans nos mains;" and that, having an incontestable right to blockade all the ports of China, they choose, instead of using that right, to prohibit the importation of rice by declaring it contraband of war; which M. Ferry affects to regard as a more moderate measure, and more favourable to neutrals than a blockade.

Consequences of acquiescing in it.

The consequences of these pretensions, if admitted, are manifest. If rice may be prohibited, because its exclusion may exercise a pressure upon the State whose people suffer from its prohibition in aid of the belligerent operations of the other State, and as a convenient substitute for blockade (without reference to any proved warlike destination of any particular cargoes), it is manifest, that all other importations of articles of necessary or common use for the civil population of either belligerent country might also be interdicted, as contraband of war, at the mere will and pleasure of the other belligerent. Such a doctrine would make a clean sweep of all international law whatever on this subject; and would deprive of all practical value the IInd Article of the Declaration of Paris, that "the neutral flag covers enemy's merchandize, except contraband of war; and also the IVth Article, which is directed against paper blockades.

The citations of supposed (British and other) authorities in favour of these pretensions are simply puerile, and evidently do not impose upon the French Government themselves.

Arguments brought forward by France in reply to British answer.

Your answer of the 27th February was very good. But what makes me now uneasy and anxious is, that the French Government have not acquiesced in it; but (on the contrary) on the 7th March M. Ferry wrote to Waddington, reiterating his

---

* Foreign Office Library, Folio No. 827.

1885

view of the necessity of preventing the importation of rice for the food of the "populations," as well as the "armies" of China. It is true that, in his subsequent letter of the 13th March, he alleges that "the greater number of cargoes of rice," on which the French interdict would fall, will be consigned in payment of some kind of public impost or tribute to the Chinese Government, and will be partly applied towards allowances, in the nature of pay, to be made by that Government to its armies; from which assumptions he argues that the destination of such cargoes is really warlike, even on the principle recognized by us; to which he adds, that they are also "enemy's property, and on that ground liable to capture;" an argument directly opposed to the very letter of the IInd Article of the Declaration of Paris. He assumes that the British Government will, under these circumstances, "admit that there is no objection to treating rice as contraband of war," and will have no difficulty in recognizing the exclusive jurisdiction of its "Conseil DES PRISES" to determine all questions arising out of any captures which may be made.

They should be answered.

I cannot think it is at all satisfactory that these letters should be left without any other answer than that contained in your letter to Waddington of the 21st March; and I am afraid that this letter, if not further guarded and explained, may be open to the construction that we acquiesce in the views of M. Ferry's letters of the 7th and 13th March, or, at all events, in the conclusions of the last of those letters. I cannot think that we ought to do so. When the "Trent" affair occurred, we were very careful not to let the American Government suppose that we could possibly have acquiesced in what Captain Wilkes had done, even if the ship had been taken into an American Prize Court, and if that Court had upheld the capture. We ought not to hold ourselves bound by any decisions of any belligerent Prize Courts, upholding the present French pretensions, or justifying any capture of a British vessel for carrying rice to the north of China, unless it were proved by reasonably sufficient evidence (and not by any such general presumptions as are put forward in M. Ferry's letter of the 13th March), that such rice had, in fact, a warlike destination.

We ought not to be bound by decisions of Prize Courts unless the rice has a warlike destination.

I hope that the letters of the 7th and 13th March may yet be answered in this sense.

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

Minute by Sir J. Pauncefote.

I am not aware that M. Ferry's despatch of the 13th March (Yellow Book, p. 41) was ever communicated to us by M. Waddington. But a draft reply to M. Waddington's note of the 10th March, which reproduces M. Ferry's despatch of the 7th March (Yellow Book, p. 38), has just been returned by the Law Officers, approved.

We might take that opportunity (by adding two paragraphs to that draft) of carrying out the recommendations of the Lord Chancellor. I have annexed to it a proposed addition which might be submitted to his Lordship for his consideration.

The French appear to hold that goods belonging to the Government of the enemy (as distinguished from private property) are not protected under the neutral flag by the Declaration of Paris; for M. Ferry uses the words "propriété de l'État ennemi." But, I presume, this contention cannot prevail, and it is therefore repudiated in the proposed addition to the draft.

J. P.

Paris, April 1, 1885.

---

No. 81.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 31.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 31, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. French claim to treat rice as contraband.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 24th instant, stating that with reference to our Report of the 24th ultimo, relative to the announcement of the French Government of their intention to treat rice as contraband of war, he was to transmit to us the further correspondence marked in the margin,* which had since passed between the French Ambassador and your Lordship on that subject.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the reply which your Lordship proposed to make to M. Waddington's note of the 10th instant was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve reply to French note.

That, in our opinion, the reply which your Lordship proposes to make to M. Waddington's note of the 10th instant is right and proper in the circumstances of the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Earl Granville to M. Waddington.†

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, , 1885.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's note of the 10th ultimo, containing further observations concerning the claim of the French Government to treat as contraband of war cargoes of rice destined for Chinese ports north of Canton.

I beg leave to state, in reply, that Her Majesty's Government do not contest the general correctness of the view taken by the Government of the Republic, to the effect that it is for the Prize Court to decide in the first instance on the legality of the seizure; but any such decision to be binding on neutral Governments must be in accordance with the rules and principles of international law; but Her Majesty's Government feel themselves bound to reserve their rights by protesting at once against the doctrine that it is for the belligerent to decide what is and what is not contraband of war, regardless of the well-established rights of neutrals.

Since the receipt of your Excellency's note under reply, my attention has been directed to M. Ferry's despatch of the 13th March, published at p. 41 of the Parliamentary Papers on the Affairs of China, recently laid before the French Chambers, in which further arguments are adduced in support of the contention of your Government, and it is suggested that some of the shipments of rice destined for China are in the nature of a tribute or subsidy to the Court of Peking, and that under those circumstances, at least, Her Majesty's Government will admit that such shipments are liable to seizure as contraband of war. I think it right to observe, M. l'Ambassadeur, in order to prevent any misapprehension, that the seizure of such shipments under a neutral flag would be inconsistent with the Declaration of Paris, which provides that the neutral flag covers enemy's goods with the exception of contraband of war, and that Her Majesty's Government adhere in all respects to the views expressed in my note of the 27th February last, protesting against rice being treated generally as contraband of war, and that they will not consider themselves bound by the decision of any Prize Court which should uphold a contrary doctrine.

I have, &c.

---

No. 82.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received April 1.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 1, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities. French hired transports.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying letter from the India Office,‡ inclosing an inquiry from the Government of Bombay as

---

* To M. Waddington, February 27; M. Waddington, March 10, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, pp. 65 and 78. And draft of proposed reply.

† As finally amended in accordance with the recommendations of the Lord Chancellor expressed in his letter of April 3, 1885.

‡ India Office, March 28, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 112.

1885

to whether merchant-vessels, hired by the French Government for the transport of French troops, were to be treated as ships in the military or naval service of France within the meaning of section 10 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and subjected to the rules as to neutrality.

That our opinion was requested as to the reply which should be returned to that inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should be treated as in service of France, in accordance with the Foreign Enlistment Act.

That we think that vessels hired by the French Government as transports are to be treated as ships in the military or naval service of France within the meaning of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Section 8 would appear to be the section to which the question of the Bombay Government applies rather than section 10.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 83.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 3.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 2, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities.
Export of arms from Hong Kong.
French request for its prohibition.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 18th February last, he was to transmit to us the papers* which related to the desire of the French Government that the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong to China should be prohibited.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to state that part of our side of the harbour of Hong Kong was Chinese territory, and that war material could be passed into China from Hong Kong through British Kowloon with complete immunity from interference by French cruizers.

That our opinion was requested as to the nature of the reply which should be made to M. Waddington's note of the 18th ultimo, taking into consideration the exceptional circumstances created by the geographical position of Hong Kong.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote inclosed a Map of Hong Kong, showing its proximity to the mainland of China.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should refuse to interfere with trade of Hong Kong,

That we are of opinion that your Lordship should, in reply to M. Waddington's letter of the 18th ultimo, inform his Excellency that your Lordship regrets that you feel it impossible to depart from the rules and practice of conduct resulting from well-established principles of international action.

It is fully recognized that the subjects of a neutral State, except so far as they are forbidden by legislation, may trade in all articles with the belligerents, whose only remedy is to stop such trading by seizure, in the manner recognized by international law.

Whilst it is true that the geographical position of Hong Kong gives great facility to English traders to carry on their trade with China under circumstances which render any seizure by the French almost impossible, yet such circumstances are not sufficient to cause the general rule we have above referred to to be departed from. Such facility of trade must be regarded as one of degree.

We presume that, during the French and German war, much trade existed between Belgium and France with which Germany had no power of interference, and such facility of trade would always exist in cases where the neutral and belligerent States were contiguous.

And protest against search of neutral vessels bound for that port.

We think also that the claim of the French Government to seize and search neutral vessels bound for the English port of Hong Kong should be most strongly protested against.

Geographical position of a neutral port does not justify such action.

No valid ground for such a claim exists. The geographical position of a neutral port cannot justify a belligerent Power in interfering with its trade.

For instance, if a war took place between England and Russia, the French would not, we assume, be prepared to permit the right of Russian vessels of war to seize and search French and other neutral vessels bound for Pondicherry, and yet the geographical position of that port would afford great facility for supplying goods to those engaged in belligerent operations.

---

[*] To M. Waddington, March 6; M. Waddington, March 18, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, pp. 74 and 96.

At the same time that these views are presented to M. Waddington, we think your Lordship may inform his Excellency that there is no desire on the part of the English Government to act in any other than the most friendly spirit towards the French Government, and there is every desire on the part of your Lordship to prevent, so far as is consistent with the preservation of recognized rights, Hong Kong being utilized in any way for the purpose of affording undue facilities to the Chinese in carrying on the war.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 84.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received April 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 2, 1885.

Convention for the protection of submarine cables.

REFERRING to the last paragraph of our letter to your Lordship of the 27th January last with reference to the draft Bill for giving effect in this country to the Submarine Telegraph Cables Convention, we have now the honour to report—

Undesirable to enact Convention in French.

That we have had the great advantage of conferring with Mr. Jenkyns upon the draft Bill submitted to us; and we think that it will not be desirable to enact the Convention in French, and that a correct translation ought to be inserted in the Schedule for the purpose of enactment.

Opinion as to limitation and application of Bill.

We consider that the Bill should be limited to giving effect to the Convention, and therefore should apply only to submarine cables to which the Convention applies, and should not extend to territorial waters.

We also think that as offences committed by British subjects by means of, or on board of, foreign vessels are not usually punishable by English law, the Bill should not apply to them.

We think that the Bill should extend to all British subjects and ships wherever they may be, and that the exception of the Colonies mentioned in the additional Article to the Convention should be treated as extending only to except cables landed on the shores of such of those Colonies as do not adhere to the Convention.

The Bill has been amended in other respects in accordance with our directions, and we think that the Bill as so amended may be properly submitted to Parliament.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 85.

The Lord Chancellor to Earl Granville.—(Received April 4.)

My dear Granville, Blackmoor, Petersfield, April 3, 1885.

Franco-Chinese hostilities.
French claim to treat rice as contraband.

I AM glad that it is not too late to modify the proposed letter* to the French Ambassador. The addition which Sir Julian Pauncefote proposes to make to it is very good, and quite meets my views. But I am not satisfied with the preceding part, though approved by the Law Officers; and I have ventured to suggest (in red ink) certain alterations.

Suggesting amendments in reply to French note of 10th March.

I wish, in the first place, to put in the word "general," because I am not prepared to admit that, if the facts were in any case (as, e.g., in the case of the "Trent") undisputed, and the seizure avowed to be made on a principle inconsistent, in our view, with international law, the injured neutral State would be bound to defer its remonstrance, or its interposition, till the form of a trial in the Prize Court has been gone through.

In the second place, I do not think diplomatic courtesy can possibly require, after the French Government have expressly stated, and reiterated, their claim to act on a principle contrary to international law, that we should say, we "do not doubt that the French Courts will do justice if any case should arise." I, for my own part, more than doubt it; and I think it will be much safer and better to put it as I suggest.

---

[*] See Annex to Report from the Law Officers of the 31st March.

1885

Believe me, &c.
(Signed) SELBORNE.

---

No. 86.

Note by the Lord Chancellor—(Received April 9.)

Export of arms, &c., from Hong Kong.

I HAVE no objection to the form of this despatch, if the substance is right. But I doubt as to the substance.

This seems to me to be a question, not of international law, but of policy.

We have power to prohibit it. Is inclined to do so.

In strict international law the Law Officers are undoubtedly right; but by our own statute law we have, I conceive, the power to prohibit the exportation of arms, &c., from Hong Kong, and the strong inclination of my own opinion is that it would be the safer and wiser policy to exercise that power under the peculiar circumstances and situation of Hong Kong.

It ought not to be forgotten that the whole "Alabama" difficulty arose out of our standing upon the rigid rule of recognized international obligations, which did not (as I am fully convinced) prohibit these acts, for which we afterwards (under an ex post facto rule made by the Treaty of Washington) had to pay 3,000,000*l.*

Results of a refusal.

I do not say that a similar result would follow in the present case if the advice of the Law Officers were followed; but what I do apprehend is that the French would act, as against ourselves, on extreme views of their own belligerent rights, such, e.g., as their extravagant claim to treat rice as contraband, even when not proved to have a destination for the supply of military or naval forces; and such as that at present threatened, viz., the interception of cargoes intended for China through Hong Kong.

Claim to intercept cargoes for China through Hong Kong not untenable.

I cannot agree with the Law Officers that this latter claim is so necessarily untenable. Lord Stowell, in more than one case, thought a Prize Court entitled to look beyond the immediate and ostensible, to the ultimate and real, destination of consignments of arms, &c., on board neutral vessels, and we acquiesced in captures made under similar circumstances by United States' vessels during the American Civil War.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

30, Portland Place, April 8, 1885.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter from Earl Granville to M. Waddington.

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, April , 1885.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's note of the 18th ultimo, in which, for the reasons stated, you expressed the hope of the French Government that the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong to China might be prohibited.

In reply, I have to express to you the regret of Her Majesty's Government that they feel it impossible to depart from the rule and practice of conduct resulting from well-established principles of international action.

It is fully recognized that the subjects of a neutral State, except so far as they are forbidden by legislation, may trade in all articles with belligerents, whose only remedy is to stop such trading by seizure in the manner recognized by international law.

Whilst Her Majesty's Government admit that the geographical position of Hong Kong gives great facility to English traders to carry on their trade with China under circumstances which render any seizure by the French cruizers almost impossible, yet, in their opinion, such circumstances are not sufficient to cause the general rule above referred to to be departed from.

Such facility of trade must be regarded as one of degree.

Her Majesty's Government assume that during the French and German War much trade existed between France and Belgium with which Germany had no power of interference, and such facility of trade would always exist in cases where the neutral and belligerent States were contiguous.

Her Majesty's Government must also strongly protest against the claim advanced by the French Government to seize and search neutral vessels bound to the British neutral port of Hong Kong.

No valid ground, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, for such a claim exists, and they are, moreover, of opinion that the geographical position of a neutral port cannot justify a belligerent Power in interfering with its trade.

While explaining to your Excellency the grounds on which Her Majesty's Government differ from the views of the French Government as expressed in your note of the 18th ultimo, I have the honour to assure your Excellency that there is no desire on the part of Her Majesty's Government to act in any other than the most friendly spirit towards the French Government, and that there is every desire on their part to prevent, so far as is consistent with the preservation of recognized rights, Hong Kong being utilized in any way for the purpose of affording undue facilities to the Chinese in carrying on hostilities.

I have, &c.

---

No. 87.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 17.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 16, 1885.

Prohibition of export of arms, &c., from Hong Kong. French request for.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 9th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 2nd instant on the subject of the export of arms from Hong Kong, he had the honour, by direction of your Lordship, to acquaint us that a draft reply[*] to M. Waddington's note of the 18th ultimo was prepared in accordance with the suggestions contained in that Report.

That the draft had been submitted to the Lord Chancellor, and that Mr. Currie was to inclose his Lordship's remarks thereon, and to request that we would again take the subject into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to any alterations which we might think desirable to make in the draft reply, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Matter a question of policy

That we agree with the observation of the Lord Chancellor that the question involved depends upon considerations of policy rather than of law.

In writing our opinion of the 2nd instant we were influenced by the views which we gathered were entertained and expressed by several members of the Cabinet, when we met your Lordship and others in Mr. Gladstone's room in the House of Commons some three weeks ago, and we fortified those views by our own.

which the Cabinet must settle.

But we feel that the question of policy, apart from legal considerations, is one upon which we are scarcely competent to offer an independent opinion which would be of any real value if weighed against that expressed by the Lord Chancellor, and we suggest that the determination of the course which will be most advantageous to the commercial interests of England, consistently with the maintenance of friendly relations with the belligerent Powers, is eminently for the members of the Cabinet.

View taken during Franco-German War.

We, however, think it right to point out that we believe the question of the exercise of the power to prohibit export of arms from this country under the provisions of the Customs Act was considered during the French and German War, and that this country then contended, in answer to the application that such power should be exercised, that the restriction should only be imposed when, in our own interests, we desired to retain the arms in this country, and not because we wished to prevent their reaching the belligerent State.

Disadvantages to trade of prohibition without warning.

It must also be borne in mind that the restrictive order against any exportation, if now given without warning, may impose grave commercial loss upon those who have been engaged in a trade hitherto of a perfectly legitimate character.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

[*] See draft annexed to note by the Lord Chancellor of April 8, 1885.

1885

Agreeing with above Report.

I had not the opportunity of meeting your Lordship at the interview referred to by the Attorney and Solicitor-General, but I agree with the above Report.

I have, &c.

(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 88.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 17.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 16, 1885.

My Lord,

Messageries Maritimes ships at Hong Kong. Question as to their treatment.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,[*] inclosing a copy of a despatch from the Governor of Hong Kong, in which, with reference to the instructions sent to him as to the position of the Messageries Maritimes steamers, founded on our Report of the 29th January last, he stated that "for some time past these steamers have touched at Kelung, in Formosa, on their voyage between Hong Kong and Japan, and there can be no doubt but that they carry the mails to the French squadron blockading Formosa, and any naval or military officers whom they may bring as passengers from France;" and requested instructions for his guidance on that point.

That our opinion was requested as to the further instructions which should be sent to the Governor of Hong Kong.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not necessary to take any steps with regard to them.

That we do not think it is shown, on the facts before us, that the Messageries Maritimes ships are rendering such assistance to military operations as to render it necessary that any steps should be taken in relation to them.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 89.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 17.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 16, 1885.

My Lord,

Franco-Chinese hostilities. Coaling and refitting of French cruizers in British ports.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 7th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter which had been received from Lloyd's,[†] inquiring whether, since a state of war existed in fact between France and China, Her Majesty's Government had arrived at a decision to close British ports in the Eastern Seas to French cruizers, in case they should desire there to coal or refit, and pointing out that the question was one of most serious import to the commercial community of this country.

Proposed reply to request of Lloyd's for prevention of.

That Mr. Currie was to state that, in reply to a similar inquiry dated the 16th February last, Lloyd's were informed on the 23rd February, in accordance with the opinion expressed in our Report of the 20th February, that Her Majesty's Government had decided to confine their action in that respect at present to the strict enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

That your Lordship, in reply to the present communication, proposed therefore to refer them to the answer previously given; and to state that the Act was being strictly carried out, and that, as at present advised, Her Majesty's Government did not see any sufficient reason that more stringent measures should be taken.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the answer which your Lordship proposed to return to Lloyd's was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

As to restricting use of ports for protection of British vessels. Suggesting answer.

That if it be the fact that French cruizers do obtain supplies, &c., at Hong Kong, and then lie outside for the purpose of exercising their rights of search and capture, it may be necessary to limit the use of British ports by belligerent ships.

We would suggest that the letter from Lloyd's might be answered by saying that the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act are being strictly enforced, and that Her Majesty's Government are fully alive to the importance of rendering no assistance to French cruizers in carrying on such operations as those referred to in the letter.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 90.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 17.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 16, 1885.

My Lord,

Steam-cutters required by the French.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a note from the French Ambassador at this Court,[*] stating that the French Minister of Marine was desirous of ordering from Mr. White, of Cowes, five steam-cutters, of exactly the same model, and for the same destination, as those which were allowed to be given up to the French Government in the month of January last; but before giving the order for the building of the cutters, the Minister of Marine desired to receive an assurance that the views of the British authorities remained the same on the question.

That copies of our Reports of the 11th December,[†] 3rd and 11th January last, on the subject, were inclosed for reference.

That our opinion was requested as to the answer which should be returned to M. Waddington's note.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

May give assurance that views as to conditions on which the boats may be built are not changed.

That, in our opinion, M. Waddington may be informed that the views of Her Majesty's Government remain the same, and that, on the understanding that the steam-cutters are not to be used, directly or indirectly, in the present hostilities with China, they will not interpose any obstacle to the execution of the order.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 91.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Treatment of rice as contraband of war.

THIS[‡] is a somewhat alarming indication of the way in which the great Continental Powers may be expected to deal with us, if we should be at war. All the concessions made, to the disadvantage of a Maritime Power, by the Treaty of Paris, will be expected to be observed by us; and they will, at the same time, submit, as neutrals, to whatever law of contraband the other belligerent may choose to lay down, as having a tendency to shorten the war by crippling our trade and stopping our supplies of food through neutrals.

System dangerous to Great Britain in event of war.

Would necessitate denunciation of Declaration of Paris.

I do not hesitate to say, that, if this should ever happen, we should have to denounce, and shake ourselves free from, the Declaration of Paris; to resume the old rights, of taking enemy's goods in neutral bottoms, and of employing privateers against the enemy.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

30, Portland Place, April 24, 1885.

---

[*] Colonial Office, March 31, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 116.
[†] Lloyd's, March 28, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 112*.

[*] M. Waddington, April 2, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 120.
[†] Confidential No. 5121, p. 52.
[‡] See Inclosure in Mr. Scott's No. 13, Treaty, of April 11, 1885, printed above as Annex

1885

Annex.

Extract from the "Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" of April 8, 1885.

(Translation.)

THE Kiel Chamber of Commerce has received the following answer from the Imperial Chancellor with reference to its application regarding the treatment of rice as contraband of war on the Chinese coast:—

"In answer to their representation of the 1st instant, I reply to the Chamber of Commerce that any disadvantage our commercial and carrying interests may suffer by the treatment of rice as contraband of war does not justify our opposing a measure which it has been thought fit to take in carrying on a foreign war. Every war is a calamity which entails evil consequences, not only on the combatants, but also on neutrals. These evils may easily be increased by the interference of a neutral Power with the way in which a third carries on the war to the disadvantage of the subjects of the interfering Power, and by this means German commerce might be weighed with far heavier losses than a transitory prohibition of the rice trade in Chinese waters. The measure in question has for its object the shortening of the war by increasing the difficulties of the enemy, and is a justifiable step in war if impartially enforced against all neutral ships."

The Imperial Chancellor,
(Signed) v. BISMARCK.

---

No. 92.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Export of arms from Hong Kong.

French request for prohibition of.

Approves reply.

Object of such prohibition.

I AGREE with the proposed despatch.

With respect to the Law Officers' Report,* it is perfectly true that we have always regarded the primary object of the power to prohibit the exportation of arms, &c., contained in the Customs Act, as being our own defence, in case of our being, or expecting to be, ourselves at war; and I am not aware that it has hitherto been used for any other purpose. But it would, in my opinion, be a mistake to hold ourselves, therefore, bound never to use it for any other purpose. To prevent occasions of offence and irritation, which might involve us in war, may be as good a reason for using it, under particular circumstances, as any other.

Distinctions with regard to trade in arms.

There is, I think, a great difference between the continuance of the ordinary export trade in arms, &c., from this country, during such a war as that between France and Germany, and the establishment of a new trade of that kind, in such a place as Hong Kong, during a war between China and one of the European Powers. But on this distinction it has now, happily, become unnecessary to dwell.

(Signed) SELBORNE.

30, Portland Place, May 1, 1885.

Annex.

Earl Granville to M. Waddington.

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, May , 1885.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's note of the 18th March last, relative to the export of arms and munitions of war from Hong Kong to China, and I beg leave to state, in reply, that the subject of your Excellency's communication has been under the most careful examination on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

The intelligence of the cessation of hostilities between France and China, which has lately been received by Her Majesty's Government with the most lively satisfaction, will, however, now render it unnecessary to pursue the discussion of the points raised in your Excellency's note; and it only, therefore, remains for me, M. l'Ambassadeur, upon the present occasion, to add the assurance that there has been no desire on the part of Her Majesty's Government to act in any other than the most friendly spirit towards the French Government during the struggle which is now happily closed.

I have, &c.

---

* Law Officers, April 16, 1885.

No. 93.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 2, 1885.

Export of coals and provisions from Hong Kong.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,* inclosing copy of a despatch from the Governor of Hong Kong, raising further questions regarding the export from Hong Kong, in present circumstances, of coals and provisions.

Proposed answer to Governor. No ground for interference.

That your Lordship proposed to reply to the effect that the instructions to the Governor were limited to requiring him to enforce strictly the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and that the case did not, under the circumstances stated, appear to come within the provisions of that Act, and that there was no ground for interference.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the answer which your Lordship proposed to make to the letter from the Colonial Office was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed answer.

That, in our opinion, the answer which your Lordship proposes to make to the letter from the Colonial Office is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of Letter to Sir R. Herbert.

Sir, Foreign Office, May , 1885.

I AM directed by Earl Granville to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 23rd ultimo, relative to the export of coals and provisions from Hong Kong; and I am, in reply, to state to you that the instructions to the Governor were limited to requiring the strict enforcement of the Foreign Enlistment Act; that the case does not, under the circumstances stated, appear to come within the provisions of that Act; and that there does not, therefore, seem to have been any ground for interference in the matter.

I am, &c.

---

No. 94.

Sir F. Herschell to Mr. Currie.—(Received May 8.)

My dear Mr. Currie, , May 6, 1885.

Restrictions on coaling by French war-vessels.

THE Attorney-General and I have been talking over the question of the removal of restrictions on coaling by French vessels of war in relation to the letter received from Lloyd's,* and the answer to be given to it. We have no information upon the point whether the French have suspended the exercise of their right of seizure and search during the cessation of hostilities, though we presume they have. If they have not, it would probably not be proper for us to allow their cruizers to coal in our ports for the purpose of seizing our vessels. We would suggest that it might be well to ascertain the intended action of the French Government in this respect, if it be not known at the Foreign Office. And, in that case, we would suggest, for Lord Granville's consideration, that it might be pointed out to the French Ambassador that the

May be removed if French no longer exercise right of search.

---

* Colonial Office, April 23, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 146.

* Lloyd's, March 28, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 112*.

1885 restrictions on coaling had then or are about to be removed, but that we should be obliged to reimpose them if the French intended continuing to exercise the belligerent right of seizure and search. It would be well not to admit that the French would be justified in doing so in the existing circumstances, inasmuch as there having been no declaration of war it would seem that belligerent rights cease as soon as an actual state of belligerency ceases.

Yours, &c.
(Signed) FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 95.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 23.)

(A.)
My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 22, 1885.

Restrictions on coaling of French and Chinese war-ships in British ports.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 18th instant, stating that, with reference to Sir Farrer Herschell's letter of the 6th instant, he was to acquaint us that instructions were sent to the Colonial and Indian authorities concerned to the effect that, in view of the cessation of hostilities between France and China, the restrictions with regard to the coaling of French and Chinese ships of war at British ports might be removed, and that at the same time your Lordship addressed a note to the French Ambassador,* stating that that action had been taken by Her Majesty's Government on the presumption that the French Government had abandoned the belligerent right of search and capture on the high seas.

Refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c.

That Mr. Currie was to inclose the reply† to that communication, in which the French Ambassador stated that his Government had not renounced these belligerent rights.

That your Lordship inclined to the opinion that it might be desirable to address a reply to the French Ambassador's note, explaining how, on the cessation of active hostilities, and in advance of the conclusion of a Definitive Treaty of Peace, Her Majesty's Government had judged it proper to remove the restrictions which, in the absence of any declaration of war, had been imposed only when such active hostilities commenced. But that that action had been taken on the presumption that the cessation of hostilities implied a discontinuance of belligerent rights in regard to neutral trade, and expressing a hope that instructions might be sent to the French Commanders to avoid any action which would render it incumbent on Her Majesty's Government to reimpose the restrictions against coaling until the final conclusion of a Treaty of Peace.

That our opinion was requested as to whether a reply in that sense would be right and proper, and generally that we would favour your Lordship with any observations we might have to offer on the subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Proposed reply to French.

That we think it would be desirable to address a reply to the French Ambassador in the following sense:—

Grounds for British policy as to neutrality and French right of search.

That in the present case there has been no declaration of war, either by France or China. The action taken by Her Majesty's Government in enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act was founded upon the state of war which actually existed, belligerent operations being actively carried on. Upon the same ground, Her Majesty's Government recognized the right of search for and seizure of contraband asserted by the French Government.

Change of policy on cessation of war.

The de facto state of war now no longer exists, and there never having been any declaration of war, the two Powers cannot, in the view of Her Majesty's Government, be any longer regarded as at war. It was in pursuance of this view that Her Majesty's Government gave directions for the removal of restrictions upon the supply of coal to belligerent ships in British ports.

Should protest against action of France.

Her Majesty's Government cannot, therefore, assent to the contention that the French Government are entitled to exercise belligerent rights against neutral vessels unless hostilities should be renewed. They feel bound to enter a protest against such a course being pursued, and they trust that the French Government will give such orders to their Naval Commanders as may avoid the raising of any such question.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* To M. Waddington, May 8, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 173.
† M. Waddington, May 15, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 176.

---

Before it is decided to reply to M. Waddington's note in the sense suggested by the Law Officers, I venture to submit the following considerations:—

It is proposed to deny the right of the French to exercise belligerent rights on the ground that, there having been no declaration of war, belligerency ceases with the discontinuance of active hostilities. I cannot, however, but think that if we advance such a contention, the French may reply that we have no right to insist on their abandoning the exercise of precautions the cessation of which might enable the Chinese, by augmenting their warlike force, either to extort better terms before signing the Definitive Treaty of Peace, or, failing its conclusion, to continue the war with effect.

If the French take this line, are we prepared to insist on our contention?

If not, I still think that a reply of a more temporizing nature, such as that proposed in the draft to the Law Officers, would be more politic, since, if instructions were sent to the Colonial Governors to report any case of detention of a British vessel, as recommended by Law Officers' Report of the 22nd May (B), we could still, the case arising, take up a strong position by reviving the operation of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

Perhaps the papers might be submitted to the Lord Chancellor for his opinion on this point.

(Signed) J. H. G. BERGNE.

May 23, 1885.

(Initialled) G.

---

I concur with Bergne. His proposed draft seems to me sufficient to reserve our rights in the event of the French exercising belligerent rights in a manner detrimental to British interests. There does not seem to be any use in pledging ourselves beforehand by a protest.

Qy. Refer alternative drafts to the Lord Chancellor.

(Signed) P. CURRIE.

---

No. 96.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 23.)

(B.)
My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 22, 1885.

Restrictions on coaling as well as equipment of French cruizers.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of yesterday's date, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,* with regard to the discontinuance of the restrictions as to coaling, equipment, &c., of French cruizers in the ports of Her Majesty's Eastern Colonies, and especially whether the removal of those restrictions should be held to apply to other matters of equipment as well as to coaling.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the answer which should be made to that inquiry, bearing in mind the terms of the note from the French Ambassador of the 15th instant, to the effect that the French Government still claimed to exercise belligerent rights.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

They may be removed.

That we think an affirmative answer should be sent to the inquiry of the Governor of Hong Kong.

Cannot distinguish between different kinds of equipment.

We do not think it is possible to draw a distinction between one kind of equipment and another.

Our reasons for taking this view will appear from our Report of this day in answer to Mr. Lister's letter of the 18th May. In view of the letter of the French

---

* Colonial Office, May 16, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 176.

1885

Ambassador, we suggest that it might be well to instruct the Governors of Hong Kong and the Straits Settlements to communicate the facts at once if there is any attempt on the part of the French Naval Commanders to exercise belligerent rights against British vessels.

Exercise of belligerent rights against British vessels should be reported.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 97.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 23.)

(C.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 22, 1885.

My Lord,

Supply of coal to French cruizers at British ports.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 29th ultimo, he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,* relative to the supply of coals to French vessels of war at Hong Kong and the Straits Settlements. That if we should be of opinion that the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act must be held to be in force until the conclusion of a Definitive Treaty of Peace between France and China, Mr. Currie was to inquire whether we considered that, as there did not at present appear to be any question of active hostilities being carried on against the Chinese, the granting of supplies of coal to French vessels of war would come within the terms of section 8 (3) or section 10 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, or would be otherwise contrary to its provisions.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Such supply not now contrary to Foreign Enlistment Act.

That there having been no declaration of war by either Power, and no de facto state of war now existing, we think that the granting of supplies of coal to French vessels of war would not now be contrary to the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 98.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Received May 28.)

[In reply to the following Reference, the Law Officers report as on p. 97:—]

Mr. Currie to the Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane.

Gentlemen,

Foreign Office, May 26, 1885.

Seizure and detention of the "Waverley" by the French in China.

WITH reference to your Reports of the 22nd instant, I am directed by Earl Granville to transmit to you copies of telegrams received yesterday and to-day from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, and from Her Majesty's Consul-General at Shanghae, reporting the seizure and detention of the British steamer "Waverley."†

As it appears from the act of seizure thus reported that the French are actually exercising belligerent rights in regard to neutral vessels at the present moment, I am to request your opinion as soon as possible on the following points:—

Has a state of war ceased?

(a.) Whether, in view of the statement contained in M. Waddington's note of the 15th instant (sent to you in my letter of the 18th instant), and of the actual exercise of belligerent rights in the present case, the de facto state of war previously existing between France and China can be held to have ceased, notwithstanding the signature of Preliminaries of Peace and the apparent termination of active hostilities.

---

* Colonial Office, April 29, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 160.

† Consul-General Hughes, Telegraphic, May 24; Mr. O'Conor, No. 42, Telegraphic, May 25; Consul-General Hughes, Telegraphic, May 26, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, pp. 181, 182.

Ought restrictions under Foreign Enlistment Act to be re-imposed?

(b.) Whether, under these circumstances, you are of opinion that the restrictions imposed by the Foreign Enlistment Act should again be enforced in Her Majesty's Eastern Colonies until the conclusion of the Definitive Treaty of Peace.

Should we protest against seizure of the "Waverley"?

(c.) Whether, in view of the explanations contained in Mr. O'Conor's telegram, you are of opinion that any protest should be addressed to the French Government with regard to the seizure of the "Waverley."

For convenience of reference, I am to return herewith your three Reports of the 22nd instant, and I am to state that any action thereon has been suspended until the receipt of your reply to the present letter.

I am, &c.
(Signed) P. CURRIE.

---

The Attorney-General's Chambers, New Court,
Temple, May 27, 1885.

My Lord,

Adhere to views in Report (A) of May 22.

In reply to Mr. Currie's letter of the 26th May, we have to inform your Lordship that we adhere to the views expressed by us in our Report of the 22nd May (marked A) written in reply to Mr. Currie's letter of the 18th instant.

Should protest against exercise of belligerent rights by French

Under present circumstances, we think a strong representation should be made to the French Government in the sense of that Report, and urging that inasmuch as no declaration of war has been made, that no de facto belligerent operations are being carried on, and that Her Majesty's Government have ceased exercising the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act, and have permitted French ships to receive coal supplies, the enforcing by the French Government of belligerent rights against neutral vessels ought not, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, to be persisted in, and it is hoped that the French Government will think it right, under the circumstances, of their own motion to order the release of the British vessel now seized. But that if the French Government should not think it right to acquiesce in these views, Her Majesty's Government will be compelled to reimpose the restrictions existing under the powers of the Foreign Enlistment Act, for if they were to refrain from so doing supplies from English sources might be furnished to French ships, which would thus be enabled to harass English and other neutral vessels.

and reimpose restrictions in case of their continuance.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

---

No. 99.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Restrictions on coaling of French and Chinese war-ships in British ports, and refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c.

I AM sorry to differ from the Law Officers about this matter, but I do, decidedly; and I agree with the view taken by Mr. Bergne.

I cannot attribute (I never have attributed) any importance (when there has actually been a state of belligerency) to the omission, on both sides, or on either side, to make a formal declaration of war.

Differs from Law Officers and agrees with Mr. Bergne.

We have had notice of, and have recognized, the existence of a war de facto; and, in my opinion, the existence of a war, known to neutrals (though without a declaration by the belligerents) is not terminated by an armistice, or by a suspense of active hostilities, or by the signature of mere Preliminaries of Peace. In this case we have had express notice that this is the view taken by one, at least, of the belligerents, and I think it is correct.

Opinion as to representations which should be made to French Government.

I cannot but doubt whether we were not too precipitate in removing the restrictions which we had imposed on the belligerents in our own ports; and I think we may now properly represent to the French Government that the course they appear to think it necessary to take may oblige us again to impose them; and I think we may also properly urge these considerations as a ground for the voluntary release of the ship which has been captured, and which may have been misled by the supposition that all warlike operations were practically at an end. But I am unable to agree with the proposed draft despatch.*

(Signed) SELBORNE.

June 1, 1885.

---

* See Annex No. 1 to Law Officers' Report of June 8.

1885

No. 100.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 8.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 6, 1885.

Detention of the "Surat" while conveying Her Majesty's mail, by a French cruizer.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Peninsular and Oriental Company,* reporting the circumstances under which the steam-ship "Surat" was detained by the French cruizer "Champlain" while proceeding from Shanghae to Hong Kong with Her Majesty's mail. That Mr. Lister was to state that your Lordship would propose to reply that the French officer appears to have acted with great courtesy, and that your Lordship was not of opinion that under the circumstances there was any ground for complaint, and that Mr. Lister was to request our opinion whether a reply in those terms would be right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Opinion as to reply to be sent to the Peninsular and Oriental Company.

That, in the absence of any complaint from the owners of the "Surat," we think it will be sufficient to acknowledge the receipt of the letter of the 24th April, and to thank the Secretary of the Peninsular and Oriental Company for the information contained in it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 101.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 8, 1885.

Restrictions on coaling of French and Chinese war-ships in British ports.

Refusal of French to abandon right of search, &c.

WE were favoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to inform us that before sending a reply to M. Waddington's note of the 15th ultimo your Lordship thought it desirable to consult the Lord Chancellor as to its terms, and that Mr. Currie was to transmit to us a copy of a Memorandum† by his Lordship on the subject of the claim of the French Government to continue the exercise of belligerent rights after the signature of Preliminaries of Peace between France and China.

That Mr. Currie was also to inclose drafts of letters which your Lordship proposed to send to the French Ambassador, the Colonial and India Offices; and that our opinion was requested whether, in view of the Lord Chancellor's observations, the terms of those letters were right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approves draft letters to French Ambassador and Colonial and India Offices.

That, in view of the Lord Chancellor's observations, we are of opinion that the terms of these letters are right and proper.

But we would suggest that on p. 7 of the draft to M. Waddington it might be well to substitute for the word "may" the words "will probably."

Reasons for opinion given in their Report of the 22nd May.

With reference to those observations, we desire to point out that the view we expressed was not so much founded upon general principles as upon the circumstances of this particular case, which are very peculiar.

The declaration of war was not accidentally but designedly withheld. The French Government, long after hostilities commenced, insisted that they were not at war with China, but were only resorting to limited warlike operations for the purpose of compelling the Chinese to perform a Treaty.

And it was not until a late period that the French Government asserted the right of search and seizure. Even then they appear to have still maintained that the two nations were not at war.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company, April 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 149.

† June 1, 1885.

Annex No. 1.

Earl Granville to M. Waddington.

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, June 8, 1885.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Excellency's note of the 15th ultimo, in which you acquaint me that the French Government still claim to exercise belligerent rights in regard to neutral vessels on the high seas; and I beg leave, in reply, to make the following observations for the consideration of your Government.

In the present case no declaration of war was made either by France or China, and the action taken by Her Majesty's Government in enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act was founded upon the state of war which actually existed at the time, belligerent operations being actively carried on. Upon the same ground Her Majesty's Government recognized the belligerent right of search and capture of neutral vessels on the high seas which was asserted by the French Government.

Since the signature of the Preliminaries of Peace between France and China, the active hostilities on either side having apparently ceased, Her Majesty's Government gave directions for the removal of restrictions upon the supply of coal to cruizers of either Power in British ports. This action was taken by Her Majesty's Government on the presumption that, simultaneously with the cessation of active hostilities, the French Government would abandon the exercise of belligerent right of search and capture of neutral vessels on the high seas, and Her Majesty's Government regret to learn from your Excellency's note now under reply that such is not the case.

Having once removed the restrictions in question, Her Majesty's Government would be extremely reluctant to find themselves under the necessity of reimposing them, and they trust that on a reconsideration of the matter the French Government may be in a position to give instructions to the French Commanders to avoid any action which would render such a step necessary.

If, however, the French Government should not think it right to give such directions, and should deem it incumbent on them, under existing circumstances, to persevere in the exercise of belligerent rights, Her Majesty's Government will probably feel themselves compelled to revive the operation of the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act; for if they were to refrain from so doing, supplies from English sources might be furnished to French cruizers, which would enable them to harass English and other neutral vessels.

I should feel obliged, M. l'Ambassadeur, if your Excellency would have the goodness to communicate to me an early expression of the views of your Government on this subject.

I have, &c.
(Signed) GRANVILLE.

---

Annex No. 2.

Mr. Currie to Sir R. Herbert.

(Confidential.)

Sir, Foreign Office, June 8, 1885.

WITH reference to my letter of the 21st ultimo, I am directed by Earl Granville to transmit to you, to be laid before the Earl of Derby, copies of correspondence, as marked in the margin,* which has passed between his Lordship and the French Ambassador on the subject of the exercise of belligerent rights on the high seas.

I am to state that, under existing circumstances, and until the receipt of the reply of the French Government to Lord Granville's note of the 8th instant, Her Majesty's Government are reluctant to countermand the directions which have been given for the removal of the restrictions on coaling in British ports, but I am to suggest that, in view of the attitude now assumed by the French Government, the Colonial Governors should be instructed to communicate at once by telegraph to Her Majesty's Government if there is any attempt on the part of the French Commanders to exercise belligerent rights against British vessels, in order that Her Majesty's Government may, if necessary, consider the propriety of re-enforcing the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

I am, &c.
(Signed) P. CURRIE.

---

* To M. Waddington, May 8; M. Waddington, May 15, 1885; and Annex No. 1.

1885

No. 102.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 10, 1885.

Protection of submarine telegraph cables in time of war.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the Admiralty, dated the 9th instant, relating to the Convention for the protection of submarine cables, signed at Paris the 14th March, 1884.*

Powers of naval officers.

That the Lords Commissioners desired to know whether, in time of war, they would be authorized in instructing officers of Her Majesty's ships to search neutral vessels met with under suspicious circumstances in the neighbourhood of the telegraphic lines of communication, whether materials used for dragging up and cutting submarine cables found on board such vessels might be treated as contraband of war, and what rights officers commanding ships of war would have against a neutral vessel found in the act of interrupting the communication by a submarine cable. That it was conceived that the Convention gave no new powers to Commanders of vessels of war, except those contained in Article X, in relation to the verification of the nationality of an offending vessel and the taking of depositions; that, on the other hand, it did not restrict their powers, and that in time of war materials used for dragging up and cutting submarine cables could not in all cases be treated as contraband of war; but that, coupled with other circumstances, would be evidence of the intention of the neutral vessel to commit the offence in question, and that if such offence were injurious to the naval or military operations of this country it might be treated as an act of hostility, rendering the neutral vessel liable to capture.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the above views were correct, and also with any suggestions we might have to offer as to the reply which should be returned to the inquiries of the Lords of the Admiralty.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not affected by Convention.

That the questions raised in the Admiralty letter are not affected by the International Convention for the protection of submarine telegraph cables, which neither adds to nor limits the rights of belligerents.

It appears from the procès-verbal (p. 11) that on signing the Convention Lord Lyons declared that Article XV was understood by Her Majesty's Government to mean that a belligerent will be free to act as regards submarine cables as if the Convention did not exist.

Punishment of neutral vessels for injuring cables.

Any attempt by a neutral vessel, in time of war, to injure a submarine cable, with a view thereby to hinder or defeat the naval or military operations of Her Majesty's forces, might, in our opinion, be regarded as a hostile act, and resisted and punished as such.

Search and capture of vessels and seizure of materials for injuring cables.

We think, further, that if a neutral vessel were, in time of war, detected by Her Majesty's ships, under circumstances from which her intention to make such an attempt, with such an object, might be reasonably suspected, Her Majesty's officers would be justified in searching her, and in frustrating her design by seizure of the materials intended for the purpose, or by capture of the vessel itself.

Such materials, when contraband of war.

Such materials, however, cannot be regarded as contraband of war, unless, from all the circumstances of the case, it is reasonably clear that they are intended to be used in assisting the belligerent operations of the enemy, or hampering those of Her Majesty's forces.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Parliamentary No. 2812.

No. 103.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 13, 1885.

Shipment of treasure in neutral vessels, and detention of the "Kow-shing" by French cruizers.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 20th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a letter* from the Indo-Chinese Steam Navigation Company, reporting the stoppage and detention of their steamer "Kow-shing" by French cruizers, on the ground that there was treasure on board consigned to the Chinese.

That the Company asked for information on various points connected with the shipment of treasure in neutral vessels, and that our opinion was requested as to the answer which should be made to their letter, and also as to whether the circumstances of the case in point call for any, and, if so, what, representation to the French Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Conditions under which money and treasure may become contraband.

That money (and treasure) are of like character with provisions and may become contraband under like conditions.

The test is not the person to whom the money is consigned, but the purpose for which, according to obvious and natural inference, it is to be employed.

So far as the person and place to whom it is consigned afford evidence of the purpose for which it is to be employed they are of importance, but not otherwise, as the ground of seizure is based, not upon the fact that the money is consigned to the subject of a belligerent State, but that it is intended to be employed in furtherance of belligerent objects.

Unnecessary to make a representation to the French Government.

The action of the French in the case of the "Kow-shing" appears to have been not contrary to the rules and practice of international law, and it seems unnecessary, under all the circumstances of the case, to make the matter the subject of representation to the French Government.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Agreeing with above Report.

I think the answer should be in accordance with the opinion of the Law Officers. A consignment of treasure to merchants for mercantile purposes would be innocent; but a consignment (directly or indirectly) to a belligerent Government might be otherwise according to circumstances.

June 19, 1885. (Signed) SELBORNE.

No. 104.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 22.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 21, 1885.

C. Borg. Petition for remission of sentence.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 1st September instant, stating that, by your Lordship's direction, he had to transmit to us the papers† noted in the margin of his letter, which related to the Petition of C. Borg, a prisoner in the Corradino Civil Prison in Malta, praying for a mitigation of his sentence of five years' penal servitude.

That the case was tried before Dr. Arpa, late Judge of Her Majesty's Consular Court at Tunis, and the Consular Court having now been abolished, and the Consulate placed under the jurisdiction of Her Majesty's Consul-General at Algiers, the Acting Consul-General was instructed to furnish particulars of the case, and had then sent home copy of the notes of evidence made by Dr. Arpa.

---

* May 15, 1885. Confidential No. 5163, p. 175*.

† Colonial Office, July 15; Acting Consul-General Crawford, No. 58, 1885.

That the Petition of the prisoner and the "particulars of his prison history" would be found in the Colonial Office letter of the 15th July.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any mitigation of the sentence should be granted, and, if so, to what extent.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think some mitigation of the sentence may properly be granted.

Sentence should be mitigated.

We see no reason for distinction between Borg and the prisoner Framalauza, convicted with him; and if it is true, as stated in Borg's Petition, that Framalauza has obtained two years of grace, we think Borg's sentence should be mitigated to the same extent.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 105.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 14.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, October 13, 1885.

Murder and mutiny by British subjects on the "Don Juan," on the high seas, now in prison at Brest.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to two British subjects, R. Martin and A. Trimingham, lately seamen on board the Uruguayan vessel "Don Juan," then in prison at Brest, charged with mutiny and murder on board that vessel on the high seas.

That the French Tribunals had no jurisdiction over the crime, it having been committed by foreigners on a foreigner, on board a foreign ship on the high seas.

Nor would it seem that any British Tribunal had jurisdiction, inasmuch as the accused, though British subjects, belonged to the "Don Juan," and therefore the case was not within section 11 of "The Merchant Shipping Act, 1867."

That if the accused were sent to this country, they could not be surrendered to the Uruguayan Government, as the Extradition Treaty between Great Britain and that country did not admit of the surrender of British subjects.

That it appeared from Consul Rainals' No. 21 of the 10th September that the French Government would probably surrender the prisoners to the Uruguayan Government.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the two British subjects in question might properly be left in the custody of the French Government to await their extradition to Uruguay, or whether the case called for any action on the part of Her Majesty's Government, with a view to their release from custody, or otherwise. That your Lordship would await our Report before sending any instructions to Consul Rainals.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

May be left in French custody.
No action necessary unless illegally tried.

That the two British subjects in question may properly be left in the custody of the French Government. The case does not call for any action on the part of Her Majesty's Government, unless an attempt should be made to bring them to trial before a French, or any other Tribunal, having no jurisdiction to try them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Consul Rainals, No. 20, August 31; ditto, No. 21, September 10, 1885; Merchant Shipping Act, 1867, 30 and 31 Vict., cap. 124; Board of Trade, September 4, 1885; Treaty: Great Britain and Uruguay, March 26, 1884, No. 738.

General.

No. 106.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 6.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, January 5, 1885.

Liability of Resident Clerks to income-tax in respect of their rooms at the Foreign Office.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 24th October last, stating that in reply to the inquiries contained in our letter of the 11th September* with reference to the liability of the Resident Clerks in the Foreign Office to pay assessments under Schedule A of the income-tax in respect of their occupation of rooms in the Foreign Office, he was to state to us that the occupation of such rooms was not allowed as any equivalent for salary.

That the rooms were assigned to them not merely as their residence, but as necessary for the discharge of their official duties.

That if no volunteers could be found to occupy them, arrangements would have to be made to insure their occupation.

That as regarded the second point raised in our letter, as to whether any clerk had any particular room appropriated for his personal use (as, for instance, a bedroom) over which he had the sole control, and into which no one could enter without his permission, Mr. Lister was to state that each Resident Clerk had a bedroom and sitting-room which were accessible at any hour by the officials at the Foreign Office on public business, though the occupant had the sole control over them, and permission to enter would naturally be requested by persons desirous of seeing him.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we think it is open to much doubt whether the clerks have such an occupation as renders them liable to be assessed under the 5th & 6th Vict.

No liability for occupation of their sitting-rooms;

It appears clear that their residence at the Foreign Office results from the necessities of the public service, and is not a favour accorded them as part of their emoluments.

If Kelly, C.B., was well founded in saying, as he did in "Bent v. Roberts," that the mere fact that the occupation by an official was compulsory was sufficient to show that he was not liable to be assessed, that would no doubt cover the present case. But we hardly think such a proposition could be supported, though the fact that the residence is compulsory and necessary is certainly an important element in determining whether there is such an occupation as the Statute contemplates.

We think, on the whole, that there is not such an occupation of the sitting-rooms allotted to the Resident Clerks. Seeing that public work has to be done by them there out of the ordinary office hours, and may have to be performed at any time, we do not think the nature of their occupation is, in substance, different from that of the Under-Secretary or any other official who has allotted to him his own room at the Foreign Office.

but there may be for occupation of bedrooms.

With regard to the bedrooms the case is somewhat different, and it may be that the clerks are liable to be assessed in respect of them; but the point is open to doubt, and it deserves consideration whether it is worth while for the Revenue Department to raise the question if the liability be thus limited.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Confidential No. 5121, p. 56.

1885

No. 107.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 23, 1885.

New Tables of Consular Fees. Proposed Orders in Council.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list* relative to two proposed Orders in Council establishing new Tables of Consular Fees, that marked (A) being for the General Consular service, and in substitution of the two Orders in Council dated respectively the 1st May, 1855, and 27th July, 1863, and marked (B) and (C), and the draft Order (D), being for China, Japan, and Corea, and in substitution of the three Orders in Council of the 19th June, 1868, 21st July, 1876, and 14th February, 1883, and marked respectively (E), (F), and (G).

That a copy of the Act 6 Geo. IV, cap. 87, marked (H), under the authority of which, and of the other Acts referred to in the preamble, the Orders were proposed to be issued, was inclosed for reference.

That the draft Orders had been already submitted to, and approved by, the Treasury, and that our opinion was requested as to whether they were right and proper to be submitted for ratification to the Queen in Council.

That, as it was desired that the Orders should be passed at the Council to be held on the 26th instant, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that our Report might be transmitted to your Lordship at our earliest possible convenience.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft Orders in Council.

That, in our opinion, the draft Orders are right and proper to be submitted to Her Majesty in Council for ratification.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Germany.

No. 108.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 5, 1885.

Divorce of W. Rose.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 3rd ultimo, inclosing a further despatch from Her Majesty's Ambassador at Berlin,* giving further information in relation to the question of William Rose, which we desired to have before advising on the Decree of the Civil Court at Berlin, dissolving his marriage at the British Embassy at Vienna.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

He is still a British subject.

That the facts stated do not show that William Rose had lost his domicile of origin, and become domiciled in Germany. Indeed, it would rather appear that the contrary was the case.

His German divorce not valid in England.

If this be so, and he remained a domiciled Englishman, it cannot be said that the

---

* (A.) Draft Order in Council.
(B.) Order in Council, May 1, 1855 (see Consular Instructions, p. 69).
(C.) " " July 27, 1863 (see Consular Instructions, p. 73).
(D.) Draft Order in Council.
(E.) Order in Council, June 19, 1868 (Confidential No. 1790).
(F.) " " July 21, 1876 (Confidential No. 2912).
(G.) " " February 14, 1883 (Confidential No. 4760*).

† Sir E. Malet, No. 363, November 24, 1884.

[Colonial Office.

No. 106*.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Derby.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 7, 1885.

Straits Settlements Ordinance. Sentences of imprisonment awarded in Native Malay States under British protection.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Wingfield's letter of the 10th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a copy of a despatch from the Officer administering the Government of the Straits Settlements, submitting for the approval of Her Majesty's Government the draft of an Ordinance providing for the detention in the gaols of the Colony of certain prisoners convicted in the Courts of the Native States of the Malay Peninsula, which are under the protection of Great Britain.

That the Protectorate conferred no sovereignty or jurisdiction upon Her Majesty in those States. That a copy of the Ordinance referred to in Mr. Smith's despatch, providing for the detention of political prisoners, was inclosed.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the Legislature of the Straits Settlements was competent to enact such an Ordinance as was proposed by the Officer administering the Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, we have the honour to

Report—

Ordinance may be enacted if confined to reception and detention of prisoners in Colony.

That in our opinion the Legislature of the Straits Settlements is competent to enact such an Ordinance as is proposed, so far as it deals with the reception and detention, in the Straits Settlements, of the prisoners whom it is expedient to keep confined there.

It is not clear that the clause relating to the reception of prisoners is limited to their reception when they arrive within the colonial territory, and the power conferred upon the Governor of remitting the whole or any part of the sentence appears to us open to much question, though probably the same result might be arrived at by enabling the Governor at any time to discharge the prisoner from custody.

The clause, too, relating to the return of a prisoner appears to contemplate his being conveyed from the Straits Settlements to the Native State under a warrant by the Governor. Such a warrant could have no force outside the colonial territory.

The above opinion is written upon the assumption that Her Majesty has no jurisdiction to try prisoners in the Native States, and that, therefore, the provisions of the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts are not applicable to the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.

NOTE.—The draft Ordinance appears to have been modified in certain respects to meet the observations of the Law Officers, and was eventually enacted as Ordinance No. VII of 1885, Straits Settlements [May 20, 1885].—W. E. D.

1885

No. 107*.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Colonel Stanley.—(Communicated in Colonial Office letter of June 23, 1886; received June 24.)

Sir,

Royal Courts of Justice, July 20, 1885.

British annexation of part of New Guinea.

WE were honoured with Mr. Bramston's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was directed to invite our attention to a Report made by the late Law Officers on the 11th December, 1884,* upon the subject of New Guinea, and that, for convenience of reference, he was to inclose a copy of that Report.

That Mr. Bramston was to explain that, in October last, when the reference was made to the Law Officers, it was expected that the Special Commissioner appointed to act for Her Majesty in the Protectorate would very shortly take up his residence in New Guinea; that British subjects and the subjects of other civilized nations would, in greater or less numbers, follow the Special Commissioner, and that some beginnings at least of settlement would have been made before the Protectorate became part of Her Majesty's dominions.

That the annexation by Germany of a portion of the island and other subsequent events had modified that anticipation, and that it was probable that the Proclamation of British sovereignty might be made before any commencement of settlement had taken place.

That the native Chiefs attended the ceremony of proclaiming the Protectorate, and that the principal men among them accepted from the Commodore a staff of office bearing the Queen's head; but that although they were willing to recognize the Protectorate, they did not do any act equivalent to surrendering their country to Her Majesty.

Is annexation without consent equivalent to conquest?

That, in the absence of any settlement by British subjects, or of any act of cession, it became a question whether territory which was added to the Queen's dominions by Proclamation without the consent of the inhabitants might not be considered as being acquired by conquest.

That the question was important, for if the territory was to be regarded as a Colony by settlement, it would be an inconvenient and very dilatory process to legislate by Orders in Council under the Act 23 & 24 Vict., cap. 121, framed in England, and dealing with a state of affairs which were and could be only imperfectly known to the Secretary of State; and that no other course appeared feasible at any rate until there were at the principal settlement persons to whom Her Majesty's power of legislation might be delegated under that Act.

That, on the other hand, if the territory could be regarded as acquired by conquest or cession, Her Majesty might, it was understood, appoint by Commission under her sign manual and signet an officer to administer the Government of the territory and to make laws by Proclamation.

That we were accordingly requested to advise—

1. Whether we concurred with the late Law Officers in the answers given by them in the 3rd and 4th paragraphs of their Report of the 11th December, 1884.
2. Whether under the circumstances stated in Mr. Bramston's letter the territory could be regarded as acquired by conquest or cession; and
3. Generally upon the subject.

In compliance with the request contained in Mr. Bramston's letter we have the honour to report—

Approve opinion as to acquisition and Government.
Territory not acquired by cession or conquest.
Suggestion as to legislation.

1. That we concur with the late Law Officers in the answers given by them in the 3rd and 4th paragraphs of their Report of the 11th December, 1884.
2. That we do not think that under the circumstances stated in the letter the territory of New Guinea can be regarded properly as acquired by conquest or cession.
3. That the 2nd section of 6 & 7 Vict., cap. 13, which is extended to territories like New Guinea by 23 & 24 Vict., cap. 121, sect. 1, enables Her Majesty to delegate her powers and authorities to three or more resident officers. If two suitable persons can be found in the Western Pacific, or the neighbouring Colony of Queensland and associated, for legislative purposes, with the Officer administering the Government of New Guinea, the inconvenience of making laws for New Guinea by Order in Council framed in England can be obviated.

We are, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.

---

* Confidential No. 5121, p. 56*.

1885

German divorce, founded on a ground which would not justify a divorce according to English law, would be regarded as valid here.

Under these circumstances, we cannot advise that any statement should be made that the divorce would be so regarded; but it appears neither necessary nor desirable to make any statement to the contrary.

No statement as to its validity should be made.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 109.

Dr. Deane to Sir J. Pauncefote.—(Received January 16.)

Sir,

Royal Courts of Justice, January 15, 1885.

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, stating that, with reference to the Law Officers' Report of the 5th instant, you were directed by Earl Granville to state that, although it was not so stated in the Report, Earl Granville presumed that the refusal by Her Majesty's Embassy to grant a certificate to William Rose, to the effect that by English law there existed no impediment to his remarriage, might be approved.

Divorce of W. Rose.

In reply to the question contained in your letter, I have the honour to state that the view taken by Earl Granville of the Report of the Law Officers is correct, and that the refusal of Her Majesty's Embassy to grant the certificate required may be approved.

Approval of refusal to grant certificate is correct.

I have, &c.
(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Haïti.

No. 110.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 12.)

[After referring to the following letter they report as on page 108.]

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane.

Gentlemen,

Foreign Office, July 24, 1885.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Secretary of State, the papers noted in the accompanying list,* relating to the claim of the late

Claim of late Mrs. Maunder.

---

* List of Papers.

1. Memorandum by Sir J. Pauncefote, January 28, 1878 (Confidential No. 3581, p. 88).
2. Ditto, May 20, 1878 (Confidential No. 3813, p. 3).
3. Ditto, July 22, 1879 (Confidential No. 3936).
4. Law Officers, July 14, 1875 (Confidential No. 4370, p. 40)
5. Ditto, October 30, 1875 (Confidential No. 4370, p. 42).
6. Ditto, May 16, 1876 (Confidential No. 4028, p. 42).
7. Ditto, July 25, 1877 (Confidential No. 4216, p. 23.)
8. Ditto, September 22, 1879 (Confidential No. 4328, p. 35).
9. Printed Correspondence respecting Mrs. Maunder's claims on the Government of Haïti. 1874–78, Part I (Confidential No. 3581).
10. Ditto, 1878, Part II (Confidential No. 3813).
11. Ditto, 1878–83, Part III (Confidential No. 4713).
12. MSS. ditto, 1880–83, Vol. iii of Case.
13. Printed ditto, 1883-85, Part IV (Confidential No. ).
14. Report of the Naturalization Commission (Parliamentary No. 1188).

1885

Mrs. Maunder against the Haïtian Government, which has been frequently referred, during its various stages, to the Law Officers of the Crown. The printed Foreign Office Memoranda (numbered 1 to 3) and the Reports from the Law Officers (numbered 4 to 8) will place you in possession of the facts of the case up to July 1879.

Her nationality disputed.

At that period a revolution broke out in Haïti (Correspondence, Part III, No. 38, p. 56), which suspended for a time the further prosecution of the claim. It was resumed in February 1880 by Her Majesty's Representative at Port-au-Prince, as reported in his despatch No. 17 of the 17th June of that year. (Correspondence, Part III, No. 34, p. 35.)

There can be no doubt as to the merits of the claim and as to the hardship of the case. But the Haïtian Government deny the right of Her Majesty's Government to intervene in support of it, as they contend that Mrs. Maunder, who died on the 18th March, 1882, had no claim to British nationality.

She was a Haïtian by birth, her maiden name being Célie de Faubert, and she married in 1852 Mr. Joseph Maunder, one of four sons of Mr. Frédéric Maunder by Joséphine Busse, his alleged wife. (See certificate of marriage, Correspondence, Part III, p. 70.)

The contention of the Haïtian Government is that there never was a legal marriage between Frédéric Maunder and Joséphine Busse, and, therefore, that their four sons, of whom Mr. Joseph Maunder was one, were illegitimate; consequently, that Joseph Maunder, who was born in Haïti, was a Haïtian and not a British subject, and could not by his marriage with Mlle. de Faubert, impart British nationality to her or to his children. On the other hand, the Maunder family insist that Frédéric Maunder and Joséphine Busse were legally married according to the laws of Haïti, and they produce a document under the hand and seal of the "Grand Juge de la République," named Voltaire, certifying to that effect. (Foreign Office Memorandum No. 3, p. 2.) They also produce the legal opinion of their advocate, M. Antoine, in support of the validity of the marriage (Correspondence, Part III, p. 23), and also in support of the position that, even if the marriage were invalid, Mr. Joseph Maunder, the issue of that marriage, though born in Haïti, could not be a Haïtian subject, not having accepted that nationality by any of the acts specified in the first paragraph of that opinion.

But, on the other hand, if the marriage were invalid, Mr. Joseph Maunder was, in contemplation of British law, filius nullius, and not entitled to British protection. As regards the validity of the marriage, the Law Officers of the Crown, in 1879, considered it sufficiently established, and, in their Report of the 22nd September, 1879, they advised that Her Majesty's Government would be justified in insisting on the immediate payment of 22,000*l.* into the Bank of England to await the result of an award as a preliminary to arbitration.

The Haïtian Government declined to make the required deposit "on account" before arbitration, but offered to submit the claim to the arbitration of the French Cour de Cassation. They were informed, in reply, that this proposal was altogether without precedent, and that Her Majesty's Government were unable to concur in the suggestion (to M. Villevaleix, 27th May, 1880).

It may be here noted that the Law Officers had already advised that, as French interests were so much involved in the case, it was not desirable that any Frenchman should arbitrate in the question. (Law Officers, 25th July, 1877: Correspondence, Part I, p. 72.)

On the 7th June, 1880, the Haïtian Minister in London proposed that the matter should be referred to the arbitration of M. Grévy, the President of the French Republic.

This proposal was submitted to Mrs. Maunder, but declined by her except on the condition that the arbitration should be as between the two Governments, as she had not means sufficient to undertake personally the prosecution of her case before the proposed Arbitrator.

Her Majesty's Government did not feel justified in adopting this course, the case being one of the adjustment of a private claim which they were not prepared to prosecute themselves at the public expense.

Shortly after this a despatch was received from Major Stuart reporting the discovery of certain registers, which seemed to him to prove beyond a doubt the illegitimacy of Mr. Joseph Maunder and the Haïtian nationality of his widow. (Correspondence, Part III, pp. 56, 67, 73, and 88.)

In February 1881 Major Stuart sent over a Memorandum on the family registers "de l'État Civil," and entries in the same, relating to the Maunder family. This Memorandum was the result of a joint examination of those documents by himself and Mrs. Maunder and her brother-in-law, and the Haïtian authorities; and at the close of this Report Major Stuart expresses the conviction "that the family of Maunders have no just claims to British nationality, but that they are Haïtians in law and fact." (Correspondence, Part III, No. 44, p. 67.)

Photographs of the acts of registration referred to in the above-mentioned Memorandum were subsequently sent home by Major Stuart. (Correspondence, Part III, No. 46, p. 73.)

Further documents on the subject of Mrs. Maunder's nationality were received from Major Stuart in the month of July 1881. (Correspondence, Part III, No. 56, p. 88.)

In the month of March 1882 Mr. J. W. B. Maunder announced the death of his mother, and requested, on his own behalf and that of his two brothers, the support of Her Majesty's Government, alleging that he possessed proof of the fraudulent character of the documents discovered by the Haïtian Government. (Correspondence, Part III, Nos. 59, 60, 61, 66, 67, pp. 91, 92, 94, and 95.)

All the arguments and documents which have been brought forward by Mrs. Maunder's heirs were submitted to Major Stuart, but they failed to alter the unfavourable judgment which he had formed upon the subject.

I am to refer you particularly to his letters of the 9th October, 1882 (Correspondence, Part III, No. 69, p. 105), and 19th October, 1882 (Correspondence, No. 70, p. 106), in which he points out that the onus probandi rests with the claimants, who dispute the genuineness of the public registers, that the case is one which can only be solved by judicial proceedings, and that there are competent Tribunals for that purpose in Haïti.

An effort was made in unofficial communications with the Haïtian Minister to obtain a friendly settlement of the question without reference to the controversy as to the legitimacy of the late Mr. J. Maunder; and I am to invite your attention to the private correspondence (Part III, No. 71, p. 107; No. 72, ibid.; No. 74, p. 111; No. 77, p. 113; No. 80, p. 115; and No. 81, ibid.; from which you will perceive that those efforts were unavailing.

In consequence, Mr. J. W. B. Maunder was informed that, until the question as to the legitimacy of his father had been established judicially by legal proceedings instituted by his family with a view to rebutting the testimony of the archives recently produced, Her Majesty's Government regretted that his claim could not receive their official support. (Correspondence, Part III, Nos. 78 and 79, p. 114.)

In reply, Mr. Maunder pleaded the futility of carrying the claim before the Haïtian Courts, owing to their corruption and subserviency to the Haïtian Government, and in this view he is supported by Mr. Hunt, Her Majesty's present Representative at Port-au-Prince. (Correspondence, Part IV, Nos. 1 and 2, p. 1.)

In September 1883 Mr. Hunt was directed to inform Mr. J. B. W. Maunder that Her Majesty's Government would be disposed to renew their efforts on behalf of his family, whenever a favourable opportunity should occur, by urging on the Haïtian Government the settlement of the claim by arbitration, as proposed once before, without reference to the question of the legitimacy of the late Mr. Joseph Maunder, which could only be settled judicially. (Correspondence, Part IV, No. 5, p. 3.)

Recently, however, Mr. J. B. W. Maunder, in a letter dated the 9th January, 1885, forwarded three copies of birth certificates to prove the British nationality of himself and his two brothers. (Correspondence, Part IV, No, 15, p. 8.) These certificates show that Mr. J. B. W. Maunder was born in Liverpool, and that his two younger brothers were registered as British subjects respectively at the British Consulates at Nice and Paris.

Question as to protection of her son Mr. J. B. W. Maunder in Haïti.

Assuming that their father, the late Mr. Joseph Maunder, was illegitimate, and was a Haïtian subject (as contended by the Haïtian Government), his three sons would also be Haïtian subjects, and the fact of the registration of the two younger sons as British subjects at the British Consulates in Paris and Nice respectively would not make them British subjects if not otherwise entitled to that status. But Mr. J. B. W. Maunder, the eldest son, was born at Liverpool, and his case is therefore one of double nationality. His Haïtian nationality is in dispute, but he is certainly a natural-born British subject.

The question then arises how far Her Majesty's Government are entitled to give him British protection in Haïti as against the Haïtian authorities.

1885

The rule of international law which is followed by this Department in cases of double allegiance will be found stated in Lord Palmerston's despatch to Mr. Sheil of the 4th September, 1850. (Report of the Naturalization Commission, Appendix, p. 71.) It is as follows:—

"Children born in England of parents subjects of a foreign State would be entitled to be considered as British subjects everywhere but in the country to which their parents belong, always assuming that the law of that country considers children born to native subjects, while out of the country, to be as much native subjects as if they had been born in the country."

But in the present case the following considerations arise:—

1. Mr. J. B. W. Maunder is a natural-born British subject, and according to the opinion of M. Antoine (Part III. p. 23), his father, Mr. Joseph Maunder, even if illegitimate, was not a Haïtian subject, and therefore could not transmit Haïtian nationality to his son.

2. According to M. Antoine's opinion, the onus of proving that Mr. Joseph Maunder (the father of Mr. J. B. W. Maunder) had adopted Haïtian nationality rests with the Haïtian Government. (See first paragraph of opinion.)

3. So far as the question of British or Haïtian nationality rests on the validity of the marriage of Frédéric Maunder with Joséphine Busse, that question has never been settled judicially; it depends on a disputed point of the Marriage Law of Haïti, and on mutilated public records, which have been lost and recovered at various times, which have passed through numerous private hands during the frequent civil commotions in Haïti, and the authenticity of which is challenged. Moreover, until this claim arose, the Maunder family were always treated in Haïti, officially and privately, as British subjects.

Having regard to the above considerations, and especially to the first, the question now arises whether Her Majesty's Government are entitled to insist on Mr. J. B. W. Maunder's status as a natural-born British subject, and entitled to give him British protection in Haïti in relation to his claim against the Haïtian Government with respect to Tortuga Island, and to any other matter as to which British protection could properly be extended to a British subject in Haïti.

I am to request that you will take the papers transmitted herewith into your consideration, and that you will favour the Marquis of Salisbury with your opinion on the question submitted in this letter, and with any general observations which you may have to offer on the case.

I am, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

Report.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

May insist on Mr. J. B. W. Maunder's British nationality and grant him protection.

That Her Majesty's Government are, in our judgment, entitled to insist on Mr. J. B. W. Maunder's status as a natural-born British subject, and to give him British protection in Haïti in relation to his claim against the Haïtian Government with respect to Tortuga Island, and to any other matter as to which British protection could properly be extended to a British subject in Haïti.

It rests with Haïtian Government to prove Mrs. Maunder's Haïtian nationality.

We think that after Mrs. Maunder had been treated by the Haïtian Government as a British subject up to the date of her claim, and her right to British protection had been recognized by Her Majesty's Government, such protection might be properly continued until Mrs. Maunder's Haïtian nationality was conclusively established, and that the onus of proving such nationality by evidence satisfactory to Her Majesty's Government was on the Haïtian Government.

Evidence of her Haïtian nationality so far insufficient.

We do not regard the evidence hitherto adduced by the Haïtian Government as sufficient to prove affirmatively that Mrs. Maunder was a Haïtian subject.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

August 11, 1885.

No. 111.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 5.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, October 5, 1885.

Maunder claim.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 16th ultimo, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 11th August on the subject of the Maunder Claim, he was to transmit to us the draft of a despatch which your Lordship proposed, with our concurrence, to address to Her Majesty's Consul at Port-au-Prince on the subject.

That as bearing on the question of the right of Her Majesty's Government to extend British protection to Mr. J. B. Maunder, Sir J. Pauncefote was to lay before us further papers relating to his complaint against the Haïtian Government in connection with the Momance Estate.

That the particulars of that complaint were set out in Mr. McGuffie's despatch* No. 28 of the 23rd December, 1884, and the instructions sent in reply to Acting Consul Wyndham in the Foreign Office despatch No. 13 of the 15th July last.†

That our attention was invited to Mr. Wyndham's despatch No. 32 of the 18th August, reporting the steps taken by him in pursuance of those instructions, and inclosing a copy of the reply of the Haïtian Government to his representations on behalf of Mr. J. B. Maunder's complaint, in which they persisted in denying the right of Her Majesty's Government to intervene diplomatically.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the proposed draft was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft to Mr. Hunt as altered.

Demand for settlement of itself not sufficient.

That in our opinion the proposed draft to Mr. Consul Hunt, as altered, is in itself right and proper; but the further papers transmitted to us relating to the Momance Estate lead us to the conclusion that a demand that the claim of the Maunder family be settled without further delay, by arbitration or otherwise, will not by itself obtain redress from the Government of Haïti.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of a Despatch from the Marquis of Salisbury to Consul Hunt.

(No. .)
Sir,
Foreign Office, October , 1885.

HER Majesty's Government have had under their consideration the claims and complaints of the Maunder family against the Haïtian Government in relation to the Tortuga Island case, which has been the subject of a voluminous correspondence, interrupted at various times by the outbreak of revolutions in Haïti, and more recently in relation to their sugar estate of Momance, in regard to which instructions were sent to Acting Consul Wyndham in the Foreign Office despatch No. 13 of the 15th July last, and he was informed that further instructions would follow respecting the case of Tortuga Island. The late Mrs. Maunder unfortunately died in 1882, having exhausted her means and her energy in fruitless efforts to obtain justice at the hands of the Haïtian Government.

Her son, Mr. J. B. Maunder, has now appealed to Her Majesty's Government for protection and support, and he has adduced further grounds for their intervention in his letter of the 9th January last, a copy of which was inclosed in the Foreign Office despatch to Acting Consul Wyndham above referred to.

The late Mr. Joseph Maunder, and all his family, were treated by the Haïtian Government as British subjects up to the time when their claim was pressed by the British Government.

The Haïtian Government then sought to impugn the right of Her Majesty's Government to intervene on the ground that Mr. Joseph Maunder was illegitimate,

---

* Print, Part IV, p. 6, No. 13 (Confidential No. )

† Confidential No. , p. .

1885

and that, having been borne in Haïti, he was a Haïtian subject, and could impart no other nationality to his wife and children. His father, Mr. Frederick Maunder, was undoubtedly a natural-born British subject, and, so far as the legitimacy, and therefore the British nationality, of his son Mr. Joseph Maunder rests on the validity of the marriage of his parents, that question has never been decided judicially.

Her Majesty's Government consider that the Maunder family having been treated by the Haïtian Government as British up to the time of their claim, they are entitled to British protection until their Haïtian nationality is established, and that the onus of proving such nationality by evidence satisfactory to Her Majesty's Government lies on the Haïtian Government.

They do not regard the evidence hitherto adduced by the Haïtian Government as sufficient to prove that the Maunder family are Haïtian subjects, and they must insist, therefore, on extending to them British protection.

But there is another ground on which Mr. J. B. W. Maunder is entitled to British protection.

It appears from the certificate of his birth, transmitted in his letter of the 9th January last, that he was born in Liverpool. He is therefore a natural-born British subject, and, as such, he is entitled to the support of Her Majesty's Government in relation to the Tortuga Island claim, and to any other matter as to which the protection of Her Majesty's Government can properly be extended to British subjects in Haïti. Her Majesty's Government entertain no doubt as to the merits of the Tortuga Island claim, and they feel bound to demand of the Haïtian Government that justice may be done to it.

They must insist also on the Maunder family being treated in all other matters with due regard for their legal rights. As respects the Tortuga Island claim, the Haïtian Government have never pretended to deny that gross acts of spoliation were committed against the late Mrs. Maunder by officials of the Haïtian Government, under the Presidency of General Salnave, in 1868, and of General Dominique in 1870. From that time to this the Maunder family have not succeeded in obtaining any compensation whatever, notwithstanding the continuous appeals of the late Mrs. Maunder for the means of subsistence for herself and her seven children. Since her death her son, who is a natural-born British subject, has renewed her appeals to Her Majesty's Government, and it is indeed time that this case should be brought to a close. You will, therefore, address a note to the Foreign Minister of Haïti in the sense of this despatch, and demand that the claim be settled without further delay.

I am, &c.

---

Italy.

No. 112.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 17, 1885.

My Lord,

Detention of the "North Durham" in quarantine at Girgenti.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the claim of the owners of the British steamer "North Durham" to compensation from the Italian Government, under the circumstances set forth in his letter of the 17th November last.

Italian Government do not consider claim well grounded.

That a despatch was addressed to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Rome in the sense indicated in our Report of the 28th November last, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to his Excellency's despatch No. 7, Commercial, of the 29th ultimo, reporting that the Italian Government did not consider the claim well founded, alleging that the ship was not admitted to pratique in Sicily, because although she had performed the regular quarantine of twenty-one days in the Gulf of Naples, yet, during that time the cholera had broken out at Naples, and there was no guarantee that she had not been in communication with the infected city after the completion of the quarantine, and the captain was not able to give satisfactory explanations to the sanitary officials at Girgenti.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the reply of the Italian Government should be accepted as disposing of the claim.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Italian reply not satisfactory.

That the answer of the Italian Government does not appear to us to be altogether satisfactory.

It is stated in the letter of the Steam Ship-owners' Association, that the "North Durham" went to the quarantine ground at Naples under the charge of two health officers for the very purpose of serving a quarantine there, which should entitle her to free pratique in Sicily. It is true that whilst she was at Naples serving quarantine cholera broke out in or near that city, but in consequence of this, a further quarantine was imposed which the Italian authorities presumably considered sufficient, and to this the "North Durham" was made subject.

If the service of this quarantine was to be effectual for the purpose of obtaining free pratique at Girgenti, and it is asserted that the Italian authorities stated that it would be, it was surely for them to see that those on board the vessel did not, after the quarantine was over, and before she left Naples, communicate with the shore. We presume that some document was given to the captain by the Italian authorities at Naples, evidencing that the required quarantine had been submitted to.

Under these circumstances, the mere suggestion that those on board the vessel might have communicated with the shore, after the quarantine, does not appear sufficient to justify the action of the authorities at Girgenti.

If the quarantine may be served at Naples for Girgenti, it would seem to have been the duty of the Italian authorities at the former port to see that it was effectual.

The statement that the captain of the "North Durham" was not able to give satisfactory explanations to the Sanitary Officer at Grigenti is very vague.

In addition to this, as we understand the facts, the "North Durham" returned from Malta to Girgenti on the 8th, and was not admitted to pratique until the 11th September. Now, Sir J. Lumley states in his despatch of the 29th January (as amongst the facts on which M. Mancini relies) that on the return of the vessel from Malta the Government gave orders for her admission to free pratique, which was at once accorded, because by that time the Government had been able to receive an assurance from the Captain of the Port at Naples that the "North Durham" had had no communication with the city after the completion of the quarantine. It does not appear clear why this information was not obtained and the free pratique accorded before the 11th. For Sir J. Lumley states in his despatch of the 19th September, 1884, that he saw M. Depretis on the 7th of that month, who stated that in consequence of the representations Sir J. Lumley had made to him, he had already sent the necessary orders to Girgenti.

Should call attention of Italian Government to points above mentioned.

We suggest that the matters to which we have drawn attention should be brought to the notice of the Italian Government, in relation to the grounds upon which M. Mancini contends that there is no ground for any claim against his Government.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, September 11, 1884
To Sir. J. Lumley, No. 49, Commercial, September 15, 1884.
Sir J. Lumley, No. 125, Commercial, September 19, 1884.
To Sir J. Lumley, No. 61, Commercial, October 18, 1884.
To North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, October 18, 1884
North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, November 1, 1884.
To Law Officers, November 17, 1884.
Law Officers, November 28, 1884.
To Mr. Rothery, December 3, 1884.
Mr. Rothery, December 5, 1884.
To Sir J. Lumley, No. 70, Commercial, December 11, 1884.
Sir J. Lumley, No. 7, Commercial, January 29, 1885.

1885

and that, having been borne in Haïti, he was a Haïtian subject, and could impart no other nationality to his wife and children. His father, Mr. Frederick Maunder, was undoubtedly a natural-born British subject, and, so far as the legitimacy, and therefore the British nationality, of his son Mr. Joseph Maunder rests on the validity of the marriage of his parents, that question has never been decided judicially.

Her Majesty's Government consider that the Maunder family having been treated by the Haïtian Government as British up to the time of their claim, they are entitled to British protection until their Haïtian nationality is established, and that the onus of proving such nationality by evidence satisfactory to Her Majesty's Government lies on the Haïtian Government.

They do not regard the evidence hitherto adduced by the Haïtian Government as sufficient to prove that the Maunder family are Haïtian subjects, and they must insist, therefore, on extending to them British protection.

But there is another ground on which Mr. J. B. W. Maunder is entitled to British protection.

It appears from the certificate of his birth, transmitted in his letter of the 9th January last, that he was born in Liverpool. He is therefore a natural-born British subject, and, as such, he is entitled to the support of Her Majesty's Government in relation to the Tortuga Island claim, and to any other matter as to which the protection of Her Majesty's Government can properly be extended to British subjects in Haïti. Her Majesty's Government entertain no doubt as to the merits of the Tortuga Island claim, and they feel bound to demand of the Haïtian Government that justice may be done to it.

They must insist also on the Maunder family being treated in all other matters with due regard for their legal rights. As respects the Tortuga Island claim, the Haïtian Government have never pretended to deny that gross acts of spoliation were committed against the late Mrs. Maunder by officials of the Haïtian Government, under the Presidency of General Salnave, in 1868, and of General Dominique in 1870. From that time to this the Maunder family have not succeeded in obtaining any compensation whatever, notwithstanding the continuous appeals of the late Mrs. Maunder for the means of subsistence for herself and her seven children. Since her death her son, who is a natural-born British subject, has renewed her appeals to Her Majesty's Government, and it is indeed time that this case should be brought to a close. You will, therefore, address a note to the Foreign Minister of Haïti in the sense of this despatch, and demand that the claim be settled without further delay.

I am, &c.

---

Italy.

No. 112.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 17, 1885.

My Lord,

Detention of the "North Durham" in quarantine at Girgenti.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the claim of the owners of the British steamer "North Durham" to compensation from the Italian Government, under the circumstances set forth in his letter of the 17th November last.

Italian Government do not consider claim well grounded.

That a despatch was addressed to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Rome in the sense indicated in our Report of the 28th November last, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to refer us to his Excellency's despatch No. 7, Commercial, of the 29th ultimo, reporting that the Italian Government did not consider the claim well founded, alleging that the ship was not admitted to pratique in Sicily, because although she had performed the regular quarantine of twenty-one days in the Gulf of Naples, yet, during that time the cholera had broken out at Naples, and there was no guarantee that she had not been in communication with the infected city after the completion of the quarantine, and the captain was not able to give satisfactory explanations to the sanitary officials at Girgenti.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the reply of the Italian Government should be accepted as disposing of the claim.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Italian reply not satisfactory.

That the answer of the Italian Government does not appear to us to be altogether satisfactory.

It is stated in the letter of the Steam Ship-owners' Association, that the "North Durham" went to the quarantine ground at Naples under the charge of two health officers for the very purpose of serving a quarantine there, which should entitle her to free pratique in Sicily. It is true that whilst she was at Naples serving quarantine cholera broke out in or near that city, but in consequence of this, a further quarantine was imposed which the Italian authorities presumably considered sufficient, and to this the "North Durham" was made subject.

If the service of this quarantine was to be effectual for the purpose of obtaining free pratique at Girgenti, and it is asserted that the Italian authorities stated that it would be, it was surely for them to see that those on board the vessel did not, after the quarantine was over, and before she left Naples, communicate with the shore. We presume that some document was given to the captain by the Italian authorities at Naples, evidencing that the required quarantine had been submitted to.

Under these circumstances, the mere suggestion that those on board the vessel might have communicated with the shore, after the quarantine, does not appear sufficient to justify the action of the authorities at Girgenti.

If the quarantine may be served at Naples for Girgenti, it would seem to have been the duty of the Italian authorities at the former port to see that it was effectual.

The statement that the captain of the "North Durham" was not able to give satisfactory explanations to the Sanitary Officer at Grigenti is very vague.

In addition to this, as we understand the facts, the "North Durham" returned from Malta to Girgenti on the 8th, and was not admitted to pratique until the 11th September. Now, Sir J. Lumley states in his despatch of the 29th January (as amongst the facts on which M. Mancini relies) that on the return of the vessel from Malta the Government gave orders for her admission to free pratique, which was at once accorded, because by that time the Government had been able to receive an assurance from the Captain of the Port at Naples that the "North Durham" had had no communication with the city after the completion of the quarantine. It does not appear clear why this information was not obtained and the free pratique accorded before the 11th. For Sir J. Lumley states in his despatch of the 19th September, 1884, that he saw M. Depretis on the 7th of that month, who stated that in consequence of the representations Sir J. Lumley had made to him, he had already sent the necessary orders to Girgenti.

Should call attention of Italian Government to points above mentioned.

We suggest that the matters to which we have drawn attention should be brought to the notice of the Italian Government, in relation to the grounds upon which M. Mancini contends that there is no ground for any claim against his Government.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, September 11, 1884
To Sir. J. Lumley, No. 49, Commercial, September 15, 1884.
Sir J. Lumley, No. 125, Commercial, September 19, 1884.
To Sir J. Lumley, No. 61, Commercial, October 18, 1884.
To North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, October 18, 1884
North of England Steam Ship-owners' Association, November 1, 1884.
To Law Officers, November 17, 1884.
Law Officers, November 28, 1884.
To Mr. Rothery, December 3, 1884.
Mr. Rothery, December 5, 1884.
To Sir J. Lumley, No. 70, Commercial, December 11, 1884.
Sir J. Lumley, No. 7, Commercial, January 29, 1885.

1885

No. 113.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 13.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 12, 1885.

My Lord,

Signor L. Ferrato. Certificate as to transfer of contract from, required for legal proceedings.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit the papers* relative to an application which had been made by the Italian Chargé d'Affaires at this Court for a certificate showing that the failure of Signor L. Ferrato to perform a contract for the supply of "butts" and "fore-ends" of guns, which had been concluded between Her Majesty's Government and himself on the 28th February, 1877, caused Her Majesty's Government to withdraw the said contract and transfer it to other persons.

That the certificate was required in a law-suit instituted by Ferrato against certain of his sub-contractors, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether the form of certificate inclosed was such as might properly be communicated to the Italian Ambassador, and, if not, what alterations should be introduced into the wording of it.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed certificate.

That, in our opinion, the certificate is such as may be properly communicated to the Italian Ambassador for the purpose above stated.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Japan.

No. 114.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 9.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 9, 1885.

My Lord,

Land in Japan. Is it real or personal property?

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch† from Mr. Hannen, Judge of Her Majesty's Court for Japan, in which the question was raised whether, having regard to the particular tenure under which land was held by British subjects in Japan, it was to be considered realty or personalty.

That the suit had arisen in Her Majesty's Court for Japan with reference to the payment of probate duties on the estate of a deceased British subject.

That it was contended by the counsel for the executrix of the estate in question that upon such portion of the deceased's property as consisted of lands and houses no probate duty should be paid, though it had hitherto been the practice to do so, both in China and Japan, since the establishment of the Supreme Court at Shanghae, under the China and Japan Order in Council of the 9th March, 1865.

That Mr. Hannen transmitted a statement of the case, and suggested that the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown should be obtained thereon for the guidance of Her Majesty's Consular Courts in Japan, where a similar tenure of land prevailed, and that he made certain suggestions for meeting the difficulty.

---

* M. Catalani, October 5; to War Office, October 14; War Office, October 24, 1885.

† Mr. Hannen, No. 12, October 21, 1884.

That a copy of the Order in Council above referred to, and of the Treaty of 1858 between Great Britain and Japan, were transmitted therewith.*

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take Mr. Hannen's despatch, and inclosures, into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted therein, together with any general observations which we might have to offer on the question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the property being situate in Japan is only liable to probate or administration by virtue of the China and Japan Order in Council, which requires that probate or administration of personal property shall be taken out, and which imposes the payment of certain fees in respect of such probate and administration.

We think that the Order in Council must be interpreted, in the distinction which it makes between "personal" and "real" property, by the principles of the English law.

The distinctions in our law between real and personal property is a purely artificial one, and all the provisions requiring and relating to probate and administration obviously have reference to that law.

We think, therefore, that where the words "personal property" occur in the Order they must be understood as including only that which would, according to English law, be considered personalty.

The question, therefore, is whether land held on the tenure upon which the land was held by Mr. McDonald would be regarded as personalty according to our law.

We think it would not.

Land not personalty, and therefore not liable to probate duty.

The scale of fees made under the Order is not before us, but if, as we gather, the fee is made payable only upon the personal property of the deceased, we think that the value of the land cannot properly be taken into account in estimating the probate or administration duty.

Charge of duty for probate, &c., of property to which probate is not applicable, anomalous.

With reference to the change in the wording of the scale of fees suggested by Mr. Hannen, we would observe that, as long as probate or administration is required to be taken out only for personal property, it would seem anomalous to charge a fee or duty on obtaining probate or administration in respect of property to which the probate or administration were in no way applicable.

Abolition of distinction between personalty and realty requires a new Order in Council.

Whether the distinction between realty and personalty should be done away with, and probate required, and duty charged for both alike, is a serious question, which obviously requires great consideration.

And it could only be effected, we think, by a new Order in Council.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 115.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 4.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 3, 1885.

My Lord,

Breaking of Custom-house seals on the "Emily."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 19th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers† relating to a case which had been brought to the notice of Her Majesty's Minister at Tokio by the Japanese Government.

That the boatswain of the British vessel "Emily" was tried before Her Majesty's Consul at Kobe for breaking the seals placed by Custom-house officers on the hatches of that vessel, but was acquitted by the Consul on the ground that there had evidently been no intentional breaking of the seals, Mr. Troup justifying his decision by quoting from the Japanese text of the trade Regulations.

Protest by Japanese against acquittal of boatswain.

That the Japanese Government protested against that decision as being contrary to Article XXI of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty of 1858, which said that the Dutch version should be considered the authoritative one.

---

* Order in Council, March 9, 1865, Confidential No. 1354; Treaty, Great Britain and Japan, August 26, 1858, No. 433.

† (A) Mr. Plunkett, No. 222, November 28, 1884; (B) Mr. Plunkett, No. 223, November 28, 1884; (C) Treaty, Great Britain and Japan of August 26, 1858 (Treaty No. 433); (D) draft reply to Mr. Plunkett.

1885

That our opinion was requested as to whether the terms of the draft instruction to Mr. Plunkett in reply were right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft instructions to Mr. Plunkett as altered.

That we concur in substance with the proposed draft. But we would suggest that it should be altered as altered by us in red ink.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of despatch to Mr. Plunkett.

(No. .)

Sir,
Foreign Office, March , 1885.

I have received your despatches Nos. 222 and 223 of the 28th November last in regard to the case of the boatswain of the British vessel "Emily," which has been brought to your notice by the Japanese Government, who was tried before Her Majesty's Consul at Kobe for breaking the seals placed by Custom-house officers on the hatches of that vessel, but was acquitted by Mr. Troup on the ground that there had evidently been no intentional breaking of the seals, Mr. Troup justifying his decision by quoting from the Japanese text of the trade Regulations.

I have to state to you that Her Majesty's Government concur with the Japanese Government in the view that the Dutch version is in case of difference to be deemed the original, and that any wilful breaking of the seals, even though no fraud may have been contemplated, renders the person committing the act liable under the Regulations.

But if it were clearly proved that the act was purely accidental and unintentional, it would be contrary to the first principles of justice to hold that a criminal offence had been committed.

If a similar case should occur again and the Japanese Government should be dissatisfied with the decision of the Consul, it will be open to them to appeal.

I have to request you to inform the Japanese Government in the above sense.

---

Madagascar.

No. 116.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 6.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, March 5, 1885.

Engagement of Colonel Willoughby in Malagasy military service.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir. J. Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch* which had been received from Mr. Graves, Her Majesty's Consul at Madagascar, relative to Colonel Willoughby's engagement in the Malagasy military service.

That it would be in our recollection that on the 30th August last a draft instruction, which it was proposed to send to Mr. Graves, desiring him to caution Colonel Willoughby against committing a violation of section 4 of the Foreign Enlistment Act, to call upon him to retire from the Malagasy service during the continuance of the war with France, and to arrest and send him to Mauritius for trial, should he disregard the injunction, was submitted to us for our approval, and that on the 27th September† we expressed our approval, with some slight modifications, of the proposed instruction.

* Consul Graves, No. 5, Africa, January 12, 1885.

† See Confidential No. 5121, p. 70.

That those papers were again inclosed for convenience of reference.

Consul Graves' abstention from forcibly arresting him.

That Mr. Graves in the despatch now submitted to us stated that for various reasons, which are set forth in his despatch, he had for the present deemed it inexpedient to act upon the instruction, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was consequently to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether [the view taken by] Mr. Graves might be approved, or whether any additional instructions were required.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Do not disapprove Consul Graves. Continuance of such service an offence against Foreign Enlistment Act.

That we are of opinion that Mr. Graves should be informed that whilst your Lordship does not disapprove of the suggestions that he should, in the face of the probability of a collision, abstain from arresting Colonel Willoughby by means of an armed force, yet that your Lordship desires him to communicate in forcible terms to Colonel Willoughby the view entertained by your Lordship, that his continuance in the service of the Malagasy Government constitutes an offence against the Foreign Enlistment Act, and will be regarded as such.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Morocco.

No. 117.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 20.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, January 19, 1885.

Attacks on Moorish Government by newspapers at Tangier.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 20th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Sir J. D. Hay of the 16th November, 1884, relating to a complaint made by the Government of Morocco to Her Majesty's Minister at Tangier, respecting the publication of certain newspapers issued at Tangier, of which the editors are British subjects, of articles containing offensive reflections upon the Moorish Government, and upon the foreign Representatives accredited to the Sultan's Court.

That it would be seen that Her Majesty's Minister requests instructions for his guidance in the event of the continuance of the practice of which the Moorish Government complain, and that he asked, specifically, to be informed whether the Moorish Government was at liberty to forbid the publication of a newspaper which had given just grounds for offence.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was further to annex a draft of the reply which your Lordship proposed, with our concurrence, to return to the inquiries made by Sir J. D. Hay.

That a copy of the Treaty between Great Britain and Morocco of the 9th December, 1856, was inclosed, but that it did not appear to contain any clause which touches upon the present question. That copies of previous Law Officers' Reports relating to cases of a similar character were also inclosed, together with a short Memorandum drawn up by the Librarian of the Foreign Office, bearing upon the subject.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether we concurred in the terms of the proposed instruction to Sir J. D. Hay.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve instructions to Sir J. D. Hay as to suppression or warning of.

That we concur generally in the terms of the proposed draft instructions to Sir J. D. Hay, but we suggest that for the paragraph (A) commencing on p. 4, the following may be substituted:—

"The question you have raised as to suppressing or interfering with the publication of the journals in question depends on the law of Morocco, which, in such respects, the Moorish Government are entitled to enforce."

1885

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Sir J. Drummond Hay.

(No. .)

Sir, Foreign Office, January , 1885.

I have had under my consideration your despatch No. 104 of the 16th November, in which you request instructions as to the course you should pursue in the matter of a complaint which has been made to you by the Moorish Government with regard to a practice adopted by certain British subjects, who are editors of newspapers issued at Tangier, of publishing articles containing offensive reflections upon the Sultan's Government, as well as attacks upon foreign Representatives in that capital.

I have, in reply, to acquaint you that the matter does not appear to his Lordship to be one in which you should take any direct action.

It is competent to the Moorish Government either to prohibit absolutely the publication of any newspaper in Morocco by a British subject, or to authorize it on any conditions it pleases which are not contrary to the Treaty engagements of Morocco with this country.

The question you have raised depends, therefore, on the law of Morocco, and in the event of the suppression by the Moorish Government of the newspapers in question, Her Majesty's Government would raise no objection, provided their publication has given just cause of offence to the authorities of the country, and that the measure is warranted by Moorish law.

There is no objection to your conveying, at the request of the Moorish Government, a warning to the editors of the consequences to which they will render themselves liable if they disregard the complaint which has been made to you.

I am, &c.

---

List of Papers.

Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 104, November 16, 1884.
Treaty, Great Britain and Morocco, December 9, 1856. Treaty No. 416.
Memorandum, Sir E. Hertslet, December 20, 1884.
Turkey—
  Law Officers, February 14, 1865. Confidential No. 1489, p. 150.
  Queen's Advocate, February 14, 1867. Confidential No. 1745, p. 112.
  Ditto, March 23, 1867. Confidential No. 1745, p. 114.
  Ditto, May 7, 1867. Confidential No. 1745, p. 115.
  Law Officers, July 25, 1872. Confidential No. 4098, p. 170.
  Ditto, August 9, 1872. Confidential No. 4098, p. 171.
  Ditto, October 12, 1874. Confidential No. 4331, p. 167.
  Ditto, March 8, 1875. Confidential No. 4370, p. 87.
Egypt—
  Law Officers, February 1, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 20.

---

No. 118.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 11, 1885.

Sanitary Regulations. Enforcement of observance by fine or otherwise.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 27th ultimo, in which he stated that, by direction of your Lordship, he transmitted to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to the question whether Her Majesty's Consular Court at Tangier had power, under the Morocco Order in Council of 1857 (section 1) to enforce upon British subjects, by the imposition of a fine or otherwise, the observance of Sanitary Regulations drawn up by the Morocco Board of Health with a view of preventing the introduction of cholera within the Moorish territory.

That the Morocco Board of Health was composed of the foreign Representatives, and, in concert with the Moorish authorities, they had framed the Regulation of which the substance was given in Sir J. D. Hay's despatch, and to which he had agreed on behalf of Her Majesty's Government.

That unless Her Majesty's Minister at Tangier could treat the agreement to accept the Regulations in question as a "Treaty or Convention" which he could enforce by a British Regulation made by him under Article 1 of the above-mentioned Order in Council, it would seem that there was no legal power to impose a fine for the violation of its provisions.

That a new Order in Council for Morocco was now in course of preparation which would obviate the difficulty; but, in the meanwhile, Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question submitted by Sir J. D. Hay.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

The British Consul may under Order in Council make proposed Regulation.

That we think the British Consul may, under Article 1 of the Morocco Order in Council, make a British Regulation, "for the peace, order, and good government of Her Majesty's subjects being within the dominions of the Sultan of Morocco," in the terms of the proposed Regulation of the Morocco Board of Health.

All the provisions of the Order in Council with regard to such Regulations, their publication, &c., must be observed.

And enforce it by fines.

A Regulation so made could be enforced by such fines as are proposed.

Fines must be paid to public account, not to local funds.

The amounts of the fines so levied would, however, under Article 33 of the Morocco Order in Council, have to be paid to the public account, and could not be paid into the local funds on account of cleansing the town without an amendment of the Order in Council.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

[*] Sir J. D. Hay, No. 25, Consular, August 3, 1885; Convention of Commerce and Navigation between Her Majesty and the Sultan of Morocco, December 9, 1856 (Treaty No. 416); Order in Council, December 27, 1857 (Confidential No. 1516).

---

No. 119.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 20, 1885.

Intervention of unqualified persons in Consular Court.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister in Morocco,* reporting the circumstances under which he had informed the editors of certain newspapers that he would not permit their intervention on behalf of suitors in the British Consular Court, or in applications made to Her Majesty's Consular officers by British subjects, in matters which did not concern those journalists personally; that neither of them was qualified by law to practise the legal profession; and that your Lordship proposed to approve the action of Sir J. D. Hay, but that, before doing so, your Lordship desired to be informed whether there was, in our opinion, any objection to that course.

That a copy of the Order in Council of the 27th August, 1857,† regulating Her Majesty's jurisdiction in Morocco, was inclosed.‡

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

May refuse to admit such intervention.

That Sir J. D. Hay may lawfully decline to admit the intervention of Messrs. Cohen and Meakin on behalf of suitors in the British Consular Court.

If we are right in assuming that this is all which he has done, his conduct may be approved.

---

[*] Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 30, Consular, October 20, 1885.

[†] Confidential No. 1516.

[‡] The Order in Council of February 4, 1875, Confidential No. 2573, was also sent.

1885

Status of legally appointed agent cannot be ignored.

He could not, however, in other matters, safely ignore the status of any agent who was legally appointed to act in that capacity.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Netherlands.

No. 120.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 14.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 6, 1885.

My Lord,

Detention of the crew of the "Nisero" by the Rajah of Tenom. Claim of Her Majesty's Government on Dutch for cost of operations.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 1st instant, stating that our Report of the 6th ultimo on the case of the "Nisero" had been under the consideration of your Lordship, and that by your Lordship's directions he was to submit the following further observations on the question of the claim of Her Majesty's Government to reimbursement of the expenses incurred by them in the joint operations undertaken by them with Holland for effecting the release of the captives.

That your Lordship concluded from our Report that the claim against the Netherlands Government in respect of those expenses was of a moral and equitable character, and not one which could be pressed as a matter of legal right. That if that conclusion be correct, Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that, in the opinion of your Lordship, there was no prospect of the proposed application to the Netherlands Government being successful.

That when the latter acceded to the proposal of Her Majesty's Government for joint action, they only consented to pay the ransom previously offered by them for the release of the captives, but that no stipulation was made as to the payment by them of the share of expenses which might be incurred by Her Majesty's Government in the matter. That any suggestion of the kind would have caused a rejection of the proposal, for they had been strongly assailed in the Chamber for having accepted British co-operation at all.

That in view of the above facts, and of any other considerations which might occur to us, your Lordship desired our further opinion as to the advisability of making a claim on the Netherlands Government for the expenses in question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not wise to make claim in question, as refusal is inevitable.

That, with the full information which is now before us, we do not think it would be wise to make a claim on the Netherlands Government for the expenses in question.

Reasons for above opinion.

The considerations which strongly incline us to this view are:—

1. That the Dutch rather yielded to than invited our co-operation, and that they would probably insist that they would as effectually have secured the release of the captives without our aid, and would not improbably revert to the old story of the visit of the Pegasus having been in fact the cause of the mischief.

2. That we stipulated, in the first instance, for the payment of the ransom, and did not ask for the expenses of our part of the expedition, although it was certain that such expenditure would be incurred.

3. That, by making this claim, which we should have no chance of getting their assent to, we should probably weaken our prospect of obtaining the 10,000 dollars.

Regarding the aspect of the case as a matter of policy here we think it would, under the circumstances, be better not to make the claim only to receive the refusal, which seems almost inevitable.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Pacific Islands.

No. 121.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 22.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 21, 1885.

My Lord,

Case of the "Madras."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 2nd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the case of the "Madras" at Honolulu.*

That in the despatch to Major Wodehouse of the 29th October, 1884, would be found the instructions which were addressed to him regarding that case on the receipt of our Report dated the 11th September last. That Major Wodehouse now inclosed, in his despatch No. 2, Commercial, dated the 28th February, a copy of an "exhaustive statement" of the case as prepared by the Hawaiian Attorney-General, the correctness of which statement was contested by Mr. F. H. Davies, representing the agents of the "Madras."

That Major Wodehouse, it would be seen, also impugned the accuracy of Neumann's statement as regarded points of fact; but that he desired more especially to draw the attention of Her Majesty's Government to what he described as the "discourteous remark" of the Hawaiian Foreign Minister, "that in all the points just recited Her Majesty's Government had been misinformed." That Major Wodehouse proceeded to solicit instructions as to the further communication which he should address to the Hawaiian Government on the matter.

That having respect to the opinion expressed in our above-mentioned Report, that strong diplomatic representations might properly be addressed to the Hawaiian Government in support of the claim of the owners of the vessel, Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the further instructions which it might be expedient to address to Her Majesty's Consul-General at Honolulu concerning the case in question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Further facts have caused them to modify opinion of the 11th September, 1884.

That we have found considerable difficulty in forming an opinion as to the advice proper to be submitted to your Lordship in this case.

The further facts now placed before us have caused us to modify the opinion expressed in our Report of the 11th September, 1884.

Mutinous condition, &c., of the passengers formed ground for vigilance of action on part of Hawaiian Government.

Whilst we refrain from expressing an opinion that the conduct of the Hawaiian Government was justified, we think that the further facts submitted to us (and of which we were ignorant when we made our Report of the 11th September) establish that the mutinous condition of the passengers on board the "Madras," their attempts, contrary to all regulations, to reach the shore, and the injuries which the inhabitants of Honolulu had recently sustained from small-pox, formed ground for extreme vigilance of action on the part of the Hawaiian Government.

---

* Mr. Chapman, August 23; Major Wodehouse, No. 17, Commercial, November 1, 1883; ditto, No. 1, Commercial, February 1; ditto, No 2A, Commercial, April 15; Board of Trade, May 23; to Major Wodehouse, No. 4, Commercial, May 31; Major Wodehouse, No. 4, Commercial, July 15; Law Officers, September 11; to Major Wodehouse, No. 6, Commercial, October 29; Major Wodehouse, No. 5, December 1; ditto, No. 6, December 31, 1884; ditto, No. 2, Commercial, February 28, 1885.

Her Majesty's Government cannot determine whether such action is justifiable.

Whether such action is or is not legally justifiable we think ought not to be positively determined (so as to insist upon compensation) by Her Majesty's Government.

No reason to suppose that justice will be denied to owners.

And in view of the fact that the owners of the "Madras" have already obtained a judicial decision in their favour in the Hawaiian Courts, we see no reason for supposing that justice will be denied if they again should institute legal proceedings.

Previous decision does not determine question involved in the claim for compensation.

We do not regard the previous decision we have above referred to as determining the question involved in the claim for compensation.

Attendance of witnesses.

We would hope that the difficulty of procuring the attendance of witnesses may be overcome. Captain Bradley's testimony, added to that of the agents and other residents at Honolulu, would probably suffice.

Hawaiian Government should be informed that Major Wodehouse has not misrepresented the case.

We think that the Hawaiian Government should be informed that Major Wodehouse has not in any way concealed or misrepresented the facts of the case so far as they were before him.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Persia.

No. 122.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 24, 1885.

Mr. Arsenian, a Persian, naturalized as British subject.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers relating to the case of Mr. Arsenian, a naturalized British subject of Persian origin, carrying on business at Manchester and Constantinople, whose property, as alleged by him, was seized at Constantinople by the Persian authorities, and who, for some time past, had received the unofficial support of Her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople and Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran, as the goods the title to which was in question were the produce of his trading in this country, and he was liable in respect of them to English creditors, who had constantly pressed their claims upon the attention of Her Majesty's Government.

Seizure of his goods at Constantinople by Persian authorities.

Proceedings in Persian Consular Courts.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to explain that the intervention of Her Majesty's Government was requested in March 1880, by the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, to protect Mr. Arsenian against the action of the Persian Consul-General at Constantinople, by whose orders his warehouses there had been taken possession of, and sealed, in view of a litigation between Mr. Arsenian, on the one side, claiming to have been in partnership with his late father, and his relatives, co-heirs to his father, on the other.

That it was decided, after reference to our predecessors and to ourselves, that Mr. Arsenian, notwithstanding his British naturalization, was not exempt from the jurisdiction of the Persian Consular Court at Constantinople in a civil suit; but that an officer from the British Embassy should attend at the Court of the Persian Ambassador when the case came before him on appeal against the decision that Mr. Arsenian had no rights over the goods in question, which were the sole property of his father. That a Dragoman from the Embassy was accordingly present during the whole trial, and reported that the proceedings were perfectly regular, and that every opportunity was given to Mr. Arsenian's counsel to exhibit his case.

That the Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the Consular Court, and Judgment was given against him (B), whereupon he went to Tehran to press his case with the Persian Government, and that Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran was instructed to afford him such advice and assistance unofficially as he might think proper, inasmuch as he was a naturalized British subject, although amenable to the laws and jurisdiction of Persia, the country of his birth.

British protection granted to him at Tehran.

That it subsequently transpired, from a Report of Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran, that Her Majesty's Government would be justified in claiming the right to grant protection, as against the Persian authorities both in Persia and Turkey, to Mr. Arsenian as a naturalized British subject under Articles IX and XII of the Treaty between Great Britain and Persia, but that there were obvious difficulties in the way of pressing such a claim after the course taken by Her Majesty's Government, in ignorance of the circumstances established by the Report, of allowing the Persian authorities at Constantinople to assume jurisdiction over Mr. Arsenian's property (Law Officers' Reports C and D).

That the effect of Mr. Thomson's unofficial representation to the Persian Government was that the Persian Ambassador at Constantinople entered into communication with Her Majesty's Ambassador, with a view to settling the case to the satisfaction of Mr. Arsenian's British creditors, who demanded to have their claims liquidated out of the proceeds of the sale of the goods confiscated at Constantinople, irrespective of any contested action as to the ownership of the property.

Further explanations.

That our attention was called. first, to the Memorandum of the 24th June, 1884, by the Persian Ambassador, and to the observations upon it by Mr. Consul-General and Judge Fawcett, after communication with Mr. Arsenian's counsel in the Court of Appeal (E); and, secondly to the Memorandum by Mr. Fawcett of the 1st August, 1884, in which he stated that facts had come to his knowledge which gave the case a different aspect, unfavourable to Mr. Arsenian, and recommended that his creditors should distinctly formulate their claims with the dates, as they might be creditors for recent consignments made subsequent to the action of the Persian authorities at Constantinople (F). That the English creditors, however, refused to furnish the particulars of their claims (G). That, in the meanwhile, owing to the pressure brought to bear by Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran, the Persian Government proposed three courses:—

Persian proposals.

1. Compromise by direct arrangement with Mr. Arsenian at Constantinople.
2. Reference of case to the Persian Minister in London with a view to a compromise.
3. Re-investigation of case at Tehran (Sir R. Thomson's No. 113 of the 16th July, 1884, Inclosure H).

That after communication with Mr. Arsenian, it was proposed to the Persian Ambassador at Constantinople to name some impartial person there to discuss the matter with his Excellency with a view to effecting a compromise, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to invite our attention to Mr. Wyndham's despatch No. 497 (Inclosure I), reporting his action in the matter, and inclosing a Memorandum by the Persian Ambassador of the 23rd December, in which he urges the futility of any attempt to compromise the case. That his Excellency represented the impossibility of disturbing the final Judgment of the Persian Court of Appeal at Constantinople, and pointed out that the English creditors did not put in their claims in the suit. That he added that they were at liberty to do so now, although the assets had been distributed.

That your Lordship had ascertained from Messrs. Fox, solicitors to Mr. Arsenian at Manchester, that the latter had effected a settlement with his English creditors (K).

That the question therefore arose, whether, in view of Mr. Fawcett's last Report, and of the explanations given by the Persian Minister, Her Majesty's Government were justified in pressing the case any further, and whether Mr. Arsenian might properly be left to prosecute an appeal to Tehran under British protection.

That our opinion was requested as to the course which should now be followed, and that your Lordship desired also to be favoured with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Let him appeal under British protection.

That, in our opinion, Mr. Arsenian may, under the circumstances, properly be left to prosecute an appeal to Tehran under British protection.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

1885

List of Papers.

(A.) Law Officers, April 8, 1880. Confidential No. 4539, p. 80.
Ditto, June 9, 1880. Confidential No. 4539, p. 81.
Ditto, November 22, 1881. Confidential No. 4637, p. 100
(B.) The Earl of Dufferin, No. 70, February 1, 1882.
(C.) Law Officers, November 30, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 56.
(D.) Ditto, April 10, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 87.
(E.) The Earl of Dufferin, No. 210, June 27, 1884.
(F.) Ditto, No. 259, August 4, 1884.
(G.) Messrs. Fox, September 17, 1884.
(H.) Sir R. Thomson, No. 113, July 16, 1884.
(I.) Mr. Wyndham, No. 497, December 27, 1884.
(K.) Messrs. Fox, January 16, 1885.

---

No. 123.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1885.

Case of Mr. Arsenian, a naturalized British subject, whose goods were seized at Constantinople by Persian authorities.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 18th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the papers* which related to the case of Mr. Arsenian, together with a letter from his solicitors, Messrs. Fox, who had requested that those papers might be referred to us.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether those documents, most of which had already been before us or our predecessors, at different times, contained anything to modify the views already expressed in our Report of the 24th February.

That Mr. Currie was to state that the paper referred to by Messrs. Fox, as Mr. Ede's reply to the Persian Memorandum of May 1884, did not appear to have been lodged at Her Majesty's Embassy at Constantinople, and was not in the possession of Her Majesty's Government.

That Mr. Currie was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Nothing in the further papers to modify previous opinion.

That there is nothing in the documents now before us to cause us to modify the views we have already expressed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers.

Messrs. Fox, February 24, 1885.
Manchester Chamber of Commerce, March 19, 1880.
Mr. Arsenian, April 28, 1880.
Mr. Slagg's question and reply, June 14, 1880.
Mr. Ede to Sir H. Layard, April 23, 1880.
" " " April 27, 1880.
" " " May 8, 1880.
Persian Ambassador at Constantinople to Sir H. Layard, April 22, 1880.
" " " " April 25, 1880.
" " " " May, 24, 1880.
Lord Granville to Manchester Chamber of Commerce, April 15, 1880.
" " Messrs. Fox, April 19, 1883.
" " " August 23, 1883.
Messrs. Fox, August 6, 1884.

No. 124.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 23, 1885.

Bankruptcy of Herapit and Aratoon.

Lien on tobacco consigned on their behalf to D. Sassoon and Co.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice's letter of the 4th instant, stating that he was to transmit papers* relating to the bankruptcy of the Persian firm of Herapit and Aratoon at Bushire, and to the question of a lien on the tobacco consigned on behalf of that firm by Messrs. Malcolm and Co. to Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co.

That your Lordship had thought it desirable, in that particular case, to forward, very confidentially, to Her Majesty's Minister at Tehran, copies of our Reports on that case, dated respectively the 12th and 30th December last, with a view to further inquiry in the matter.

Further Reports on the case.

That the inclosures in Sir R. Thomson's No. 4, Commercial, of the 17th April contained the results of his reference of our above-mentioned Reports to Her Majesty's Consul-General at Bushire, who forwarded, among other documents, a Memorandum summarizing the leading features of the correspondence. That it would be seen from Lieut.-Colonel Ross' Report, dated the 28th March, that the whole or main consignment of the tobacco was shipped on the 13th October, 1882, or five days after the declaration of bankruptcy, and that he only undertook to guarantee Messrs. Malcolm against incurring responsibility to any one by obeying his order to pay the proceeds of the 100 bags of tobacco into the Residency, in reliance on their assurances that they had retained complete control of the transaction.

That Lieut.-Colonel Ross further pointed out that when Messrs. Malcolm placed the proceeds of sale in the hands of Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co., and gave the latter to understand that they had every right to retain the amount, the conditions were wholly altered, and that his (Colonel Ross') guarantee had no application to such circumstances.

That Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether the further information then transmitted enabled us to advise your Lordship on the points of law raised by Sir R. Thomson on behalf of the liquidators, and submitted to us in the reference from the Foreign Office of the 12th December last.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Conclude that Sassoon and Co.'s claim is not well founded.

That the letters of Messrs. Malcolm and Co. of the 24th October, the 7th November, and the 20th December, 1882, and those of Messrs. Sassoon and Co. of the 8th and 26th February, 1884, certainly appear inconsistent with the case now set up by Messrs. Sassoon, and the declaration of Mr. Malcolm in support of it.

And, in the absence of satisfactory explanations, we should come to the conclusion that the claim of Messrs. Sassoon, was not well founded.

Want further explanations before giving opinion.

But we do not think it right in us to express such an opinion without their having some opportunity of affording an explanation on these points, and also as to the date of shipment and the time when the documents of title were forwarded to them or their agents, and also of adducing any further documentary evidence bearing upon the case.

In what manner this opportunity would best be given them we are not in a position to say.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Messrs. D. Sassoon and Co., November 3; Sir E. Hertslet, Memorandum, October 15, 1884; Law Officers, December 12, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, pp. 83-85); ditto, December 30, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, p. 85); to Sir R. Thomson, No. 1, Commercial, Confidential, January 5; Sir R. Thomson, No. 4, Commercial, April 17, 1885.

Peru.

---

No. 125.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 6, 1885.

Seizure of British vessel "Overdale" by Peruvians off Mollendo.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 31st ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, which related to the seizure of a British vessel, by a Peruvian guardacosta, off the port of Mollendo.

That on the 22nd July last Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima reported the closing of certain ports by the Peruvian Government "in furtherance of fiscal interests," and that in a later despatch he announced that the port of Mollendo had also been closed by order of the Government. That Mr. Barrington did not, however, state whether that port was in the occupation of the rebels. That if that were so, your Lordship apprehended that the Government of Peru had a right to establish a blockade, but only a blockade jure gentium, and therefore an effective one, and with due notice.

That no official notification of the closing of that port had been received by Her Majesty's Government, and that with regard to the blockade being effective, in a subsequent despatch, dated the 10th September, Mr. Barrington reported that the port of Mollendo was still closed by order, and that "the Government was fitting out a small vessel destined as a guard-ship there."

That on the 5th September the British barque "Overdale" left London bound for Mollendo; that on her arrival there she was seized by the guard-ship for attempting to break the so-called blockade, and sent to Callao, where she then was under arrest, although it did not appear that her master had received notice of the closing of the port.

That, as far as could be judged from the facts before your Lordship, the seizure was illegal, and that the blockade, even if originally valid, appeared, according to a private note of the 22nd October from Mr. Barrington, to have been vitiated by the entry of Chilean vessels into the port. That Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires had accordingly been instructed by telegraph to protest, and endeavour to obtain the release of the vessel.

That the Reports of the Law Officers on the cases of the Dominican blockade of Puerto Plata in 1878, the blockade of Jacmel by Decree in 1876, and the closing of the port of Jérémie in 1883, and on the Haïtian Circular as to the closing of ports by Decrees in 1883, were inclosed for reference.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the case, and as to what further steps, if any, could properly be taken at the present time.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Blockade invalid.

That we do not understand what is meant by a closing of the ports "in furtherance of fiscal interests," and when the ports were in the hands of rebels, and the "closing" of them was an act of hostility, we think it could only be valid as against other Powers if the blockade were effectively maintained and duly notified.

Seizure of vessel illegal. Her release should be demanded.

It certainly appears that the seizure of the barque "Overdale" was, under the circumstances, wholly illegal, and we think that instructions should be given to demand her release. In reply to this demand, it will be open to the Peruvian Government to state any facts which may tend to alter the present aspect of the case.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

1. Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22, 1884.
2. Ditto, No. 87, August 28, 1884.
3. Ditto, No. 95, September 10, 1884.
4. Ditto, Private, October 22, 1884.
5. Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
6. Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
7. Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 30, 1884.
8. Ditto, Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
9. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
10. To Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
11. Law Officers' Report, May 6, 1876: Confidential No. 4028, p. 41.
12. Ditto, May 31, 1878: Confidential No. 4280, p. 44.
13. Ditto, July 16, 1883: Confidential No. 4974, p. 66.
14. Ditto, December 15, 1883: Confidential No. 4974, p. 75.

---

No. 126.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 12, 1885.

Seizure of the "Overdale" for breach of blockade of Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 6th instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 31st ultimo in regard to the seizure of the British ship "Overdale" by Peruvian guardacosta off the port of Mollendo, he was to transmit to us a telegram* received that day from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires in Peru, asking for authority to recommend the payment by the vessel of the fine demanded by the Peruvian authorities, under protest, reserving question of principle.

That on receipt of that telegram your Lordship caused that suggestion to be submitted to the owners, and that Mr. Currie was to forward their reply, in which they state that they hesitated to give their assent, in view of the difficulty of recovering the amount and the prejudice the payment of the fine might cause to their claim.

That our opinion was desired as to the reply which should be returned to Mr. Barrington's inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should pay fine under protest if not large and cannot otherwise obtain release of ship.

That we think it would be advisable to telegraph to Mr. Barrington to inquire the amount of the fine, and whether there is any prospect of a speedy release being obtained by him in any other way. If there is not, and the fine is not a large one, the better course would seem to be to pay it under protest, and insist on its return.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 127.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 3.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 3, 1885.

Seizure of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade of Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that with reference to our Reports of the 6th and 12th ultimo, he was to transmit to us the papers† relating to the seizure and detention

* Mr Barrington, Telegraphic, January 5, 1885.

† List of papers sent to the Law Officers, January 23, 1885:—(A) Doward Dickson and Co., January 21; (B) to Doward Dickson and Co., January 22; (C) to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885. Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22; ditto, No. 87, August 28; ditto, No. 95, September 10; ditto (Private), October 22; Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), December 27; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 27; Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), December 30; ditto, December 31; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 31; to Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic). December 31, 1884; Law Officers' Report, May 6, 1876 (Confidential No. 4028), p. 41; ditto, May 31, 1878 (Confidential No. 4280), p. 24. Ditto, July 16, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974), p. 15; ditto, December 15, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974), p. 75. To Law Officers, December 31, 1884 (Confidential No. , p. ); Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 5; Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), January 6; to Law Officers, January 6; to Doward Dickson and Co., January 6: Law Officers, January 6; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), No. 1, January 7; Sir Farrer Herschell, January 8; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), No. 2, January 12; Law Officers, January 12; Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic) No. 3, January 16; to Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 17; to Doward Dickson and Co., January 19; Doward Dickson and Co. (Telegraphic), January 22; J. Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22; to J. Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885 of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" by the Peruvian authorities at Mollendo.

1885

That our attention was directed to Messrs. Dickson and Co.'s letter and to the reply thereto, as well as to the instruction sent to Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima, and that your Lordship desired our opinion as to whether the action taken was right and proper under the circumstances, and that we would favour your Lordship with any further advice we might have to offer in the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve instructions.

That, in our opinion, the proposed instructions to Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima are such as are right and proper under the circumstances.

Should point out to owners objections to refusal to pay fine under protest.

We also suggest for consideration whether it may not be well to point out to the owners that the larger the loss they sustain the greater will be the difficulty of recovering compensation from the Peruvian Government, and that it appears, therefore, to Her Majesty's Government, that if the actual loss to the owners from further delay would exceed the sum claimed, and which might be paid under protest, it is to be regretted that the owners decline to take a course which would diminish the difficulty of obtaining an indemnity.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Earl Granville to Mr. Barrington.

(No. .)
(Telegraphic.) Foreign Office, January , 1885.

"Overdale" owners refuse deposit. "Kirkloch" also seized.

If seizure on same grounds, demand immediate release of both ships. Her Majesty's Government will hold Peruvian Government responsible for detention.

Reply immediately, and report amount of fines and duty in sterling.

---

No. 128.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 9.)

Seizure of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade of Mollendo.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 7, 1885.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 4th instant, stating that with reference to our Report of the 3rd February relative to the seizure of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" by the Peruvian authorities at Mollendo, he was to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the further papers noted in the accompanying list.*

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration with the correspondence previously forwarded to us, which was returned therewith, and favour your Lordship with any additional suggestions we might have to offer as to the course to be taken by Her Majesty's Government, under the circumstances explained by Mr. Barrington and the Admiral commanding Her Majesty's naval forces on the station.

We were also honoured with a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 5th instant, inclosing a despatch† from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima, giving further particulars as to the circumstances under which the British ship "Overdale" was seized by the Peruvian authorities at Mollendo.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was also to forward two letters from the Admiralty‡ inclosing telegrams from the British Admiral on the station relative to the seizures of the "Overdale" and the "Kirkloch," and to request that we would take those papers into our consideration together with the correspondence already forwarded to us, and favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to the course which should be taken by Her Majesty's Government in regard to the seizures of the two vessels.

---

* List of papers sent to the Law Officers, February 4, 1885 ("Overdale" and "Kirkloch"):—

(A) Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 24; (B) Field and Weightman, January 24; (C) To Admiralty, January 26; (D) Steel and Son, January 27; (E) Admiralty, February 1; (F) Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 3; (G) Law Officers, February 3, 1885.

† Mr. Barrington, No. 123, December 31, 1884.

‡ Admiralty (A), January 28 ditto, February 4, 1885.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Aspect of case altered.

That the contents of Mr. Barrington's telegram of the 3rd (4th) February, entirely alter the aspect of the case.

It appears from that telegram that the Admiral is now of opinion that the seizure of the "Overdale" was justifiable, and that the fine ought to be paid.

Admiral should explain grounds for opinion as to legality of seizure and fine.

The view hitherto presented to us, and with which we have agreed, has been that the seizure of the vessel was illegal.

We can only suggest that further information should be obtained from the Admiral as to the grounds upon which he has expressed the opinion that the "Overdale" has been rightly seized.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 129.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 11.)

Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" for breach of blockade at Mollendo.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 11, 1885.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a Memorandum from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 9th instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 6th instant respecting the cases of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch," he was to transmit a further letter from Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co.,* from which it appeared that the Peruvian Consul at Liverpool did not know, at the time the "Overdale" sailed, nor did he know officially on the 30th December, that the port of Mollendo was blockaded.

That Sir J. Pauncefote had the honour to request that that letter might be taken into consideration with the correspondence already forwarded from the Foreign Office.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 9th instant, transmitting to us a letter from the Admiralty,† inclosing a copy of a telegram from the British Admiral, dated from Mollendo, 6th February, in which he explained his reasons for considering the seizure of the "Overdale" by the Peruvian authorities to have been legal.

That, at the same time, Sir J. Pauncefote was to transmit copies of the Reports of the Law Officers‡ bearing upon the question whether a Government was legally justified in closing one or more of its ports, in times of civil commotion, to the commerce of all nations, by a Municipal Order issued for fiscal reasons, and to prevent the customs dues falling into the hands of the revolutionary party, and in seizing foreign vessels which might violate such Order.§

That if such closing of a port was permissible, the case of the "Overdale" appeared to turn upon nice questions of fact which were not before your Lordship.

That in those circumstances Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the course which should be pursued by Her Majesty's Government in the cases of the "Overdale" and of the "Kirkloch."

That the papers‖ which accompanied the former references to us on the case were returned therewith, together with our Reports of the 3rd and 7th instant.

---

* Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 7, 1885.

† Admiralty, February 7, 1885.

‡ Law Officers, July 15, 1869 (Confidential No. 2545, p. 107); Queen's Advocate, July 1, ditto, August 13, 1870 (Confidential No. 3660, pp. 177, 179); Law Officers, April 18, ditto, April 18, 1879 (Confidential No. 4328, pp. 5, 90).

§ See the "Galvanic." Law Officers' Report, July 15, 1869 (Confidential No. 2545, p. 107).

‖ "Overdale" and "Kirkloch." List of papers sent to the Law Officers on February 9, 1885:—Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22; ditto, No. 87, August 28; ditto, No. 95, September 10; ditto (Private), October 22; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 27; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 27; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 30; ditto (Telegraphic), December 31; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 31; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 31, 1884; Law Officers, May 6, 1876 (Confidential No. 4028, p. 41); ditto, May 31, 1878 (Confidential No. 4280, p. 44); ditto, July 16, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 66); ditto, December 15, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 75); Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 5; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 6; Doward, Dickson, and Co.

1885

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Information not sufficient.

That the further information now before us still leaves us in doubt as to the circumstances attending the seizure of the vessel. We are not informed whether the port was closed for fiscal purposes only, or whether the closing was in furtherance of belligerent action. If the former were the case, we think that those who were in charge of the vessel might be in the wrong in continuing to unload after notice of the closing Decree was conveyed to them.

Closing of port for fiscal purposes might be justifiable.

A mere notification of blockade does not justify seizure.

On the other hand, we adhere to the opinion we have already expressed, that a mere notification of the closing of a port for belligerent purposes would not justify the seizure of a vessel disregarding such notice.

Mr. Barrington should be at once communicated with, and requested to obtain from the Peruvian Government, and otherwise, full information concerning the closing of the port and the seizure of the vessel.

More prudent for owners to pay fine under protest.

Although the information before us leaves the rights of the owners in doubt, we think that it certainly will be well to point out to them that, in consequence of the information which has now been received (and which should be communicated to them), it may be that they will not be entitled, for the reasons we have above given, to claim compensation from the Peruvian Government, and it should be suggested, for their consideration, whether it will not be more prudent, in their own interest, to obtain the release of the vessel by paying the fine inflicted, reserving their claim for compensation if it shall be found they are entitled to make it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 130.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 12.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, February 12, 1885.

Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" at Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 11th instant, stating that, with reference to our letter of that day's date, he was to transmit to us a draft telegram, which your Lordship proposed to address to Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima, in regard to the cases of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch."

That we were requested to inform your Lordship whether the terms of the draft telegram met with our concurrence, or whether we would suggest any addition to it.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve telegram as altered respecting object of closing port.

That we suggest that the telegram should be altered as in the accompanying draft.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of telegram to Mr. Barrington.

(Telegraphic.)
Foreign Office, February , 1885.

Telegraph further particulars respecting both seizures.

Was port closed for fiscal purposes only, or in aid of military operations?

---

(Telegraphic), January 6; Law Officers, January 6; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 7; Sir F. Herschell, January 8; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 12; Law Officers, January 12; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 16; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 17; to Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 19; Doward Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 22; Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22; to Steel and Son (Telegraphic) January 22; Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 21; to Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 22; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 22; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 24; Field and Weightman, January 24; to Admiralty, January 26; Steel and Son, January 27; Admiralty (Confidential), February 1; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 3, 1885; ditto, No. 123, December 31, 1884; Admiralty, January 28; ditto, February 4; Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 5, 1885.

No. 131.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 17.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, February 17, 1885.

Detention of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" at Mollendo.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, transmitting to us further correspondence* relating to the seizure by the Peruvian authorities of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch," and requesting our opinion as to the course which should be pursued in regard to the continued detention of the "Overdale," and also as to the claim for compensation prepared by the owners of the "Kirkloch."

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, inclosing a further communication from Messrs. Doward and Dickson (14th February, 1885) with reference to the "Overdale."

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Aspect of case changed by further information.

That the further information now received raises different considerations to those presented to us in the first instance.

There seems to have been no blockade of the Port of Mollendo, but the Peruvian Government, by the Decree of the 22nd August, notified that that port was closed to commerce.

We have great difficulty in gathering from the imperfect information before us whether there was, or was not, such a state of civil war as to create a status belli; but it may be that an insurrection having broken out, such inability to collect custom duties would exist as would justify the Peruvian Government in closing the port. It seems that the notification of such closing would, for some purposes, be deemed to be sufficient. The publication of the Decree was known to Mr. Barrington on the 28th August, and would also probably be known to the firm in Lima whose house in Liverpool chartered the "Overdale."

Under these circumstances, the "Overdale" sailed on the 5th September; and, inasmuch as the Peruvian Consul countersigned the clearance papers of the vessel, we think that the owners are entitled to urge that they entered upon the voyage with an absence of any actual knowledge of the port being closed. It seems, therefore, that much depends upon what occurred when the vessel arrived at Mollendo.

So far as we can gather, it appears that the Captain of the "Overdale" delivered his clearance papers to the Captain of the Port, and if this officer was in the employ of the Peruvian Government and raised no objection to the vessel unloading, a strong argument can be raised against the continuation of such unloading being regarded as illegal.

But it appears from the letter of Captain Strick, dated the 5th January, that he was informed by an English naval officer that the port was closed; that he (Captain Strick) then applied for advice to the English Consul, who told him to proceed with the unloading. It is true that Mr. Barrington, in his despatch of the 6th January, says that he did not communicate the Decree closing the port to the British Consul at Mollendo; but Admiral Baird, in his telegram of the 1st February, says: "Peruvian man-of-war arrived the 15th September with official notification to Consular Body,

---

* List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, February 14, 1885:—To Mr Barrington, No. 11 (Telegraphic), February 12; Mr. Barrington, No. 2, January 6; ditto (Telegraphic), February 13; to Messrs. Steel, February 14, 1885; Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22; ditto, No. 87, August 28; ditto, No. 95, September 10; ditto (Private), October 22; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 27; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 27; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 30; ditto, December 31; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), December 31; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), December 31, 1884; Law Officers, May 6, 1876, Confidential No. 4028, p. 41; ditto, May 31, 1878, Confidential No. 4280, p. 24; ditto, July 16, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 15; ditto, December 15, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 75; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 5; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 6; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 6; Law Officers, January 6; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 7; Sir F. Herschell, January 8; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 12; Law Officers, January 12; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 16; to Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 16; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 17; to Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 19; Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 22; Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22; to Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22; Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 21; to Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 22; to Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 22; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 24; Field and Weightman, January 24; to Admiralty, January 26; Steel and Son, January 27; Admiralty, Confidential, February 1; Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 3, 1885; ditto, No. 123, December 31, 1884; Admiralty, January 28; ditto, February 4; Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 5; Law Officers, February 3; ditto, February 7; Admiralty, February 7; Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 7; Law Officers, February 11; ditto, February 12, 1885; ditto, July 15, 1869, Confidential No. 2545, p. 107; Queen's Advocate, July 1, 1870, Confidential No. 3660, p. 177; ditto, August 12, 1870, Confidential No. 3660, p. 179; Law Officers (2), April 18, 1879, Confidential No. 4328, pp. 90–91.

1885

'port closed, blockade established;'" and if this be so, notice seems to have reached the Consul of a blockade of the port rather than of a closing for fiscal or municipal purposes.

Further information on certain points required.

With such imperfect information before us we think several points must be cleared up before we can give any confident opinion. We suggest that the Consul at Mollendo should be requested to inform your Lordship—

(i.) Whether he received notice of the Decree closing the port.
(ii.) What advice he gave to Captain Strick.
(iii.) Whether any other vessels unloaded after the 22nd August.
(iv.) Was the town of Mollendo in possession of the rebels?
(v.) Whether any military operations were being carried on.
(vi.) What was the position occupied by the Captain of the Port?

Should inform the owners of the advisability of paying fine.

We also think that a letter should be written forthwith to the owners of the "Overdale," giving them explicit notice that, whilst further information is being sought, grave doubts exist whether their claim can properly be supported in consequence of their captain having proceeded to unload after having received notice of the Decree closing the port—a Decree which it is contended by the Peruvian Government was issued for municipal purposes. The owners may also be informed that Admiral Baird takes an unfavourable view of their claim; and that, such being the case, their refusal to pay the fine, and so release their vessel, involves a responsibility which rests with them alone.

For it may well be that Her Majesty's Government may find it impossible to insist upon any claim for compensation.

And protest against claim to regard "Overdale" as a prize.

We must observe that the claim by the Peruvian Government (mentioned by Mr. Barrington in his despatch of the 6th January) to regard the "Overdale" as a prize cannot be submitted to, and if it be persisted in a strong protest should be raised against it.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 132.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 10.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, April 10, 1885.

Seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" at Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 28th ultimo, transmitting papers relating to the seizure of the "Overdale" and "Kirkloch" by the Peruvian authorities at Mollendo.

That, in accordance with our Report of the 17th ultimo (February), a communication had been addressed to the owners of the "Overdale," recommending them to pay the fine levied on her under protest. That that had been done, and the vessel had been released.

That instructions were sent to Mr. Barrington on the 12th ultimo, directing him to call upon the British Vice-Consul at Mollendo for a Report on the points raised in our Report of the 17th February, and that he was also instructed that the claim of the Peruvian Government to regard the "Overdale" as a prize could not be admitted, and, if persisted in, should be strongly protested against.

But that a reply to that despatch could not be expected for some weeks to come.

That our attention was invited to the further despatches received from Mr. Barrington (Nos. 5, 8, and 12), reporting the action he had taken in regard to the matter, and the views of the Peruvian Government as to protests addressed to them against their proceedings in the matter; also to a letter dated the 27th February from the owners of the "Overdale" (D), forwarding a communication from the master of that vessel.

That our attention was directed also to the Report (E) which had been received from Rear-Admiral Baird, who was sent to Mollendo to inquire into the circumstances under which the vessels were seized.

Circumstances in case of the "Overdale"

That in the case of the "Overdale" Admiral Baird expressed the opinion that her master became aware of the port being closed on his arrival, and that he made all haste to discharge his cargo before the arrival of a Peruvian man-of-war.

and of the "Kirkloch."

That the case of the "Kirkloch" differed from that of the "Overdale" in the essential point, viz., that on learning, after arrival at the port, that Mollendo was closed to commerce, she did not disturb her cargo, and, in obedience to the orders of the Captain of the "Santa Rosa," she prepared at once to go to sea, and was seized by the latter vessel when about 20 miles on her course to Callao, and sent with a guard on board under arrest to Callao (I).

That we were referred to Mr. Barrington's Reports in his despatches Nos. 10, 12, and 19, from which we should observe that the "Kirkloch" had been liberated from further supervision on condition of the cargo being discharged in Callao or any other port under the authority of the National Government of Peru.

That it appeared from Mr. Barrington's letter to the Peruvian Minister for Foreign Affairs (F) that the Captain of the Port of Mollendo went on board the "Kirkloch" and offered all facilities for unloading without mentioning the orders issued for closing the port, and that there was no doubt that the vessel had been seized on the high seas.

That a claim for damages was being prepared by the owners of the "Kirkloch."

That Mr. Currie was to request our opinion as to the instructions which should be sent to Mr. Barrington in regard to the proceedings of the Peruvian authorities in regard to those two vessels, or either of them.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Mr. Currie, dated the 1st instant, transmitting to us a further despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima on the above subject.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Seizure of the "Kirkloch" wholly illegal.

That the seizure of the "Kirkloch" appears to have been wholly illegal, and without any kind of justification. We think, therefore, that Mr. Barrington should be instructed to demand reparation from the Peruvian Government, and also to protest against the imposition of any condition as to the discharge of the cargo on board the vessel.

Unable to give opinion as to "Overdale."

As regards the case of the "Overdale," we are unable to express any decided opinion pending the receipt of the answer of the Vice-Consul at Mollendo to the inquiries which have been addressed to him.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, March 28, 1885.

"Overdale" and "Kirkloch."

(A.) Mr. Barrington, No. 5, January 14, 1885.
(B.) „ No. 8, January 17, 1885.
(C, G.) „ No. 12, January 24, 1885.
(D.) Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 27, 1885.
(E, I.) Admiralty, March 18, 1885.
(F.) Mr. Barrington, No. 10, January 20, 1885.
(H.) „ No. 19, February 11, 1885.

Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22, 1884.
„ „ No. 87, August 28, 1884.
„ „ No. 95, September 10, 1884.
„ „ (Private), October 22, 1884.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 30, 1884.
„ „ „ Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
Law Officers, May 6, 1876. Confidential No. 4028, p. 41.
„ „ May 31, 1878. Confidential No. 4280, p. 24.
„ „ July 16, 1883. Confidential No. 4974, p. 66.
„ „ December 15, 1883. Confidential No. 4974, p. 75.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 5, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 6, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 6, 1885.
Law Officers, January 6, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 7, 1885.
Sir F. Herschell, January 8, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 12, 1885.
To Law Officers, January 12, 1885.

1885

Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 17, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 19, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
Steel and Son, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
To Steel and Son, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 21, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 22, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 24, 1885.
Field and Weightman, January 24, 1885.
To Admiralty, January 26, 1885.
Steel and Son, January 27, 1885.
Admiralty (Confidential), February 1, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 3, 1885.
" " No. 123, December 31, 1884.
Admiralty, January 28, 1885.
" February 4, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 5, 1885.
Law Officers, February 3, 1885.
" " February 7, 1885.
" " July 15, 1869. Confidential No. 2545, p. 107.
Queen's Advocate, July 1, 1870. Confidential No. 3660, p. 177.
" " August 13, 1870. Confidential No 3660, p. 179.
Law Officers, April 18, 1879. Confidential No. 4328, p. 90.
" " April 18, 1879. Confidential No. 4328, p. 91.
Admiralty, February 7, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 7, 1885.
" " " February 10, 1885.
Law Officers, February 11, 1885.
" " February 12, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 11, Telegraphic, February 12, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, No. 2, January 6, 1885.
" " Telegraphic, February 13, 1885.
To Messrs. Steel, February 14, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 14, 1885.
Steel and Son, February 14, 1885.
Sir H. James, February 16, 1885.
Law Officers, February 17, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 17, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 17, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, February 18, 1885.
" " " Letter, February 18, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 19, 1885.
Admiralty, February 19, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 19, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 21, 1885.
" " " February 23, 1885.
" " " Telegraphic, February 25, 1885.
Field and Weightman, February 25, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 26, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 26, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, February 26, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., Letter, February 26, 1885.
To Field and Weightman, February 27, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 16, February 28, 1885.
Mr. McIver, M.P., February 27, 1885.
Mr. J. D. Adams, February 24, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., March 2, 1885.
To Mr. McIver, M.P., March 2, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, March 2, 1885.
To Steel and Son, March 11, 1885.
Steel and Son, March 12, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 20, March 12, 1885.
" " No. 21, March 12, 1885.
" " No. 22, March 12, 1885.
" " No. 23, March 14, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, No. 14, February 3, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, March 21, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, March 22, 1885.
To Mr. J. D. Adams, March 24, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., March 24, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., March 25, 1885.

---

No. 133.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 16.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 15, 1885.

Reimposition by Peruvian Government of taxes already paid to revolutionists.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 4th instant, stating that he was to inclose, for our concurrence, the draft of a despatch which your Lordship proposed to address to Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Lima in regard to the right asserted by the Peruvian Government to reimpose taxes and duties which may have been previously paid by British subjects to the revolutionary authorities when in full possession of the districts where they were levied.

That Mr. Currie also inclosed two despatches[*] from Mr. Barrington on that subject, together with a copy of the Law Officers' Report of the 1st June, 1874,[†] upon a somewhat similar case which arose in Spain in the year 1874.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the instruction which it was proposed to address to Mr. Barrington was right and proper.

That, for convenience of reference, Mr. Currie was also to inclose copies of other Reports[‡] which had been drawn up by the Law Officers of the Crown on the subject of the liability of British subjects to the payment of foreign customs duties a second time.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we are of opinion that the instruction which it is proposed to address to Mr. Barrington is right and proper.

Approve instructions to Mr. Barrington.

We assume it is intended that Mr. Barrington should be guided by the instructions given in 1874 to Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid, but this is not so stated, in terms, in the instruction submitted to us.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Draft of Despatch from Earl Granville to Mr. Barrington.

(No. .)
Sir, Foreign Office, April , 1885.

I HAVE received your despatch No. 18 of the 11th February, requesting to be informed of the view taken by Her Majesty's Government of the right asserted by the Peruvian Government to reimpose taxes and duties which may have been previously paid by British subjects to the revolutionary authorities when in full possession of the districts where they were levied.

In reply, I have to state to you that a case somewhat similar to the one reported by you arose in Spain in the year 1874.

During the civil war in that country the Carlists exacted the payment of taxes, &c., from British subjects resident in certain towns; and when the Republican Government regained possession of those towns, they were called upon to pay the taxes over again.

Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid was instructed to protest against this proceeding; he was, however, warned to be careful not to interfere in cases in which the taxes and contributions levied by the Carlists had been paid voluntarily, or without protest, or under circumstances from which it might fairly be inferred that they were aiding the Carlist movement; for that in such cases the principle that payment to a de facto Government was a discharge of an obligation to the Government of the country could not with propriety be applied.

Acting, therefore, under the advice of the Law Officers, I have now to instruct you to be guided by the instructions given in 1874 to Her Majesty's Minister at Madrid with regard to any representations you may have to make to the Peruvian Government on behalf of British subjects.

I am, &c.

---

[*] Mr. Barrington, No. 100, September 16, 1884; ditto, No. 18, February 11, 1885.

[†] Law Officers, June 1, 1874, Confidential No. , p. .

[‡] Law Officers, May 6 and June 8, 1861, Confidential No. 1123, pp. 87, 113; Law Officers, May 11, 1865, Confidential No. 1489, p. 96; Law Officers, April 29, 1874, Confidential No. 4331, p. 123.

1885

No. 134.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 8.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 8, 1885.

Seizure of the "Overdale" for breach of order closing port of Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers* relating to the cases of the British vessels "Overdale" and "Kirkloch," which were seized by the Peruvian authorities for an alleged breach of an order issued by them, declaring the port of Mollendo closed to foreign commerce.

Action taken in case of the "Kirkloch."

That, in accordance with the opinion expressed by the Law Officers of the Crown in their Report dated the 10th April last, instructions had been sent to Colonel Mansfield, Her Majesty's Minister in Peru, to demand reparation for the seizure and detention of the "Kirkloch."

That as regarded the case of the "Overdale," we should observe that in the same Report the Law Officers expressed their inability to form a decided opinion pending the receipt of a reply to certain inquiries which, in their previous Report of the 17th February, they had suggested should be referred to the British Vice-Consul at Mollendo. That a reply to those inquiries had been received.

Further information as to case of the "Overdale."

That it appeared from those documents that on the 23rd August, 1884, the date on which the order was issued forbidding vessels to call at Mollendo, that port was in possession of the rebels, and that no blockade of the port was ever established or attempted.

That in a despatch dated the 5th June last, No. 49, Mr. Barrington reported that a Ministerial order had been published on the 23rd of that month reopening the port of Mollendo.

That in connection with the question, whether it was competent to a Sovereign Power to close to neutral commerce national ports in the possession of its foreign enemies or rebel subjects by a Municipal Decree, without a blockade jure gentiun, Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a collection of Law Officers' Reports between 1869 and 1873, and that he was also to draw our attention to Consul Stacey's despatch No. 17 of the 26th May, 1885, transmitting extracts of correspondence between the Governments of Columbia and of the United States, from which it appeared that the opinion of the United States' Government was adverse to the right claimed in the present instance by the Peruvian Government. That Sir J. Pauncefote was also to inclose the first Report of the Law Officers on the case of the "Overdale," in which we should find the facts briefly stated.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the instructions which should now be given to Her Majesty's Minister at Lima in regard to making a further demand on the Peruvian Government for compensation to the owners of the "Overdale" for the seizure and detention of their vessel.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Further demand for compensation in case of the "Overdale" may now be made.

That, in our opinion, Her Majesty's Minister at Lima may now be instructed to make a further demand on the Peruvian Government for compensation to the owners of the "Overdale" for the seizure and detention of their vessel.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers sent to the Law Officers on July 28, 1885 :—

(A.) Report from the Law Officers, April 10, 1885.
(B.) To Colonel Mansfield, No. 38, July 15, 1885.
(C.) Report from the Law Officers, February 17, 1885.
(D.) To Mr. Barrington, No. 22, March 12, 1885.
(E.) Mr. Barrington, No. 41, May 8, 1885.
(F.) ,, ,, No. 48, June 1, 1885.
(G.) ,, ,, No. 87, Aug. 28, 1884.
(H.) ,, ,, No. 49, June 5, 1885.
(I.) Law Officers, July 15, 1869; Confidential No. 2545, p. 107
(J.) Queen's Advocate, July 1, 1870; Confidential No. 3660, p. 177.
(K.) ,, ,, August 13, 1870; Confidential No. 3660, p 179
(L.) Law Officers, May 6, 1876; Confidential No. 4028, p. 41.
(M.) ,, ,, May 31, 1878; Confidential No. 4280, p. 75.
(N.) ,, ,, April 18, 1879; Confidential No. 4328, p. 90.
(O.) ,, ,, April 18, 1879; Confidential No. 4328, p. 91.
(P) ,, ,, July 16, 1883; Confidential No. 4974, p. 15.
(Q.) ,, ,, December 15, 1883; Confidential No. 4974, p. 75
(R.) Consul Stacey, No. 17, May 26, 1885.
(S.) Law Officers, January 6, 1885.

LIST of further Papers.

1 To Mr. Barrington, No. 11, Telegraphic, February 12, 1885
2. Mr. Barrington, No. 2, January 6, 1885.
3 ,, ,, Telegraphic, February 13, 1885.
4. To Messrs. Steel, Telegraphic, February 14, 1885.
5. Mr. Barrington, No. 74, July 22, 1884.
6. ,, ,, No. 95, September 10, 1884.
7. ,, ,, Private, October 22, 1884.
8. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
9. Mr, Barrington, Telegraphic, December 27, 1884.
10. Doward, Dickson, and Co, Telegraphic, December 30, 1884
11. ,, ,, Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
12. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
13. To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, December 31, 1884.
14. Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 5, 1885.
15. To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 6, 1885.
16. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 6, 1885.
17. Law Officers, January 6, 1885.
18. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 7, 1885.
19. Sir F. Herschell, January 8, 1885.
20. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 12, 1885.
21. Law Officers, January 12, 1885.
22. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
23. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
24. To Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 16, 1885.
25. Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 17, 1885.
26. To Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 19, 1885.
27. Doward, Dickson, and Co., Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
28. Steel and Son, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
29. To Steel and Son, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
30. Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 21, 1885.
31. To Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 22, 1885.
32. To Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 22, 1885.
33. Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, January 24, 1885.
34. Field and Weightman, January 24, 1885.
35. To Admiralty, January 26, 1885.
36. Steel and Son, January 27, 1885.
37. Admiralty, Confidential, February 1, 1885.
38. Mr. Barrington, Telegraphic, February 3, 1885.
39. ,, ,, No. 123, December 31, 1884.
40. Admiralty, January 28, 1885.
41. ,, February 4, 1885.
42. Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 5, 1885.
43. Law Officers, February 3, 1885.
44. ,, ,, February 7, 1885.
45. Admiralty, February 7, 1885.
46. Messrs. Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 7, 1885.
47. Law Officers, February 11, 1885.
48. ,, ,, February 12, 1885.
49. Colonel Mansfield, No. 54, , 1885

---

No. 135.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 28, 1885.

Seizure of the "Kirkloch" by Peruvian vessel on high seas, for breach of Decree closing port of Mollendo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, stating that, with reference to our predecessors' Report of the 10th April last, he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the seizure of the British ship "Kirkloch" by a Peruvian vessel of war on the high seas. That the facts of the arrest were detailed in the Report of Rear-Admiral Baird (A), and in Mr. Barrington's No. 10, January 1885 (B).

That, from those accounts, it appeared that the "Kirkloch" cleared from Newcastle for the port of Mollendo on the 20th September, 1884, with a cargo of coals for the Arequipa Railway Company. That she arrived at Mollendo on the evening of the 8th January, 1885, not having called at any intermediate ports since her departure from England.

That the port of Mollendo was, at the time, in possession of the rebel forces, and it had been declared early in September as closed to commerce by a Decree of the Peruvian Government.

1885

That the "Kirkloch" arrived in ignorance of that fact, and anchored without opposition. Next morning the (rebel) Captain of the Port came on board and offered all facilities for the discharge of cargo, but made no mention of the orders of the Peruvian Government for closing the port, and it was not until later that the captain of the "Kirkloch," on going ashore, first heard of the existence of those orders.

That there was no blockade of the port, but that the Peruvian guardacosta "Santa Rosa," charged with the execution of the closing orders appeared and ordered the "Kirkloch" to sea. That it was supposed that the "Santa Rosa," which was lying off Mollendo, must have seen the "Kirkloch" anchor on the night of her arrival, but that no step was taken to order her to sea till the following day, the 10th January. That the order was at once complied with, the captain of the "Kirkloch" having received instructions accordingly from the consignees. That the "Kirkloch" was unmoored and hauled out to the buoy, where she was compelled to remain till next day for want of wind.

That during the time she was in port no attempt was made to discharge the cargo. That on the morning of the 11th January, there being sufficient wind, she put to sea. She was hailed by the "Santa Rosa," when about 25 miles from shore, a guard of three officers and eight armed men was put on board, and she was taken to Callao, where she arrived on the 17th January, and was detained under arrest.

That it was not until the 11th February following that she was released, on condition of the cargo being discharged in Callao, or any other port under the authority of the National Government (C and D).

That the above facts were laid before our predecessors on the 28th March, and that in their Report of the 20th April (E) they expressed their opinion that the seizure of the "Kirkloch" was unjustifiable, and that reparation should be demanded.

That, meanwhile, Mr. Barrington had received from the captain a statement of the expenses arising out of the detention of the vessel, and that he addressed a note to the Peruvian Government requesting reimbursement (F and G).

That a long interval elapsed without any reply being made to that representation, and that it was not until after further pressure that a reply was received, dated the 12th August, in which the Peruvian Government declined all liability in the matter (H).

That the case of the "Kirkloch" was aggravated by the fact of her seizure on the "high seas;" and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the reply of the Peruvian Government contained anything which modified the conclusion arrived at by our predecessors, that the seizure of the vessel was "wholly illegal, and without any kind of justification."

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Peruvian reply does not modify conclusion as to illegality of case.

That the reply of the Peruvian Government does not contain anything which modifies the conclusion arrived at by our predecessors, in which we concur, that the seizure of the "Kirkloch" "was wholly illegal, and without any kind of justification."

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent to Law Officers, October 4, 1885.

(A.) Admiralty, March 18, 1885.
(B.) Mr. Barrington, No. 10, January 20, 1885.
(C.) Mr. Barrington, No. 19, February 11, 1885.
(D.) Mr. Barrington, No. 20, February 12, 1885.
(E.) Law Officers, April 10, 1885.
(F.) Mr. Barrington, No. 26, February 25, 1885.
(G.) Mr. Barrington, No. 29, March 6, 1885.
(H.) Colonel Mansfield, No. 65, August 15, 1885.

Doward, Dickson, and Co. (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885.
Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885.
To Steel and Son (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 22, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 22, 1885.
Steel and Son, January 22, 1885.
To Law Officers, January 23, 1885.

Doward, Dickson, and Co., January 23, 1885.
Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 24, 1885.
Field and Weightman, January 24, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), January 26, 1885.
Steel and Son, January 26, 1885.
To Field and Weightman, January 26, 1885.
To Admiralty, January 26, 1885.
Admiralty, January 26, 1885.
Steel and Son, January 27, 1885.
Admiralty, January 28, 1885 (A).
Ditto, January 28, 1885 (B).
Ditto, Confidential, February 1, 1885.
Law Officers, February 3, 1885.
Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 3, 1885.
Admiralty, February 4, 1885.
To Law Officers, February 4, 1885.
To Dr. Deane, February 5, 1885.
To Admiralty, February 5, 1885.
Law Officers, February 7, 1885.
To Law Officers, February 9, 1885.
Steel and Son, February 10, 1885.
To Law Officers, February 11, 1885.
Steel and Son, February 11, 1885.
Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 11, 1885.
To Doward, Dickson, and Co., February 12, 1885.
To Steel and Son, February 12, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 12, 1885
Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), February 13, 1885.
To Law Officers, February 14, 1885
To Steel and Son (Telegraphic), February 14, 1885.
Steel and Son, February 14, 1885.
Law Officers, February 17, 1885.
Admiralty, February 19, 1885.
Field and Weightman, February 25, 1885.
Mr Barrington (Telegraphic), February 26, 1885
To Field and Weightman, February 27, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 16, February 28, 1885
Ditto, No. 17 (Telegraphic), March 2, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, No. 12, January 24, 1885.
To Steel and Son, March 11, 1885
To Mr. Barrington, No. 32, March 12, 1885.
Ditto, No. 20, March 12, 1885.
Steel and Son, March 12, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, No 14, February 3, 1885.
To Law Officers, March 28, 1885.
Ditto, April 1, 1885.
To Steel and Son, April 1, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 32 (Telegraphic), April 16, 1885.
To Steel and Son, April 17, 1885.
Mr. Barrington (Telegraphic), April 17, 1885.
Steel and Son, April 18, 1885.
Ditto, May 18, 1885.
Layton and Steel, May 18, 1885.
To Layton and Steel, May 25, 1885.
To Mr. Barrington, No. 36, May 25, 1885.
Layton and Steel, May 27, 1885.
Mr. Barrington, No. 37, April 17, 1885.
Ditto, No. 41, May 8, 1885.
Ditto, No. 49, June 5, 1885.
To Colonel Mansfield, No. 38, July 15, 1885.
Colonel Mansfield, No. 54, June 16, 1885.
To Law Officers, July 28, 1885.
Ditto, July 29, 1885.
Law Officers, August 8, 1885.
Colonel Mansfield, No. 59, July 12, 1885.
Ditto, No. 63, July 21, 1885.
Leyton and Steel, September 11, 1885.
To Layton and Steel, September 16, 1885.
Layton and Steel, September 17, 1885.
To Colonel Mansfield, No. 49, September 25, 1885.
To Layton and Steel, September 25, 1885.
Colonel Mansfield, No. 65, August 22, 1885.
Layton and Steel, September 26, 1885.

1885

No. 136.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 20, 1885.

Seizure of the "Kirkloch" by Peruvians on the high seas.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the seizure of the British ship "Kirkloch" by a Peruvian man-of-war, on the high seas, he was directed to transmit to us the draft of a despatch which your Lordship proposed to address to Her Majesty's Minister at Lima, instructing him to address a note to the Peruvian Minister for Foreign Affairs, insisting on the settlement of that case. That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposed instruction was right and proper. That the papers to which our special attention was called in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th ultimo were inclosed.*

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve instructions to demand settlement of case.

That, in our opinion, the proposed instruction to Colonel Mansfield is right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Colonel Mansfield.

(No. .)
Sir, Foreign Office, November , 1885.

ON receipt of your despatch No. 65 of the 15th August, inclosing a copy and translation of the note of the Peruvian Government in which they refuse to entertain the claim to compensation of the owners of the "Kirkloch," I caused the whole question to be referred to the present Law Officers of the Crown, who have reported that the reply of the Peruvian Government does not contain anything which should modify the conclusion already arrived at by their predecessors, that the seizure of the "Kirkloch" was wholly illegal and without any kind of justification.

It will, I think, be convenient to recall the circumstances of the case.

The "Kirkloch" cleared from Newcastle for the port of Mollendo on the 20th September, 1884, with a cargo of coals for the Arequipa Railway Company, and she arrived at Mollendo on the evening of the 8th January, 1885, not having called at any intermediate ports since her departure from England.

The port of Mollendo was at the time in possession of the rebel forces, and it had been declared early in September as closed to commerce by a Decree of the Peruvian Government.

Her Majesty's Government, as you are aware, dispute the right claimed by the Peruvian Government to close the port to foreign commerce by a Municipal Decree. They maintain that the port being in the possession of the rebels, it could only be closed, according to international law, by an efficient blockade.

The "Kirkloch," however, arrived in ignorance of the Decree, and anchored without opposition. The next morning the Captain of the Port in the service of the rebels came on board and offered all facilities for the discharge of the cargo. It was not until later that the master of the "Kirkloch" in going ashore, first heard of the existence of the Decree.

There was no blockade of the port, but the Peruvian guardacosta "Santa Rosa," charged with the execution of the Decree, appeared on the scene on the following day (the 10th January), and ordered the "Kirkloch" to sea. The order was at once complied with. The "Kirkloch" was unmoored and hauled out to the buoys, where she was compelled to remain till the next day for want of wind.

During the time the vessel was in port no attempt was made to discharge the cargo, and on the morning of the 11th January, there being sufficient wind, she put to sea. While on the high seas, about 25 miles from land, the "Kirkloch" was hailed by the "Santa Rosa," a guard of three officers and eight armed men was put on board, and she was forcibly taken to Callao, where she arrived on the 17th January; she was there detained under arrest, and it was not until the 11th February following that the vessel was released, on condition of the cargo being discharged in Callao, or any other port under the authority of the National Government.

I have now to request you to address a note to the Peruvian Minister for Foreign Affairs insisting on a settlement of the claim. You will recapitulate the facts of the case, and you will add that the case is aggravated by the seizure of the "Kirkloch" on the high seas, which was a violation of the British flag.

I am, &c.

---

Portugal.

No. 137.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 22.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 21, 1885.

Oyster fisheries at Lisbon. Claim of Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Bourke's letter of the 3rd September instant, stating that he had to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to the case of the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, which formed the subject of the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown of the 11th September, 1884,† to which he was to refer us for a statement of the facts of the case so far as they were known to the Foreign Office. That from the correspondence subsequent to the Law Officers' Report we would perceive that the Company obtained a Judgment in their favour in the High Court of Justice. That that Judgment was a Judgment by default, service of the writ having been effected by a private agent of the Company at Lisbon, where the defendant M. Amorous (a French subject) resided.

Refusal of Portuguese to enforce British Judgment on account of informal service of citation.

That the Portuguese Courts refused to enforce the British Judgment on the defendant, who resided in Lisbon, because service was not effected in the manner set forth in No. 4 of the first paragraph of Article 1088 of the Code of Civil Procedure of Portugal (see copy of Judgment in Company's letter of the 7th August). That the Court laid down that the citation should have been effected according to the law of Portugal, or that the British Court should have addressed literæ rogatoriæ to the Portuguese Tribunals, in accordance with the procedure of the latter where citations

---

* (A) Admiralty, March 18; (B) Mr. Barrington, No. 10, January 20; (C) ditto, No. 19, February 11; (D) ditto, No. 20, February 12; (E) Law Officers, April 10; (F) Mr. Barrington, No. 26, February 25; (G) ditto, No. 29, March 6: (H) Colonel Mansfield, No. 65, August 15, 1885.

† Law Officers, October 28, 1885.

* Papers sent to Law Officers. September 3, 1885.

Papers sent to Law Officers, August 12, 1884:—Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, November 16; to ditto, November 22; to Mr. Baring, No 34, November 23; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, November 24; Sir C. Wyke, No. 109, December 17; to ditto, No. 40, December 29; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, December 29, 1883; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, January 23; to Sir C. Wyke, No. 3, January 28; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, January 28; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, February 1; to ditto, February 4; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, March 29; ditto, April 3; to Mr. Petre, No. 35, April 8; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, April 8; Mr. Petre, No. 45, April 21; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 6; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 12; to ditto, May 16; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 28; to Mr. Petre, No. 44, May 30; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, May 30; ditto, May 31; Mr. Petre, No. 54, May 31; to ditto, No. 45, June 5; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 7; Mr. Petre, No. 55, June 4; ditto, No. 57, June 7; to Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 12; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, June 13; to ditto, June 14; to ditto, June 18, 1884.

Further Papers sent September 3, 1885:—Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, July 30; to ditto, August 12; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, August 27; to ditto, August 30; to ditto, October 18, 1884; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, August 7; to ditto, August 12; to ditto, August 17; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, August 19; to ditto, August 24; Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, August 25, 1885.

† Confidential No. 5121, p. 91.

1885

issued by them have to be served in England. That an appeal against that Judgment is pending, and the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company now apply to the Foreign Office for an authoritative document or certificate showing that the mode of citation suggested by the Portuguese Court was unknown to practice in this country, and that the course actually pursued by them was the usual and only one acknowledged by the English Courts of Justice.

That, as regarded the question of reciprocity, Mr. Bourke was to state that applications were frequently made to the Foreign Office by foreign Representatives in that country to effect service of foreign citations, and that such applications were invariably refused, the parties interested being informed that they must employ private agents for the purpose.

That Mr. Bourke was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether a certificate to the effect required should be given, and, if so, whether it should be given by Her Majesty's Minister in Lisbon, and in what terms.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should decline certificate as to British procedure.

That, in our opinion, a certificate to the effect required should not be given by Her Majesty's Government, but that the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company (Limited) should be recommended to prove by other means before the Portuguese Tribunal the procedure of the English Courts.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 138.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 7, 1885.

Detention, after landing, of passengers from "Spartan" in lazaretto at Funchal. Claim for 2,000*l*.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to a claim of 2,000*l*. put forward by Major Reeve on behalf of himself and six other British subjects, against the Portuguese Government, on account of their relegation to the lazaretto at Funchal, under the circumstances set forth in the despatch No. 22, Consular, from the Acting British Consul in Madeira, and in Major Reeve's letter of the 9th ultimo.

That the "Spartan" started from Southampton on the 13th August, reached Plymouth on the 14th, and there took on board ten third class Spanish passengers who had left Cadiz about the 1st August. That she reached Madeira on the morning of the 18th, was admitted to pratique and landed twenty-two passengers, among whom were the ten third class Spanish passengers from Cadiz.

That when it was noised abroad that those latter had come from Spain viâ Plymouth, there was great excitement, and all who had landed were ordered by the Civil Governor to go to a lazaretto for seven days.

That every one appeared to have complied except Major Reeve, who absolutely refused, in spite of the Acting Consul's recommendation to do so, under protest.

That when the Commissary of Police, the Major, the Judge, and a posse of police appeared on the scene, he gave in, and he and his wife went to the lazaretto till the 24th, when the period of seven days expired. That on the 20th July, a Notice had been issued by the Portuguese Government declaring Cadiz to be an infected port, and, by the terms of a Royal Decree dated Lisbon, the 26th July, 1884, it was provided that no vessel arriving from an infected port, should be allowed to communicate with the shore at all. That consequently, it would appear that, though the "Spartan" did not come from an infected, or even a suspected port, herself, she had passengers on board of her, who had left an infected port eighteen days before her arrival.

That it was not alleged that there was any sickness on board the "Spartan," and that the question arose whether the arrest of the British passengers on shore after they had been lawfully landed, and their forcible detention in the lazaretto upon discovery that among the passengers of the "Spartan" there were ten Spaniards who had left an infected port eighteen days before, afforded grounds for a diplomatic remonstrance, and for a claim of indemnity.

---

* To Mr. Petre, No. 53, Commercial; ditto, No. 56, Commercial; Mr. Petre, No. 86, Commercial; Acting Consul Faber, No. 22, Consular, August 21; Major Reeve, September 9, 1885; Portuguese Notice, July 26, 1884; ditto, July 20, 1885.

That Sir J. Pauncefote observed that in a recent case which arose in Sicily, the Italian Government stated that, apart from strict quarantine Regulations, their law permitted any measure which, in the urgent circumstances of the case, might be deemed necessary to escape the imminent danger of infection.

That the Portuguese might invoke a similar law, but that it could hardly be said that the presence on board the "Spartan" of the Cadiz passengers (who had left that port eighteen days before) was a sufficient cause for adopting so arbitrary a course against the British passengers.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was therefore to request our opinion on the validity of the claim of Major Reeve and his fellow passengers to compensation from the Portuguese Government for the treatment they received at the hands of the Madeira authorities, and (if it should be in the affirmative) as to the reasonableness of the amount claimed.

That it was assumed that Major Reeve was duly authorized by the other British passengers to prefer a claim on their behalf.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Validity of claim depends on Portuguese law.

That the question whether Major Reeve and his fellow passengers have a valid claim against the Portuguese Government in respect of the treatment they received at the hands of the Madeira authorities, is one of Portuguese law, and depends upon:—

1. Whether the Civil Governor at Funichal acted lawfully in confining the persons who landed from the "Spartan" in the lazaretto, and if not:

2. Whether any remedy against the Government is given, by Portuguse law, to persons wrongfully detained in a lazaretto, under the circumstances ot the case.

Cannot make any demand while legal remedies are open.

The British Government has no right to demand from the Portuguese Government any indemnity on behalf of Major Reeve and other British subjects, so long as they have those remedies open to them in the Portuguese Courts, which native Portuguese subjects would have, if treated in the same manner.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 139.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 17, 1885.

Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the case of the Anglo-Portuguese Oyster Company, which matter formed the subject of our Report dated the 21st September last.

Certificate required to prove practice of English Law Courts.

That in the letter from the Foreign Office of the 28th October Mr. Hart was informed, in reply to a further appeal on behalf of the Company, that if the legal adviser of the Company in this country would prepare the form of certificate which they desired, the same would be submitted to the Law Officers.

That such a form of certificate was now submitted by Mr. Hart in his letter of the 20th ultimo, together with other legal documents, which were transmitted in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter now before us.

That in forwarding to us those papers for our consideration, Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that as the Company had been the victims of a fraud, and represented (in Mr. Hart's letter of the 20th October) that no other mode of proving the practice of the English Courts would avail, your Lordship would be disposed to give them all reasonable assistance, and would be glad to know whether, on the papers now submitted, we were of opinion that a certificate to the effect desired could properly be given by Her Majesty's Minister at Lisbon or by the Secretary of State.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No objection, but adhere to former Report.

That we adhere to the opinion expressed in our Report of the 21st September last, but we see nothing objectionable in the form of certificate which is proposed by Mr. Hart.

1885

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Company, November 16, 1883.
To Company, November 22, 1883.
To Mr. Baring, No. 34, Commercial, November 23, 1883.
Company, November 24, 1883.
Sir C. Wyke, No. 109, Commercial, December 17, 1883.
To ditto, No. 40, Commercial, December 29, 1883.
To Company, December 29, 1883.
Company, January 23, 1884.
To Sir C. Wyke, No. 3, Commercial, January 28, 1884.
To Company, January 28, 1884.
Company, February 1, 1884.
To ditto, February 4, 1884.
Company, March 29, 1884.
Ditto, April 3, 1884.
To Mr. Petre, No. 35, Commercial, April 8, 1884.
To Company, April 8, 1884.
Mr. Petre, No. 45, Commercial, April 21, 1884.
To Company, May 6, 1884.
Company, May 12, 1884.
To ditto, May 16, 1884.
Company, May 28, 1884.
To Mr. Petre, No. 44, Commercial, May 30, 1884.
Company, May 30, 1884.
Ditto, May 31, 1884.
Mr. Petre, No. 54, Commercial, May 31, 1884.
To ditto, No. 45, Commercial, June 5, 1884.
To Company, June 7, 1884.
Mr. Petre, No. 55, Commercial, June 4, 1884.
Ditto, No. 57, Commercial, June 7, 1884.
To Company, June 12, 1884.
Company, June 13, 1884.
To Company, June 14, 1884.
Ditto, June 18, 1884.

---

No. 140.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 19, 1885.

Detention, after landing, of passengers from "Spartan" in lazzaretto at Funchal.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 5th instant, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 7th ultimo, he was to transmit to us further papers* relating to the claim of Major Reeve and six other British subjects against the Portuguese Government.

That we should observe that in Senhor Bocage's note to Mr. Petre of the 21st ultimo it was stated that the conduct of the local authorities towards the passengers of the "Spartan" was justified by law, and that the Portuguese Minister appealed to a Law dated the 27th June, whereby the authorities were empowered to adopt any measures whatsoever that they might consider expedient in order to prevent the country being invaded by cholera.

That, as the claim depended on Portuguese law, your Lordship presumed that in view of the above reply it could not properly be pressed further on the Portuguese Government, but that before replying in that sense to Major Reeve, your Lordship would be glad to be informed whether we concurred in that view.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Concur in opinion that claim cannot be pressed.

That we concur in the view that the claim of Major Reeve, on behalf of himself and six other British subjects, cannot properly be pressed further on the Portuguese Government.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers.

To Mr. Petre, No. 53, Commercial, August 21, 1884.
Ditto, No. 56, Commercial, August 28, 1884.
Mr. Petre, No. 86, Commercial, August 26, 1884.
Acting Consul Faber, No. 22, Consular, August 21, 1884.
Major Reeve, September 9, 1884.
Portuguese Notice, July 26, 1884.
Ditto, July 20, 1885.
Mr. Petre, No. 111, Commercial, November 16, 1885.
To Mr. Petre, No. 75, Commercial, November 21, 1885.
Mr. Petre, No. 115, Commercial, November 25, 1885.

Russia.

No. 141.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received April 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 23, 1885.

War between Great Britain and Russia. Position of British shipping bound to or lying in Russian ports in event of.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the accompanying papers* relative to the position of British shipping bound to or lying in Russian ports, in the event of the outbreak of war between Great Britain and Russia.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the reply which your Lordship proposed to make to Messrs. Cooper and Mr. Grant was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve reply to Messrs. Cooper, &c.

That we think the reply which your Lordship proposes to make to Messrs. Cooper and Mr. Grant is right and proper; but we would suggest that it should be added that there is no absolute obligation to allow such indulgence, and it cannot, therefore, be regarded as certain that Russia would now take this course.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

Proposed Reply to Messrs. Patrick Cooper and Son.†

Gentlemen, Foreign Office, April , 1885.

In reply to your letter of the 11th instant, inquiring what would be the position of British shipping bound to or lying in Russian ports in the event of the outbreak of war between Great Britain and Russia, I am directed by Earl Granville to acquaint you that it would be impossible to state with any degree of certainty what course might be adopted by the Russian Government under such circumstances.‡

I am, however, to inform you that on the outbreak of the Crimean War in 1854, all bonâ fide British vessels which were then taking in cargoes in Russian ports were

---

* Messrs. Patrick Cooper and Son, April 11; Messrs. R. Mackie and Co. to Mr. A. Grant, M.P., April 13 (communicated April 15); Mr. A. Grant, M.P., April 14, 1885 (see Confidential No. 5183, pp. 6 and 7); and proposed reply to Messrs. P. Cooper and Son, &c.

† Similar letters were addressed to Mr. A. Grant, M.P., and the Secretary of Lloyd's.

‡ For passage in italics see reference to Law Officers, April 25.

1885

allowed six weeks to complete their loading and take their departure; and British vessels which had left a British for a Russian port before the commencement of hostilities were allowed to enter the port of destination, discharge the cargo, and depart without molestation.

An Order in Council, dated the 29th March, 1854, and a Russian Notice, dated the 6th April, 1854, upon this subject, will be found in vol. xlvi, pp. 39 and 381 of the State Papers.

I am, &c.

---

No. 142.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 1, 1885.

Right to seize or lay embargoes on shipping on commencement of war. Letter from Lloyd's.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 23rd ultimo, he was to transmit to us a letter from Lloyd's[*] as to the right of a belligerent to seize enemy's ships or lay embargoes immediately on the commencement of hostilities.

That our opinion was requested whether it would be desirable to refer Lloyd's to the letter addressed to them on the 24th ultimo, adding that it was probable that the course which might be pursued by any nation in that respect would greatly depend on the special circumstances of the case; or whether it would be expedient to make a more definite reply as to the rights of belligerents under the law of nations, and that if we should be of the latter opinion, we were requested to suggest the nature of such reply.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should refer to Foreign Office letter of 24th ultimo, and explain privately impolicy of statement on subject.

That we think it would be desirable merely to refer Lloyd's to the letter addressed to them on the 24th ultimo, writing at the same time privately to Captain Hozier, pointing out that it would be very disadvantageous to English interests at the present time to enter into the question as to what are the extreme rights which Russia might enforce consistently with the principles of international law, inasmuch as any statement of her extreme rights might act as an inducement to assert them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 143.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 6, 1885.

Notice to shipping before declaration of war.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter from the General Ship-owners' Society,[†] asking that notice should be given through the British Consuls, in order to enable British shipping in the Black Sea to complete their cargoes and withdraw in safety before any declaration of war was made by Great Britain against Russia; and that Mr. Currie was to request us to favour your Lordship with our opinion whether the reply which your Lordship would propose, with our concurrence, to make, and of which Mr. Currie was to inclose the draft, was right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve reply refusing to give such notice.
Impolicy of giving it.

That we approve of the reply which your Lordship would propose to make, subject to the slight alteration which we have made in the draft.

We concur in the view which your Lordship has already taken, that it would be impolitic to suggest a doubt as to the action of Russia being less considerate on the present occasion than it has heretofore been.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

[*] Lloyds (Captain Hozier), April 23, 1885. Confidential No. 5183, p. 9.
[†] Mr. Cooke, April 28, 1885. Confidential No. 5183, p. 15.

Annex.

(Draft as finally amended.)

Mr. Currie to Mr. Cooke.

Sir, Foreign Office, May , 1885.

IN reply to your letter of the 28th ultimo, I am directed by Earl Granville to state to you that, although in such an event as the cessation of friendly relations with Russia Her Majesty's Government could not undertake to give previous notice to British shipping of an intention to declare war, yet the practice amongst civilized States in recent times has been to give a certain amount of consideration to shipping engaged in peaceful commerce on the outbreak of hostilities.

And this course was adopted by Russia on the outbreak of the Crimean War in 1854.

All bonâ fide British vessels which were then taking in cargoes in Russian ports were allowed six weeks to complete their loading and take their departure, and British vessels which had left a British for a Russian port before the commencement of hostilities were allowed to enter the port of destination, discharge the cargo, and depart without molestation.

I am to add that an Order in Council, dated the 29th March, 1854, and a Russian notice, dated the 6th April, 1854, upon this subject, will be found in vol. xlvi, pp. 39 and 381, of the State Papers.

I am, &c.

---

No. 144.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 12, 1885.

War between Great Britain and Russia.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 30th April, stating that he was to transmit to us the draft of a Circular which your Lordship proposed to issue to Her Majesty's Diplomatic Agents abroad in the event of the outbreak of war between this country and Russia.

Circular to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad, and note to foreign Governments with regard to the Declaration of Paris.

That we should perceive that your Lordship proposed to inclose to each of Her Majesty's Representatives a draft of a note to be addressed by him to the Government to which he is accredited, accompanied by a copy of the Declaration which it was proposed to publish in the "London Gazette" for general information.

That the proposed instructions had been framed upon the model of the Circular which was issued to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad on the outbreak of war with Russia in 1854, but so altered as to have it clearly laid down that it was Her Majesty's determination to be guided in the conduct of the present war by the principles which were laid down in the Declaration of Paris of 1856 with regard to privateering, the trade of neutrals, and the validity of blockades.

That Mr. Currie also inclosed, for our information, a copy of the Notification respecting the observance of the Declaration of Paris of 1856, which was issued by the French Government on the outbreak of war between France and Prussia in July 1870, from which we should perceive that the wording of the Notification which your Lordship proposed to issue on the present occasion was in that respect as nearly as possible the same as that used by the French Government at the period referred to.

That a reference was made in the French Declaration of 1870 to the conduct to be pursued by France towards Spain and the United States, although those Powers were not parties to the Declaration of Paris. That Mr. Currie also forwarded a printed volume, in which would be found a copy of the despatch which was addressed by the French Minister at Washington to the United States' Government on that occasion; but that as no special appeal appeared to have been then made to those countries different to that which was made to the other neutral Powers to observe a strict neutrality during the war, your Lordship concluded that it would be sufficient if a note, couched in the same terms as that which your Lordship proposed should be addressed to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad to neutral Governments, were to be presented by Her Majesty's Ministers at Madrid and Washington to the Spanish and United States' Government.

That your Lordship's attention had, however, been called to the fact that there were other countries besides Spain and the United States which had not formally acceded to the Declaration of Paris, and that your Lordship therefore proposed, with our concurrence, to instruct Her Majesty's Representatives in Bolivia, Colombia, Mexico, Uruguay, Venezuela, Honduras, Salvador, and the Sandwich Islands to present notes to those Governments couched in precisely the same terms.

1885

That it was of great importance that Her Majesty's Government should clearly ascertain the present views of all foreign Powers with regard to privateering, and that it would be satisfactory if an assurance could be obtained from each that they would prevent any cruizers from being sent out from their ports with letters of marque, and that they would be prepared to consider all privateers as pirates; but that your Lordship was inclined to think that if such an assurance was demanded from each country it might call forth replies which might be embarrassing, and that your Lordship was therefore of opinion, subject to our approval, that the Circular would be sufficient as it then stood.

That Mr. Currie was further to inquire whether, in view of the possible withdrawal of Russia from the Declaration of Paris, it would, in our opinion, be desirable that words should be inserted in the Circular and Declaration reserving for Her Majesty's Government liberty of action in such an event.

That Mr. Currie was to request our opinion on the questions submitted in his letter, and any general observations which we might have to offer on the general question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we approve of the drafts submitted to us.

Approve Circular and note, and proposal to send same to countries not parties to the Declaration of Paris.

We concur in thinking that it will be sufficient if a note, couched in the same terms as that which your Lordship proposes should be addressed by Her Majesty's Representatives abroad to neutral Governments, were to be presented by Her Majesty's Ministers at Madrid and Washington to the Spanish and United States' Governments.

We concur also in the proposal to instruct Her Majesty's Representatives in Bolivia and the other countries who are not parties to the Declaration to present notes to those Governments couched in precisely the same terms.

Not expedient to demand assurance against privateering.

We agree with the view that it would not be expedient to demand an assurance from foreign Powers that they would not permit privateering, and that the Circular is sufficient as it stands.

Course to be followed in case of withdrawal of Russia from the Declaration of Paris.

We think that Her Majesty's Government is entitled to assume that Russia will not withdraw from the Declaration of Paris, and to deal with the other Powers on this assumption.

We do not think Her Majesty's Government would be precluded from adapting their action to the new state of things created in case Russia should declare her intention of acting in violation of the Declaration.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

(A.)

Draft Circular to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad.

Foreign Office, , 1885.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith a draft of a note which I have to instruct you to address to the Government to which you are accredited, in order to make known the principles upon which Great Britain has decided to act towards neutrals during the impending war with Russia, and also its resolution to adhere to the Declaration of Paris of the 16th April, 1856.

You will forward to me, with the least possible delay, the answer which you may receive from the Government, and you will not fail to use your utmost exertion to insure such a reply as shall be conformable to the just expectations of Her Majesty's Government.

I am, &c.

---

(B.)

Draft of Note to be addressed by British Agents abroad to Foreign Courts.

THE Undersigned, &c., has received orders from his Government to make to his Excellency the following communication:—

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, being compelled to take up arms for the purpose of repelling the aggression of His Majesty the Emperor of Russia upon an ally; and being desirous to lessen as much as possible the disastrous consequences to commerce resulting from a state of warfare, has given orders that, in the prosecution of this war, the Commanders of her naval and military forces do scrupulously observe towards those Powers which remain neutral the rules of international law, and that they conform especially to the principles laid down in the Declaration of the Congress of Paris of the 16th April, 1856, that is to say:—

1. Privateering is and remains abolished.
2. The neutral flag covers enemy's goods with the exception of contraband of war.
3. Neutral goods with the exception of contraband of war are not liable to capture under enemy's flag.
4. Blockades, in order to be binding, must be effective; that is to say, maintained by a force sufficient really to prevent access to the coast of the enemy.

Although Spain and the United States [or—although Spain, the United States, and some other countries] have not acceded to the Declaration of 1856, the vessels of Her Majesty will not seize the property of the enemy found on board a Spanish or an American vessel [or—vessels of those countries] provided such property is not contraband of war; nor will Her Majesty claim the right to confiscate the property of Spanish subjects or Amercan citizens [or—the subjects or citizens of those States] not contraband of war which may be found on board enemy's ships.

Her Majesty the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, has accordingly published the accompanying Declaration.

Her Majesty's Government confidently trust that the Governments of countries which may remain neutral during this war will sincerely exert every effort to enforce upon their subjects [citizens] the necessity of observing the strictest neutrality and the adherence to the principles laid down in the above-mentioned Declaration.

---

(C.)

Draft Declaration.

HER Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, having been compelled to take up arms in support of an ally, is desirous of rendering the war as little onerous as possible to the Powers with whom she remains at peace.

To preserve the commerce of neutrals from all unnecessary obstruction Her Majesty has given orders that, in the prosecution of this war, the Commanders of her naval and military forces do scrupulously observe towards those Powers which remain neutral the rules of international law, and that they conform especially to the principles laid down in the Declaration of the Congress of Paris of the 16th April, 1856, that is to say;—

1. Privateering is and remains abolished.
2. The neutral flag covers enemy's goods with the exception of contraband of war.
3. Neutral goods with the exception of contraband of war are not liable to capture under enemy's flag.
4. Blockades, in order to be binding, must be effective; that is to say, maintained by a force sufficient really to prevent access to the coast of the enemy.

It is impossible, however, for Her Majesty to forego the exercise of her right of seizing articles contraband of war, and of preventing neutrals from bearing the enemy's despatches; and she must maintain the right of a belligerent to prevent neutrals from breaking any effective blockade which may be established with an adequate force against the enemy's forts, harbours, or coasts.

1885

(D.)

Circular to Her Majesty's Representatives abroad, dated April 4, 1854.

Foreign Office, April 4, 1854.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith a draft of a note which I have to instruct you to address to the Government to which you are accredited, in order to make known the principles upon which Great Britain and France have decided to act towards neutrals during the impending war, and also their joint resolution to abstain for the present from issuing letters of marque.

The Representative of His Majesty the Emperor of the French will be instructed to make to the                    Government a similar communication.

You will forward to me, with the least possible delay, the answer which you may receive from the                    Government, and you will not fail to use your utmost exertion to insure such a reply as shall be conformable to the just expectations of the two Governments.

I am, &c.

---

(E.)

Draft of Note to be addressed by British Agents abroad to Foreign Courts.

THE Undersigned, &c., has received orders from his Government to make to his Excellency                    the following communication:—

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and His Majesty the Emperor of the French, being compelled to take up arms for the purpose of repelling the aggression of His Majesty the Emperor of Russia upon the Ottoman Empire; and being desirous to lessen as much as possible the disastrous consequences to commerce resulting from a state of warfare; their Majesties have resolved, for the present, not to authorize the issue of letters of marque.

In making this resolution known, they think it right to announce at the same time the principles upon which they will be guided, during the course of this war, with regard to the navigation and commerce of neutrals.

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland has accordingly published the accompanying Declaration, which is identical with that published by His Majesty the Emperor of the French.

In thus restricting within the narrowest limits the exercise of their rights as belligerents, the allied Governments confidently trust that the Governments of countries which may remain neutral during this war will sincerely exert every effort to enforce upon their subjects [citizens] the necessity of observing the strictest neutrality.

Her Britannic Majesty's Government entertain the confident hope that the                    Government will receive with satisfaction the announcement of the resolutions thus taken in common by the two allied Governments, and that it will, in the spirit of just reciprocity, give orders that no privateer under Russian colours shall be equipped or victualled, or admitted with its prizes, in the ports of                    ; and also that the subjects [citizens] of                    shall rigorously abstain from taking part in armaments of this nature, or in any other measure opposed to the duties of a strict neutrality.

---

(F.)

Declaration, dated March 28, 1854.

HER Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, having been compelled to take up arms in support of an ally, is desirous of rendering the war as little onerous as possible to the Powers with whom she remains at peace.

To preserve the commerce of neutrals from all unnecessary obstruction, Her Majesty is willing, for the present, to waive a part of the belligerent rights appertaining to her by the law of nations.

It is impossible for Her Majesty to forego the exercise of her right of seizing articles contraband of war, and of preventing neutrals from bearing the enemy's despatches; and she must maintain the right of a belligerent to prevent neutrals from breaking any effective blockade which may be established with an adequate force against the enemy's forts, harbours, or coasts.

But Her Majesty will waive the right of seizing enemy's property laden on board a neutral vessel unless it be contraband of war.

It is not Her Majesty's intention to claim the confiscation of neutral property, not being contraband of war, found on board enemy's ships, and Her Majesty further declares that, being anxious to lessen as much as possible the evils of war, and to restrict its operations to the regularly organized forces of the country, it is not her present intention to issue letters of marque for the commissioning of privateers.

Westminster, March 28, 1854.

---

(G.)

Lord Lyons to Earl Granville.

My Lord, Paris, July 25, 1870.

I HAVE the honour to inclose herewith to your Lordship, extracted from the "Journal Officiel" of this day, a Declaration respecting the rules of international law which will be observed during the war.

I have, &c.
(Signed) LYONS.

---

Extract from the "Journal Officiel" of July 25, 1870.

LE Gouvernement de l'Empereur a donné des ordres pour que, dans la poursuite de la guerre, les Commandants des forces Françaises de terre et de mer observent scrupuleusement vis-à-vis des Puissances qui demeureront neutres les règles du droit international, et pour qu'ils se conforment notamment aux principes posés dans la Déclaration du Congrès de Paris du 16 Avril, 1856,* savoir:—

1. La course est et demeure abolie.
2. Le pavillon neutre couvre la marchandise ennemie, à l'exception de la contrebande de guerre.
3. La marchandise neutre, à l'exception de la contrebande de guerre, n'est pas saisissable sous pavillon ennemi.
4. Les blocus, pour être obligatoires, doivent être effectifs, c'est-à-dire maintenus par une force suffisante pour interdire réellement l'accès du littoral de l'ennemi.

Bien que l'Espagne et les États-Unis n'aient point adhéré à la Déclaration de 1856, les vaisseaux Français ne saisiront pas la propriété de l'ennemi chargée à bord d'un vaisseau Américain ou Espagnol à moins que cette propriété ne soit contrebande de guerre.

Le Gouvernement de l'Empereur ne compte pas non plus revendiquer le droit de confisquer la propriété des citoyens Américains ou Espagnols qui serait trouvée à bord des bâtiments ennemis.

---

No. 145.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 17, 1885.

Anglo-Russian war. Use of naval yards, &c., in Japan, in event of.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers relating to the question whether, in the event of war between Great Britain and Russia, those Powers should claim the right to use their naval yards and hospitals in Japan during the continuance of hostilities.

---

* Germany.—Count Bismarck informed Lord A. Loftus, on the 23rd July, 1870, that the Declaration of the 16th April, 1856, was legally valid throughout the whole of the States of the North German Confederation, and would certainly be respected by the North German Confederation during the war with France.

1885

Rights under Treaty.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote stated that your Lordship would propose, with our concurrence, to inform Mr. Plunkett that the Treaty between Great Britain and Japan must be read subject to the obligations of international law in time of war, and that Great Britain could not claim, under the Treaty, to commit any act which would involve Japan in a breach of neutrality, but would insist on the same facilities being accorded to her as to the other belligerent.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposed instructions to Mr. Plunkett were right and proper.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed instructions.

That, in our opinion, the proposed instructions to Mr. Plunkett are right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

1. Mr. Plunkett, No. 12 (Telegraphic), May 3, 1885, Confidential No. 5183, p. 18.
2. Mr. Plunkett, No. 125, May 3, 1885, Confidential No. 5183, p. 27.
3. Admiralty (Confidential), July 16, 1885, Confidential No. 5183, p. 28.
4. Memoranda on above, Confidential No. 5183, pp. 28-30.
5. Treaty between Great Britain and Japan, August 26, 1858, Treaty No. 433.

Annex.

The Marquis of Salisbury to Mr. Plunkett.

(No. . Treaty. Confidential.)

Sir, Foreign Office, August , 1885.

I HAVE received your despatch No. 125 of the 3rd May last relative to the question whether, in the eventuality of war between Great Britain and Russia, those Powers would be able to claim the right to use their naval yards and hospitals in Japan during the continuance of hostilities.

In reply, I have to state to you that Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that the stipulations of the Treaty of the 26th August, 1858, between Great Britain and Japan, must be read as being subject to the obligations of international law in time of war, and that Great Britain cannot claim, under the Treaty, to commit any act which would involve Japan in a breach of neutrality, but would insist on the same facilities being accorded to her as to the other belligerent.

I am, &c.

---

Siam.

No. 146.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 5, 1885.

Registration of British subjects in Siam.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 15th ultimo, and transmitting to us the papers* relating to the registration of British subjects in Siam.

* 1. Mr. Satow, No. 72, September 4, 1884.
2. Ditto, No. 73, September 15, 1884.
3. Siam Order in Council, July 28, 1856 (Confidential No. 575).
4. China and Japan Order in Council of March 9, 1865 (Confidential No. 1354).
5. Siam Order in Council, June 26, 1884 (Confidential No. 4986*).
Memorandum (E. H.), December 11, 1884.

That our attention was invited to the grounds on which Mr. Satow recommended the adoption of the inclosed draft Regulations.

Draft Regulations.

That those Regulations appeared to your Lordship to be on the whole unobjectionable, though your Lordship felt some doubt as to whether they should not be confined to British subjects resident in Siam, instead of being made applicable to all British subjects, even though merely transient.

That a Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, making certain comments on the draft Regulations, and also a copy of the China and Japan Order in Council, the provisions of which, as to registration, had been substantially adopted by Mr. Satow, were inclosed.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the Regulations might be approved.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

The Regulations are not objectionable in form.

That assuming such Regulations to be expedient as a matter of policy, we think the proposed Regulations are unobjectionable in point of form.

If not to apply to travellers.

We are certainly disposed to concur in the view that they should not be applied to persons not resident or intending to reside in Siam, but who are merely passing travellers.

Regulation 8 should be modified.

If this view be adopted, the Regulations will require modification, particularly Regulation 8.

The points to which Sir E. Hertslet calls attention require consideration, but they are points rather of policy than law.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Annex.

THE following Regulation made by the Undersigned, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Siam, in virtue of the powers vested in him by section 1 of the Order in Council of the 28th day of July, 1856, to make Rules and Regulations for the peace, order, and good governance of Her Majesty's subjects being within the dominions of the Kings of Siam, and approved by Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is hereby notified for the information of British subjects:—

1. Every British subject resident in Bangkok, or within twenty-four hours' journey thereof, and every British subject resident in Chiengmai, or within twenty-four hours' journey thereof, being of the age of 21 years or upwards, or being married, or a widower or widow, though under that age, shall in the month of January 1885, and in every subsequent year, register himself or herself in the register-book kept for that purpose, either at Her Majesty's Consulate-General in Bangkok or at Her Majesty's Vice-Consulate at Chiengmai, and all British subjects resident in Siam beyond those limits shall, in like manner, register themselves as early as may conveniently be in the year 1885 and every subsequent year, subject to this qualification, that the registration of a man shall be deemed to include the registration of his wife, unless she is living apart from him.

2. Every British subject not so resident arriving at Bangkok, unless borne on the muster-roll of a British vessel there arriving, or arriving at Chiengmai, shall, within one month after his or her arrival, register himself or herself in the book kept for that purpose at Her Majesty's Consulate-General at Bangkok or at Her Majesty's Vice-Consulate at Chiengmai, as the case may be.

3. Any British subject failing so to register himself or herself, and not excusing his or her failure to the satisfaction of the Consular officer, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 20 ticals for each instance of such failure.

4. Every person on registration of himself or herself shall pay a fee of 2 ticals.

5. The Consular officer shall issue to every person so registered a certificate of registration under his hand and Consular seal, which certificate shall be given up in exchange for a new certificate on each occasion of re-registration, and failure to produce the previous certificate, or to satisfactorily account for its non-production, shall render the person so failing liable to a fine not exceeding 20 ticals.

6. The transfer or loan of a certificate of registration shall render the person so transferring or lending to another liable to a penalty of 100 ticals.

7. The use of a certificate of registration by any other than the person to whom it was granted shall render the person so using such certificate liable to a penalty of 100 ticals.

1885

8. The provisions of this Regulation are applicable to all British subjects, whether arriving or having arrived in Siam by sea or by land, and whether provided or not with a passport or certificate of nationality issued by any authority in Her Majesty's dominions.

---

No. 147.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 19.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 18, 1885.

Marriage and registration. Siamese proposals.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 15th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers with reference to certain proposals and inquiries contained in a despatch from Mr. Satow, Her Majesty's Minister in Siam, on the following subjects:—

(1.) The marriages of British subjects.

(2.) The registration of persons who were to continue to enjoy the privilege of Consular protection.

(3.) The compulsory registration of British subjects.

That in his despatch (No. 63 of the 1st July, 1885—A) Mr. Satow stated at length the proposals which had been made by the Siamese Government in regard to each point, and at the same time submitted his own observations, and asked for instructions on certain points. That the substance of that despatch was briefly stated in the "Précis" (B).

Proposed reply as to:

That your Lordship proposed, with our concurrence, to reply to Mr. Satow upon each of the three subjects above mentioned as follows:—

(1.) Marriages of British subjects.

(1.) Marriages.

Their validity,

and conditions.

Her Majesty's Government do not think it desirable to enter into any agreement with the Siamese Government, whereby they would pledge themselves to recognize the validity of any particular marriage or class of marriages. They are not prepared to offer any advice to the Siamese Government as to what should constitute a valid marriage by Siamese Law. A British subject intending to marry a Siamese woman should fulfil the conditions required by the Law of Siam, so far as it may be possible to do so, as well as those imposed by British Law.

Validity in heathen countries.

That in reply to Mr. Satow's question as to the legality of a marriage celebrated by a Protestant or Roman Catholic missionary in a place of worship of either creed, your Lordship would propose to instruct Mr. Satow in the sense of the Law Officers' Report (C) of the 15th March, 1883, and to inform him that in heathen countries marriages [between British subjects]* celebrated by a priest in holy orders are deemed valid at common law.†

(2.) Registration of protected subjects.

(2.) Registration of persons who are to continue to enjoy British protection.

Status of Siamese women cohabiting with British subjects.

Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that although some such system is desirable, it would not be expedient that they should enter into any agreement respecting the status of Siamese women cohabiting with British subjects. They consider that it would be sufficient if a register of "Protected Persons" were kept in Her Majesty's Consulate-General, and if it were insisted that every person entitled to such protection should take out a certificate of registration as in the Ottoman Dominions, the questions which might arise as to what persons should be entitled to British protection should be settled by negotiation. Her Majesty's Government do not see the necessity of any alteration of the Law, and they are unable to assent to the proposal of the Siamese Government, that the personal and real property of a British subject dying intestate during cohabitation with a Siamese woman should be distributed according to Siamese Law: they consider that no attempt should be made to interfere with the law of succession to property, real or personal, as provided by Article 3 of the Supplementary Agreement of the 13th May, 1856 (D).

Distribution of property of such intestate British subjects.

Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that this should be now carried out in accordance with the draft Regulations proposed by Mr. Satow, annexed to the Report (E) of the Law Officers of the 5th January, 1885, but subject to the modifications suggested in the reference to the Law Officers, and concurred in by them.

---

* Words in brackets interpolated by Law Officers.

† See Law Officers' Report (C).

1885

Annex to No. 147.

Draft Regulations (amended).

THE following Regulation made by the Undersigned, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Siam, in virtue of the powers vested in him by section 1 of the Order in Council of the 28th day of July, 1856, to make Rules and Regulations for the peace, order, and good governance of Her Majesty's subjects being within the dominions of the Kings of Siam, and approved by Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is hereby notified for the information of British subjects:—

1. Every British subject resident in Bangkok, or within twenty-four hours' journey thereof, and every British subject resident in Chiengmai, or within twenty-four hours' journey thereof, being of the age of 21 years or upwards, or being married, or a widower or widow, though under that age, shall in the month of January 1886, and in every subsequent year, register himself or herself in the register-book kept for that purpose, either at Her Majesty's Consulate-General in Bangkok or at Her Majesty's Vice-Consulate at Chiengmai, and all British subjects resident in Siam beyond those limits shall, in like manner, register themselves as early as may conveniently be in the year 1886 and every subsequent year, subject to this qualification, that the registration of a man shall be deemed to include the registration of his wife, unless she is living apart from him, and that the registration of the head of a family, whether male or female, shall be deemed to comprise the registration of all females being relatives to the head of the family (in whatever degree of relationship) living under the same roof with the head of the family at the time of his or her registration.

2. Any British subject failing so to register himself or herself, and not excusing his or her failure to the satisfaction of the Consular officer, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 20 ticals for each instance of such failure.

3. Every person on registration of himself or herself shall pay a fee of 2 ticals.

4. The Consular officer shall issue to every person so registered a certificate of registration under his hand and Consular seal, which certificate shall be given up in exchange for a new certificate on each occasion of re-registration, and failure to produce the previous certificate, or to satisfactorily account for its non-production, shall render the person so failing liable to a fine not exceeding 20 ticals.

5. The transfer or loan of a certificate of registration shall render the person so transferring or lending to another liable to a penalty of 100 ticals.

6. The use of a certificate of registration by any other than the person to whom it was granted shall render the person so using such certificate liable to a penalty of 100 ticals.

7. The provisions of this Regulation shall be applicable only to British subjects resident, or intending to reside, in Siam; they shall be bound to take out a certificate of registration within one month of their arrival in the country.

That a copy of the draft Regulations so amended was inclosed (F).

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proposals and inquiries contained in Mr. Satow's despatch might properly be answered in the sense above indicated.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we approve of the draft Regulations as amended.

Approve proposed answers with alteration.

The proposals and inquiries contained in Mr. Satow's despatch may, in our opinion, be properly answered in the sense indicated, subject to the suggestion that in the last line but one of (1), the words "between British subjects" be inserted after the words "holy orders."

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD WEBSTER.
J. R. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Mr. Satow, No. 63, July 1, 1885.
(B.) Précis of above (A).
(C.) Law Officers' Report, March 15, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 126.
(D.) Treaty with Siam of April 18, 1855, with Supplementary Agreement of May 13, 1856, Treaty No. 411.
(E.) Law Officers, January 5, 1885, with Inclosures, viz.:—
    1. Mr. Satow, No. 72, September 4, 1884.
    2. Mr. Satow, No. 73, September 15, 1884.
    3. Siam Order in Council, July 28, 1856, Confidential No. 575.
    4. China and Japan Order in Council, March 9, 1865, Confidential No. 1354.
    5. Siam Order in Council, June 26, 1884, Confidential No. 4986*.
    6. Memorandum by E. H, December 11, 1884.
(F.) Draft Regulations as amended.

---

No. 148.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 17.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 17, 1885.

Opium-smuggling in Siam. Observance by British subjects of Siamese Law.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 3rd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Bangkok,* which related to the observance by British subjects of the Siamese Law for the prevention of opium-smuggling and illicit dealing in that drug.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was further to transmit the draft of the reply which it was proposed to return to Mr. Satow, and, whilst submitting the latter for our approval, to call our attention to the Law Officers' Reports inclosed,† bearing upon the question, and also to the copies of the Treaties, &c., transmitted.‡ That the stipulation as to the seizure and confiscation of opium by the Siamese authorities was contained in Article VIII, paragraph 3, of the Treaty of 1855. That your Lordship desired our opinion as to whether the draft of the reply which it was proposed to return to Mr. Satow's despatch met with our concurrence and approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Ought not to express formal approval of Mr. Satow's conduct respecting arrest of Mong Chu.

That it is not, in our opinion, right to express a formal approval of Mr. Satow's proceedings in the matter of Mong Chu.

Mong Chu appears to have infringed Article VIII of the Treaty of 1856, as well as the Siamese Opium Law.

The Consul was bound by Article II of the Treaty of 1856 to enforce the observance by British subjects of all the provisions of the Treaty, and was further bound by the undertaking of his predecessor in 1871 to enforce the Siamese Opium Laws.

---

* Mr. Satow, No. 75, September 8, 1885.

† December 31, 1878: Confidential No. 4280, p. 39A; September 22 and October 3, 1879: Confidential No. 4328, pp. 41 and 44.

‡ Treaty, April 18, 1855, No. 411; Order in Council, July 28, 1856 (confirmed by 20 & 21 Vict., cap. 75): Confidential No. 575.

1885

The circumstance that our Orders in Council and Regulations were insufficient in law to enable the Consul to fulfil his obligations seems rather to give the Siamese Government some ground for complaint than to afford Her Majesty's Government a valid reason for demanding compensation for the false imprisonment of a British subject.

Approve remainder of draft.

The remainder of the reply to Mr. Satow's despatch meets with our concurrence and approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.

Dr. Deane of opinion that Mr. Satow's conduct should be approved.

I am unable to agree with that part of the Report of the Attorney- and Solicitor-General which says that it is not right to express a formal approval of Mr. Satow's proceedings in the matter of Mong Chu.

Mr. Satow in his despatch states that the Siamese constables have orders to effect the arrest of any person denounced to the opium-farmers as having infringed the Siamese Opium Laws.

By the Treaty the Siamese may not seize a British subject; they can only seize and confiscate the opium.

I cannot see how a defect in the British Consul's powers can justify the breach of the Treaty by the Siamese; and, in my opinion, the conduct of Mr. Consul Satow may properly be approved.

(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Mr. Satow.

(No. .)
Sir, Foreign Office, January , 1886.

I HAVE received your despatch No. 75 of the 8th September last, inclosing a draft Regulation enjoining on British subjects the observance of the Siamese Law for the prevention of opium-smuggling and illicit dealing in that drug.

The municipal laws of Siam are binding on British subjects when not contrary to, or inconsistent with, rights secured to them by Treaty, but such laws can only be enforced on British subjects in the British Consular Court at Bangkok. The proper course, therefore, to pursue is to notify them to British subjects, and to issue a Regulation under section I of the Order in Council of the 28th July, 1856, imposing a penalty for their violation not exceeding the limit prescribed in section 4.

The draft Regulation transmitted in your despatch has been submitted to the Law Officers of the Crown, and is approved by them, subject to the omission of that part of it written in red ink in the draft, which imposes forfeiture of the smuggled opium, which is ultra vires and practically unnecessary, as the right of its seizure and confiscation by the Siamese authorities is already conceded by Treaty. The Regulation should, however, set out that part of the Treaty which provides for seizure and confiscation.

Subject, therefore, to the above amendment, I sanction the issue of the proposed Regulation.

I am, &c.

---

Spain.

No. 149.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 10, 1885.

Claim on part of Don A. M. Regidor for capture in 1796 of Spanish vessel "San Juan de Dios," alias "Vascongada," by Her Majesty's ship "Magicienne."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to a claim advanced by the representatives of the owners of the Spanish vessel "San Juan de Dios," alias "Vascongada," which was captured by Her Majesty's ship "Magicienne" on the 9th August, 1796.

That the details of that claim, which had been recommended to the favourable consideration of Her Majesty's Government by the Spanish Minister at this Court, were set forth in the Memorial drawn up by Don A. M. Regidor, which formed the inclosure in the Minister's note of the 10th May last.

That the matter was submitted to the Registrar of the High Court of Admiralty, and that a Report upon the case, drawn up by him in 1871, at the request of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, was annexed, together with a draft of a note based upon it, which was addressed by your Lordship to the Spanish Minister on the 28th May, 1884, declining to entertain the claim on the grounds therein stated.

That a renewed representation had, however, been made upon the subject by the Spanish Minister, as would be seen by a perusal of the note, of which translation was annexed, and the accompanying Report upon it had been furnished by Mr. Rothery.

That our special attention was invited to the two last-named documents, and that he was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the answer which should be returned to the claim urged by the Spanish Minister, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Claim not well-founded, and cannot be entertained.

That we think the claim urged by the Spanish Minister is not well founded, and that an answer should be returned based on the lines of Mr. Rothery's Report of the 9th February, 1885. It should also be pointed out that even if the claim had been otherwise well founded, it would have been impossible for Her Majesty's Government to entertain a claim arising out of the hostilities between the two countries prior to 1808, having regard to the Conventions of 1823 and 1828, and the proceedings which took place in relation to them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 150.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 26, 1885.

Boarding of the British vessel "Virgen de los Angeles" by the Spanish gun-boat "Salamandra" near Gibraltar.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers† relating to the boarding of the British vessel "Virgen de los Angeles" by the Spanish gun-boat "Salamandra," in the neighbourhood of Gibraltar, on the 10th ultimo.

That it seemed to be admitted that the British vessel was overhauled, but while the depositions, on oath, of the crew of that vessel, fix the precise spot where she was boarded at half-a-mile from Europa Point, the Commander of the gun-boat declared

---

* List of Papers submitted to Law Officers, February 14, 1885:—Report by Mr. Rothery. November 27, 1871; Dr. Jurado, June 26, 1882; M. Casa Laiglesia, May 10; to Mr. Rothery, May 17; Mr. Rothery, May 19; to M. Casa Laiglesia, May 28; to Dr. Jurado, May 28, 1884; M. Casa Laiglesia, January 15; to ditto, February 6; to Mr Rothery, February 6; Mr. Rothery, February 9, 1885.

† Colonial Office, February 28; to ditto, March 6; Colonial Office, March 7, 1885.

1885

that the occurrence took place at a distance of more than 3 miles from that point. (See General Vitoria to Sir J. Adye, 22nd February, 1885.) That the observations made by the officer in question with regard to the Treaty of Utrecht, and to the alleged smuggling into Spain by Gibraltar merchants, appeared to your Lordship to be entirely uncalled for, and to throw some suspicion on his version of the matter. That your Lordship would accordingly propose to recommend to the Colonial Office that the Governor of Gibraltar should be instructed to take exception to the Spanish Commander's remarks on the above-mentioned points, and to inform the Governor of Algeciras that, in view of the depositions of the crew of the British vessel, it was to be regretted that the Spanish authorities had not thought fit to institute a searching inquiry, as the letter of the Commander could not be accepted as disposing of the question of fact.

Proposed reply as to Spanish statements and failure to make inquiry.

That our opinion was requested as to whether we concurred in the proposed reply, under all the circumstances of the case.

Approve proposed reply.

In ebedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we concur in the proposed reply.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 151.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 20, 1885.

Imprisonment in Cuba of J. Thomson, a British seaman on the Haïtian vessel "Independiente." Claim for compensation.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the case of John Thomson, a British seaman serving on board a Haïtian steamer flying the French flag, who had been confined in gaol in Cuba for seven months and twenty-seven days, and who claimed compensation from the Spanish Government on account of the sufferings and losses inflicted on him through the delays of justice.

That the circumstances of the case were detailed in a despatch from Her Majesty's Consul-General in the Havana (No. 5, February 7, 1884) and in a Memorial from Thomson dated the 30th June, 1884, to which our especial attention was drawn.

That it appeared from those documents that on the 12th July, 1883, the "Independiente," a Haïtian schooner, put into the port of Santiago di Cuba under the French flag.

That the Spanish authorities, considering that there were grounds for suspicion, detained the vessel, arrested the crew, and threw them into prison. That among them was a British subject named John Thomson, who was kept in confinement for nearly eight months without trial, and then released without being informed of the nature of his accusation, and with the loss of all his clothes and personal effects.

That it was averred that the "Independiente" had no right to fly the French flag, and that the Havana authorities believed that her ostensible object—that of loading salt—was an assumed one, and alleged that her real mission was to trade for the benefit of the Haïtian revolutionists; but that as nothing could be proved against her except that she had put to sea with informal documents, and had improperly hoisted the French flag, it was resolved that her crew, who could not be identified, should be restored to liberty. That the vessel was shortly afterwards wrecked in Santiago Bay, and her wreck was delivered over to the Haïtian Consul.

That the case was represented to the Spanish Government, together with several others, in a note from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Madrid, dated the 9th July, 1884, and which formed the inclosure in Mr. de Bunsen's despatch No. 75 of the 10th of that month.

Spanish explanations.

That the first reply of the Spanish Government to the representation in John Thomson's case would be found in Sir R. Morier's despatch No. 40 of the 25th April, 1885. That it was considered unsatisfactory, and a further representation was addressed to them in a note of which a copy was inclosed in Sir R. Morier's No. 56 of the 2nd June, 1885.

That a reply to that note had been received, consisting of a Report from the Commandant of Marines at Havana, which was transmitted in Mr. de Bunsen's No. 124 of the 2nd ultimo.

That in that Report it was contended that the arrest of Thomson was in accordance with law, and based on the "piratical character" of the vessel.

That he was regarded as guilty of the crime of "piracy" (in the sense described in the Report).

That the length of his imprisonment without trial was attributed to the zeal of the officials in sifting the facts and obtaining information from Haïti.

That nothing was said as to the loss of his clothes and personal effects.

That a Memorandum drawn up in the Foreign Office respecting the capture of vessels sailing under improperly-used flags was sent therewith, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the reply of the Spanish Government should be accepted as disposing of the case, or whether it called for further action on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Spanish reply unsatisfactory; further action called for.

That, in our opinion, the reply of the Spanish Government cannot be accepted as disposing of the case, and further action on the part of Her Majesty's Government is called for.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 152.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 28, 1885.

Imprisonment in Cuba of J. Thompson, of the "Independiente."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that with reference to our Report of the 20th ultimo respecting the case of J. Thompson, in which we advised that further action was called for on the part of Her Majesty's Government, he was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether we considered the reply of the Spanish Government as insufficient only in so far as it showed no reasonable excuse for the delay of justice and the non-restoration of Thompson's effects, or whether, in our opinion, exception should be taken to the contention that the facts of the case justified a charge of piracy against Thompson.

That your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with any observations which we might have to make in regard to the nature of the further representation to be made to the Spanish Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the reply of the Spanish Government is insufficient, because—

Reasons for insufficiency of Spanish reply.

1. It shows no reasonable excuse for the delay of justice and the non-restoration of John Thompson's effects.

2. The facts of the case did not justify a charge of piracy against John Thompson at the time when he was thrown into prison.

Suggestions as to further representations.

3. We think that in the further representation to be made to the Spanish Government there should be—

1. A statement of the judgment of Her Majesty's Government upon the points above mentioned.

2. An invitation to the Spanish Government to express their own decision upon the case as submitted to them by their subordinate officers, which they have at present abstained from indicating to Her Majesty's Government.

3. A demand from the Spanish Government of a reasonable sum to be paid to John Thompson, as compensation for his imprisonment and the loss of his effects.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Consul-General Crowe, No. 5, February 7; to Mr. de Bunsen, No. 73, June 5; Mr. de Bunsen, No. 75, July 10; to ditto, No. 93, July 17; Consul-General Crowe, No. 21, July 19; to Sir R. Morier, No. 108 August 15, 1884; Sir R. Morier, No. 40, April 25; to ditto, No. 51, May 29; Sir R. Morier, No. 56, June 2; to ditto, June 10; Sir R. Morier, June 18; Mr. de Bunsen, No. 124, October 2; Memorandum, Foreign Office, October 15, 1885.

1885

List of Papers.

Consul-General Crowe, No. 5, February 7, 1884.
To Mr. de Bunsen No. 73, June 5, 1884.
Mr. de Bunsen, No. 75, July 10, 1884.
To Mr. de Bunsen, No. 93, July 17, 1884.
Consul-General Crowe, No. 21, July 19, 1884.
To Sir R. Morier, No. 108, August 15, 1884.
Sir R. Morier, No. 40, April 25, 1885.
To Sir R. Morier, No. 51, May 29, 1885.
Sir R. Morier, No. 56, June 2, 1885.
To Sir R. Morier, June 10, 1885.
Sir R. Morier, June 18, 1885.
Mr. de Bunsen, No. 124, October 2, 1885.
Memorandum (Foreign Office), October 15, 1885.
Law Officers, November 20, 1885.

Switzerland.

No. 153.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 26.)

Expulsion of Mr. Rabey, of the "Salvation Army," from Neuchâtel.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 26, 1885.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 16th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Berne* forwarding copy of a note from the Swiss Government relative to the delay which had taken place in dealing with the protest against the expulsion of Mr. Rabey from the Canton of Neuchâtel, and with the request for explanations, which were addressed to them by Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires on the 3rd January last, in pursuance of your Lordship's instructions, and in conformity with the terms of our Report of the 17th of the preceding month.

That our opinion was requested as to whether Her Majesty's Government should press for an immediate reply to the protest above mentioned.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Opinion on further representations as to delay in answering British note.

That the letter of the President of the Swiss Confederation of the 28th February does not purport to promise a reply to the note of the British Minister.

It states that his Excellency had manifested a desire to know whether the Federal Council would soon arrive at a decision on the several cases brought before them "by members of the Salvation Army," and indicates when this decision may be expected; but it makes no reference to the diplomatic remonstrance of Her Majesty's Minister.

We think attention should be called to this, and that some explanation of the delay and promise of an early reply should be required.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Mr Adams, No. 15, March 3; Mr. Thornton, No. 1, January 5, 1885 (with previous correspondence in print).

No. 154.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 25.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 23, 1885.

Expulsion of Mr. Rabey, of the "Salvation Army," from Canton of Neuchâtel.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the protest lodged by Her Majesty's Government with the Swiss Government respecting the expulsion of Mr. Rabey, of the "Salvation Army," from the Canton of Neuchâtel, which formed the subject of our Reports of the 17th December last and the 20th March.

That we should observe that the Swiss Government, in reply to the diplomatic remonstrance made by Her Majesty's Minister at Berne, endeavoured to justify the action which had been taken in that matter, and set forth certain reasons which induced them to deny that the expulsion of Mr. Rabey had involved any violation of the Treaty between Great Britain and Switzerland.

That the particulars of the action taken by the Swiss Government against Mr. Rabey would be found at pp. 41–58 of the print, Part II, and pp. 1–6, Part III.

That a copy of the Treaty in question was also annexed, together with copies of our previous Reports upon the rights enjoyed by this country thereunder.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to what further action, if any, should be taken in that case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That it will be observed that in the despatch of the 8th May, written on behalf of the Swiss Government, the expulsion of Mr. Rabey is sought to be justified by virtue only of the Regulations of the Conference of Berne, and that all other grounds for such expulsion are abandoned, of which fact note may be taken.

Now justified under Regulations of Conference of Berne.

In our Report of the 17th December, 1884, we pointed out "that the Reports of Professor König and M. Monnier afforded good ground for believing that these Regulations were beyond the competence of the Cantonal authorities. But it appears to us that it cannot be expected that the mere allegation of such incompetency in the shape of diplomatic representations will be acquiesced in by the Swiss Government, and that in order to entitle Mr. Rabey to establish any claim to compensation he must proceed to obtain an annulment of the Regulations in question by appealing to the proper authority, viz., the Federal Council.

Cannot make any representations before the annulment of these Regulations.

Until the Regulations are annulled, they must be taken to have legal effect, and, as they affect Swiss subjects equally with foreigners, we think no diplomatic representations can be made or based on a violation of the Treaty rights of British subjects.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Tunis.

No. 155.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 25.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 24, 1885.

G. Pace imprisoned in Malta for murder. Petition for remission of sentence.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th February, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers* which related to a Petition from Giuseppe Pace, a Consular prisoner in the Malta gaol, praying for a mitigation of the sentence of five years' imprisonment that he was then undergoing. That the Petition, together with the particulars of the prison history of the prisoner, would be found in the Colonial Office letter of the 31st December last, and that the minutes and notes of evidence, taken at the trial of the prisoner, were also included among the previous papers on the subject, transmitted therewith. That on the 23rd January, 1883, Sir Julian Pauncefote referred the case to us for our advice in determining the sentence to be passed on the prisoner, under sections 269 of the Ottoman Order in Council, and that on the 2nd February, 1883, we reported that the justice of the case would be met by a sentence of five years' imprisonment, which was the term the petitioner now sought to have mitigated.

---

* Mr. Adams, No. 41, May 11; ditto, No. 42, May 12, 1885; Print, Part II, Confidential No. 5010; ditto, Part III, Confidential No.     ; Treaty, Great Britain and Switzerland, September 6, 1855, No. 401; Law Officers' Reports: March 8, 1883, Confidential No, 4974, p. 112; November 1, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 113; December 15, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 115; January 24, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 107; July 18, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 108; September 10, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 109.

1885

That our opinion was requested as to whether, under the circumstances of the case, any remission of Pace's punishment could properly be granted.

No ground for the remission of his sentence.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report that we see no sufficient ground for granting any remission of Pace's punishment. It might be pointed out to him that when he was sent back to prison after his escape, he was not sentenced to any further term of imprisonment, but merely required to serve in prison the term to which he was originally sentenced.

We have, &c
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 156.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received May 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 11, 1885.

Remission of sentences of Spiteri, Busattil, and Francalanzu. Petitions.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 13th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers† relating to Petitions of three Consular prisoners at Malta praying for some mitigation of their sentences.

That Dr. Arpa, Her Majesty's Acting Consul and Judge at Tunis, was requested to furnish a Report upon the several cases in question, and that we were requested to take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any mitigation of those sentences should be granted, and if so, to what extent.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No ground for remission except in case of Francalanzu, in which two years may be remitted.

That in the cases of Spiteri and Busattil we think there is no sufficient ground for a remission of any part of their sentences.

In the case of Francalanzu we think that two years of the sentence might properly be remitted.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colonial Office, December 31, 1884; Law Officers' Report, February 2, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 115); Consul-General Fawcett, No. 70, December 30, 1882; Order in Council, May 18, 1881 (Confidential No. 4446); Order in Council, May 18, 1881 (Levant), (Confidential No. 2354).

† Colonial Office, February 25; ditto, February 26; Dr. Arpa, No. 10, March 28; ditto, No. 11, March 28, 1885.

Turkey.

---

No. 157.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 9, 1885.

E. Fisher. Question as to his deportation from Smyrna.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Mr. Dennis,* Her Majesty's Consul at Smyrna, respecting the case of Ernest Fisher, a British subject residing in that port, who had been repeatedly brought before the Consular Court charged with various offences. That Mr. Dennis found considerable difficulty in dealing with that person, and was anxious to have him removed from Smyrna; but that in his opinion, and in that of Mr. Fawcett, the Judge of Her Majesty's Supreme Consular Court at Constantinople, he had no power, under section 311 of the Levant Order in Council of 1873, to deport him, because, although a British subject, he was not born in Her Majesty's dominions.

Incorrectness of view taken by Consul.

That it appeared, however, to your Lordship that Mr. Fawcett and Mr. Dennis had taken an incorrect view of the Order in Council, and that your Lordship had accordingly caused the accompanying draft of a despatch to be prepared, which your Lordship proposed, with our concurrence, to address to Mr. Dennis, in reply to his request for instructions.

That a copy of the Order in Council was also inclosed,† and that Mr. Lister was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether the terms of the draft met with our approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approving draft instructions as to his deportation, though not born in Her Majesty's dominions.

That the terms of the inclosed draft meet our approval.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Consul Dennis.

(No. Smyrna.)
Sir, Foreign Office, January , 1885.

I HAVE laid before Earl Granville your despatch No. 36 of the 5th December, respecting the case of Ernest Fisher.

You observe that section 311 of the Order in Council of 1873 does not allow of his deportation, as he was not born within Her Majesty's dominions, and that, in the opinion of Mr. Fawcett, section 311 of the Order in Council limits the punishment of deportation to offenders who are natives of some portion of Her Majesty's dominions, and makes no provision for deporting those British subjects who happen, as in the case of Fisher, to have been born in a foreign land.

I am directed by Earl Granville to state to you that under section 311 of the Order in Council every British subject is liable to deportation. By the interpretation clause of the Order (section 4), "subject" is declared to mean a "subject of Her Majesty by birth or naturalization." Mr. Ernest Fisher, although not born within Her Majesty's dominions, is described as a British subject, and it is presumed, therefore, that his father, or his grandfather by the father's side, is or was a natural-born British subject: if so, he must be deemed a British subject by birth, under the Statutes 4 Geo. II, cap. 21, or 13 Geo. III, cap. 21. Section 311 of the Order in Council no doubt indicates places of deportation in the case of natives of India, Malta, Gibraltar and Her Majesty's dominions, and prohibits their deportation to other places

---

* Mr. Dennis, No. 36, December 5, 1884.

† Order in Council, December 12, 1873: Confidential No. 2354.

1885

without their consent. But that provision does not restrict the general power of deportation of British subjects, though they may not have been born in the places mentioned. It is competent, therefore, to the Court, subject to the other conditions of the section, to deport Mr. E. Fisher to England.

I am, &c.

---

No. 158.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received January 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 27, 1885.

Consular jurisdiction.

Refusal of Porte to grant a Berat co-extensive with the Consul's Commission.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 26th November last, stating that, with reference to our Report of the 11th November, in which we asked for further information before advising on the question as to the right of a British Consular Officer in the Levant to exercise jurisdiction over British subjects anywhere within the limits of the Consular district assigned to him by his Commission, without reference to the limits of his Berat, he was to transmit to us a further Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet,* giving all the information that the Foreign Office could supply on the points referred to in our Report.

That we have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, bearing date the 12th ultimo, forwarding a Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet on the practice of issuing Consular Exequaturs, and at the same time forwarding a despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Constantinople,† reporting that the Turkish Government were unable to extend Consul-General Blunt's Firman, as requested on the 24th September last.‡

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Question a very serious one.

That the question raised by the refusal of the Turkish Government to grant to a Consular Officer a Berat co-extensive with his Commission is a very serious one, especially in relation to the question submitted to us as to the jurisdiction of such an officer over British subjects in a district which is not within the limits of the Berat.

We gather from the Memorandum of Sir E. Hertslet that there is no precedent, either in Turkey or any other country, for the refusal to recognize a Consul by his Exequatur or Berat, as Consul for the whole of the territory defined in his Commission.

It appears always to have been considered that it was for the sovereign Power commissioning him to determine within what territorial limits he should act as its Representative.

And, as we understand, the Exequatur or Berat has been given only as a sanction to the individual designated by the Commission discharging his functions as Consul in the territory of the Sovereign. It would, therefore, create a serious precedent to admit that a Power, whilst sanctioning the residence of a person as Consul in its country, and his acting there as a Representative of the Sovereign commissioning him, could confine within narrower limits than his Commission the district within which he was to act as such Representative.

And this, whilst a serious matter in every country, would obviously be of even graver moment in a country like Turkey, where we possess exterritorial jurisdiction. For there would be no limit to the extent to which the jurisdiction of the Consular Officer must be thus confined.

Protest should be made.

We think, therefore, that the strongest possible protest should be made against the intention of the Turkish Government, and that Her Majesty's Government should clearly convey to the Porte that no consent can be given to the proposed limitation of the British Consul's Commission.

Course to be adopted in case of refusal of Porte to act upon British representation.

In the event of the Turkish Government refusing to act upon such representation, practical difficulties will probably arise.

We think that if the question of jurisdiction be strictly confined to its application to British subjects, a Consul, although acting in respect of causes arising beyond the limits of the Berat, will have jurisdiction to the full extent of the powers conferred upon him by his Commission.

---

* Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), November 21, 1884. Together with papers referred to the Law Officers in Mr. Lister's letter of 13th September, 1884, viz.:—Lord Dufferin, No. 22, Consular, April 11; ditto, No. 29, Consular, May 1; Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), September 4; ditto, September 5, 1884; Capitulations of 1675 (Confidential No. 86), Protocol July 28, 1868, Treaty No. 510.

† Mr. Wyndham, No. 75, Consular, November 25, 1884.

‡ To Mr. Wyndham, No. 54 Consular, of September 24, 1884.

If, however, in the course of exercising such a jurisdiction extending beyond the limits of the Berat, Turkish interests or persons should in any way be affected, or Turkish assistance required, there will be great difficulty in contending successfully against the opposition of the Turkish authorities, which will doubtless be raised to the action of the British Consuls.

Difficulties must be dealt with as they arise.

With such difficulties it seems impossible to deal until they arise, and we can only suggest that they should, if possible, be anticipated by immediate representations to the Turkish Government, in the sense we have above pointed out.

We have, &c.

(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 159.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 6, 1885.

Turkish titles to land in provinces ceded to Greece.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin,* relative to the question of the recognition of title-deeds to land held by Turkish subjects in the districts ceded to Greece.

Investigation of Greek Tribunals.

That on the 22nd November your Lordship addressed a note to the Turkish Ambassador in accordance with the opinion expressed in our Report of the 5th November, informing his Excellency that, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, disputed questions of title to land between individuals in the ceded provinces must be referred to the Greek Tribunals, and that it was no violation of the Convention of the 24th May, 1881, that disputes should be thus decided; but that if those Tribunals were shown to disregard, or to refuse to recognize, the Firmans, Hodjets, &c., under which properties were held, Her Majesty's Government considered that remonstrances might justly be addressed to the Greek Government on the subject, and that if Her Majesty's Government were to understand that the Greek Tribunals refused to accept Turkish documents of title to land as primâ facie proof of ownership in the same manner as Greek documents of title were received, they were of opinion that that would afford just ground of complaint, and that they would be ready to support any representation which the Porte might make to the Greek Government on the subject.

Turkish objections.

That your Lordship had received the accompanying note in reply from the Turkish Ambassador, stating that the Porte objected to the mode of settlement indicated above, on the ground of the practical difficulties which would arise in its application; and that, relying on the stipulations of the Convention of the 24th May, they again requested the good offices of Her Majesty's Government in order to obtain the recognition by the Greek Government, "purement et simplement," of the title-deeds produced by the inhabitants of the ceded districts, without the holders being compelled to obtain their verification of the Tribunals of the country.

That it appeared to your Lordship that the Greek Government must satisfy itself that the documents of title produced were genuine, and that it was unreasonable to expect that the Greek Government should accept as conclusive proof of title to land, without further inquiry, any "Firman, Hodjet, or Tapou," or other document which a claimant or possessor might produce. That the question appeared to be whether the Porte could adduce any instance in which such documents had been improperly rejected.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the note of Musurus Pasha of the 6th January might properly be answered in the sense of the above observations thereon.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That it is impossible to understand what the exact grievance complained of is, in the absence of particular examples of it.

The Turkish Government contends that the Greek Government ought to recognize purely and simply the titles of property produced by the inhabitants of the ceded territories, "sans les faire homologuer par les Tribunaux du pays." This would seem to imply that the Greek Government refuse to treat as of any avail the documents of title, whether there be a dispute about them or not, until they have been confirmed by the Greek Tribunals.

---

* (A) To Musurus Pasha, November 22; (B) Law Officers, November 5, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 129; (C) Musurus Pasha, January 6, 1885.

1885

Inquiry into genuineness reasonable.

We think the note of Musurus Pasha of the 6th January may properly be answered in the sense of the observations thereon contained in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter.

Should ask for instances of proceedings complained of and for text of refusal to recognize titles.

And we would suggest that the Turkish Government should be invited to give examples of the proceedings of which they complain, and also the text of any Decree or Order of the Greek Government relating to the refusal to acknowledge the documents of title until confirmed by the Greek Tribunals.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 160.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received February 25.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 24, 1885.

My Lord,

Alleged murder at Kerbellah by British-Indian subject.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers* relating to a murder alleged to have been committed at Kerbellah by a British-Indian subject, the victim being also a British-Indian subject, and father-in-law of the accused.

That the depositions and report of the proceedings of the preliminary inquiry held before Her Majesty's Consul-General at Bagdad were inclosed in Mr. Fawcett's despatch No. 22, Judicial, of the 2nd instant.

Case cannot be tried by Consul at Bagdad; but must be by Judge from Constantinople or be sent to Bombay.

That it would be seen that under section 266 of the Levant Order in Council (copy inclosed), the Consular Court at Bagdad was not competent to try capital cases, and that the case must either be sent for trial to Bombay, under section 265, or the Judge or Assistant Judge of the Supreme Court at Constantinople must proceed to Bagdad to try it on the spot, under the provisions of section 34.

That the case appeared to your Lordship to be a grave one, and all the parties being native Indian subjects, it would probably be dealt with more satisfactorily before the Supreme Court of Bombay. That, moreover, the alternative of sending the Judge or Assistant Judge from Constantinople would, as shown by Mr. Fawcett's despatch No. 73, be attended with much inconvenience, expense, and delay; but that, if it should be thought preferable that the trial should take place at Bagdad, Mr. Fawcett would be directed to proceed there at once, or to depute Mr. Tarring, the Assistant Judge, for that purpose.

That our opinion was requested as to the course which should be pursued in that case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No legal objection to trial of case at Bombay if witnesses can be secured there.

That we see no legal objection to the case being sent for trial to Bombay, if that is considered, on grounds of economy, and otherwise, the more expedient course, provided that the presence of the witnesses, including any the prisoner may desire to call, can be secured there.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 161.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 26.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 26, 1885.

My Lord,

Alleged murder at Kerbellah by a British-Indian subject.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 20th instant,† stating that with reference to our Report of the 24th ultimo on the arrangements to be made in regard to the trial of the Kerbellah murder case, he was to inform us that in consequence of a telegram which had been received from Her Majesty's Consul-General at Baghdad, pointing out that the expenses and inconvenience of sending the case to Bombay for trial would be very great, your Lordship telegraphed to Her Majesty's Consul-General at Constantinople, instructing him to proceed to Baghdad, or to send Mr. Tarring, Her Majesty's Assistant Judge, to try the case on the spot. That a telegram had been received from Mr. Tarring, in which he stated that Mr. Fawcett had been dangerously ill, and would not be fit for duty for at least a month, and that consequently the Court would be left without any one in charge were he now to proceed to Baghdad.

Proposed appointment of Consul-General at Baghdad as Acting Assistant Judge,

That in view of the difficulties which had thus arisen, and in order to save further delay, it had been suggested that Mr. Tarring should be appointed Acting Judge at Constantinople during the illness of Mr. Fawcett, and that Consul-General Plowden, though stationed at Baghdad, should be appointed Acting Assistant Judge, so as to qualify him to try the case on the spot. That we were referred to section 6 of the Order in Council of 3rd May, 1882, under which it was proposed that those appointments should be made.

That, judging from the depositions already submitted to us, the case, though a capital one, did not appear to be one of difficulty, nor did it involve capital punishment (Order in Council, 12th December, 1873, section 269). But that, if deemed necessary, a barrister might be sent from Bombay to Baghdad to assist the Consul-General in trying the case.

with barrister to assist him.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the course above proposed could be properly followed, and, if so, whether we considered it necessary, in view of section 269 above referred to, that a barrister should be sent from Bombay to attend the trial.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Objections to proposed course.

That we entertain grave doubts whether the suggested arrangement can be carried out. Section 6 enables an Acting Judge to be appointed in case of the illness of the Judge, with the proviso that, unless the Secretary of State otherwise orders, the Assistant Judge is to be appointed as Acting Judge. But he is neither ill nor absent, and section 6 does not appear in such a case to authorize the appointment of any person as Acting Assistant Judge in his place. We are not aware whether there is any other power which enables the appointment of an Acting or additional Assistant Judge.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Mr Fawcett, No. 73, November 15, 1884; ditto, No. 20, February 2; ditto, No. 22, February 2, 1885; Levant Order in Council. (Confidential No. 2873.)

† Law Officers' Report, February 24, 1885, and the Correspondence referred to therein; Orders in Council of December 12, 1873, and May 3, 1882, in Confidential No. 2354; Consul-General Plowden, Telegraphic, March 4; to Consul-General Fawcett, Telegraphic, March 12; Mr. Tarring, Telegraphic, March 13; ditto, Recorder, No. 30, March 14, 1885.

No. 162.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 26.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 26, 1885.

My Lord,

Pitts v. Fawcett. Expenses of Mr. Fawcett.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter, received from the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury,* reporting that their Lordships, having taken under their consideration the two statements of the expenses of Mr. Fawcett at Constantinople in the case of Pitts v. Fawcett, amounting to (1) Personal expenses on journeys, and abatements of salary, 1,259*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.*; (2) Legal expenses, 2,088*l.* 2*s.* 5*d.*, were not prepared to sanction any payment whatever in respect of the first charge, but, adverting to our Report of the 5th November last, were ready to sanction, in respect of the second statement such payment, not exceeding 2,000*l.*, as might be consistent with our recommendation "that the assistance to be rendered to Mr. Fawcett should be limited to a moderate amount."

That our opinion was requested as to what answer should be returned to the inquiry of the Lords of the Treasury.

That Consul-General Fawcett's Memorandum of the circumstances of the case (dated the 23rd May, 1884), and our Report of the 5th November, were inclosed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should not pay for personal expenses.

That we concur in the view entertained by the Lords of the Treasury, that no payment should be made to Mr. Fawcett in respect of "personal expenses on journeys and abatements of salary."

---

* Treasury, March 5, 1885.

1885

Sum for legal expenses should be taxed.

The sum of 2,088*l.* for legal expenses appears to us to be a far larger amount than might have been expected to have been incurred for the costs in question, and we suggest that the claims by the different solicitors should be subjected to some taxation or revision here.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

No. 163.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 11, 1885.

Claim of Messrs. Shalom and Zagal on Her Majesty's Government on account of the closing of their warehouses, &c., by British Consular authorities.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to a claim brought against Her Majesty's Government by Messrs. Shalom and Zagal.

That it appeared that Messrs. Shalom and Zagal, who were Ottoman subjects, sent a British subject named Gabbay to Manchester, as their agent or partner. That Gabbay died, and at the instance of his family, who alleged that the firm was indebted to him on account of a share in the profits of certain transactions, the late Lieutenant-Colonel Stewart, who was, at the time, Acting British Consul at Aleppo, and who subsequently accompanied General Gordon to Khartoum, caused the Consular seals to be placed on their office and warehouses, although, as was stated by Mr. Henderson, the firm expressed their readiness to satisfy any claims the family of Gabbay might bring against them, and, in fact, did so as soon as the exact amount of the claim was ascertained.

That the seals were affixed in June and remained till Mr. Henderson resumed his duties in August, when he at once removed them and put the firm in possession of their property.

Messrs. Shalom and Zagal now claimed compensation to the amount of 7,000*l.*, on the following grounds:—

1. Injury to their reputation through the action of Colonel Stewart.
2. Damage to their goods from damp.
3. Depreciation in the general value of their goods.
4. Loss on bills of exchange through the bankruptcy of houses by whom they were drawn, which they could not present at maturity, such bankruptcy having taken place after the bills had matured.
5. Injury to their credit in consequence of their being unable to meet their engagements owing to their property being sealed up.
6. Having been compelled to pay interest at 12 per cent. during the time when their property was so sealed up on the debts which they were unable to settle.

That Mr. Henderson, in his No. 7 of the 28th April, estimated the amount of the actual losses of the firm at 3,100*l.*, independently of the damage done to their business, the loss of their profits, interest on unpaid bills matured, and other items.

That our opinion was requested as to the course which should be pursued by Her Majesty's Government in dealing with that claim, and as to the measure of damages which might be claimed by the applicants if they should be considered to have a reasonable case for compensation.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

The closing was illegal, and their claim should be admitted.

That if the facts be as stated by Mr. Henderson, the closing of the business premises of Messrs. Shalom and Zagal, and keeping them closed for two months, was a wholly illegal and unjustifiable act, which caused most serious injury to innocent persons. Under these circumstances, we entertain no doubt that the case is one in which the claim to compensation should be admitted.

It is impossible to say upon the materials before us what that compensation should be, but we think it should be assessed in a liberal spirit, so as to afford, as far as may be, an indemnity, at all events, for the pecuniary losses sustained.

Mr. Henderson should negotiate the amount.

We suggest that it might be left to Mr. Henderson to negotiate the amount, for the claim of 7,000*l.* put forward by Messrs. Shalom and Zagal, viewed in the light of the information afforded by Mr. Henderson's letter, does not appear to evidence any disposition, on their part, to insist on an extravagant or outrageous amount of compensation.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Shalom and Zagal, April 15; ditto, November 1, 1884; Mr. Wyndham, No. 12, Consular, February 24; Shalom and Zagal, March 30; Consul Henderson, No. 7, April 28, 1885.

No. 164.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 12.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 11, 1885.

Coasting trade of Ottoman Empire and passenger traffic in Gulf of Smyrna. Right of British vessels to take part in.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th February, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the

---

* List of Papers.

To Colonel Rose (Constantinople), No. 12, January 17, 1853.
To Sir H. Elliot, No. 80, Commercial, December 23, 1872.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, November 28, 1872; appended to which will be found the extracts from the Treaties between Turkey and foreign Powers bearing on the question. Confidential No. 2575.
Mr. Goschen, No. 27, Commercial, April 18, 1881.
To Mr. Goschen, No. 38, Commercial, April 28, 1881.
Lord Dufferin, No. 65, Commercial, July 17, 1881.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 72, Commercial, July 28, 1881.
Mr. Wyndham, No. 17, Commercial, January 27, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 22 and 52, Commercial, February 10 and March 6, 1883.
Consul Dennis, Nos. 4 and 7, Commercial, June 1 and June 9, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, No. 158, Commercial, June 22, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 96, Commercial, June 29, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 156, 167, and 174, Commercial, June 20, 29, and 30, 1883.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, July 16, 1883: Confidential No. 4793; appended to which will be found the Reports from the Law Officers on the subject of the Ottoman coasting trade.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 122 A, Commercial, July 31, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 226, 227, 247, and 264, Commercial, July 25, July 26, August 10, and August 22, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 154, Commercial, September 4, 1883.
Consul Dennis, No. 10, Commercial, August 31, 1883; ditto (Telegraphic), September 13, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 272, 278, and 281, Commercial, August 30, September 3, and September 5, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 161, Commercial, September 17, 1883.
To Consul Dennis, No. 1, Commercial, September 19, 1883.
To Mr. Wyndham, No. 165, Commercial, September 19, 1883.
Mr. Wyndham, Nos. 304, 309, and 312, Commercial, September 20 and 22, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 176 and 177, Commercial, October 2, 1883.
Consul Dennis, No. 11, Commercial, October 4, 1883.
Lord Dufferin, No. 329, Commercial, October 17, 1883.
Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, October 28, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 204 and 205, Commercial, November 21, 1883
To Consul Dennis, No. 2, Commercial, November 21, 1883.
Lord Dufferin, No. 357, Commercial, December 13, 1883.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 231, Commercial, December 24, 1883.
Lord Dufferin (Telegraphic), March 2, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 27, Commercial, March 3, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 4, 1884; ditto, Nos. 36, 37, 38, and 39, Commercial, February 25, March 1, and March 4, 1884.
Consul Dennis (Telegraphic), March 11, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 46, Commercial, March 7, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 12, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 30, March 12, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 41, 42, and 50, Commercial, March 2, 4, and 11, 1884.
Consul Dennis (Telegraphic), March 17, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 33 and 34, Commercial, March 18, 1884.
Consul Dennis, No. 13, March 11, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 58, Commercial, March 18, 1884; ditto (Telegraphic), March 25, 1884; ditto, No. 51, Commercial, March 12, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 37, Commercial, March 27, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 62, Commercial, March 24, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 41, Commercial, April 1, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 63, 68, and 71, Commercial, March 25 and 31, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, No. 49, Commercial, April 16, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, Nos. 76 and 78, Commercial, April 6 and 10, 1884.
To Lord Dufferin, Nos. 52 and 53, Commercial, April 28, 1884.
To Musurus Pasha, April 29, 1884.
Lord Dufferin, No. 111, Commercial, June 7, 1884.
Musurus Pasha, June 30, 1884; with a Memorandum thereon by Sir E. Hertslet, respecting the case of the British steamers which at one time carried passengers on the Bosphorus.
To Musurus Pasha, July 5, October 3 and 21, 1884.
Law Officers, December 23, 1884. Confidential No. 5121, p. 132.
Musurus Pasha, February 4, 1885.

1885

right of British vessels to participate in the coasting trade of the Ottoman Empire, and more particularly to carry passengers in the Gulf of Smyrna.

That on the receipt of our Report of the 23rd December the draft note to the Ottoman Ambassador was amended in accordance with our suggestions and sent off. That your Lordship had now received his Excellency's reply, under date of the 4th February.

That it appeared to your Lordship that that note was, in the main, a reproduction of arguments already used.

That your Lordship, moreover, failed to see the distinction sought to be established between lines of passenger steamers established in France or Austria, and those established in Turkey, as regarded the right to carry passengers from one Ottoman port to another, nor could your Lordship see the distinction between a "privilège exclusif" and a monopoly.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether the reply of the Turkish Ambassador called for any further remarks in support of the position taken up by your Lordship in the note to Musurus Pasha of the 30th December last, and to which it was a reply.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No new points raised in Turkish reply.

That no substantially new point appears to be raised by the reply of M. Musurus, but it may be well to deal with his several arguments in the order in which they are urged.

Remarks on arguments used.

1. We are unable to appreciate the distinction suggested between the "privilège exclusif," which it is proposed to give to the Ottoman Company, and a monopoly.

2. Although the admission of the Ottoman Government made at the time of the discussion relating to the Chirket-i-Khairie was not embodied in a Treaty, its importance as an admission of the rights of British subjects is not thereby diminished.

The admission was made as the result of a diplomatic controversy in reference to British rights, and was not founded upon any principle limited to a particular locality.

3. Whether the Gulf of Smyrna constitutes a single port like the port of Constantinople is, of course, a question of fact. As far as we can judge from the map, this does not appear to be so, and the fact that the only important place on the gulf is the town of Smyrna at the bottom of it, and that there is no other town upon it of sufficient importance to be considered a port of commerce, does not, we think, tend to show that the entire gulf forms part of the port of Smyrna.

4. It is admitted that the vessels of the Messageries Maritimes and Austrian Lloyd's carry from one Ottoman port to another, and we do not think that any valid distinction can be drawn between such traffic and the traffic of vessels which ply only between Ottoman ports.

5. It is asserted that this case and that of the "Compagnie du Bosphore Chirket-i-Khairie" are identical. It may be well again to point out to the Turkish Government the distinction.

That case supports the contention of Her Majesty's Government, unless it can be established that the Gulf of Smyrna is to be regarded as a single port.

It may deserve investigation whether some part of the voyages performed by Messrs. Joly and Co.'s steamers would not come within the principle conceded in the case of the Bosphorus, even though this may not apply to the whole gulf.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 165.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 12, 1885.

Mrs. Kendall v. Madame Auriol Refusal of Consul-General to grant protection to former;

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the accompanying papers* relative to a complaint made by Elizabeth Kendall against Her Majesty's Consul-General at Bagdad for declining to give her British protection in an action in the Consular Court against Madame Auriol, a French subject.

---

* Mrs. Kendall, January 24; Consul-General Plowden, No. 169, April 1; Consul-General Plowden to Mr. Currie, April 3, 1885; Ottoman Order in Council, December 12, 1873 (Confidential No. 2354).

That the Consul-General stated that Mrs. Kendall had applied to him in the matter on the 13th October last, that he had ascertained that she had failed to take out a single annual registration certificate (as required by the Ottoman Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873) since 1877, and that he had consequently caused her to be informed that he could not entertain her application; that she had subsequently registered herself in November, but that he had explained to her that, though that act of registration would entitle her to his protection from the date when it took place, it would not avail her for a claim, like that against Madame Auriol, which had accrued prior to that date.

as claim accrued prior to her registration as a British subject.

That the Consul-General stated that she had failed to satisfy him that her failure to register arose from ignorance; that she, on the other hand, asserted that she was ignorant of the regulations.

That the question arose whether the Consul-General was justified in limiting his protection to cases arising subsequently to Mrs. Kendall's registration, or whether, under the circumstances, she was entitled to claim his protection in the action against Madame Auriol.

That Mr. Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Consul should have granted her protection.

That we do not think the Consul-General is justified in limiting his protection to cases arising subsequently to Mrs. Kendall's registration, and are of opinion that the Consul-General should give her such protection and assistance as the case may properly call for.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 166.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 21, 1885.

Farrer v. Asche. Jurisdiction of British Consular Court over German subject at Busrah.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the case of Farrar v. Asche, then pending before the British Consular Court at Busrah.

That Mr. Asche was a German subject who had enjoyed full British protection, but who had never taken out a certificate of registration, as required by section 16 of the Levant Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873.

That, when sued in the Consular Court, he objected to the jurisdiction on the ground that he carried on business in partnership with an Ottoman subject, and that the case should be tried by the Native Tribunals.

That the German Ambassador at Constantinople had intervened in the matter, and contended that, although German interests at Busrah might have been placed under British protection, that did not give jurisdiction to the British Consular Court over German subjects.

That, on the other hand, Article 16 of the Order in Council declared that a person failing to register himself "shall not be entitled to be deemed a subject or protected person."

That two questions therefore arose:—

1. Whether the British Consular Court could exercise jurisdiction over a foreigner unless he had accepted British protection with the assent of his Government.

2. Whether, assuming the foreigner to have accepted British protection with the assent of his Government, the Consular Court might exercise jurisdiction in proceedings instituted against him, notwithstanding his failure to take out a certificate of registration under section 16 of the Order in Council.

1885

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and as to the instructions which should be sent to Her Majesty's Consul-General at Constantinople in relation to that case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Cases in which foreigners become amenable to British Consular jurisdiction.

That the mere acceptance of British protection by a foreigner, without the assent of his Government, will not of necessity confer jurisdiction on the British Consular Court; but that if a foreigner has given evidence, by his general course of conduct, of an intention to submit himself to the jurisdiction of such Court, its jurisdiction may be exercised over him, subject to diplomatic objection by his Government.

No person against whom proceedings have been instituted, and who is otherwise amenable thereto, can evade the jurisdiction of the Court on the sole ground that he has neglected to take out a certificate of registration under section 16 of the Order in Council.

Assent of German Government to proceedings against Mr. Asche should be obtained.

German Ambassador at Constantinople should be fully informed of facts of case.

No further proceedings should, in our opinion, be taken against Mr. Asche in the case now pending in the Consular Court at Busrah, without the assent of the German Government.

We understand the matter to be still under the consideration of the German Government, and we recommend that Her Majesty's Consul-General at Constantinople should be instructed to take care that all facts and arguments are laid before the German Ambassador at Constantinople which tend to show that Mr. Asche has, by his general conduct, given evidence of an intention to place himself under the jurisdiction of the British Consular Court at Busrah, and that the German Government ought, under the circumstances, to assent to the exercise of jurisdiction over him by that Court.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent to Law Officers, September 1, 1885.

J. Farrar and Co., July 1; to ditto, July 20; J. Farrar and Co., July 23; Clyde Steam-ship Owners' Association, July 13; Sir W. White (Telegraphic), July 12; Mr. Fawcett, No. 65, July 13; Acting Consul-General Tarring (Telegraphic), August 5; ditto, No. 75, August 11, 1885.

---

No. 167.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received September 22.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 21, 1885.

Status of the Turkish ship "Djanik" of the Mahsoussieh Company

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us correspondence* relating to a question which had arisen as to the status of the Turkish vessel "Djanik" of the Mahsoussieh Company.

with Turkish prisoners on board.

That it would be seen that the vessel in question had twice called at Malta with Turkish prisoners on board, and that if her status be that of a "merchant-ship" within the meaning of the Malta Ordinance No. III of 1882, it would be the duty of the police, should she again carry prisoners when touching at Malta (which was one of the ports of call of the Mahsoussieh Line), to inform a magistrate, in order that the latter might inquire whether any of the prisoners were in custody for a political offence.

That the "Djanik" had, however, claimed the privileges of a Turkish Government vessel, and that the Porte had supported that claim (see note of Musurus Pasha of the 21st August, 1884, and the Earl of Dufferin's despatch No. 287 of the 25th August, 1884).

That the only particulars which it had been possible to obtain respecting the status of the vessels belonging to the Mahsoussieh Company, of which the "Djanik" was one, were stated in the Governor of Malta's despatch No. 188 of the 25th August, 1884 (Colonial Office letter of the 16th September, 1884, Inclosure 2), and in a telegram from Her Majesty's Minister at Constantinople, No. 110 of the 18th ultimo.

That our attention was invited to Sir J. L. Simmons' despatch inclosed in the Colonial Office letter to the Foreign Office of the 14th ultimo, and that our opinion was requested as to whether the status of the vessels of the Company was such as to exempt them from the operation of the Malta Ordinance above mentioned.

That Mr. Currie was to add that the Judgments of the Court of Admiralty and Court of Appeal in the case of the "Parlement Belge" (Law Reports, Probate Division, vol. iv, p. 129, vol. v, p. 197), had some bearing upon that point.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Exempt from operation of the Malta Ordinance of 1882.

That, assuming the facts to be as stated in paragraph 4 of Sir J. L. Simmons' letter of the 25th August, 1884, the status of the vessels of the Mahsoussieh Company is such as to exempt them from the operation of the Malta Ordinance No. III of 1882.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colonial Office, August 15; ditto, August 16; Musurus Pasha, August 21; Colonial Office, August 21; Earl of Dufferin, No. 287, August 28; Colonial Office, September 10, 1884; ditto, August 14; To Sir W. White, No. 74 (Telegraphic), August 17; Sir W. White, No. 110 (Telegraphic), August 18, 1885; Malta Ordinance No. III of 1882.

---

No. 168.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 5, 1885.

Farrer v. Asche. British Consular jurisdiction over a protected foreigner.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Lister's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 1st September, he had the honour to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* relative to the case of Farrer v. Asche, which was then before us.

That Mr. Tarring, the Acting British Judge and Consul-General at Constantinople, having reported in his despatch No. 75, Consular, of the 11th August, that Asche had received British protection in consequence of instructions contained in a Circular from Her Majesty's Embassy at Constantinople, he had been instructed to send home a copy of that Circular, which was inclosed and marked (A).

That it would be seen from the correspondence which had taken place between the Foreign Office and the German Embassy and Her Majesty's Representative at Constantinople in 1883 that, at the request of the German Government, Her Majesty's Consul-General at Bagdad was instructed in the Circular referred to to take charge of the interests of German subjects, there being no German Representative there.

That it was in consequence of those instructions that the Consular Court assumed jurisdiction over Mr. Asche as a "protected person," although he failed to take out a certificate of registration, as required by section 16 of the Levant Order in Council.

But that the German Ambassador at Constantinople apparently considered that such protection only applied to Consular protection as against the local authorities.

With reference to the further papers above referred to, we have the honour to report—

Strong grounds for urging German Government to assent to British Consular jurisdiction over Mr. Asche.

That the request of the German Government for British protection to German subjects at Bagdad, and the compliance of the British Government with such request, afford strong grounds for urging the German Government to assent to the exercise of British Consular jurisdiction over Mr. Asche.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Papers sent to Law Officers, September 21, 1885:—Count Münster, February 28, 1883; translation of above letter; to Count Münster, March 10; to Mr. Wyndham, No. 87, March 10; Mr. Wyndham, No. 174, March 24, 1883; Instructions from Her Majesty's Embassy at Constantinople to Consul at Bagdad to protect German interests (marked A), dated March 24, 1883 (inclosure in Mr. Tarring's despatch No. 80, September 5, 1885).

1885

No. 169.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 30.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 28, 1885.

Murder at Kerbela by British-Indian subjects.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the trial in the Consular Court at Bagdad of three persons for the murder of the Rajah Himmut Bahadur and Hidayat Ali at Kerbela.

That the trial, which was held before Mr. Tarring, Assistant Judge of the Supreme Consular Court, resulted in the conviction of the three prisoners for the murder of Rajah Himmut Bahadur, and of the two prisoners Abdul Ghani and Mehdi Hussein for the murder of Hidayat Ali, the prisoner Abdul Rahim being acquitted on the charge in the latter case.

That sentence of death was recorded against the three prisoners on the first indictment, and against Abdul Ghani and Mehdi Hussein on the second.

That we were referred to section 269 of the Levant Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, which regulated the procedure after sentence in capital cases.

That the notes of evidence and a report on the trial by Mr. Tarring was in Mr. Fawcett's No. 59 of the 23rd June last.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the punishment which should be inflicted, and which was limited by section 268 of the Order.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that the prisoners were all British Indian subjects, and might be sent to Bombay to undergo their sentence of imprisonment under section 309 of the Order.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No reason for mitigation of sentence.

That we have considered the evidence which was adduced at the trial of Abdul Rahim, Abdul Ghani, Mehdi Hussein, and we are unable to perceive any extenuating circumstances which call for a mitigation of the extreme term of imprisonment with hard labour prescribed by section 268 of the Levant Order in Council.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 170.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 11.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 10, 1885.

Coasting trade of the Ottoman Empire and passenger traffic in Gulf of Smyrna.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 30th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the right of British vessels to participate in the coasting trade of the Ottoman Empire, and more particularly to carry passengers in the Gulf of Smyrna.

That in the printed correspondence would be found the last note from the Ottoman Ambassador on the subject, and our particular attention was called to the draft which had been prepared in answer to that note, in accordance with the Reports of our predecessors (pp. 69 and 77 of print).

That the point on which your Lordship was especially desirous of obtaining our opinion was as to the soundness of the distinction attempted to be established between the local traffic in passengers between Turkish ports, and carried on entirely in Turkish waters, and that carried on by vessels plying between Turkey and foreign countries.

That the latter was admitted to be within the Treaty rights of foreigners, as would be seen by the despatch of Aarifi Pasha to Musurus Pasha of the 8th ultimo (copy inclosed).

But that it was insisted by Assim Pasha, in his note to Mr. Goschen of the 5th April, 1881 (print, p. 4), and also by Musurus Pasha, in his letter of the 4th February last (p. 74), that the former traffic (styled by Assim Pasha "petit cabotage") was not within the Treaty rights of any foreign Power, and, as a matter of fact, was never carried on under any foreign flag, except in the case of Messrs. Joly and Co., which gave rise to the present controversy.

For a statement of the Treaty rights of this country, and of other countries in matters of navigation, we were referred by Sir J. Pauncefote to Sir Edward Hertslet's Memorandum dated the 16th July, 1883, and that our opinion was requested on the question submitted in the letter of Sir J. Pauncefote.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No such distinction as made by the Porte can be soundly drawn.

That, in our opinion, no sound distinction can be drawn between the traffic in goods and passengers carried on from one Turkish port to another, by such Companies as the Messageries Maritimes and Austrian Lloyd's, by vessels plying between Turkey and foreign countries, and the traffic in goods and passengers carried on by vessels which ply only between Ottoman ports.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Colonel Rose, No. 56, February 16, 1853.
Sir H. Elliot, No. 75, November 5, 1872.
Queen's Advocate, January 13, 1853.
Memoranda (Sir E. Hertslet), Confidential Nos. 2575 and 4793
Printed Correspondence, Confidential, No.
Musurus Pasha, communicated October 8, 1885.
Draft to Musurus Pasha, marked (A).

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter to Musurus Pasha.

(A.)

M. l'Ambassadeur, Foreign Office, November , 1885.

I HAVE the honour to inform your Excellency that I have carefully considered the arguments contained in your note of the 4th February last in support of the monopoly granted by the Porte to the Hamidieh Company of the passenger traffic in the Gulf of Smyrna, and I regret to have to state that I am quite unable to view the subject in the same light as your Excellency.

I have also to express my regret at the delay which has occurred in replying to your Excellency's note; but it is principally due to the desire of Her Majesty's Government to obtain Reports from British officials in Turkey on certain points.

The question at issue is not a new one. A similar controversy was raised in 1853, and again in 1872, and on various occasions from 1881 to the present time, as to the right of British vessels to engage in the coasting trade of the Ottoman dominions both as regards goods and passengers.

That right, which has been invariably maintained by successive Governments of the Queen, was exercised and enjoyed by British vessels without any objection on the part of the Porte until 1881, when Assim Pasha, in a note to Mr. Goschen of the 5th April of that year, endeavoured to establish a distinction between the coasting trade carried on by foreign vessels exclusively between Turkish ports and that carried on by vessels coming from abroad, such as those of the Messageries Maritimes and the Austrian Lloyd's.

In your Excellency's note of the 4th February the same distinction is again insisted on as an argument against the right claimed by Her Majesty's Government for British vessels to enjoy the privilege in question; and with reference to the Concession granted to the Hamidieh Company, a distinction is attempted to be drawn between a "privilège exclusif" and a "monopoly."

It is further urged that the present case is identical with that of the "Chirket-i-Khairié," which occurred in 1853 with reference to the Bosphorus, and in which your Excellency states that the British claim now contended for was abandoned.

In reply to those arguments I have the honour to state that, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, no valid distinction can be drawn between the traffic in goods and passengers carried on from one Turkish port to another by such Companies

---

* Consul-General Fawcett, No. 59, June 23, 1885; and Ottoman Orders in Council, Confidential No. 2354.

1885

as the Messageries Maritimes and Austrian Lloyd's and the traffic of vessels which ply only between Ottoman ports, that traffic having been carried on for years by foreign vessels of both classes indifferently, and without objection. Nor can they appreciate the distinction suggested between the "privilège exclusif" and a "monopoly."

As regards the "Chirket-i-Khairié" case, I have to observe that far from affording a precedent in favour of the monopoly in question, it supports entirely the contention of Her Majesty's Government, unless it could be established that the Gulf of Smyrna is to be regarded as a single port. But a glance at the map disposes of any such pretension. The Gulf of Smyrna has always been treated as forming part of the coastal waters of Turkey. It has ports with separate custom-houses, and, for the purposes of the coasting trade, no distinction can be admitted between those ports and any other ports of the Turkish dominions open to foreign shipping.

At the time of the discussion of the "Chirket-i-Khairié" case, it was declared by the Porte (as pointed out in Earl Granville's note of the 30th December last) that British vessels had a right to carry goods and passengers from one Turkish port to another in the Danube, the Sea of Marmora, and the Dardanelles, but not in the Bosphorus, because the Bosphorus, it was stated, formed part of the port of Constantinople.

It appears to Her Majesty's Government that this declaration and admission by the Porte, having been made as the result of a diplomatic controversy in reference to the British right now claimed, and not having been founded on any principle limited to a particular locality, must be taken as conclusive of the present question. Her Majesty's Government are ready to abide by the principle laid down in that case, and they are prepared to recognize the validity of the Concession granted to the Hamidieh Company if confined to the real port of Smyrna, whatever the limits of that port may ultimately be settled to be; but so far as it purports to give to the Company a monopoly of the passenger traffic in the Gulf of Smyrna, Her Majesty's Government must continue to protest against the Concession and against any attempt to enforce it.

At the same time, they are quite willing to agree to any reasonable regulations which may be issued for the proper control of the passenger traffic, and for the removal of the complaints which have been made by the Turkish authorities as to the facilities afforded by foreign vessels engaged in it for the escape of offenders.

I have, &c.

---

United States.

No. 171.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received March 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 5, 1885.

Detention of the "Anjer Head" at San Francisco. Claim for indemnit.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 26th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to a claim amounting to 29,979 dol. 67 c. against the United States' Government by way of indemnity for the losses sustained by Mr. John Steward Lapraike, of London, charterer of the British steamer "Anjer Head," and Leong Atai, of Hong Kong, sub-charterer of that steamer, by reason of her detention at San Francisco, in June 1882, by the United States' authorities, under the circumstances set forth in the printed Memorial inclosed in Messrs. Parker, Garrett, and Parker's letter of the 12th June, 1883. That it would be seen from the correspondence that Her Majesty's Minister at Washington was instructed to present that Memorial to the United States' Government for their favourable consideration, but that they had declined to grant the relief sought by the memorialists, for the reasons stated in the Report of the Attorney-General at San Francisco, which was inclosed in Mr. West's despatch No. 80 of the 8th April last. That that document having been sent to the solicitors for the memorialists, they contended that the Report was inaccurate in many important particulars; and it appeared that their legal representative at Washington was now desirous that Her Majesty's Minister at Washington should request the Secretary of the United States' Government to refer the matter to the Court of Claims, pursuant to the provisions of the second section of the Act of Congress of the 3rd March, 1883, a copy of which was inclosed.

---

* List of Papers.

Parker and Co., June 12, 1883.
To Mr. West, No. 41, Commercial, June 26, 1883.
Mr. West, No. 175, July 16, 1883.
To Parker and Co., August 7, 1883.
Mr. West, No. 80, Commercial, April 8, 1884.
To Parker and Co., April 28, 1884.
Parker and Co., May 22, 1884.
Mr. West, No. 37, Commercial, January 30, 1885.

That there was nothing apparently in the Act of Congress requiring the intervention of Her Majesty's Representative for the purpose in question, nor did it appear that any direct application had been unsuccessfully made by the memorialists to the United States' Government.

That with reference to Mr. West's remarks in his despatch No. 37 of the 30th January, as to the risk of establishing an inconvenient precedent, Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of our Report of the 17th May, 1882,* in Tunstall's case, in which we advised that the question of the liability of the United States in that particular case ought not to be left to the determination of the Court of Claims; but that your Lordship presumed that the same considerations did not apply to the present case; and that as the parties themselves desired that it should be adjudicated upon by that Tribunal, there could be no objection to the good offices of Mr. West being extended to them, as desired, for that purpose.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion whether there was any objection to Mr. West being instructed to ask the United States' Government to refer the matter to the Court of Claims, as requested.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No objection to refer matter to Court of Claims.

That we do not see any objection, in the circumstances, to Mr. West being instructed to ask the United States' Government to refer the matter to the Court of Claims, as requested.

Should intimate that it is done at instance of claimants.

But, in view of the considerations pointed out in Mr. West's despatch, we think it desirable that he should intimate that this course is taken at the instance of the claimants.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 172.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received October 5.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 5, 1885.

Marriage at British Legation under 4 Geo. IV, cap. 91.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers† noted in the margin, relating to an application made to Sir L. West, Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, by Mr. W. M. McDowell, solicitor, of Tallulah, Louisiana, on behalf of a British subject (male) who sought to be married, at Her Majesty's Legation in that capital, to an American citizen, under the Act 4 Geo. IV, cap. 91.

---

* Confidential No. 4783, p. 96.

† Sir L. West, No. 257, August 27, 1885; Circular Instruction, Foreign Office, February 10, 1873, No. 1034; Act 4 Geo. IV, c. 91.

1885

That it appeared that there was no precedent for marriages having been performed at Her Majesty's Legation at Washington under that Act, and Sir L. West added that a question might arise as to the validity of a marriage under the Act, if celebrated by a clergyman of the American Episcopal Church, or other American Minister, and not by a clergyman of the Church of England.

Question as to validity of marriage by other than a clergyman of Church of England.

That under those circumstances Sir L. West had requested instructions as to the expediency of establishing a precedent for the marriage of British subjects at Her Majesty's Legation.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of the Foreign Office Circular Instructions in the case of mixed marriages, dated the 10th February, 1873.

That there did not seem to be any reason why those instructions should not be followed by Her Majesty's Representative in the United States as well as in other countries.

But that, as regarded the question whether such marriage would be held invalid in England if solemnized by a "clergyman of the American Episcopal Church or other American minister," Sir Julian Pauncefote was to observe that the Act declared the validity of marriages solemnized at British Embassies or Legations by a "minister of the Church of England."

That your Lordship therefore proposed, with our concurrence, to instruct Sir L. West that he should decline to allow a marriage to be celebrated at Her Majesty's Legation except by a "minister of the Church of England," in conformity with the Act above mentioned, and unless the parties had previously complied with the Marriage Law of the United States as far as it might be possible to do so, and generally to follow the directions contained in the Circular above referred to.

That our opinion was requested as to whether Sir L. West's inquiry might properly be answered in the sense above suggested.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Marriage should be celebrated by clergyman of Church of England.

United States' Law and Foreign Office Circular complied with.

That Sir L. West's inquiry may properly be answered by instructing him to decline to allow a marriage to be celebrated at Her Majesty's Legation except by a minister of the Church of England, in conformity with 4 Geo. IV, cap. 91, and unless the parties have previously complied with the Marriage Law of the United States so far as it may be possible to do so; and generally to follow the directions contained in the Foreign Office Circular of the 10th February, 1873.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 173.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 19.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 19, 1885.

Murder of Mr. J. H. Tunstall in New Mexico.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 4th September last, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers relating to the murder of Mr. J. H. Tunstall, a British subject, on the 18th February, 1878, in Lincoln County, New Mexico, United States.

Claim for compensation.

That the Sheriff of the County and other public officers (said to have been associated with a "ring" of lawless characters) were implicated in the outrage, which was perpetrated in the execution of their public functions, and hence a claim for compensation had been made on the United States' Government on behalf of Mr. Tunstall's representatives.

That the whole correspondence which had passed on that subject was transmitted therewith, and that a résumé of the facts as presented on behalf of Mr. Tunstall's representatives would be found therein.

That the outrage was first brought to the notice of the United States' Government by Her Majesty's Minister at Washington in a note to Mr. Evarts dated the 9th March, 1878, and an official inquiry was set on foot, the Government having, for that purpose, employed a special Agent. (Confidential Print, No. , pp. 2 and 7.)

That the Report of the United States' Attorney-General on the case (with evidence annexed) would be found in Sir E. Thornton's despatch No. 30 of the 3rd February, 1879. (Print, No. , p. 24.)

That our special attention was invited to the following documents:—

1. Opinion of Mr. Calderon Carlisle, the Legal Adviser of the British Legation at Washington, on the Report of the Attorney-General of the United States. (In Sir E. Thornton's No. 24 A of the 26th January, 1880, Print, p. 57.)

2. Report of the Law Officers of the Crown on Mr. Calderon Carlisle's opinion. (April 14, 1880, Print, p. 60.)

3. Claim presented to the United States' Government and Mr. Evarts' reply. (Sir E. Thornton's No. 202 of the 28th June, 1880, and No. 70 of the 7th March, 1881, pp. 62 and 65.)

4. Report of the Law Officers on grounds of rejection of claim by the United States' Government. (9th May, 1881, Print, p. 67.)

5. Opinion of the Earl of Selborne. (21st May, 1881, Print, p. 70.)

6. Instructions thereon to Sir E. Thornton. (To Sir E. Thornton, No. 103 of the 31st May, 1881, Print, p. 71.)

7. Proposal of the United States' Government to refer the matter to the Court of Claims. (In Mr. West's No. 43 of the 31st January, 1882, Print, p. 75.)

8. Explanations as to the constitution of the Court of Claims and the questions which it would be called on to decide. (In Mr. West's No. 158, Print, p. 78.)

9. Report of the Law Officers on the proposal of the United States. (Received 17th May, 1882, Print, p. 79.)

10. Instructions thereon to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington (Sir Lionel West), as approved by the Law Officers. (To Mr. West, No. 182 of the 15th June, 1882, Print, p. 81.)

That in January 1882 Mr. Freylinghuysen addressed a note to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, in which he proposed that, in view of the considerable divergence between Her Majesty's Government and the United States' Government as to the facts and the legal effect of the testimony relating thereto, the case should be referred to the adjudication of the Court of Claims, subject to the approval of Congress.

That that proposal was, by advice of the Law Officers of the Crown, declined by Her Majesty's Government, who objected to the question of the liability of the United States' Government being determined by the Court of Claims.

That no further progress was made in the matter, notwithstanding the repeated representations of Her Majesty's Government.

That in the meantime a change of Government took place in the United States, and, on the 1st June last, Mr. Bayard, who had succeeded Mr. Freylinghuysen as Secretary for Foreign Affairs, addressed a note to Sir L. West,* in which, after reviewing the case at great length, he concluded by stating that the United States' Government "cannot admit any liability as attaching to it in the premises, either directly towards the representatives of the murdered man, or internationally towards Her Majesty's Government demanding on their behalf."

That Mr. Bayard's note was referred to Mr. Calderon Carlisle for his opinion, and that Sir J. Pauncefote invited our attention to his Report thereon.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose:—

1. A short statement of the case of Mr. George in Ireland, which was referred to in Mr. Bayard's note.

2. Volume of "Foreign Relations of United States," referred to in the same note.

3. Volume of opinions of United States' Attorneys-General, referred to in the same note.

4. Printed Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet on "Outrages on Foreigners in British Dominions."

5. Selection from the Reports of the Law Officers of the Crown on cases of outrages by public officers abroad on British subjects.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the contention of the United States' Government that no liability attaches to them in relation to the murder of Mr. Tunstall was well founded, or whether Her Majesty's Government would be justified in continuing to press their claim for compensation, and if so, that we would be good enough to indicate what passages or arguments in Mr. Bayard's note should be taken exception to, and on what grounds.

---

* In Mr. West's No. 206 of the 2nd June 1885, Print, pp. 91–98.

1885

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Claim for compensation should not be pressed further.

That, having regard to all the circumstances of this case, we cannot advise that Her Majesty's Government should continue to press their claim for compensation.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers of Correspondence respecting the Murder of Mr. J. H. Tunstall, on February 18, 1878, in Lincoln County, New Mexico, United States.

(A.) Correspondence concerning the murder of Mr. Tunstall. (Print, Confidential No. .)
(B.) "George Case." Extract from letter from Dublin Castle, September 18, 1882.
(C.) Memorandum respecting outrages on foreigners in British dominions, and on British subjects abroad. (Confidential No. 3279.)
(D.) Reports of Law Officers of the Crown on outrages on British subjects. (1873-1879.)
(E.) Volume of Foreign Relations of the United States, 1881, p. 319.
(F.) Opinions of Attorneys-General of the United States. (1835–42, vol. 3, pp. 252–253. 8vo. 1108.

---

Venezuela.

No. 174.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to Earl Granville.—(Received June 23.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, June 23, 1885.

Claims arising out of the seizure of the "Josephine" and the "Henrietta" by the Venezuelan authorities.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Currie's letter of the 29th April, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the claims arising out of the acts of the Venezuelan authorities in connection with the British vessels "Josephine" and "Henrietta."

---

* List of Papers sent to Law Officers, April 29, 1885:—
1. Colonel Mansfield, No. 42, July 14, 1883.
2. Mr. Anderson, M.P., November 24, 1883.
3. Colonel Mansfield, No. 2, Commercial, January 7, 1884.
4. Ditto, No. 4, Commercial, January 15, 1884.
5. To ditto, No. 11, March 3, 1884.
6. To Colonial Office, March 4, 1884.
7. Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, March 29, 1884.
8. Ditto, No. 26, April 8, 1884.
9. To Colonial Office, May 6, 1884.
10. Colonial Office, May 13, 1884.
11. Colonel Mansfield, No. 28, April 14, 1884.
12. Colonial Office, May 26, 1884.
13. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, May 30, 1884.
14. Colonial Office, August 21, 1884.
15. To ditto, August 28, 1884.
16. Colonial Office, September 2, 1884.
17. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 35, September 5, 1884.
18. Colonel Mansfield, No. 74, October 26, 1884.
19. To Colonial Office, November 27, 1884.
20. Colonial Office, December 8, 1884.
21. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 51, December 22, 1884.
22. Colonel Mansfield, No. 13, February 8, 1885.
23. To Colonial Office, March 13, 1885.
24. Ditto, April 29, 1885.
(A.) Colonel Mansfield, No. 16, March 9, 1885.
(B.) Memorandum (Sir E. Hertslet), April 17, 1885.
Treaty between Great Britain and Colombia, April 18, 1825. Hertslet's Treaties, vol. iii, p. 56.

Are they such as to justify diplomatic intervention, or should they be brought before the Venezuelan Courts?

That the special point upon which our opinion was desired was, whether, in view of the provisions of the Treaty between this country and Colombia of the 18th April, 1825, which was still in force as regarded Venezuela, the present claims were such as would justify diplomatic intervention by the law of nations, or ought, in the first instance, to be brought before the Venezuelan Courts of Justice, and that in drawing our special attention to Colonel Mansfield's despatch No. 16 of the 9th March, and to the Memorandum thereupon by Sir E. Hertslet, Mr. Currie was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion upon the papers transmitted, together with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Diplomatic intervention, when justifiable

That it is not an easy matter to determine in what cases British subjects should be left to their remedy against the Government of any country in the Courts of that country, and in what cases diplomatic intervention is proper, without requiring resort to such Courts in the first instance. But when the action of the officials of any country has been arbitrary and unjust, and there appears to be adequate ground for believing that no sufficient remedy would be afforded by proceedings before the Tribunals, we think that diplomatic intervention is justifiable.

Justifiable in present case; but if judicial proceedings are pending, the claim should be deferred.

And upon a review of all the circumstances, we are of opinion that the present case is within that category. If judicial proceedings are actually pending in the case of one of the vessels, it would probably be better to defer any claim in respect of that vessel until they are concluded, provided there is no unreasonable delay.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HENRY JAMES.
FARRER HERSCHELL.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 175.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 6.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 6, 1885.

Detention of the "Henrietta" on charge of smuggling.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in the Foreign Office letter of the 14th ultimo, in which papers* were forwarded to us relating to the seizure, by the Venezuelan authorities, of the British vessels "Spring Bird," "Josephine," and "Henrietta," and the detention of their crews on charges of smuggling.

That as regarded the two first-named (vessels) the claim in the case of the "Spring Bird" had been abandoned, whilst that of the "Josephine" was still sub judice.

That the case of the "Henrietta" was therefore the only one which called for attention. That a full statement on behalf of the owners of the latter vessel would be found in the letter addressed by Mr. Schœffer to the Colonial Secretary of Trinidad, and its annexes (marked A), a copy of which accompanied Colonel Mansfield's despatch No. 26 of the 8th April, 1884.

That the papers were referred to the Law Officers of the Crown on the 29th April last, and that we should perceive by their Report of the 23rd ultimo (marked B) that their attention was directed only to a question arising under the Treaty of the 18th April, 1825, and not to the merits of the particular claim under consideration.

That our opinion was now invited on the claim of the "Henrietta," and to the defence set up by the Venezuelan Government, and contained in the Venezuelan Minister's (Señor Quenna) reply to it. (Colonel Mansfield's despatch No. 16 of the 9th March, 1885, Inclosure 2, C.)

That the defence appeared to be that there was primâ facie evidence sufficient to

---

* Colonel Mansfield, No. 42, July 14; Mr. Anderson, M.P., November 24, 1883; Colonel Mansfield, No. 2, Commercial, January 7; ditto. No. 4. Commercial, January 15; to ditto, No. 11, March 3; to Colonial Office, March 4; Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, March 29; ditto, No. 26, April 8; to Colonial Office, May 6; Colonial Office, May 13; Colonel Mansfield, No. 28, April 14; Colonial Office, May 26; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, May 30; Colonial Office, August 21; to ditto, August 28; Colonial Office, September 2; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 35, September 5; Colonel Mansfield, No. 74, October 26; to Colonial Office, November 27; Colonial Office, December 8; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 51, December 22, 1884; Colonel Mansfield, No. 13, February 8; to Colonial Office, March 13; ditto, April 29; Colonel Mansfield, No. 16, March 9; Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, April 17, 1885; Treaty between Great Britain and Colombia, 1825, Hertslet's Treaties, vol. iii, p. 56; Law Officers, June 23, 1885.

1885

justify the arrest of the vessel and crew on the charge of smuggling; that the vessel, on her voyage from Maturin to La Guayra, "in charge of her owners," was lost in a storm by the act of God; that there was no unreasonable delay or denial of justice, and that, under those circumstances, no responsibility attached to the Government.

That, according to the statement of the owners of the "Henrietta," the vessel was lost while in charge of Venezuelan officers, having been ordered to proceed, in their custody, from Maturin to La Guayra.

That assuming, however, the latter version of the facts to be correct, it was presumed that the Venezuelan Government would not be liable for the loss of the vessel, provided she was at the time in lawful custody, and that her loss was not attributable to any default on the part of the Venezuelan officers in charge.

Proposed instructions.

That your Lordship would therefore propose, subject to our opinion, to instruct Her Majesty's Representative in the above sense, and to call on him to report how far the reply of the Venezuelan Minister could be controverted as to the facts, and in what respect it could be clearly shown that there had been any irregularity in the legal proceedings, or any delay or denial of justice; and, particularly, whether the vessel, at the time of her loss, was in lawful custody, or was under lawful orders to proceed to La Guayra for the purposes of the judicial trial and inquiry then pending.

That our opinion was requested as to whether instructions, in the above sense, might properly be sent to Her Majesty's Minister, or whether we should advise any other course under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we concur in the general principles expressed by the Law Officers in their Report of the 23rd June, and in their application of those principles to the case of the "Henrietta."

The whole of the documents now laid before us, including the defence now set up by the Venezuelan Government, and contained in the Venezuelan Minister's despatch of the 14th February, 1885, were before the Law Officers on the 29th April.

It does not appear from the allegations of the Venezuelan Minister that any legal proceedings were ever taken against the "Henrietta."

In a suit to which the owner of the "Henrietta" was not a party, a Judge seems to have stated that there were sufficient grounds for initiating a prosecution against the "Henrietta." But it does not appear that any such prosecution was ever initiated, and her arrest was an arbitrary and unjust act.

The statement of the Venezuelan Minister, that the vessel, when lost, was in charge of the owners, is contrary to the evidence, and especially to that of the Collector of Customs at Maturin, as given in the inclosure to Colonel Mansfield's No. 28 of the 14th April, 1884.

There is no doubt that if the "Henrietta" was in lawful custody, and her loss was not attributable to any default on the part of the officers in charge, the Venezuelan Government would not be liable.

But we think the evidence negatives both these assumptions.

Claim should be proceeded with.

We are therefore of opinion that there is no ground for suspending the claim already made on the Venezuelan Government in order to make further inquiry into the facts, and that it would not be desirable to send instructions to Her Majesty's Minister in the sense indicated in the letter of the 14th July, 1885, addressed to us, but that the claim should be proceeded with.

Proposed instructions not desirable.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 176.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 26.)

General Pulgar's rebellion.

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 25, 1885.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 8th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying papers[*] relative to the revolutionary movements directed against Venezuela, and to the recent appearance on the coasts of the Republic of an armed insurgent vessel. That that vessel, which was named the "Justicia Nacional," appeared to have cleared from Antwerp.

Case of the "Justicia Nacional."

That by a Decree of the Venezuelan Government, dated the 30th June last, the vessel was declared a pirate and lawful prize if captured by any ship of whatever nationality.

Venezuelan demands.

That the Venezuelan Minister at this Court had called upon Her Majesty's Government to issue orders by telegraph forbidding the supply of coals or other stores to the said vessel in any British port; and that Señor Guzman Blanco requested them further to order her detention should she come into any such port, or, failing that, her capture on the high seas by Her Majesty's naval forces.

That with reference to this case, our attention was called to the Law Officers' Reports of the 21st July, 1877, and the 2nd March, 1878, relative to the case of the "Huascar," and to the case alluded to by General Guzman Blanco, as having occurred in 1826, which was probably the "Terceira affair," which took place in 1829-30, and of which an account is given in Wheaton by Dana, page 566.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to what action should be taken on the letter of the Venezuelan Minister, and with any general observations which we might have to offer upon the case.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was further to ask whether we were of opinion that the proceedings of the Governor of Trinidad in the matter might be approved.

The "Ambrose Light" a similar case.

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, transmitting a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington,[†] reporting the case of the "Ambrose Light," which was seized as a pirate by a cruiser of the United States, and giving the substance of the Judgment of the United States' District Court

---

[*] List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, August 8, 1885:—

(A.) Inclosure in Colonial Office, August 4, 1885.
(B.) General Blanco, July 31, 1885.
(C.) Law Officers, July 21, 1877 (Confidential No. 4216, p. 44).
(D.) Law Officers, March 5, 1878 (Confidential No. 4280, p. 46).

1. Law Officers, March 30, 1881 (Confidential No. 4637, p. 42).
2. Treasury, October 22, 1884.
3. To Treasury, November 10, 1884.
4. Law Officers, November 5, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, p. 138).
5. Treasury, November 18, 1884.
6. Colonel Mansfield, No. 76, November 14, 1884.
6*. Law Officers, December 17, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, p. 139).
7. To Colonial Office, December 18, 1884.
8. To Treasury, December 27, 1884.
9. Colonial Office, December 27, 1884.
10. Treasury, January 7, 1885.
11. Colonial Office, January 8, 1885.
12. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 2, 1885.
13. Colonial Office, March 17, 1885.
14. Ditto, April 7, 1885.
15. Ditto, April 15, 1885.
16. To General Blanco, April 20, 1885.
17. To Colonel Mansfield. No. 20, 1885
18. Colonial Office, May 16, 1885.
19. To General Blanco, May 23, 1885.
20. To Colonel Mansfield, No. 24, May 23, 1885
21. General Blanco, July 3, 1885.
22. To Colonial Office, July 11, 1885.
23. To General Blanco, July 11, 1885.
24. Mr. Hartmont, July 14, 1885.
25. Colonial Office, July 15, 1885.
26. To Colonial Office, July 21, 1885.
27. To Mr. Hartmont, July 21, 1885.
28. General Blanco, July 21, 1885.
29. To General Blanco, July 22, 1885.
30. To Colonial Office, July 23, 1885.
31. To General Blanco, July 23, 1885
32. To Treasury, July 23, 1885.
33. To Mr. St. John, No. 31, July 24, 1885.
34. Treasury, July 25, 1885
35. Mr. St. John, No. 43, July 3, 1885.
36. To Admiralty, July 30, 1885.
37. To Colonial Office, Immediate, July 30, 1885

[†] Mr. West, No. 243, July 25, 1885.

1885

at New York, which appeared to be in conflict with the views of Her Majesty's Government on the subject. That the question was much discussed during the civil war, and was fully treated in chapter 5 of Mountague Bernard's work on the neutrality of Great Britain during the American War.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose a copy of a Report of the Law Officers of the 23rd June last* bearing on the question, and to request that we would take these further papers into consideration in connection with the case submitted for our opinion in his letter of the 8th instant.

We also have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of two further despatches relative to General Pulgar's revolutionary movements against Venezuela,† which were transmitted to us by Sir Julian Pauncefote on the 20th instant.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, in our opinion, such action as has already been taken by Her Majesty's Government on the letter of the Venezuelan Minister is proper.

Opposed to action against revolutionists except in case of breach of Foreign Enlistment Act.

1. We cannot advise that the persons participating in the expedition should not be allowed to return to Trinidad, Grenada, or other British colony, or to any part of the United Kingdom. But if the Government of any such colony or Her Majesty's Government should receive evidence of any person so returning having been guilty of an offence against the Foreign Enlistment Act, he should be prosecuted for such offence.

Directions for observance of Act will meet second demand.

2. By directing the colonial authorities at Trinidad and Grenada to enforce strictly the Foreign Enlistment Act, Her Majesty's Government has done all that can properly be done to meet the second demand of the Venezuelan Minister.

Should not detain vessels except for piracy or breach of Act.

3. We do not think the steamers belonging to the expedition should be detained unless evidence is adduced that either the offence of piracy or some breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act has been committed.

Approve action of Governor of Trinidad.

We are further of opinion that the proceedings of the Governor of Trinidad, as described in his despatch of the 7th July, 1885, may be approved.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 177.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 27, 1885.

Rebellion under General Pulgar.

Alleged breach of neutrality on part of Great Britain.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 20th instant, stating that with reference to his letters of the 8th‡ and 13th§ August, relating to the complaints of the Venezuelan Minister at this Court against Her Majesty's Government for neglecting the duties of neutrality, and giving aid and countenance to the rebel subjects of his country, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the further correspondence noted in the margin.‖

Proposed reply to Venezuelan Minister.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose the draft of a letter which your Lordship proposed to address to General Guzman Blanco, and to request that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, whether we concurred in its terms, or whether it required any modifications or additions.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve letter denying allegations, with an omission.

That we recommend the omission at the end of the draft of the words "and, as a matter of fact, no such breach has taken place."

In other respects we concur in the terms of the draft letter.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Colombia.

† Colonial Office, August 4, 15, and 17; General Blanco, July 23 and 29 and August 5; to ditto, August 8; Treasury, August 8 and 14; to ditto, August 13; and Mr. St. John, Nos. 48, 49, and 50 of 1885.

‡ For List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, August 8, 1885, see footnote to No. 176, p. 181.

§ Mr. West, No. 243, July 25, 1885; Law Officers, June 23, 1885 (Colombia); "Neutrality of Great Britain during the American War" (by M. Bernard), Chapter V.

‖ Treasury, August 8 and 14; Colonial Office, August 4 and 17; General Guzman Blanco, July 23 and 29, and August 5, 1885.

Annex.

Draft of Despatch from the Marquis of Salisbury to General Guzman Blanco.

M. le Ministre, Foreign Office, August , 1885.

I HAVE had the honour to receive your letters of the 29th ultimo and the 5th instant, in which you bring to the notice of Her Majesty's Government the circumstances under which it is stated that an invasion of Venezuelan territory was recently made under the leadership of General Pulgar.

I need not assure you, M. le Ministre, that Her Majesty's Government have learned with sincere regret that the peace and tranquillity of the Republic have been again disturbed by political agitators.

You are already acquainted, from the communications that have been addressed to you by this Department, that stringent instructions have been repeatedly issued to the responsible British authorities to use their utmost endeavours to prevent any breach by this country of the provisions of the Foreign Enlistment Act.

In the opinion of Her Majesty's Government no ground of complaint has been established against this country in respect of any violation of that Act. The measures that have been taken both in England and in Trinidad, some of which are related in your letter of the 29th July, tend to show the great care that has been taken by the British authorities to prevent any such violation, so far as circumstances permitted of their doing so. No evidence has been produced by the Venezuelan Government which could enable those authorities to proceed according to law against any person for a breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act [and, as a matter of fact, no such breach has taken place].*

I have, &c.

---

No. 178.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received December 8.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 8, 1885.

Seizure and sale of the "Western Star" for entering the port of Ciudad Bolivar without proper papers.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 26th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the papers noted in the list accompanying,† relating to the case of the British vessel "Western Star," which was seized and sold by order of the Venezuelan authorities for having entered the port of Ciudad Bolivar without proper papers.

That a précis of the case was inclosed.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any claim could properly be made, under the circumstances, upon the Government of Venezuela, on behalf of the owner of the "Western Star," and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No claim can be made under the circumstances.

That no claim can properly be made, under the circumstances, upon the Government of Venezuela, on behalf of the alleged owner of the "Western Star."

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Passage in brackets omitted at recommendation of Law Officers.

† Mr. A. St. John, No. 56, August 6; to Colonial Office, August 31; Colonial Office, September 18; to Mr. A. St. John, No. 38, September 24; Colonial Office, November 12, 1885 Précis (marked A).

1886

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. May 1887.

CONFIDENTIAL.

(5440.)

REPORTS

BY THE

LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN.

1886.

1886

LIST OF REPORTS.

(Arranged according to Countries.)

AFRICA.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | Law Officers | Mar. 29, 1886 | Administration of territories in districts of Lower Niger. Draft of Charter to be granted to the National African Company. Approve Charter with alterations introduced to remove ambiguities | 1 |
| 2 | Law Officers | July 19, | National African Company. Proposed change of name to "The Royal Niger Company (Chartered, Limited)." Alteration in the Articles of Association. No objection to proposed changes | 2 |
| 3 | Law Officers | Dec. 13, | Proposed cession of Victoria, Ambas Bay, to Germany. Doubt possibility of justifying cession without sanction of Parliament; but it must now be completed | 3 |

ARGENTINE CONFEDERATION.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 4 | Law Officers | Jan. 8, 1886 | Claim of Mr. Cantlon for losses and injuries caused by men of the National Guard. Approve instructions to Mr. Edwardes. Should lay stress on the admission by the Argentine Government of their responsibility, and the correctness of Mr. Cantlon's story | 4 |
| 5 | Law Officers | May 25, | Arrest and imprisonment or G. H. Johns, of the "Dart," and the detention of that vessel at Rosario. Circumstances of Johns' case justify a claim for compensation, but information as to the detention of the "Dart" too vague to justify, at present, any claim on that account | 5 |
| 6 | Lord Chancellor. (Memorandum) | July 15, | Arrest and imprisonment of G. H. Johns, of the "Dart." No case for claim on Argentine Government | 8 |

CHILE.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 7 | Law Officers | May 12, 1886 | British Claims. Arbitration. May decline to proceed without arrangement as to reception of evidence. As to declining to recognize awards. Opinion on following cases: Fry, Minhinnick, Simpson, Mathison, Lima Railway Company, Scott, Long, Bishop, Noble. Last should be heard. Extension of six months under Article IX of Claims Convention. Principles to govern Commission should be exactly defined | 8 |
| 8 | Law Officers | Aug. 3, | Peruvian bondholders' claims on Chile. Agreement between the bondholders and Messrs. Dreyfus, Brothers, and Co. Approve draft of reply to French Government declining to intervene under the terms of that Agreement, and stating policy of Her Majesty's Government | 16 |

CHINA.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 9 | Law Officers | Jan. 8, 1886 | Opium monopoly at Ningpo. Affords grounds for remonstrance. Information as to effect of compromise on compensation insufficient | 17 |
| 10 | Law Officers | July 31, | Extradition from Hong Kong of Cheung-a-chi and Cheung-ayo refused by Hong Kong authorities. Instructions to Governor of Hong Kong for his guidance in extradition cases. Approve draft to Colonial Office with certain alterations. Extradition of Cheung-ayo was rightly refused | 18 |
| 11 | Law Officers | Oct. 2, | Payment of probate duty on landed property of a British subject, Mr. Jones, at Amoy. Duty wrongly imposed; it should be returned. Agree in opinion of predecessors as to personalty and realty. Do not advise issue of new Order in Council | 20 |

EGYPT.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 12 | Attorney- and Solicitor-General | Jan. 21, 1886 | Illicit importation of grain on coasts of the Red Sea. Opinion as to capture and disposal of dhows and cargoes | 21 |
| 13 | Law Officers | 23, | Illicit importation of grain on the coast of the Red Sea, north of Suakin. Separate opinions of the Law Officers as to issue of a Decree prohibiting; establishment of a blockade of places not under control of Khedive, and seizure of vessels and cargoes by Her Majesty's ships, and rewards for captures | 21 |
| 14 | Law Officers | Mar. 24, | Jurisdiction of British officer charged with administration of port of Zeyla. Questions as to British military occupation, declaration of martial law, and jurisdiction of foreign Consuls. Martial law not justifiable. An Egyptian Civil Governor should be appointed, and British officer invested with civil functions | 24 |
| 15 | Law Officers | 29, | G. Salamone. Imprisoned for coining. May accede to petition for the mitigation of his sentence; but he should be allowed to return to Egypt | 25 |
| 16 | Lord Chancellor. (Memorandum) | Apr. 2, | Widening of the Suez Canal. Agree with M. Treitt as to powers of Company for effecting. Khedive's sanction necessary for required alteration of Statutes | 26 |
| 17 | Law Officers | 28, | Petition for the mitigation of sentence on P. Gameo for coining. No reasons for acceding to petition | 29 |
| 18 | Lord Chancellor. (Memorandum) | May 12, | Enforcement on foreigners of Egyptian Press Law. Precedents in cases of the "Bosphore Égyptien," the "El Ahram," and G. Laffon. Question as to manner of enforcing Egyptian Administrative Order suppressing a foreign journal. Course followed in case of "L'Indépendant," in which the appeal to the Court at Aix against the enforcement of its suppression by the French Consul was dismissed. Principle followed in Japan, and views of United States' Government thereon. The action of the Egyptian Government in case of the "Bosphore Égyptien" contrary to the Judgment of the Court at Aix. British Circular to the Powers, with draft Law, which latter the French Government decline to accept. Lord Chancellor of opinion that, though foreigners are bound by local laws, they are free from Egyptian jurisdiction; their Consuls must, therefore, enforce obedience to such laws. Pointing out proper course for Egyptian Government to pursue | 29 |
| 19 | Law Officers | May 25, | Egyptian tribute on account of Massowah, now occupied by the Italians. Cannot make claim either for reinstatement of the Egyptians by the Porte at that place, or for their relief from payment of a proportion of the tribute; nor can payment of the Zeyla tribute be withheld until the proportion is settled | 33 |

1886

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 20 | Lord Chancellor . (Memorandum) | June 15, 1886 | Claims of the ex-Khedive against the Egyptian Government. They are excluded by the Law of Liquidation. Concurrence of the Powers necessary for their equitable consideration .. .. .. .. .. .. | 34 |
| 21 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 2, | Khedivial Civil List. Arrangements as to, and control of Khedive over. Question as to distribution of the "allocation" of the late mother of Ismaïl Pasha. Views of the Khedive and French Chargé d'Affaires. The Khedive has no right to surrender any portion to the State .. | 35 |
| 22 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 20, | Condemnation of G. Vella for murder of Marie Detray at Alexandria. Full sentence of twenty years' imprisonment should be imposed.. .. .. .. .. | 37 |

FRANCE.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 23 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 18, 1886 | Esparto Grass Concession in Tunis. Extension of Concession not a monopoly within Article IX of Treaty, but a departure from its spirit which justifies a representation .. .. | 38 |
| 24 | Law Officers .. | 29, | Removal of Elsa Roller from jurisdiction of Divorce Court and her detention at Nice. Application of Mr. J. Roller for assistance in her recovery. Cannot interfere. He must seek legal remedies .. .. .. .. | 39 |
| 25 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 28, | Petition for remission of sentence on A. Bahagier for housebreaking and stabbing. No reason at present for mitigation of sentence. Matter may be considered at a later date .. .. .. .. .. .. | 40 |
| 26 | Law Officers .. | 28, | Arrest of a British subject in Tunis, and his removal by the French to Algiers for trial for crime committed in Algeria. Is such action by French in a Protectorate justifiable, and in accordance with British Treaty rights in Tunis? He ought not to have been given up without previous communication. France is bound by the Bey's Treaty obligations. Protests and representations should be made as to French action .. .. .. .. .. .. | 40 |
| 27 | Law Officers .. | May 11, | Protection of submarine cables. Conflict between Treaty and Act as to liability for injuries to cables. Objection to the 100-fathom limit in Act. Action for injuries beyond the territorial jurisdiction would not lie in British Courts without proof of negligence. Proposed modification of Article IV of Treaty, in event of surrender of the 100-fathom limit, too vague. Suggesting amendment .. .. .. | 41 |
| 28 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 13, | Application for a passport, in a third country, by a British subject of double nationality, with a domicile in that third country. Conditions as to alienege and naturalization under which passport may be granted at Paris to Mr. Ehrensperger | 43 |
| 29 | Law Officers .. | 29, | Paolo Lia, British subject. His arrest in Tunis and removal by the French to Algiers for trial for crime committed in Algeria. (1) Views of Her Majesty's Government against his deportation are correct, but correctness of those as to jurisdiction of French Courts depends on position of French subjects. (2) Approve past action of the Government. (3) They should maintain their protest against his deportation, and protest against his trial in Tunis, unless French subjects would be triable under similar circumstances .. | 43 |

GENERAL.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 30 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 26, 1886 | Consular Marriage Warrants. Remain effective within the original district, in spite of promotion of the Consul .. | 46 |

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 31 | Law Officers to Colonial Office | Apr. 21, 1886 | Right to exercise jurisdiction over foreigners in a British Protectorate. Case of Bechuanaland. Language of Chiefs confers jurisdiction, which should, however, obtain the sanction of the civilized Power concerned. The statements of the Chiefs should be embodied in a formal document. Opinion as to establishment of Courts. Sovereignty of Chiefs in above case assumed .. .. .. | 47 |
| 32 | Law Officers .. | 28, | Remarriage of British subjects where no tidings of husband or wife for seven years. Cases of James Briant at Odessa, and of Elizabeth Stewart at Rio. Consul at Odessa may give certificate as to legality required by Russian ecclesiastical authorities; and Consul at Rio may marry Elizabeth Stewart .. .. .. .. .. .. | 48 |
| 33 | Law Officers .. | July 9, | British nationality. Power of naturalized subjects to divest themselves of it. Application of Mr. Hoffnung, appointed Hawaiian Chargé d'Affaires. Proposed reply .. .. | 49 |

GERMANY.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 34 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 3, 1886 | German Embassy at Rome. Jurisdiction of foreign Courts over Embassy houses, the property of foreign States. Exemption of land belonging to a foreign Government from an action. An action would not be maintainable. The claimant should invoke the assistance of his own Government .. .. .. .. .. .. | 51 |

GREECE.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 35 | Law Officers .. | May 13, 1886 | Blockade of Greek coasts. Sending Memorandum for guidance of naval officers. May send copies of it to Her Majesty's Consuls.. .. .. .. .. | 53 |

HAÏTI.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 36 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 28, 1886 | Imprisonment of Mr. Coles for fraud on National Bank of Haïti. Irregularities pointed out justify demand for his release .. .. .. .. .. .. | 54 |
| 37 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 5, | Arrest of Mr. A. C. Crosswell on charge of robbery. Her Majesty's Government justified in supporting claim for illegal imprisonment and delay, and denial of justice. Doubts as to good faith of prosecution.. .. .. | 54 |
| 38 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 10, | Claims of Messrs. Maunder as to: (1) Island of Tortuga; (2) the Momance estate; (3) a distillery. Should refuse to reopen the question of nationality, which is one that cannot properly be referred to arbitration. Her Majesty's Government should treat the claims diplomatically, and have a right to resort to force .. .. .. | 55 |
| 39 | Law Officers .. | 25, | Imprisonment of Mr. Coles on charge of fraud on National Bank of Haïti. In view of circumstances, Her Majesty's Government not justified in supporting claim for compensation .. .. .. .. .. .. | 57 |
| 40 | Law Officers .. | 25, | Claim of Mr. Maxwell Savage for losses caused by revolution. Error in statement of claim. Claim disallowed by Mixed Commission. Mr. C. Hill adverse to it. Should demand immediate investigation of claim, and correction of error .. | 58 |

1886

ITALY.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 41 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 14, 1886 | Contracts for sale of animals. Rules of law which govern them. Amending reply to M. Catalani's question .. | 59 |

MADAGASCAR.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 42 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 28, 1886 | Bank of Madagascar. Proposed establishment of. Need not communicate with the French Government on subject. Proposed reply to Mr. A. Kingdon. Contract not in excess of British Treaty rights, which are not affected by Treaty with France. Will not express opinion as to competence of Malagasy Government to make arrangement .. | 61 |
| 43 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 18, | Wilkinson v. Pickersgill. Vice-Consul had jurisdiction under Order in Council to try Mr. T. Wilkinson. Malagasy Government not justified in expelling him. The general right of expulsion by the Malagasy Government is limited by Treaty of 1865 .. .. .. .. .. | 62 |

MEXICO.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 44 | Law Officers .. | July 12, 1886 | Differential duties. Alleged infraction of the most-favoured-nation Article of the Preliminary Agreement of 6th August, 1884. Concession of Mexican Transatlantic Company, under which they enjoy a remission of 2 per cent. of duties, temporarily transferred to the Spanish Transatlantic Company, who return the 2 per cent. to the shippers. Merchandize shipped on Spanish steamer pays less duty than that conveyed by a British vessel. Action of the Mexican Government is not an infraction of the most-favoured-nation Article. .. .. .. .. | 63 |

MOROCCO.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 45 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 7, 1886 | Enforcement in Morocco of Judgments of British Courts. Cannot be carried out summarily, but only as result of suit in Consular Court at Tangier .. .. .. | 64 |
| 46 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 7, | Claim of R. C. Bowker and Co. to money paid into British Consulate at Mogador on behalf of Mr. Curtis. Death of Mr. Curtis reported, but not proved. The money may only be paid to his legally constituted representative .. .. | 65 |
| 47 | Law Officers .. | 7, | Fees due to Spanish Consular Court by Mr. Meakin. Mr. Meakin liable for their payment. Danger of admitting Spanish coercive jurisdiction over British subjects. The Spanish Consul should sue Meakin in the British Consular Court, as British Consul has otherwise no jurisdiction to enforce payment of such fees .. .. .. | 66 |
| 48 | Law Officers .. | July 9, | Libel on Consular Court at Tangier. As it is doubtful whether a Consular Court is a Court of Record, it is inexpedient for Consul to punish summarily for contempt of Court. Powers of Judge in case of libel on Court. He has no power to send persons to Gibraltar for imprisonment. There are no means of enforcing at Tangier obedience to the Order of the Court of Chancery for payment of money by the absconding fraudulent debtor, Meakin. Officers of Court cannot sell partnership goods in satisfaction of claim against one member of the firm only .. | 67 |

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 49 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 17, 1886 | Libel on Her Majesty's late Minister, Her Majesty's Consul, and Consular Court at Tangier by Mr. Meakin. Consul has power to entertain prosecution against Mr. Meakin, but it will be proper for him to send case to Gibraltar. He should not initiate proceedings till result of Captain Rolleston's proceedings are known. With reference to complaints as to attacks by British journalists on Moorish Government, and the Circular demanding suppression of foreign press, the expulsion of such journalists may be sanctioned, but should defer notification of such sanction till conclusion of proceedings at Gibraltar .. .. .. .. | 68 |

NETHERLANDS.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 50 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 28, 1886 | Assessment of tax on the Santa Barbara estate in Island of Curaçoa. Mr. J. Godden's complaint against rate of. Approve reply declining to interfere .. .. .. | 70 |
| 51 | Law Officers .. | July 9, | Marriage Warrant for Captain Wyndham, Consul for both Dutch and French Guiana. Warrant cannot be issued to him for French Guiana, as he is not resident there, but may be issued to the resident Vice-Consul .. .. .. | 71 |

PERSIA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 52 | Law Officers .. | July 9, 1886 | Bankruptcy of Messrs. Herapit and Aratoon. Claim of Messrs. Sassoon to retain the proceeds of the tobacco cannot be allowed. The proceeds should be sent to the liquidator for distribution amongst the creditors .. .. | 72 |

RUSSIA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 53 | Solicitor-General and Sir J. Deane | May 31, 1886 | Colledge v. Armstrong. No objection to production of papers specified in subpœna served on Mr. A. H. Oakes in case of .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 74 |
| 54 | Solicitor-General and Sir J. Deane | June 5, | Colledge v. Armstrong. Papers may be produced in Court by Mr. Oakes, except two, of which copies may be given without the Foreign Office Minutes thereon .. .. | 74 |

SIAM.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 55 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 4, 1886 | Taxation of British subjects in Chiengmai without sanction of British Consul and of supreme authorities. Proposed tax on sale of fire-arms not a just and reasonable one. Should object to right claimed by Chief of Chiengmai .. .. | 75 |

SPAIN.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 56 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 4, 1886 | Claim for restitution of the hulk "Hans Gude," towed out of Spanish waters, without permission, by the "Hercules." Facts as now stated would, if proved, have warranted order by Vice-Admiralty Court for the restitution of the hulk. Decision of the Court was proper, but notice of protest of Spanish Consul should have been given to it. Should express regret of Her Majesty's Government at occurrence, and at impossibility of restitution .. .. | 77 |

1886

| No. |  | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 57 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 13, 1866 | Use of British territorial waters as base for patrol operations by Spanish man-of-war "Almendarez." Passage of letter of Governor of Jamaica not applicable. Such use of territorial waters irregular and inconvenient .. .. | 78 |

SWITZERLAND.

|  |  |  |  |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 58 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 28, 1886 | Suits for divorce before Swiss Courts by British subjects domiciled in Switzerland. Grant of general authority to Her Majesty's Legation to issue certificates as to their legality not desirable. They should be authorized only when necessary .. .. .. .. .. | 79 |

TRIPOLI.

|  |  |  |  |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 59 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 26, 1886 | Trial of a Maltese, now a fugitive in Tunis, who is guilty of fraud in Tripoli against Messrs. Hough. If it is not under French jurisdiction, the case can be dealt with by the British Consul in Tunis, and the offender be sent for trial to Tripoli; but the French authorities should be communicated with .. .. .. .. .. | 80 |

TURKEY.

|  |  |  |  |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 60 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 8, 1886 | G. Mercieca. No reason for granting his petition for remission of his sentence .. .. .. .. | 81 |
| 61 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 25, | Claims of British subjects on the Porte. Cases of Mr. Cuppa and others. Proposal to apply surplus revenue of Cyprus to payment of such claims cannot be carried out.. .. | 82 |
| 62 | Law Officers .. | May 12, | Claims of British subjects on the Porte. Her Majesty's Government may strictly have right to apply the surplus revenue of Cyprus to their payment, but adhere to former opinion as to expediency of such application .. .. | 83 |

UNITED STATES.

|  |  |  |  |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 63 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 6, 1886 | British subjects of Chinese origin in the United States. Cannot obtain exemption from the "Chinese Restriction Act," as they cannot claim free admission or exemption from the Act under the Treaty of 1815, and as the Act applies to Chinese not subjects of China .. .. .. | 83 |
| 64 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 5, | Fishery question between Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States. (1) Strict interpretation of Article I prohibits purchase of bait, &c., by American fishermen. (2) Convention of 1818 not modified by subsequent legislation. (3) Statutes relating to the case, and their application. As to sufficiency of legislation and measures for enforcing Convention .. .. .. .. | 84 |

VENEZUELA.

|  |  |  |  |  |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 65 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 3, 1886 | Seizures of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine." No excuse for rejection of claim in case of the "Henrietta;" some slight excuse in case of the "Josephine;" but both claims should be pressed .. .. .. .. .. | 87 |
| 66 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 2, | Seizure of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine." Approving proposed instructions to Her Majesty's Minister as to renewal of demand for compensation .. .. .. | 88 |

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

(NAMES AND SUBJECTS.)

1886.

[The figures refer to the numbers of the pages.]

ACT—ARR.

A.

Act, British. Fugitive offenders. Application to Tunis, 80, 81.
„ „ Naturalization, 50.
„ „ Submarine telegraph, 1885, 41, 42.
„ United States. Chinese restriction, 84.
Administration, judicial, by a Company, 1, 2.
Admission, free, of Chinese into United States, 83, 84.
African Company, National. Change in name and Articles of Association, 2.
„ „ Charter, proposed grant of, 1, 2.
„ „ Judicial administration by, 1, 2.
Agents. Responsibility of Government for acts of, 4, 5.
Agreement. Peruvian bondholders and Messrs. Dreyfus. British policy, 16.
„ See also Treaties.
Ahloo-coalia, 68.
Aix. French Appeal Court. Judgment as to Press Law of Egypt, 31, 32.
"Almendarez," 78.
Ambas Bay. British annexation. Proclamation, 3.
„ Cession to Germany, 3.
„ Sale of property by missionaries to Germany, 3.
Amoy. Payment of probate duty on real property, 20.
Animals. Contracts for sale of. British law, 59, 60.
Appeal Court, French. Judgment as to Egyptian Press Law, 31, 32.
Aratoon, 72, 73.
Arbib, Mr., 39.
Arbitration. As to Maunder case, 56.
„ „ Chile claims, 8–15.
„ „ nationality inadmissible, 56.
„ Refusal to proceed with, 10, 11.
„ „ to recognize awards, 11.
„ Rehearing of cases, 12.
„ Remonstrance at decisions, 12.
„ of foreign Consuls as to Press Law in Egypt, 31.
„ Reception of evidence, 9.
Arbitrator. Resignation of, 10, 11.
Arms. Tax on sale of in Siam, 75–77.
Armstrong, Colledge v., 74, 75.
Army. Claim for damages done by troops. See Troops.
Arrangement. Great Britain and Germany as to West Africa, 3.
„ See also Treaty.

ARR—CAN.

Arrest. British subject in Tunis. His removal to Algiers, 40, 41, 43–45.
„ at Rosario of G. H. Johns, 5–8.
„ of British subject for want of respect to official, 7, 8.
„ „ by foreign Government for cruelty on a British ship, 7, 8
Assessment of estate in Curaçoa. Basis of, 70, 71
Assessors in Consular Court, 67.
Awards. Recognition of. Chile claims, 11.

B.

Bahagier, A., 40.
Bait. Purchase by United States' fishermen in Canada, 85–87.
Banishment. British subjects from Madagascar. See Deportation.
Bank. Fraud on Haïtian, 54, 57.
„ Proposed Chartered in Madagascar, 61.
„ Grant of Charter in Madagascar effect of French Treaty, 61.
Bankrupt, absconding fraudulent, at Tangier. Enforcement of order of Court of Chancery, 67, 68.
„ Goods of. Remission to liquidator, 73.
„ „ Claims on settlement of, 73.
Bankruptcy. Herapit and Aratoon, 72, 73.
Bechuanaland. Jurisdiction over foreigners in a British Protectorate, 47, 48.
Benué. Administration of territories on by a Company, 1.
Bishop claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Blockade, proposed, of coast of Red Sea, 22, 23.
„ of ports not under control of Government by Decree, 23.
„ of coasts of Greece by Powers, 53.
„ of Jeremie and Jacmel, 23.
Bondholders, Peruvian. Claims on Chile. Joint action, 16.
„ „ Intervention of British Government, 16, 17.
"Bosphore Égyptien," the, 30–32.
Bowker, R. C. and Co., 65, 66.
Briant, James. Re-marriage of, 49.

C.

Cables, telegraph. See Telegraph.
Canal, Suez. See Suez.
Cantlon, Mr. Patrick, 4, 5.

1886

Capitulations and Press Law. See Press Law.
,, Privileges of British subjects in Tunis under, 44.
Cattle, sale of. See Animals.
Certificate, Consular, as to legality of remarriage of a man, 49.
,, Legality of divorces of British subjects in Switzerland, 79, 80.
Cession of territory without sanction of Parliament, 3.
,, of Victoria, Ambas Bay, to Germany, 3.
Chancery, Court of. See Court.
Charter of National African Company, 1–3.
,, of North Borneo Company, 1.
Cheung-a-chi, 18, 19.
Cheung-ayo, 18, 19.
Chiengmai. Taxation of British subjects at, 75–77.
Chile. Claims arbitration. See Claims.
Chinese of British origin. Admission into the United States, 83, 84.
Chorillos Gas Company. Claims of, 12.
Circular. British. As to Egyptian Press Law, 32.
,, Moorish. On foreign press, 69.
Civil List. Egyptian. Right of Khedive to surrender portion to State, 35–37.
,, ,, Arrangements as to, 35.
,, ,, Control over, 36, 37.
,, ,, Distribution of lapsed share, 36.
Claims. On Argentine Republic. Imprisonment of G. H. Johns without jurisdiction, 5–8.
,, On Argentine Republic. Detention of the "Dart," 5–8.
,, On Argentine Republic. Cantlon's. Losses caused by National Guard,4, 5.
,, On Chile. Arbitration, 8–15.
,, ,, Chorillos Gas Company, 12.
,, ,, Reception of evidence, 9, 10, 11, 14.
,, ,, Recognition of Awards, 11.
,, ,, Views of Arbitrators as to, 12.
,, ,, Peruvian bondholders, 16, 17.
,, ,, Extension for six months under Convention, 12.
,, ,, Principles to govern Commission, 13.
,, ,, British and French joint action, 16, 17.
,, ,, Opinion on individual claims, 11, 12.
,, On Egypt. Ex-Khedive, 34.
,, ,, Ex-Khedive. Concurrence of Powers, 34.
,, On Great Britain. Spanish, for hulk taken out of their waters, 77, 78.
,, On Haïti. Cole's, for imprisonment, 54, 57.
,, ,, Crosswell's, for imprisonment, &c., 54, 55, 57.
,, ,, Messrs. Maunder's, 55, 86.
,, ,, Savage's, losses through revolution, 58, 59.
,, ,, Error in statement of amount, 58, 59.
,, ,, Resort to force in case of, 56.
,, ,, Treated diplomatically, 56.
,, On Morocco. Curtis' claim, 65, 66.
,, On Turkey. Application of Cyprus surplus, 82, 83.
,, ,, Cuppa's claim, 82.
,, On Venezuela. Seizure of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine," 87–91.
,, For damages done by troops, 4, 5, 12, 58.
,, To money paid into a Consulate, 65, 66.
,, See also under Names of Claimants.
Coining. Remission of sentences for, 25, 26, 29.
Coles, Mr., 54, 57.
Colledge, Mr., 74, 75 .
Colony. Cession to foreign Power, 3.
Commission. Mixed. As to claims on Chile. See Claims, Arbitration.

Commission. International. On Egyptian finance, 35–37.
Company. Change of name and Articles of Association, 2.
,, Grant of Charter to, 1–3.
,, Judicial administration by, 1, 2.
Compensation. See Claims.
Concession. Esparto grass in Tunis. Extension of, 38, 39.
Conference. Submarine Cables, 42.
Consular Court. See Court.
,, jurisdiction. See Jurisdiction.
,, See also Consuls.
Consuls. Marriage Warrants. Effect of promotion on, 46.
,, ,, ,, Not to be issued to non-resident, 71.
,, Certificate as to validity of remarriage, 49.
,, Remarriage of deserted husbands or wives, 48, 49.
,, Money paid to, on behalf of a British subject. Claim to, 65, 66.
,, Duties as to local laws, 33.
,, in Egypt. Arbitration by, 31.
,, Vice-. Issue of Marriage Warrants to, 71, 72.
Contempt of Consular Court, 67, 68.
Contract for sale of animals. British law, 59, 60.
,, for establishment of Bank in Madagascar, 61.
Costs due to foreign Consular Court, 66, 67.
Court, Chancery. Enforcement at Tangier of orders of, 64, 65, 67, 68.
,, Consular. British. Enforcement of British Judgment by suits in, 65.
,, ,, ,, Sentences of. Remission, 25, 26, 29, 40, 81.
,, ,, ,, Not a Court of Record, 68.
,, ,, ,, Libel on. Punishment for, 67–69.
,, ,, ,, Contempt of. Punishment on summary application, 67, 68.
,, ,, ,, Libel case. Trial of, 68, 69.
,, ,, ,, Sale of goods by, 68.
,, ,, ,, Death sentence by, 38.
,, ,, ,, Limit of power of punishment without Assessors, 67.
,, ,, Spanish. In Morocco. Coercive jurisdiction over British subjects, 66, 67.
,, ,, Spanish. Fees due by British subject to, 66, 67.
,, Divorce. Removal of child out of jurisdiction of, 39, 40.
,, Vice-Admiralty, at Gibraltar. Case of illegal seizure of hulk, 77, 78.
Courts. British. Actions in, as to submarine cables, 42.
,, ,, Protection of official papers in, 74, 75.
,, French, in Tunis. Jurisdiction of. See Jurisdiction.
,, Local. Jurisdiction over Embassies, 51, 52.
,, ,, ,, Sovereigns, 51, 52.
,, ,, ,, property of foreign Governments, 51, 52.
Crosswell, Mr. A. C., 54, 55, 57.
Crown. Power of the. As to cession of territory, 3.
Cuppa, Mr., 82.
Curaçoa. Assessment of Santa Barbara estate, 70, 71.
Curtis, Mr., 65, 66.
Customs Regulation. Enforcement of Egyptian, by British ships, 22, 23.

Cyprus. Application of surplus revenue to payment of claims, 82, 83.
,, Surplus revenue security for Turkish Debt, 82, 83.

D.

"Dart," the, 5–8.
Death. Necessity of legal representative to claim money in case of, 66.
,, Sentence in Consular Court. Commutation, 38.
Debt. Egyptian. See Liquidation, Law of.
,, Turkish. Cyprus surplus revenue security for, 82, 83.
,, Payment to creditors in absence of proof of death of debtor, 66.
Debtor. Fraudulent absconding, 66–69.
Decree. Proposed, as to grain trade in Red Sea, 22, 23.
,, ,, munitions of war in Red Sea, 22, 23.
,, Of Bey of Tunis, as to Jurisdiction of French Courts, 44.
Deportation of British subjects from Tunis to Algeria for trial, 40, 41, 43–45.
,, ,, from Madagascar, 62, 63.
Derelict vessel ("Hans Gude") illegally taken out of Spanish waters, 77, 78.
Desertion by husband or wife. Remarriage after, 48, 49.
Detrey, Marie. Murder of, 37, 38.
Differential duties. See Duties.
Distillery. Maunder claim on account of, 56.
Divorce Court. Removal of girl from custody of. Interference of Foreign Office, 39, 40.
,, suits in Switzerland. Certificates from British Minister, 79, 80.
"D. J. Adams." Seizure of the, 86.
Dreyfus, Brothers, and Co., Messrs., 16.
Duplessis, M., 38.
Duties, differential. Mexico, 63, 64.
Duty. Probate on real property in China, 20.

E.

Ehrensberger, Mr., 43.
"El Ahram." Newspaper, 30.
Embassy Houses. Jurisdiction of Local Courts, 51, 52.
Esparto grass Concession in Tunis, 38, 39.
Evidence. Admission in support of claims, 9, 10, 11, 14.
,, Views of Arbitrators as to, 12.
Expulsion of British subjects from Morocco, 69.
,, ,, ,, Madagascar, 62, 63.
Extradition of British subjects from Tunis, 41, 44.
,, of Chinese from Hong Kong, 18–20.
,, cases. Instructions to Governor of Hong Kong, 18, 19.

F.

False Imprisonment. See Imprisonment, Claims.
Fees. Due by British subject to foreign Consular Court, 66, 67.
Finances of Egypt. See Liquidation, Law of.
Fire-arms. Tax on sale of, in Siam, 75–77.
Fisheries. Newfoundland. Question with United States, 84–87.
,, Revival of Convention of 1818 as to, 84–87.
,, Convention of 1818. As to enforcement of, 86, 87.
,, Legislation as to, 86.

Fisheries. Canadian. Entry of United States' fishermen into Canadian harbours, &c., 85–87.
Fishing-vessels. Seizure of United States', in Canadian waters, 85–87.
Force. Right of Government to resort to in case of claims, 56.
Foreign relations of Madagascar. French Treaty, 61.
,, Office. Interference on behalf of Divorce Court, 39, 40.
Foreigners in Egypt. Jurisdiction over. As to Press Law, 29–33.
,, ,, Immunities under Capitulations, 30–33.
,, ,, Entry of premises of, 31, 33.
,, Protected territory, jurisdiction over, 24, 41, 44–45, 47, 48.
,, Jurisdiction of National African Company over, 2.
,, See also Jurisdiction.
Fox and Co., 67.
Frauds on Haïtian Bank. Imprisonment for, 54, 57.
Fry claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Fugitive offenders. Trial of in Ottoman dominions, 80.
,, ,, Tunis, 80, 81.
,, ,, Tripoli, 80, 81.

G.

Gameo, P., 29.
Gibraltar. Power of Consul at Tangier to send prisoners to, 67, 68.
,, Cases sent from Morocco for trial, 67, 68, 69.
Godden, Mr. J., 70, 71.
Goods partnership. Sale of, in satisfaction of claim against one partner only, 68.
Grain. Illicit importation on coast of Red Sea, 21–23.

H.

"Hans Gude," 77, 78.
"Henrietta." Seizure of. Claim, 87–91.
,, ,, ,, British instructions, 89–91.
Herapit and Aratoon, 72, 73.
"Hercules," 77.
Hill, Mr. C. L., 58, 59.
Hoffnung, M., 49, 50.
Hough, Messrs., 80.
Hong Kong. Extradition of Chinese. See Extradition.
Hulk. Derelict. See "Hans Gude."

I.

Immigration. Chinese (British subjects) into United States, 83, 84.
Importation. Grain on Red Sea coast, 21–23.
Imprisonment. Demand for release from. See Coles, Crosswell.
,, Claim for compensation for, 5–8.
,, At Gibraltar. Power of Consul at Tangier as to, 67, 68.
,, Release on account of irregularities in trial, 54.
Instructions as to blockade of Greek coasts, 53.
Insurgents. Seizure of vessels belonging to, 21–23.
,, ,, cargoes intended for, 21–23.
Intervention of Her Majesty's Government. As to claims on Chile, 16, 17.
Iradé, Sultan's, of 1881. As to Cyprus surplus, 82, 83.

1886

JAM—LAN.

J.

Jamaica. Violation of territorial waters by Spanish patrol-vessel, 78, 79.
"J. H. Nickson," the, 85.
Johns, G. H., 5–8.
Joint action. British and French, as to claims. Chile, 16, 17.
Jones, Mr., 20.
Journals. Suppression in Egypt. See Press Law, enforcement of.
,, ,, ,, Morocco, 69.
,, Attacks by on Moorish Government, 69.
"Josephine." Claim on account of seizure of, 87–91.
,, Loss of whilst in Venezuelan custody, 88, 91.
,, British instructions as to, 89–91.
Judge. Power of in case of libel on Court, 68.
Judgments of British Courts. Enforcement in Morocco, 64, 65.
Judicial administration on Lower Niger, 1, 2.
Jurisdiction. British. Consul to enforce fees of foreign Court, 67.
,, ,, in Protectorate over foreigners, 47, 48.
,, ,, in Protectorate conferred by Chiefs, 47, 48.
,, ,, Over French subject in Egyptian territory, 24.
,, ,, Consular, in Tunis. Abandonment of, 41.
,, ,, in Cyprus, by Treaty over foreigners, 48.
,, ,, Officer at Zeyla, 24, 25.
,, ,, Vice-Consuls in Madagascar, under Order in Council, 62, 63.
,, French Courts in Tunis in case of offences committed out of the Regency, 40, 41, 43–45, 80, 81.
,, ,, in Tunis over foreigners, 41, 44, 45.
,, Foreign coercive over British subjects, 66, 67.
,, ,, over British vessels on high seas, 6.
,, in territorial waters as to submarine cables, 42.
,, of National African Company over foreigners, 2.
,, over foreigners in Ottoman dominions, 29.
,, ,, ,, in Egypt, 30.
,, Local Courts over Embassy houses, 51, 52.
,, ,, ,, ,, foreign Sovereigns, 52.
,, ,, ,, ,, land belonging to foreign Governments, 52.
Justice. Claim for denial of, 55.

K.

Khedive. Rights and views as to Civil List, 35–37.
,, ,, as to Statutes of Suez Canal, 26–29.
,, and Turkish tribute. See Tribute.
,, the ex-. Claims of. See Claims.
Kwok Asing, 18.

L.

Laffon, Gustave, 30.
Land. Application of local laws to, 71.
,, Belonging to a foreign Government. Jurisdiction of local Tribunals over, 52.
,, Tenure of, in China and Japan, 20.

LAN—MOR.

Landed property. See Property, Real.
Law, Martial. See Martial.
,, Press. See Press.
,, Courts. See Courts.
,, Egyptian, of Liquidation. See Liquidation.
,, Municipal. Blockade by, 23.
,, Local, in Egypt. Foreigners bound by, 33.
,, ,, ,, Consuls bound to enforce, 33.
,, ,, Application to land, 71.
,, British. As to contracts for sale of animals, 59, 60.
Legislation. Effect on British Treaty with United States of 1818, 86.
Lia, Paolo, 43–45.
Libel on Consular Court. Punishment of, 67–69.
,, on Court. Power of Judge in case of, 68.
Lima Railway Company claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
"L'Indépendant," 30, 31.
Liquidation. Egyptian Law of, and ex-Khedive's claims, 34.
Loan. Malagasy, 61.
,, Turkish Guaranteed. Application of Cyprus surplus to, 82.
Lockhead, Mr., 67, 68.
Long claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Lord Chancellor, 8, 26, 33, 34.

M.

Malcolm and Co., Messrs., 72, 73.
Marriage Warrants. Validity of, after Consul's promotion, 46.
,, ,, Cannot be issued to non-resident Consul, 71.
,, ,, May be issued to resident Vice-Consul, 71.
,, re-, of persons when no tidings of husband or wife for seven years, 48, 49.
,, ,, in Russia (Odessa). Consul's certificate as to legality, 49.
,, ,, at Rio. Consul allowed to solemnize, 49.
,, certificates. As to legality of divorce in Switzerland of British subjects, 79, 80.
Martial Law. Declaration at port of Zeyla in absence of Tribunals, 24, 25.
Massowah. Reinstatement of Egyptians by Porte, 33, 34.
,, Acquisition by Italy, 33.
,, Egyptian tribute on account of, 33, 34.
Mathison claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Maunder, Messrs., 55, 56.
Meakin, Mr. (fraudulent bankrupt), 66–69.
Memorandum. Lord Chancellor's, on Egyptian Press Law, 33.
,, Instructions as to blockade of Greek coasts, 53.
,, Lord Chancellor's. Claim of G. H. Johns, of the "Dart," 8.
,, French, as to Chile claims, 11.
,, Lord Chancellor's. Claims of ex-Khedive, 34.
,, Prussian, as to jurisdiction over foreign Embassies and Sovereigns, 51, 52.
Mercieca, G., 81.
Mexican Transatlantic Company, 64.
Minhinnick claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15
Missionary Society, English. Sale of Ambas Bay to Germans, 3.
Momance Estate. Mauuder claim as to, 56.
Monopolies. Abolition of, in Tunis, 38.
Monopoly. Opium at Ningpo, 17, 18.
,, Alleged esparto grass, in Tunis, 38, 39.
"Morocco Times," the, 68.
Morocco. See also Tangier.

MOS—PRE.

Most-favoured-nation Article. Agreement. Great Britain and Mexico. See Treaties.
Munitions of war for insurgents. Seizure of, 22, 23.
Murder. Marie Detrey, by G. Vella, 37, 38.
,, Suspected, at sea. Detention of British vessel in foreign port, 5–8.

N.

National African Company. Change in name and Articles of Association, 2.
,, ,, Charter for, 1, 2.
National Guards. Claim for losses caused by, 4, 5.
,, See also Troops.
Nationality, British. Power of naturalized subjects to divest themselves of it, 49, 50, 51.
,, Arbitration as to inadmissible, 56.
,, Double. Grant of passport to British subject of in third country, 43.
Naturalized British subjects. Power to divest themselves of British nationality, 49–51.
Newspapers. See Journals.
Niger Company, Royal. Change of name to, 2.
,, Lower. Administration of districts of, 1, 2.
Ningpo. Opium monopoly at, 17, 18.
Nitrate certificate holders. Intervention on behalf of, 16.
Noble, James, claim. Chile arbitration, 9–12.

O.

Oakes, Mr. A. H., 74, 75.
Occupation of port of Zeyla by British, 24, 25.
Odessa. Marriage certificate required of Consul at, 49.
Opium. Monopoly at Ningpo, 17, 18.
,, Chinese Regulations as to importation of, 17, 18.
,, Guild. Chinese, 17, 18.
Order in Council. As to landed property in China (proposed), 20.
,, Proposed, as to National African Company, 1, 2.
,, British Consular jurisdiction in Tunis, 41, 44, 45.
,, British Consular jurisdiction in Madagascar, 62.
,, Proposed, in Morocco. Libel, &c., 69.

P.

Papers, Foreign Office. Production in Law Courts, 74, 75.
Parliament. Cession of territory without sanction of, 3.
Partnership goods, sale of. See Goods.
Passport. Grant to British subject of double nationality domiciled abroad, 43.
Patrol. Use of territorial waters by foreigners as base for, 78, 79.
Pearse, 67.
Perry, Bury, and Co., 38.
Personal property in China, 20, 21.
Personalty and realty. Distinction between, 21.
Petition for remission of sentence. G. Mercieca's, 81.
,, ,, G. Salamone's, 25, 26.
,, ,, P. Gameo, 29.
Phillips, S., 6, 7.
Pickersgill, Vice-Consul, 62, 63.
Press, foreign, in Morocco. Suppression of, 69.
,, See also Journals.

PRE—SEN.

Press Law. Enforcement on foreigners in Egypt, 29–33.
,, In Japan, 31.
,, In Egypt. British draft, 32.
,, ,, Decree, &c., regulating, 30.
,, ,, Appeal to French Court against, 30.
,, ,, Views of Powers as to, 30, 31, 32.
,, ,, Arbitration of Consuls as to, 31.
Prizes. Award of rewards for capture of, 21.
Probate Duty. See Duty.
Proclamation. British annexation of Ambas Bay, 3.
Promotion of Consul. Effect on Marriage Warrant, 46.
Property, real and personal, in China, 20, 21.
,, of foreign Sovereigns. Jurisdiction of Courts over, 51, 52.
Protectorate. French, in Tunis. Jurisdiction over foreigners, 41.
,, British, jurisdiction over foreigners in, 47, 48.
,, British, withdrawal without sanction of Parliament, 3.
,, See also Jurisdiction.
Protest. Notice of to Court, 78.

R.

Railway (Lima) Company's claim. Chile arbitration. See Lima Railway Company.
Ransom. Deduction of, from Cyprus surplus, 82.
Real property in China. Duty on, 20, 21.
,, ,, Chinese law as to inheritance, 20.
,, ,, Proposed Order in Council, 20.
Realty and personalty. Distinction between, 21.
Record, Court of. Consular Court not a, 68.
Red Sea. Withdrawal of Egyptians from territory on coast of, 24.
,, Illicit importation of grain on coast of, 21–23.
,, Seizure of vessels of Soudanese insurgents, 21–23.
Regulations. Egyptian Customs, enforced by British ships, 22, 23.
Remarriage. See Marriage.
"Restriction Act" in United States. See Acts.
Revie, Mr., 67, 68.
Revolution. Claim for losses caused by, 58, 59.
Rio de Janeiro. Remarriage of deserted husband, 49.
Rolier, Elsa, 39.
Roller, Mr. Josef, 39.
Rolleston, Captain, 69.
Rome. German Embassy house. Action respecting, 51, 52.
Royal Niger Company. Change of name to, 2.

S.

Salamone, G., 25, 26.
Sale of animals. British law as to contract for, 59, 60.
,, of partnership goods, 68.
,, of arms in Siam. Tax on, 76.
Santa Barbara Estate, Curaçoa. Basis for taxation of, 70, 71.
Sassoon, Messrs., 72, 73.
Savage, Mr. Maxwell, 58, 59.
Scott claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Secretary of State. Interference for enforcing obedience to Court, 39.
Seizure of American fishing-vessels. See Fishing-vessels.
,, of "Henrietta" and "Josephine," 87–91.
Sentences. Remission of, 25, 26, 29, 40, 81.

1886

SIE—TRE.

Siege, state of. See Martial Law.
Simpson's claim. Chile arbitration, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15.
Smith, A. W., and Co., 7.
Smuggling in Egyptian territory. Suppression by British ships, 22, 23.
,, Seizure of vessels for. See "Henrietta" and "Josephine."
Soudan insurrection. Blockade of coast, 22, 23.
,, ,, Proposed Decree prohibiting import of grain, &c., 21–23.
,, ,, Seizure of insurgent vessels and stores, 21–23.
Spanish Transatlantic Company, 64.
Stewart, Elizabeth. Remarriage of, 49.
Stores for insurgents. Seizure of, 21–23.
Submarine cables. See Telegraphs.
Subpœna requiring production of Foreign Office papers, 74, 75.
Suez Canal. Widening of, 26–29.
,, Alteration of Statutes. Khedive's sanction, 26–29.
Suter, Mr., 82.
Synge, Mr., 82.

T.

Tangier. Power of Consul to send persons to Gibraltar for imprisonment. See Gibraltar.
,, Enforcement of order of Court of Chancery, 64, 65, 67, 68.
Tarifa. Illegal seizure of hulk at, 77, 78.
Taxation. British subjects in Siam (Chiengmai), 75–77.
,, Assessment of estate to in Curaçoa, 70, 71.
,, On sale of goods in Siam, 76.
Telegraph cables. Protection of submarine. Act and Treaty, 41–43.
,, ,, 100-fathom limit, 42.
,, Conference, 42.
Territorial waters. Hulk towed out of Spanish, 77, 78.
,, Injuries to telegraph cables outside of. Actions as to, 42.
,, Used by foreigners as base for patrol operations, 78, 79.
Territory. Reinstatement of Egyptians in occupied, 33.
,, Cession of without Parliamentary sanction, 3.
Tortuga Island. Claim of Messrs. Maunder as to, 55, 56.
Treaties. Great Britain and Siam, 75–77.
Treaty. Chile and France. Claims, 9, 13.
,, ,, Germany. Claims, 9, 13.
,, ,, Italy. Claims, 9, 13.
,, France and Tunis, 40–41.
,, Great Britain and Chile. Claims, 9, 10, 12, 13.
,, ,, ,, Germany. Spheres of action in Africa (West Coast), 3.
,, ,, ,, Madagascar. British rights, 61.
,, ,, ,, Madagascar. Expulsion of British subjects, 62, 63.
,, ,, ,, Madagascar. Effect of French Treaty on, 61.
,, ,, ,, Mexico. Most-favoured nation Article. Infraction, 63, 64.
,, ,, ,, Tunis, 40–41.
,, ,, ,, United States of 1818. Revival of, 84–87.
,, ,, ,, United States of 1818. Effect of legislation on, 86.
,, ,, ,, United States of 1818. Laws relating to, 86, 87.

TRE—ZEY.

Treaty. Great Britain and United States of 1818. Enforcement of, 86, 87.
,, ,, ,, United States. Admission of Chinese under, 83, 84.
,, Jurisdiction over foreigners by, 48.
,, Obligations of Bey of Tunis binding on France, 40, 41, 44.
,, Protection of submarine cables, 41, 42.
Treitt, M. Memorandum on widening of Suez Canal, 26–29.
Trial in Haïti. Irregularities in, 54.
,, in Algiers of British subject arrested in Tunis, 40, 41, 43–45.
,, in Tunis of fugitive offender for crime committed in Tripoli, 80, 81.
Tribunals. Martial law in absence of, 24, 25.
Tribute, Egyptian, to Porte. Relief from portion on alienation of territory, 33, 34.
Tripp, Mr., 89.
Troops. Responsibility of Government for acts of, 4, 5.
,, Claims for damage done by, 4, 5, 12, 58.
Tunis. Treaty obligations of binding on France, 41.
,, Arrest of British subject for crime committed in Algeria, 40, 41, 43–45.
,, See also Jurisdiction.

V.

Vella, G., 37, 38.
Vessels. Detention of. Claim for, 5–8.
,, ,, on account of suspected murder, 5–8.
,, ,, during blockade, 53.
,, Captured. Trial of crews, 21.
,, ,, Disposal of as prizes, 21.
,, Seizure of Soudanese insurgent, by Her Majesty's ships, 21–23.
,, ,, Soudanese insurgent. Award of prize-money, 21–23.
,, ,, "Josephine" and "Henrietta," 87–91.
,, ,, in Egyptian waters under Egyptian law, 21.
,, ,, Delay in legal proceedings, 88.
,, ,, for smuggling, 87–91.
,, Loss of, whilst in custody. See "Josephine."
,, Foreign patrol, in British waters, 78, 79.
,, United States', fishing in Canadian waters, 84–87.
,, Sale of hulk towed out of Spanish waters, 77, 78.
Victoria, Ambas Bay. Cession to Germany, 3.
,, ,, Sale of missionary station to Germans, 3.
Viola, Pedro, 9.

W.

War. Damages done by troops during. See Troops.
,, Munitions of, for insurgents. Seizure of, 22, 23.
Warrants, Marriage. See Marriage.
Waters, territorial. See Territorial.
"White Fawn." Seizure of the, 85, 87.
Wilkinson, Mr. T., 62, 63.

Z.

Zeyla. British occupation of. Jurisdiction, 24, 25.
,, Egyptian tribute on account of, 24, 33, 34.
,, ,, evacuation. Reversion to Porte, 24.
,, British jurisdiction over French subject, 24.
,, Acquisition by Great Britain, 33.

---

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. May 1887.

CONFIDENTIAL.

REPORTS BY THE LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN: 1886.

Africa.

No. 1.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 29.)

[In reply to the following Reference, the Law Officers and Sir J. Deane reported as on page 2.]

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane.

Gentlemen,

Foreign Office, March 13, 1886.

Administration of districts of the Lower Niger.
Draft of Charter for National African Company.

I HAVE the honour, by direction of the Earl of Rosebery, to transmit to you the accompanying draft of a Royal Charter by which it is proposed to confer on the National African Company (Limited) authority to undertake the administration of certain territories in the districts of the Lower Niger and the Benué, in West Africa, under powers vested in them by the native Chiefs, and under the supervision and control of Her Majesty's Government.

The draft Charter has been settled by Mr. R. S. Wright, and it follows generally the precedent of the North Borneo Charter, of which a copy is annexed.

Article 14 has been inserted to carry out the arrangements between the British and German Governments contained in the correspondence laid before Parliament in June last ("Africa No. 6, 1885").

It is intended that the judicial administration should be carried on under the West African Order, 1885, and, therefore, by officers holding direct authority from the Crown. On this point I am to refer you to the obligations undertaken by Her Majesty's Government under Article XXX of the General Act of the Berlin Conference, and to the draft of a Supplemental Order in Council which has been prepared by Mr. Wright to enable the judicial authorities in the Niger districts to carry them out.

It is of importance from the political point of view that the Charter should now be issued with the least possible delay, and it has already been submitted to and approved by the Lord Chancellor; but, before taking the further steps requisite, Lord Rosebery would be glad to be informed whether it also meets with your approval.

The various papers referred to are herewith inclosed.

I am, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

List of Papers.

1. Draft Charter. For Charter as granted to the National African Company, July 28, 1886, see Confidential No. 5269*.
2 West African Order in Council, March 26, 1885. Confidential No. 5094*.
3. Parliamentary Paper, "Africa No. 6 (1885)." No. 2979.
4. General Act of the Berlin Conference, "Africa No. 4 (1885)." No. 2951.
5. British North Borneo Company's Charter, November 7, 1881. Confidential No. 4528.

1886

Report.

Approve draft Charter with alterations introduced to remove ambiguity.

That we venture to suggest to your Lordship that, in order to remove the ambiguity in Lord Granville's despatch of the 16th May, 1885, and in Count Münster's reply of the 2nd June, 1885, but which was explained in Lord Granville's despatches of the 10th June, 1885, and the 16th June, 1885, some such words should be inserted in Article 14 of the draft Charter, between the words "markets" and "subjects," as the following, viz.: "but foreigners alike with British subjects will be." In other respects we approve the draft Charter.

(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
H. DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

Royal Courts of Justice, March 29, 1886.

---

No. 2.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 19.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 19, 1886.

National African Company. Proposed change in name and Articles of Association

WE are honoured with Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the Charter which has been issued to the National African Company, conferring powers on them in the Niger district.

That the Directors now proposed to change the name of the Company to that of "The Royal Niger Company (Chartered and Limited)."

That they proposed also to make certain alterations in the Articles of Association, which were specified in the paper marked "D," being a notice to the shareholders of the intended changes.

That they had requested the sanction of the Secretary of State, which was required by the penultimate paragraph of the last clause of the Charter, entitled "General Provisions, &c."

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe, with reference to the new title which the Company desired to assume, namely, "The Royal Niger Company (Chartered and Limited)," that the Charter granted to the Company was not a Charter of Incorporation.

That the Company retained its original status under the Companies' Acts, and that the Charter merely conferred on it authority to accept the benefit of the cessions from the native Kings, Chiefs, and peoples therein referred to subject to certain conditions and restrictions.

That the proposed new title seemed to imply that the Company was a Chartered Company in the sense of a Company incorporated by Royal Charter.

That if we should think that there was any weight in that objection, your Lordship would suggest to the Company that the words "Chartered and" be omitted from the new title.

That before sanctioning the other change proposed in the Articles of Association, your Lordship would be gald to be favoured with our opinion as to whether they might properly be approved by the Secretary of State.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that the matter presses, and that it was important that an answer should be returned to the Company with the least possible delay.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No objection to proposed changes.

That (1) we do not think that the proposed new name of the Company (although not very happily chosen) is so likely to mislead as to induce us to advise your Lordship not to approve of it; (2) we are of opinion that the proposed changes in the Articles may be properly approved by your Lordship.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

(A.) Draft of Charter as issued. See Confidential No. 5269*.
(B.) Memorandum of Articles of Association of the National African Company (Limited).
(C.) Letter from National African Company of July 13, 1886.
(D.) Notice to Shareholders of changes in the Articles of Association (Inclosure in C).

---

No. 1*.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Proposed Charter for the National African Company.

I HAVE considered the draft Charter of the National African Company in conference with Mr. Wright, by whom it was finally drafted in its present form.

Position of Company.

There is no doubt that considerable difficulty is created by the fact that the Charter deals with an existing Corporation, and does not create a new one. The consequence is that the rights which the first clause professes to confer are not really conferred by it, but are possessed by the existing Company, and the only penalty for the violation of the restrictions imposed being a revocation of the Charter, that revocation would not, I think, have any legal effect.

Differs from that of North Borneo Company.

The Corporation would still exist if the Charter were revoked, and would possess substantially all its property and rights. In this respect the Charter differs from that granted to the North Borneo Company, and I cannot find any precedent for it.

But I am informed, and can well imagine it to be so, that practically the position of the Company would be likely to be so much affected by a revocation of the Charter that this may afford a sufficient inducement to submit to the restrictions and comply with the obligations imposed.

Best course to approve Charter with alterations.

I think, therefore, that the Charter may be approved. But it will be expedient, in my opinion, to make the slight alterations which I have suggested in clauses 1 and 2, and the consequential alteration in clause 4.

The situation is an awkward one, but, having regard to the position of the Company, and to our position under the Berlin arrangement, this is probably the best thing that can be done.

(Signed) HERSCHELL.

May 20, 1886.

No. 3.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received December 14.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, December 13, 1886.

Proposed cession of Victoria, Ambas Bay, to Germany.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 8th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the proposed cession to Germany of the British possession known as Victoria, Ambas Bay.

That by the arrangement which was concluded in 1885 between Great Britain and Germany for separating and defining their mutual spheres of action in certain parts of Africa, it was agreed (amongst other things) that both Powers should withdraw any Protectorates which might have (? been) already established within the limits to be assigned by either Power to the other. That a reservation was, however, specially made with respect to the "Settlement of Victoria, Ambas Bay," which was to continue to be a "British possession," unless and until the German Government should come to an understanding with the English Missionary Society, who had settled there, in regard to the sale of their property, in which event it was stated by Her Majesty's Government that any difficulty as to the cession of Ambas Bay would disappear, and that they would agree to that Settlement also being included in the territories to be placed, in accordance with the arrangements, under German protection.

That the Missionary Society having sold their property at Ambas Bay, Her Majesty's Government were consequently desirous of carrying out their engagements towards Germany in respect of that Settlement.

That that engagement was not, however, made conditional upon Her Majesty's Government first obtaining Parliamentary sanction to the withdrawal of the British Protectorate over Ambas Bay, and that the question arose whether it was within the competence of the Crown to make the contemplated cession without the previous assent of Parliament.

That such a cession would seem to be properly described as part of a scheme of territorial partition or exchange, and that in view of the Report of the 3rd June, 1884, of the then Law Officers of the Crown, it was not unimportant also to observe that Ambas Bay was not subject to Parliamentary Government, nor possessed of a representative Legislature.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question submitted in his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

We were also honoured with Mr. Lister's letter of the 8th instant, in reply to a letter from this Department dated the 25th November, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a copy of an extract from a despatch dated the 16th May, 1884,* in which Lord Granville instructed Consul Hewett to annex Ambas Bay in Her Majesty's name, and also a copy of a despatch from Consul Hewett dated the 28th July, 1884,† in which he informed Lord Granville that he had annexed the territory in question, and in which he inclosed the Proclamation which he had issued to that effect.

That Mr. Lister was to add that no notice of the above annexation had appeared in the official Gazette.

We have taken the papers into our consideration, and, in obedience to your Lordship's commands, have the honour to report—

Doubt possibility of justifying cession without sanction of Parliament; but must now carry it out.

That it is not necessary to enter into the general question whether the Crown can cede any part of British territory without the authority of Parliament; but we entertain very grave doubt whether the action of the late Government in concluding the Arrangement in question with Germany in 1885, without making that Arrangement subject to the approval of Parliament, can be justified. Having regard, however, to the circumstances now stated, and to the fact that, in pursuance of that Arrangement, the British subjects settled at Ambas Bay have now sold their property and withdrawn from that territory, we think that the Government should not refuse the

---

* "Africa No. 1 (1885)," p. 16, Parliamentary No. 2928.

† "Africa No. 1 (1885)," p. 29, Parliamentary No. 2928.

1886

formal step needed to complete the cession, which was practically effected by the late Government.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

- Law Officers' Report (to Colonial Office) on Cession of Gambia, July 13, 1870 (Confidential No. 3660, p. 36*).
- Law Officers' Report on Exchange of Territory in India, June 3, 1884 (Confidential No. 5121, pp. 38–40).
- Arrangement between Great Britain and Germany, concerning their respective Spheres of Influence in parts of Africa, "Africa No. 6 (1885)," Parliamentary No. 2979.
- Law Officers' Report on Conquest of Upper Burmah, December 18, 1885 (Confidential No. 5246, p. 22.)
- Memorandum from Colonial Office, March 6, and May 6, 1875.

---

Argentine Republic.

No. 4.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 8, 1886.

Claim of Mr. Cantlon for losses and injuries caused by men of National Guard.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 15th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Buenos Ayres, relating to Cantlon's claim against the Argentine Government. That in that despatch was a translation of the reply of the Argentine Minister for Foreign Affairs to a note which, in accordance with the terms of the Law Officers' Report of the 13th June last, Mr. Edwardes had been instructed to address to his Excellency in regard to the case.

That the draft of a further instruction was transmitted which your Lordship proposed to address to Mr. Edwardes in the matter, and that our opinion was requested as to whether it was right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed instructions to Mr. Edwardes.

That the instruction to Mr. Edwardes is right and proper for the prosecution of the claim made by the advice of our predecessors upon the Argentine Government.

Should lay stress on admission of responsibility by Argentine Government.

We think stress might also be laid upon the consideration that, in March 1885, when the Report of the 28th December, 1880, had been for several years in the possession of the Argentine Government, they were prepared to admit that Mr. Cantlon's story was substantially correct, and to offer him reasonable compensation upon that assumption, and that from an admission and concession of that kind the Argentine Government should not afterwards recede.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, December 15, 1885.

(A.) Mr. Monson, No. 95, November 27, 1884.
(B.) Mr. Cantlon, December 8, 1884.
(C.) To Mr. Cantlon, January 19, 1885.
(D.) To Mr. Monson, No. 1, January 19, 1885.
(E.) Mr. Monson, No. 20, March 2, 1885
(F.) Mr. Monson, No. 25, March 16, 1885.
(G.) (1.) Mr. Monson, No. 33, March 31, 1885.
    (2.) Mr. Monson, No. 38, April 16, 1885.
(H.) Treaty between Great Britain and the Provinces of Rio de la Plata of February 2, 1825 (Treaty No 211).
(I.) To Mr West, No. 14, April 10, 1877 (in Argentine Confederation vol., January to December 1877).
(K.) Memorandum respecting Outrages on Foreigners in British Dominions and on British Subjects Abroad (Confidential No. 3279)
(L.) Law Officers, September 12, 1876 (Confidential No. 4028, p. 45).
(M.) Law Officers, August 26, 1879 (Confidential No. 4328, p. 30).
(N.) To Mr. Corbett, No 5, 1869 (in Guatemala vol., 1869).
(O.) Mr. Graham, No. 79, 1879 (in Guatemala vol., 1879).
(P.) (1.) Mr. Graham, No. 87, 1879 (in Guatemala vol., 1879).
    (2.) To Mr. Graham, No. 7, 1880 (in Guatemala vol., 1880).
(Q.) Mr. Howard, No. 161, 1883.
(R.) To Mr. Bennett, No. 6, 1884.
(S.) Mr. Harriss-Gastrell, No. 91, 1884.
(T.) Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, Octobor 21, 1884.
(U.) To Mr. Harris-Gastrell, No. 53, 1884.
(V.) Memorandum by Mr. Oakes, December 6, 1884 (in Confidential No. 5071).

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Mr. Edwardes.

Sir, Foreign Office, , 188 .

I HAVE received your despatch No. 84 of the 28th October, together with its inclosures, in regard to the claim of Patrick Cantlon against the Argentine Government.

I have to state to you, in reply, that Her Majesty's Government cannot admit the contention advanced by the Argentine Minister for Foreign Affairs, in his letter to you of the 16th October, that a Government incurs no responsibility for the wrongful acts of its agents which it has not authorized.

Her Majesty's Government adhere to the opinion that the Argentine Government are, according to international law, responsible in this case for the wrongful acts of the National Guards, though committed without their authority; and seeing that it is practically impossible for Mr. Cantlon to bring the offenders to justice, and that he is without redress, Her Majesty's Government consider the refusal of the Argentine Government to grant him compensation unjust and unfriendly.

You will address a representation to Dr. Ortiz in the above sense, and at the same time remind his Excellency that in March last, when the Report of the 28th December, 1880, had been for several years in the possession of the Argentine Government, the latter were prepared to admit that Mr. Cantlon's story was substantially correct, and to offer him reasonable compensation upon that assumption, and you will add that Her Majesty's Government, while regretting the difference of opinion which has arisen, trust that the Argentine Government will, on further consideration, give effect to that view.

I have, &c.

---

No. 5.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received May 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 25, 1886.

Arrest and imprisonment of G. H. Johns, of the "Dart," at Rosario.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 16th March, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to questions arising out of the action of the Argentine authorities in seizing the British brigantine "Dart," at Rosario, on the 19th December, 1883, and imprisoning George Howard Johns, the mate of that vessel.

1886

That the facts relating to that case were as follows:—

It appeared that on the 17th December, 1883, the "Dart" arrived at Rosario, after passing a considerable time at Buenos Ayres, spent in discharging a portion of her cargo.

That it might be mentioned incidentally as having some bearing on a charge subsequently made against the mate of that vessel, that, on her outward voyage from England* she lost a man overboard, that fact being duly entered in her log.

That the day after she anchored at Rosario (18th December, 1883) her captain and mate were summoned to appear at the Port Captain's office, where an investigation was held, which they could not fully understand, but from which they gathered that they were accused of ill-treating the crew. That they were not detained, but on the following day the crew were taken off in the Port Captain's boat from the vessel, to which they did not return, their effects being subsequently carried on shore by the same means.

That on the 29th December the mate (G. H. Johns) was induced to go ashore in the same boat, under the belief that the British Vice-Consul had sent for him, and as soon as he landed he was put in prison.

That the captain of the vessel (S. Phillips) was in the meanwhile called upon to pay off his men, which he declined to do in view of what had taken place.

That finally, on the 19th January, the Argentine authorities issued an order for the detention of the vessel.

That those proceedings were at once notified by the British Consular authorities at Buenos Ayres and Rosario to Mr. Barrington, and that Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires represented them without delay to Dr. Ortiz, the Argentine Minister for Foreign Affairs.† That on the 15th January Dr. Ortiz notified to Mr. Barrington that the mate had been arrested on suspicion of having committed a murder on the high seas.‡ That on the 19th of the same month the Argentine Minister wrote that the charge which brought about the man's arrest arose from an act of disrespect shown to an Argentine Custom-house official.§

That on the 29th January Mr. Mallet, Acting British Vice-Consul at Rosario, reported the arrival of Her Majesty's ship "Wrangler" at that port, and from a letter received from the Admiralty on the 24th March (Admiralty, 22nd March), it appeared that Commander Arbuthnot, having held a Naval Court on the questions at issue between the captain and crew of the "Dart," was successful in effecting the release of that vessel and the liberation of her mate, subject to Mr. Haynes, the advocate for the defence, becoming responsible for any fines which might eventually be imposed.

That on the 24th March a despatch‖ was addressed to Mr. Barrington, in which Her Majesty's Government approved his communication with the Argentine Government on that question, and intimated that the whole of the correspondence had been referred to the Board of Trade for opinion.

Claim for compensation to Johns.

That that Department replied on the 28th April, and after commenting strongly on the various questions of jurisdiction at which Her Majesty's Government and the Argentine authorities were at issue, went on to state, with regard to Johns' imprisonment, that there appeared, "on the whole view of this case, to be reasons not only for serious remonstrance with the Argentine Government, but for a claim for pecuniary compensation for the serious suffering and indignities which the unwarrantable action of the authorities have caused to Mr. Johns."

That a despatch was thereupon addressed to Mr. Monson, who, since the commencement of that case had been appointed Her Majesty's Minister at Buenos Ayres, furnishing him with a copy of the Board of Trade letter, and instructing him to address a communication in the sense of it to the Argentine Government, reserving, however, the claim of compensation on Mr. Johns' behalf until receipt of their reply.

That on the 16th July¶ Mr. Monson inclosed a copy of the note addressed by him to the Argentine Government, and on the 31st Dr. Ortiz merely acknowledged his communication, promising a further answer on the subject.

That on the 29th November Her Majesty's Minister reported that he was still without a reply to his representation.

That, in the meanwhile (25th October), the Colonial Office forwarded to the Foreign Office a Memorial from Mr. Johns, the mate of the "Dart," setting forward a case against the Argentine Government claiming 20,000 dollars as damages for false imprisonment, and praying for the intervention of Her Majesty's Government on his behalf.

---

* ? New York.

† Inclosures in Mr. Barrington, No. 2, January 23, 1884.

‡ Ibid., Inclosure 14.

§ Inclosure 44.

‖ No. 3, Consular.

¶ No. 9, Consular.

That as no action could be taken with regard to that claim before the answer of the Argentine Government to Her Majesty's Government's representation was received, Mr. Monson was instructed on the 4th November* to again bring the matter to Dr. Ortiz' notice.

That on the 16th December† Mr. Monson forwarded a copy of the reply of the Argentine Government, dated the 13th December, from which it appeared that the explanation given by the Federal Judge at Rosario as to the origin of the proceedings in relation to the "Dart" was that they were initiated in consequence of a Report addressed to the maritime authorities at Rosario by a Custom-house officer, who accompanied the vessel on her voyage from Buenos Ayres to that port. That that officer's Report described the acts of cruelty which he had witnessed on board during the passage up the river, and the want of respect shown to himself and an official of the Government, whom the master and mate of the vessel had threatened to throw overboard, treating him in a manner to make him feel that his life was in danger.

That the subsequent proceedings Dr. Ortiz justified upon the Report of the Federal Judge as having been in entire consonance with the laws of the country, and as having been pressed through with a rapidity quite exceptional, and, as the Judge asserted, rendered all the more difficult by the summer heats.

That the note further stated that, in the opinion of the Argentine authorities, the only explanation that could be given of the fact that the complaints made by Her Majesty's Government should have been thought by them to be well founded was that the information which had been supplied to them was "isolated, extra-judicial, and incomplete." That we were referred to the translations of Dr. Ortiz' note and of the Report of the Argentine Judge, which formed Inclosures 6 and 8 in Mr. Monson's despatch No. 19, Consular, of the 16th December, 1884, and which contained a vindication of the proceedings of the Argentine authorities in that case, and their refusal to admit that there existed any ground of complaint on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

Claim by owners for detention of the "Dart."

That a further communication had been received from the Colonial Office,‡ forwarding a claim from A. W. Smith and Co., the owners of the "Dart," for 1,270 dol. 70 c., on account of losses which they alleged they had suffered by the detention of their vessel at Rosario. That that letter was, in due course, forwarded to Mr. Monson, and he answered on the 6th July that the aspect of the case at Buenos Ayres remained unchanged, the Argentine authorities throwing the whole blame of the occurrence on the shoulders of the captain and mate of the "Dart."

That Mr. Monson further suggested that, if it was intended to push the claims for compensation, sworn statements should be obtained from the officers of the English vessel denying the accusation brought against them with regard to their treatment of the Custom-house official, as that charge, if not disproved, would, in Mr. Monson's opinion, be regarded by the Argentine authorities as a complete answer to any claim for damages which might be put forward.

That the Colonial Office were accordingly applied to, and that the requisite statutory declarations of Messrs. Phillips and Johns were contained in the letter from that Department of the 12th January last.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, in view of the explanations given by the Argentine Judge in his Report above referred to, and the absence of precise and reliable particulars respecting the acts of injustice or delay of justice complained of, the circumstances of the case were such as to justify Her Majesty's Government in making a claim on the Argentine Government for compensation to the owners of the "Dart" and to G. H. Johns, the mate of that vessel.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Johns arrested and imprisoned without due cause.

That we think that the fair inference, from the documents before us, is that Johns was arrested and kept in prison for twenty-five days on a charge for which there was no reasonable foundation, and which was not cognizable by the Argentine Tribunals, and the other charges were only put forward by the authorities as the "reason and cause" for his arrest when they had discovered that the real ground was untenable.

On the other hand, we ought to point out to your Lordship that, in the 11th paragraph of his Petition to Her Majesty, Johns seems to admit that he was

---

* No. 11, Consular.

† No. 19, Consular.

‡ March 25, 1885.

1886

informed, while in prison, by his attorney, Mr. Haynes, though it is not stated on what date, that he was arrested upon the charges not only of committing murder upon the high seas, but also of savagely ill-treating the crew, and of having abused the Custom-house officer.

Johns was acquitted of these latter charges both by the Naval Court and the Argentine Tribunal, though they seem to have been made not without foundation.

Circumstances of case justify claim.

On the whole, we think that the circumstances of the case are such as to justify Her Majesty's Government in making a claim on the Argentine Government for compensation to Johns.

Information as to detention of vessel too vague to justify claim.

With regard to the detention of the vessel, the information in your Lordship's possession is so vague and unsatisfactory as not, in our opinion, to be sufficient to justify, at present, a claim for compensation on behalf of the owners.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Mr. Barrington, No. 2, January 23; ditto, No. 3, February 4; ditto, No. 5, February 9; Admiralty, March 22; to Mr. Barrington, No. 3, Consular, March 24; Board of Trade, April 28; to Mr. Monson, No. 5, Consular, May 19; Mr. Monson, No. 9, Consular, July 16; ditto, No. 10, Consular, July 31; ditto, No. 17, Consular, November 29; Colonial Office, October 25; Mr. Monson, No. 19, Consular, December 16, 1884; Colonial Office, March 25; Mr. Monson, Consular, July 6, 1885; Colonial Office, January 12, 1886.

---

No. 6.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Arrest and imprisonment of G. H. Johns, of the "Dart."

I CANNOT think that there is a case such as to warrant our making and insisting upon a claim against the Argentine Government.

An allegation seems to have been made that Johns had committed a criminal offence or offences. Upon this he was arrested, and thereupon the Argentine Tribunals appear to have proceeded in ordinary course, according to their customary procedure, and without any unusual delay. Assuming that the charges made were not well-founded, assuming, too, that some or all of them were not cognizable by the Argentine Tribunals, still, if all these questions were adjudicated upon according to the ordinary course of criminal procedure of that country, I do not see how this affords a sound basis for a claim of compensation under such circumstances as existed in the present case.

No case for claim.

I have myself known of a case where an American sailor was detained in prison in this country and tried on a charge of manslaughter. It was held at the trial that the Courts of this country were not competent to try him, and on this ground he was acquitted. I am sure we should not have thought a claim for compensation made on his behalf by the United States' Government to be well-founded.

H.

46, Grosvenor Gardens, July 15, 1886

---

Chile.

No. 7.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received May 12.)

[In reply to the following Reference, the Law Officers reported as on page 11.]

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane.

Gentlemen, Foreign Office, March 31, 1886.

Arbitration for settlement of British claims.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Earl of Rosebery, the papers noted in the accompanying list, and to request that you will favour his Lordship with your opinion on certain questions which have arisen out of the arbitration now pending between Great Britain and Chile for the settlement of the claims of British subjects for losses sustained by them during the war between Chile and Peru.

As to admission of evidence in support of claims.

The arbitration was agreed to by a Convention signed on the 4th January, 1883, and I am to refer you to the inclosed printed Statement of the general facts of the case, from which you will perceive that Conventions similar to the British one were entered into by Chile with France, Germany, and Italy respectively, and that the British, French, and Italian arbitrations have been suspended pending the settlement of a difficulty which has arisen respecting the admission of evidence in support of the claims. The German arbitration has not yet commenced, and the German Government decline to enter upon it until a satisfactory arrangement has been arrived at on the question of evidence.

I am next to invite your attention to the documents referred to in paragraph 3 of the printed Statement and to Document (M), which contains Mr. Fraser's despatches Nos. 50, 51, 60, 61, and 62, in which the nature of the dispute which has given rise to the present deadlock is explained. In Mr. Fraser's No. 60 copies are inclosed of the notes addressed by him and by the German Representative (Baron Schenck) to the Chilean Government (Document M).

The French and Italian Representatives also addressed notes to the Chilean Government, but no copies of them have been received. (See Mr. Fraser's No. 62, Document M.)

The replies of the Chilean Government will be found also in Mr. Fraser's No. 62.

It is contended by the foreign Representatives that numerous claims have been rejected in consequence of the improper exclusion of material evidence.

The Articles of the Convention which bear on the question of Procedure and Evidence are IV, V, and VI (see Convention, Document A), from which it will be seen that the Mixed Commissions are bound to follow "the practice and jurisprudence established by analogous modern Tribunals of highest authority," and to set forth briefly in their Judgments the facts, the evidence in support of them, and the principles of law on which each decision is based.

Before proceeding to notice the British cases which are the subject of dispute, I am to refer to Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 61 (Document M), containing extracts from the award of the Italo-Chilean Commission in the case of Pedro Viola, and his remarks thereon.

It is explained in the Statement annexed that the Brazilian Umpire originally appointed (Senhor Netto) resigned in February 1885, and was replaced in the following August by Senhor Lafayette.

The cases heard by the Anglo-Chilean Commission since it resumed its labours with the new Brazilian Umpire are the following:—

1. Fry.
2. Minhinnick.
3. Simpson.
4. Mathison.
5. Lima Railways Company.
6. Scott and Long.
7. James Bishop.

The first three claims stand in a peculiar position. They were heard under the presidency of the first Brazilian Umpire. No Judgment has been delivered, but there was a signed award in the two first cases, and in the third case only a procès-verbal, recording that it was disallowed. The Commission, when it resumed its sittings with the new Brazilian Umpire, delivered Judgment on the first two cases in accordance with the original awards; and in the third case, in which no award had been signed, they adopted the procès-verbal in the place of a formal sentence. (Mr. Fraser's No. 48, Appendix A, p. 3 A.)

Copies of five of the awards in the above seven cases will be found in Appendix (A), and references to the despatches and other documents relating thereto will be found at the end of the printed Statement.

There is another case to which I am to request your attention, and which was decided before the appointment of the new Brazilian Umpire. It is that of James Noble, whose claim was dismissed because he was unprepared to prove his British nationality, though no notice had been given that such proof would be required.

The particulars of the case will be found in the Report of the Law Officers of the 11th November, 1884 (p. 71, Confidential Print No. 5070 of 1884, No. 97), and Mr. Drummond Hay's despatches Nos. 8 and 9 of August 1884 (pp. 54 and 60 of the same, Nos. 80 and 81), and Mr. Pakenham's No. 53 of September 1884 (p. 61 of the same, No. 82). In accordance with the Report of the Law Officers, instructions were sent to Mr. Pakenham to address a remonstrance to the Chilean Government against the hardship and injustice of that decision (Mr. Pakenham's No. 64 of the 21st November, 1884, p. 72 of Confidential Print No. 5070 of 1884, No. 101).

1886

The reply of the Chilean Government will be found in Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 64 of the 27th October, 1885 (p. 118 Confidential Print 1885, No. 164).

From the despatches of Her Majesty's Representatives at Santiago, and the awards themselves, it seems difficult to establish that there was any rejection of evidence in the sense of a refusal to admit its production. The evidence seems to have been received and examined, and the real complaint would rather seem to be that it was not accorded any weight, but treated as worthless on grounds which cannot be supported, such, for instance, as that the evidence was taken without "countercitation," or that the witnesses were interested parties, such as servants or persons themselves having other claims of a similar kind.

The decisions are based on a variety of considerations which renders it extremely difficult to judge whether, even if proper weight had been given to such evidence, the result would have been different.

Fry's case.

In case No. 1 (Fry's) the decision was based on three grounds, one of which was that the claimant had failed to prove his ownership of the cargo destroyed. The decision there was unanimous.

Minhinnick's and Simpson's cases.

In cases 2 and 3 (Minhinnick's and Simpson's) the British Arbitrator dissented from the adverse decision, and the question of the validity of the awards seem to turn, not on the rejection of evidence, but on the particular mode in which the case was dealt with, as detailed in the Tabular Statement inclosed in Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 8 (Appendix A., p. 3).

Mathison's case.

In case No. 4 (Mathison's) no copy of the award has been furnished, and it only appears from the Tabular Statement inclosed in Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 (Appendix A, p. 5) that the claim was rejected on the ground of "insufficient proof."

Lima Railways Company's case.

In case No. 5 (Lima Railways, Appendix A, p. 7) the complaint seems to be that the conclusion on the facts, with respect to the misconduct of the Chilean troops, is diametrically opposed to that arrived at in the previous case of the Chorrillos Gas Company, reported in Mr. Pakenham's despatch No. 62 of the 24th October, 1884 (Confidential Print p. 87), and that the Tribunal rejected all the evidence tendered by the claimants, and founded its judgment solely on the official Reports of the Chilean and Peruvian Commanders, and on an account of an officer of the French navy, who was a spectator.

Scott and Long's case.

In case No. 6 (Scott and Long), all the evidence adduced by the claimants was rejected as invalid, contrary to the vote of the British Arbitrator. The particulars are given in the Tabular Statement inclosed in Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 (Appendix A, p. 6), and the award, ibid., p. 18.

Bishop's case.

In case No. 7, the evidence of the claimant was held "unworthy of consideration, being vague and contradictory in detail." (See Tabular Statement in Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 (Appendix A, p. 5), and Award, ibid., p. 22.)

But whatever view may be formed on a perusal of the documents, it is conceived that Her Majesty's Government were fully justified in declining to proceed with the arbitration, on the ground stated by Mr. Fraser in his note to the Chilean Minister of the 13th October, 1885 (Document M, p. 99).

"I could not," wrote Mr. Fraser, "without a grave failure of duty, permit British claims to be judged under conditions declined by all the Representatives of other nationalities engaged in similar discussions with the Republic, as contrary both to the general principle of arbitration and to the evident sense of our several Conventions."

The original term of two years fixed for the sittings of the Commission by Article IX of the Convention would naturally have expired on the 1st March of this year, but Her Majesty's Government have contended that the period which elapsed between the resignation of the first Brazilian Umpire and the appointment of the second should not be included in the computation of that term. The Chilean Government, however, declined to accede to that view; but they are willing to extend the term for a further term of six months, as provided by Article IX.

I am to request that you will take all the papers into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Rosebery with your opinion—

Points submitted for opinion.

1. Whether, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government are justified in declining to proceed with the arbitration until a satisfactory arrangement has been arrived at between all the Powers concerned in regard to the reception of evidence.

2. Whether any of the awards are such as Her Majesty's Government can properly decline to recognize, on the ground of illegality, injustice, irregularity, or departure from the terms or the spirit of the Convention.

3. Whether Her Majesty's Government are entitled to insist on the claim of James Noble being heard, and, in the meanwhile, to refuse to recognize the dismissal of his claim as binding under the Convention.

4. Whether, if the arbitration is to be resumed, Her Majesty's Government can only claim an extension of six months under Article IX of the Convention, notwithstanding the resignation of the first Brazilian Arbitrator.

5. And generally, as to the course which should be pursued by Her Majesty's Government with reference to the present position of this arbitration.

I have, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

List of Papers.

1. Printed Statement (see p. 12).
2. Appendix (A). List of British claims decided by the Claims Commission since the reopening of the Tribunal on the 10th August, 1885.
3. Documents marked (A–R), viz.:—
    - (A.) Convention between Great Britain and Chile, January 4, 1883. "Chile No. 2 (1883)." Foreign Office No. 2663.
    - (B.) Mr. Hay, No. 3, March 1, 1884. Confidential No. 5070, p. 26.
    - (C.) Mr. Barrington, No. 117, November 24, 1884, containing Memorial from the claimants. Confidential No. 5210, p. 6.
    - (D.) Law Officers, March 13, 1885, containing Memorandum. Confidential No. 5246, p. 23.
    - (E.) To Mr. Barrington, No. 34, April 27, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 50.
    - (F.) Mr. Pakenham, Telegraphic, February 3, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 18.
    - (G.) Mr. Townley, Telegraphic, May 19, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 60.
    - (H.) Mr. Fraser, No. 38, Confidential, August 6, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 83.
    - (I.) Mr. Hay, Telegraphic, September 21, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 84.
    - (J.) To Sir J. Walsham, October 3, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 86.
    - (K.) Sir J. Walsham, October 8, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 86.
    - (L.) To Mr. Fraser, Telegraphic, October 14, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 87.
    - (M.) Mr. Fraser, No. 50, September 15; ditto, No. 51, September 19; ditto, No. 60, October 14; ditto, No. 61, October 15; ditto, No. 62, October 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, pp. 93, 94, 98, 101, and 110.
    - (N.) Memorandum, December 8, communicated by M. Catalani, December 9, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 110.
    - (O.) To M. Catalani, December 15, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 127.
    - (P.) M. Catalani, December 28, 1885. Confidential No. 5416, p. 1.
    - (Q.) To M. Catalani, January 7, 1886. Confidential No. 5416, p. 1.
    - (R.) Señor Martinez, December 14, 1885. Confidential No. 5210, p. 126.
4. Confidential Print, 1879–1881. Confidential No. 4602.
5. Ditto, 1884. Confidential No. 5070.
6. Ditto, 1885. Confidential No. 5210.

---

Report.

The Law Officers and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.

IN obedience to your Lordship's commands, conveyed on the 31st March, we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government may decline to proceed with arbitration until question of evidence has been settled.

That (1) having regard to the action taken by the French and Italian Governments, we are of opinion that, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government are justified in declining, in concurrence with the Representatives of those Powers, to proceed with the arbitration, until a satisfactory arrangement has been arrived at between all the Powers concerned, in regard to the reception of evidence.

But, for the reasons stated in the following paragraphs of this Report, we do not anticipate that much advantage will be gained without a reconstitution of the Tribunal of Arbitration.

At the same time, Her Majesty's Government will probably not be disposed to assent to the extreme doctrines asserted in the Memorandum of the French "Comité Consultatif."

Question of declining to recognize awards. There has not been such a disregard of evidence as to amount to denial of justice.

(2.) Subject to our observations in James Noble's case, and some of the other cases, we are of opinion that it will be difficult for Her Majesty's Government to decline to recognize any of the awards, on the ground of illegality, injustice, irregularity, or departure from the terms or spirit of the Convention. Although some of the "considerations" contain propositions of international law, which are, perhaps, too broadly stated, the awards purport to proceed on the result of the evidence before the Tribunal, and the vice (if any) of the awards appears to us to consist, not so much in the wrongful rejection of evidence, but in the insufficient weight attached by the Tribunal, to the evidence tendered by the claimants.

1886

The estimate of the weight of evidence is a matter peculiarly within the jurisdiction of the Arbitrators, and, on the materials before us, we cannot advise your Lordship, either that there was no evidence upon which the Arbitrators could rightly come to the conclusions expressed in their awards, or that there has been such a perverse disregard of the evidence tendered by the claimants as to amount to a denial of justice.

To take the cases in detail.

Fry's case. Nothing more to be done.

No. 1 (Fry's case). This was unanimously disallowed for want of proof of his ownership of the goods, and nothing more can be said about it.

Minhinnick's and Simpson's cases should be reheard.

Nos. 2 and 3 (Minhinnick's and Simpson's cases). These were adjudicated on before Senhor Netto resigned. An award was signed by Senhor Netto, apparently after his resignation, in Simpson's case, but it refers for its reasons to the award in Minhinnick's case, which was also signed by Senhor Netto, but his signature to which was afterwards erased by him.

We think that Her Majesty's Government would be justified in demanding to have these cases reheard, on the ground that Senhor Netto was apparently functus officio when he signed the award in Simpson's case, and also on the ground (which seems to us the stronger one) that there is no final sentence whatever in Minhinnick's case, as required by Article VI of the Convention, and that, as regards Simpson's case, the award (even if properly signed) is not really such a final sentence as is contemplated by Article VI, inasmuch as it purports (in the first consideration) to proceed upon the precedent of Minhinnick's case, the award in which was repudiated by Senhor Netto.

Mathison's case. Express no opinion.

No. 4 (Mathison's case) was disallowed, and apparently unanimously, for insufficiency of proof.

There is no award, and we can express no opinion upon it.

Lima Railways Company's and Scott and Long's cases. Cannot say awards are wrong.

No. 5 (Lima Railways Company) and No. 6 (Scott and Long). The Tribunal seems to have come to the conclusion of fact, that the town was fired on the 13th January, 1881, in the course of, and for the purpose of, the military operations of the Chilean army, and that the fire spread for three days, and that the railway stations and store were (or may have been) burnt in this conflagration, and, further, that the pillage complained of took place in the course of, or immediately after, the storming of the town.

We must remark that the burden of proof was on the claimants, and although it is difficult to avoid the suspicion that a thoroughly satisfactory Tribunal would have come to a different conclusion, we cannot, on the materials before us, say that the awards are certainly wrong, or, at any rate, perversely so. Not much (we think) can be made of the different award in the previous case of the Chorrillos Gas Company.

The Chilean Government may say that the decision in that case was arrived at on other evidence, and in the last resort, that the decision in the Gas Company's case was wrong, and that in the Railways Company's case was right.

Bishop's case is the strongest case for remonstrance.

No. 7. (Bishop's case). This seems to us the strongest case for remonstrance on the part of Her Majesty's Government. The Tribunal seems to have decided it on the ground that the claimant had not made out his case. But if it be the fact that the house was situate a mile or a mile and a-half from the battle-ground, and that the Peruvians made no real resistance at Miraflores (as stated by Mr. Fraser in his despatch of the 11th November, 1885), we agree in his conclusion that "there is no real question here of injury in regular military operations."

Noble's claim.

3. Inasmuch as James Noble states in his declaration (made in compliance with the rules, and duly sworn before a British Consular Agent) that he was then a British subject, and (as we understand) there was no evidence to the contrary, or grounds for suspecting the untruth of his statement, we think that there was evidence of his nationality upon which the Tribunal ought to have acted, and proceeded to hear his claim on the merits.

Should insist on its being heard.

And we are of opinion that their refusal either to accept such primâ facie evidence or to give Noble time to adduce further evidence, was such a denial of justice as entitles Her Majesty's Government to insist in his claim being heard, and, in the meanwhile, to refuse to recognize the dismissal of his claim as binding under the Convention.

Extension of six months under Article IX.

4. We are of opinion that Her Majesty's Government can only claim an extension of six months under Article IX of the Convention, notwithstanding the resignation of the first Brazilian Arbitrator.

Concert with other Powers. Principles to govern Commission should be more exactly defined.

5. We have so fully discussed the different points of the case in the foregoing paragraphs of this Report, that we feel we cannot usefully trouble your Lordship with any further observations, beyond pointing out that it is desirable, as far as possible, to act in concert with the other Powers concerned, and that, if possible, the principles to govern the Commission should be more exactly defined.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Statement to accompany Reference to the Law Officers.

ON the 4th January, 1883, a Convention was signed between Great Britain and Chile by Mr. J. de V. Drummond Hay, Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Santiago representing Great Britain, and Señor Luis Aldunate, Minister for Foreign Affairs, representing Chile, for the settlement of the claims of British subjects arising out of the acts and operations of the Chilean forces during the war between Chile on the one part, and Peru and Bolivia on the other.

A copy of the Convention is annexed (Document A). Similar Conventions with Chile were entered into by France and Italy, and at a later period by Germany. The British, French, and Italian Commissions have heard and decided a certain number of claims, but the German Commission has not yet entered upon its functions.

The three Conventions, which are identic, consist of twelve Articles, of which the following is the substance:—

Article I provides for the settlement of British claims by means of a Tribunal of Arbitration or Mixed International Commission.

Art. II specifies that the Commission shall be composed of three members: one named by Her Majesty, the other by the President of Chile, and a third by the Emperor of Brazil.

Art. III lays down that the losses or damages for which compensation is claimed must have been incurred between the 14th February, 1879, and the day on which Treaties of Peace or Covenants of Truce may be concluded between the belligerents, or until such time as hostilities cease.

Art. IV deals with the mode of examination of claims.

Art. V provides for the appointment of an Agent by each Government to act on its behalf in presenting the claims.

Art. VI explains the principles on which the Commissioners will act, and the forms of procedure.

Art. VII treats of the appointment of secretaries and such other officers as may be deemed requisite, as well as the mode of carrying out the decisions of the Commission.

Art. VIII enacts that claims shall be presented to the Commission within six months from the date of its first sitting, and that all claims presented subsequently will be barred. It also provides for the creation of fresh claims in the contingency of a continuance of hostilities.

Art. IX fixes the duration of the Commission at two years from the date of its first meeting, and provides for its prolongation for a further term, not exceeding six months, in certain indicated eventualities.

Art. X provides for the expenses of the Commission, salaries of Commissioners and other officers, and the payment of such awards as may be made.

Art. XI states that the decisions of the Commission will be accepted as final.

Art. XII deals with the question of ratification.

Mr. Drummond Hay No. 3; March 1, 1884.

2. The Commission met for the first time on the 1st March, 1884, the Commissioners being Mr. Pakenham, Her Majesty's Minister in Chile, for Great Britain; Senhor Luis Aldunate, for Chile; and Senhor Lopez Netto, Third Commissioner and Umpire. The latter was elected President of the Tribunal, and other preliminary steps were taken for the organization of the Court. (Document B.)

3. In October 1884 the Italian Ambassador at this Court addressed a note to Earl Granville, calling attention to certain general principles maintained by the Tribunal of Arbitration to which exception was taken by his Government (Count Nigra, 30th October, 1885: Confidential Print No. 5070, 1884, p. 66*, No. 89*).

That note was referred to the Law Officers of the Crown, whose Report thereon will be found at p. 84 (No. 104) of the Confidential Print No. 5070, 1884.

In the same month Mr. Barrington, Her Majesty's Representative at Lima, transmitted a Memorial from British subjects in Peru complaining of the proceedings of the Anglo-Chilean Commission, especially in regard to the exclusion of evidence (Ibid., p. 73, No. 103).

The instructions sent to Mr. Barrington in reply to that Memorial will be found in Document E.

Mr. Barrington, No. 117; November 24, 1884.

On the 24th November following Mr. Barrington forwarded to Lord Granville two copies of a joint Memorial addressed to the foreign Representatives in Lima by the International Committee acting on behalf of the foreign residents in Peru, who had presented claims against the Chilean Government complaining of the decisions of the Commission on certain grounds therein stated. (Document C.) This Memorial was referred to the Law Officers for their opinion, and their Report, dated the 13th March, 1885, is annexed. (Document D.) Instructions in the sense of that Report were sent to Her Majesty's Representatives both in Peru and in Chile. (Documents C, E.)

Law Officers; March 13, 1885.

To Mr. Barrington, No. 34; April 27, 1885.

Mr. Pakenham, Telegraphic; February 3, 1885.

4. On the 3rd February, 1885, a telegram was received from Her Majesty's Minister at Santiago, stating that the Brazilian Commissioner had been ordered home, and that he would not return. (Document F.)

Mr. Townley, Telegraphic; May 19, 1885.

Mr. Fraser, No. 38, Confidential; August 6, 1885.

5. On the 19th May, 1885, Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Rio de Janeiro reported by telegraph that Senhor Lafayette had been named Brazilian Commissioner in place of Senhor Netto. In August following, Mr. Fraser, who had succeeded Mr. Pakenham as Her Majesty's Minister in Chile, reported the arrival of Senhor Lafayette at Santiago; and, whilst expressing the hope that the sittings of the Commission would be resumed, pointed out several causes which might create difficulties. (Documents G and H.)

Mr. Drummond Hay, Telegraphic; September 21, 1885.

Sir P. Currie to Sir J. Walsham; October 3, 1885.
Sir J. Walsham to Sir P. Currie; October 10, 1885.

6. A telegram dated the 21st September, 1885, was received from Mr. Drummond Hay, the British Agent on the Claims Commission, reporting that the arbitration was hopeless, and that the reason had been telegraphed in full to Paris. Inquiry was accordingly made in Paris, when it appeared that the difficulty had been caused by the action of the new Brazilian Commissioner and Umpire in regard to the rejection of evidence. The French Representative had in consequence been instructed by telegraph to suspend all proceedings as regarded French claims until he had had an opportunity of discussing the question with Senhor Lafayette. The French Government proposed, should the latter persist in maintaining his views, to submit the whole matter to the British and Italian Governments, with a view to concerted action. Her Majesty's Minister in Chile was instructed by telegraph to follow the same course as his French colleague. (Documents I, J, K, L.) The Italian Government have also followed the same course. (Document N.)

To Mr. Fraser, Telegraphic; October 14, 1885.

Mr. Fraser, No. 60; October 14, 1885.
Ibid., No. 61; October 15, 1885.
Memorandum communicated by M. Catalani; December 9, 1885.
To M. Catalani; December 15, 1885.
M. Catalini; December 28, 1885.
To M. Catalani; January 7, 1886.
Señor Martinez to Sir J. Pauncefote; December 14, 1885.

7. Detailed despatches have since been received from Mr. Fraser, explaining more fully the difficulties which have arisen, and a correspondence has taken place with the Italian Chargé d'Affaires in London upon the subject. The Chilean Minister at this Court has likewise written to inquire what course Her Majesty's Government propose to adopt. (Documents M, N, O, P, Q, R.)

An account of the British claims heard by the Commission up to the present time, with the decisions thereon, is contained in Appendix (A).

8. The first three decisions are those in the claims of Fry, Minhinnick, and Simpson, of which an account is given in Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 48 of the 8th September and Mr. Drummond Hay's despatch No. 8 of the 25th September last (Appendix A, pp. 1 and 3 A).

9. The next four decisions are those in the cases of (1) Mathison, (2) The Lima Railways Company, (3) Scott and Long, and (4) Bishop, of which particulars are given in Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 63 of the 26th October last (Appendix A, p. 7), Mr. Fraser's No. 70 of the 10th November (Appendix A, p. 18), and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November last (Appendix A, p. 4).

10. The last decision is that in the case of Bishop, the particulars of which are given in Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 71 of the 11th November last (Appendix A, p. 21).

11. The nature of the difference which has arisen between the Chilean Government and the foreign Representatives is explained in Mr. Fraser's despatch No. 60 of the 14th October, 1885 (Document M), from which it appears that the main question turns on the proper construction of Article IV of the Convention, and the degree of latitude given by its terms in regard to the reception of evidence.

12. From the same despatch, it will be seen that the German Government decline to enter upon their arbitration until this point is satisfactorily settled.

---

The documents containing the particulars of the decisions of the Commission, and its awards in each of the British cases above referred to, are the following:—

1.—Fry's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 48 of the 8th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 3 A), containing the award, and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 8 of the 25th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 1). (Tabular Statement No. 10, Appendix A, p. 3.)

2.—Minhinnick's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 48 of the 8th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 3 A), and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 8 of the 25th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 1). (Tabular Statement No. 17, Appendix A, p. 3.)

No award, but procès-verbal substituted.

See explanation in Mr. Fraser's No. 48 and Inclosure 3 (Appendix A, p. 3 A).

3.—Simpson's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 48 of the 8th September, 1885, and award in Inclosure 2 (Appendix A, p. 3 A). Also Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 8 of the 25th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 1). (Tabular Statement No. 18, Appendix A, p. 3.)

4.—Mathison's Case.

See Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November, 1885 (Tabular Statement No. 16). (Appendix A, pp. 4 and 5.)

No award.

5.—Lima Railways Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 63 of the 26th October, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 7), containing the award, and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November, 1885 (Tabular Statement No. 25). (Appendix A, pp. 4 and 5.)

See also Memorial in Mr. Barrington's despatch No. 106 of the 22nd October, 1884 (Confidential Print No. 5070, 1884, p. 73, No. 103).

Printed Statement, paragraph 3.

Also Mr. Pakenham's despatch No. 62 of the 24th October, 1884 (Confidential Print No. 5070, 1884, p. 87, No. 111).

Also account of the Battle of Chorillos and Miraflores given in Sir Spenser St. John's despatch No. 9 of the 22nd January, 1881 (Confidential Print No. 4602, 1879-81, p. 35, No. 38).

6.—Scott and Long's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 70 of the 10th November, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 18), containing the award.

Also Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November, 1885 (Tabular Statement No. 31). (Appendix A, pp. 4 and 6.)

7.—Bishop's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 71 of the 11th November, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 21), containing the award, and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November, 1885 (Tabular Statement No. 19). (Appendix A, pp. 4 and 5.)

1886

No. 8.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received August 4.)

Royal Courts of Justice, August 3, 1886.

My Lord,

Peruvian Bondholders' claims on Chile. Agreement between bondholders and Messrs. Dreyfus and Co.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the question of an Agreement which was signed on the 23rd March last between the Peruvian Bondholders' Committee and Messrs. Dreyfus, Brothers, and Co., settling disputed questions of priority and making arrangements for joint action concerning their respective rights against the Chilean Government. (Print, p. 21.)

That, by section 5 of that Agreement, its validity was made dependent on the consent of the British and French Governments to accept the obligations defined in section 2, under the heading of "Intervention of the Governments," and that on that point communications had taken place between Her Majesty's Government and that of France, to which our special attention was invited. (Print, pp. 65 and 69.)

That the question of the intervention of Her Majesty's Government on behalf of the English holders of nitrate certificates and of the bondholders was reported on by the Law Officers of the Crown in two letters dated the 2nd February, 1884. (Print, pp. 93, 94.)

That your Lordship proposed to reply to M. Waddington's last letter in the terms of which a draft was inclosed therewith, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether that reply met with our concurrence and approval.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve draft reply to French Government declining to intervene under terms of Agreement.

That we approve the draft of the despatch which your Lordship proposes to write to M. Waddington.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Note from the Earl of Iddesleigh to M. Waddington.

Foreign Office, , 1886.

M. l'Ambassadeur,

I HAVE the honour to acknowledge the receipt of the note addressed by your Excellency to my predecessor on the 2nd ultimo, in which you convey the wish of your Government to be informed of the views of Her Majesty's Government in regard to two points arising out of the Agreement signed on the 23rd March last between Messrs. Dreyfus and the holders of Peruvian bonds.

The French Government inquire through your Excellency—

1. Whether, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, "it is expedient that the two Governments should accept the part assigned to them by Article 4 of the above-named Agreement, namely, to examine jointly the claims of their nationals, to determine their validity, and to discuss the amount at which they should be fixed."

2. If Her Majesty's Government should, like that of France, pronounce themselves in favour of the affirmative, what is their view as to the best course to follow in order to obtain from Chile an efficacious recognition of the rights of their respective nationals?

In reply to the above questions, I have the honour to observe that the Agreement of the 23rd March seeks to impose on the two Governments obligations of a very extensive and undefined character.

It will be seen, in referring to sections 2 and 5, that the Governments of Great Britain and France are invited to "undertake the charge of the interests of the parties thereto," and, in fact, to become parties to the Agreement for the purpose of carrying out the various provisions enumerated under the heading of "Intervention of the Governments."

The validity and continuance of the Agreement is dependent on the acceptance by the two Governments of that obligation.

But Her Majesty's Government are not aware of any precedent for such a course, and they must decline altogether entering into any compact with the claimants, such as would be involved in accepting the obligation "to take charge of their interests" in accordance with the provisions of the Agreement in question.

Her Majesty's Government can see no reason to depart from the usual mode of dealing diplomatically with such claims. They are quite prepared to unite with the other Governments interested in examining any questions in dispute in relation to the character and amount and validity of these claims, with a view to reopening negotiations with Chile for the settlement of this long-pending controversy on a fair and equitable basis; and they are willing, if necessary, to take steps for disposing of it ultimately by arbitration.

The Chilean Government have not shown themselves unwilling to do justice in the matter, for they have already set apart for the bondholders large sums of money derived from the revenues of Tarapacá, thus admitting in principle the validity of the claim.

An understanding among the various claimants as to their respective priorities would, no doubt, facilitate matters; but, in the view of Her Majesty's Government, it should be arrived at quite independently of the Governments interested.

Any steps which Her Majesty's Government may take in furtherance of the object in view must be entirely unconnected with the Agreement of the 23rd March. Subject to that reservation, and while retaining full liberty of action, Her Majesty's Government are ready to support by diplomatic means the reasonable claims of the creditors on the revenues of Tarapacá to the fullest extent that is warranted by justice and international law.

I have, &c.

---

List of Papers.

Correspondence respecting Foreign Creditors of Peru, 1881–84. Confidential No. 5046.
Ditto, 1885. Confidential No. 5245.
Ditto, 1886. Confidential No. 5426.
M. Waddington, July 2, 1886. Confidential No. 5426, p 71.
To M. Waddington, , 1886.

---

China.

No. 9.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 9.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 8, 1886.

My Lord,

Opium monopoly at Ningpo.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit papers* relating to a question which had been recently raised at Ningpo, where the local authorities had interfered to prevent the purchase by any other than the Opium Guild, of opium, the property of certain British firms at that port, contrary, as was contended by Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, to the stipulations contained in the Treaties between this country and China, regulating the opium traffic, and undoubtedly tending, if admitted, to injure British interests.

That the circumstances of the case were fully reported in Mr. O'Conor's No. 400 of the 22nd September, 1885.

That a Memorandum showing the several Treaty stipulations affecting opium was likewise annexed, for convenience of reference.

That under those stipulations opium might be lawfully imported into China on payment of the Tariff duty. But that it could only be sold at the port of entry, and Chinese alone might carry it into the interior.

---

* Mr. O'Conor, No. 400, September 22; ditto, No. 409, September 29; Memorandum, December 5, 1885: Clause 1, Trade Rule 5 of November 8, 1858, "State Papers," vol. xlviii, p. 60.

That it was manifest, however, that if the Chinese authorities would not permit it to be carried into the interior unless it had been sold to a particular Guild of Chinese merchants, the importer could only sell it to that Guild, and at the price which that Guild might choose to pay.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the proceeding complained of afforded grounds for a remonstrance by Her Majesty's Government as being a restriction of the Treaty rights of British merchants who claimed the right to sell opium to any Chinese buyers at the port, and, if so, whether, in the present case, the sellers had waived their claim to compensation by accepting the compromise offered to them.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Affords ground of complaint.

That we are of opinion that the proceeding complained of affords grounds for remonstrance by Her Majesty's Government, as being a restriction on the Treaty right of British merchants to sell opium to any Chinese buyer at the port. The information contained in Mr. O'Conor's despatch of the 22nd September, 1885, is insufficient to enable us to form an opinion as to whether, in the present case, the sellers have waived their claim to compensation.

Information as to effect of compromise on compensation insufficient.

That would depend upon whether such a waiver was involved in or was expressly, or by implication, made one of the terms of the compromise arrived at.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 10.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received August 2.)

Royal Courts of Justice, July 31, 1886.

My Lord,

Extradition from Hong Kong of Cheung-a-Chi and Cheung Ayo refused by Hong Kong authorities.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to a demand made by the Chinese Government for the extradition from Hong Kong of two Chinese named Cheung-a-Chi and Cheung Ayo.

That we should observe that in the case of Cheung-a-Chi the Hong Kong authorities had declined to surrender the accused to the Chinese (A, from Colonial Office, May 25), and that considerable dissatisfaction had been thereby caused to the Chinese Government (B and C, from Mr. O'Conor Nos. 138 and 147).

That the extradition of Chinese fugitives in Hong Kong was carried out under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin and the Colonial Ordinance No. 2 of 1850, supplemented by Ordinance No. 2 of 1871.

That you were also to refer us to the decision of the Privy Council in the case of Kwok Asing v. the Attorney-General of Hong Kong (L. R., Privy Council Appeal Cases, vol. v, 1873-74, p. 179).

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to inclose the draft of a reply to the letter from the Colonial Office of the 25th May, and that he was to request that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship whether it met with our concurrence, and, if not, that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the nature of the instructions which should be sent to the Governor of Hong Kong for his guidance in these extradition cases.

That, as regarded the case of Cheung Ayo, your Lordship was disposed to think that the extradition of the prisoner was properly refused, and that your Lordship would be glad to be informed whether we concurred in that view.

---

* Treaty of Tien-tsin, June 26, 1858, No. 448; Ordinances of Hong Kong, No. 2 of 1850, and No. 2 of 1871, Confidential No. 2855 (see volumes of Hong Kong Ordinances, inclosed); Law Officers' Report, September 18, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 12; ditto, August 20 and September 19, 1885, Confidential No. 5246, pp. 27-29; Judgment of Privy Council in Kwok Asing v. Attorney-General of Hong Kong (see 5 Law Reports, Appeal Cases, p. 179); Colonial Office to Foreign Office, May 25, 1886 (Case of Cheung-a-Chi); ditto, July 6, 1886 (Case of Cheung Ayo); Mr. O'Conor, No. 138, April 29; ditto, No. 147, May 3, 1886; proposed Draft to Colonial Office.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Instructions to Governor of Hong Kong for his guidance in extradition cases.

That we think that the limitation of the cases in which the Governor in Council may properly decline to extradite after a prisoner has been committed by the Magistrate proposed in your Lordship's draft despatch to the Colonial Office is too narrow. We assume that the Magistrate does not feel himself bound to commit unless there are "probable reasons for believing that the prisoner is guilty," and, whilst the Governor in Council should not dissent from the Magistrate's conclusion except on grave grounds, yet, if he is satisfied that the opinion of the Magistrate was founded on insufficient evidence, he may properly, and ought to, decline to act on it.

Approve draft to Colonial Office with certain alterations.

We venture, therefore, to submit for your Lordship's consideration that the instructions intended to be contained in the paragraph in question should be altered in the manner which we have ventured to indicate in red ink in the draft proposed despatch.

Subject to these observations, we concur in and approve of the views proposed to be expressed by your Lordship in the draft despatch.

Extradition of Cheung Ayo was rightly refused.

We concur with your Lordship in thinking that the extradition of Cheung Ayo was rightly refused.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter to Colonial Office.

[The alterations made by the Law Officers are printed in italics.]

(Confidential.)

Foreign Office, August , 1886.

Sir,

I AM directed by the Earl of Iddesleigh to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th May, inclosing a despatch from the Officer administering the Government of Hong Kong, relative to the case of Cheung-a-Chi, whose extradition has been applied for by the Chinese authorities, and requesting to be informed whether Mr. Marsh's action in the matter should be approved.

I am, in reply, to transmit to you two despatches from Her Majesty's Chargé d'Affaires at Peking, in which he reports the dissatisfaction of the Chinese Government at the manner in which extradition cases under Article XXI of the Treaty of Tien-tsin are dealt with in Hong Kong.* There is great difficulty in forming an opinion here as to the sufficiency of "the proof of guilt" which is required by the Treaty.

In the case of the eleven fugitives whose surrender was refused about two years ago, the Law Officers in 1885 differed from their predecessors in 1884 as to the sufficiency of the proof.

The former were of opinion that the "proof of guilt" was sufficient, while the latter had grave doubts, but on the whole reported in favour of the conclusion arrived at by the Governor in Council. I am to inclose (confidentially) copies of their Reports.†

As regards the present case of Cheung-a-Chi, Lord Iddesleigh is not prepared to say that the conclusion arrived at by the Governor of Hong Kong was wrong.

It is difficult to lay down any precise rule in such a matter, but his Lordship is disposed to think that where the magistrate has committed the fugitive on evidence which, in his opinion, constitutes a primâ facie case, the extradition should not be refused unless the Governor in Council is satisfied, on a review of the evidence, that the decision of the magistrate was erroneous, either on the ground (1) that the material evidence against the alleged fugitive criminal was unworthy of belief by reason of bribery, intimidation, or other circumstances; or (2) that taking the evidence as a whole it fails to support the conclusion arrived at by the magistrate. But his Lordship thinks that the Governor in Council should in each case weigh the matter with great care, and differ from the magistrate only where he feels constrained by a strong and clear opinion so to do.

His Lordship presumes that the Governor in Council acted in that spirit in the

---

* Mr. O'Conor, No. 138, April 29; ditto, No. 147, May 3, 1886.

† Law Officers, September 18, 1884; ditto, September 19, 1885.

1886

present case. There seems reason, however, to believe that the prisoner is an old offender.

It is not unlikely, therefore, that the evidence to be adduced against him on the further sixteen charges of piracy, which it is stated are hanging over him, may be sufficient to justify his extradition.

Mr. Marsh's despatch is returned herewith, and I am to request that Mr. O'Conor's two despatches, which are sent herewith in original, may be returned to this Office.

I am, &c.

---

No. 11.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received October 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 2, 1886.

Payment of probate duty on landed property of a British subject.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 18th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to the payment of probate duty on the landed property of a deceased British subject at Amoy.

That the question was raised by Messrs. Bone and Sons, solicitors for the deceased, and was referred to Sir R. Rennie, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for China and Japan, whose opinion would be found in his despatch No. 2 of the 13th July.

That a similar question had arisen last year in Japan, and that the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown thereon was inclosed.

That it would be seen that the tenure of land held by British subjects in China and Japan was a species of fee farm, or perpetual lease at a peppercorn rent, and that the Law Officers advised, in the Report above mentioned, that, such property not being regarded as personalty, according to English law, it was not subject to probate or administrative duty, under Her Majesty's Order in Council of the 9th March, 1865.

Case of late Mr. Jones at Amoy.

That a copy of the title-deed of the land of the late Mr. Jones at Amoy, and also a copy of the Report of the Law Officers of 1855, referred to in Sir R. Rennie's despatch, were transmitted therewith.

That our opinion was requested as to whether the probate duty in the present case was wrongly imposed, and should be returned to the representatives of the deceased; and, further, whether we concurred in the recommendation in the last paragraph of Sir R. Rennie's despatch, that a new Order in Council should be passed declaring that all lands held by British subjects in China should be taken to be personalty, and not realty.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe that so general a declaration might be attended with inconvenience in mixed cases between Chinese and British subjects, under Article I of the Treaty of Tien-tsin, unless the devolution of realty in China, in case of intestacy, were the same under the lex situs as under the proposed Order in Council.

That it appeared from Sir R. Rennie's despatch that, by Chinese law, realty descends to all male children equally, whether legitimate or not, and to the exclusion of females.

That if, however, we should be of opinion that the proposed Order, which would alter the rule of succession to realty both as regarded British law and Chinese law, in the case of British subjects, might properly be passed, it would seem desirable to extend its operations to Japan, Corea, and Siam.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Duty wrongly imposed; it should be returned. Do not advise new Order.

That, in our opinion, the probate duty, in this case, was wrongly imposed, and should be returned to the representatives, and that we are not at present prepared to advise the issue of the new Order in Council suggested by Sir R. Rennie.

Agree in opinion of predecessors as to personalty and realty.

We concur with the opinion of our predecessors given in January 1885, but the question whether the distinction between personalty and realty should be abolished will require most careful consideration.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
E. CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Messrs. Bone and Sons, April 22; to Sir R. Rennie, No. 4, May 3; Sir R. Rennie, No. 2, July 13, 1886; Law Officers, January 9, 1885 (Confidential No. 5246, p. 112); China and Japan Order in Council, March 9, 1865 (Confidential No. 1354); Hertslet's Treaties with China (Treaty of Tien-tsin), p. 16.

---

Egypt.

No. 12.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 21, 1886.

Illicit importation of grain on coast of Red Sea.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 15th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the accompanying despatch from Her Majesty's Acting Agent at Cairo,* relative to the grain trade in the Red Sea, and the action of Her Majesty's ships in connection with its prohibition.

In reference to the specific points raised in the inclosure to the despatch of Her Majesty's Acting Agent at Cairo, dated the 5th January, 1886, we have the honour to report—

Capture and disposal of dhows and cargoes.

(a.) That dhows cannot be seized by Her Majesty's ships upon the high seas, or in ports not within the de facto dominion of the Egyptian Government, unless they—

(i.) Are the property of the insurgent Soudanese, or—

(ii.) Carry cargoes which are intended to assist the insurgent Soudanese in prosecuting hostilities against Her Majesty's forces.

Dhows and cargoes which are within the de facto dominion of the Egyptian Government can be seized under the authority of Egyptian law, if their owners have committed offences against that law which justify such seizure.

(b.) In the former case, the crews should not be tried by court-martial, unless they have committed some offence against the laws of war.

The dhows and cargoes should be brought before an Admiralty Court, by which they, or some portion of them, according to the circumstances of the case, may be adjudged to the captors as prizes of war.

(c.) In the latter case the dhows and cargoes should be handed over to the Egyptian Customs authorities to be dealt with according to Egyptian law: the captors are entitled only to such bounty or gratuity as the Egyptian law may award them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.

---

No. 13.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 23, 1886.

Illicit importation of grain on coast of the Red Sea north of Suakin.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 4th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a correspondence (as marked in the accompanying list)* with regard to the action of Her Majesty's ships of war in the Red Sea in preventing the illicit importation of grain on the Red Sea coast to the north of Suakin, for the use of the insurgent Arab tribes.

---

* Mr. Egerton, No. 6, January 5, 1886.

That it would be perceived that in the opinion of the military authorities it was of great importance, for the effectual suppression of the insurrection, that that traffic should be suppressed, and that the means at the disposal of the Egyptian Government for the purpose being insufficient, the duty had been undertaken by some British cruizers. But that the action of Her Majesty's vessels, though in the nature of hostile measures against insurgents, was technically taken for the enforcement of Egyptian Customs Regulations, there being only two authorized ports of entry in that vicinity—at Suakin and Agig. That the prizes, therefore, which were captured were sent for condemnation by the Egyptian Court, and that a portion of 16 per cent. only of the value had been accorded to the captors, which was considered by the naval officers as insufficient. That questions of greater difficulty might arise in the event of vessels engaged in the trade hoisting the flag of some European nation.

Question as to issue of prohibitive Decree affecting coast held by insurgents.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to a Report by the former Law Officers of the Crown, in August 1882, as to the proper course to be taken at that time for preventing the landing of coal, and of munitions of war at ports on the Egyptian coast in possession of rebels against the authority of the Khedive, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request us to favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether, on the present occasion, it would not be desirable that a Decree should be issued by the Khedive, similar to that then recommended, prohibiting the importation of grain, or munitions of war, on the coast in possession of the insurgents, under penalty of seizure and confiscation, and empowering the British cruizers to enforce it within Egyptian waters; or whether we would advise any other course to remove possible question as to the regularity of the proceedings of Her Majesty's vessels.

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letters of the 7th and 28th ultimo, and of the 9th and 19th instant, inclosing further correspondence relative to the same subject.†

Sending separate opinion.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers into our consideration, but owing to our inability to agree to a joint Report, we have written separate opinions, which we have the honour to append hereto.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

The Attorney-General's Opinion.

Opposed to a blockade.

Unless Her Majesty's Government are prepared to maintain an effective blockade, and to treat the Soudanese as belligerents, I cannot advise that a declaration of blockade should be made.

Issue of Decree desirable.

Under the circumstances, I think it is desirable that a Decree should be issued by the Khedive (similar to that recommended in the Report of the Law Officers of August 1882) prohibiting the importation of grain, or munitions of war, on the coast in the occupation of the insurgents, under penalty of seizure and confiscation, and empowering British cruizers to enforce such Decree in Egyptian waters; but such Decree will not justify the seizure and confiscation of ships and cargoes, which do not belong to the Soudanese, in places which are not within the de facto sovereignty of the Khedive. Her Majesty's ships are, however, justified in carrying on war against the insurgent Soudanese, by destroying the property and capturing, even upon the high seas, stores intended for the use of their armies.

Applicable only to places under Egyptian control.

Insurgent ships and stores may be seized.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.

The Solicitor-General's Opinion.

Not desirable to issu Decree.

It is, in my judgment, not desirable that a Decree similar to that of 1882 should be issued by the Khedive, because such Decree would not justify that which is intended, viz., the seizure and confiscation of ships and cargoes importing grain or munitions of war on the coast in the possession of the insurgents, and not within the de facto sovereignty of the Khedive. Similar Laws have, on several recent occasions, been objected to by Her Majesty's Government. See, for example, the attempt of the Haïtian Government to close the ports of Jacmel and Jeremie to commerce, while in the possession of insurgents, by a Municipal Law (Law Officers' Reports 1883, p. 75).

Her Majesty's ships may seize vessels and stores of insurgents as acts of war.

In places which are beyond the de facto sovereignty of the Khedive, Her Majesty's ships must confine their operations to those acts which can be justified as acts of war. Without maintaining an effective blockade, which I understand to be impracticable, they may, either upon the high seas or in the Red Sea ports, destroy the property of the insurgent Soudanese, and they may capture their ships and stores, whether of grain or other munitions of war, which are intended for the use of their armies.

(Signed) J. E. GORST.

Sir J. Deane's Opinion.

Great Britain is not at war with the Soudanese. Her Majesty's forces by sea and by land are assisting the Khedive in putting down the insurrection of some of his subjects.

A blockade of the coast in possession of the insurgents by Her Majesty's ships is, in the circumstances, not practicable. No question arises, as suggested apparently in some of the despatches, as to the seizure of slavers.

The Egyptian Government consider the matter as one of illicit traffic in grain, in other words, as a smuggling transaction which is to be stopped.

Her Majesty's ships cannot assist Egyptian Custom

In my opinion, Her Majesty's ships cannot properly be employed as cruizers to assist the Customs Regulations and protect the revenue of the Khedive; but Her Majesty's forces are carrying on hostile operations against the insurgents, and, in the furtherance of those operations, might seize and destroy on land all ammunition, provisions, &c., going to, or intended for, the use of the insurgents; so may Her Majesty's ships properly seize, bring in, or destroy, all dhows, provisions, and munitions, or stores intended for, or fit for, military purposes, found within the territory occupied by the Soudanese insurgents, or on the coasts of, and adjoining, the said territory, whether belonging to the said Soudanese insurgents or not. Her Majesty's cruizers may, on the high seas, seize or destroy all property belonging to the Soudanese insurgents, and carried in craft belong to, or in the employ of, the insurgents.

but, as acts of war, may seize, &c., vessel of insurgents.

Egyptian Governmen must give rewards fo captures.

Looking to the constitution and practice of the English Prize Courts, I consider that no such Court would entertain a claim for the capture of the dhows and cargoes. The crews of Her Majesty's ships must look to the Egyptian Government for their rewards.

Issue of Decree immaterial.

Taking the view which I do of the nature of the employment of Her Majesty's ships in the Red Sea, the proposed Decree will in no way affect the nature of their operations, and it becomes immaterial whether such Decree is issued or not.

(Signed) J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers.

Law Officers, August 14, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 27.
Mr. Egerton, No. 622, August 25, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 90.
Ditto, No. 623, August 26, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 91.
Admiralty, August 25, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 80.
Ditto, September 2, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 88.
Mr. Egerton, No. 650, September 4, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 113.
Admiralty, September 12, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 116.
Ditto, September 19, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 126.
To Admiralty, September 19, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 120.
Admiralty, September 26, 1885. Confidential No. 5167, p. 139.
Ditto, October 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5226, p. 38.
Sir H. Drummond Wolff, No. 83, Telegraphic, November 1, 1885. Confidential No. 5226, p. 41.
Admiralty, November 3 and 5, 1885. Confidential No. 5226, p. 53.
To Admiralty, November 12, 1885
Admiralty, November 27, 1885.

† Admiralty, December 3; Mr. Egerton, No. 499, Telegraphic, December 27, Confidential No. 5226, p. 112; ditto, No. 856, December 27, 1885; Admiralty, January 15, 1886.

1886

No. 14.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 24.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 24, 1886.

My Lord,

Jurisdiction of British officer charged with administration of port of Zeyla.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 26th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, correspondence which had passed as to the jurisdiction to be exercised by the British officer now charged with the administration of the port of Zeyla.

That on the 29th May, 1884,* a despatch was addressed to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Constantinople, stating that it had been decided to withdraw the Egyptian authorities and troops from the whole coast which they had hitherto occupied from the Straits of Berbera to Ras Hafoun, and stating that if the Porte were ready to take steps on the withdrawal of the Egyptians, and to maintain its authority over Tajourra and Zeyla, Her Majesty's Government would be willing, on certain specified conditions, to recognize the authority of the Sultan over the coast as far as the latter place.

That that communication was made to the Porte on the 17th July following, but the offer had not been accepted, nor had any steps been taken by the Porte to assert its authority on the coast in question.

That on the 1st August, Lord Dufferin was instructed to inform the Turkish Government that unless they were prepared to take immediate steps for the occupation of Zeyla, as proposed, it would be necessary for Her Majesty's Government to send a force there, to preserve order.

That a British expedition for the purpose left Aden on the 18th August, 1884.

That on the 19th November, 1884,† the Egyptian Government addressed a letter to the Porte, explaining that they were no longer able to maintain Egyptian administration on the western shore of the Red Sea from Massowah to Zeyla, and that that part of the coast reverted to the administration of the Porte.

That no definite reply was returned to that communication, and that it had been held by the former Law Officers of the Crown that, pending a definite arrangement with the Porte, the Khedive was still bound to pay the tribute of 15,000*l.* a-year, in consideration of which the administration of Zeyla was granted, by Firman, to Ismaïl Pasha.

That the expedition to Zeyla was under the command of Major Hunter, of the British Residency at Aden, who held the appointment of Her Majesty's Consul for the Somali Coast.

That the arrangements which he made for the future administration of the port would be found at pp. 204 and 213 of the accompanying volume.‡

That the former Egyptian Governor, Abubekr Pasha, was nominally retained as Civil Governor, but all real authority was vested in the British officer (Lieutenant Kingsmill), whom Major Hunter appointed Agent and Consul-General.

That that officer was directed by Major Hunter to investigate all charges of offences committed, and to attend when the Pasha disposed of them. That the punishments were to be regulated by the Indian Penal Code (p. 213).

That Abubekr Pasha, the Egyptian Governor, had since died, and that no one had been appointed to succeed him.

That under those circumstances, Captain Mein, who had succeeded Lieutenant Kingsmill, R.N., as Acting British Vice-Consul at Zeyla, held a Court and pronounced a sentence on an Abyssinian, who subsequently declared himself under French protection.

That that proceeding had given rise to a correspondence with the French Vice-Consul, who claimed the prisoner as a French-protected subject.

That the judicial proceedings were manifestly irregular, and that the Law Officers, to whom the case was referred had recommended that the prisoner should be released. (Law Officers, 24th October, 1885.)

That a despatch which was inclosed (No. 4 of the 19th December, 1885) was addressed to Major Hunter on the 19th December last, explaining that the British Consular officers could, as such, only exercise jurisdiction over British subjects and persons under British protection, and that such jurisdiction must be administered under the existing Orders in Council for the Levant, and that jurisdiction over natives must be exercised by native Tribunals, but that their proceedings should be under British supervision.

That it was explained, in reply, that no native Tribunals existed at Zeyla, and it was suggested by Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo, that the most convenient solution of the difficulty would be that the British officer in charge should be vested with full military and civil authority, and that a state of siege should be proclaimed. (Sir E. Baring, No. 6, Consular, 30th January, 1885.)

Questions as to British military occupation, declaration of martial law, and jurisdiction of foreign Consuls.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the course suggested by Sir E. Baring might properly be adopted under the circumstances, namely, that Zeyla should be considered as under British military occupation and governed by martial law, and, if so, whether that should be effected by a Declaration of the Egyptian Government, or of the British military authorities in occupation of the place, and whether the instructions of Major Hunter to Lieutenant Kingsmill of the 11th November, 1884, referred to in Sir E. Baring's despatch, might, in that case, be confirmed; and, further, whether the jurisdiction of foreign Consuls at Zeyla over their own nationals and "protégés" would be suspended during the existence of martial law.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Martial law not justifiable.

That we are of opinion that no circumstances are shown to exist which would justify either the British authorities or the Egyptian Government in proclaiming a state of siege or martial law.

There is no state of war or civil commotion to render such a course necessary.

Appointment of an Egyptian Civil Governor, or investiture of British officer with civil functions.

It appears to us that the Khedive's Government is still the lawfully constituted civil authority at Zeyla, and the difficulty which exists seems to have arisen from the failure of that Government to appoint a successor to the former Civil Governor, Abubekr Pasha.

The proper solution of the difficulty, therefore, would seem to be, to procure the Egyptian Government either to appoint a successor to Abubekr Pasha, or to procure the Egyptian Government to invest the British officer with the authority of the Civil Governor.

The succeeding questions in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter do not (in view of the opinion above expressed), strictly speaking, arise.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, February 26, 1886.

Law Officers, February 14, 1885. Confidential No. 5246, p. 42.
Memorandum (T. H. S.), September 15, 1885.
Mr. Egerton, No. 677, September 16, 1885.
To Mr. Lascelles, No. 75, October 12, 1885.
Mr. Egerton, No. 740, October 14, 1885.
To Law Officers, October 16, 1885
Law Officers, October 17, 1885. Confidential No. 5246, p. 62.
Ditto, October 24, 1885. Confidential No. 5246, p. 64.
To Mr. Egerton, No. 50, Consular, November 4, 1885.
Mr. Egerton, No. 71, Consular, November 24, 1885.
To Mr. Egerton, No. 56, Consular, December 19, 1885.
To Major Hunter, No. 4, December 19, 1885.
To India Office, December 31, 1885.
Sir E. Baring, No. 6, Consular, January 30, 1886.

---

No. 15.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 30.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 29, 1886.

My Lord,

G. Salamone. Imprisoned for coining.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 15th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship

---

* Confidential No. 5057, p. 45.

† Confidential No. 5057, pp. 195, 196.

‡ Confidential No. 5057.

1886

to transmit to us the accompanying papers* relative to the Petition of Giuseppe Salamone, a prisoner in the Corradino Civil Prison at Malta, for a remision of a portion of the sentence of three years' penal servitude that he was then undergoing for the crime of coining.

That the notes of evidence taken at the trial would be found in Mr. Cookson's despatch No. 16 of the 27th ultimo, and that it would be seen, from Mr. Cookson's No. 6 of the 27th January last, that he recommended that if any mitigation of the sentence was granted it should be accompanied by the condition that the applicant should not return to Egypt.

That our opinion was requested as to whether any mitigation of the sentence could properly be granted.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Petition for mitigation of sentence may be granted.

That, having regard to the Report of the Prison Superintendent, we are of opinion that some mitigation of sentence may properly be granted in the case of Giuseppe Salamone, as an encouragement to good conduct in prison, and we see no objection to the remission of the remainder of his sentence as prayed, but the question is, of course, one for your Lordship's discretion.

He should be allowed to return to Egypt.

With regard to Mr. Cookson's suggestion that the pardon should be conditional on the convict not returning to Egypt, we have to point out that if, as stated in the Petition, the man's wife and family and his home are in that country, the imposition of such a condition would deprive Her Majesty's mercy of a large measure of its gracious effect.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 16.

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Widening of the Suez Canal. Agree with M. Treitt as to powers of Company for effecting.

I AGREE generally with the opinion expressed by M. Treitt. In the short time at my disposal since I heard that my opinion was desired by to-morrow, I am unable to state my reasons at length.

But even if it be clear that the Canal Company would be acting within their rights, as I think they would, in widening the Canal in the manner proposed, without the consent of the Khedive, a serious difficulty seems to arise from the fact that, under their present scheme, it is apparently admitted on all hands, they are unable to effect their object without an alteration of their Statutes, and that for this the consent of the Khedive is requisite.

Khedive's sanction necessary for required alteration of Statutes.

He seems, therefore, to be somewhat master of the situation. There is nothing to bind him to give his consent to any alteration unless he please. And if he should choose to do so, he would seem just as well able to insist upon some pecuniary advantage for giving his consent to the change in the Statutes, whatever may be thought of the propriety of such a course, as he would be to stipulate for such an advantage as a condition of his consent to a widening of the Canal.

H.

House of Lords, April 2, 1886.

---

ANNEX.

(Inclosure in Sir J. Walsham's No. 16 of January 10, 1886.)

Opinion of M. Treitt respecting the enlargement of the Suez Canal.

§ 1. Des différents documents qui m'ont été soumis, il résulte que le Gouvernement d'Égypte refuse de donner son assentiment aux changements des Statuts nécessaires pour effectuer un emprunt dans les conditions votées par l'assemblée générale des actionnaires de la Compagnie du Canal Maritime de Suez.†

Le refus du Gouvernement Égyptien est fondé sur le motif que cet emprunt a pour objet, entre autres travaux indiqués, l'exécution de l'élargissement du Canal de Suez ; or, aucune autorisation pour l'exécution de travaux destinés à l'élargissement du Canal n'ayant encore été demandée au Gouvernement Égyptien (autorisation que celui-ci prétend nécessaire), il ne peut donner son consentement à un emprunt qui doit servir à l'exécution de ces travaux.

§ 2. Les motifs du refus du Gouvernement Égyptien sont exposés dans un Mémorandum signé par M. Keller; mais par une lettre écrite du Caire le 22 Novembre, 1885, son Excellence Nubar Pacha déclare à Mr. Egerton que ce Mémorandum, quoique signé par M. Keller seul, est le résumé de l'opinion émise par tout le Contentieux et partagée par M. Émile Ollivier.

C'est donc le Mémorandum qu'il faut examiner.

§ 3. D'abord, le Mémorandum prétend que le Gouvernement Égyptien n'est pas tenu à l'observance des décisions de la Commission Scientifique Internationale concernant la largeur du Canal de Suez.

Cette prétention est absolument erronée :

En effet, l'Article 3 de l'Acte de Concession du Canal, en date du 5 Janvier, 1856, déclare expressément que le Canal sera creusé à la profondeur et à la largeur fixées par la Commission Scientifique Internationale.

Or, quelle est la largeur fixée par cette Commission ?

Elle est de 80 à 100 mètres à la ligne d'eau.

Après mûr examen, la Commission dit, dans son Rapport, qu'un tel Canal lui semble devoir satisfaire longtemps encore à tous les besoins de l'avenir, et elle ajoute que rien, dans les conditions déterminées par elle, ne s'opposerait à des développements nouveaux pour peu qu'on les juges nécessaires.

Il est bon, je crois, de transcrire ici les conclusions de la Commission Scientifique Internationale :—

"En fixant toutes les conditions du Grand Canal Maritime qui doit unir la Méditerranée à la Mer Rouge et donner passage au commerce du monde, nous avions deux fautes à éviter : faire trop ou trop peu ; tenter une entreprise gigantesque, ou nous borner à des travaux insuffisants. Ces deux fautes auraient été à peu près aussi fâcheuses l'une que l'autre ; et nous ne devions jamais perdre de vue ni les intérêts généraux de la civilisation que ce projet doit immensément servir, ni les intérêts particuliers de la Compagnie qui doit l'exécuter.

"Nous croyons, après le plus mûr examen, être restés dans la mesure convenable et n'avoir exagéré les choses ni dans un sens ni dans l'autre.

"Un Canal de 80 à 100 mètres de large avec 8 mètres de profondeur, sans écluses à ses entrées, sans courant dangereux, de 30 lieues de long environ, avec des ports vastes et sûrs à ses deux extrémités, d'une conservation certaine et d'un entretien facile, s'ouvrant sur deux mouillages d'une étendue indéfinie, un tel Canal nous paraît satisfaire à tous les besoins de la navigation tels qu'ils se manifestent aujourd'hui. Il nous semble même qu'il satisfaira encore longtemps à tous les besoins de l'avenir. Rien d'ailleurs, dans les conditions déterminées par nous, ne s'opposerait à des développements nouveaux pour peu qu'on les jugeât nécessaires."

En d'autres termes, la conclusion de la Commission Scientifique est qu'un Canal de 80 à 100 mètres de largeur suffira aux besoins actuels, mais que le concessionnaire en se bornant quant à présent à cette largeur, aura le droit de l'augmenter en cas de nouveaux développements de la navigation.

Cette fixation de la largeur du Canal à 80 ou 100 mètres est devenue partie intégrante de l'Acte de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856 ; elle en complète l'Article 3 ; cet Article oblige les deux Parties Contractantes, qui s'en étaient rapportées à la Commission Scientifique pour déterminer la profondeur et la largeur du Canal.

Cette largeur de 80 à 100 mètres est donc un droit acquis à la Compagnie de Suez, avec réserve à son profit d'étendre encore cette largeur en cas de nouveaux besoins.

§ 4. A moins de violer l'Article 3 de l'Acte de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856, Article dont le texte a été complété par la Commission Scientifique Internationale, le Gouvernement Égyptien ne peut empêcher la Compagnie de Suez d'élargir son Canal ; celle-ci n'a pas besoin de l'autorisation du Gouvernement pour exécuter les travaux d'élargissement. Rien, dans l'Acte de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856, ne restreint la liberté des mouvements de la Compagnie. Elle a été parfaitement libre de ne donner d'abord au Canal qu'une largeur de 22 mètres ; elle pensait alors que cette largeur suffirait aux besoins de la navigation ; c'était, paraît-il, aussi l'opinion du Gouvernement Égyptien ; aucune objection n'a été faite par lui, et le Canal a été inauguré sous ses auspices.

N'est-ce point là preuve manifeste que dans la pensée des deux Parties Contractantes, le concessionnaire n'avait à subir aucune entrave dans ses procédés pour arriver à la meilleure exploitation de sa Concession ?

Aujourd'hui, la Compagnie, d'accord avec le monde maritime et commercial, pense que les exigences de la navigation demandent l'élargissement du Canal à 37 mètres ; personne ne peut lui refuser le droit de faire des travaux à cet effet.

Ne serait-il pas insensé de supposer que la Compagnie se soit laissé interdire le droit d'élargir le Canal ? Jamais pareille pensée n'a pu entrer dans l'esprit des deux Parties Contractantes au moment de la Concession ; si elle s'était manifestée, nul doute que l'éminent concessionnaire ne l'eut énergiquement repoussé, alors qu'il engageait des capitaux considérables dans cette entreprise.

La Compagnie est donc absolument libre, pendant toute la durée de la Concession, de donner à son Canal sur les terres qui lui ont été concédées, et dans les conditions fixées par la Commission Scientifique, la largeur que comportent les intérêts généraux de la navigation et l'intérêt de ses actionnaires, comme elle a été d'abord libre de ne donner au Canal qu'une largeur moindre.

Il y a là un fait acquis incontestable ; le dénier c'est violer l'Acte de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856.

§ 5. Aussi le Mémorandum a-t-il dû chercher d'autres motifs pour donner une base au refus du Gouvernement Égyptien.

---

* Inclosures in Foreign Office letter of March 15, 1886, to Her Majesty's Law Officers :—
Consul Cookson's despatches Nos. 6 and 16 of January 27 and February 27, 1886, respectively ; and Inclosures in Colonial Office letter of December 23, 1885.

† Voir la lettre de M. Charles de Lesseps à M. Émile Ollivier, 6 Juin, 1885.

1886

C'est à la Sentence Arbitrale rendue le 6 Juillet, 1864, par l'Empereur Napoléon III, que le Mémorandum a recours.

Son argumentation peut, je crois, se résumer ainsi qu'il suit:—

"Les Articles 10 et 11 de l'Acte de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856, abandonnaient à la Compagnie de Suez la jouissance des terres qui pourront lui être nécessaires le long du Canal, et ces terres devaient figurer sur des plans annexés à l'Acte de Concession.

"Ces plans n'ayant jamais été dressés, la concession des terres nécessaires doit être considérée comme nulle, et toutes les dispositions concernant la largeur du Canal doivent être considérées comme n'ayant aucune valeur pratique par défaut de sanction, puisque le Gouvernement Égyptien n'avait encore concédé aucun terrain."

Cette argumentation ne peut résister à un examen sérieux.

Prétendre que toutes les dispositions concernant la largeur du Canal doivent être considérées comme nulles par le motif qu'aucun terrain n'avait encore été concédé ni désigné, ne peut se soutenir ni en fait ni en droit.

En fait:

La concession de terres le long du Canal avait été faite par l'Acte même de Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856. La Concession du Canal et des terres pour l'établir sont chose indivisible; par l'Article 10 de l'Acte de Concession, il est abandonné à la Compagnie, sans impôt ni redevance, la jouissance de tous les terrains n'appartenant pas à des particuliers qui pourront être nécessaires.

En vertu du texte de l'Article 10, l'abandon des terres nécessaires est définitif; il ne reste plus qu'à déterminer l'étendue et les limites des terrains concédés ou abandonnés à la Compagnie.

Pour cela, les parties avaient déclaré qu'elles s'en référaient aux plans annexés.

§ 6. Or, ces plans n'ayant jamais été dressés, le Mémorandum en conclut que la concession des terres nécessaires, stipulée dans l'Article 10, est nulle.

En droit:

Cette conclusion est parfaitement erronée, car un acte est valable et produit ses effets, lors même que l'exécution de cet acte est temporairement entravée ou bien est soumise à une condition comme la confection de plans à annexer; les terres nécessaires étaient l'objet d'un abandon définitif, sauf à en déterminer l'étendue et les limites.

Le Gouvernement Égyptien et la Compagnie de Suez ont si bien compris que le défaut des plans n'entraînait pas la nullité de la concession des terres nécessaires, que d'un commun accord les deux parties ont constitué un Arbitre pour déterminer l'étendue et les limites de ces terres. La largeur du Canal était indépendante des terres concédées, lesquelles avaient pour objet non seulement le creusement du Canal, mais aussi l'exploitation du pays sur les deux bords du Canal, la défense de ces bords, en un mot, le développement industriel de l'entreprise.

L'Arbitre, l'Empereur Napoléon, a rendu sa décision le 6 Juillet, 1864.

Cette sentence complète les Articles 10 et 11 de l'Acte de Concession, comme la décision de la Commission Scientifique en avait complété l'Article 3.

§ 7. Le Mémorandum prétend aussi qu'il est évident que la largeur du Canal était subordonnée à la concession des terrains sur lesquels le creusement devait être effectué.

Cette évidence ne m'apparaît pas le moins du monde.

On ne voit nulle part que la largeur du Canal ait jamais été l'objet d'une discussion entre le Souverain de l'Égypte et le concessionnaire.

Les deux contractants ont été d'accord pour s'en rapporter à la décision de la Commission Scientifique; la largeur du Canal ne pourrait être subordonnée à la concession des terrains sur lesquels le creusement devait se faire; les terrains à concéder devaient être considérables sur les deux bords du Canal, de manière à pouvoir donner à l'entreprise tous les développements qu'elle comportait; l'espace occupé par le Canal était peu considérable, et sa largeur ne devait pas compter pour beaucoup dans la quantité des terres abandonnées à la Compagnie.

Aussi, cette largeur n'a jamais été l'objet d'une discussion; c'est aujourd'hui la première fois qu'elle devient l'objet d'un dissentiment.

Il n'en a pas été fait non plus mention dans la Convention du 23 Avril, 1869, par laquelle le Gouvernement Égyptien et la Compagnie de Suez ont réglé toutes les questions qui restaient à résoudre entre les deux parties; bien au contraire, l'Article III de cette Convention stipule que la Compagnie n'a pas d'autre objet que l'exploitation, l'entretien, et l'augmentation du Canal Maritime.

L'augmentation du Canal est donc un droit acquis à la Compagnie.

§ 8. Il faut aussi remarquer que la Sentence Arbitrale, qui me paraît avoir jugé avec beaucoup d'équité les différentes questions soumises à son appréciation souveraine, n'a pas eu à dire un mot sur la largeur du Canal, tant il était vrai pour les parties intéressées que cette question avait été définitivement tranchée par la Commission Scientifique Internationale. N'y a-t-il pas là preuve évidente que c'est bien inopportunément que cette question est soulevée aujourd'hui?

§ 9. Enfin, le Mémorandum prétend que le Gouvernement Égyptien n'a laissé à la Compagnie, sur les deux côtés du Canal, qu'une bande de terrains en formant les dépendances, et les a affectés à une destination spéciale qui ne saurait être changée sans un nouvel accord entre les deux parties.

Il y a là encore une inexactitude qui ne peut se justifier.

C'est en vertu de la Sentence Arbitrale du 6 Juillet, 1864, et par interprétation et application de l'Article 3 de la Concession du 5 Janvier, 1856, que la Compagnie a été mise en possession et jouissance de terres nécessaires longeant, les deux côtés, le Canal. La largeur de ces terres varie de 200 à 1,500 mètres; elles sont destinées à faciliter l'exploitation du Canal et à assurer sa prospérité. Ces terres n'ont pas, que je sache, d'autre destination. Je cherche en vain l'affectation spéciale dont parle le Mémorandum, à moins qu'on applique improprement cette dénomination au droit réservé au Gouvernement Égyptien de créer sur ces terres des établissements de Douanes, de péage, ou de défense; mais il faut bien noter que ce droit n'existe au profit du Gouvernement Égyptien qu'autant que ces établissements ne gêneront pas l'exploitation du Canal.

On ne saurait donc voir une affectation spéciale dans la réserve créée au profit du Gouvernement Égyptien, dont le droit est subordonné à la volonté ou aux besoins de la Compagnie.

J'ai donc le droit de reprocher au Mémorandum de n'avoir pas dit en quoi consistait l'affectation spéciale dont il argumente, et dont je n'ai pu me rendre compte.

§ 10. Les terres concédées sont entre les mains de la Compagnie une propriété temporaire pendant toute la durée de la Concession.

La Compagnie a le droit d'user de ces terres pour élargir le Canal sans autorisation; elle opère sur sa propre chose, et peut ainsi donner aux besoins de l'entreprise une entière et complète satisfaction.

Ajoutons que la prétention actuelle du Gouvernement Égyptien ne s'est pas manifestée pendant les opérations de l'Arbitrage Impérial du 6 Juillet, 1864. Je ne doute pas que si cette prétention se fut produite alors, elle n'eut été écartée par une disposition spéciale de la sentence, car à aucune époque il n'a pu entrer dans l'esprit des deux contractants que le concessionnaire fut soumis à des restrictions si peu justifiables.

Il était évidemment dans la commune intention des parties, que la Companie eût toute la liberté d'action pour l'élargissement du Canal, afin de donner satisfaction à tous les besoins maritimes et commerciaux, à mesure que ces besoins se produiraient.

§ 11. Pour ces motifs, mon opinion est que le Gouvernement Égyptien commet un acte arbitraire et injuste en s'opposant à l'élargissement du Canal de Suez, sans une compensation pécuniaire.

Les annales de la jurisprudence constatent qu'en pareils cas la justice a toujours pris en considération l'intention commune des contractants au moment du contrat, ainsi que les prescrivent les Articles 1156 et suivants du Code Civil Français.

Or, il résulte de tous les faits relatifs au Canal de Suez, que le concessionnaire devait avoir toute liberté d'action pour le développement et la prospérité de son œuvre, à laquelle le Gouvernement de l'Égypte a, dès 1850, apporté un bienveillant concours.

Je ne puis comprendre que le Gouvernement actuel de l'Égypte apporte des entraves à une entreprise dont l'influence bienfaisante et civilisatrice est appelée à régénérer les bords du Nil.

(Signé) TREITT,
Avocat à la Cour d'Appel.

Paris, le 9 Janvier, 1886.

---

No. 17.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 28.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Petition for mitigation of sentence on P. Gameo for coining.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 14th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the Petition of Pietro Gameo, a prisoner in the Corradino civil prison at Malta, for a remission of a portion of the sentence of seven years' hard labour, which he was undergoing for the crime of coining.

That the notes of evidence taken at the man's trial were inclosed in Mr. Cookson's No. 18 of the 29th ultimo, and that it would be observed that Mr. Cookson, in forwarding the information, added that "he knows no special circumstances in the case which would authorize him in recommending a remission of the sentence."

That, nevertheless, the sentences imposed by Her Majesty's Consular Courts in the Levant had been so frequently mitigated on the advice of the Law Officers of the Crown, that our opinion was requested as to whether the prayer of the Petition should be granted in that case, and, if so, to what extent.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No reason for acceding to Petition.

That we do not see any special circumstances in this case which should induce your Lordship to recommend any remission of the sentence pronounced.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 18.

Case prepared by Sir J. Pauncefote for the Opinion of the Lord Chancellor; in reply to which the Memorandum of 12*th May, as printed below, was received.*

Foreign Office, January 26, 1886.

Enforcement of Egyptian Press Law on foreigners.

IN Turkey foreigners committing offences against the Ottoman Government or Ottoman subjects are amenable to the jurisdiction of the Native Tribunals, subject to the conditions laid down in the Capitulations as to the presence at the trial of the

---

* Inclosures 2 and 3 in Colonial Office letter of March 12, 1886.

1886

Ambassador or Consul. Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, Consular Jurisdiction in the Levant, 4118, of the 22nd April, 1880, and instructions to Sir H. Layard, No. 319, of the 13th May, 1880. (Docs. 2 and 3.)

But in Egypt foreigners committing offences against natives or the local laws are not amenable to the Native Tribunals. (Doc. 4: Report by Consul Cookson, in Sir E. Malet's despatch No. 328 of the 26th July, 1883, paragraph 7, Confidential Print on Judicial Reforms in Egypt, p. 14.)

The Press Law in Egypt is now regulated by the Decree of the 26th November, 1881. (Doc. 5: Parliamentary Paper, "Egypt No. 5, 1882," p. 18.)

It was previously regulated by the Ottoman Law of the 1st January, 1865, and by a Vizirial Ordinance of the 12th March, 1867. (Docs. 6 and 7, and Law Officers' Report, Doc. 8).

Case of the "Bosphore Égyptien."

The correspondence laid before Parliament with regard to the suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien" newspaper is inclosed (Doc. 9: Parliamentary Paper, "Egypt No. 12, 1885"); and also the Reports of the Law Officers of the Crown on the question which arose out of that incident. (Doc. 10.)

In that case, the Egyptian Government having cancelled the licence to print the newspaper which had been granted under the Press Law of 1881, and their order for its suppression having been disobeyed, they proceeded to enter forcibly the premises where the printer, M. Serrière, a French subject, carried on the publication, and to close the printing-office, in defiance of the protest of the French Consul, to whom they had given notice of the intended course of action, and whose co-operation they had invoked in accordance with the Capitulations. (Doc. 9, p. 41.)

The French Government demanded reparation for this proceeding, as being an infraction of the Capitulations, and Her Majesty's Government thought it right, after consideration of the facts, to advise the Egyptian Government to convey to the French Government an expression of regret. (Doc. 9, p. 29.)

M. Serrière had obtained his licence to print the "Bosphore Égyptien" under the Law of 1881; but it will be seen that the French Acting Consul-General, M. Taillandier, declared that the Law of 1881 had never been accepted by the French Government, and was not binding on French subjects. (Doc. 9, p. 15.)

I am to observe, however, that the old Law of 1875 and Vizirial Ordinance of 1867 were repealed so far as any of their enactments might be contrary to the new Law (see section 22 of Law of 1881); and it would seem that even if M. Taillandier's contention were correct, it was still competent to the Egyptian Government to order the suppression of the "Bosphore Égyptien" under the old Law, which was certainly accepted by all the Powers.

Case of the "El Ahram."

This was held in the case of the "El Ahram" newspaper before the Mixed Tribunals. (See copy of Report: Doc. 11.)

On this point I am to invite attention to the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown of the 1st February, 1882, in which they advised that the Press Law of 1881 was binding on foreigners. (Doc. 12.)

Case of Gustave Laffon.

An important decision was also delivered by the Court of Appeal of the Mixed Tribunals at Alexandria in June 1884 in the case of Gustave Laffon, a French subject. That case was decided on the Law of 1865 and the Vizirial Ordinance of 1867, and the Court laid down that the Egyptian Government had the right, by an administrative Order, to suppress a journal, independently of any other penalties which might have been incurred under the Law. (Doc. 13.)

How is the Egyptian administrative order suppressing foreign journals to be enforced?

Assuming, therefore, that either under the Law of 1865 and the Vizirial Ordinance of 1867, or under the Law of 1881, the Egyptian Government has the right to suppress a foreign journal by an administrative Order, the next question is how such Order, if disobeyed, can be enforced.

In considering this question, it should be borne in mind that the Egyptian Government can exercise no jurisdiction, civil or criminal, over foreigners.

Accordingly, in the correspondence relating to the case of the "Bosphore Égyptien" the French Government (as appears from the French Yellow Book 1885, p. 3) admitted the right of the Egyptian Government to order the suppression of a foreign journal, but denied their right to close a foreign printing-office in execution of the Order of Suppression. (Doc. 14.)

It is important to observe that the question of the right of the Egyptian Government to enforce its own Order of Suppression of a foreign journal has been judicially decided in France.

Suppression of "L'Indépendant" enforced by French Consul.

In 1871 the Count de Maillard de Maray (sometimes styled "Marafy") issued a newspaper in Egypt called "L'Indépendant," without a licence. The Egyptian

Government claimed the right of closing the printing-press from which it issued, and which was situated in a foreign dwelling, and they called on the French Consul-General to assist, as required by the Capitulations, but the latter declined to admit the right which they claimed of closing the printing-press.

The point was referred to the arbitration of the British, German, and Italian Consuls-General, who delivered an award declaring that it was the duty of the French Consul-General to take the necessary measure to put a stop to the violation of the Press Law complained of. (Doc. 15.)

Accordingly, the French Consul-General himself ordered the suppression of the "Indépendant," and against that order Count de Maillard de Maray appealed to the Court of Aix, which is the French Court of Appeal from the Judgments of the French Consular Courts in the Levant.

And appeal against such action dismissed by Court at Aix.

The Judgment of the Court of Aix dismissing the appeal was delivered by M. Féraud-Giraud, the author of the well-known work on French jurisdiction in the Levant. (Doc. 16.)

The Judgment lays down the principle that the Press Law of Egypt is binding on foreigners, but that the French Consular Court is alone competent to punish a French subject for a violation of that Law; that such Court cannot apply either the enactments of the Egyptian Press Law nor those of the French Press Law, but that, on the complaint of the Egyptian Government that a French subject has violated the Egyptian Law by publishing a journal without authority, it was the right and the duty of the French Consular Court to repress the abuse; and that in the case before the Court, the Consul, without attempting to apply the penalties of fine and imprisonment prescribed by the Egyptian Press Law, had properly taken the necessary measures to put a stop to its violation.

Principles applied in Japan.

The same principle has been generally acknowledged and applied in Japan, where foreigners enjoy by Treaty the same immunities of person and property, and the same Consular jurisdiction, as they do in Egypt under the Capitulations and usages.

Views of the United States' Government.

In a despatch from Mr. Fish (United States' Secretary of State) to Mr. Bingham (then United States' Minister in Japan), dated the 7th January, 1884 ("Foreign Relations of the United States," 1874, p. 658: Doc. 17), it is observed that, while the Japanese laws are binding on foreigners, they cannot be put into execution against them by the Japanese authorities, but can only be enforced through the action of the Consuls; and in a further despatch of the 2nd May, 1876 ("Foreign Relations of the United States," 1876, p. 367: Doc. 18), the same view is expressed as regards the Press Laws of Japan.

That view has likewise been maintained in a succession of Reports by the British Law Officers of the Crown, of which copies are also inclosed. (Doc. 19.)

Principle laid down by Appeal Court of Aix.

If the principle laid down by the Appeal Court of Aix be correct, it would seem that the proper course for the Egyptian Government to pursue, in the case of the journals which have lately appeared without authority, is to call on the Consuls whom it may concern to take the necessary measures for their suppression.

Egyptian action in case of the "Bosphore Égyptien" contrary to judgment of Court at Aix.

But Nubar Pasha, the present Minister for Foreign Affairs in Egypt, declines to accept the law as laid down by the Court of Aix, and insists that the Egyptian authorities have the right themselves to enforce the Egyptian Press Law on foreigners, and are only called on to invoke the aid of the foreign Consuls when it becomes necessary for that purpose to enter the premises of a foreigner, owing to the immunities afforded by the Capitulations.

Accordingly, in the case of the "Bosphore Égyptien," it being necessary to enter the premises of M. Serrière for the purpose of closing his printing-press, the Egyptian Government invited the French Consul to attend whilst the Egyptian authorities executed the law; and on the refusal of the French Consul to permit the entry, they proceeded non obstante.

As before stated, Her Majesty's Government were unable to support the Egyptian Government in this proceeding, which they considered a breach of the Capitulations.

The ground on which Nubar Pasha takes exception to the decision of the Court of Aix will be gathered from the notes on that case which have been furnished by his Excellency. (Inclosure 2 in Mr. Egerton's despatch No. 830 of the 13th ultimo: Doc. 20.)

It will be seen that his Excellency still adheres to the view of the law under which he proceeded in the case of the "Bosphore Égyptien," and that, in his opinion, the Egyptian authorities are alone competent to enforce the Egyptian Press Law, and have the right to do so.

1886

British Circular to the Powers, with draft of Press Law.

In the hope of promoting a solution of the difficulty, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Egyptian Government, addressed a Circular to the Powers inviting them to agree to a draft of a Press Law giving to the Mixed Tribunals the necessary powers to punish foreigners for publishing newspapers in Egypt without licence from the Government, or after the licence should have been withdrawn.

A copy of the draft Law and of the Memorandum which accompanied it is inclosed. (Doc. 21.)

French Government decline to accept Draft Law.

Further violation of Law.

The Governments of Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy have expressed their willingness to accept that Law, but the French Government have declined to do so.

In the meanwhile, as will be seen from Mr. Egerton's despatch No. 760 (Doc. 1), no less than five foreign journals, taking advantage of the situation, have appeared without licence; and it is a matter of urgent importance that this "flagrant violation of the law," as it is termed in the Judgment of the Court of Aix, should be stopped.

I am to inclose two further despatches just received from Mr. Egerton on the subject (Nos. 27 and 28 of the 19th January, 1886), reporting the action taken by Nubar Pasha.

Questions decided.

The question on which the Secretary of State desires to be favoured with the opinion of the Lord Chancellor is, whether the Egyptian Government are right in their contention that their own authorities are competent to enforce against a foreigner an administrative Order for the suppression of a journal; or whether, as laid down by the Court of Aix, the proper course is for the Egyptian Government to call on the foreign Consul of the offender's nationality to take the necessary measures for the enforcement of the Order.

(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

P.S. February 4, 1886.—Two further despatches are inclosed, the first from Mr. Egerton (No. 30 of the 20th January), forwarding a Judgment delivered by the Mixed Court of First Instance at Cairo in the case of the proprietor of the "Bosphore Égyptien," against the Egyptian Government. This Judgment declares illegal the closing of the printing-press by the Egyptian Government, and condemns the latter to the payment of damages for the loss resulting from such action.

The second despatch (Sir E. Baring, No. 36, of the 27th January) contains the observations of Mr. Cookson, Her Majesty's Consul at Alexandria, on this decision.

J. P.

---

List of Documents.

No.
1. Mr. Egerton, No. 760, October 24, 1885.
2. Memorandum, Sir E. Hertslet, No. 4118, April 22, 1880.
3. To Sir H. Layard, No. 319, May 13, 1880.
4. Report, Consul Cookson, July 24, 1883.
5. Press Law of Egypt, November 26, 1881; "Egypt No. 5 (1882)." Foreign Office No. 2552.
6. Ottoman Press Law, January 1, 1865, 8vo. 5296, p. 320.
7. Vizirial Ordinance on the Press, March 12, 1867. (In Lord Lyons' despatch No. 155 of April 23, 1867.) See 8vo. 5296, p. 325.
8. Law Officers' Report on above Law and Ordinance, July 25, 1872. Confidential No. 4098, p. 170.
9. Parliamentary Paper, "Bosphore Égyptien;" "Egypt No. 12 (1885)." Foreign Office No. 2964.
10. Law Officers' Reports on suppression of ditto, April 1885. Confidential No. 5246, pp. 46-48.
11. Judgment in case of "El Ahram" newspaper. (In Sir E. Baring's No. 297 of April 2, 1885.) Confidential 5148, pp. 2–4.
12. Law Officers' Report on Press Law of 1881. Confidential No. 4783, p. 20.
13. Decision of Court of Appeal in case of G. Laffon. (In Mr. Egerton's No. 830 of December 13, 1885.)
14. French Yellow Book, 1885, "Bosphore Égyptien." (In Lord Lyons' No. 341 of May 24, 1885.)
15. Awards of English, German, and Italian Consuls-General. Case of "l'Indépendant." (In Sir E. Baring's No. 286 of March 29, 1885.) Confidential No. 5106, p. 311.
16. Judgment of Court of Appeal of Aix in case of "l'Indépendant."
17. Despatch from Mr. Fish to Mr. Bingham respecting Japanese Press Law, January 7, 1874. ("Foreign Relations of United States, 1874," p. 658.)
18. Ditto, ditto, May 2, 1876. ("Foreign Relations of United States, 1876," p. 367.)
19. Law Officers' Reports, May 2 and July 5, 1876, Confidential No. 4028, pp. 47 and 49; September 1877, Confidential No. 4216, p. 32; December 31, 1878, Confidential No. 4280, p. 39 A; September 22 and October 3, 1879, Confidential No. 4328, pp. 43 and 44.
20. Objections of Nubar Pasha to Decision of Court of Aix. (Inclosure in Mr. Egerton's No. 830, December 13, 1885.)
21. Draft Law and Memorandum by Mr. R. West, September 1885. (Inclosure in despatch to Sir J. Walsham, No. 752, September 12, 1885.)

---

Foreigners bound by local laws.

Their immunity from Egyptian jurisdiction.

Consuls bound to enforce local laws.

Course open to Egyptian Government.

I think it clear that foreigners in Egypt are bound to obey the local laws made for the peace, order, and good government of the country. It seems clear, too, that the Egyptian Government are not entitled to exercise criminal jurisdiction over a foreigner. The Native Tribunals cannot affect his person or property by their own authority alone, or warrant an entry upon his premises against his will Nor can the Government, as an administrative act, enforce a penalty, attack his person, or violate his premises. But it follows, in my judgment, from this very immunity, that the offender's natural authorities are bound to enforce obedience to local laws, such as Press Law, enacted for the peace and good government of the country. And I think that the proper course is for the Egyptian Government to call upon the foreign Consul of the offender's nationality to take the necessary measures for the enforcement of an administrative Order for the suppression of a journal. It would, of course, be competent for the Egyptian Government to take any steps for the enforcement of such an Order which would be possible for them consistently with the immunity from local jurisdiction possessed by foreigners in Egypt.

(Signed) HERSCHELL.

46, Grosvenor Gardens, May 12, 1886.

---

No. 19.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received May 26.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 25, 1886.

Egyptian tribute on account of Massowah, now occupied by the Italians.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a letter which had been received from Mr. Edgar Vincent,* the Financial Adviser to the Egyptian Government, on the subject of the tribute paid by the Government to the Porte, on account of the ports of Zeyla and Massowah, which had now passed out of the practical possession of the Khedive, and were respectively in British and Italian occupation.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was further to inclose a Memorandum which had been drawn up in the Foreign Office upon the question, and copies of opinions given by the Law Officers of the Crown in February and October of last year, together with a collection of Firmans relating to Egypt, and those which related specially to the cession of Zeyla and Massowah to the Khedive Ismaïl.†

That it would be seen that by the terms of the present Khedive's Firman of Investiture (August 2, 1879) His Highness was precluded from abandoning to others on any pretext or motive, in whole or in part, the privileges accorded to Egypt, or which were confided to him, and which were an emanation of the prerogatives inherent in the Sovereign Power, nor any portion of territory.

That it would not, therefore, be open to the Egyptian Government to enter into any formal arrangement for the temporary or permanent acquisition by England of Zeyla, or by Italy of Massowah, in consideration of a money payment, without the previous sanction of the Porte.

But that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our attention to the opinion expressed by the Law Officers in their Report of the 14th February, 1885, already referred to, that the arrangement for payment of tribute to the Sultan could only be got rid of by a new Agreement, except, it might be, in the case of the territories being lost to Egypt by conquest.

As to claim for the reinstatement of Egyptians by the Porte, or for relief from proportion of the tribute.

That the proceedings of the Italian authorities at Massowah amounted to a forcible dispossession of the Egyptian Administration, and that your Lordship wished to know whether, in our opinion, the Egyptian Government could, under those circumstances, claim that the Porte should either take steps to restore Egyptian authority there, or should relieve Egypt of such a proportion of the total tribute as might be considered to represent the value of Massowah.

Further, whether until that proportional amount was ascertained, the Khedive would be entitled to withhold payment of the tribute of £ T. 14,000 a-year, now payable on account of Zeyla.

---

* Mr. E. Vincent, March 11, 1886.

† Memoranda (T. H. S.), September 15 and October 2; Law Officers, February 14 and October 17, 1885 (Confidential No. 5246, pp. 42 and 62); Firmans, 1841–1879 (Confidential No. 4747); Sir H. Drummond Wolff, No. 37, January 23, 1886 (Confidential No. 5361, p. 56).

1886

Also as to withholding Zeyla tribute until the proportion is settled.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to observe, in connection with those two questions, that the general tribute for Egypt was entirely pledged by the Porte as security for the payment of various foreign loans. That the Zeyla tribute did not appear to be so pledged.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Such claim cannot be made.

That we are of opinion that the Egyptian Government could not successfully claim that the Porte either should take steps to restore Egyptian authority at Massowah, or should relieve Egypt of such a proportion of the total tribute as may be considered to represent the value of Massowah.

This seems to us to follow from the opinions expressed by our predecessors in their Reports of the 14th February and the 17th October, 1885, with which we agree.

The Porte would probably reply that it was not through any default or omission on their part that the Egyptian Government ceased to exercise jurisdiction over Massowah. It follows, therefore, that the Khedive would not be entitled to withhold payment of the Zeyla tribute until the proportional part of the general tribute attributable to Massowah should be ascertained.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 20.

[In reply to the following communication, the Lord Chancellor replied as under:—]

(Private.)
Foreign Office, June 12, 1886.

My dear Lord Chancellor,

Claims of the ex-Khedive against the Egyptian Government.

LORD ROSEBERY would be extremely obliged to you if you would kindly look at the following papers relating to the claims of the ex-Khedive of Egypt, Ismaïl Pasha, and his family:—

1. Printed correspondence, Confidential No. 5220.
2. Memorandum thereon, 14th May, 1886, Confidential No. 5276.
3. Law of Liquidation, Parliamentary Paper No. 2322.
4. Memorial of Ismaïl.

As at present advised, Lord Rosebery is disposed to hold that, as a question of strict right, the Law of Liquidation is a complete bar to the whole of these claims, which do not come within the exception mentioned in Article 86 of that Law. Further, that the Liquidation having been an international Act, the Khedivial claims could not be entertained, with a view to an equitable settlement, without the consent of the Powers parties to the Law of Liquidation.

Sir H. D. Wolff's last despatch on the subject No. 173 of the 31st May (Most Confidential and Secret) is annexed in MS., and Lord Rosebery is disposed to send the telegram which you will find among the papers in red ink.

Before doing so, however, he would be very glad to be favoured with your opinion on the point.

I remain, &c.
Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

P.S.—The "barring" clause of the Law of Liquidation is section 86. But no notice seems to be taken of section 83, which appears equally strong.

J. P.

---

Memorandum by the Lord Chancellor.

Claims excluded by the Law of Liquidation. Concurrence of Powers necessary for their consideration.

I CONCUR in the view that, as matter of strict right, the ex-Khedive's claims are excluded by the Law of Liquidation. Any appeal for an equitable consideration of these claims could, I think, only be entertained on the concurrence of all the Powers who were parties to the Law of Liquidation.

H.

46, Grosvenor Gardens, S.W., June 15, 1886.

---

No. 21.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 3.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, September 2, 1886.

Khedivial Civil List. Right to surrender a portion for use of the State.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, and to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on a question which had been raised in connection with the financial administration of Egypt, namely, whether the Khedive and his Council of Ministers had the right legally to surrender to the State, towards its public expenditure, any portion of the Civil List of 300,000*l.* set apart in the yearly Budget for the maintenance of the members of the Khedivial family, or whether the whole of that sum must be applied for their benefit.

That the circumstances under which the Civil List was created and fixed at 300,000*l.* a-year were as follows:—

That the ex-Khedive of Egypt, Ismaïl Pasha, abdicated on the 26th June, 1879. That an account of the circumstances attending that event would be found in the Reference to the Law Officers which was embodied in their Report of the 21st November, 1883.

That up to the time of the abdication of Ismaïl Pasha the Khedive of Egypt had unlimited control over the finances of the country. That he could grant pensions and withdraw them at pleasure, and, in fact, subject to the payment of the stipulated tribute to the Sultan of Turkey, he was, during the period of his tenure of the Khediviate, the absolute and irresponsible Controller of the Egyptian revenues. That thus Ismaïl Pasha had been able to secure for himself and members of his family large estates which had been acquired by methods of rapacity and oppression, and at the expense and to the detriment of the country and of the public creditors.

That in 1878 Egypt had been reduced to bankruptcy by his extravagance and extortions; and that an International Commission of Inquiry was instituted ("Commission Supérieure d'Enquête"), which resulted in the unconditional restitution by the Khedive and the members of his family of all their estates.

That it was important to note that the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête," in its Preliminary Report, after stating its conclusion respecting the restitution of those estates, added:—

"Les conclusions auxquelles nous sommes arrivés doivent nécessairement avoir pour conséquence l'obligation d'inscrire au Budget du Gouvernement les dotations que réclame la situation du chef de l'État et des membres de sa famille."

That in its second Report (10th April, 1879) the Commission dealt in greater detail with that subject, and that our particular attention was invited to the extract from that Report at p. 47 of the print.

Arrangements as to amount of Civil List.

That it would be seen that the Commission, after recording the loyal assent of the Khedive to the principle laid down that the Chief of the State, having theretofore exercised "une autorité sans limite," was personally responsible for the disastrous results, and that, after stating that His Highness and the members of his family had consequently surrendered their estates, they proceeded to give effect to their proposal above quoted as to the grant of proper dotations to the Head of the State and the members of his family, and recommended a sum of 300,000*l.* a-year to be set apart out of the revenues and applied for that purpose, pending final arrangements with all the creditors of the State.

That, almost immediately after the date of that Report, Ismaïl Pasha abdicated (26th June, 1879), and the Council of Ministers, by an Order dated the 1st July, 1879, proceeded to make such change in the distribution ("allocations") of the Civil List of 300,000*l.* as were called for by that event.

That further changes in the distribution of the Civil List of 1880 were made by a Ministerial Order of the 21st January of that year (Print, p. 44), and a further sum of 15,000*l.* was added for the use of Prince Halim (see Report of Commission, p. 47).

That in March 1880 the International Commission was established, charged with the task of preparing the Law of Liquidation, for the settlement of the Egyptian Debt, and the adoption of a financial system destined to obviate for the future the renewal of past abuses.

That the Powers agreed by anticipation to the Law to be so framed; that it was passed on the 17th July, 1880, and is obligatory on all Tribunals in Egypt, and on persons of all nationalities.

1886

That the Commission inquired into the claims of the Khedivial family, and made provision for them by Articles 74, 75, 76, and 77 of the Law.

That it fixed the Civil List at 300,000*l.*, plus an allowance of 15,000*l.* to Prince Halim.

That it imposed certain sacrifices on the public creditors, and that, having made a complete financial settlement, it introduced in the Law the all-important Article 86, barring all claims against the State existing before January 1880.

That the Declaration of the Powers under which they bound themselves to accept the conclusions of the International Commission would be found at p. 43 of the Parliamentary Paper "Egypt No. 10 (1884)," and that it would be observed that the Decree appended thereto, and establishing the Commission, declared that it should take the conclusions of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête" as a point of departure.

That the conclusions of the last-named Commission, so far as concerned the Civil List, were contained in the extract from its Report already referred to (see Print, p. 47).

That the Civil List had accordingly been fixed in the yearly Budget at 300,000*l.*, plus 15,000*l.* specially allotted to Prince Halim by section 78 of the Law of Liquidation.

Control of Khedive over Civil List.

That the distribution of the sum of 300,000*l.* set apart for the Civil List was clearly within the absolute discretion of the Khedive acting with the advice of his Ministers.

That that appeared from the extract of the Report of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête" (Print, p. 47), also from the Memorandum of M. Serra-Rocca, one of the Legal Advisers of the Egyptian Government (Print, p. 41, "Deuxième Réclamation"); also from the arguments presented on behalf of the Egyptian Government in the case of the Princess Fatma Hanem before the Native Tribunal of First Instance (Print, p. 16), and from the Judgment of that Court (Print, p. 15). That it had been contended, however, that the Khedive was not bound to exhaust the fund at his disposal, but might economize any portion of it which he might not think fit to apply for the benefit of any member of the Khedivial family, and surrender such portion to the State for ordinary purposes of public expenditure.

Question as to distribution of the "allocation" of the late mother of Ismaïl.

That that question had been raised on the occasion of the recent death of the mother of Ismaïl Pasha, whose "allocation" in the Civil List for 1886 amounted to 20,000*l.* (Print, p. 15).

That the other members of the Khedivial family insisted that the 20,000*l.* which had thus fallen in should be applied for the purposes of the Civil List only, and distributed accordingly among them.

That it was no doubt the fact that the Commission of Liquidation had adopted the recommendation of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête," appearing in their Report (Print, p. 47), which was to be the "point of departure," and that they had merely increased the special allowance to Prince Halim from 10,000*l.* to 15,000*l.*

That it might be argued that, under the terms of that Report, the members of the Khedivial family had a vested interest in the 300,000*l.*, and that the Khedive, though entitled to apportion it among them, could not divert its application from the particular objects and purposes for which it was set apart by the Commission of Liquidation and by agreement among the Powers; and that if such right were admitted, he might entirely defeat such objects and purposes by surrendering to the State any portion of the money, leaving members of the Khedivial family who had surrendered their estates without any provision, contrary to the intention expressed in the Report of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête" (Print, p. 47).

That on the other hand it was urged that if the whole of the 300,000*l.* should not be reasonably required to meet the suitable needs of the Khedivial family, there was no reason why a portion should not be economized in the public interest, and the unapplied balance appropriated to such uses and in the same manner as the surplus of any sums inscribed in the Budget to meet other items of public expenditure.

That on that point, however, some doubt was thrown by the last paragraph but one of the argument of the Egyptian Government in the case of the Princess Fatma Hanem (Print, p. 18).

That our attention was invited to four despatches from Sir H. D. Wolff, Nos. 203, 206, 210, and 217 (Papers 7 to 10), which dealt with the question.

Views of French Chargé d'Affaires and Khedive.

That it would be seen from Sir H. D. Wolff's telegram of the 8th July (Paper 6, No. 5), that the French Chargé d'Affaires in Egypt held that the 20,000*l.* which had become available by the death of Ismaïl Pasha's mother could not properly be applied to any other purposes but those of the Civil List, and that it appeared from his despatch No. 206 (Paper 8) that the Khedive took the same view. That on the other hand the opinion of the Law Advisers of the Egyptian Government, of which a copy would be found in his despatch No. 217 (Paper 10), was to a contrary effect.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question submitted in his letter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That it appears both from the Preliminary Report of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête" of August 1878, and from their second Report of the 10th April, 1879, that the allocation of £ E. 300,000 per annum for the needs of the ex-Khedive and his family formed the basis of arrangement between them and the present Egyptian Government. Upon that footing the Powers sanctioned the recommendations of the International Commission of Liquidation, which adopted the recommendation of the "Commission Supérieure d'Enquête" (increasing merely the special allowance of Prince Halim from 10,000*l.* to 15,000*l*). The sum to be applied as a provision for the ex-Khedive and his family was therefore settled by the Commission of Liquidation; it was inserted in the maximum of budgetary expenses fixed by the Law of Liquidation (5220 Print, continuation, p. 5), and has since 1880 (the date when the settlement was arrived at) remained unaltered.

Khedive has no right to surrender any portion of the Civil List to the State.

Under these circumstances, we are of opinion, upon the documents submitted, that the Khedive and his Ministers have no right legally to surrender to the State, towards its public expenditure, any portion of the Civil List of 300,000*l.* set apart in the yearly Budget for the maintenance of the Khedivial family.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

1. Confidential Print No. 5220.
2. Memorandum on above by Sir J. Pauncefote, of the 14th May, 1886. Confidential No. 5276.
3. Law Officers' Report of the 21st November, 1883. Confidential No. 4974, p. 37.
4. "Egypt No. 10 (1884)." Parliamentary No. 2822.
5. "Egypt No. 4 (1880)." Parliamentary No. 2322.
6. Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 158, Telegraphic, June 27, 1886.
   To Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 82, Telegraphic, June 28, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
   Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 162, Telegraphic, July 1, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
   To Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 85, Telegraphic, July 2, 1866. Confidential No. 5404.
   Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 169, Telegraphic, July 8, 1886 Confidential No. 5404.
   Ditto, No. 174, Telegraphic (Secret), July 12, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
   To Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 88, Telegraphic, July 13, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
   Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 185, Telegraphic, August 1, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
   To Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 96, Telegraphic, August 2, 1886. Confidential No. 5404.
7. Sir H. D. Wolff, No. 203, June 26, 1886. Confidential No. 5404, p. 15.
8. Ditto, No. 206, Confidential, July 1, 1886. Confidential No. 5404, p. 18.
9. Ditto, No. 210, July 5, 1886. Confidential No. 5404, p. 19.
10. Ditto, No. 217, July 10, 1886. Confidential No. 5404, p. 20.

---

No. 22.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received October 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 20, 1886.

Condemnation of G. Vella for murder of Marie Detrey.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list* relative to the case of Giuseppe Vella, a British Maltese subject, who was tried in the Consular Court at

---

* List of Papers.

Consul-General Fawcett's No. 56 of September 16, 1886.
Ottoman Order in Council, 1873 (Confidential No. 2354).

1886

Alexandria on the 26th August last for the murder of Marie Detrey, a French subject.

That the trial, which was held before Mr. Burrell, Acting Judge at Alexandria, resulted in the conviction of the prisoner, against whom sentence of death was recorded on the first indictment.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to section 269 of the Levant Order in Council of 1873, which regulates the procedure after sentence in capital cases.

That the notes of evidence and a Report on the trial by Mr. Burrell would be found in Consul-General and Judge Fawcett's despatch No. 56 of the 16th ultimo.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the punishment which should be imposed, and which was limited by section 268 of the Order in Council, and the last paragraph of section 269.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

Full sentence of twenty years' imprisonment should be imposed.

That in our judgment the murder was premeditated and without any extenuation; and that in our opinion the full sentence of twenty years' imprisonment should be imposed.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

France.

No. 23.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 20.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 18, 1886.

My Lord,

Esparto grass Concession in Tunis.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 19th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us, by direction of your Lordship, the papers relating to the complaint of Messrs. Perry, Bury, and Co., and that of Mr. Arbib, who were engaged in the trade of exporting, from the Regency of Tunis, esparto grass, the fibre of which was largely used for various manufactures.

That it appeared that in 1881 a Concession was granted by the Tunisian Government to M. Duplessis of the exclusive right of gathering esparto grass on four mountains specified in the grant.

Complaint that its extension is a monopoly.

That that Concession was afterwards transferred to the "Franco-English-Tunisian Esparto Fibre Supply Company," and that it was now sought to extend the area of the Concession practically over the whole of the Regency, and thus to turn the Concession into a monopoly.

That our attention was directed to Article IX of the Treaty between this country and Tunis of the 19th July, 1875, wherein the Bey of Tunis undertook to abolish all monopolies of agricultural produce or of any other article, with certain specified exceptions.

That the complainants assert that the proposed extension of the Company's Concession would comprise nearly the whole territory of the Regency where esparto grew, except districts so distant as to render the trade unprofitable.

That it would amount virtually to the concession of a monopoly, contrary to the Treaty, and would be ruinous to the interests of British subjects who had invested their capital in the trade, and were the first to open up the esparto grass trade in Tunis.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the complaint of the Company and of Mr. Arbib was such as to justify a representation to the French Government on the ground of a departure from the spirit, if not from the terms, of Article IX of the British Treaty.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Concession not a monopoly within Treaty;

That we are of opinion that the concessions by the Bey to the French Company of the exclusive right of gathering esparto grass in the specified districts do not, according to the true construction of Article IX of the British Treaty, constitute a monopoly within the meaning of that Article.

but a departure from its spirit.

Representation justifiable.

If, however (as stated by the complainants), the effect of the recent delimitation of the boundaries of the original Concession be to give the concessionnaires the practical monopoly of the export esparto trade, we think that there is such a departure from the spirit of the Treaty as might justify a representation on that ground to the French Government. But this is a matter of policy to be determined by your Lordship, and we need not point out the objections which exist to the assertion of a right which cannot be supported according to the true construction of the Treaty.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Consul Sandwith, Tunis, No. 1, Commercial, January 13, 1886 (Confidential No. 5334, p. 1).
Sir E. Hertslet, Memorandum, March 13, 1882.
" " " February 12, 1886 (Confidential No. 5334, p. 5).
Perry, Bury, and Co., January 21, 1886 (Confidential No. 5334, p. 3).
Mr. Arbib, January 28, 1886 (Confidential No. 5334, p. 4).
Convention between Great Britain and Tunis, July 19, 1875 (Treaty No. 586).
Plan.

---

No. 24.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 30.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 29, 1886.

My Lord,

Removal of Elsa Roller from jurisdiction of Divorce Court and her detention.

Application of Mr. J. Roller for assistance.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying papers* relative to an application which had been made by Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, on behalf of their client, Mr. Josef Roller, for instructions to be issued to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris to ask the French authorities to render assistance to Mr. Roller in obtaining the custody of his daughter, Elsa Roller, aged 10, who was alleged to have been removed out of the jurisdiction of the Divorce Division of the High Court of Justice, and to be unlawfully detained at Nice.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was at the same time to forward, for our consideration in connection with the matter, a correspondence which took place in 1881† in regard to an application which was made to Earl Granville by Messrs. Fladgate, Smith, and Fladgate for the exercise of his Lordship's authority to enforce the obedience of Mr. Vice-Consul Stigand to an order issued by the same Court, directing him to send over his two elder children from France to this country.

That the Law Officers advised that the circumstances did not justify the interference of the Secretary of State, and that the client of Messrs. Fladgate, Smith, and Fladgate should be left to seek such remedies as the law afforded.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether your Lordship should take any, and what, action in the matter, or leave Mr. Roller to take legal advice for the protection of his interests.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Cannot interfere. He must seek legal remedies.

That we are of opinion that the case is not one for your Lordship's interference,

* Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, March 18; to ditto, March 19, 1886.

† Messrs. Fladgate, Smith, and Fladgate, June 28; to Law Officers, July 27; Law Officers, August 9; Confidential No. 4637, p. 22; to Messrs. Fladgate, Smith, and Fladgate, August 19, 1881.

1886 and that Mr. Roller should be left to such legal remedies for the protection of his interests as he may be advised.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 25.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 28.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Petition for remission of sentence on A. Bahagier for house-breaking and stabbing.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers[*] relating to the Petition of Andrea Bahagier, a prisoner in the Corradino civil prison at Malta, for a remission of a portion of the sentences of five years' penal servitude and four years' imprisonment with hard labour, which he was then undergoing for the crimes of house-breaking and stabbing.

That the notes of evidence in the case were inclosed in Consul Sandwith's despatch No. 6 of the 23rd January last, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether any mitigation of sentence could properly be granted to the applicant.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No reason at present for mitigation of sentence.

That, having regard to the nature of the offences of which the prisoner was convicted, and the comparatively short portion of his sentence which he has undergone, we do not think that there are any grounds upon which any mitigation of sentence can, at present, properly be granted to the applicant.

Question may be considered later.

If his conduct in prison continues to be good, the matter would be one proper, we think, for your Lordship's consideration at a later period.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 26.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 28.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Arrest of a British subject in Tunis, and his removal by the French to Algiers for trial, for crime committed in Algeria.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 18th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us despatches[†] from Her Majesty's Consul-General at Algiers, reporting that the French Procureur-Général had ordered the arrest in Tunis, and removal to Algiers, of a Maltese who was condemned in default at Algiers, in 1866, on a charge of manslaughter, but who escaped to Tunis, where he had resided ever since.

That the Parliamentary Paper "Tunis No. 1 (1876)" was inclosed, containing the Convention of the 19th July, 1875, between this country and Tunis, which was still in force; also the Parliamentary Paper "Tunis No. 6 (1881)," containing the Treaty between France and Tunis of the 12th May, 1881, the IVth Article of which guaranteed the execution of the Treaties at that date existing between the Regency and foreign Powers, together with a copy of a note from Earl Granville to the French Ambassador of the 20th May, 1881, in which Her Majesty's Government explicitly stated that the Convention of the 19th July, 1875, between Great Britain and Tunis, was, and remained, in force.

That, before the establishment of the French Protectorate in Tunis, no British subject in the Regency could lawfully have been surrendered by the Bey to any foreign Government on an extradition demand.

---

[*] Inclosure in Colonial Office letter of December 23, 1885.

[†] Consul-General Playfair, No. 12, March 1; ditto, No. 13, March 3; Consul Sandwith, No. 5, March 3; ditto, No. 6, March 4; ditto, No. 7, March 8; ditto, No. 8, March 10, 1886. Parliamentary Papers: "Tunis No. 1 (1876)," Treaty No. 586; "Tunis No. 6 (1881)," Foreign Office No. 2415; "Tunis No. 1 (1884)," Foreign Office No. 2767.

That, by an Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883 (Parliamentary Paper "Tunis No. 1 (1884)," p. 31), British Consular jurisdiction in Tunis was abandoned, and British subjects became justiciable by the French Tribunals established in the Regency.

That the French Law, and the Decree of the Bey under which those Tribunals were established, would be found at pp. 8–21 of the Parliamentary Paper above referred to.

Is such action justifiable and in accordance with British Treaty rights in Tunis?

That it was conceived that the French authorities in Tunis are entitled to exercise full criminal jurisdiction over British subjects in regard to crimes and offences committed by them within the Regency; but that the question arose whether, considering that Tunis was not French territory, but only under the Protectorate of France, and that the Bey's Treaties with foreign Powers remained in force, except so far as the rights of exterritorial jurisdiction had been waived, the French authorities had the right to remove a British subject from Tunis to Algiers to take his trial for an offence committed by him in that country.

That it appeared that the Maltese prisoner referred to had been liberated on bail of 20,000 fr., and Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Her Majesty's Government were entitled to protest against the action of the French authorities in Tunis in that case, and, if so, what representation should be made to the French Government.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That with reference to the statement in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter, that "before the establishment of the French Protectorate in Tunis no British subject in the Regency could lawfully have been surrendered by the Bey to any foreign Government on an extradition demand," we presume that Sir Julian founds that opinion on Article V of the Convention of the 19th July, 1875, whereby the Bey engaged to protect British subjects who might come to his country either for the purposes of trade or for travelling, and further engaged that they should be free to trade or to travel in any part of the Regency without hindrance or molestation.

He ought not to have been given up without previous communication. France bound by Treaty obligations of the Bey.

We think that, having regard to Article V quoted above, the British subject ought not to have been given up without previous diplomatic communication with Her Majesty's Government; and under the Treaty between France and Tunis of the 12th May, 1881, the French Government is bound by all the Treaty obligations of the Bey.

Should protest and make representations as to French action.

We are, therefore, of opinion that Her Majesty's Government are entitled to protest against the action of the French authorities in Tunis in this case, and that a representation should be made to the French Government to the effect that, in the view of Her Majesty's Government, the British subject should be unconditionally released.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 27.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received May 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 11, 1886.

My Lord,

Protection of submarine cables. Conflict between the Treaty and the Act as to liability for injuries.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Bryce's letter of the 10th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers (noted in the margin[*]) relative to a question which had arisen with respect to a conflict between the provisions of section 4 of "The Submarine Telegraph Act, 1885," and Article IV of the Convention of the 14th March, 1884, for the protection of submarine telegraphs.

That Article IV of the Convention provided that the owner of a cable who, on laying or repairing his own cable, breaks or injures another cable, must bear the cost of repairing the breakage or injury.

That it would be perceived that section 4 of the Act provided that Article IV of

---

[*] Printed Correspondence, Confidential No. 5374; "The Submarine Telegraph Act, 1885," 48 & 49 Vict., cap. 49.

1886

the Convention should not apply "to that part of a cable which is laid in a depth of water exceeding 100 fathoms." That that limitation was inserted at the instance of the British Submarine Telegraph Companies during the passage of the Bill through Parliament; and that the reasons given for that deviation from the strict terms of the IVth Article of the Convention would be found in the papers Nos. 1, 5, 14, 43, and others in the accompanying printed correspondence.

Objection to the 100-fathom limit.

That objection had been taken to that limitation by some of the foreign Powers parties to the Convention of 1884 (Correspondence, Nos. 2, 9, 12, 18).

That the French Ambassador, in his letter of the 17th November last (Correspondence, No. 12, p. 9), pointed out that the Conference had affirmed the general principle that the owner of a submarine cable which had been injured by the laying or repairing of another cable should be indemnified, and that no objection was raised to the contention of the German Delegate that priority of occupancy gave no rights to the owner of a submarine cable, and that no consideration, not even that of priority, could relieve a person causing injury to another from the obligation of compensating him.

That the difficulties and risks attending the repairing of deep-sea cables were so great that the British Telegraph Companies were unwilling to accept the very heavy responsibility which they might incur, under the unqualified terms of Article IV of the Convention, in cases of injury caused to cables below the depth of 100 fathoms. That at that depth they could form a pretty accurate estimate of the liability involved; and that though section 4 of the Act (to which exception was taken by foreign Governments) reserved any legal remedy which the owner of a cable lying at a greater depth than 100 fathoms might have, independently of the Convention, it might be that the British Telegraph Companies doubted whether, apart from a Convention, any legal remedy existed in such cases.

That it was to be observed, also, that the terms of Article IV of the Convention were very absolute, and might be held to preclude the party sued from pleading that he exercised proper and reasonable care, and that the injury was due to no default of his own, but to the bad condition or insufficient dimensions of the injured cable, or to some defect in its laying or otherwise for which he was not responsible.

That the risks of injury to cables arising from the absence of proper measures of safety, both as regarded the track of the cable and its dimensions, were discussed in the Conference; and that Article III of the Convention was inserted for the purpose of obviating them as far as possible.

That a further Conference was about to be held at Paris, and that it was possible that the Delegates of the Powers might not be disposed to amend Article IV of the Convention in the sense of section 4 of the Act. That it would facilitate the further consideration of that question, and the action of the British Delegates at Paris, if we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the following points:—

Question as to—
1. Legal remedy for injuries beyond the territorial jurisdiction.

1. Apart from a Convention, and an Act of Parliament to give it effect, would an action for damages lie in the Courts of this country against a person to recover damages for injuries caused by the defendant to the plaintiff's submarine cable lying under the high seas beyond the limits of the territorial jurisdiction?

2. Modification of Article IV in event of surrender of limit.

2. In the event of Her Majesty's Government agreeing to give up the 100-fathom limit, would it be desirable to insist, as a condition, that a proviso be added to Article IV to the effect that nothing in that Article should be deemed to preclude the party sued from proving any facts which, in the opinion of the Tribunal before which the claim might be brought, were such as to relieve him wholly or partially from liability?

That the Conference was to meet at Paris on the 12th instant, and that Mr. Bryce was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Action would not lie in British Courts without proof of negligence.

1. That, without proof of negligence, we are of opinion that no action for damages would, in the case put in the first question, lie in the Courts of this country to recover damages for injuries caused by the defendant to the plaintiff's submarine cable lying under the high seas beyond the limits of the territorial jurisdiction. But if "negligence" were alleged and proved, such an action would lie.

Proviso too vague; suggesting amendment.

2. We are of opinion that the terms of the suggested proviso to Article IV of the Convention are too vague and indefinite, and we are apprehensive that they might not be construed so as to qualify the absolute liability imposed by Article IV, but only so as to admit proof of collateral facts. We suggest the introduction of the words "wilfully or negligently" after the word "cable" on the first line of Article IV.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.

---

No. 28.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received November 16.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 13, 1886.

Application for a passport in a third country by a British subject of double nationality with a domicile in that third country.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the case of Mr. Ehrensperger, who had applied to the British Consulate at Paris for a passport on the ground of his being a British subject, an application which it was considered undesirable to grant without the previous authority of the Secretary of State.

That Mr. Ehrensperger, as we should observe from the papers therewith, was born in London on the 26th October, 1862, his father being a Dutch subject and his mother an Englishwoman.

That he was consequently of double nationality, and that it would further appear that his domicil was not of either of those nationalities, but was at present French.

That, under those circumstances, your Lordship doubted the propriety of issuing a passport to Mr. Ehrensperger; and that, before sending final instructions to the British Consulate in Paris upon the point, your Lordship desired to be informed whether, in our opinion, it was advisable in cases of double nationality to confine the issue of passports to those persons only who were resident in the United Kingdom or some British possession at the time of their application, or whether the privilege might be safely extended to a case like the present.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Conditions under which Mr. Ehrensperger's application may be granted.

That, in our opinion, a passport should be issued to Mr. Ehrensperger upon his satisfying the authorities that he has not made a declaration of alienage under the Act 33 & 34 Vict., cap. 14, sec. 4, and that he has not voluntarily become naturalized in any foreign State.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers to accompany Reference to Law Officers of October 29, 1876.

Law Officers, August 14, 1876. Confidential No. 4028, p. 32.
Mr. Egerton, No. 485, September 13, 1886.
To Mr. Egerton, Treaty, No. 36, October 12, 1886.
Mr. Ehrensperger, October 15, 1886.
To Mr. Ehrensperger, October 23, 1886.
Mr. Ehrensperger, October 24, 1886.

---

No. 29.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received November 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 29, 1886.

Paolo Lia, British subject. His arrest in Tunis, and removal by the French to Algiers to be tried for crime committed in Algeria.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 24th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the action of the French Government with respect to the case of Paolo Lia, a British subject of Maltese birth, who, having previously escaped to Tunis, where he had since resided, was in 1866 condemned, in default of appearance, at Algiers upon a charge of manslaughter.

1886

That early in the present year Paolo Lia was arrested at Tunis by order of the French Procureur-Général, and was ordered to be removed for trial at Algiers.

That in consequence, however, of representations made by Her Majesty's Government to that of the French Republic, he was, pending an inquiry into his case by the French authorities, released on bail, and that he had since remained at Tunis awaiting the result of that inquiry.

Protest against his removal, and jurisdiction over him.

That meanwhile, Her Majesty's Government had strongly protested, both through Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris and on the spot, against the removal of Paolo Lia to Algiers for trial, and against the exercise of any jurisdiction over him at Tunis in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by him out of the Regency.

That unfortunately those protests had not hitherto met with the desired effect, as, according to the latest advices which had been received from Algiers, it was the intention of the French authorities that Paolo Lia should take his trial at the ensuing assizes which were to be held in December, and that it therefore became necessary at once to decide what further steps (if any) Her Majesty's Government ought, in the circumstances, to take.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was particularly to call our attention to a Report, dated the 28th April last, of the late Law Officers of the Crown upon the case, and that he was to add, with reference to the first paragraph of that Report, that the opinion that "before the establishment of the French Protectorate in Tunis no British subject in the Regency could lawfully have been surrendered by the Bey to any foreign Government on an extradition demand" was founded, not only on a consideration of the terms of Article V of the Convention of the 19th July, 1875, therein alluded to, but also of those of the Capitulations existing between Her Majesty's Government and the Sublime Porte.

That, quite apart from the Convention of 1875, and its special application to Tunis, it was conceived that in no part of the Levant, such as Tunis, which was subject to those Capitulations, could a British subject be deported or extradited by the local authorities without the assent of Her Majesty's Government; nor had any case ever occurred in which even an attempt had been made so to extradite a British subject from either Turkey or Egypt.

That before Tunis was placed under French Protectorate the local authorities there had no power to arrest a British subject except flagrante delicto, and that then they were bound to hand such British subject over, at the first opportunity, to be dealt with by the British Consul.

That they could not, therefore, surrender him to a foreign Power; nor, as it was submitted, were the rights of the French authorities, by reason of the transfer of the Consular jurisdiction to the new French Tribunals, in that respect any more extensive than were those of the Beylical authorities.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship, at the earliest possible date, with our opinion—

Questions as to:
1. Views as to French jurisdiction.
2. Action of Her Majesty's Government.
3. Further steps.

1. Whether the view indicated above of the extent and limits of the French jurisdiction over British subjects in Tunis with respect to their extradition and deportation was correct;

2. Whether the past action of Her Majesty's Government in the matter had been right and proper; and

3. As to what further steps it was now advisable for Her Majesty's Government to take.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we are of opinion that the French authorities have no right to remove Paolo Lia to Algiers for trial, or to require him to appear before the Court.

If the question were one of extradition there would be no doubt about it; but the real question is not one of extradition, but of the effect of the Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883, and of the Agreement made between the English and French Governments respecting the establishment of the French Tribunals.

By the Decree of the Bey of the 5th May, 1883, "The subjects of friendly Powers are amenable to the jurisdiction of the French Tribunals under the same conditions as the French themselves."

The Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883, recites (though there is no distinct enacting provision), that the Queen has consented, with a view to "British subjects in the Regency being justiciable by the said French Tribunals (i.e., the Tribunals in the Regency) under the same conditions as French subjects and to the extent of the jurisdiction vested by law in the said Tribunals."

The real question appears, therefore, to us to be, assuming Paolo Lia to be a French subject, Have the French Tribunals jurisdiction—

1. To remove him to Algiers for trial?
2. To try him at Tunis?

Upon the first question, we see no jurisdiction to remove him to Algiers for trial. By the French law, applicable to the Tribunals, the Courts of First Instance are to sit at Tunis. The Court of Algiers is a Court of Appeal, and that in some cases only. (See Laws of the 27th March, 1883.) The appeal in other cases is to the Court of Cassation in Paris. Moreover, by Article 5 of the Memorandum, at pp. 26, 27, it was distinctly stated, with regard to a British subject, that he would not be sent to Algiers, but would await his trial at Tunis.

As to the second question, viz., the right to try Paolo Lia (assuming him to have been a French subject) at Tunis, we feel much more difficulty. The words of Article 2, pp. 13–15, are very wide "for infractions of the law, misdemeanours, and crimes," but we think it scarcely probable that the French Courts were intended to have jurisdiction over crimes committed by French subjects wherever they were committed. The words in the Order in Council are "to the extent of the jurisdiction vested by law in the said Tribunals." If, in fact, the Tribunals have jurisdiction to try, as a Court of First Instance, a French subject for a crime committed out of the Regency, there is, in our opinion, jurisdiction to try a British subject for such a crime; but upon the information before us we see no evidence that there is jurisdiction to try a French subject for such a crime.

Our answers to the questions submitted to us are therefore—

1. That as regards the proposed deportation of British subjects to Algiers, the view taken by Her Majesty's Government is correct. That as to the extent and limits of the French jurisdiction over British subjects in Tunis is concerned, the correctness of the view depends upon the question whether the French Tribunals have jurisdiction over a French subject.

1. Views as to deportation correct; as to jurisdiction, depends on position of French subjects.

2. That the past action of Her Majesty's Government has been right and proper.

3. That Her Majesty's Government should maintain its protest against the removal of Paolo Lia to Algiers under any circumstances, and should urgently call the attention of the French Government to the fact that such removal would be a breach of the diplomatic engagements, having regard to the distinct terms of the Memorandum handed by Count d'Aunay to Lord Granville on the 20th June, 1883; and should further protest against his trial at Tunis, unless they are satisfied that the French Tribunals at Tunis have jurisdiction to try, in Tunis, a French subject for a similar offence committed out of the Regency.

2. Approve past action.
3. Should maintain protest against deportation; and protest against trial in Tunis unless French subject would be similarly triable.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

To Viscount Lyons, No. 22, May 19, 1886.
„ „ No. 23, May 19, 1886.
„ „ No. 25, May 22, 1886.
„ „ No. 49, October 27, 1886.
„ „ No. 51, November 2, 1886.
„ „ No. 54, November 19, 1886.
Viscount Lyons, No. 19, May 20, 1886.
„ „ No. 21, May 25, 1886.
„ „ No. 23, May 26, 1886.
„ „ No. 24, June 2, 1886.
„ „ No. 25, June 14, 1886.
Mr. Egerton, No. 46, October 18, 1886.
Viscount Lyons, No. 50, November 6, 1886.
„ „ No. 52, November 7, 1886.
„ „ No. 53, November 7, 1886.
„ „ No. 54, November 9, 1886.
„ „ No. 59, November 22, 1886.
To Consul-General Playfair, No. 9, May 12, 1886.
„ „ Telegraphic, May 18, 1886.
„ „ Telegraphic, November 2, 1886.
Consul-General Playfair, No. 31, May 14, 1886.
„ „ Telegraphic, May 22, 1886.
„ „ No. 35, May 19, 1886.
„ „ No. 37, May 22, 1886.
„ „ No. 71, October 23, 1886.
„ „ No. 74, November 4, 1886.

1886

Consul-General Playfair, No. 75, November 13, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 21, 1886.
To Consul Sandwith, Telegraphic, May 26, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 1, 1886.
Consul Sandwith, Telegraphic, May 14, 1886.
" " No. 24, May 17, 1886.
" " No. 26, May 27, 1886.
" " No. 31, November 3, 1886.
" " No. 33, November 8, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 20, 1886.
Law Officers' Report, April 28, 1886.
Parliamentary Paper, "Tunis No. 1 (1876)" (Treaty No. 586).
" " "Tunis No. 6 (1881)" (Parliamentary No. 2415).
" " "Tunis No. 1 (1884)" (Parliamentary No. 2767).

---

General.

No. 30.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 27.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 26, 1886.

Consular Marriage Warrants.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 13th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us copy of the form of Marriage Warrant supplied to British Consular officers to enable them to solemnize marriages of British subjects under the Act 13 Vict., cap. 68, together with a copy of that Act.

That Consular officers furnished with that warrant had from time to time been promoted to rank while remaining at the same post, as, for instance, from the rank of Vice-Consul without a Royal Commission to that of Her Majesty's Consul, or from the rank of Her Majesty's Consul to that of Consul-General, and that it had not been the custom in such cases to issue new warrants.

That a Vice-Consul, as a rule, had no district assigned to him, and was merely appointed British Vice-Consul at the town where he resided, but that on promotion to the rank of Consul a district might, or might not, be assigned to him.

That the question had now arisen whether the original warrants issued to them remained effective for the district therein mentioned after they had been raised to the higher rank, or whether fresh warrants should, in such cases, have been issued, and if so whether marriages which might have been performed by such officers after promotion under their original warrants were valid.

That our opinion was requested on those questions.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Remain valid within original district after promotion of Consuls.

That the original warrants issued to Consular officers remain effective for the districts therein mentioned after such officers have been raised to the higher rank, and the marriages which may have been performed by such officers after promotion within the districts named in their original warrants are valid.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List.

Messrs Hough, November 6, 1885.
" November 13, 1885.
To " November 12, 1885.
Fugitive Offenders' Act 1881, 44 and 45 Vict., cap. 69.
Ottoman Order in Council, December 12, 1873. In Confidential No. 2873.
" " May 3, 1882. " "
Tunis Order in Council, December 31, 1883 (Confidential, 4905*).

---

No. 31.

The Law Officers of the Crown to Earl Granville.—(Communicated in Colonial Office letter of June 23, 1886; received June 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 21, 1886.

Right to exercise jurisdiction over foreigners in British protected territory.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Mr. Bramston's letter of the 15th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to invite our opinion as to the right of Her Majesty to exercise jurisdiction over foreigners in countries which, though under her Protectorate, were not part of her dominions.

That on the 3rd August, 1880, the then Law Officers, Sir Henry James and Sir Farrer Herschell, stated, in the 4th paragraph of their Report of that date, that they were of opinion that Her Majesty could, by Treaty with a native Chief, obtain jurisdiction within his territories over subjects of foreign civilized States resident within such territories, but that the exercise of any such jurisdiction might be objected to by the State to whose subject it might be sought to apply it, and that as a rule it should not be exercised without the concurrence of such State.

That in 1884 Her Majesty assumed a Protectorate over a portion of South Africa, called Bechuanaland, and comprising:—

(a.) The territories of the Chiefs Mankoroane and Montsioa.
(b.) The territories of certain other native Chiefs.
(c.) A portion of territory known as Stellaland which had previously belonged to Mankoroane and other Chiefs, and in which certain British subjects and other white men had purported to have constituted a Republic.

That in order to provide judicial machinery for the Protectorate, an Order in Council, under the Foreign Jurisdiction Acts, 1843-78, was passed on the 27th January, 1885, empowering the High Commissioner (Sir H. Robinson) to establish Courts within certain geographical limits.

That a copy of that Order was inclosed, together with copies of the Law Officers' Reports of the 3rd August, 1880, 15th November, 1884, and 23rd December, 1884.

That the Order purported to give effect to certain Treaties (recited in the Order) by which Mankoroane and Montsioa had respectively given to Her Majesty full legal jurisdiction over all persons within their territories, and that as regarded the territories of other Chiefs, the Order purported to give to Her Majesty jurisdiction only over British subjects, or persons for the time being subject to British law, and over persons properly enjoying Her Majesty's protection within such territories.

That, on the 10th August, 1885, the late Law Officers (Sir R. Webster and Sir J. E. Gorst) reported that in their opinion no native African Chief could, either by Treaty or sufferance, confer upon Her Majesty jurisdiction over the subjects of any civilized Power other than Great Britain. That a copy of that Report was inclosed.

That since that date the territories of Mankoroane and Montsioa, and the territory of Stellaland, had been declared to be a part of the Queen's dominions under the name of "British Bechuanaland," and that the present question therefore affected only the territories of those Chiefs outside of British Bechuanaland which were within the Protectorate established in 1884.

That of those the Chiefs Ghasitsive, Sechele, and Khama had made various offers of partial cession to Her Majesty through Her Majesty's Special Commissioner, Sir Charles Warren, G.C.M.G., the particulars of which would be found at pp. 36-48 of the inclosed Blue Book (C.—4588).*

That Khama had said (p. 45), "I give to the Queen to make laws, and to change them, in the country of the Bamangwato, with reference to both black and white."

That Sechele had said (p. 47), "I wish to rule among my people according to custom, but I give to the Queen to rule among white people, wherever they are."

That Ghasitsive had said (p. 48), "I give to the Queen to rule above me, as she is the protection of the whole country, while I rule under her among my own people, white inhabitants of the country being under the rule of the Queen."

That no civilized Power, except Great Britain, had any claim to jurisdiction in the territories of those Chiefs, or any official Representatives there. That the native Chiefs were completely independent of any superior authority (except so far as Her Majesty might possess jurisdiction in their territories), and it might be taken that they were competent to cede or delegate their sovereign authority, or any portion of it.

That it was not understood that there was any rule of international law limiting the right of an independent Chief to exercise full civil and criminal jurisdiction over

---

* "Further Correspondence respecting the Affairs of the Transvaal and adjacent Territories."

1886

any person, European or otherwise, within his territory, although the manner in which such jurisdiction had been exercised might, in different parts of the world, have been made the subject of foreign intervention.

That no definite acceptance of the above-mentioned offers had taken place, and that it was not proposed that Her Majesty should acquire any sovereign power in the territories of those Chiefs further than might be involved in the acceptance of legal jurisdiction over persons who were not British subjects nor natives of the country.

That if we should be of opinion that it was impossible for Her Majesty to acquire jurisdiction over subjects of foreign civilized States by Treaties or Conventions with native Chiefs, the further question would arise whether the particular words used by the above-named Chiefs were sufficient to confer such jurisdiction.

That should the language of those proposals or offers be insufficient for that purpose, no difficulty was anticipated in obtaining from the Chiefs a Treaty in whatever form might be thought desirable.

That, as illustrating the power of acquiring jurisdiction over foreigners by Treaty with a third Power, Mr. Bramston was to draw our attention to the Conventions with the Sublime Porte (of which copies were inclosed), upon the authority of which Her Majesty's Government exercised full jurisdiction in Cyprus over all persons of whatever nationality.

That your Lordship would be obliged if we would take the subject into our consideration, and favour him with our advice upon it, reporting particularly whether, in our opinion—

1. Her Majesty could lawfully acquire by Treaty with the above-named Chiefs the right to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction over subjects of civilized Powers other than Great Britain within the territories of the Chiefs named?

2. Whether the language employed by those Chiefs in the proposals printed at pp. 45 to 48 of the Blue Book (C.—4588) would, if embodied in a formal Agreement or Treaty, suffice to confer such jurisdiction?

3. If so, whether such jurisdiction could be properly exercised by Courts established under an Order in Council similar to the Order in Council of the 27th January, 1885, for all persons within the territories of Mankoroane and Montsioa?

That Mr. Bramston was also to state that your Lordship would feel obliged if we would favour your Lordship with any observations upon the subject generally that might appear to us to be desirable.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Language of Chiefs confers jurisdiction which should obtain consent of Power concerned.

1. That we are of opinion that, as against the Chiefs, Her Majesty can lawfully acquire by Treaty with them the right to exercise civil and criminal jurisdiction over subjects of civilized Powers other than Great Britain within the territories of the Chiefs; but as against the subjects of other civilized Powers, we think that the jurisdiction (whatever may be its theoretical limits) should be exercised with, and cannot safely be exercised without, the assent of the Power concerned, given generally or in the particular case.

Should embody language of Chiefs in a Treaty.

2. Subject to our previous answer, we think that a formal Agreement or Treaty, embodying in more precise and artificial language what is said by the Chiefs, would suffice to confer such jurisdiction.

As to establishment of Courts.

3. Subject as before, we think the jurisdiction can be properly exercised by Courts established under an Order in Council similar to that of the 27th January, 1885.

Sovereignty of Chiefs assumed.

4. We assume that the Chiefs have sovereign territorial authority, and do not merely exercise tribal or personal authority as Chiefs.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.

---

No. 32.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 28.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Remarriage of British subjects where no tidings of husband and wife for seven years.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir T. Villiers Lister's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us despatches from Her Majesty's Consular officers at Odessa and Rio de Janeiro,* respecting the marriages of certain British subjects at those places.

---

* Consul-General Perry, No. 16, March 16; Consul Ricketts, No. 3, February 22, 1886.

That James Briant, whose case had been referred to the Foreign Office by Mr. Perry, Her Majesty's Consul-General at Odessa, stated that he was deserted by his wife, Anna Maria Briant, some eleven years ago, and was now desirous of contracting another marriage with a Russian woman. That, in order to satisfy the ecclesiastical authorities at Odessa that no legal impediment to that marriage existed, he had applied to Her Majesty's Consul-General for a certificate to that effect, furnishing at the same time proofs that during the interval of eleven years he had received no tidings of his wife's whereabouts.

Certificate as to legality required by Russian ecclesiastics.

That Mr. Perry hesitated, in view of the unusual circumstances of the application, to grant the required certificate.

Case of Elizabeth Stewart at Rio.

That the case at Rio de Janeiro related to a British subject named Elizabeth Stewart, whose husband deserted her seven years ago, and had not been heard of since.

That she now desired to be married again to a British subject, by Her Majesty's Consul, but that Mr. Ricketts felt himself unable to comply with her request pending directions from the Secretary of State.

That Sir T. Villiers Lister was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the instructions which should be sent to Mr. Perry and Mr. Ricketts respectively.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That, according to the law of England, there is a primâ facie presumption that a person of whom nothing has been heard for seven years by those who, from their connection, naturally would have heard [? is dead]; and if a man or woman of whose wife or husband nothing has been heard for upwards of seven years, marries again, he or she cannot be indicted for bigamy; and we are of opinion that any clergyman of the Church of England, or Registrar, would be justified in solemnizing a marriage between such person and another.

But if the lost wife or husband should prove to have been alive at the date of the second marriage, it will be void.

Consul at Odessa may give certificate.

Under these circumstances, we suggest that your Lordship should give instructions to Mr. Consul Perry, at Odessa, that he may give a certificate that any English clergyman or Registrar would be justified in performing the ceremony of marriage under the circumstances.

Consul at Rio may marry Elizabeth Stewart.

And that Mr. Consul Ricketts, at Rio de Janeiro, be informed that he may properly solemnize the proposed marriage.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 33.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 10.)

Royal Courts of Justice, July 9, 1886.

My Lord,

British nationality. Power of naturalized subjects to divest themselves of it.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us papers* relative to the question whether, and in what way, naturalized British subjects could divest themselves of their British nationality.

Application of Mr. Hoffnung, appointed Hawaiian Chargé d'Affaires.

That the question had arisen in several cases of late, and notably in that of Mr. Hoffnung, who had been appointed Hawaiian Chargé d'Affaires at this Court, but who, being a naturalized British subject, could not be received in a diplomatic capacity in this country.

That Mr. Hoffnung produced letters of denization from the Hawaiian Government, but that it was considered that they had not the effect of divesting him of his British nationality, and the Home Office were consulted as to whether section 6 of the Naturalization Act of 1870 was applicable to naturalized as well as natural-born subjects, seeing that section 3 only empowered naturalized subjects to divest themselves of their British nationality for the purpose of resuming their nationality of origin, and, moreover, appeared to be applicable only in cases where there existed a

---

* Mr. Hoffnung, March 31; to Home Office, April 16; Home Office, May 24, 1886; to Mr. Hoffnung.

1886

Convention to the effect therein mentioned, and that no such Convention existed between Great Britain and Hawaii.

Proposed reply.

That your Lordship was informed by the Home Office, in reply, that Mr. Secretary Childers, after consultation with the Law Officers, was of opinion that the words "any British subject" included a naturalized British subject, and that section 3 prescribes a particular mode in which such a person might conclusively show his intention to divest himself of the status of a British subject. That a draft of a reply to Mr. Hoffnung had accordingly been prepared in that sense, in answer to his letter of the 31st March last, but that before dispatching it your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether it was right and proper under the circumstances.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Suggest modification of reply.

That we are of opinion that the passage in your Lordship's proposed despatch from the words "and that if," &c., to the end of the sentence, should be omitted.

Section 3 of "The Naturalization Act, 1870," it is true, affords a particular mode whereby citizens of a foreign State who have become naturalized in this country may conclusively show their intention to divest themselves of the status of British subjects, but it only applies to cases where there is a Convention between Her Majesty and a foreign State, and to persons who were originally subjects of those foreign States.

Section 3 of Naturalization Act not applicable.

We understand that there is no such Convention with Hawaii, and Mr. Hoffnung was not originally a subject of Hawaii. Section 3, therefore, has no application to his case.

We may observe that section 6 (although in our opinion the words "any British subject" include a naturalized British subject) applies only to persons "when in any foreign State" becoming naturalized in such State.

We suggest, therefore, that the earlier portion of your Lordship's draft despatch should also be modified so as to make it clear to Mr. Hoffnung that the section cannot apply to him, while residing in this country.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annexes.

(1.)

Draft as submitted to the Law Officers.

Sir J. Pauncefote to Mr. Hoffnung.

Foreign Office, June , 1886.

Sir,

In reply to your letter of the 31st March last, I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to acquaint you that, by section 6 of the Naturalization Act of 1870, your status as a naturalized British subject would cease upon your voluntarily becoming naturalized in Hawaii; and that, if you should obtain such naturalization in Hawaii, a declaration of alienage, made in the manner prescribed by section 3 of the Act, would conclusively show your intention to divest yourself of your British nationality.

Your letter of denization from His Majesty the King of Hawaii, which is returned herewith, does not operate so as to change your nationality, and to remove the difficulty respecting your recognition at this Court in a diplomatic capacity.

I am, &c.

---

(2.)

Draft as finally Amended.

Sir J. Pauncefote to Mr. Hoffnung.

Foreign Office, July 15, 1886.

Sir,

In reply to your letter of the 31st March last, I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to acquaint you that the letters of denization from His Majesty the King of

[Treasury.]

No. 33 A.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

[Communicated to the Foreign Office by the Treasury in their letter of September 7, 1886.]

CASE.

Liability of Mr. F. Verney, English Secretary to Siamese Legation, to income tax (Schedule A) in respect of his house.

A QUESTION has arisen as to the liability of Mr. Frederick Verney, the English Secretary to the Siamese Legation in London, to income tax, Schedule (A), in respect of the house, No. 6, Onslow Gardens, which he occupies as a residence, and the lease of which was purchased by him some years since, subject to the payment of a small ground-rent. By a Treasury Order made in April 1885 it was directed that Dr. Macartney, Mr. Stuart Lane, and Mr. Frederick Verney should be exempted, during their tenure of office as Secretaries to the Chinese, Japanese, and Siamese Legations respectively, from establishment licences and from inhabited house duty in respect of one house each in London occupied in their official position. The duties from which these gentlemen were thus relieved are personal duties attaching only to residents in this country. Income tax, Schedule (A), from which Mr. Verney now claims to be exempt, is a tax upon property, paid directly or indirectly by every owner of lands, tenements, or hereditaments situate in this country, whether such owner be a subject of Her Majesty or not, and whether resident here or abroad. In the circumstances, the Board of Inland Revenue, acting under the directions of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, have caused a Case to be prepared, which they now submit to the Law Officers for their opinion as to the validity of the claim put forward by Mr. Verney.

Schedule (A) of the income tax is contained in 16 & 17 Vict., cap. 34, sec. 2, and is as follows:—

"For and in respect of the property in all lands, tenements, hereditaments, and heritages in the United Kingdom, and to be charged for every 20*s*. of the annal value thereof."

By section 5 of the same Act the duties granted are to be assessed and raised under the provisions of 5 & 6 Vict., cap. 35.

By No. IX in section 63 (5 & 6 Vict., cap. 35), the duties, except where other provisions are made for estimating particular properties, are to be "charged on and paid by the occupier for the time being." Every person "having the use of any lands or tenements" is to be "taken and considered for the purposes of this Act as the occupier," and the duties are to be "levied on the occupier." By the 9th Rule of No. IV of section 60, the occupier of any lands, &c., "being the tenant of the same, and paying the said duties," is to deduct the duty out of the rent, and is to be "acquitted and discharged of so much money as if the same had been actually paid" to the landlord.

(In the case of an owner who occupies his own house, he is, of course, assessed and bears the duty.) The 8th Rule of No. IV contains the following provision:—

"The duty to be charged under this Schedule in respect of any house or tenement occupied by any accredited Minister from any foreign Prince or State shall be charged and paid by the landlord or person immediately entitled to the rent of the said house or tenement."

It will be observed that, even in the case of a house occupied by a duly accedited foreign Minister, the property is not exempted from Schedule (A), the only difference being that, instead of the duty being charged upon and paid by the occupier, and by him deducted from the rent, the landlord is assessed and pays it directly. Mr. Verney having purchased the long lease of the house in which he resides, subject only to a small ground-rent, the allowance of his claim to relief would of course mean the total exemption of the property from income tax, Schedule (A). He is landlord as well as occupier for the purposes of the income tax.

By section 111 of "The Taxes Management Act, 1880" (43 & 44 Vict., cap. 19), the duties may be "sued for and recovered, with full costs of suit, and all charges attending the same, from the person charged therewith in the High Court as a debt due to the Crown, or by any other ways or means whereby any debt of record or otherwise due to the Crown can or may at any time be sued or prosecuted for or recovered, as well as by the summary means specially provided by this Act or the Tax Acts for levying the said duties.

1886

The following is a copy of a letter received by the Board of Inland Revenue from Mr. Verney:—

"Sir, "Siamese Legation, April 6, 1886.

"By way of further reply to your letter of the 19th of last month. I now beg to inform you that an opinion has been procured from Sir Travers Twiss as to my liability, as English Secretary of this Legation, to pay income tax under Schedule (A) for my house, No. 6, Onslow Gardens. Sir Travers Twiss was informed that my tenure was that of a usufructuary for a term of years subject to 'an annual payment of rent to the owner of the ground,' but that I am not a tenant under a house landlord.

"Sir Travers Twiss points out that this is an Imperial tax, the collectors of which are directed by the Statute to levy it by process against the chattels of the occupant of each house upon which it is assessed, and, failing process against the chattels, to proceed against the occupants of the house personally. Sir Travers then shows how both these methods of procedure are, in such a case as this, absolutely prohibited by Statute, and he then deals with the silence of the Income Tax Acts as to the exemption from the incidence of taxation of the residence of one of the suite of a foreign Minister, and explains how such silence cannot be taken to sanction a violation of the law of nations, on which (and not on the Statute) these claims for exemption are based. In conclusion, Sir Travers Twiss says: 'I am led irresistibly to the conclusion that income tax may not lawfully be levied by the collectors of it by any process against Mr. Verney or against the furniture of his house.'

"I am, &c.

(Signed) "FREDERICK VERNEY.

"The Secretary, Inland Revenue."

The Board's reply was as follows:—

"Sir, "Inland Revenue, April 22, 1886.

"With reference to your letter of the 6th instant, giving the opinion of Sir Travers Twiss as to your liability to pay income tax, Schedule (A), for your house in Onslow Gardens, I am directed to inform you that the claim of privilege thus advanced cannot, the Board are advised, be properly admitted. In view of your nationality, and your position at the Legation, the rejection of such claim would not seem in any way to conflict with the law of nations or the common law, of which the Act 7 Anne, cap. 12, sec. 3, was declaratory. Without going into the current of authorities dealing with the question of privilege, and the extent to which it goes in embracing those attached to Embassies or Legations, it appears sufficient to draw attention to a recent case in which these authorities are dealt with, viz., the case of Parkinson v. Potter (16 Q. B. D., p. 152), and particularly to the following passage in the Judgment of Mr. Justice Wills in p. 162: 'Most writers on international law are of opinion that a subject of the country in which the Ambassador is resident remains subject to the law of his country, and that in respect of him the immunity that would be afforded to a foreigner cannot be claimed.'

"Setting aside, then, the plea of privilege, it is only necessary for the Board to add that, as already pointed out, and as is admitted by Sir Travers Twiss, there is no exemption in the Income Tax Acts that can operate in your favour.

"I am, &c.

(Signed) "W. H. COUSINS.

"F. W. Verney, Esq."

In the case of Parkinson v. Potter (16 Q. B. D., p. 152), to which reference is made in the Board's letter, it was held by the Court (Matthew and Wills, JJ.) that payment of parochial rates was not enforceable against a foreign Attaché of a foreign Embassy in respect of his residence in this country. A rate is, of course, on a totally different footing to income tax, Schedule (A), being a personal charge in respect of the occupation, and not a charge in respect of the ownership of the property.

Mr. Justice Wills came to the conclusion that there was "nothing in the current of English authorities to contravene the doctrine of exemption from process, a part of the privileges which constitute the exterritoriality of foreign jurists, as laid down by the writers on international law," and nothing in the circumstances of the Case to prevent its application. The opinion of Sir Travers Twiss, referred to by Mr. Verney, appears to be based on somewhat similar grounds. It may be worthy of remark that the Statute, which is admittedly declaratory of the law of nations, does not contain any prohibition of Crown process, the Crown not being mentioned in it.

The following passage occurs at p. 300 of Wheaton's "International Law" (Boyd's edition): "The hotel in which he" (the Minister) "resides, though exempt from the quartering of troops, is subject to taxation in common with the other real property of the country, whether it belongs to him or his Government." And Phillimore's "International Law" (3rd ed. 1882), vol. ii, p. 240, treating of the exemption of the personality of the Minister from taxation, states that this immunity is never extended to "real property." So that, assuming Mr. Verney to be entitled to the privileges of a Minister, any real property acquired by him in this country must remain subject to taxation.

It is true that it is stated in Wheaton, p. 283, that the immunity from local jurisdiction extends to the house in which the Minister resides; and in Phillimore, p. 241, "the house, or (as it is usually called) the hotel of an Ambassador," is stated to be "by universal consent inviolable and inaccessible to the ordinary officers of justice or revenue;" but the question arises whether this immunity from process is otherwise than as respects the Minister's residence only, and extends to the house of Mr. Verney, who is a subject of this country. The observation of Mr. Justice Wills in Parkinson v. Potter, that "most writers on international law are of opinion that a subject of the country in which the Ambassador is resident remains subject to the law of his country, and that in respect of him the immunity that would be afforded to a foreigner cannot be claimed," is confirmed by the following statement at pp. 284 and 285 of Wheaton's "International Law": "If he is a citizen of the country to which he is sent, and that country has not renounced its authority over him, he remains still subject to its jurisdiction." In Mr. Verney's case, it does not appear that there has been any such renunciation on the part of this country. So also in Foote's "Private International Jurisprudence" (ed. 1878), p. 106, the exceptions from the general rule that a foreign Minister, his family and suite, are exempt from civil and criminal jurisdiction, are stated, on the authority of Wheaton, to be three, the second of which runs as follows: "Secondly, he continues subject to the jurisdiction if he is a citizen or subject of the country to which he is sent, and that country has not renounced its rights over him." The above stated views seem to place the case of Mr. Verney and his house in an à fortiori light, as he, for all that is known to the contrary, resided in the United Kingdom when the Legation arrived.

As already stated, Mr. Verney has, by Treasury order, been relieved from the duties which are chargeable only upon him personally. The liability incurred under Schedule (A), by reason of being an owner of property, is voluntarily assumed independently of any diplomatic position which he holds, and stands upon a different footing. He would be liable to bear the duty charged under Schedule (A) in respect of the property in his house, according to the universal practice which has prevailed since the passing of the Income Tax Acts, even if he were a native of Siam and resident in that country, income tax, Schedule (A), being chargeable in respect of all lands and tenements in the United Kingdom without regard to the residence or nationality of its owner. In the one or two cases of which the Board are aware, in which foreign Ministers or Attachés have purchased residences in this country, income tax has been charged in respect thereof.

The Board of Inland Revenue would be glad to have the opinion of the Attorney- and Solicitor-General on the following points:—

1. Whether income tax, Schedule (A), is chargeable in respect of the house in which Mr. Verney resides?

2. If the answer to the above question be in the affirmative, then whether there would be any difficulty in the way of the ordinary modes of procedure for the recovery of the tax?

3. Whether, if Mr. Verney were not a British subject, he could claim immunity by the law of nations from the tax for which payment was claimed of him?

A copy of Correspondence printed for the use of the Foreign Office (Confidential No. 5115) is annexed; attention is specially requested to Nos. 41, 42, and 43 therein.

1886

Report.

Mr. Verney is liable to income tax on his house, and cannot claim immunity even if not a British subject.

That income tax (Schedule A) is chargeable in respect of the house in which Mr. Verney resides, that any of the ordinary modes of procedure may be used for its recovery, and that even if Mr. Verney were not a British subject he could not claim immunity from this tax.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

Hawaii, transmitted therein, cannot be held to divest you of your British nationality so as to remove the obstacle to your holding a diplomatic post in this country.

I am to state, however, that by section 6 of the Naturalization Act of 1870, your status as a naturalized British subject would cease upon your voluntarily becoming naturalized in Hawaii, but that such assumption of Hawaiian nationality must be effected during actual residence in that State, and not in the United Kingdom.

Your letters of denization are returned herewith, and I am to inclose, for your information, a copy of "The Naturalization Act, 1870."

I am, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

Germany.

No. 34.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received August 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 3, 1886.

Embassy houses the property of foreign States; jurisdiction of Local Courts over.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us a Memorandum and a translation of a pro-memoriâ, received from the German Embassy, inquiring the views and practice of Her Majesty's Government in regard to the jurisdiction of Local Courts in regard to suits concerning Embassy houses which were the property of foreign States.

That a search in the archives of that office had resulted in the discovery of only two cases touching on that matter, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to inclose the papers relating to those, as marked in the margin.*

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the reply which should be made to the inquiry of the German Government, who had particularly requested an early answer.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Land belonging to a foreign Government; exemption from an action.

That we are not aware of any precedent in which a similar question to that raised by the pro-memoriâ of the German Government has arisen. We are of opinion, on principle, that the exemption of a foreign Sovereign and of his Diplomatic Representative from service of process should be held to extend to an action relating to land forming part of the public property of a foreign Government.

Action not maintainable. Claimant should invoke assistance of his own Government.

And we think that, owing to the difficulty of service of the initiatory process and of executing any Judgment, the action would not be maintainable. The remedy of the claimant would seem to be to invoke the good offices of the claimant's own Government to induce the foreign Government to have the claim investigated and to do justice thereon.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Pro-memoriâ.

(Translation.)

The Palace Caffarelli in the Capitol, which serves as a residence for the Imperial Ambassador at Rome, was purchased in the year 1854 by His Majesty the King of

---

* Law Officers, June 26, 1874; Sir H. Rumbold, No. 79, Confidential, December 8, 1879; to Mr. Vivian, No. 6, February 3, 1880; Memorandum by Baron Plessen, July 13; Pro-memoriâ, July 13, 1886.

1886

Prussia, and stands since that time entered in the Roman Ground Book under the name of His Majesty. Recently an Italian, named Pozzonelli, as heir of the last Duchess of Caffarelli, has brought an action in the Roman Civil Court against the Royal Prussian Chamberlain ("Hausminister"), as Representative of His Majesty the King of Prussia, in order to establish his claim to a parcel of land belonging to the said landed estate as his property. The claim seems to be really baseless. The Government of His Majesty supposes that the question whether His Majesty can be obliged to plead before the Italian Court belongs to international law, and, therefore, cannot be decided alone by Italian Courts.

It is in general a recognized principle in the law of nations that a State cannot claim (judicial) jurisdiction over a foreign State and its Head, Par in Parem non habet potestatem. This principle is, indeed, so far limited by a number of writers on international law as not to extend to legal suits respecting immovable property. This limitation is, on the other hand, only admitted in a conditional way, as. e.g., Fœlix, Vattel, Wheaton, Calvo recognize, indeed, for portions of land acquired by exterritorial persons in their private capacity, but not for the portions of land which serve for the residence of Ambassadors and their suites, which, accordingly, are acquired by the foreign Sovereign in his official capacity ("dans sa capacité publique ou politique"). Such is in the present instance undoubtedly the case, as shown at once by the entry in the Roman Ground Book, which refers not to the person of the Monarch by whom the acquisition was made, His late Majesty, King Frederick William IV, but without reference to a change of persons—quite generally to His Majesty the King of Prussia. Furthermore, it is pointed out in the literature of international law, that an intrinsic ground of difference between movable and immovable possession is in general wanting, as the limit between the two ideas is also differently drawn in different legislations, and from this standpoint, which is the most consequential, the exemption from native jurisdiction, deducible from the sovereignty of the foreign State and the Head of the State, avail as well in the case of claims referring to movable as to immovable property.

In the present case, moreover, it is a question not of a purely legal suit, but of a claim resting upon the right of obligation, as the claim is put forward by the legal successor of the vendor against His Majesty as purchaser of the ground, and, therefore, it can be really only a question of the interpretation of the deed of purchase, or, in other words, of the specification of the objects of the sale. That Native Courts are not competent to deal with obligatorial claims against a foreign Sovereign may be stated as a principle generally received in modern international law, and in Prussia the question whether a jurisdiction of the Prussian Courts is founded against a foreign State in contract suits, which is the category in question in the special present instance, has been within recent years decided in a negative sense by the Tribunal summoned to decide the question of conflicting competence in consequence of this question having been raised by the Royal Prussian Minister for Foreign Affairs.

So far, therefore, as it is a question in the present case of a claim resting upon obligatorial right, the matter will be treated on the side of Prussia as hardly giving any occasion to doubts from the point of view of international law. As, meanwhile, the action comes on as a legal suit, and the views, as above intimated, seem to differ as to what, in international law, should be valid in such claims, His Majesty's Government esteems it of value to learn the view of the Royal Government of Great Britain upon this point. It would, in particular, deem it important to learn whether the Royal Government of Great Britain in similar suits, if any, in which have been brought in foreign Courts respecting immovable property of the British State or of the British Sovereign abroad, the foreign jurisdiction has been actually recognized.

The Imperial Government would attach all the more importance to this point that the writers on international law who declare themselves opposed to ex-territoriality in legal suits bring no support for their view from the existing practice between States.

In the opinion of the Imperial Government the matter will exactly depend upon the attitude taken up in practice by States in the question, since, as a problem of international law, it can receive no solution either on the one side in the single State, nor even by a predominant opinion in the literature of international law, but only in the agreement of the States concerned.

As the judicial proceedings have already commenced in Rome, and the action is only delayed for a while, a prompt reply from the Royal Government of Great Britain at all events, at least, whether, on its side, a foreign jurisdiction in similar cases has already been recognized, would be received by the Imperial Government with particular gratitude.

---

Greece.

No. 35.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to Sir P. Currie.—(Received May 13.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 13, 1886.

Sir,

Blockade of Greek coasts.

WE have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th instant,* stating that Lord Rosebery desired that a Memorandum might be prepared for the guidance of the naval officers employed in the present measures for blockading the vessels under the Greek flag.

In obedience to his Lordship's commands, we have the honour to inclose a Memorandum to that effect:—

"To the Commander-in-chief of Her Majesty's Naval Forces in the Mediterranean.

"Sir,

Sending Memorandum for guidance of naval officers.

"Her Majesty's Government, in concert with the Governments of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, and Russia, have established against vessels under the Greek flag a blockade of the coasts of Greece, extending from Cape Malea to Cape Colonna, and from thence to the northern frontier of Greece, including the Island of Eubœa, and also comprising, on the west coast, the entrance of the Gulf of Corinth.

"You will therefore give orders to all commanding officers of any of Her Majesty's ships under your command to detain every ship under the Greek flag which may attempt to come out from, or enter into, any of the ports or harbours, or communicate with any part of the coast within the above limits.

"Should, however, the cargo, or any part of the cargo, on board such ship belong to any subject or citizen of any foreign Power other than Greece and other than the blockading Powers, and should the same have been shipped before notification of the blockade, or after such notification but under a Charter made before the notification, such ship or vessel shall not be detained.

"The boarding officer will enter in the log of any ship allowed to proceed the fact of her having been visited and allowed to proceed.

"He will also enter the date and place where and when the visit was made.

"In order to secure, as far as possible, uniformity of action on the part of the foreign ships acting in concert with Her Majesty's ships, you will communicate these your instructions, to the Senior Officer in command of the ships acting in concert with you.

"In each case of detention all practicable steps must be taken to ensure the safety of ship and cargo."

May send copies to Her Majesty's Consuls

A copy of the above Memorandum may properly be sent to Her Majesty's Consuls.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* List of Papers transmitted to the Law Officers in the Foreign Office letter of May 12, 1886:—Admiralty, May 11; Mr. Baring, No. 107, Telegraphic, May 11; Sir J. S. Lumley, No. 117, April 21, 1886; Inclosures Nos. 8, 10, 17, and 18 in Mr. Wyse's despatch of January 28, 1850.

1886

Haïti.

No. 36.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 28.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Imprisonment of Mr. Coles for fraud on National Bank.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th instant, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the case of Mr. Coles, a British subject, who had been sentenced by the Criminal Court of Haïti to a term of imprisonment for three years, on a trial for fraud on the National Bank of Haïti.

That Mr. Coles protested against the illegality of the proceedings, and appealed for redress. That a short history of the case would be found in the accompanying Memorandum of the 22nd February, 1886 (A).

That our attention was invited to the legal opinion on the case drawn up by a Haïtian Advocate, which was inclosed in Mr. Hunt's despatch No. 7 of the 2nd February, marked (B), and also to the two Reports of M. Treitt, the Legal Adviser to Her Majesty's Embassy in Paris, inclosed in Lord Lyons' despatch No. 124 and Mr. Egerton's No. 146 of the 19th and 31st ultimo (C and D).

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the irregularities pointed out by the Haïtian Advocate and by M. Treitt were such as to justify Her Majesty's Government in demanding the release of Mr. Coles.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Irregularities pointed out justify demand for his release.

That we are of opinion that the irregularities pointed out by the Haïtian Advocate and by M. Treitt are such as to justify Her Majesty's Government in demanding the release of Mr. Coles.

We desire to call your Lordship's particular attention to the fact that by the Arrêt of the 21st December, 1885, the Court of Cassation has found a Government official and the Magistrate guilty of having corrupted the Jury, and induced them by threats and bribery to give a verdict against the accused.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. Hunt, No. 4, September 24, 1885
Ditto, No. 7, October 20, 1885.
Mr. Coles, November 18, 1885.
Mr. Hunt, No. 15, December 30, 1885.
Ditto, No. 3, January 9, 1886.
Mr. Coles, January 18, 1886.

A. Memorandum, February 22, 1886.
B. Mr. Hunt, No. 7, February 2, 1886. Confidential No. 5298.
C. Viscount Lyons, No. 124, March 19, 1886. Confidential No. 5298.
D. Mr. Egerton, No. 146, March 31, 1886. Confidential No. 5298.

---

No. 37.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received August 6.)

Royal Courts of Justice, August 5, 1886.

My Lord,

Arrest of Mr. A. C. Crosswell on charge of robbery.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers relating to the arrest of a British subject named A. C. Crosswell by the Haïtian authorities, on a charge of being implicated in a robbery alleged to have been committed on the National Bank of Haïti.

That the facts were set forth in the précis which accompanied the papers, and that we were referred to Mr. Crosswell's statement at p. 4 of printed Petition, and to the letter of his advocates at p. 5.

That he was proceeded against, together with Mr. Coles, whose case formed the subject of our Report of the 28th April last. That Mr. Crosswell declared that he was arrested on the 16th March, 1885, without warrant and contrary to law; that he was served with a Bill of Indictment disclosing no criminal offence, and illegal in other respects. That he appealed to the Court of Cassation, which, after protracted delays, delivered such obscure and contradictory Judgments that his advocates retired from the case; that he was tried at last in September on a second Bill of Indictment, but that the prosecution failed to sustain the charge against him, and he was acquitted on the 18th September, after being in prison 186 days, during which time he was never examined, nor were any witnesses heard in support of the charge against him.

That the charge was alleged to have been trumped up by the Haïtian authorities, who were themselves said to be implicated in the bank frauds.

Claim for compensation for illegal imprisonment and delay and denial of justice.

That Mr. Crosswell now applied for compensation on the ground of illegal detention in prison, and delay and denial of justice.

That our opinion was requested as to whether, under the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in demanding from the Haïtian Government compensation from Mr. Crosswell on the above grounds.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government justified in supporting claim.

That we are of opinion that, under the circumstances appearing in the papers before us, Her Majesty's Government will be justified in demanding from the Haïtian Government compensation for Mr. Crosswell, on the ground that neither his original arrest nor his subsequent detention in prison was in accordance with, or justified by, Haïtian law. At any rate, we think he should have been released after the first Judgment of the Court of Cassation.

Doubts as to good faith of prosecution.

It further appears to us that the Public Prosecutor had no real evidence against Mr. Crosswell, or reasonable grounds for bringing him to trial, and we think it is a case in which Her Majesty's Government may fairly question the good faith of the prosecution.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. Crosswell, August 17, 1886.
Petition from British subjects in Haïti, received February 22, 1886, pp. 4, 5. Confidential No. 5259.
Captain Wyndham, No. 10, April 9; No. 28, July 30; No. 30, August 15, 1885.
Colonial Office, September 23, 1886.
Mr. Hunt, No. 22, May 11, 1886.
Précis, June 15, 1886.
Law Officers' Report, April 28, 1886 (case of Coles).

---

No. 38.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 11.)

Royal Courts of Justice, September 10, 1886.

My Lord,

Claims of the Messrs. Maunder as to:—

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the claims of the Messrs. Maunder against the Haïtian Government.

1. Island of Tortuga.

That the first of those claims related to the Island of Tortuga.

That the precise position of that case appeared from the following documents in the Confidential Print of June 1885 (1860):—

1. Reference to the Law Officers of the 24th July, 1885, p. 16 (No. 21).
2. Report of the Law Officers thereon (p. 20, No. 26).

1886

3. Reference of the 16th September (p. 24, No. 29).
4. Report thereon of the 5th October (p. 25, No. 31).
5. Lord Salisbury's despatch to Consul Hunt of the 10th October, 1885 (p. 26, No. 32).

That the instructions in that despatch, founded on the Reports of the Law Officers, were carried out in a letter from Mr. Hunt to the Haïtian Minister (see Further Correspondence, Part V, June 1886 (329), p. 1, No. 1).

That the reply of the Haïtain Minister, refusing to entertain the claim, would be found on p. 2.

2. Momance estate.

That the second claim was that relating to a sugar estate occupied by Messrs. Maunder, called Momance.

3. A distillery.

That the Maunder family had another claim of more recent date respecting a distillery.

That Consul Hunt's correspondence with the Haïtian Minister on the subject would be found at p. 3 of the same print (despatch No. 10, with seventeen inclosures).

That the Minister again denied the British nationality of the Maunders, and the right of Her Majesty's Government to intervene on their behalf, and insisted that their remedy was in the public Tribunals.

That a long correspondence ensued as to the merits of the Momance case, and as to a reference to a Mixed Commission, but that no agreement was come to, owing to a difference as to the questions to be submitted to arbitration.

That Consul Hunt's proposals would be found at p. 10 (Inclosure No. 9), and the Haïtian Minister's at p. 10 (Inclosure No. 10).

That subsequently Mr. Hunt consented to the question of nationality being submitted to the arbitrators (p. 12, Inclosure No. 16). That he was not authorized to do this under his instructions, but that the arbitration went off on the other points in dispute.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion on the following points:—

First, whether the question of nationality could properly be referred to arbitration; or

Secondly, whether Her Majesty's Government should absolutely refuse to reopen that question, and insist on protecting the Maunders as British subjects.

Thirdly, whether, having regard to the maladministration of justice in Haïti, which was notorious, and had quite recently been revealed in the most flagrant manner by the Coles and Crosswell cases, Her Majesty's Government were justified in treating those claims diplomatically and declining to submit them to the local Tribunals.

Fourthly, whether, in case the Haïtian Government declined to refer those cases to arbitration, irrespectively of the question of nationality, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in resorting to force to obtain satisfaction for the Maunder family.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Nationality not a question for arbitration.

That the question of nationality cannot properly be referred to arbitration.

Should refuse to reopen that question.

Her Majesty's Government should absolutely refuse to reopen that question, and should protect the Maunders as British subjects.

Should treat claims diplomatically only.

Her Majesty's Government are justified in treating these claims diplomatically, and declining to submit them to the local Tribunals.

Have right to resort to force.

The question whether Her Majesty's Government should resort to force is scarcely for us, but we see no reason to doubt their right to do so.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Confidential Print No. 5280, 1883–85.
Confidential Print No. , Part V.

No. 39.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 27.)

My Lord, Temple, September 25, 1886.

Imprisonment of Mr. Coles on charge of fraud. Claim for compensation.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian's Pauncefote's letter of the 28th ultimo, in which he stated that by your Lordship's direction, he transmitted to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, which related to the case of Mr. Coles, a British subject, who was sentenced by the Criminal Court of Haïti to a term of imprisonment for three years on a charge of fraud on the National Bank of Haïti.

That in consequence of the opinion conveyed in the Law Officers' Report of the 28th April (see Paper B), Mr. Hill, a gentleman attached to the Foreign Office, was sent to Haïti to demand the release of Mr. Coles, and to investigate the complaints of other British subjects against the Haïtian authorities, as well as counter-charges preferred by the Haïtian Government against the British Consular officers in that Republic (see Papers, C, D).

That on the 6th July Mr. Hill reported by telegraph that Mr. Coles had been released unconditionally from prison (Papers G, K), and he then stated that Mr. Coles had raised the question of his claim to an indemnity (see Paper L).

That in the case of Mr. Crosswell, reported on by our predecessors on the 5th August (Paper M), who was charged with the same offence, there was a total absence of incriminatory evidence, and the proceedings against him were vexatious.

But that there was some evidence against Mr. Coles, and the jury before whom he were tried was equally divided on the first verdict.

That Mr. Hill demanded that the prerogative of pardon should be exercised in the case of Coles after conviction and sentence, owing to the misconduct of the jury and of certain officials of the Court in connection with the trial.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether Her Majesty's Government would be justified in demanding compensation for Mr. Coles, as well as in the case of Mr. Crosswell.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Not justified in supporting claim.

That, in view of all the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government would not be justified in demanding compensation for Mr. Coles.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

(A.) Papers sent to Law Officers, April 10, 1886.
    Mr. Hunt, No. 4, September 24, 1885.
    ,, ,, No. 7, October 20, 1885.
    Mr. Coles, November 18, 1885.
    Mr. Hunt, No. 15, December 30, 1885.
    ,, ,, No. 3, January 9, 1886.
    Mr. Coles, January 18, 1886.
  (a.) Memorandum, February 22, 1886.
  (b.) Mr. Hunt, No. 7, February 2, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p 3).
  (c.) Viscount Lyons, No. 124, March 19, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 7).
  (d.) Mr. Egerton, No. 146, March 31, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 9).

(B.) Law Officers, April 28, 1886.
(C.) To Mr. Hill, No. 1, May 21, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 1).
(D.) To Mr. St. Victor, May 31, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 2).
(E.) Viscount Lyons, No. 302, May , 1886.
(F.) Messrs. Love and others, May 12, 1886.
(G.) Mr. Hill, No. 6, July 6, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 69).
(H.) To Mr. Hill, No. 14, July 13, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 64).
(I.) Mr. Hunt, No. 32, June 26, 1886.
(J.) Mr. Hill, No. 3, July 2, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 66).
(K.) ,, ,, No. 5, July 5, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 67).
(L.) ,, ,, No. 13, August 3, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 78).
(M.) Law Officers, August 5, 1886 (Confidential No. 5349, p. 69*).

1886

No. 40.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 27.)

Temple, September 25, 1886.

My Lord,

Claim of Mr. M. Savage for losses caused by revolution.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th instant, in which he stated that, by direction of your Lordship, he transmitted to us the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to the claim of Mr. Maxwell Savage against the Haïtian Government for 16,200 dollars.

That the claim had been examined by Mr. Hill, of the Foreign Office, who had been sent to Haïti specially to inquire into the grievances of British subjects against the Government of Haïti; and, after an inquiry held at the British Consulate, Mr. Hill had informed the Haïtian Government that he did not feel justified in pressing the claim.

That the facts were briefly as follows:—

A revolution broke out in Haïti in September 1883, and on the 22nd, 23rd, and 24th of that month the town of Port-au-Prince was exposed to the violence of the mob, and to incendiarism and pillage by the Government troops.

That on the restoration of order the Haïtian Government decided to compensate foreigners for the losses they had sustained from the outrages committed on that occasion, and they agreed to the appointment of Mixed Commissions to settle the amount of compensation payable to the claimants of each nationality. (See letter of President Salomon to the United States' Minister, as "Doyen," of the 9th December, 1883: Print (B), p. 4.)

That on the 22nd May, 1884, M. St. Victor, the Haïtian Minister, addressed a letter to Mr. McGuffie, Her Majesty's Acting Consul, proposing to fix the 22nd July following as the date within which all British claims should be presented; and on the 27th May Mr. McGuffie replied to that letter accepting that arrangement, provided it were also agreed to by the Representatives of other foreign Governments whose subjects had claims.

That that condition, however, was not fulfilled in the case of the United States' Minister, who only settled the claims of his countrymen in February 1885. (See, on that point, Acting Consul Wyndham's despatch No. 11 of the 15th April, 1885, Print (A), p. 11.)

That the nature of Mr. Maxwell Savage's claim was fully set out in the Print (A).

That he was a merchant residing at Liverpool, and in November 1882, while in Port-au-Prince, he had lodged with Messrs. Tweedy, Peters, and Co., merchants, of that city, two boxes of jewellery, of the value of 16,200 dollars, with instructions as to the disposal of the property.

Claim wrongly stated.

That Messrs. Tweedy, Peters, and Co., in execution of their instructions, handed the two boxes of jewellery to M. T. Duchatellier, of the same place, as agent for sale. That M. Duchatellier's house, with its contents, including the property in question, was destroyed by an incendiary fire on the 22nd September, 1883; and a claim for the value of Mr. Savage's jewellery was addressed to Her Majesty's Consul by Messrs. Tweedy, Peters, and Co., on behalf of Mr. Maxwell Savage, on the 20th May, 1884; but they inadvertently stated the value to be 6,200 dollars, instead of 16,000 dollars. (Print (A), p. 18.)

Claim disallowed by Mixed Commission.

That the claim for 6,200 dollars was duly presented to the Mixed Commission, and on the 19th July, three days before the date conditionally agreed to by Her Majesty's Acting Consul as the final date for the presentation of claims, the Commission made a declaration in its procès-verbal to the effect that the claim not being supported by any document, it could not be examined. (See precise words in French, Print (A), p. 11.)

That Mr. Tweedy (of the firm of Tweedy, Peters, and Co.) is the only surviving British member of the Mixed Commission, and he maintains that the above declaration was entered on the record of proceedings, on the understanding that the claim should be considered when the documents arrived.

Mr. Hill adverse to claim.

But the Haïtian Government insist that the 22nd July was the "terme fatal," after which no claim could be examined; and it would be seen, from Mr. Hill's despatch No. 10, that he came to the conclusion adverse to the claim on the ground that the word of the British Commissioner could not be treated as of greater value than that of the Haïtian Commissioner, M. Lallemand, who maintained that the claim had been absolutely rejected by the Commission.

That your Lordship, however, felt some doubt as to whether Mr. Hill's conclusion was altogether well founded.

That, in the first place, the condition on which Her Majesty's Acting Consul accepted the 22nd July as the final date was not fulfilled, certain claims of American citizens having been entertained and dealt with at a later date, and it was a notable fact that the date was never published in the papers for public information (Print (A), p. 12).

Secondly, assuming that Her Majesty's Government were bound by that date as the "délai après lequel aucune réclamation ne pourra être déposée et soumise à l'examen de nos Commissions," it might be contended that those words referred to the presentation of the claim, and were not intended to preclude the Commission from commencing or continuing the examination of claims after the 22nd July, provided the claims had been submitted before that date.

That the claim appeared to be a bonâ fide one, and its absolute rejection by the Haïtian Government on the grounds stated had given great dissatisfaction.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion whether Mr. Hill was justified in refusing to support the claim; and, if not, whether, having regard to all the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government could properly demand that the claim be investigated and adjudicated upon without further delay, and that the error in the amount claimed should be corrected.

We were also honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's communication of the 7th instant.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should demand immediate investigation of claim and correction of error.

That we are of opinion that, having regard to all the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government can properly demand that the claim shall be investigated without further delay, and that the error in the amount claimed shall be corrected.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Mr. Hunt, No. 15, April 17, 1886; Foreign Office Memorandum (marked A), June 2, 1886, Confidential No. 5301; ditto (marked B), Confidential No. 5300; Mr. Hill, No. 10, July 24, 1886, Confidential No. 5349, p. 71.

---

Italy.

No. 41.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 15.)

Royal Courts of Justice, January 14, 1886.

My Lord,

Contracts for sale of animals.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 10th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to a question of law addressed to your Lordship by the Italian Chargé d'Affaires at this Court.

That a draft answer had been prepared, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to inquire whether it met with our approval, and might, in our opinion, be addressed to M. Catalani.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

1886

Rules of law which govern them. Amending reply to M. Catalani.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we suggest that the draft answer to M. Catalani should be altered as follows:—

"I have the honour," &c., "and, in reply, I beg to state—

"Contracts for the sale of animals are governed by the same rules of law as other contracts for the sale of movable property.

"If a buyer has been induced to purchase by the fraud of the seller, he has a right to rescind the contract of sale, return the property if still in the condition in which it was when purchased, and recover from the seller the price paid to him for such property.

"In the absence of fraud, the principle caveat emptor prevails, and a buyer cannot return an animal or other property which he has purchased in consequence of the discovery of defects therein unknown to him at the time of sale.

"If, however, there be a warranty given expressly or implicitly on the sale of an animal or other property, and there should be a failure of the warranty, the purchaser may bring an action against the seller on the warranty, and recover damages for the loss sustained thereby."

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

M. Catalani, November 21, 1885.
Proposed draft reply, December , 1885.

---

Annexes.

Draft of Letter to M. Catalani.

Foreign Office, December , 1885.

M. le Chargé d'Affaires,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 21st instant, and, in reply, I beg to state that there is in this country no statutory enactment under which the seller of an animal can be compelled to take it back. Contracts for the sale of animals are governed by the same rules of the common law as other contracts for the sale of movable property, one of the most important maxims connected therewith being caveat emptor. If, however, there be a warranty given expressly or implicitly on the sale of an animal or other property, and there should be a failure of the warranty, the purchaser may bring an action against the seller on the warranty, and recover the purchase-money.

I have, &c.

---

Draft of Letter to M. Catalani, as modified by the Law Officers.

Foreign Office, January 19, 1886.

M. le Chargé d'Affaires,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 21st ultimo, and, in reply, I beg to state that contracts for the sale of animals are governed by the same rules of law as other contracts for the sale of movable property.

If a buyer has been induced to purchase by the fraud of the seller, he has a right to rescind the contract of sale, return the property if still in the condition in which it was when purchased, and recover from the seller the price paid to him for such property.

In the absence of fraud, the principle caveat emptor prevails, and a buyer cannot return an animal or other property which he has purchased in consequence of the discovery of defects therein unknown to him at the time of sale.

If, however, there be a warranty given expressly or implicitly on the sale of an animal or other property, and there should be a failure of the warranty, the purchaser may bring an action against the seller on the warranty, and recover damages for the loss sustained thereby.

I have, &c.

---

Madagascar.

No. 42.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received October 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 28, 1886.

Bank of Madagascar. Proposed establishment of.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying letter which had been received from Mr. Abraham Kingdon,* who had recently secured from the Hova Government a Charter (of which a copy was inclosed in his letter) for the establishment of a Bank in Madagascar, the Bank to negotiate a loan for the Government on security of the customs dues at certain ports; and who was desirous of ascertaining whether, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, British subjects would be within their Treaty rights in carrying out the contract in question.

That previously to the Treaty, which was concluded between France and Madagascar on the 17th December last, there could have been no objection to the establishment of the proposed Bank, or to the provisions of its so-called Charter.

That it was important to consider how far the new Treaty might affect the question.

That Article I provided that the French Government should represent that of Madagascar in all its foreign relations; but that Article II laid down that the French Resident should not interfere in the internal administration of the country; and that the Circular which was issued by the French Government in communicating the new Treaty to foreign Governments declared that the Treaty which had just been concluded made no change in any of the existing Treaties between Madagascar and other foreign States, and that the French Government did not seek to interfere with "the free development of private interests which might be established in Madagascar to whatever nationality they might belong."

That, on the other hand, the French Government had quite recently objected officially to the raising of a loan by the Hova Government in this country, and that it was possible that, in the event of the Bank in question being started, such pressure might be brought to bear, by France, upon the Hova Government as would prove sufficient to bring about its ruin.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was, accordingly, to request that we would take Mr. Kingdon's letter and its inclosure, together with the Treaties mentioned in the accompanying list,† into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether any communication should be made to the French Government on the subject of the proposed Bank Charter, and, if not, as to the reply which should be returned to that gentleman's inquiry.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

Need not communicate with French Government on subject. Suggest reply as to British Treaty rights; effect of French Treaty; and competence of Malagasy Government.

That no communication should be made to the French Government on the subject of the proposed Bank Charter; that the reply to Mr. Kingdon should state that Her Majesty's Government do not see in the Agreement anything which is in excess of the rights given to British subjects by the Treaty of 1883, which Treaty is unaffected by the recent Treaty between Madagascar and the French Republic; but that Her Majesty's Government are not prepared to give to the parties to this Agreement any opinion or advice as to the competence of the Government of Madagascar to make, or its power to carry out, such a contract.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

* Mr. Kingdon, August 30, 1886.

† Anglo-Malagasy Treaty, June 27, 1865. Treaty No. 494; "Africa No. 4 (1883)." Treaty No. 712; "Africa No. 2 (1886)." Treaty No. 3036.

1886

No. 43.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received November 19.)

Royal Courts of Justice, November 18, 1886.

My Lord,

Wilkinson v. Pickersgill.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the case of Mr. Thomas Wilkinson, a British subject resident at Antananarivo, who had recently been compelled to leave Madagascar under the circumstances which were concisely set forth in the Judgment delivered on the 28th May last by the Supreme Court of Mauritius in the suit of "Wilkinson v. Pickersgill."

That Consular jurisdidiction as regarded British subjects in Madagascar was regulated by the Treaty between Her Britannic Majesty and the Queen of Madagascar of the 27th June, 1865, and by Her Britannic Majesty's Order in Council of the 4th February, 1869.

That Article XI of the Treaty ran as follows.—

"Her Majesty the Queen of Madagascar agrees that in all cases where a British subject shall be accused of any crime committed in any part of her dominions, the person so accused shall be exclusively tried and judged by the British Consul or other officer duly appointed for that purpose by Her Britannic Majesty. But any British subject whom the Consul or other officer shall find to have been guilty of having openly offended against the laws of Madagascar shall be liable to be banished from the country."

That sections 15 to 18 of the Order in Council dealt with the circumstances under which a British subject found guilty of crime might be deported, and with the manner in which such deportation was to be carried out.

Question as to jurisdiction of a Vice-Consul.

That it appeared to your Lordship to be open to grave doubts, notwithstanding the Judgment of the Supreme Court of Mauritius, whether a Vice-Consul had, equally with a Consul, jurisdiction under the terms of the Order in Council; and that with reference to that part of the case, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our particular attention to the Reports of the then Law Officers of the Crown and Dr. Deane, of the 18th May, 1877, and the 26th June, 1877, respectively, in a somewhat analogous matter.

That it was proposed, however, to remove the possibility of any similar difficulty arising in the future by the promulgation of a further Order in Council, conferring in express terms such jurisdiction on Vice-Consuls.

As to right of Malagasy Government to banish Mr. Wilkinson.

But that, assuming that the Vice-Consul had jurisdiction to try Mr. Wilkinson for the offence with which he was charged, the further question would seem to arise whether the Hova Government were justified in banishing him from Madagascar under the provisions of Article XI of the Treaty, inasmuch as Mr. Wilkinson, although he was tried by the Vice-Consul for an offence against the laws of Madagascar (viz., that of wounding with intent to kill), had been acquitted of that charge, and had been found guilty only of "unintentionally wounding," which, although justiciable in the case of a British subject in the Consular Court, was not an offence at all against the laws of Madagascar.

That it appeared that the Malagasy Government, in compelling Mr. Wilkinson to leave their country, were purporting to do so by virtue of their powers under Article XI of the Treaty, and that it had occurred to your Lordship that such action might, considering the grounds upon which it was based, have been ultra vires on their part.

and as to limitation of power of expulsion by Hova Government.

That as Mr. Wilkinson had now returned to Madagascar, and refused to leave that country except under compulsion, it might not improbably further be necessary for Her Majesty's Government to consider at an early date whether, if the Hova Government should propose to remove him on general grounds as being a person dangerous to the good order and safety of the State, it would be incumbent to protest against such a course being adopted. And that for that purpose it seemed important to consider whether the general right, which was conceived to be inherent in all Governments, to expel an individual on grounds of that kind, had been, in the case of the Malagasy Government, curtailed or limited, so far as British subjects were concerned, by Article XI of the Treaty.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the following questions:—

1. Whether Vice-Consul Pickersgill had jurisdiction to entertain the charges against Mr. Wilkinson?

2. Whether the action of the Malagasy Government in banishing Mr. Wilkinson, under the circumstances and for the grounds mentioned, was ultra vires?

3. Whether the right of the Malagasy Government to expel a particular British subject, on the general ground that he was a person dangerous to the good order and safety of the State, had been extinguished or curtailed by the provisions of Article XI of the Treaty of 1865, or whether it still existed concomitantly with those other powers which were conferred by that Article?

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

Vice-Consul had jurisdiction.

1. That we are of opinion that Vice-Consul Pickersgill had jurisdiction to entertain the charges against Mr. Wilkinson.

Banishment of Wilkinson not justified.

2. That, under the circumstances, the Malagasy Government were not justified in banishing Mr. Wilkinson when and as they did.

Right of expulsion limited by Treaty.

3. That the general right of the Malagasy Government to expel a particular British subject is now limited by the provisions of the Treaty of 1865.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. Pickersgill, No. 12, June 25, 1886.
" " No. 16, August 12, 1886,
" " No. 17, August 19, 1886.
"Madagascar Times," June 19, 1886.
Mr. Wilkinson, August 2, 1886.
Mr. Jones Bayliss, No. 32, August 28, 1886.
Governor of Mauritius, No. 312, August 30, 1886.
Law Officers, May 24, 1877 (Confidential No. 4216, p. 102).
" " August 4, 1877 (Confidential No. 4216, p. 102).
Treaty with Madagascar, June 27, 1865 (Treaty No. 494).
Madagascar Order in Council, February 4, 1869 (Confidential No. 1624)

---

Mexico.

No. 44.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 15.)

Royal Courts of Justice, July 12, 1886.

My Lord,

Differential duties. Alleged infraction of the most-favoured-nation Article of the Preliminary Agreement of the 6th August, 1884.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 24th May last, stating that he was to transmit to us papers[*] relating to an alleged infraction by the Mexican Government of the IIIrd Article of the Preliminary Agreement for the renewal of relations between Great Britain and Mexico of the 6th August, 1884.

---

[*] T. and J. Harrison, April 19; Royal Mail Steam-packet Company, April 19; R. Bulman and Co., April 19; to Sir S. St. John (Telegraphic), April 20; ditto, No. 2, Commercial, April 20; to T. and J. Harrison, &c., April 21; Sir S. St. John (Telegraphic), April 21; T. and J. Harrison, April 21; West India and Pacific Steam-ship Company, April 21; to Royal Mail Steam-packet Company, &c., April 24; T. and J. Harrison, April 27; Bulman and Co., April 27; to T. and J. Harrison, April 28; to West India and Pacific Steam-ship Company, April 28; West India and Pacific Steam-ship Company, April 29; to Sir S. St. John (Telegraphic), May 3; Sir S. St. John (Telegraphic), May 6; to T. and J. Harrison, &c., May 7; Sir S. St. John, No. 14, April 22; ditto, No. 16, April 24; ditto, No. 18, May 6; West India and Pacific Steam-ship Company, May 17, 1886; Preliminary Agreement for Renewal of Relations between Great Britain and Mexico, August 6, 1884 (Parliamentary No. 2886).

That Article III of that Agreement secured to Great Britain the most-favoured-nation treatment in all matters whatsoever.

Remission of 2 per cent. of duties enjoyed by Mexican Transatlantic Company.

That the Mexican Transatlantic Company (a Mexican line of steamers) enjoyed under their Government Concession, and in lieu of subsidy, the privilege of a remission of 2 per cent. of the duties payable on goods imported by their steamers into the Atlantic ports of Mexico.

Mexican Company's Concession transferred to Spanish Transatlantic Company, who return the 2 per cent. to the shippers.

That in consequence of those steamers having been arrested at Liverpool by creditors, the Concession had been temporarily transferred to the Spanish Transatlantic Company (a Spanish line), and that the Mexican Government had agreed to give to that foreign Company, in payment of the service performed by it, 2 per cent. of the duties payable on the goods imported by their steamers into the Atlantic ports. That the Company, in order to attract shippers, accepted the same freight as was charged by the Mexican line, and returned to the shippers the 2 per cent. which they received from the Mexican Government.

Merchandize shipped on Spanish steamer pays less duty than that conveyed by British vessel.

That representations were addressed to your Lordship last April from several Liverpool firms, drawing attention to the fact that merchandize shipped on a Spanish steamer bound from that port to Vera Cruz would be admitted into Mexico at a lower rate of duty than if it were conveyed by a British vessel.

That Her Majesty's Minister at Mexico was thereupon instructed to protest against the grant of any such privilege to a foreign Company, as being in contravention of the terms of Article III of the Preliminary Agreement.

That the Mexican Government, however, declined to admit that any violation of that engagement had occurred. That they stated that the shippers by the Spanish Company paid full duty to Government, that the Spanish Company received in cash from the Mexican Treasury a subvention equivalent to 2 per cent. of the duties on goods imported by their steamers, and that the Mexican Government had nothing to do with the return of the 2 per cent. of the duties to the shippers.

That, nevertheless, the fact remained that the Mexican Government were parties to an arrangement whereby shippers by a foreign line of steamers enjoyed fiscal advantages which the Government were precluded by the Agreement from extending to any but Mexican vessels.

That, in view of the circumstances, it seemed to constitute, at all events, a moral evasion of the most-favoured-nation clause; and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether the case was one which might properly form the subject of a further representation from Her Majesty's Government to that of Mexico.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Action of the Mexican Government is not an infraction of the most-favoured-nation Article.

That we are of opinion that the action of the Mexican Government, as explained in Sir S. St. John's despatches, is not an infraction of Article III of the Preliminary Agreement between Her Majesty's Government and the Mexican Government; first, because there is no concession made to Spanish vessels generally; and, secondly, because the benefits given to the Spanish Company are in return, and by way of remuneration for, the specific service of carrying the Mexican mails.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Morocco.

No. 45.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 8.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, January 7, 1886.

Enforcement in Morocco of Judgments of British Courts.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir V. Lister's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to an inquiry addressed to Her Majesty's Consul at Tangier by Mr. Gazzero, a British subject at Gibraltar, as to the power of the Consular Court at the former place to enforce "summarily" a Judgment obtained in one of the Courts of this country or in the Supreme Court of Gibraltar, in either case by a British subject, against another British subject living in Tangier.

That Her Majesty's Minister at Tangier solicited instructions as to the reply which should be returned to Mr. Gazzero.

That it was presumed that no such Judgment could be enforced summarily, but that we were referred to sections 10, 12, and 30 of the Order in Council of the 27th August, 1857, and that Sir V. Lister was to inquire whether it was competent to Her Majesty's Consul to entertain a suit founded on a Judgment obtained in England or in Gibraltar by one British subject against another, where the cause of action arose in Morocco. That our opinion was requested as to the answer which should be returned to Sir John Drummond Hay's despatch.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Cannot be enforced "summarily," but only as result of suit in Consular Court.

That, in our opinion, the answer which should be returned to Sir John Drummond Hay's despatch should be that neither of the Judgments specified in Mr. Gazzero's letter of the 20th November, 1885, can be enforced "summarily" by the Consular Court at Tangier.

An action founded upon such Judgment might be brought in the Consular Court, and if the plaintiff were successful, the Court might issue execution in such action.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Morocco Order in Council, August 27, 1857 (Confidential No. 1516).
Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 33, Consular, November 25, 1885.

---

No. 46.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 8.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, April 7, 1886.

Claim of R. C. Bowker and Co. to money paid into British Consulate at Mogador on behalf behalf of Mr. Curtis.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers relating to the claim of Messrs. R. C. Bowker and Co., to receive a sum of money paid into Her Majesty's Consulate at Mogador by the Moorish authorities, under the following circumstances.

That in July last a sum of 702 dol. 66 c., equivalent to 140*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*, was paid to Her Majesty's Consul at Mogador by the Moorish authorities in satisfaction of the claim of a Mr. Curtis, a British subject, in respect of a garden.

Mr. Curtis reported to have died.

That Mr. Curtis left Morocco in the summer of 1884, and was reported to have died in Egypt.

That in the meanwhile various creditors had endeavoured to attach, by written notice, the amount of compensation in the hands of Her Majesty's Consul, but that the latter had been instructed to inform those creditors that he could not accept such notices of attachment as having any legal force.

That among the creditors claiming the fund in the hands of Her Majesty's Consul were Messrs. R. C. Bowker and Co., who insisted that they had a preferential right to it under an assignment from Mr. Curtis, of which a copy was contained in Consul Payton's despatch No. 8, Consular, of the 10th February.

That subsequently to that date Messrs. R. C. Bowker and Co. became bankrupts, and whatever interest they had in the fund under that document passed to their trustee in bankruptcy, and from him to a Mr. G. S. Wood, who now authorized Messrs. R. C. Bowker and Co. to receive the money.

His death not proved.

That no proof had yet been obtained of Mr. Curtis' death, and that no creditor or relative had taken out administration to his estate and effects in Her Majesty's Consular Court in Morocco.

1886

That, in those circumstances, your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the money could properly be paid to Messrs. R. C. Bowker by Her Majesty's Consul, or, if not, what course should be pursued with regard to the disposal of the money.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Money can only be paid to his legal representative.

That, in the absence of Mr. Curtis, if living, or some legal representative of his estate if he be dead, we cannot advise that the money can be properly paid by Her Majesty's Consul to Messrs. Bowker and Co.

It is obvious that their statement as to the existence of their debt, and the amount due in respect thereof, in the absence of the person or persons interested in contesting it, is ex parte only.

The only course we can suggest is to retain the fund until a legal personal representative of Curtis is constituted. One of the creditors claiming the fund adversely to Messrs. Bowker and Co. could probably be constituted the legal personal representative of Mr. Curtis.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Consul Payton, May 12, 1885.
Ditto, May 20, 1885.
Ditto, June 9, 1885.
Ditto, July 12, 1885.
Ditto, July 26, 1885.
Acting Consul Johnston, September 14, 1885.
Ditto, October 14, 1885.
Consul Payton, November 5, 1885.
Ditto, November 16, 1885.
To Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 4, Consular, August 25, 1885
To Acting Consul Johnston, No. 2, August 25, 1885.
Ditto, No. 3, October 6, 1885.
Ditto, No. 4, November 9, 1885.
Ditto, No. 5, November 9, 1885.
To Consul Payton, November 12, 1885.
Mr. J. Grace, October 14, 1885.
Messrs. Bowker and Co., January 20, 1886
Ditto, February 10, 1886.
Ditto, February 23, 1886.
Ditto, March 2, 1886.
Ditto, March 4, 1886.
Mr. G. S. Wood, March 4, 1886.
Consul Payton, No. 8, Consular, February 10, 1886.
To Messrs. Bowker and Co., February 9, 1886.
Ditto, March 3, 1886.
Ditto, March 5, 1886.

---

No. 47.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 8.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 7, 1886.

Fees due to Spanish Consular Court by Mr. Meakin. Question as to their recovery.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 27th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch received from Mr. White, Her Majesty's Consul at Tangier,[*] requesting instructions as to what steps he should take with regard to a demand made on him by the Spanish Consul for the recovery of certain fees due from a British subject named Meakin to the Spanish Consular Court.

That the circumstances under which the complainant brought his action in that Court, and the subsequent efforts to induce him to pay the costs that he had incurred by its unsuccessful result, were fully set forth in Consul White's despatch.

That, as it was desirable, in the interests of British claimants who might have to resort to the Spanish Court, that Mr. Meakin should be compelled, if possible, to pay the fees in question, Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to whether there was any reason why the fees should not be recoverable by action brought by the Spanish Consul against the defaulter in the British Consular Court, and whether, the defaulter having submitted to the jurisdiction of the Spanish Court, was not liable to the ordinary process of that Court for the recovery of the fees due from him.

---

[*] Consul White, No. 1, Consular, February 26, 1886.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion thereon, and also with any other advice we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Meakin liable for fees.
Danger of admitting Spanish jurisdiction over British subjects.

That we are of opinion that, by commencing an action in the Spanish Court, Meakin submitted to the jurisdiction of that Court, at least to the extent of rendering himself liable for payment of the usual fees, but it might create a dangerous precedent to admit coercive jurisdiction in the Spanish Consul over a British subject.

Spanish Consul should sue Meakin in British Consular Court.

The British Consul clearly has no jurisdiction to compel payment of the Spanish Consul's fees, unless a Judgment be recovered in the British Consular Court. And we are of opinion that the proper course will be for the Spanish Consul to sue Meakin in the British Consular Court for his fees. And Mr. White may properly be instructed to inform the Spanish Consul to that effect.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 48.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 10.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 9, 1886.

(1) Libel on Consular Court at Tangier.

(2) Compelling obedience of fraudulent debtor Meakin to order of Court of Chancery.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers[*] which related, firstly, to a libel on the administration of justice in the Consular Court at Tangier, published by three British subjects resident there, Messrs. Meakin, Lockhead, and Revie; and, secondly, to an inquiry addressed to the Foreign Office by a firm of London solicitors as to whether any process existed whereby Mr. Meakin, who was stated to be an absconding fraudulent solicitor, could be compelled to obey an order of the Court of Chancery for the payment of money, of which a copy was inclosed in their letter.

(1) Case of libel by three British subjects.

That, upon the first point, Consul White forwarded a cutting from a newspaper called the "Times of Morocco," containing two "protests," signed respectively by Mr. Lockhead and Mr. Revie, relating to two actions in the Consular Court (Fox and Co. v. Lockhead, and Lockhead v. Pearse), the former of which had been adjudicated on, the latter being, at the date of Sir J. Pauncefote's letter, still pending.

That those protests, which Mr. White characterizes as gross contempt of Court, had been reprinted by Mr. Meakin in the form of a handbill and publicly placarded and distributed.

That Consul White applied for instructions as to his legal powers to deal with the case.

Questions as to:
(1) Powers of Consul for punishing libel.

He pointed out that by section 17 of the Morocco Order in Council of 1857[†] the Consul cannot inflict a punishment exceeding one month's imprisonment or a fine of 200 dollars, unless sitting with Assessors; and as he considered such a punishment would be inadequate in the case, and believed that cases of contempt of Court are dealt with summarily by the Judge without Assessors or jury, he asked for information whether he would be justified in hearing the case summarily and inflicting a punishment of, say, six months' imprisonment; or, if not, whether he could appoint Assessors to sit with him, so as to be able to pass such a sentence; or, finally, whether it was advisable that, in accordance with section 28 of the Morocco Order in Council, the case should be sent to Gibraltar for trial in the Supreme Court.

That Consul White further inquired whether, should the case be heard by him and a sentence of imprisonment passed, he would be empowered by section 5 of the

---

[*] Messrs. Watney, Tilleard, and Co., June 4; Consul White, No. 4, May 31, 1886.
[†] Confidential No. 1516.

1886

Foreign Jurisdiction Act of 1843 to send the prisoners to Gibraltar to undergo their punishment in that garrison.

That Sir J. Pauncefote observed that the Morocco Orders in Council contain a provision as to sending prisoners to Gibraltar for trial, but apparently none as to sending them there for punishment only.

(2) Compelling obedience of Meakin.

That the second question on which your Lordship desired our opinion was stated in the letter from Messrs. Watney and Co.

That our opinion was requested on the questions submitted in the letter of Sir J. Pauncefote.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote, dated the 22nd ultimo, transmitting a further despatch from Her Majesty's Consul at Tangier,* and requesting an early reply to the letter from the Foreign Office of the 12th ultimo.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

(1) Doubt whether Consular Court is a Court of Record.

That the question whether the Judge of the Consular Court in Tangier can punish contempt of his Court by fine or imprisonment on a summary application depends on the question whether the Consular Court is a Court of Record.

Consul should not proceed against libellers summarily.

We have the gravest doubts whether the Consular Court is a Court of Record, and, consequently, whether Mr. Consul White can proceed against the parties in the manner proposed for contempt of Court. And we think that it would be most inexpedient for Mr. Consul White to attempt to exercise any such jurisdiction; and such an attempt might lead to serious complications.

Powers of Judge in case of libel on Court.

A libel on the administration of the law calculated to interfere with the course of justice is an indictable criminal offence, and such a libel may also be the subject of a civil action by the Judge against the offending party.

Consul has no power to send prisoners to Gibraltar.

We are of opinion that there is no power in the Ordinance establishing the Consular Court at Tangier for the Consul to send persons to Gibraltar for imprisonment, Her Majesty in Council not having made any Order for that purpose under section 5 of 6 & 7 Vict., cap. 94.

As to sale of partnership goods.

The point does not directly arise, but it may not be out of place to remind Mr. Consul White that the officers of the Court cannot sell the partnership goods of Lockhead and Revie in satisfaction of a Judgment against Lockhead alone.

(2) No means of enforcing at Tangier order of Court of Chancery.

On the other question, we are of opinion that there is no means by which the orders of the High Court of Justice in the suit of Ahloocoalia v. Meakin can be enforced against Meakin in Tangier. We think that an action could not even be brought on the Judgment, because the order of the 11th May, 1883, orders payment into Court, and not to any particular individual.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 49.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 18.)

Royal Courts of Justice, September 17, 1886.

My Lord,

Libels on Her Majesty's late Minister, Her Majesty's Consul and Consular Court at Tangier by Mr. Meakin.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Villiers Lister's letter of the 28th ultimo, in which he stated that, by your Lordship's direction, he transmitted to us two series of papers (A and B), noted in the accompanying list, which related to the public press in Morocco.

That Mr. Ebenezer Meakin, a British subject, and editor of the "Morocco Times," had published a series of libels on Sir J. H. Drummond Hay, late Her Majesty's Minister at Tangier, and Mr. White, Her Majesty's Consul at that place, and on the administration of justice in Her Majesty's Consular Court at Tangier, for which there was great difficulty in bringing him to justice.

That Mr. Meakin is said to be an "absconding fraudulent solicitor," and Sir Villiers Lister was to invite our attention to the Report of the Law Officers on his case of the 9th July last.

That Her Majesty's Consul, having received instructions in conformity with that Report, had now addressed two despatches to the Secretary of State (Nos. 7 and 8 of the 5th and 27th July).

As to power of Consul to entertain prosecution of Meakin for libel.

That in the first of those he asked for instructions as to his legal power to entertain a criminal prosecution instituted against Meakin for libel by a Captain Rolleston in the Consular Court, and stated the grounds on which he had felt it his duty not to proceed with the case pending the receipt of instructions.

That in the second despatch (No. 8) he reported the substance of private communications which had passed between him and the Chief Justice of Gibraltar respecting the difficulties attending criminal proceedings for libel.

That those difficulties were such that the Secretary of State had caused a new Order in Council for Morocco to be prepared, which would be shortly submitted to us, and which would remove the difficulties complained of.

That in the meanwhile Sir Villiers Lister was to request that we would be good enough to advise your Lordship as to the instructions which should be sent to Mr. White in reply to his two despatches above referred to (Nos. 7 and 8).

That the papers relating to the above question were comprised in Series (A).

But a further question arose on the papers comprised in Series (B).

Complaints as to attacks by British journalists on Moorish Government. Demand for suppression of foreign press.

That we would observe that the Moorish Government had officially complained to Mr. White of the attacks upon them by journals published by British subjects who enjoyed immunity from the native jurisdiction, and they had addressed a Circular to the foreign Representatives asking for the total suppression of the foreign press in Morocco.

Proposal to sanction expulsion of such journalists.

That although such a sweeping measure was not likely to be adopted, the question arose whether, in view of the fact that our Consul was unable to redress the grievance complained of, the Moorish Government should not be informed that Her Majesty's Government would not oppose the expulsion by the Sultan from his dominions of any British subject who was guilty of publishing defamatory articles against the Local Government calculated to disturb the peace and good order of the country, provided the grounds of such expulsion were first laid before Her Majesty's Representative, and deemed by him sufficient.

That on that point Sir Villiers Lister was to invite our attention to the Law Officers' Reports of the 16th May and 7th July, 1860, of the 25th April and 18th October, 1862, and of the 18th December, 1883.

That if that course could properly be adopted, the case of Mr. Meakin would probably be disposed of by his expulsion from Morocco by the Sultan.

That Sir Villiers Lister was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the questions submitted in that letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report that—

Consul has power to entertain prosecution for libel, but proper to send case to Gibraltar.

1. We are of opinion that Her Majesty's Consul has the legal power to entertain in his Court a criminal prosecution of Meakin by Captain Rolleston, but that it will be proper for him, under the circumstances of this case, to send the prisoner to Gibraltar for trial under section 28 of the Order in Council, which, we are of opinion, gives him power to do so. The Statute 44 & 45 Vict., cap. 60, does not apply to Morocco, therefore no fiat is necessary.

Consul should not yet initiate proceedings.

2. In our opinion, Her Majesty's Consul should not himself initiate any proceedings at present, but should wait till the result of the proceedings by Captain Rolleston is ascertained.

May sanction expulsion of British subjects, but should defer this notification.

3. We are of opinion that the Moorish Government may properly be informed that Her Majesty's Government will not oppose the expulsion of British subjects in cases of this nature, provided that the approval of Her Majesty's Representative is first obtained; but this notification should be deferred until the proceedings in the Gibraltar Court are concluded.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Consul White, No. 5, June 14, 1886.

1886

List of Papers.

Series (A):—
  Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 32, June 21, 1886.
  Ditto, No. , August , 1886.
  Consul White, No. 7, July 5, 1886.
  Ditto, No. 8, July 27, 1886.
  Law Officers, July 9, 1886.
  Morocco Order in Council, February 4, 1875 (Confidential No. 2573).
Series (B):—
  Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 104, November 16, 1884.
  Law Officers' Reports thereon:—
    January 19, 1885 (Confidential No. 5246, p. 115), and January 7, 1886.
  To Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 4, January 27, 1886.
  Sir J. Drummond Hay, No. 34, June 23, 1886.
  Consul White, No. 48, August 5, 1886.
  Law Officers' Reports on Expulsion of Foreigners:—
    May 16 and July 7, 1860.
    April 25 and October 18, 1862 (Confidential No 1301, pp. 96, 256)
    December 18, 1883 (Confidential No. 4974, p. 45).

---

Netherlands.

No. 50.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received April 29.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 28, 1886.

My Lord,

Assessment of tax on the Santa Barbara Estate at Curaçao.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 23rd ultimo, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers* relating to the complaint of Mr. J. Godden against the rate of assessment of a tax on the Santa Barbara Estate in the Island of Curaçao.

That we should perceive from Mr. Godden's letters that he complained of the partiality of the members of the Assessment Committee. That it appeared, however, that the Ordinance, a translation of which would be found in Mr. Jesurun's despatch No. 4, Commercial, of the 21st December last, provided that the assessment was to be calculated on the value of the land, and not on the value of its products.

That the yearly value of the phosphate of lime extracted and exported from the Santa Barbara Estate in 1883 and 1884 was between 750,000 and 800,000 fl., that the valuation of that estate at 1,000,000 fl. would not, therefore, seem to be unreasonable, and that it appeared to your Lordship that unless it could be shown that in Mr. Godden's case the meaning of the Ordinance had been perverted, and that the law was unequally applied, there was no case for the further intervention of Her Majesty's Government.

That the inclosed draft of a letter to Mr. Godden had been prepared in the above sense, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship whether it met with our concurrence.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve reply to Mr. Godden's complaint declining to interfere.

That we approve of the terms of the draft letter to Mr. Godden.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Mr. Godden, October 19; to ditto, October 23; to Consul Jesurun, No. 1, Commercial, October 24; Mr. Godden, December 29, 1885; to ditto, January 6; to Mr. Stuart, No. 2, Commercial, January 22, 1886; Consul Jesurun, No. 4, Commercial, December 21, 1885; Mr. Stuart, No. 17, Commercial, February 19; to Consul Jesurun, No. 1, Commercial, March 2 to Mr. Godden, March 2; Mr. Godden, March 12, 1886.

---

Annex.

Draft of Letter to Mr. Godden.

Sir, Foreign Office, 1886.

I am directed by the Earl of Rosebery to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 12th ultimo, on the assessment of the Santa Barbara Estate in Curaçao.

In reply, I am to observe that the Ordinance under which the assessment is made distinctly provides that the tax is to be calculated on the value of the land, and not on the value of its products. The Santa Barbara Estate has been valued at 1,000,000 fl., which does not seem unreasonable in view of the fact that the yearly value of the phosphate extracted and exported in 1883 and 1884 was between 750,000 and 800,000 fl.

His Lordship understands that you do not contest the valuation of the estate at a million of florins, but that, according to your construction of the Law, the assessment should be based, not on its marketable value, but on the value of the phosphate actually exported.

The question, therefore, is one of law, as to the proper construction of the Ordinance, and is not dependent on the views of interested jurors.

Looking at the terms of the Ordinance, Lord Rosebery is not prepared to hold that the interpretation placed on it by the Netherlands Government is incorrect. You are bound by the local Laws in regard to your estate, and unless it can be shown that there is any inequality in the application of the law, his Lordship is of opinion that the case affords no ground for the further intervention of Her Majesty's Government.

I am, &c.

---

No. 51.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 10.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, July 9, 1886.

Marriage Warrant for Captain Wyndham as Consul for French Guiana, but not resident there.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 5th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us papers* relating to a question which had arisen under section 19 of the Consular Marriages Act.

That Captain Wyndham had recently been appointed Her Majesty's Consul both for French Guiana and for Surinam (Dutch Guiana).

A Vice-Consul is resident in French Guiana.

That in neither of his commissions was he appointed to reside in the country for which he was appointed Consul. That Captain Wyndham had applied to be furnished with Marriage Warrants, under section 19 of the Act, to enable him to solemnize marriages in both countries. That it had been decided that the Consul should reside at Paramaribo, in Dutch Guiana, and occasionally visit French Guiana, for the purpose of discharging any Consular duties which might be required of him in that Colony. But a British Vice-Consul had been appointed to reside permanently in French Guiana.

That it was proposed to issue a Marriage Warrant to Captain Wyndham authorizing him to solemnize marriages in Dutch Guiana; but that, in view of the terms of section 19 of the Act, it seemed doubtful whether a Marriage Warrant could be issued authorizing him to solemnize marriages in French Guiana, as he was not a Consul "appointed to reside" in that country.

That if such warrant could not properly be issued to him, it was proposed to issue it to the Vice-Consul, as provided by section 19, in cases where there was no "British Consul resident."

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether a Marriage Warrant could legally be issued to Captain Wyndham authorizing him to solemnize marriages in French Guiana, though he was not appointed to reside in that country; and that, if not, whether such Warrant might be issued to the resident Vice-Consul.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Cannot be issued to Captain Wyndham, but may be issued to resident Vice-Consul.

That we are of opinion that a Warrant cannot legally be issued to Captain Wyndham authorizing him to solemnize marriages in French Guiana (he not being

---

* Act 12 & 13 Vict., cap. 68; Consul Wyndham, No. 24, April 1, 1886; Commission as Consul in Surinam; ditto, for French Guiana; Ordinary Form of Marriage Warrant.

1886

appointed to reside, and not being, in fact, resident there), but that such Warrant may be legally issued to the resident Vice-Consul in that country.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.

---

Persia.

No. 52.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received July 10.)

Royal Courts of Justice, July 9, 1886.

My Lord,

Bankruptcy of Herapit and Aratoon. Claim of creditors to preferential treatment.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 28th April last, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers relating to the bankruptcy of the Persian firm of Herapit and Aratoon, and the claims arising of certain persons to be treated as preferential creditors in respect of the proceeds of the sale of tobacco, originally the property of the bankrupts (see former Reports of Law Officers inclosed).

That the facts of the case were succinctly set forth in the printed Memorandum drawn up at the Bushire Residency, and transmitted to us therewith.

That on the receipt of the last Report of the Law Officers (the 4th June, 1885), Sir R. Thomson was instructed to endeavour to procure further explanation and evidence on the points indicated therein, and that our attention was invited to the documents since received.

That it would be seen, on reference to those papers, and especially to Messrs. Sassoon's letter to Colonel Ross of the 6th November, 1885, that they defended their right to retain the proceeds of the whole 700 bags of tobacco (equal to 837*l.* 0*s.* 3*d.*) solely on an extract from a letter alleged to have been written by Mr. Herapit to Messrs. Malcolm on the 1st June, 1882, who now produce it for the first time, after having given a totally different account of the instructions under which the tobacco originally came to their hands.

That Messrs. Sassoon and Co. insisted that, by virtue of the instructions evidenced by that letter, they were entitled to retain the proceeds, irrespectively of any question as to whether the tobacco was shipped from Bushire to Beyrout before or after the date of bankruptcy.

That, furthermore, they stated that they were without information as to the exact date when the firm of Herapit and Aratoon suspended payment.

That the bankruptcy of the firm was declared on the 9th October, and the letter now adduced by Messrs. Malcolm and Co., and relied on by Messrs. Sassoon and Co., had been submitted to Mr. Tyler, the official liquidator at Tehran, who, as would be seen from Mr. Nicolson's despatch of the 7th January, expressed doubt as to its authenticity, or, at any rate, as to whether it was written on the date mentioned. He could find no allusion to it in the books or accounts which he had in his possession, nor had it ever been referred to in previous correspondence.

That the Law Officers, in their Report of the 12th December, 1884, advised that, as regarded the 100 bags shipped from Bushire in March 1883, Messrs. Sassoon's claim failed for the reasons therein stated, and that, as regarded the other 600 bags, that if they were shipped by Malcolm and Co., by direction of the bankrupts, to Sassoon and Co., to cover their account, and the goods, or documents of title to them, were in the hands of Sassoon and Co., or their agents, prior to the bankruptcy, the claim of the latter would be beyond question.

But that it now appeared that the shipment took place five days after the declaration of bankruptcy; that in those circumstances your Lordship presumed that the claim of Messrs. Sassoon to retain the proceeds of the tobacco could not be sustained.

That if we should be of that opinion, your Lordship proposed to inform Messrs. Sassoon and Co. that Her Majesty's Government, after consultation with the Law Officers, had arrived at that conclusion, on the grounds above stated, and to request them to remit the proceeds to Messrs. Malcolm at Bushire, and so enable Colonel Ross to forward the equivalent, which he now held as a deposit, to the Official Liquidator at Tehran, for distribution among the creditors of the bankrupt's estate.

That your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion on the claims of Messrs Sassoon and Co., and the course of action above suggested.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Messrs. Sassoon have not established any right to proceeds of tobacco.

That we are of opinion that Messrs. Sassoon have not established any legal right to retain the proceeds of the 700 bags of tobacco towards satisfaction of their claim against Messrs. Herapit and Aratoon, and that consequently there are no grounds upon which Messrs. Malcolm can properly ask for the return of the 837*l.* 0*s.* 3*d.*, in the hands of Colonel Ross, to them.

We think that the claim of Messrs. Sassoon is only to a right of set-off, which, not having arisen prior to the bankruptcy, cannot be maintained.

Even assuming the letter of the 1st June, 1882, to be genuine, it is not stated to have been communicated to Messrs. Sassoon, and their letter of the 8th February, 1884 (in our opinion), shows that it was not.

It would not, therefore, constitute a legal charge on the tobacco, or the proceeds of it, in favour of Messrs. Sassoon; and it is clear that both Messrs. Herapit and Aratoon and Messrs. Malcolm treated the tobacco (subject to any lien of Messrs. Malcolm) as having remained at the disposition of the former firm.

It now appears that the shipment of the 600 bags was not made until after the bankruptcy, when Messrs. Malcolm could not confer on Messrs. Sassoon any title to the proceeds as against the Liquidator.

Should instruct Colonel Ross to transmit them to the Liquidator,

As, therefore, Messrs. Sassoon have not made out any title prior to, and existing at, the date of the bankruptcy, and as they could not acquire any title subsequent to that date, we advise your Lordship, on these grounds, to instruct Colonel Ross to remit the sum of 873*l.* 0*s.* 3*d.* to the Liquidator for distribution amongst the creditors.

and inform Messrs. Sassoon.

Your Lordship will, no doubt, direct an intimation to be given to Messrs. Sassoon of any instructions to this effect you may give Colonel Ross, but we think that Messrs. Sassoon and Messrs. Malcolm should be left to adjust their rights in respect of the proceeds of the tobacco between themselves.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers to accompany Reference to Law Officers of April 28, 1886.

HERAPIT AND ARATOON.

Earlier correspondence—
- Sir R. Thomson, No. 5, Consular, September 3, 1884.
- Sir E. Hertslet (Memorandum), October 15, 1884.
- Messrs. Sassoon and Co., November 3, 1884.
- Law Officers, December 12 and December 30, 1884. (Confidential No. 5121, pp. 83-85.)
- To Sir R. Thomson, No. 1, January 5, 1885.
- Sir R. Thomson, No. 4, April 17, 1885.
- Law Officers, June 23, 1885. (Confidential No. 5246, p. 123.)

Later correspondence—
- To Sir R. Thomson, No. 5, July 16, 1885.
- Colonel Ross, No. 14, September 22, 1885.
- Messrs. Sassoon and Co., November 6, 1885.
- Ditto, November 17, 1885.
- Ditto, January 20, 1886.
- Mr. Nicolson, No. 1, January 8, 1886.
- Mr. Maycock (Memorandum), February 17, 1886.
- Mr. Nicolson (Telegraphic), April 15, 1886.
- To ditto (Telegraphic), April 19, 1886.

1886

Russia.

No. 53.

The Solicitor-General and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received June 1.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 31, 1886.

My Lord,

Colledge v. Armstrong.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 26th instant, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers* relating to the case of Mr. Colledge, which formed the subject of a Report of the Law Officers of the 21st December, 1883.

Subpœna served on Mr. A. H. Oakes requiring production of papers.

That Mr. Colledge was bringing an action for libel arising out of the same case against Mr. Armstrong, and that Messrs. Lewis, who were engaged for the defendant, had served a subpœna upon Mr. Oakes, of the Librarian's Department of the Foreign Office, requiring him to produce in court the papers specified therein.

That all but the two papers inclosed therewith had already been produced in the former proceedings at Bow Street, and were still in the custody of the Police Magistrate.

That your Lordship did not consider that the production of the two papers in question (letter to Mr. Colledge of the 16th November, 1883, and his reply of the 29th November, 1883) would be injurious to the public service, but that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether there was any objection to Mr. Oakes being authorized to produce them.

That it was understood that the trial was likely to take place in the first days of June.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No objection to production of specified papers.

That we see no objection to your Lordship's authorizing Mr. Oakes to produce the two letters in question.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

P.S.—The Attorney-General does not sign this opinion, as he is concerned as Counsel in the litigation.

H. D.
J. P. D.

---

No. 54.

The Solicitor-General and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received June 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, June 5, 1886.

My Lord,

Colledge v. Armstrong.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 4th instant, stating that with reference to his letter of the 26th ultimo, and to our Report of the 31st ultimo, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a letter which had been received at the Foreign Office from Mr. Joseph King, asking for the production in Court of further papers in the forthcoming trial of Colledge v. Armstrong.

Production of further papers by Mr. Oakes.

That the papers referred to were sent therewith, and that Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether there would be any objection to returning a reply to Mr. King, stating that Mr. Oakes, of that Department, would be authorized by your Lordship to produce the papers mentioned in his letter, on being subpænaed to do so, in the usual course.

That your Lordship was informed that the trial would take place on the 8th instant.

---

* Subpœna: to Mr. Colledge, November 16; Mr. Colledge, November 29; Law Officers' Report December 21, 1883. Confidential No. 4974, p. 98.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Mr. Oakes may produce the papers except two, copies of which may be given without the Minutes thereon.

That we think that there would be no objection to your Lordship's returning a reply to Mr. King, stating that Mr. Oakes will be authorized to produce the papers mentioned in his letter, on being subpænaed to do so in the ordinary course, with the exception of the letters from Mr. Colledge dated the 16th November, 1883, and the 12th December, 1883.

As a matter of principle we think it undesirable that confidential notes of officers of the Foreign Office, such as those indorsed on the two letters we have mentioned, should be produced in Court.

But we see no objection, if either side desire it, to the production of copies of those letters without the notes indorsed thereon.

We have, &c.
(Signed) HORACE DAVEY
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. J. E. S. King, June 2, 1886.

Mr. Colledge, November 7, 1879.
Ditto, October 29, 1883.
Ditto, November 16, 1883.
Ditto, November 29, 1883.
Ditto, December 12, 1883.
Ditto, May 31, 1884.
Mr. J. E. S. King, September 7, 1885.
Ditto, January 28, 1886.
Ditto, February 2, 1886.
Commercial Reports, in MS., as sent home by Mr. Colledge during the years 1878–1883, inclusive.

---

Siam.

No. 55.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 4, 1886.

My Lord,

Taxation of British subjects in Chiengmai without sanction of the supreme authorities and British Consul.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 15th December last, transmitting to us the papers* relating to various points which had arisen in relation to the Treaties between Great Britain and Siam, and more especially to the right assumed by the Chief of Chiengmai to levy on British subjects whatever taxes he may think fit without the sanction of the supreme Siamese authorities and of the British Consul.

That the Treaties bearing on that subject were:—

1. Treaty of the 18th April, 1855, with the Supplementary Agreement thereto of the 13th May, 1856; and

2. Treaty of the 3rd September, 1883, by which the Treaty between the Government of India and the Government of Siam of the 14th January, 1874, was abrogated.

---

* List of Papers.

A. Mr. Satow, No. 5, Treaty, June 12, 1885, with accompanying Memorandum.
B. Ditto (Telegraphic), November 3, 1885.
C. India Office, November 24, 1885.
D. Treaty with Siam, April 18, 1855, with Supplementary Agreement, May 13, 1856, Treaty No. 411.
E. Treaty with Siam, September 3, 1883, Treaty No. 731.
F. Treaty between the Government of India and the Government of Siam, January 14, 1874 (see Confidential No. 2963), abrogated by Treaty of 1883 (Article I), Treaty No. 731.

1886

That Chiengmai, one of the Laos States, was a border province of Siam contiguous to British Burmah, and Her Majesty's Minister at Bangkok had contended, on behalf of Her Majesty's Government, that the Chief of Chiengmai had no right to levy any taxes on British subjects other than those prescribed by the above-mentioned Treaties; and that, in accordance with Article IV of the Supplementary Agreement of the 13th May, 1856, no new taxation could be imposed, without the consent of Her Majesty's Government, on British subjects in any part of the Siamese dominions.

That the Secretary of State for India, to whom the question was referred, agreed with Her Majesty's Minister in thinking the claim put forward by the Chief of Chiengmai to be untenable.

That Article IV of the Supplementary Agreement of the 13th May, 1856, prohibits the imposition of any new tax or charge without the sanction of the Siamese Government and the British Consul. That the Supplementary Agreement of 1856 was, by Article XII, "incorporated in the Treaty of 1855." That, by Article IX of the Supplementary Agreement, it is provided that the Siamese Government, whenever they might deem it beneficial for the country, might impose a "single tax or duty on any article not now subject to a public charge of any kind," provided it be just and reasonable. That it was contended that Articles IV and IX of the Supplementary Agreement of 1856 must be read together, and that Article IX did not dispense with the sanction of the British Consul to the imposition of a new tax, as provided by Article IV, but that the Consul must approve of such tax as being "just and reasonable."

Proposed tax on sale of fire-arms.

That, moreover, the new taxes proposed to be levied are not "taxes on articles," but on the "sale" of fire-arms.

That, whatever might be the true construction of the above Treaty clauses, it was conceived that unless any new taxation be equally imposed on the subjects of other Treaty Powers, Her Majesty's Government had a right to resist such taxation as against British subjects, under the most-favoured-nation clause of the Treaty of 1855 (Article X).

That that privilege was expressly maintained by Article XIII of the Treaty of 1883; but that Article IV of that Treaty was invoked by the Chief of Chiengmai as an authority for levying other duties than those prescribed by the previous Treaties. That it was presumed, however, as regarded Article IV of the Treaty of 1883, that the duties lawfully prescribed to be paid according to the custom and regulations of the country meant the duties lawfully claimable under the Treaties between Great Britain and Siam, of which the Laos States form an integral portion.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the points above submitted, and as to the instructions which should be sent to Her Majesty's Minister at Bangkok in reply to his despatch.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That it is by no means easy to reconcile Articles IV and IX of the Supplementary Agreement of the 13th May, 1856.

In the case of a proposal to impose any additional tax or charge upon a British subject in respect of his person, labour, dwelling, trade, or property, it is clear that Article IX does not dispense with the sanction of the British Consul required by Article IV.

But if a case can be conceived, not within the above category, in which a proposal is made to impose a single tax or duty on an article not subject to any public charge at the date of the Supplementary Agreement, it is not so clear that if the tax is just and reasonable the consent of the British Consul is necessary.

Proposed tax not reasonable and just.

The proposed tax on guns does not fall within the above description for two reasons:—

First, because such a tax would be an additional tax imposed on a British subject in respect of his trade or property; and, secondly, because guns are already liable to a 3 per cent. import duty under Article VIII of the Treaty of 1855.

It may, in our opinion, be, in any case, reasonably contended that Article IX amounts to an engagement on the part of Her Majesty's Government that the British Consul shall not withhold the consent provided for in Article IV if the tax be "just and reasonable."

Under Article X of the Treaty of 1855 Her Majesty's Government have a right to object to any taxation, as against British subjects, which the Siamese Government have debarred themselves by Treaties with other Powers from imposing as against the subjects of such Powers.

In Article IV of the Treaty of 1883 the duties to be paid, "according to custom and the regulations of the country," by "British subjects entering Siamese territory from British Burmah," mean the import duties lawfully claimable under the Treaties between Great Britain and Siam.

Should object to right claimed by Chief of Chiengmai.

We think that instructions should be sent to Her Majesty's Minister at Bangkok to object to the right assumed by the Chief of Chiengmai to levy taxes on British subjects on the grounds above stated.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Spain.

No. 56.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 5.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 4, 1886.

My Lord,

Case of the hulk "Hans Gude" towed out of Spanish waters by "Hercules"; claim for its restitution.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 5th ultimo, stating that he had the honour to transmit to us the papers[*] relating to a claim made by the Spanish Government for the restitution of the hulk of a Norwegian vessel, the "Hans Gude," which was found floating keel uppermost in Spanish waters by the British steamer "Hercules," and towed by her into Gibraltar, where the hulk was adjudicated upon by the Vice-Admiralty Court as a derelict, and sold, by order of that Court, on the 10th July last.

That it appeared that on the 30th April the Spanish Consul informed the Government of Gibraltar of the circumstances under which the hulk had been towed into Gibraltar by the "Hercules," and protested against the action of the Vice-Admiralty Court.[†]

That the Spanish Consul, in his letter, stated that the hull of the wrecked ship was in Tarifa waters and $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the shore, and was removed by the "Hercules" without the necessary permission of the Spanish authorities, and that his communication was to serve as a protest. That the letter was acknowledged, but that no further action was taken.

That on the 19th June, the Spanish Consul addressed a further letter to the Government of Gibraltar, inclosing a Report by the Law Adviser of the Commander-in-chief at Cadiz, in which the Spanish account of the facts of the case was given at length. That in that Report, it was stated that the hull of the "Hans Gude" was at the time in the possession and custody of the Spanish authorities, and that she was forcibly removed by the "Hercules" and another British vessel, not only without the necessary permission, but in the face of the remonstrances of the Spanish officers sent to prevent the act, under the false pretence that it was done by order of the British authorities. That, further, that the Swedish and Norwegian Consul had protested against the act.

That, in reply to that communication, the Spanish Consul was informed that the hulk was in the possession of the Vice-Admiralty Court, and that it was open to him to apply to that Court for such order as the justice of the case might require.

That that reply was not deemed satisfactory, and an interview took place between the Governor of Gibraltar and the Spanish Consul on the 30th June, and further explanations took place, in the course of which the Consul was again urged to take

---

[*] The Marquis de Casa Laiglesia, October 30; Colonial Office, November 18; ditto, December 17, 1885.

[†] Report of Attorney-General of Gibraltar. Governor's despatch No. 185, in Colonial Office of December 17, Inclosure 1.

1886

steps in the Vice-Admiralty Court. That the Consul, however, abstained from doing so, and on the 10th July the hulk was sold by order of the Court, and realized only 50*l*.

That on the 21st September the Governor of Algeciras transmitted to the Governor of Gibraltar a copy of the proceedings instituted by the Naval Jurisdiction at Algeciras, from which it appeared that it had been decided to make the claim direct to the Vice-Admiralty Court, and the Government of Gibraltar accordingly handed the proceedings to the Spanish Consul for that purpose.

That the Consul, however, made no application to the Court.

That on the 30th October last, the Spanish Minister in London addressed a note to your Lordship, by instructions from his Government, demanding the restitution of the hulk, and that the Reports on the case contained in the Colonial Office letters of the 18th November and the 17th December were thereupon obtained from Gibraltar.

That the Governor of Gibraltar, in his despatch No. 185 (Colonial Office, the 17th December), pointed out that his Government "can in no way be held responsible or liable for acts committed by a private individual in foreign waters." But that a question would seem to arise whether, on receipt of the protest of the Spanish Consul, and on being made acquainted officially with the circumstances under which the hulk had been illegally removed out of the custody of the Spanish authorities, it was not the duty of the Governor to have brought the facts to the knowledge of the Vice-Admiralty Court through the proper Crown officer.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the Spanish claim, and as to the reply which should be returned to the Spanish Minister's note of the 30th October.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Facts now stated would have warranted restitution of hulk.

That, in our judgment, if the facts of the case as now submitted to us had been brought before the Vice-Admiralty Court at Gibraltar and established by satisfactory proofs, that Court would have ordered the restoration of the hulk to the Spanish authorities.

Decision of Court proper, but notice of Spanish protest should have been given to it.

The decision of the Court upon the facts before it appears to have been right and proper; but as the proceedings for the sale of the hulk were instituted on behalf of the British Crown, it is to be regretted that, in the absence of any action on the part of the Spanish Consul, notice was not given to the Court of the circumstances under which a protest had been made by the Spanish authorities.

Should express regret at case and at impossibility of restitution.

The Spanish Minister should, in our opinion, be informed that Her Majesty's Government regret that the alleged wrongful act by which the hulk was taken out of the jurisdiction of the Spanish authorities was not brought to the notice of the Vice-Admiralty Court at Gibraltar; and further regret that it is no longer possible for the British Government to obtain legal possession of the hulk (which is probably no longer in existence), with the view of handing it over to the Spanish authorities.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 57.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received November 15.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 13, 1886.

Use of British waters as base for patrol by Spanish war-vessel.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands, signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 8th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the margin* relating to the proceedings of the Commander of the Spanish war-vessel "Almandarez" off the shores of Jamaica.

That it would be seen from the despatch from the Spanish Consul at Kingston to the Colonial Secretary, dated the 19th July (a copy of which was inclosed in the letter from the Colonial Office of the 20th instant), that the Commander of the Spanish vessel claimed the right of dispatching armed boats from a man-of-war stationed in British territorial waters, to the nearest point beyond the territorial limit, in order to patrol there, without thereby infringing the privilege of those waters.

* Colonial Office, August 30; to Sir C. Ford, No. 87, September 20; to Colonial Office, September 20; Colonial Office, September 20, 1886.

Letter of Governor of Colony.

That the Governor of the Colony, however, in the reply which he caused to be addressed, on the 16th August, to that communication, stated that "it is considered a breach of international law, and an irregular use of territorial waters, that boats should pass from a man-of-war within our territorial limits, or from the shore, with a view to aggressive action outside the limits."

That your Lordship entertained some doubt as to whether that statement was not too broadly expressed, apart from the particular circumstances of the present case, in which there might be just grounds of complaint of the action of the Spanish Commander, and that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the Governor's letter should be approved in its entirety.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Passage of letter not applicable.

That in our opinion the language of the passage quoted from the letter of the Colonial Secretary of the 16th August is not applicable to the circumstances of the present case.

Such use of territorial waters irregular and inconvenient.

Although it is the undoubted right of every nation to patrol the high seas for the purpose of guarding its national and commercial interests, the stationing a vessel of war in the territorial waters of a foreign State, and making that vessel the base of operations of an armed patrol along the limits of those territorial waters, is an irregular and inconvenient use of those waters, and a practice which would justify the withdrawal of the permission by virtue of which the vessel of war is allowed to remain in such territorial waters.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

Switzerland.

No. 58.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received September 29.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, September 28, 1886.

Suits for divorce before Swiss Courts by British subjects domiciled in Switzerland.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir P. Currie's letter of the 14th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us a despatch* relative to a question which had been raised by Professor Koenig, Legal Adviser to Her Majesty's Legation at Berne, with regard to suits for divorce brought by British subjects domiciled in Switzerland, before Swiss Tribunals.

Proposed issue of certificates as to their legality.

That Professor Koenig recommended, upon the grounds set forth at length in the Memorandum annexed, that Her Majesty's Minister at Berne should be authorized, on application, to give an official declaration to the effect that a divorce of British subjects domiciled in Switzerland, and having no domicile in Great Britain, if granted by a competent Swiss Tribunal upon grounds recognized by British law, would be valid in Great Britain.

That it was not the practice of Her Majesty's Government to give certificates as to the law of this country, unless such certificates were indispensable to the ends of justice, and that your Lordship was therefore disposed to think that in lieu of granting the general authority proposed, it would be better that Her Majesty's Government should confine their action in the matter to the grant of a certificate, on application, to the above effect, whenever a case arose in which the Law Officers of the Crown advised that it might properly be given in furtherance of the ends of justice, and that it was required by the procedure of the Swiss Tribunals.

That Sir P. Currie was to add that no Convention had yet been entered into between

* Sir F. Adams, No. 45, September 1, 1886.

1886

Great Britain and any foreign Power under paragraph 3 of the Act 24 & 25 Vict., cap. 11, for ascertaining the law in foreign countries, and vice versâ.

That your Lordship desired to be informed whether we concurred in that view, and, if not, that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to the answer which should be returned to Sir F. Adams' despatch.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

General authority to issue such certificates not desirable. They should be issued only when really necessary.

That we entirely concur with your Lordship in the opinion that it is not desirable to grant the general authority proposed, but that any case which may arise should be considered upon its merits, and the issue of a certificate be authorized only under circumstances in which such certificate is really necessary.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Tripoli.

No. 59.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 27.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, January 26, 1886.

Trial of Maltese, now in Tunis, who is guilty of fraud, in Tripoli, against Messrs. Hough.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 9th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the case of a fugitive offender, a Maltese, who, having committed a fraud against his employers at Tripoli, had fled to Tunis.

That his employers desired to bring him to justice, and had applied to your Lordship for information as to the proper steps to be taken to procure his apprehension and conveyance to Tripoli for that purpose.

That "The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881" (except Part II, relating to the intercolonial backing of warrants), was applied to the Ottoman dominions, and expressly to Tunis, by the Ottoman Order in Council, 1882, section 10.

That, since the date of that Order, France had assumed the Protectorate of Tunis, and Her Majesty the Queen had waived her civil and criminal jurisdiction over British subjects in that Regency "as regards all such matters and cases as come within the jurisdiction of the French Tribunals" established there (see Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883).

That having regard to the terms of that Order, it would seem that Her Majesty's Consul in Tunis has still power to deal with a fugitive offender under the Ottoman Order in Council, 1882, the French Tribunals having no jurisdiction in the matter.

That it was presumed, however, that under "The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881," as applied by the Order of 1882 (which excepted Part II of the Act), a fugitive offender could not be sent from one part of the Ottoman dominions to another, but could only be sent out of the Ottoman dominions to that part of the British dominions where the offence was committed, and that therefore the Act did not apply in the present case.

That if that be a correct view of the effect of the Act as applied by the Order of 1882, the question arose as to whether, having regard to the terms of the Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883, and to the fact that the present case could not come within the jurisdiction of the French Tribunals in Tunis, the offence having been committed by a British subject in Tripoli, it was not competent to Her Majesty's Consul in Tunis to deal with the fugitive under section 263 of the Levant Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, and to send him back in custody to Tripoli, there to take his trial.

That our opinion was requested on the questions submitted in that letter, together with any general observations we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That "The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881," does not apply in the present case.

If it is not under French jurisdiction, British Consul can deal with case, and send offender to Tripoli for trial.

Whether the case comes within the jurisdiction of the French Tribunals at Tunis is a question of French law, upon which the materials for forming an opinion are not before us. Assuming that it does not, it is competent to Her Majesty's Consul in Tunis to deal with the case under section 263 of the Levant Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, and send the offender back in custody to Tripoli, there to take his trial.

Should communicate with French.

Such procedure should not, however, be adopted without communication with the French authorities at Tunis.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Turkey.

No. 60.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 9.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 8, 1886.

G. Mercieca. Petition for the remission of his sentence.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was to transmit to us, by your Lordship's direction, the papers noted in the accompanying list,* which related to a Petition of Giuseppe Mercieca, a prisoner in the Corradino civil prison in Malta, praying for some mitigation of his sentence.

That the Petition, together with the particulars of the prison history of the prisoner, were inclosed in the Colonial Office letter of the 2nd December last; and that a Report of the case and the Judge's notes of the evidence were respectively in the despatch from Consul-General Fawcett No. 59 of the 25th August, 1884, and in the inclosure to his further despatch No. 104, Judicial, of the 31st December last.

That in 1884 the prisoner petitioned for a remission of a part of his sentence, and that his Petition was referred to the Law Officers of the Crown, a copy of whose Report of the 20th October, 1884,† was annexed, from which it would be seen that they concurred in the opinion of the Secretary of State, that the prisoner's Petition should not be acceded to.

That your Lordship saw no reason now to depart from the opinion then expressed by Earl Granville, but that your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether, under the circumstances of the case, any remission of the prisoner's sentence should be granted.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No reason for acceding to request.

That we do not, under the circumstances of the case, see any reason for granting any remission of the prisoner, Giuseppe Mercieca's, sentence.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

* Messrs. Hough, November 6; ditto, November 13; to Messrs. Hough, November 12, 1885; "Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881," 44 & 45 Vict., cap. 69; Ottoman Order in Council, December 12, 1873, Confidential No. 2873; Ottoman Order in Council, May 3, 1882, Confidential No. 2873; Tunis Order in Council, December 31, 1883, Confidential No. 4905*.

* List of Inclosures in Foreign Office letter of February 2, 1886:—Mr. Fawcett, No. 59, August 25; Law Officers, October 20, 1884, Confidential No. 5121, p. 128; Colonial Office, December 2; Mr. Fawcett, No. 104, December 31, 1885.

† Confidential No. 5121, p. 128

1886

No. 61.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received March 25.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, March 25, 1886.

Claims of British subjects on the Porte. Failure to obtain satisfaction of.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a despatch from Sir W. White, Her Majesty's Representative at Constantinople, reporting the ineffectual efforts made by Her Majesty's Embassy to obtain satisfaction by the Porte of certain long-standing and acknowledged claims of British subjects.

Proposal to apply surplus revenue of Cyprus to their payment.

That Sir W. White proposed that the balance of the surplus revenues of Cyprus, payable to the Sultan under the Convention and Annex of the 4th June, 1878, should be applied to the payment of those claims, after deduction of the sums required to complete the payment of the interest on the Turkish Loan of 1855, guaranteed by France and England.

Case of Mr. Cuppa.

That a letter was also inclosed from Mr. Cuppa, representing the extreme hardship and urgency of the case of the firm of that name, whose claim was specially mentioned by Sir W. White, and urging the adoption of the proposed measure.

That a letter to the Treasury of the 19th October last (of which a copy was inclosed) stated the position of affairs as regarded the payment of those surplus revenues.

That, in addition to the deduction above-mentioned on account of interest on the loan of 1855, the amount paid by Her Majesty's Government for the ransom of Messrs. Synge and Suter, when captured by brigands in Turkey, had been recovered out of the fund; and that an intention was announced of retaining the balance in future for the formation of a sinking fund to the loan of 1855, in the absence of any attempt by the Porte to fulfil its engagement in that respect.

That Lord Salisbury proposed to abandon that intention, and to remit the balance to the Porte as it accrued, but that no answer was returned by the Treasury to that proposal, and that no communication on the subject had been made to the Turkish Government.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to the inclosed Reports of the Law Officers, and especially to those of the 6th January, 1881, to the draft to them of the 22nd December, 1881, and to their further Report of the 14th January, 1882, as to the right of Her Majesty's Government to retain the surplus revenue of Cyprus for payment of the interest on the guaranteed loan; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion, whether Her Majesty's Government could properly apply any portion of that surplus revenue to the satisfaction of the private claims of British creditors, bearing in mind the fact that it had also been pledged by the Sultan's Iradé of the 20th December, 1882, as one of the securities for the interest on the general Ottoman Debt.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Surplus revenue of Cyprus cannot be applied to the payment of such claims.

That we are of opinion that Her Majesty's Government cannot properly apply any portion of the surplus revenue from Cyprus to the satisfaction of the private claims of British creditors, having regard to the fact that by the Iradé of the 20th December, 1882 (of which Her Majesty's Government had notice, and in which they appear to have acquiesced), such surplus revenue has been specially pledged as one of the securities for the interest of the general Ottoman Debt.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

List of Papers.

Sir W. White, No. 81, February 18, 1886.
Mr. Cuppa, March 5, 1886.
To Treasury, October 19, 1885.
Law Officers, January 6, 1881. Confidential No. 4637, p. 121.
Ditto, June 30, 1881. Confidential No. 4637, p. 85.
Ditto, August 1, 1881. Confidential No. 4637, p. 89.
To ditto, December 22, 1881.
Law Officers, January 14, 1882. Confidential No. 4783, p. 88.
"Turkey No. 2 (1882)," p. 77. Foreign Office No. 2546.
Convention, June 4, 1878, and Annex. "Turkey No. 36 (1878)." Foreign Office No 2054.
Convention of June 27, 1855. Turkish Guaranteed Loan. Foreign Office No. 392.

No. 62.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received May 12.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, May 12, 1886.

Claims of British subjects on the Porte. Application of surplus revenue of Cyprus to their payment.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that with reference to our Report of the 25th March as to the right of Her Majesty's Government to apply any portion of the surplus revenue of Cyprus to the satisfaction of the private claims of British subjects against the Porte, and referring especially to the statement that Her Majesty's Government had notice of and appeared to have acquiesced in the Sultan's Iradé of the 20th December, 1881, by which the revenues of Cyprus were pledged as one of the securities for the service of the general Ottoman Debt, he was directed to forward to us a Memorandum* which had been drawn up at the Foreign Office as to the extent to which Her Majesty's Government could be said to have had formal notice of the Iradé, or to have acquiesced in it.

That our attention was called to a despatch to Sir H. Layard of the 23rd December, 1879,† and to one to Lord Dufferin of the 14th July, 1881,‡ refusing to recognize the assignment of the surplus revenue of Cyprus to other parties.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether those papers cause us in any way to modify our opinion on the question submitted to us in the letter of the 6th March as to the right of Her Majesty's Government to apply the surplus revenue of Cyprus, or a sufficient part thereof, in satisfaction of the admitted claims of British subjects against the Sultan.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Her Majesty's Government may have right to so use the surplus revenue.

That, in view of the documents and despatches to which our attention is now drawn, it seems clear that although there was no protest against the Iradé of the 20th December, 1881, by Her Majesty's Government, Her Majesty's Government was no party to the arrangement thereby made. It may therefore be that, in strictness, Her Majesty's Government has the paramount right to retain the surplus revenue in discharge, not only of liabilities of the Porte to Her Majesty's Government itself, but also of debts due to British subjects for the payment of which (as in the present case) the Porte has entered into engagements with Her Majesty's Representatives.

But adhere to opinion as to its inexpediency.

But we venture to recall your Lordship's attention to the views as to expediency expressed by our predecessors (in which we concur) in the concluding paragraph of their Report of the 6th January, 1881,§ and in the concluding paragraph of their Report of the 14th January, 1882,‖ and we adhere to the substance of the advice tendered by us to your Lordship in our previous Report¶ on this subject.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

United States.

No. 63.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 6.)

My Lord,
Royal Courts of Justice, February 6, 1886.

British subjects of Chinese origin in the United States.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th December last, stating that he had the honour to transmit to

---

* March 30, 1886.
† Confidential No. 4250, p. 109.
‡ Confidential No. 4607, p. 109.
§ Confidential No. 4637, p. 21.
‖ Confidential No. 4783, p. 88.
¶ March 25, 1886.

1886

us, by direction of the Secretary of State, the accompanying despatch[*] from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, which related to the request of Her Majesty's Consul at San Francisco to be furnished with instructions with regard to persons of Chinese origin arriving in the United States who are British subjects, and as to the application to such persons of the Act of Congress known as "The Chinese Restriction Act," of which a copy would be found at the foot of p. 4 of the printed Report, inclosed in Sir L. West's despatch, of a case in which their landing had been refused.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take Sir L. West's despatch into our consideration, as well as the draft reply[†] which it was proposed to return to it, also sent therewith; and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the terms of the latter were right and proper under the circumstances.

That the despatches referred to by Sir L. West were likewise transmitted.[‡]

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That instead of the reply which it is proposed to return to Sir L. West's despatch, we are of opinion that Sir L. West should be informed:—

They cannot claim free admission or exemption from "Restriction Act" under Treaty of 1815.

1. That the Treaty right of British subjects to "free" admission in the United States' territory is based on Article I of the Convention of Commerce between Great Britain and the United States of the 3rd July, 1815.

It is confined to the inhabitants of the territories of Her Britannic Majesty in Europe, and is subject always to the laws and statutes of the United States. It cannot, therefore, be properly invoked by Her Majesty's Government in support of the claim of British subjects of Chinese origin to exemption from the Chinese Restriction Act and to free admission to the United States' territories.

"Restriction Act" applies to Chinese not subjects of China.

2. That the doubts which were raised by the conflicting decisions of the United States' Circuit Courts in Massachusetts and California as to whether the Chinese Restriction Act applied to persons not subjects of the Emperor of China related to the Act of 1882, and have been set at rest by the amended Act of 1884. In the 15th section of the latter Act it is expressly enacted that the provisions of the Act shall apply to all subjects of China and Chinese, whether subjects of China or any other foreign Power.

Cannot now obtain exemption.

Her Majesty's Government are therefore of opinion that it could not now be successfully contended before the United States' Courts that the Chinese Restriction Act does not apply to British subjects of Chinese origin.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
J. E. GORST.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 64.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received August 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 5, 1886.

Fishery question between Canada, &c., and the United States.

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 5th June last, stating that he was to transmit to us a despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington,[§] inclosing a copy of a note from Mr. Bayard, the United States' Minister for Foreign Affairs, relative to the Fishery question between Canada and Newfoundland and the United States.

Revival of Convention of 1818.

That the Fishery Articles of the Treaty of Washington[||] had now expired in consequence of the denunciation of them by the United States' Government, and that it was contended by Her Majesty's Government that the provisions of the Convention of the 20th October, 1818,[¶] had now revived in their integrity.

---

[*] Sir L. West, No. 305, November 13, 1885.

[†] Not printed; for draft amended in terms of this Report, see to Sir L. West, No. 51, February 26, 1886.

[‡] Sir L. West, No. 94, Commercial, May 18, 1882; ditto, No. 262, August 4; ditto, No. 271, August 19; ditto, No. 11, Telegraphic, September 28; ditto, No. 292, September 28; ditto, No. 322, October 18; to ditto, No. 231, November 6; Sir L. West, No. 304, November 13, 1883.

[§] Sir L. West, No. 28, Treaty, May 11, 1886, Confidential No. 5307, p. 124.

[||] Treaty, No. 529.

[¶] Ditto, No. 197.

That our especial attention was called to the terms of Article I of that Convention.

As to interpretation of Article I respecting purchase of bait, &c.

That with regard to the question now immediately at issue, viz., the right of United States' fishing-vessels to frequent Canadian ports for the purpose of buying bait, ice, or supplies, the literal interpretation of Article I seems scarcely to be questioned by Mr. Bayard, but that the argument relied on appeared to be that the expansion given to trade between the United States and Canada by a series of Laws and Regulations adopted by both countries had effected by independent yet concurrent "action" a gradual enlargement of the provisions of the Convention of Commerce between Great Britain and the United States of the 3rd July, 1815,[*] which was limited to Her Majesty's dominions in Europe, so as practically to extend its operation to the British North American territories, and thus to override, as it were, the prohibition in Article I of the Convention of 1818 against United States' fishing-vessels entering the bays and harbours of Canada for any purpose except the four purposes therein specified.

That your Lordship had asked to be furnished with the observations of the Canadian Government on Mr. Bayard's note, but that, in the meanwhile, Sir J. Pauncefote was to request our opinion as to the validity of Mr. Bayard's contention, that Article I of the Convention of 1818 could not be deemed to have revived in its integrity by reason of the existing conditions of the commercial relations between the two countries which had been brought about by concurrent and reciprocal legislation, and were inconsistent with the restrictions still sought to be imposed, under the terms of that Article, on United States' fishing-vessels.[†]

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir J. Pauncefote,[‡] dated the 14th June last, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 5th June, he was to transmit to us a copy of a note from the United States' Minister at this Court, containing representations respecting recent seizures of American fishing-vessels in Canadian ports.

That, in connection with the arguments contained in that note, Sir J. Pauncefote inclosed the printed Records of the Halifax Fishery Commission.

That, in Appendix I, pp. 1539 to 1588, would be found the arguments of Counsel on the question of purchasing bait, &c., and in Appendix P, pp. 3381 to 3398, a collection of Judgments in Canadian Vice-Admiralty Courts respecting vessels seized for infractions of the Convention of 1818 to No. I (the "White Fawn") and No. 5 (the "J. H. Nickerson"), to which our especial attention was directed.

That inclosed was a volume[§] respecting the negotiations leading to the Convention of 1818, from the draft Articles at pp. 95 and 96, of which it appeared that the United States' proposal to include the obtaining of bait within the provisions of the Convention was refused.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with any observations we might have to make on Mr. Phelps' note in connection with that of Mr. Bayard, already submitted to us, it being understood that the case which was expected to contain a full presentment of Canadian views had not yet reached this country, but that it would be submitted to us as soon as it arrived.

That in connection with Mr. Bayard's note, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to transmit therewith a despatch since received from Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, inclosing observations by Mr. Calderon Carlisle, the Counsel of the British Legation, on the arguments in that note, which were founded on the reciprocal legislation of the two countries.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 21st June last, stating that, with reference to the letters of the 5th and 14th June, he was to transmit to us a letter from the Colonial Office,[||] inclosing a copy of a Report by the Canadian Minister of Justice upon Mr. Bayard's notes of the 10th and 20th May last, relative to the North American Fisheries question.

That a copy of the latter note was inclosed.[¶]

---

[*] Treaty, No. 162

[†] "Correspondence as to alteration of the British Navigation Laws," Parliamentary Nos. 183, 211, and 213, also sent.

[‡] List of Papers (A) Mr. Phelps, June 2, 1886, Confidential No. 5307, p. 165; (B) "Records of Halifax Fishery Commission, vol. i; (C) ditto, vol. ii; (D) ditto, vol. iii; (E) Confidential Print, No. 2285, 1803-51; (F) Sir L. West, No. 48, Treaty, May 30, 1886, Confidential Print, No. 5307, p. 178.

[§] Confidential Print, No. 2285.

[||] Colonial Office, June 14, 1816, Confidential Print, No. 5307, p. 184.

[¶] Inclosure in Sir L. West's No. 36, Treaty, May 21, 1886, Confidential Print, No. 5307, p. 140.

That we should observe that that Report dealt only with the question of the construction to be placed upon the words of the Convention of 1818, taken in connection with the subsequent amendments in the Navigation Act, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request, in the first instance, that we would furnish your Lordship with any suggestions we might have to make as to the nature of the reply which should be made by Her Majesty's Government to Mr. Bayard on that point, leaving for further consideration the other question as to whether the seizure of the "D. J. Adams" was legally justified under the existing legislation (whether Imperial or Colonial) passed to enforce the observance of Article I of the Convention of 1818, or was warranted under any other laws relating to the Customs or otherwise.

As to legality of seizure of the "D. J. Adams."

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to add that the Canadian Government had been pressed for a Report on the latter point.

We have also the honour to acknowledge the receipt of a further Memorandum of Sir Julian Pauncefote, bearing date the 28th June, inclosing two further letters from the Colonial Office on the subject of the North American fisheries.

We are also honoured with a further letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 5th ultimo, stating that, with reference to his former letters, he was to transmit to us two letters from the Colonial Office on the subject of the North American fisheries, and requesting that, in taking those papers into consideration in connection with those upon the same subject already before us, we would furnish any suggestions we might have to offer as to the reply which should be made to the communications received from Mr. Bayard and Mr. Phelps, dated respectively the 20th May and 2nd June last, and transmitted to us in Sir J. Pauncefote's letters of the 5th and 14th June last.

What reply to American communications?

That the principal points raised in those communications were:—

Points raised by America.

1. The strict interpretation of the Convention of 1818.

2. Whether that Convention can in anywise be held to be modified by subsequent legislation as regarded commercial facilities granted reciprocally in United States' and Canadian ports.

3. As to the sufficiency of existing Imperial or Colonial Acts to carry out the stipulations of the Convention, and as to the penalties which could be legally enforced thereunder against United States' fishing-vessels, especially in the particular cases to which attention was called in the correspondence.

That the first point was dealt with in Mr. Bayard's note of the 20th May and Mr. Phelps' note of the 2nd June.

That the second point was dealt with in Mr. Bayard's note of the 20th May.

And that the third point was dealt with in Mr. Phelps' note of the 2nd June, and turned on the construction of the Imperial Act 59 Geo. III, cap. 38, and on the Canadian Acts referred to in Lord Lansdowne's despatch transmitting the new Canadian Bill reserved, which formed an inclosure to Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th June.

That on that point Sir Julian Pauncefote was to call our attention to the conflicting decisions of the Canadian Admiralty Courts in the cases of the "White Fawn" and the "J. H. Nickerson" (Appendix P), Halifax Commission proceedings.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Strict interpretation of Convention.

1. That we are of opinion that, according to the strict interpretation of the Convention of 1818, Article I, American fishermen are prohibited from entering the British bays and harbours therein mentioned for any purpose other than that of shelter and of repairing damages, of purchasing wood, or of obtaining water; and that therefore the entry of an American fishing-vessel for the purpose of buying bait (although for the purpose of being used in the deep-sea fisheries) was a breach of the Convention.

Convention not modified by subsequent legislation.

2. We do not think that the Convention of 1818 can in anywise be held to have been modified by the subsequent legislation as regards commercial facilities granted reciprocally in United States' and Canadian ports referred to in Mr. Bayard's despatch of the 10th May, 1886.

Indeed, we regard his arguments as directed more to the spirit in which the Convention should be administered under existing circumstances than to its construction, and to point to the expediency of a revision of its provisions.

Statutes relating to case.

3. The only Statutes which appear to relate to the question are the Imperial Statute of 1819 and the Dominion Statute of 1868, which seem to be correctly quoted by Mr. Phelps.

By each of these Statutes a vessel is liable to forfeiture "if found fishing or preparing to fish, or to have been fishing," in British waters, but not for purchasing bait, or any other infraction of the Convention.

The real question, as it seems to us, is—What is the proper construction of the words "preparing to fish," and whether the purchase of bait is a preparing to fish within the meaning of these Statutes?

We are of opinion that the words quoted do not include making preparations in British waters to fish outside, but mean only making preparations for illegal fishing in British waters.

We think that the purchase of bait may be evidence of such preparation for illegal fishing, but, taken by itself, is only slight evidence, particularly if (as is stated) bait is now used exclusively, or almost exclusively, in the deep-sea fisheries. We think that the Judgment of Judge Hazen, in the case of the "White Fawn," proceeded on a substantially correct construction of the Statute, although his illustrations of what would be "preparing to fish" are not, in our opinion, exhaustive.

As to sufficiency of legislation.

Your Lordship's reference includes the question of the sufficiency of present legislation to carry out the stipulations of the Convention.

The Imperial Act imposes a fine of 200*l.* on persons refusing to conform with regulations or otherwise offending against the Act, and the Colonial Act imposes a penalty of 400 dollars on a master refusing to answer certain questions.

Measures for enforcing Convention.

It is a question of policy what measures should be taken by municipal legislation in order to enforce the observance of the stipulations of the Convention, but we venture to suggest, for your Lordship's consideration, that such an offence as purchasing bait (if not by way of preparation for illegal fishing) would be adequately dealt with by a fine.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Venezuela.

No. 65.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Rosebery.—(Received August 4.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 3, 1886.

Seizure of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that, with reference to our letters of the 23rd June and the 6th August of last year,[*] in regard to the claims arising out of the acts of the Venezuelan authorities in connection with the British vessels "Josephine" and "Henrietta," he was to transmit to us a further despatch from Her Majesty's Minister at Carácas,[†] inclosing translation of a note from the Venezuelan Government practically refusing to entertain the claim of the owners of those vessels to compensation.

Refusal of Venezuela to entertain claims.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with any observations we might have to offer upon the papers transmitted therewith.[‡]

---

[*] Confidential No. 5246, pp. 178, 179.

[†] Mr. F. St. John, No. 45, June 6, 1886.

[‡] Colonel Mansfield, No. 42, July 14; Mr. Anderson, M.P., November 24, 1883; Colonel Mansfield, No. 2, Commercial, January 7; ditto, No. 4, Commercial, January 15; to ditto, No. 11, March 3; to Colonial Office, March 4; Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, March 29; ditto, No. 26, April 8; to Colonial Office, May 6; Colonial Office, May 13; Colonel Mansfield, No. 28, April 14; Colonial Office, May 26; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 19, May 30; Colonial Office, August 21; to ditto, August 28; Colonial Office, September 2; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 35, September 5; Colonel Mansfield, No. 74, October 26; to Colonial Office, November 27; Colonial Office, December 8; to Colonel Mansfield, No. 51, December 22, 1884; Colonel Mansfield, No. 13, February 8; to Colonial Office, March 13; ditto, April 29; Colonel Mansfield, No. 16, March 9; Memorandum by Sir E. Hertslet, April 17, 1885; Treaty between Great Britain and Colombia, 1825; Hertslet's Treaties, vol. iii, p. 56; Law Officers, June 23, 1885. Confidential Print No. 5246, p. 178; Confidential Print No.

1886

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That the case with respect to the "Henrietta" remains in the same position as it was at the date of the Report of our predecessors of the 21st [? 6th] August, 1885.

No excuse in case of "Henrietta."

We can see no justification for the action of the Venezuelan Government with respect to that vessel, and we think the claim for compensation should be pressed.

But with regard to the "Josephine" the case is somewhat different.

Some excuse in case of "Josephine."

It does appear that, although an order for her release was made by the Tribunal of Second Instance on the 3rd August, 1883, a subsequent Decree was made by the Tribunal of Third Instance directing (in effect) the suit to be recommenced before the Court of First Instance on new charges.

There is therefore some excuse for saying that proceedings are still pending with respect to this vessel.

Claims in both cases should be pressed.

But, having regard to the unreasonable delay in formulating and prosecuting these fresh charges (for which the absence of the captain does not appear to us an adequate excuse), and to the fact that the vessel was lost whilst in the custody of the Venezuelan Government, on a charge which has been rejected by the Tribunals, and which was not supported by any evidence, we think Her Majesty's Government may properly press for compensation to the owners and crew in this case also.

We have, &c.
(Signed) C. RUSSELL.
HORACE DAVEY.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

No. 66.

The Law Officers of the Crown and Sir J. Deane to the Earl of Iddesleigh.—(Received October 2.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, October 2, 1886.

Seizure of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine."

WE are honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir J. Pauncefote's letter of the 17th ultimo, stating that he was to transmit to us the papers* relating to the claims of the owners of two British vessels, the "Henrietta" and the "Josephine," arising out of the arbitrary and illegal proceedings of the Venezuelan Customs authorities.

That those claims had been rejected by the Venezuelan Government on the grounds stated in the note of the Foreign Minister (p. 52 of Parliamentary Paper), and that we should observe from the Report of our predecessors on the 3rd August, on that note, that they were of opinion that the answer of the Venezuelan Government was unsatisfactory, and that Her Majesty's Government would be justified in continuing to press for compensation in both cases.

That their former Reports on those cases were at pp. 42 and 44 of the Confidential Print, inclosed.

Proposed instructions to British Minister as to renewal of demand for compensation.

That a draft despatch had accordingly been prepared, addressed to Her Majesty's Minister at Carácas, instructing him to renew the demand of Her Majesty's Government for compensation in both cases.

That with reference to the observations contained in Colonel Mansfield's despatch No. 2 of the 7th January, 1884, as to the large powers supposed to be conferred by the Law of Venezuela on the Customs authorities, in regard to the seizure of vessels suspected of smuggling, Sir J. Pauncefote was to state that no such laws had been appealed to by the Venezuelan Government, and it would seem improbable that any law exists in Venezuela which could justify such a departure from the ordinary principles of justice, and the usages of civilized nations, as the high-handed proceedings of the Venezuelan officials in the present cases had disclosed.

That the hopelessness of obtaining justice from the Venezuelan Tribunals, and their subserviency to the Government, had frequently been reported upon by Her Majesty's Representatives at Carácas, and that a remarkable instance was given in Mr. St. John's despatch No. 53 of the 3rd July of the despotic action of the Executive, namely, the suppression of the copy of the official Gazette containing the Judgment of the Court of Second Instance acquitting the "Josephine." That that Judgment, however, could not be concealed, and was referred to in the note of the Venezuelan Minister at p. 52 of the Parliamentary Paper.

---

* "Venezuela No. 1 (1886)," Parliamentary No. 3080; Confidential Print, No : Law Officers' Report, August 3, 1886; draft of proposed despatch to Mr. F. R. St. John.

That Sir J. Pauncefote was to request that we would inform your Lordship whether the draft of the proposed despatch to Her Majesty's Minister at Carácas met with our concurrence and approval, and that we would favour your Lordship with any observations which might suggest themselves to us on any part of the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve proposed instructions.

That we entirely approve the draft despatch submitted to us, and do not think it necessary to add any observations upon the cases to which it refers.

We have, &c.
(Signed) R. E. WEBSTER.
E. CLARKE.
J. PARKER DEANE.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch from the Earl of Iddesleigh to Mr. F. R. St. John.

(No. .)

Sir, Foreign Office, , 1886.

Her Majesty's Government have given their careful consideration to the note of the Venezuelan Minister for Foreign Affairs of the 27th May last, of which a copy was transmitted in your despatch No. 45 of the 6th June, and they regret to learn that the Venezuelan Government refuse to give to the owners of the British vessels "Henrietta" and "Josephine" and their crews any compensation or redress for the injuries inflicted upon them by the arbitrary and illegal action of the Customs officials at Maturin.

Her Majesty's Government cannot accept the reply of the Venezuelan Government as disposing of these claims, and I have to instruct you to lay the following observations before the Venezuelan Government in the hope that, on further consideration, they may be disposed to do justice to such well-founded demands.

The circumstances under which the "Henrietta" and "Josephine" were seized, and the proceedings of the Venezuelan Customs authorities at Maturin and Guïria, which have given rise to these claims, are detailed with great precision in the depositions on oath of the owners, masters, and crews of those vessels, and nothing has since transpired to throw any doubt on the veracity of their narrative. Indeed, the dismissal from his post of General Marco Silva Gandolphi, Inspector of Custons at Guïria, who was the official principally inculpated and responsible for the outrages complained of, is an indication of the view taken of his conduct by the Venezuelan Government itself. There is too much ground to believe that, for the reasons stated in the course of the correspondence, Señor Gandolphi was animated by personal hostility towards Mr. Tripp, of Trinidad, whom he supposed to be the owner of both vessels, though at the date of their seizure they had passed into other hands. It is difficult otherwise to understand how an official of his position could have committed such an extraordinary abuse of authority.

I inclose a copy of the papers laid before Parliament in relation to these claims, and I have to instruct you, in the first place, to recall the attention of the Minister for Foreign Affairs to the facts, by submitting to him the depositions on oath of the complainants, and of their witnesses, which are published in those papers.

As regards the case of the "Henrietta," the statement and affidavit of José Cueba, the owner and master of that vessel, will be found at p. 10 of the print, and the letter of his agent at Trinidad, Mr. Schaeffer, to the Colonial Secretary, and its inclosures, will be found at pp. 18-21.

It appears from these documents that the "Henrietta" was seized on the 12th May, 1883, by direction of Señor Gandolphi, for no particular offence, but on the pretext that the owner was suspected of having smuggled on previous occasions.

Three of the crew were imprisoned and treated as criminals, and deprived of all means of communication with their friends. No charge was made against the vessel or the owner, José Cueba, who, indeed, actually obtained from the Prefect of the district a certificate that he had at no time been charged with illicit trading. Nevertheless, he was detained, and his men were imprisoned for two months, while the vessel was laid up at Caño, Colorado, Señor Gandolphi having ordered the removal of her halyards, rudder, and sails.

José Cueba states that a Commissioner arrived from Carácas to inquire into the case, and offered to release him and his vessel if he would renounce all claims against the Government, which he refused to do.

1886

In October of the same year, five months after the seizure, a Judge of the Court at Maturin, in passing sentence in a suit against the firm of Lara Nuñez and Co., for smuggling, declared that there were grounds for instituting proceedings against the "Henrietta." But José Cueba was no party to the suit against Lara Nuñez and Co., and had no opportunity of rebutting such an imputation. His agent, Señor F. L. Mendez, appealed against that part of the sentence.

On the 9th November, 1883, an order was made by the Minister of Commerce at Carácas to send the "Henrietta" to La Guayra, and after some delay caused by the necessity of repairing her, she was dispatched to that port on the 25th December in charge of several Venezuelan Customs officers, but owing to her leaky state she could not be kept afloat, and she was run ashore at Mapire, where she became a total wreck.

In the meanwhile, a further order had been issued by the Minister of Commerce for the absolute and unconditional release of the "Henrietta." But before that order reached Maturin she had sailed for La Guayra, and by her loss on the voyage the owner has been reduced to extreme poverty.

It does not appear that any legal proceedings were ever instituted against the vessel or against José Cueba, and after such grave accusations, and the extreme measures resorted to by the Customs officials, the abandonment of all proceedings, and the dismissal from his post of Señor Gandolphi, his accuser, are facts which speak for themselves.

Her Majesty's Government have therefore received with surprise the statement of the Venezuelan Government, that the action of their officials was justified, and that the release of the vessel was an act of grace in consideration only of her long detention.

I will now proceed to the case of the "Josephine," which reveals a still greater disregard of law and justice, and even of common humanity, on the part of the Customs officials implicated.

You will draw the attention of the Foreign Minister to the sworn deposition of Joseph Montout (the owner of the cargo) at p. 29 of the Parliamentary Papers, and of Abraham David, the master of the vessel, at p. 31.

These documents contain, it is believed, a substantially correct statement of the facts, and of the action of Señor Gandolphi in this case.

The "Josephine" was arrested on the 12th May, 1883, in the most arbitrary and violent manner, and her master and crew, and the carpenters and wood-cutters on board, were seized and placed under arrest.

Up to the present time not a vestige of evidence has been produced, so far as Her Majesty's Government are aware, which could afford the slightest justification for such an extraordinary proceeding. These unfortunate men were not supplied with food for fourteen days, and existed on the charity of strangers. They slept under galleries watched by soldiers. Many of them were kept under restraint for forty-two days, during which time they suffered great privations, and even violence, as in the instance of the seaman Davies. Señor Gandolphi refused them food when appealed to by Joseph Montout. The local authorities refused to have the vessel baled out, though urged to do so when she was sinking, owing to their neglect during heavy rains. She consequently sank with all her cargo on board.

A charge of smuggling brought against the "Josephine" by Señor Gandolphi was first tried before the Judge at Guïria, who condemned the vessel (adjudicating her to Señor Gandolphi), and fined the master 10,000 bolivars and all costs of suit, not for smuggling, but for anchoring at a place not appointed as a legal port of entry, a charge which turned out to be entirely frivolous.

This unjust decision was carried on appeal to the High Federal Court, whose Judgment, dated the 18th July, 1883, was published in the official Gazette of the 3rd August, 1883. It is given at p. 55 of the Parliamentary Paper.

It will be seen that the Judgment of the Appeal Court entirely quashed the decision of the Judge at Guïria, both as regards the confiscation and the fine, and not only established the innocence of the master, but commented severely on the affidavits of the landing waiters, which are stigmatized as being false.

But, according to the Venezuelan Minister, that Judgment was not final, being pronounced by one Judge only, who differed from the Judge of First Instance, and, therefore, the case was carried to the full Court of Appeal.

The full Court, on the 13th November, 1883, directed the suit to be restored to its original position, in order that certain new charges should be brought against the master, Abraham David, before the National Judge of Finance of La Guayra, who was specially selected to hear them.

In the meantime, the "Josephine," as above stated, had sunk at her moorings owing to the negligence of the Customs authorities, who were responsible for her safe keeping.

Nearly three years have since elapsed, and yet the new charges against the "Josephine" have not been preferred.

It is urged by the Venezuelan Minister that the delay in preferring those charges is due to the non-appearance of the master; but he resides in Trinidad, and it is not stated that any attempt has been made to cite him to appear, nor to acquaint him with the nature of the new charges; nor is it explained how the evidence justifying measures of such extreme rigour and severity as the seizure of the vessel and the imprisonment of the crew should only have been discovered six months later, when the case reached the Court of Third Instance, and after the Court of Second Instance had declared that there was no evidence of guilt whatever, but, on the contrary, evidence of tampering with justice on the part of the accusers.

Looking at all the circumstances of these cases, and at the history of the proceedings in relation to them, it can hardly be expected that Her Majesty's Government should be satisfied with the explanations of the Venezuelan Minister, or should place much confidence in the administration of justice in Venezuela.

It is abundantly clear not only that the British subjects concerned have suffered great wrongs and injuries at the hands of Venezuelan officials, but that there has been such delay and denial of justice on the part of the Venezuelan Tribunals as justifies Her Majesty's Government in declining to leave the owners of the "Henrietta" and "Josephine" to seek their remedy in the Venezuelan Courts, as suggested by the Venezuelan Minister.

Her Majesty's Government feel bound to insist on treating these claims directly through the diplomatic channel, notwithstanding the legislation of Venezuela, to which his Excellency appeals, but which cannot in such cases as these affect the rights of foreign Governments under the Law of Nations.

I have to instruct you, therefore, to repeat the demand of Her Majesty's Government for compensation to the injured parties, the amount of which, if the liability be admitted in principle, can be adjusted on a special inquiry.

Should the Venezuelan Government refuse to recognize their liability, and to accede to this renewed demand, you will report their decision without delay, in order that Her Majesty's Government may consider what further action it will behove them to take under the circumstances.

You are instructed to speak to the Venezuelan Minister in the sense of this despatch, and you are authorized to leave a copy of it with his Excellency should he desire it.

I am, &c.

---

X

1887

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. May 1888.

CONFIDENTIAL.

(5597.)

REPORTS

BY THE

LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN, &c.

1887.

1887

LIST OF REPORTS.

(Arranged according to Countries.)

AFRICA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1 | Law Officers | Aug. 5, 1887 | African Order, 1887. Draft extending Order of 1885. More stringent provisions as to contempts of Court, &c.; and novel provisions as to support of wives and children. Approve draft as amended | 1 |
| 2 | Law Officers to Colonial Office | Sept. 8, | Ceded mile on the Gambia River. Interpretation of Treaties of 1826 and 1827 as to extent of cession on the northern bank, and with regard to creeks, bays, tributaries, &c. | 2 |

BRAZIL.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 3 | Law Officers | Oct. 31, 1887 | R. Squire. His arrest and ill-treatment by the Pelotas police; offenders punished; statement of Brazilian law as to the case. Claim for compensation not justified, nor demand for the prosecution of the offenders | 3 |

CHILE.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 4 | Law Officers | Mar. 29, 1887 | British claims for losses during the Chileo-Peruvian war. Not desirable to reopen cases after decision of the Mixed Commission of Arbitration, or to press them diplomatically | 6 |
| 5 | Law Officers | Apr. 21, | British claims for losses during the Chileo-Peruvian war. Should obtain consent of claimants to acceptance of Chilean offer of a lump sum in payment of all outstanding claims, and to any arrangement for the distribution of that sum | 8 |

COLOMBIA.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 6 | Law Officers | Feb. 18, 1887 | Claims for losses during Revolution. Should formally refuse to accept terms of Decree of October, and reserve right to support British claimants who are unable to comply with those terms | 9 |
| 7 | Law Officers | Apr. 7, | British claims on account of burning of Colon by the rebels in 1885. The proofs of negligence on part of the Colombian Government insufficient as ground for claim | 10 |

EGYPT.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 8 | Law Officers | Feb. 25, 1887 | Expulsion of Greeks from Assouan for sale of spirits to British troops. Mixed Courts competent to entertain suits on account of claim against Egyptian Government. Defence to be adopted | 11 |
| 9 | Law Officers | Mar. 14, | Claims of the ex-Khedive on the Egyptian Government. Further letter from the ex-Khedive. Approve views on further letter and answers to previous applications. Should return a similar answer to present application | 11 |
| 10 | Law Officers | 17, | Yacoob Sami, Egyptian exile in Ceylon. Deduction made by Egyptian Government from his subsistence allowance in order to pay his debts. Her Majesty's Government should oppose such deduction. Course to be followed in event of any further question being raised | 13 |
| 11 | Law Officers | 28, | Free navigation of Suez Canal: proposed Convention. Question as to limitation of belligerent rights in Red Sea. Effects of proposed Convention:—1. Right of blockade of Suez Canal abandoned, but not capture of enemy's ships out of the territorial waters.2. Canal neutralized.3. Abandonment by Turkey of rights to close Canal and to engage in hostilities against ships using it. No limitation of belligerent rights in Red Sea | 14 |
| 12 | Law Officers | May 12, | Capture of the "Zarafa" with Italian colours by Her Majesty's ship "Albacore," and her condemnation for contraband trade. Proceedings irregular; the dhow and crew should be released, and the Italian Government informed of the wrong use of their flag | 15 |
| 13 | Law Officers | 16, | Blockade of African coast near Massowah by Italians. Coast not Abyssinian; objections to blockade. Notification of blockade should not be gazetted. Approve Sir E. Baring's advice to Colonel Kitchener | 17 |
| 14 | Law Officers | 26, | Petition of Mr. B. H. Clere for remission of sentence of imprisonment for libel. No good cause for acceding to | 18 |
| 15 | Law Officers | Nov. 7, | Action against Osman Pasha Fanzi for breach of contract in refusing to buy camels. Incompetency of International Tribunal to adjudicate on case. Question as to submission to jurisdiction of the Courts by British Government, limited or general, with regard to an appeal. Not able to form opinion as to appeal, which may be allowed to proceed. Jurisdiction of Courts over British Government inadmissible | 19 |

FRANCE.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 16 | Law Officers | Jan. 17, 1887 | Land claim in Tunis on part of a British-protected subject, General Ben Ayad. He is bound to defend his claim before the French Courts, and failing to do so must be bound by their decision | 21 |
| 17 | M. Clunet to Viscount Lyons | Mar. 26, | Certificates of denationalization in France. French law as to. No formalities necessary for throwing off French nationality. Causes of its loss. Decree of 1811 as to naturalization abroad. Penalties for its non-observance. Formalities for obtaining authority for naturalization of French citizens abroad | 23 |
| 18 | Law Officers | May 12, | Paolo Lia, British subject, arrested in Tunis and removed to Algeria for trial for crime committed in Algeria. French refuse to admit British protest, but withdraw prosecution. Approve draft dissenting from French views as to surrender of British rights in Tunis | 24 |

1887

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 19 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 24, 1887 | Jurisdiction over British fugitive criminals in Tunis. Abandonment of British jurisdiction in Tunis does not apply to extradition cases, in which French Courts have no jurisdiction. Approve proposed despatch to Lord Lyons .. | 26 |

GENERAL.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 20 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 11, 1887 | Mixed marriages by Consuls. Proposed Circular to Consuls as to requiring marriage by lex loci and certificate of its validity. Not advisable to issue the Circular. Consuls should warn the parties, and advise previous marriage according to the lex loci .. .. .. .. | 28 |
| 21 | Mr. H. Jenkyns . | Mar. 31, | Marriages of British subjects abroad. (Memorandum) .. | 29 |
| 22 | Law Officers .. | June 18, | Proposed Circular respecting Mixed Marriages at Embassies and Legations in Mahommedan and heathen countries. Difficulty in carrying out proviso in Circular of July 1886 as to previous marriage according to the lex loci. Submits draft Circulars (B) and (C) for approval. Draft (C) preferable .. .. .. .. .. | 31 |
| 23 | Law Officers .. | July 22, | Proposed instructions to Governors, &c., of Colonies, &c., for communication to Commanders-in-chief in event of war. Approve instructions with alterations. Opinion on right to prohibit export of certain warlike articles .. .. | 34 |
| 24 | Law Officers to Home Office | 27, | Status of children born abroad after the naturalization of their father. The Act of 1870 applies to children born both before and after the naturalization of their father. Their status depends upon their residence with their father in the United Kingdom .. .. .. .. .. | 36 |
| | | | Opinion of Law Officers of the 13th August, 1860, annexed. Children of aliens born before the naturalization of their father are aliens. Children of a naturalized alien born abroad after his naturalization are aliens .. .. | 37 |
| 25 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 20, | Consular fees. Proposed Orders in Council—(a) General, (b) for China, Japan, and Corea. Disapprove of paragraphs as to diminishing fees and as to Treasury approval. Question as to their effect on existing Orders .. .. | 38 |
| 26 | Law Officers to Home Office | 20, | Status of children of naturalized aliens as naturalized British subjects. It is not lost by the cessation of residence in the United Kingdom .. .. .. .. .. | 39 |
| 27 | Law Officers .. | 24, | Marriages by Acting Vice-Consul under the Vice-Consul's Warrant. Agree with former Law Officers as to inability of an Acting Vice-Consul to celebrate marriages .. | 40 |
| 28 | Law Officers .. | 31, | Consular fees. Proposed Orders in Council. Disapprove of proposed insertions as to dispensing with payment of fees and reference to the Treasury .. .. .. | 41 |
| 29 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 15, | New Table of Consular Fees. Proposed Orders in Council. Adhere to previous opinions. The new clause as to dispensing power proposed by the Treasury not open to same objections as that formerly proposed. Object to words as to concurrence of the Treasury .. .. | 42 |
| 30 | Law Officers .. | Dec 10, | Sugar Conference. As to proposal for imposition of surtax on bountied sugar. Of proposed drafts, (C) is inconsistent with most-favoured-nation clauses; (A), (B), and (D) are useless during the existence of such Treaties. No objection to (B) and (D) if the Powers will consent to them. Proposed enactment inconsistent with Treaties. Explanation of terms. Grant of bounties are, however, an argument for terminating most-favoured-nation Treaties. Solicitor-General of opinion that Article V of Austrian Treaty consistent with the prohibition of import of bountied goods .. .. .. .. .. .. | 44 |

GERMANY.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 31 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 17, 1887 | Administration of oaths by Consuls. Proposed Anglo-German Convention. Disapprove instructions to Sir E. Malet. No legal authority for foreign Consuls in England to administer oaths. Treaty nugatory without Act of Parliament. Disapprove of Article I of counter-draft.. .. | 47 |
| 32 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 4, | Marriages at Embassies and Legations. Not necessary to celebrate them within the hours prescribed by English Statutes for England .. .. .. .. | 50 |
| 33 | Law Officers .. | June 29, | German claim to jurisdiction over foreigners in Protectorates. Character of Protectorate proclaimed and ground of claim. Consequent rights of Reichstag. Does Parliament possess similar rights? German views differ from those of former Law Officers. Jurisdiction over foreigners exists only where there are rights of territorial sovereignty. Municipal laws do not affect international law. German claim to exercise jurisdiction over foreigners in a "Consular Protectorate" should not be admitted. Concur in opinions of former Law Officers .. .. .. .. | 50 |
| 34 | Dr. Hirsch to Mr. Scott | July 7, | Goods bearing English trade-marks, counterfeited in Europe, consigned to a German subject in Siam. Steps to be taken by the English manufacturer to obtain redress. German Law respecting protection of trade-marks. Course of procedure before German Consular Courts. Course of procedure in event of appeal.. .. .. .. | 53 |
| 35 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 27, | Request of Madame Triebel, wife of a German subject, for passports for her sons, born in England, but now residing in Germany. The wishes of the sons and father not known. Persons born on British soil are British subjects, without any distinction with regard to their duties and rights. In present case declaration of alienage not necessary. No reason for refusing their passports. They are not exempt from their duties as foreigners with regard to military service, &c. .. .. .. .. .. | 55 |

HAÏTI.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 36 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 1, 1887 | Claim of Mrs. Allen for losses sustained at the hands of the Government troops during an insurrection. Present case not similar to that of a hostile invasion, but owing to the delay the case should not be supported . .. .. | 57 |
| 37 | Law Officers .. | Feb. 15, | Imprisonment of Mr. Coles for fraud on National Bank of Haïti. Approve previous despatches. Further statement of grounds of refusal to interfere not necessary or advisable .. .. .. .. .. .. | 58 |

HONDURAS.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 38 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 24, 1887 | Riot in Island of Bonacca, Bay Islands. Extent of British support to which citizens of Honduras, holders of property acquired before 1859, are entitled. Claims for damages by Mr. Coe Wood and others not entitled to support. Should merely apply for Bonner's release on ground of his acquittal .. .. .. .. .. | 59 |

1887

ITALY.

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 39 | Law Officers | Jan. 10, 1887 | Unentailed property. English law as to its disposal. Son not bound, as by Italian law, to leave portion to his mother | 61 |
| 40 | Law Officers | Nov. 28, | Passage of the "Duke of Sutherland" through the Suez Canal with Cossacks for Abyssinia. Approve instructions to Aden as to request for her detention. Cannot give opinion as to breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act | 62 |

JAPAN.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 41 | Law Officers | Feb. 8, 1887 | Treaty revision. Administration of Japanese law by Consular Courts under Article IX of draft Convention. Her Majesty's Minister should issue police Regulations identical with the Japanese, and penalties equal to the Japanese should be authorized by new Order in Council repealing section 13 of Order of 1881 | 63 |

MADAGASCAR.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 42 | Law Officers | Jan. 12, 1887 | "Fugitive Offenders' Act, 1881." Approve draft Order in Council applying part of it to Madagascar | 65 |
| 43 | Law Officers | Apr. 23, | Appointment of Mr. J. G. Haggard as British Consul at Tamatave. Complaint of French Government that he obtained his recognition and exequatur from the Hova Government direct instead of through the French authorities. Claim of the French Government is inconsistent with their assurances. No action necessary except in case of further French interference | 65 |

MEXICO.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 44 | Law Officers | Feb. 17, 1887 | Proposed Anglo-Mexican Commercial Treaty. Limits of maritime jurisdiction. No objection to Mexican Article as amended, or to alternative Article as to enlargement of | 67 |
| 45 | Law Officers | Aug. 20, | British claims on Mexico. As to interpretation of Mexican Decree of the 22nd June, 1885. Opinion on Mexican views, as contained in their instructions to their Commissioner. The Federal Government is responsible for acts of State authorities. Present Government liable for acts of former de facto Governments. A Government is responsible for the acts of its Agents, the latter not to be regarded as private persons. Explanations to be added to the principles on which the Commissioners are to act | 68 |

MOROCCO.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 46 | Law Officers | Oct. 31, 1887 | Prosecution of Messrs. Perdicaris and Rolleston by Mr. E. Meakin for conspiracy to damage him. Consul White has been subpœnaed as witness, but has been ordered to proceed to his post in spite of the subpœna. Explanatory letter should be sent to the Court with a clerk from the Foreign Office | 71 |

| No. | | Date. | SUBJECT. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 47 | Law Officers | Dec. 15, 1887 | Claim of R. C. Bowker and Co. to money paid into the Consulate at Mogador on behalf of Mr. Curtis. Death of Mr. Curtis beyond doubt. Consul may administer his estate, but he should give notice to his widow and creditors | 72 |

NETHERLANDS.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 48 | Law Officers | Mar. 29, 1887 | Pilotage certificates. Issue of to masters, &c., of foreign ships. Clauses of Bill for limiting grant to British subjects are conflicting. Points in which Bill agrees or conflicts with Treaties | 73 |
| 49 | Law Officers | 30, | Mr. J. Godden's complaints against Dutch authorities at Curaçao. Questions arise only as to 1st and 5th cases. Disagree with M. Brauw. Should claim compensation for working of minerals on Mr. Godden's estate. Refusal to give copy of register of mortgages not justifiable | 74 |

PERU.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 50 | Law Officers | Jan. 31, 1887 | Repudiation of Inca notes, issued by Señor Pierola in 1879, by the Governments of Peru. Mr. Aitken's claim not entitled to support; nor are claims of the London Bank of Mexico, either as to notes received in course of business or as to those received under compulsion. Not sufficient information with reference to latter part of their claims | 75 |
| 51 | Law Officers | Mar. 4, | Repudiation of Inca notes. Claim of London Bank of Mexico for forced exchange of sol for Inca notes. Compensation should be required for bank | 77 |

SALVADOR.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 52 | Law Officers | Apr. 22, 1887 | New Salvadorian Law as to foreigners and nationality. Certain points objectionable. As to propriety and manner of protest against it | 78 |

SIAM.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 53 | Law Officers | Apr. 7, 1887 | "E. B. Michell v. Bush." Plaintiff an unregistered British subject, who has assumed Siamese nationality. Consular Court has jurisdiction, as the defendant is British. Siamese not obliged to forward their plaints through their Foreign Minister. Consul must hear and decide case according to the law | 79 |
| 54 | Law Officers | 15, | Registration of British subjects. New Regulations. Proposed Regulation can be made under existing Order in Council, except No. 3, as to fee. Duty of Consul to keep and correct a register of British subjects, and to impose penalty for non-registration. No power to levy fee for registration | 81 |
| 55 | Law Officers | May 2, | Claim of Mr. E. B. Michell, a British subject in Siam, to exemption from Consular jurisdiction. No proof of his loss of British nationality. Siamese domicil of choice does not exempt a British subject from Consular jurisdiction. His registration should be enforced, and judgment, procured against him, proceeded with | 83 |

1887

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 56 | Law Officers .. | May 21, 1887 | Regulation for registration of British subjects. Question as to its validity. Order in Council having retrospective effect undesirable. Fees illegally levied should be repaid. Mr. Satow should be protected by an Order in Council validating his acts. He is amenable to jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Singapore .. .. .. | 85 |
| 57 | Law Officers .. | July 1, | Regulation for registration of British subjects. Approve draft Order in Council removing doubts as to validity of. Fees received before date of the new Order should be returned.. .. .. .. .. .. | 86 |
| 58 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 24, | British Consular jurisdiction over Mr. E. B. Michell. The dispatch of a ship of war to enforce it without the permission of the Siamese Government would be a breach of the Treaty. Should exercise diplomatic pressure to obtain explanation of refusal to assist the British Court and of permission for British vessel to assist the Court. Delay in promised explanation a reason for postponing active steps | 87 |

SWITZERLAND.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 59 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 7, 1887 | Cunliffe-Owen divorce suit. May grant certificate as to the validity of a Swiss decree in England .. .. .. | 88 |

TURKEY.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 60 | Law Officers .. | Mar. 17, 1887 | Y. L. Stambouli, a British-protected subject at Damascus. Protection should be withdrawn if obtained by fraud. Evidence of fraud insufficient. Turks refused to question his status in 1864.. .. .. .. .. | 89 |
| 61 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 7, | Estates of G. and C. Popolani. Claims of Madame Lavison and Mr. A. Wilkinson, as residuary legatees, against Her Majesty's Government, on account of misconduct of the Official Administrator, Mr. A. Palmieri. Her Majesty's Government not liable in respect of the claims .. .. | 90 |
| 62 | Law Officers .. | June 7, | Judicial duties at Sophia. There can only be one Consular Court in each district. Two commissioned Consular Officers in one district may each hold a sitting of the Court. Courts before commissioned and non-commissioned officers have concurrent jurisdiction. Exercise of judicial functions by Law Clerk at Smyrna illegal .. .. | 91 |
| 63 | Law Officers .. | Oct. 18, | Estate of Hobart Pasha at Constantinople. Administrator appointed at Constantinople. Sufficiency of assets in Turkey doubtful. Claims of creditors, English or others, out of the jurisdiction of the Consular Court. Administrator must recognize claims of English and other creditors. He should apply for administration of property in England, if any. Property should be administered in both countries | 93 |
| 64 | Law Officers .. | Dec. 15, | Appeal against decision of Consular Court at Constantinople in case of succession to the property of Antoun Abdul Messih. Memorial from Chaldean Patriarch to the Judicial Committee should be returned. Secretary of State cannot communicate with the Committee on subject. Patriarch may apply by counsel for leave to intervene. Should give no opinion on question .. .. .. | 94 |

UNITED STATES.

| No. | | Date. | Subject. | Page |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 65 | Law Officers .. | Jan. 18, 1887 | Seizure by the United States' Government of the "Natalie," with guano from the Pedro Cays. British claim to the Cays unquestionable. Claim for compensation should be supported, but United States' Government should be asked for grounds of their claim to the Cays.. .. .. | 95 |
| 66 | Law Officers .. | Apr. 7, | Imprisonment in United States, under Act of Congress, of seamen condemned by British Naval or Consular Courts. Decision of Judge Hoffman, that Act applies only to countries having Treaties similar to the Prussian, is correct .. | 96 |
| 67 | Law Officers .. | Aug. 20, | Seizure of British sealing schooners in Behring's Sea. United States' claim to jurisdiction over the whole of Behring's Sea under their Treaty with Russia of 1867. The seizure unwarranted. Compensation may be demanded .. .. .. .. .. .. | 97 |

VENEZUELA.

| | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 68 | Law Officers .. | Sept. 8, 1887 | Seizure of the "l'Envieuse" and imprisonment of her crew. Vessel condemned, but case under appeal. May demand immediate release of vessel and crew, and resort to force in case of refusal .. .. .. .. .. | 99 |
| 69 | Law Officers .. | Nov. 28, | Claim of the Venezuela-Panamá Gold Mining Company for loss of property caused by the President's illegal action. Legal questions have been dealt with by the Courts. No ground for diplomatic intervention .. .. .. | 100 |

1887

ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

(NAMES AND SUBJECTS.)

1887.

---

[The figures refer to the numbers of the pages.]

---

ABY—ARB.

A.

Abyssinia. Alleged dispatch of Cossacks to assist, 62, 63.
Act, British. Fees, 38–41.
,, ,, Foreign Enlistment. Alleged breach of by Russians at Aden, 62, 63.
,, ,, ,, Jurisdiction. Powers conferred by, 51.
,, ,, Fugitive Offenders, of 1881. Application to Madagascar, 65.
,, ,, Fugitive Offenders, of 1881. Jurisdiction of Consular Courts in Tunis under, 26–28.
,, ,, Marriage. Consular, 29, 30, 40, 41.
,, ,, ,, Diplomatic, 29.
,, ,, ,, Of 1886. Application to Embassies, &c., 50.
,, ,, ,, Of 1753 (Lord Hardwicke's), 30, 50.
,, ,, Naturalization, 36–39.
,, ,, Oaths. Administration by Consuls in England, 48.
,, Colombian. As to payment of claims, 9.
,, of United States' Congress as to imprisonment of foreign seamen, 96, 97.
Aden. Detention of vessels with troops for Abyssinia, 62, 63.
Administration of Estate. See Estate.
,, of Oaths by Consuls, 47–49.
Affidavit. Administration of, by Consuls, 48.
Affirmation. Administration by Consuls, 48.
Agents. Governments liable for acts of, 70.
,, of Governments not considered private persons, 70.
Aitken, Mr., 75–77.
"Albacore." Her Majesty's ship, 15, 16.
Alienage. Declaration of, unnecessary, 56.
Aliens. Naturalized status of children of, 36–40.
,, Sons of, born in England. Status of, 55, 56.
Allen, Mrs., 57, 58.
Allowances to Egyptian exiles in Ceylon. Reduction of, 13, 14.
Anton Youssouf Abdul Messih, 94, 95.
Appeal. Against decisions of German Consular Courts, 55.
,, ,, ,, British Consular Court at Constantinople, 94, 35.
Arbitration in case of claims of the ex-Khedive, 12.
,, on Chilean claims, 6, 7.
,, Re-opening of claims after, 6, 7.

ARM—CER.

Army, British. Sale of spirits to soldiers in Egypt. Expulsion for, 11.
Arrest. British subject in Tunis for crime committed in Algeria, 24–26.
,, ,, ,, Brazil, 3–5.
,, of fugitive criminal in Tunis, 26–28.
Assouan. Expulsion of Greeks for selling spirits to British troops, 11.

B.

Bangkok. Dispatch of British war-vessel to, without sanction, 88.
Bank. London, of Mexico. Claims as to Inca notes, 75–77.
,, Extraction of notes from, 77.
,, National, of Haïti. Fraud on, 58, 59.
Bay Islands. Rights of inhabitants, 59.
,, ,, ,, ,, to British protection, 59–61.
,, ,, Inhabitants. Nationality of, 59.
,, ,, British subjects in. Position of, 60.
,, ,, Cession by Great Britain. Conditions of, 59–61.
,, ,, Claims on account of riots in, 59–61.
,, ,, ,, on account of imprisonment, 60, 61.
Behring's Sea. United States' claim to jurisdiction over, 97–99.
Belligerent rights in Red Sea and Suez Canal, 14, 15.
Ben Ayad, General, 21, 22.
Bill. Pilotage certificates, 73, 74.
Bishop's claim, 6, 7.
Blockade. Italian, of Egyptian territory (Massowah) 17, 18.
,, ,, Massowah. Notification not gazetted, 18.
,, of Suez Canal, 14, 15.
,, of African coast of Red Sea, 15–17.
Bonacca Island. Riots in. Claims arising out of, 59–61.
,, ,, See also Bay Islands.
Bonner, Mr., 60, 61.
Bounties on Sugar. See Sugar.
,, Treaties consistent with prohibition of, 46.
Bowker, R. C., 72.
Brauw, M. Opinion on Godden's case, 74, 75.
Bush v. Mitchell, 79–81.

C.

Capitulations. British rights in Tunis under, 26.
Ceded mile in Gambia River. Extent of, 2.
Certificates. Matriculation in Salvador, 78.

CER—COL.

Certificates. Pilotage. Restrictions as to, 73, 74.
,, Registration in Siam. Fee for, 82, 83, 85, 86.
,, ,, ,, Fine for transfer or loan of, 83.
,, ,, ,, Fine for wrongful use of, 83.
,, ,, ,, Fine for not taking out, 81-83.
,, Validity of mixed marriages, 32, 33.
,, ,, in England of Swiss Decree of Divorce, 89.
Ceylon. Egyptian exiles in. See Exiles.
Chaldean Patriarch. Memorial as to property from, 94, 95.
Children. Support of. See Order in Council, Africa.
,, of naturalized aliens. Status of, 36–40.
,, born in England of aliens. Nationality of, 55, 66.
Circular. Mixed marriages in Mahommedan and heathen countries, 31-33.
,, Proposed, to Consuls. Mixed marriages, 28, 29, 31–33.
,, as to marriages at Embassies and Legations, 29.
Claims on Brazil. Imprisonment, &c., of R. Squire, 3–5.
,, on Chile for losses during war, 6–8.
,, ,, Arbitration. Mixed Commission of, 6, 7.
,, ,, ,, Reopening after, 6, 7.
,, ,, Payment of a lump sum. Consent of claimants, 8.
,, ,, Distribution of money. Consent of claimants, 8.
,, on Colombia for losses caused by revolution, 9.
,, ,, for burning of Colon, 10.
,, on Egypt of ex-Khedive, 11, 12.
,, ,, of Greeks expelled from Assouan, 11.
,, ,, for transactions prior to 1880, 12.
,, on Great Britain. Misconduct of official (Popolani estate), 90, 91.
,, on Haïti. Mrs. Allen's, for damage done by Government troops, 57, 58.
,, ,, Mr. Coles', for imprisonment, 58, 59.
,, on Mexico. Mexican Decree, 68.
,, ,, ,, Instructions, 69, 70.
,, ,, Commission on, 69, 70.
,, on Netherlands, as to mining rights in Curaçoa, 74, 75.
,, on Peru as to Inca notes, 75, 77.
,, on United States for seizure of sealers in Behring's Sea, 97–99.
,, ,, for seizure of the "Natalie" guano ship, 95, 96.
,, on Venezuela for seizure of vessels, 99, 100.
,, ,, of Venezuela and Panamá Gold Mining Company, 100.
,, for conduct of rebels. Proof of negligence, 10.
,, of creditors on estate. See Estate.
,, for damages caused by riots in Bonacca Islands (Bay Islands), 59–61.
,, Government not liable when legal remedy exists, 5.
,, for imprisonment of British subjects in Bay Islands, 59–61.
,, Interference refused. Non-statement of reasons, 58, 59.
,, Land in Tunis of British-protected subjects. Jurisdiction, 21, 22.
,, ,, ,, Decision of French Courts binding, 22.
,, to money of deceased British subject deposited in Consulate, 72.
Clere, B. H., 18, 19.
Clunet, M., 23.
Coles, Mr,. 58, 59.
Colon. Burning of. British claims, 10.
Colonies. Instructions to Governors in event of war, 34, 35.

COM—CUN.

Commission of Arbitration on claims on Chile, 6–8.
,, ,, ,, ,, Decision final, 7.
,, on claims on Mexico, 69, 70.
,, ,, ,, Mexican instructions, 69, 70.
,, Marriages abroad. Report, 29.
Compensation. Claims for. See Claims.
Conference on Sugar Bounties. See Sugar.
Consular Courts. See Courts.
,, Districts, German. Law in force in, 54.
,, Fees. See Fees.
,, Jurisdiction of Two in one district, 92, 93.
,, ,, German. Law as to, 53–55.
Consul. Acting Vice-. Marriages by, 40, 41.
,, Administration of oaths, &c, by, 47–49.
,, in Madagascar. Exequatur from Hova Government, 65, 66.
,, money deposited with. Payment on death of depositor, 72.
,, summoned as witness. Ordered to post, 71.
Contempt of Court. Provisions in Order in Council, 1.
Contraband trade. Egyptian coasts, 15–17.
,, of war. Exportation prohibited, 34, 35.
Contract. Action for breach of, in Egypt, 19, 20.
Conventions. See Treaties.
Cordova and Co., Messrs., 95.
"Corwin," United States' ship, 97, 98.
Cossacks. Dispatch of, in aid of Abyssinians, 62.
Court. Contempt of. Provisions of Order in Council, 1.
,, Police. Consul subpœnaed as witness ordered to his post, 71.
Courts. Consular. British, in United States. Imprisonment of seamen condemned by, 96, 97.
,, ,, Appeal against decisions of, 94, 95.
,, ,, Plaints not to be forwarded through foreign Minister, 80.
,, ,, German. Procedure of. Protection of trade-marks, 54, 55.
,, ,, ,, Appeal against decision of, 55.
,, ,, Provincial. Only one in each district, 92.
,, ,, ,, Sittings held by two commissioned Consular officers, 92.
,, ,, ,, Sittings held before commissioned and non-commissioned officers, 92.
,, ,, ,, Concurrent jurisdiction of, 92.
,, ,, Jurisdiction as to wives and children, 1.
,, ,, Administration of Japanese law by, 63, 64.
,, ,, See also Jurisdiction.
,, ,, Remission of sentences passed by. See Sentences.
,, ,, in Siam. Case of plaintiff, though an unregistered British subject, must be heard, 80, 81.
,, ,, Naval imprisonment in United States of seamen sentenced by, 96, 97.
,, ,, French in Tunis. Jurisdiction over British-protected subject, 21, 22.
,, ,, Egyptian Mixed. See Mixed Courts.
Creditors. Claims on administration of estate in Turkey, 93, 94.
Crown. Prerogative of. As to dispensing with fees, 42, 43.
Cunliffe-Owen, Mrs. E., 88, 89.

1887

CUN—FEE.

Cunliffe-Owen, Mr. F., 88, 89.
Curaçoa. Mr. Godden's mining rights in, 74, 75.
Curtis, Mr., 72.

D.

Debts, of Egyptian exiles in Ceylon. Claims on allowances for, 13, 14.
Decree. Colombian, as to losses caused by revolution, 9.
„ French, as to naturalization of French abroad, 23.
„ Mexican, as to claims, 68.
„ Peruvian, as to Inca notes, 76.
„ Swiss, of divorce. Certificate as to its validity in England, 89.
Denationalization. Certificates of, in France, 23.
Deposit of money in Consulate, 72.
Dhow. Seizure of, for contraband trade, 15–17.
„ Egyptian, carrying Italian flag, 15–17.
Diplomatic intervention in Salvador. Restriction of, 78, 79.
„ marriages. See Marriages.
Divorce. Swiss Decree of. Validity in England, 89.
Domicil. Siamese, does not exempt from British jurisdiction, 84.
"Duke of Sutherland," the, 62.

E.

Ehrensperger, Mr., 56.
Elliott and Fanning, Messrs., 95, 96.
Embargo on vessels on outbreak of war, 34, 35.
Embassies. Marriages at. See Marriages.
Estate. Administration of Hobart Pasha's, 93, 94.
„ „ of Mr. Curtis, 72.
„ „ of, when death uncertain, 72.
„ „ of notice to widow and creditors, 72, 73.
„ „ double, 94.
„ „ See also Property.
„ Administrator, Official. Claim for misconduct of, 90, 91.
„ Claims of creditors within jurisdiction of Consular Court, 93, 94.
Exequatur obtained direct from Hova Government. French complaint, 65, 66.
Exiles. Egyptian, in Ceylon. Deductions from subsistence allowance, 13, 14.
Export. Warlike articles, contraband of war. Prohibition, 34, 35.
Expulsion. Greeks from Assouan for sale of spirits to soldiers, 11.
„ Foreigners from Salvador under new Law, 78, 79.
Extradition. Anglo-French Treaty not applicable to Tunis, 27, 28.
„ cases in Tunis. British jurisdiction over, 26–28.

F.

Families. Support of. Provisions in Order in Council, 1.
Federal Government. Responsibility of. See Government.
Fee for registration of British subjects, 82, 83, 85, 86.
Fees. Approval by Treasury, 38, 39, 41–43.
„ Power of dispensing with, 38, 41, 43.
„ „ diminishing, 38, 41.
„ Prerogative of Crown as to dispensing with, 42, 43.
„ Proposed Orders in Council, 38, 39, 41–43.
„ Wrongfully levied, suits for recovery of, 85, 86.
„ „ repayment of, 86.

FIN—JEN.

Fine for non-registration of British subjects in Siam, 81, 82, 83.
„ for wrongful use or loan of certificates of registration in Siam, 83.
Flag. Italian, carried by Egyptian dhow, 15–17.
Foreign Enlistment Act. See Act.
„ relations of Madagascar. French management of, 65–67.
Foreigners. Jurisdiction over in Protectorates, 50–53.
„ in Salvador, more unfavourably treated than natives, 79.
„ „ Law as to, 78, 79.
Forgery of trade-marks. See Trade Marks.
Fraud on Bank of Haïti, 58, 59.

G.

Gambia River. "Ceded mile." On extent of, 2.
Gazette. Notification of blockade not inserted, 18.
Godden, Mr. John, 74, 75.
Government. Agents of, not considered private persons, 70.
„ „ liability for acts of, 70.
„ Armed bands. Responsibility for acts of, 70.
„ De facto. Responsibility for acts of, 70.
„ Federal, responsible for acts of constituent States, 69.
„ Jurisdiction of Mixed Courts in Egypt over, 19, 20.
„ Peruvian. Acts of, declared null and void, 76, 77.
„ Police. Responsibility for acts of, 4, 5.
Guano Islands. British and United States' claims to, 95, 96.
„ vessels. Seizure of, 95, 96.

H.

Haggard, Consul J. G., 65.
Heathen countries. See Marriages.
"Henrietta," 99.
Hirsch, Dr., 53.
Hobart Pasha, 93, 94.
Hoffman, Judge, 96, 97.

I.

Iglesias, Miguel, 76.
Imprisonment in Bay Islands. Claims for, 59–61.
„ in Brazil of R. Squire, 3–5.
„ in Haïti for fraud on Bank of Haïti, 58, 59.
„ in Venezuela of crew of "l'Envieuse," 99.
„ in United States of seamen condemned by British Naval or Consular Courts, 96, 97.
„ Petitions for remission of, 18, 19.
Inca notes. Claims as to repudiation of, 75–77.
Instructions to Governors of Colonies on outbreak of war, 34, 35.
Insurrection. Claim for damages by Government troops, 57, 58.
International Law. See Law.
Intervention, Diplomatic. Restriction of right in Salvador, 78, 79.
Invasion and insurrection. Claims in cases of, not on same footing, 57, 58.
Ismaïl, ex-Khedive, 11.

J.

Japan. Judicial autonomy of, 63.
„ See also Courts, Jurisdiction, Police.
Jenkyns, Mr. H., 29.

JEW—LEX.

Jew. Protection of, in Damascus. See Stambouli.
"Josephine," the, 99.
Judgment against unregistered British subject in Siam, 84.
Judicial Committee. Communication of Secretary of State with, 94, 95.
„ „ Appeal from Consular Court at Constantinople to, 94, 95.
Jurisdiction in Africa, 1.
„ Consular Courts as to support of families, 1.
„ „ „ in Siam in case of unregistered British subjects, 79–81, 83, 84.
„ „ „ in Siam, enforcement of, 87, 88.
„ „ „ in Tunis, in extradition cases, 26–28.
„ „ „ in Tunis, 24.
„ „ German. Law as to, 53–55.
„ French, in Tunis, over British land claims, 21, 22.
„ „ „ over British subject for crime committed in Algeria, 24–26.
„ „ „ retrospective, 24–26.
„ Assumption of foreign domicil does not exempt from, 84.
„ Japan. Ex-territorial, in, 63.
„ „ Proposed Convention with, 63, 64
„ Maritime, enlargement of, 67, 68, 97–99.
„ Mixed Courts in Egypt in case of claims on the Government, 11.
„ „ „ over British Government, 19, 20.
„ over subjects abroad, conferred by Foreign Jurisdiction Acts, 51.
„ in territories of native Chiefs, 52.
„ in Protectorates. See Protectorates.
„ United States, over Behring's Sea, 97–99.

K.

Khedivial claims, 11–13.

L.

Land claims in Tunis. French jurisdiction over, 21, 22.
„ registration in Tunis, 21, 22.
Lavison, Madame, 90, 91.
Law. British. Disposal of unentailed property, 61.
„ „ Marriage, application to Embassies, &c., 50.
„ Dutch. As to working of minerals, 74, 75.
„ English common. As to marriages. 30.
„ „ As to marriages, applicable abroad, 30.
„ French, and marriages at Embassies, &c., 32, 33.
„ German. As to Consular jurisdiction, 53–55.
„ „ Protection of trade-marks, 53.
„ International. Not affected by Municipal Law, 51.
„ Irish Marriage, 31.
„ Italian As to disposal of unentailed property, 61.
„ Japanese Police. Administration by Consular Courts, 63, 64.
„ Mexican. As to claims, 68, 69.
„ Protest against a foreign, 78, 79.
„ Salvadorian. As to foreigners and nationality, 78, 79.
„ Swiss Divorce. Application to foreigners, 89.
Legations. Marriages at. See Marriages.
"L'Envieuse, the, 99, 100.
Lex loci. Marriages in Mahommedan and heathen countries, 31, 32.
„ „ See also Marriages.

LIA—MIL.

Lia, Paolo, 24–26.
Libel. Imprisonment for. See Clere, B. H.
London Bank of Mexico. Claim on Peru, 75–77.

M.

Madagascar. French Treaty rights in, 65–67.
„ Appointment of British Consul in, 65–67.
„ See also under the various subjects.
Mahommedan countries. See Marriages.
Map. Cessions on the River Gambia, 2.
Maritime jurisdiction. Enlargement of, 67, 68, 97–99.
Marriages. Abroad. Memorandum by Mr. Jenkyns, 29–31.
„ „ by a clergyman, 30.
„ „ Certificates as to validity, 29.
„ „ Report of Commission, 29.
„ „ English common law applicable to, 30.
„ „ Any valid form not excluded by Consular Marriages Act, 30.
„ „ by Roman Catholic priests, 30.
„ „ by Nonconformist ministers, 30.
„ „ by Scotch minister, 31.
„ „ on a merchant-ship, 30.
„ „ on ship of war, 30, 31.
„ „ Acts on. Variation of conditions of, 29.
„ at Embassies, &c. Application of Act of 1886 as to hours, 50.
„ „ Mixed. Not recognized by French law, 32, 33.
„ „ „ Annulled in Switzerland, 32, 33.
„ „ „ Previous. According to lex loci, 32, 33.
„ Consular, 28–33, 40, 41.
„ „ Mixed. Warning to Consuls as to validity, 29.
„ „ „ In Mahommedan or heathen countries. Circular, 31, 32.
„ „ „ Previous marriage according to lex loci, 29.
„ „ by Acting Vice-Consul, 40, 41.
„ „ Proposed Circular, 28, 29, 31–33.
„ „ desirability of, 30.
„ on a ship of war in British port, 30.
„ „ „ abroad, and lex loci, 30.
„ „ „ „ Effect of nationality on, 31.
„ „ „ „ where common law not applicable, 31.
„ „ „ „ Effect of domicile on, 31.
„ „ „ „ Scotch law, 31.
„ „ „ „ Irish law, 31.
„ „ „ „ Revision of Regulations, 31.
Massowah. Italian blockade of coast of, 17, 18.
Matriculation in Salvador, 78.
Meakin, Mr. E., 71.
Memorandum. Marriages by Consuls abroad (Mr. Jenkyns), 29–31.
„ Proposed Madagascar Order in Council, 65.
„ Registration in Siam, 81.
Memorial from Chaldean Patriarch as to succession suit, 94, 95.
Merchant-ship abroad. Marriages on, 30.
Military service. Persons of double nationality not exempt from, 56.

1887

MIN—OSM.

Minerals. Dutch Law as to working of, 74, 75.
Minhinnick. Claim of, 6, 7.
Miot, Admiral, 66, 67.
Mitchell or Michell, Mr. E. B., 79–81, 83, 84, 87, 88.
Mixed Courts (Egyptian) and claims against Egyptian Government, 11.
  ,, ,, Jurisdiction over British Government, 19, 20.
  ,, ,, over a foreign Sovereign, 19.
Mogador. Money deposited in Consulate on behalf of Mr. Curtis, 72.
Morant Cays. British sovereignty over, 96.
Mortgages at Curaçoa. Refusal to give copy of register, 75.
Mother. British and Italian law as to leaving property to, 61.
Municipal Law. See Law.

N.

"Natalie," guano ship. Seizure by United States' Government, 95, 96.
Nationality in France. Law as to divesting, 23.
  ,, Assumption of Siamese, by British subject in Siam, 79–81, 83, 84.
  ,, Case of double. Grant of passports in, 55, 56.
  ,, ,, Declaration of alienage, 56.
  ,, of persons born on British soil, 56.
  ,, of children of naturalized aliens, 36–40.
  ,, Salvadorian Law as to, 78, 79.
  ,, loss of British, by naturalization in a foreign State, 56, 80.
Naturalization of French subjects abroad, 23.
  ,, of aliens. Status of children, 36–40.
  ,, ,, Loss by non-residence, 39–40.
  ,, of British subject in Siam. See Mitchell, Mr. E. B.
Noble, J., claim of, 6.
Notes. Repudiation of Inca, 75–77.
  ,, Sol. Enforced exchange of, for Inca notes, 75, 77.
Notification of blockade not gazetted, 18.

O.

Oaths. Administration by Consuls. Proposed Anglo-German Convention, 47–49.
  ,, ,, in England. No legal authority for Consuls to carry out, 48.
  ,, ,, by Consuls. Reciprocity, 48.
Order in Council. Draft. Fugitive Offenders in Madagascar, 65.
  ,, ,, proposed, as to penalties in Japan, 63, 64.
  ,, ,, in Siam. As to registration fees, &c., 81, 85, 86.
  ,, ,, proposed, as to Consular fees, 38, 39, 41–43.
  ,, ,, Draft. Jurisdiction in Africa, 1.
  ,, ,, West African (1885). Extension of, 1, 65.
  ,, ,, with retrospective effect (proposed) 85, 86.
  ,, ,, for protection of Minister for illegal levy of fees, 86.
Order, Public. Provisions of Order in Council as to offences against, 1.
Ordinance. Curaçoa, of 1881, 75.
Osman Pasha Fanzi, 19, 20.

PAL—REG.

P.

Palmieri, A., 90, 91.
Parliament. Rights in British Protectorates, 51.
Passport. Grant of, in case of double nationality, 55, 56.
  ,, ,, to children of foreigners. Application by mother alone for, 56.
  ,, compulsory for British subjects in Siam beyond certain limits, 82.
Pedro Cays. British and United States' claims to, 95, 96.
Pelotas. Arrest of British subject by police, 3–5.
Pensions of Egyptian employés. Attachment of, 13.
Perdicaris, Mr., 71.
Petitions. Remission of sentence, B. H. Clere, 18, 19.
Pierola, Señor Nicholas, 76, 77.
Pilotage. Restrictions as to grant of certificates, 73, 74.
Police Regulations, Japanese. Carried out by Consular Court, 63, 64.
  ,, Misconduct of Brazilian, 3–5.
  ,, ,, ,, Punishment for, 4,5.
  ,, ,, ,, Indemnification for, 4, 5.
  ,, Court. See Court.
Popolani, C., 90.
  ,, G., 90, 91.
Prerogative of Crown as to dispensing with fees, 42, 43.
Privy Council. Communication to, as to pending appeal, 94, 95.
  ,, Memorial to, as to succession, 94, 95.
Property unentailed. British law as to disposal of, 61.
  ,, ,, Italian law as to disposal of, 61.
  ,, ,, As to portion being left to the mother by her son, 61.
  ,, Administration in Turkey, 93, 94.
  ,, Succession to. Appeal case, 94, 95.
Protection of citizens of Honduras in Bay Islands, 59–61.
  ,, British, of Y. L. Stambouli (a Jew) at Damascus, 89, 90.
  ,, ,, withdrawal of, if obtained b fraud, 90.
  ,, Diplomatic, in Salvador. Restriction of right, 78, 79.
Protectorates. Jurisdiction over foreigners in. German claim, 50–52.
  ,, ,, of native Chiefs in, 51
  ,, ,, derived from native Chiefs, 51.
  ,, ,, British, in territories of native States, 52.
  ,, Consular, 51, 52.
  ,, Rights of British Parliament in, 51.
  ,, ,, Reichstag in German, 51.
  ,, Territorial character of, 50.
Protest against a law in a foreign State, 78, 79.

R.

Rebels. Claims on Government for acts of. Proof of negligence, 57.
Red Sea. Limitation of belligerent rights in. Effect of Convention as to Suez Canal, 14, 15.
  ,, Seizure of vessel with contraband on board, 15–17.
  ,, Coast closed to trade, 15–17.
  ,, Limits of Italian influence on west coast, 17.
  ,, Egyptian waters in, 17, 18.
Registration of British subjects. Fee for, 82, 83, 85, 86.
  ,, ,, ,, Certificates of, 83.
  ,, ,, ,, in Siam, 79–86.
  ,, ,, ,, ,, Fine for neglect of, 81, 82, 83.

REG—SUG.

Registration of British subjects in Siam. Power of making Regulations, 81, 82.
  ,, ,, ,, ,, Duties of Consul as to, 82.
  ,, ,, ,, ,, Enforcement of, 84.
  ,, ,, ,, ,, Repayment of fees, 86.
  ,, of land in Tunis, 21, 22.
  ,, of Trade Marks in Germany, 54.
Regulations. Registration of British subjects in Siam, 79, 81–83, 85, 86.
  ,, Registration of British subjects in Siam, applicable to residents only, 83.
  ,, Registration of British subjects in Siam, enforcement of, 87, 88.
  ,, as to British subjects in Japan. Power of British Representatives to make, 64.
Reichstag. Rights in German Protectorates, 51.
Reprisals for seizure of vessel, 99, 100.
Repudiation of Inca notes by Peru, 75–77.
Retrospective effect of Order in Council, 85, 86.
Revolution. Claims for losses during, 9, 10.
Riots. Claims for damages caused by suppression of, 57.
Robbery from house of British subject under arrest, 3.
Rolleston, Mr., 71.

S.

Sami, Yacoob, 13.
Santa Barbara. Mr. Godden's estate. Mining rights, 74, 75.
Sealing schooners, British, seized in Behring's Sea, 97–99.
Seamen. Imprisonment of British, in United States, 96, 97.
Seizure by United States of vessels with guano, 95, 96.
  ,, See also "L'Envieuse," "Natalie," and "Zarafa."
  ,, of British sealers in Behring's Sea, 97–99.
Sentences. Remission of. Petitions for, 18, 19.
Siam. Siamese plaints not to be forwarded through Foreign Minister of Siam. See Courts.
Simpson, claim of, 6, 7.
Singapore. British Minister in Siam amenable to Supreme Court of, 86.
Smyrna. Exercise of judicial functions by Law Clerk illegal, 92, 93.
Sophia, judicial duties at, 91–93.
  ,, Courts held by two Consular officers, 92.
Sol notes. See Notes.
Sovereigns. Jurisdiction of Mixed Courts in Egypt over, 19, 20.
Sovereignty. Territorial modes of acquiring, 51.
  ,, ,, rights of jurisdiction conferred by, 51.
Spirits. Sale to troops at Assouan. Expulsion for, 11.
Squire, R., 3–5.
Stambouli, Yacoub Levy, 89, 90.
Subpœna served on Consul ordered to his post, 71.
Succession to property. Appeal case, 94, 95.
  ,, ,, ,, intervention by counsel, 94, 95.
Suez Canal. Proposed Convention as to, 14, 15.
  ,, ,, ,, Right of blockade, 14, 15.
  ,, ,, ,, Neutralization of, 14, 15.
  ,, ,, ,, Turkish rights under, 14, 15.
  ,, Passage of troops for Abyssinians through, 62, 63.
Sugar Bounties. Conference on, 44–47.
  ,, ,, Proposed legislation as to, 46, 47.
  ,, ,, Imposition. Argument for termination of Treaties, 46.

SUG—VES.

Sugar, bountied. Surtax on, 44–47.
  ,, ,, Effect of Treaties on tax, 45, 46.

T.

Tamatave. Exequatur, &c., for British Consul obtained direct from Hova Government, 65–67.
Tax on estate at Curaçoa. Mr. Godden's case, 74.
Territorial limits. Rights of jurisdiction within, 51.
  ,, sovereignty. Rights of jurisdiction conferred by, 51.
Territory. Cession of, on Gambia. Measurement of, 2.
Trade. Contraband, on Egyptian coast, 15–17.
Trade-marks. Counterfeited in Europe for Siamese market, 53–55.
  ,, ,, Protection. German Law respecting, 53, 54.
  ,, ,, ,, Procedure in German Consular Court, 54, 55.
  ,, ,, Registration in Germany, 54.
Treaties. Japanese. Revision of, 63, 64.
  ,, Madagascar. Unaltered by Treaty with France, 67.
  ,, Conflict with Bill as to pilotage certificates, 74.
  ,, Cessions on River Gambia under, 2.
  ,, British rights in Tunis under. Surrender of, 24–26.
  ,, Effect as to surtax on bountied sugars, 45, 46.
  ,, Sugar bounties a reason for terminating, 46.
Treaty. France and Madagascar, of 1885. Infringement of, 65–67.
  ,, Great Britain and Chile. As to claims,
  ,, ,, and France, of Extradition, not applicable in Tunis, 28.
  ,, ,, and Germany. Proposed, as to administration of oaths by Consuls, 47–49.
  ,, ,, and Honduras. Cession of Bay Islands in 1859, 59, 60.
  ,, ,, and Madagascar, 66, 67.
  ,, ,, and Mexico. Commercial. Proposed, 67, 68.
  ,, ,, and Siam. Enforcement of jurisdiction under, 87, 88.
  ,, ,, and Tunis of 1863, 21.
  ,, Russia and United States. As to Behring's Sea, 97, 98.
  ,, Navigation of Suez Canal. Proposed, 14, 15
  ,, Regulating bounties on sugar, 44.
Trial in Algeria of British subject arrested in Tunis, 24–26.
Triebel, Madame, 55, 56.
Tristram, Dr. Letter as to marriages abroad, 50.
Tunis. Surrender of British rights in, conditional, 24–26.
  ,, Surrender of British rights in, not applicable to extradition, 26, 27.

V.

Venezuela. Panamá Gold Mining Company's claim on Venezuela, 100.
Vessels. Capture in and near Suez Canal, Convention, 14, 15.
  ,, Seizure of Egyptian territory occupied by insurgents, 15–17.
  ,, ,, Reprisals for, 99, 100.
  ,, ,, Use of force for release of, 99, 100.
  ,, ,, of British sealing schooners in Behring's Sea, 97–99.
  ,, ,, of native, in Red Sea, with Italian flag, 15–17.
  ,, ,, of native, in Red Sea, with Italian bill of health, 16.

1887

VES—WAR.

Vessels. Seizure. See also "L'Envieuse" "Natalie." and "Zarafa."
,, Carrying wrong flag, 15–17.
,, of war dispatched to Bangkok, 88.
,, ,, marriages on, 30, 31.
,, embargo on, on outbreak of war, 35.
,, Pilotage certificates, 73, 74.
,, Merchant. Marriages on, 30.

W.

War. roposed instructions to Governors of Colonies for communication to Commanders-in-chief in event of, 34, 35.
,, Contraband of. See Contraband.

WAR—ZAR.

War. Claims for losses during, 6–8.
Warlike articles. Export, prohibition, 34, 35.
Wilkinson, A., 90, 91.
Wills. British and Italian law as to disposal of unentailed property, 61.
Witness. Consul subpœnaed as. Ordered to his post, 71.
Wives and children, support of, 1.
Wood, Mr. Coe, 60, 61.

Y.

Yacoob Sami, 13.

Z.

"Zrafa," the, 15–17.

---

Printed for the use of the Foreign Office. April 1888.

CONFIDENTIAL.

REPORTS BY THE LAW OFFICERS OF THE CROWN, &c.

Africa.

No. 1.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 6.)

[In reply to the following reference, the Law Officers reported as below, August 5, 1887:—]*

Sir J Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown.

Gentlemen,

Foreign Office, July 25, 1887.

I HAVE the honour to transmit to you, by direction of the Marquis of Salisbury, the accompanying draft of an Order in Council, to be known as the "Africa Order, 1887," which has been prepared by Mr. R. S. Wright for the purpose of extending the scope of the "West Africa Order, 1885," and in certain respects modifying and amending its provisions, in order to meet the increasing development of British power in Africa, and the more extended judicial requirements consequent thereupon.

"African Order, 1887." Draft extending Order of 1885.

The details of the Order in Council have been carefully considered in this Office, and have also been examined and approved by the Colonial Office.

In submitting this draft to you for your observations, I am particularly to invite your attention to Articles 9 and 10, which contain provisions of a somewhat more stringent kind than have hitherto been embodied in similar Orders in Council with respect to contempts of Court and to offences endangering public order.

More stringent provisions as to contempts of Court, &c.

It has been found in practice very desirable, and in some cases even necessary, that Consular Courts in semi-civilized countries should possess extended powers of this kind, and Mr. Wright has accordingly prepared these articles with that view.

The provision in Article 11, whereby a Consular Court is given jurisdiction to make an order requiring a person to contribute to the support of his wife or to the support of his or her child, if under the age of 16 years, is also novel, and has been inserted in order to supply a deficiency of jurisdiction which has made itself practically felt from time to time in Consular Courts.

Novel provisions as to support of wives and children.

I am to request that you will take the draft Order, together with the papers accompanying it, into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Salisbury with your opinion as to whether it may, in its present form, be approved, and that you will, at the same time, be good enough to add such general observations, or suggestions, if any, as may occur to you in connection with the matter.

His Lordship is anxious, should you see no objection to the provisions of the Order, that it should be submitted to the next meeting of Her Majesty's Privy Council,

---

* This original Law Officers' Report was not forthcoming when the present collection was made, and it was therefore necessary to obtain the draft and Foreign Office letter from the Law Officers.

1887 and he will, therefore, be obliged if you will favour him with your opinion at your earliest convenience.

I am, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

Report.

Approve Draft Order as amended.

That we approve the draft Order in Council as amended in red ink.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

Royal Courts of Justice, August 5, 1887.

---

No. 2.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Colonial Office.—(Communicated to the Foreign Office in Letter of September 16.)

Sir, Royal Courts of Justice, September 8, 1887.

Ceded mile on the Gambia River.

WE were honoured with Mr. Bramston's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was directed by you to transmit to us copies of a correspondence* with the Governor of the West African Settlements and the Foreign Office respecting the interpretation of the clause in the Treaty of 1826† under which the district known as the "ceded mile" at the Gambia was ceded to Her Majesty.

That Mr. Bramston was to request that we would be good enough to favour you with our opinion on the points raised in the correspondence, more especially as to the effect of the cession of the branches, creeks, &c., of the river, and as to what was included in it; whether it included the banks—and, if so, how far back from the water's edge, and up to what distance from the mouths of such branches, creeks, &c.

In compliance with the request contained in Mr. Bramston's letter, we have the honour to report—

Extent of cessions under Treaties of 1826 and 1827. Effect with regard to creeks, &c., and tributaries.

That, in our opinion, the territory ceded by the Conventions of 1826 and 1827 includes one mile inland from the high-water mark of the northern bank of the River Gambia as distinguished from its tributaries between Jocardo Creek and the Atlantic Ocean.

Where the waters of the river flow in a creek, bay, or bend the ceded territory will follow the line of the shore or bank of the creek, bay, or bend a mile inland at every point, but where a tributary stream joins the Gambia a line must be drawn from point to point across the mouth of the tributary stream, and the ceded territory will extend one mile up the tributary from that imaginary line.

Map of 1826 correct.

The Map of 1826, though it cannot of course construe the Conventions, shows in our opinion correctly their true construction.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

* Colonial Office, July 8, with Inclosure from Sir S. Rowe of May 23; to Colonial Office, July 18; Colonial Office, August 3; and to Colonial Office, August 10, 1887.

† For Treaties, see Inclosure in Colonial Office letter of July 8, 1887.

Brazil.

No. 3.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 1.)

[In answer to the following reference the Law Officers reported as under, October 31, 1887:—]

Sir J. Pauncefote to the Law Officers of the Crown.

Gentlemen, Foreign Office, October 7, 1887.

R. Squire. Arrest and ill-treatment by the Pelotas police.

I HAVE the honour, by direction of the Secretary of State, to forward to you papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the case of a British subject named Richard Squire, who was arrested illegally and ill-treated by the Pelotas police on the 25th February, 1886, and released the next morning without being afforded any explanation of the cause of his arrest.

Squire's arrest is said to have been ordered by the Sub-Delegate of Police, at the instigation of one Luis Anastacio Soveral, with whom Squire had had disputes as to the boundaries of their respective plots of land, which adjoined each other.

A full statement of the circumstances is given in Mr. Macdonell's note to the Brazilian Government of the 29th November, 1886 (Inclosure 1 in his No. 79 of 15th December, 1886).

According to the deposition of Squire (Inclosure in Consul Bennett's No. 1, Political, of the 27th February, 1886) he was at work in his orchard, when two policemen, one of whom was in plain clothes, rushed in with drawn swords and loaded pistols, and stated that he was to be imprisoned by order of his Consul, for which statement there was no foundation. Under threat by the policeman in plain clothes of being shot if he did not go quietly, Squire proceeded to his house in order to change his clothes, and with the intention of accompanying the policemen. They followed him in, threw him down, bound his arms by the elbows with a leathern thong, and then proceeded to ill-treat him, striking him with the flats and hilts of their swords and with their fists, while the plain clothes policeman bit him on the shoulder. They then tied the end of the leathern thong to the saddle of a horse, and dragged him along to gaol, a distance of 4½ miles. He was there placed in a cell with two other men, and the next morning was hustled out of the prison, by order of the Captain of Police, without any explanation being given to him of the cause of his arrest.

Squire's wife, a German by birth, who had protested against his arrest, and accompanied him on the road, was kicked by one of the policemen and struck with a sword by the other; and, moreover, the police refused to lock up Squire's house, which was consequently left exposed to robbery, and Squire alleges (Inclosure 7 in Consul Bennett's No. 2, Political, of the 13th March, 1886) that 160*l.* in paper money, besides some small quantities of goods, were abstracted during his absence.

One Michael Sinnott, born in Brazil of Irish parents, deposes (Inclosure 2 in Consul Bennett's No. 1, Political, of the 27th February, 1886) to his having seen Squire being led along the road, and to having been present when he was driven out of the prison, and to having heard the Captain of the Police say that Squire had been brought there by order of the British Consul.

In substance, the facts, as above stated, are not controverted by the Brazilian authorities, but the medical testimony produced by them differs from that given on behalf of Squire as to the character of the injuries suffered by him; Her Majesty's Consul (Mr. Bennett, No. 1, Political, of the 27th February, 1886) and three medical men maintaining, on Squire's side, that they were serious (Inclosure 6 in Consul Bennett's No. 2, Political, of the 13th March, 1886), while it is stated in the official Police Report that they were only slight (Inclosure 5 in Consul Bennett's despatch No. 2, Political, of the 13th March, 1886; and Inclosure 6 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 33 of the 27th April, 1887).

1887

The Brazilian authorities imply, but produce no proof, that Squire is a drunkard and a bad character, and has previously given cause for the interference of the police (Inclosure 4 in Consul Bennett's No. 3, Political, of the 22nd April, 1886).

These insinuations Squire himself denies (Inclosure 1 in Consul Bennett's No. 8, Political, of the 29th June, 1886), and the information gathered by Her Majesty's Consul at Rio Grande do Sul is that he is a quiet, inoffensive man (Consul Bennett's No. 1, Political, of the 27th February, and No. 2 of the 13th March, 1886).

Punishment of the offenders.

The only satisfaction given by the Brazilian authorities has been the removal from office of the Sub-Delegate of Police, who, it appears, was only holding the post temporarily, and the dismissal of the policeman in plain clothes for exceeding his instructions.

Brazilian law as to case.

In reply to the representations made by Her Majesty's Minister at Rio on the 29th November last (Inclosure in Mr. Macdonell's No. 79 of the 15th December, 1886), the Brazilian Minister for Foreign Affairs stated (Inclosure 3 in ditto) that he had called for a full Report of all the circumstances, but that no responsibility attached to the Brazilian Government, inasmuch as by the laws of Brazil, to which foreigners are subject as well as Brazilians, the Government is not responsible for the acts of its functionaries, who, with their heirs, are personally amenable for the losses sustained by an offended party, and that Squire's remedy for illegal restraint lay in an application to the Judiciary for an Order of habeas corpus under the Brazilian Law (No. 2033) of the 20th September, 1871, Article 18, section 3, which states (Inclosure 4 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 79 of the 15th December, 1886) :—

"In all cases in which the authority who grants the Order of habeas corpus recognizes that abuse of authority or flagrant violation of the law has been committed by whomsoever authorized the illegal restraint, the said authority shall, in accordance with its competency, render effective order, or require that all responsibility shall be borne by the party who perpetrated the abuse."

In a further note, dated the 30th March of the present year (Inclosure 2 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 33 of the 27th April, 1887), the Brazilian Minister states that the fuller explanations furnished by the local authorities (Inclosures 4 and 6 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 33 of the 27th April, 1887) do not alter the legal aspect of the case as previously set forth by him; that all possible satisfaction was given by the Provincial Government, viz., the removal of the Sub-Delegate of Police, and the expulsion from the force of the private, Kohlberg; that the physical injuries of Squire being slight, a personal action by him is the only remedy; and that, "had the Sub-Delegate been submitted to a process for responsibility, and from this criminal action his condemnation have resulted, he would not have incurred a penalty more severe than that imposed officially, inasmuch that the fact alleged against him of having exceeded his powers, with a view to deciding a question outside of his jurisdiction, subjected him at the maximum to the simple penalty of a year's suspension from his post;" and that "nothing prevented the said subject of Her Britannic Majesty from entering a criminal action against the Sub-Delegate, presenting his complaint within a year and a day, in accordance with legal formalities, and which he can still bring against the soldier who injured him, in case he considers unsatisfactory, as respects the penalty, the repressive measure so severely adopted by the Provincial Administration. By the criminal legislation of Brazil he is on the same footing as a Brazilian citizen, either as regards presenting his complaint with due legal formalities to the 'Juge de Droit' against an authority for any responsible offence, or in bringing an action through a lawyer in the Public Courts for the punishment of the soldier who physically ill-treated him."

With this view of the Law of Brazil the Legal Adviser to Her Majesty's Legation does not agree (Inclosure 8 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 33 of the 27th April, 1887). He admits that, "as far as indemnification for losses caused to Richard Squire by the offenders, they alone are responsible for the same, their personal and real property being liable, the said liability attaching to their heirs, and the said indemnification can only be demanded judicially by civil action filed by Squire against the authors of the said prejudices, in accordance with the definitions of Articles 27 and 32 of the Criminal Code, 68 of the Law of the 3rd December, 1841, and 18, section 6, of the Law (2033) of the 20th September, 1871." But he maintains that "Article 145 of the Criminal Code, besides the penalty of loss of office, subjects the offenders to further penalties, which they incur in consequence of violence used." That the violence and arrest illegally exercised constitute the offences anticipated by Articles 180 and 181 of the Criminal Code, to which the Sub-Delegate and officials are subject in virtue of the last portion of the said Article 145 of the Criminal Code, and that the Government, General or Provincial, are bound to institute criminal proceedings as regards their said Agents.

I am directed by the Marquis of Salisbury to say that the course indicated by the Brazilian Minister for Foreign Affairs as proper for Squire to take is not now open to him, the limit of time (viz., a year and a day) within which legal proceedings should have been instituted being past, and that such a remedy was in his case illusory, owing to his want of pecuniary means.

I am to transmit to you, as bearing upon the general question of the liability of Governments for wrongs done to foreigners by their Agents, two opinions of Mr. Calderon Carlisle (the Legal Adviser to Her Majesty's Legation at Washington), and also the various Reports of the Law Officers of the Crown which are noted in the margin.*

The present case, however, appears to differ somewhat materially from those dealt with in the various Reports above alluded to, in that the Brazilian Government has openly and in explicit terms declared through its Municipal Law that it is not responsible for the wrongful acts of its servants, while it has at the same time imposed upon those servants a special personal liability, at the suit of the aggrieved party, in respect of such acts.

In these circumstances, it seems clear that the injured person must, at all events in the first instance, seek his remedy before the Brazilian Tribunals; but the question arises whether the present case is not one where (to adopt the language of the Law Officers in their Report of the 26th August, 1879), "no adequate remedy is provided by the Municipal Law;" that is to say, that no adequate compensation could be obtained by resort to the Tribunals; and further, whether, assuming that their Municipal Law protects the Brazilian Government from all responsibility for the illegal acts of its officers, Her Majesty's Government is debarred by the existence of such a Municipal Law from pressing the claim of Squire diplomatically.

I am to request that you will take the papers transmitted herewith into your consideration, and that you will favour Lord Salisbury with your opinion as to whether, under all the circumstances, Her Majesty's Government would be justified in further pressing the claim, and with any general observations which you may have to offer on the case.

I am, &c.
(Signed) JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE.

---

In obedience to your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 7th October, we have the honour to report—

Demands for compensation not justified.

That, in our opinion, Her Majesty's Government would not be justified in making a claim upon the Brazilian Government for the payment of pecuniary compensation to Richard Squire unless there were no means open to him whereby he could have enforced his claim by proceedings in the Brazilian Courts. If, owing to his want of pecuniary means, the time within which such proceedings should have been instituted has been allowed to elapse, Her Majesty's Government would not be, under those circumstances, entitled to contend that no adequate remedy is afforded by the Municipal Law.

nor for prosecution of offenders.

Having regard to the facts that the Sub-Delegate of Police and the soldier Kohlberg have both been dismissed in consequence of the representations of Her Majesty's Consul, and that the Brazilian Minister denies that a criminal prosecution would result in any further punishment to them, we do not think it advisable for Her Majesty's Government to press the Brazilian Government to prosecute them.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

Royal Courts of Justice, October 31, 1887.

---

* Queen's Advocate, February 17, 1872; Law Officers and Dr. Deane, September 12, 1876; ditto, August 26, 1879; ditto, January 8, 1886; Mr. Calderon Carlisle, June 20; ditto, June 27, 1885.

1887

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, October 7, 1887.

Consul Bennett, No. 1, Political, February 27, 1886.
" " No. 2, " March 13, 1886.
Inclosure 1 in Consul Bennett's No. 1, Political, February 27, 1886.
" 2 " " No. 1, " February 27, 1886.
" 5 " " No. 2, " February 27, 1886
" 6 " " No. 2, " March 13, 1886.
" 7 " " No. 2, " March 13, 1886.
" 4 " " No. 3, " April 22, 1886.
" 2 " " No. 7, " June 22, 1886.
" 1 " " No. 8, " June 29, 1886.
" 2 " " No. 8, " June 29, 1886.
" 1 in Mr. Macdonell's No. 79, December 15, 1886.
" 3 " " No. 79, December 15, 1886.
" 4 " " No. 79, December 15, 1886.
" 2 " " No. 33, April 27, 1887.
" 4 " " No. 33, April 27, 1887.
" 6 " " No. 33, April 27, 1887.
" 8 " " No. 33, April 27, 1887.

Legal Opinions.

Mr. Calderon Carlisle, June 20, 1885.
" " " June 27, 1885. Confidential No. 5175, p. 98.
Queen's Advocate, February 17, 1872. Confidential No. 4098, p. 9.
Law Officers and Dr. Deane, September 12, 1876. Confidential No. 4028, p. 73.
" " August 26, 1879. Confidential No. 4328, p. 30.
" " January 8, 1886. Confidential No. 5440, p. 4.

---

Chile.

No. 4.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received March 30.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 29, 1887.

British claims for losses during the Chileo-Peruvian war.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 12th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying despatch No. 86 of the 27th October, 1886, from Mr. Fraser, Her Majesty's Minister Resident and Consul-General at Santiago, together with the other papers noted in the inclosed list, relative to certain decisions of the Mixed Commission of Arbitration appointed to adjudicate upon the claims of British subjects against the Government of Chile in respect of losses arising out of the acts and operations of the forces of that Republic in the territories and coasts of Peru and Bolivia during the recent hostilities.

That it would be observed that the four decisions to which reference was made in the early part of Mr. Fraser's despatch, i.e., those in the cases of Messrs. James Noble (No. 2), Minhinnick (No. 17), Simpson (No. 18), and Bishop (No. 19) had already, on the 12th May last, formed (with others) the subject of an exhaustive Report by our predecessors in office; and that instructions based upon that Report were, by direction of the late Earl of Iddesleigh, the then Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, forwarded to Mr. Fraser on the 1st September last.

As to reconsideration of certain cases after decision of Mixed Court of Arbitration.

That with respect to the first of those cases (that of James Noble, No. 2), Mr. Fraser had already addressed to the Chilean Government a note founded on the instructions above alluded to, and that no question, at present, arose thereon; but that with regard to the other three cases (those of Minhinnick, No. 17; Simpson, No. 18; and Bishop, No. 19), he had, for the reasons stated in his despatch, and to which our most particular attention was invited, thought it advisable to defer carrying out his instructions until they could be further considered by the light of the additional observations he had forwarded to the Secretary of State upon them.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether we agreed with the views expressed by our predecessors in office with regard to the decisions in those three cases, and with the instructions already transmitted to Mr. Fraser with respect to them, or whether, under all the circumstances, and in view more especially of the observations contained in Mr. Fraser's despatch, we considered that those instructions might be, with advantage, modified, and, if so, to what extent in all or any of the cases to which our attention had been directed.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers transmitted with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

That this case is, in our judgment, one of very great difficulty. There seems to be no doubt that the Tribunal was legally constituted, and that it decided matters within its jurisdiction.

We observe that the former Law Officers, in their Report, used the following words: "If it be the fact that the house was situate a mile, or a mile and a-half, from the battle-ground, and that the Peruvians made no real resistance at Miraflores (as stated by Mr. Fraser in his despatch of the 11th November, 1885), we agree in his contention that 'there is no real question here of injury in regular military operations.'" Having regard to the statements in Mr. Fraser's despatch of the 1st September, 1886, it appears to us that the question whether Miraflores was within the area of actual military operations was a question of fact upon which the Commission was competent to decide, and upon which its decision was final.

Under these circumstances, we feel extreme difficulty in advising that Mr. Fraser should be instructed to insist upon the reopening of either case. The arguments used in his despatch of the 27th October are of very considerable weight, and should Her Majesty's Government insist upon these particular cases being reopened, they may, we think, be placed in great difficulty with regard to other claimants. The decision of the Commission, a Tribunal competent to decide, will be an answer to any request for interference made by the claimants themselves.

Not desirable to reopen these cases, or to press them diplomatically.

If Her Majesty's Government claim to reopen those decisions, it would be difficult to find grounds upon which they can subsequently withdraw their claims. In our opinion, it is not desirable to endeavour to reopen the cases before the Commission, or to press them diplomatically.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers sent to the Law Officers, February 12, 1887.

(A.) Mr. Fraser, No. 86, October 27, 1886.
(B.) Convention of January 4, 1883. Parliamentary No. 2663.
(C.) Law Officers' Report of May 12, 1886. Confidential No. 5440, p. 8.
(D.) To Mr. Fraser, No. 56, September 1, 1886.
(E.) Documents mentioned on pp. 14 and 15 of the Law Officers' Report (marked C), May 12, 1886, under the headings, viz.:—

2.—Minhinnick's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 48 of the 8th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 3 A), and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 8 of the 25th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 1). (Tabular Statement No. 17, Appendix A, p. 3.)

No award, but procès-verbal substituted.

See explanation in Mr. Fraser's No. 48 and Inclosure 3 (Appendix A, p. 3 A).

3.—Simpson's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 48 of the 8th September, 1885, and award in Inclosure 2 (Appendix A, p. 3 A). Also Mr. Drummond's Hay's No. 8 of the 25th September, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 1). (Tabular Statement No. 18, Appendix A, p. 3.)

7.—Bishop's Case.

See Mr. Fraser's No. 71 of the 11th November, 1885 (Appendix A, p. 21), containing the award, and Mr. Drummond Hay's No. 11 of the 27th November, 1885 (Tabular Statement No. 19). (Appendix A, pp. 4 and 5.)

1887

No. 5.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received April 21.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, April 21, 1887.

British claims for losses during the Chileo-Peruvian war.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 6th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanping list relative to those cases which were still pending before the Anglo-Chilean Mixed Commission of Arbitration for the settlement of the claims of British subjects in respect of losses sustained by them during the war between Chile and Peru.

Delays in proceedings of Commission.

That the Commission had, as we were aware, already heard and determined a considerable number of cases submitted to it, but that a large proportion of the claims which had been brought forward were still undecided, while the repeated and unnecessary delays in the work of the Commission made it difficult to believe that the Chilean Government was in earnest in desiring that the Commission should complete its labours in regular course, and in accordance with the conditions laid down in the Convention of the 4th January, 1883, between Great Britain and Chile, by which it was instituted.

Chilean offer to pay lump sum to satisfy outstanding claims.

That the Chilean Government had, however, offered to pay a certain sum down in satisfaction of all outstanding demands upon them, and that Her Majesty's Minister Resident and Consul-General at Santiago had recommended the acceptance of that offer as being, under all the circumstances, the most satisfactory method available for arriving at a prompt and final settlement of those remaining cases.

That it appeared to your Lordship that, if the consent of the claimants themselves could be obtained to that course, it would be advisable to endeavour to compromise all the British claims then outstanding, including those heard but awaiting judgment, for a sum down; but that at the same time, your Lordship conceived that Her Majesty's Government would not be justified in coming to any such agreement with the Chilean Government without the previous assent of the claimants concerned.

That it would probably be thought requisite also, in the event of the offer of the Chilean Government being accepted, that some previous agreement should be arrived at between the various claimants with respect to the ultimate distribution amongst them of the lump sum thus obtained.

That it was thought, however, that that latter question would not present serious practical difficulties, and that the claimants might be willing to agree to the appointment of an Arbitrator who should have power to reject or to admit claims, and in the latter case to assess the damages, and to divide the money pro ratâ amongst the respective claimants in accordance with his assessment in each individual case.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Her Majesty's Government were entitled to accept the offer of the Chilean Government, and to withdraw the remaining claims from the consideration of the Commission without the previous assent of the respective claimants having been obtained, and also with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should obtain consent of claimants as to acceptance of Chilean offer, and as to distribution of money.

That without expressing an opinion whether Her Majesty's Government have the right to enter into the proposed compromise without the assent of the claimants, it would not, in our judgment, be proper, under the circumstances of this case, for Her Majesty's Government to accept from the Chilean Government a sum in satisfaction of the claims which have not been adjudicated upon by the Commission unless the claimants authorize the acceptance of such a sum, and agree as to the process by which its distribution is to be arranged.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

(A.) Convention between Great Britain and Chile for settlement of claims of British subjects, January 4, 1883 ("Chile No. 1 (1883)," Foreign Office, No. 2663).
(B.) Mr. Fraser, No. 10, January 24, 1887.
(C.) To Mr. Fraser, No. 1 A, January 22, 1887.
(D.) Mr. Fraser, Telegraphic, March 2, 1887.
(E.) To Mr. Fraser, No. 13, March 4, 1887.
(F.) Mr. Fraser, Telegraphic, March 5, 1887.
(G.) To Mr. Fraser, No. 14, March 16, 1887.
(H.) Treasury, March 22, 1887.
(I.) To Treasury, March 28, 1887.

---

Colombia.

No. 6.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, February 18, 1887.

Claims for losses during Revolution.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 29th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list with reference to the claims of foreigners against the Government of Colombia for losses sustained by the former during the recent revolution in that country.

That we should observe that Mr. Dickson, Her Majesty's Minister at Bogotá, had been authorized to place British claimants, in the first instance, in communication with the Colombian Government, reserving the right of interference where he might consider that such a mode of proceeding would be advantageous. (See Mr. Dickson's No. 71, and to Mr. Dickson No. 41: Print, pp. 47 and 48.)

Colombian Act;

That a translation of an Act passed by the Legislative Council of Colombia. determining the mode in which the claims of foreigners should be dealt with, accompanied Mr. Dickson's despatch No. 78 (Paper B), and that the criticisms of Her Majesty's Government on that Act would be found in Lord Iddesleigh's despatch to Mr. Dickson No. 55 (Paper C).

and Decree.

That on the 15th October a Decree was published in the official Gazette at Bogotá relative to those claims (a translation of which was inclosed with Mr. Dickson's No. 91).

That exception had been taken both by the British and German Representatives to some of the terms of that Decree, and that it would seem that the French and Spanish Legations had also addressed representations against it to the Colombian Government.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether Mr. Dickson's views should be supported, and, if so, to what extent Her Majesty's Government would be justified in taking exception to the application of the Decree to British claimants.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Should formally refuse to accept terms of Decree, and reserve right to support British claimant who cannot comply with those terms.

That we are of opinion that a formal communication should be made to the Government of Colombia to the same effect as the oral representation made by Mr. Dickson and M. Lueder in October last; and that the Government of Colombia should be informed that while Her Majesty's Government will desire to offer any assistance in the settlement of claims by British subjects to the Board appointed under the Act of August and the Decree of October, and notes with satisfaction the assurance given by Señor Restrepo on behalf of the Government of Colombia that, in considering and deciding upon the foreign claims, the Colombian Government would be guided by the rules of international usage, that the prescribed formalities would not be strictly enforced, and that the claims would be dealt with in a liberal spirit, it is unable to admit the limitations and requirements laid down in the Decree, and reserves to itself the right of supporting, by direct diplomatic action, any claims of British subjects which the claimants may be unable to establish by reason of such limitations or conditions.

1887

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Confidential Print, Part I (1885), Confidential No. 5217; and Part II (1886), Confidential No. 5419.
(B.) Mr. Dickson, No. 78, September 16, 1886, Confidential No. 5419, p. 55.
(C.) To ditto, No. 55, December 14, 1886, Confidential No. 5419, p. 62.
(D.) Mr. Dickson, No. 91, November 25, 1886, Confidential No. 5419, p. 63.

---

No. 7.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received April 8.)

Royal Courts of Justice, April 7, 1887.

My Lord,

British claims on account of burning of Colon by rebels in 1885

WE were honoured with Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 18th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the liability of the Colombian Government to compensate British subjects for the loss of their property, which occurred through the burning of the city of Colon by the rebels during the revolutionary outbreak of 1885.

That the circumstances under which the conflagration took place were detailed in the accompanying Memorandum by Mr. A. St. John, now Her Majesty's Consul for Haïti and its dependencies, and then Vice-Consul at Bogotá.

That it was not disputed that the insurgents had obtained complete possession of, and mastery over, the city, nor that the Colombian Government were powerless to prevent the conflagration at the time when it actually took place; but that it was contended, on the other hand, that the destruction of Colon was due to, and directly consequent upon, the negligence of the Government in improperly withdrawing from the city for service elsewhere a body of police who, had they been suffered to remain at their proper posts, would have proved adequate for its protection. That whether their temporary withdrawal was justified by military necessity was a question on which there appeared to be no information sufficient to found any opinion.

That, in those circumstances, your Lordship desired to be favoured with our opinion as to whether the Colombian Government were liable to compensate the subjects of foreign States in respect of any property destroyed by the conflagration.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Proof of negligence insufficient as ground for claim.

That the papers laid before us do not, in our judgment, afford sufficient ground for contending that the destruction of Colon was due to negligence on the part of the Colombian Government, upon which a claim for compensation might properly be founded.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

(A.) Mr. Mallet, No. 7, April 20, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 17.
(B.) Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, May 6, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 15.
(C.) Mr. Mallet, No. 11, May 11, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 20*.
(D.) To ditto, No. 13, May 20, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 18.
(E.) Mr. Mallet, No. 21, October 1, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 54.
(F.) Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, November 18, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 72.
(G.) Mr. O'Leary, No. 69, October 3, 1885. Print, Confidential No. 5217, p. 73.
(H.) Mr. A. St. John, No. 34, April 22, 1886. Print, Confidential No. 5419, Part II, p. 31.
(J.) Ditto, No. 51, June 10, 1886. Print, Confidential No. 5419, p. 43.
(K.) Mr. Dixon, No. 71, August 7, 1886. Print, Confidential No. 5419, p. 47.
(L.) Ditto, No. 89, October 22, 1886. Print, Confidential No. 5419, p. 59.
(M.) Ditto, No. 2, January 3, 1887.
(N.) To ditto (Telegraphic), February 25, 1887.
(O.) Mr. Dixon (Telegraphic), March 4, 1887.
(P.) Précis by Mr. A. St. John, March 12, 1887.

---

Egypt.

No. 8.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received February 25.)

Royal Courts of Justice, February 25, 1887.

My Lord,

Expulsion of Greeks from Assouan for selling spirits to British troops.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 22nd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the inclosed correspondence with Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo relative to claims made by certain Greeks who were carrying on business at Assouan, and were ordered to leave that place on account of their having sold spirits to the British troops, in contravention of the Military Regulations.

That the orders for their expulsion were given by the British officers in command, but were carried into effect by the local Egyptian authorities.

Claims against Egyptian Government.

That the claimants had now commenced suits against the Egyptian Government in the International Tribunals, and that the British Commander-in-chief had been authorized to employ legal assistance for the defence.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request our attention to an article in the "Journal du Droit International" for 1882 on the jurisdiction of Armies of Occupation in cases of offences committed by foreigners against the soldiers of such armies, and to an opinion given in August 1883 by the then Law Officers of the Crown in regard to the jurisdiction of the French Military Courts in Tunis; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion whether it might properly be contended that the suits instituted in the present case should be dismissed by the Mixed Courts as beyond their competence, inasmuch as the offences committed by the claimants were against the security and discipline of the British troops, and were cognizable exclusively by the British military authorities, under whose commands the Egyptian officials had acted for the enforcement of the Military Regulations.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Mixed Courts can entertain suits. Defence to be adopted.

That, in our opinion, the Mixed Courts are competent to entertain the suits.

The defence may be that the action taken by the Egyptian authorities was taken under the direction, or upon the request, of the British military authorities who were then in occupation of Assouan, and that no action would lie under the circumstances.

It can also be shown that the claimants suffered no damage by reason of the action of the local authorities, as, if those authorities had not acted, the British military authorities would themselves have carried out the expulsion.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

Sir E. Baring, No. 12, Telegraphic, January 11, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 13.
Ditto, No. 17, Telegraphic, January 16, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 16.
Ditto, No. 66, Telegraphic, February 15, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 59.
Ditto, No. 47, January 20, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 28.
To Sir E. Baring, No. 10, Telegraphic, January 15, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 16.
Ditto, No. 14, Telegraphic, January 17, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 22.
Ditto, No. 43, Telegraphic, February 16, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 61.
"Journal du Droit International (1882)," p. 511. 8vo. No. 5365.
Law Officers, August 16, 1883, Confidential No. 4974, p. 116.

---

No. 9.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received March 15.)

Royal Courts of Justice, March 14, 1887.

My Lord,

Claims of the ex-Khedive on the Egyptian Government.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 25th ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to certain claims which had been advanced by His Highness Ismaïl Pasha, ex-Khedive of Egypt, against the Egyptian Government, and for the purpose of procuring a reference of which to arbitration he had been for some time past pressing Her Majesty's Government to intervene on his behalf.

1887

That the history of the monetary relations between His Highness and the Egyptian Government, which had been already before us under a slightly different aspect, would be found concisely stated in the accompanying Foreign Office Memorandum of the 28th May, and were to be gathered in more detail from a perusal of the two Confidential Prints inclosed therewith, in which those passages to which it was conceived we might desire our attention more particularly to be called, in connection with the present reference, had been, for our convenience, indicated in red ink.

Views of Her Majesty's Government.

That Her Majesty's Government had throughout maintained that whatever rights His Highness might have acquired against the Egyptian Government arising out of transactions anterior to 1880, those rights were extinguished by the general settlement of the finances of Egypt effected by the Commission of Liquidation, by the 86th Article of which it would be seen that all claims founded on rights acquired against the State prior to the 1st January, 1880, were expressly barred; and that it had further appeared to Her Majesty's Government that, inasmuch as that settlement of the finances of Egypt was adopted by the Powers who were parties to the Commission, and were enforced by a Law to which they all recorded their formal assent, it had thereby become an International Act; and that to entertain a claim against the Egyptian Government in respect of transactions which arose before 1880 would be, in effect, to reopen the settlement effected by it, a proceeding which no single one of those Powers who were parties to that settlement would have any authority to undertake ex mero motu, and without the concurrence of the remainder of those Powers.

That, with respect to the views thus maintained by Her Majesty's Government, Sir Julian Pauncefote was particularly to direct our attention to the letter to the ex-Lord Chancellor (Lord Herschell) of the 12th June, 1886, and to his Lordship's Memorandum of the 15th June, 1886, in reply thereto.

That Her Majesty's Government therefore considered themselves precluded on those grounds from intervening on behalf of the ex-Khedive in the manner suggested, and that they had conveyed to His Highness their decision in the two letters of the 2nd October, 1886, and the 20th November, 1886, respectively.

Further letter from Khedive and views thereon.

That His Highness had, however, once more approached your Lordship upon the subject, by letter of the 14th February last, but that it was conceived that that letter raised no new points of substance, and adduced no fresh arguments of weight in support of his contention.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would be good enough to inform your Lordship—

1. Whether we concurred in the views which had been indicated with respect to His Highness' letter of the 14th February;

2. Whether we considered the terms of the letters to His Highness dated the 2nd October, 1886, and the 20th November, 1886, respectively, such as were, under the circumstances, right and proper; and

3. Whether, if so, we were of opinion that His Highness' last communication to your Lordship might properly be answered in the sense of those two previous replies.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to add that your Lordship would, at the same time, be glad to be favoured with any general observations which we might desire to offer upon the matter.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve views on further letter, and answers to previous applications.

That we concur in the views which have been indicated with respect to His Highness' letter of the 14th ultimo;

That we consider the terms of the letters to His Highness of the 2nd October, 1886, and the 20th November, 1886, respectively, such as were, under the circumstances, right and proper; and

Should answer last letter in same sense.

That we are of opinion that His Highness' last communication to your Lordship may properly be answered in the sense of the two previous replies.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Inclosures in Foreign Office Letter of February 25, 1887, to the Law Officers of the Crown.

"Egypt No. 4 (1880)" (Parliamentary No. 2322), and "Egypt No. 10 (1884)" (Parliamentary No. 2822).
Printed Papers. Khedivial Claims. April 1886, Confidential No. 5220; January 1887, Confidential No. 5404.
Egypt. Khedivial Claims. Memorandum, May 14, 1886, Confidential No. 5276.
Law Officers, September 2, 1886, Confidential No. 5440, p. 35.
Ismaïl Pasha, September 18, 1886, Confidential No. 5404, p. 35*.
To Ismaïl Pasha, October 2, 1886, Confidential No. 5404, p. 48*.
Ismaïl Pasha, November 10, 1886, Confidential No. 5404, p. 75.
To Ismaïl Pasha, November 20, 1886, Confidential No. 5404, p. 76.
Ismaïl Pasha, February 14, 1887, Confidential No. 5538, p. 1.

---

No. 10.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 18.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 17, 1887.

Yacoob Sami exile in Ceylon. Proposed reduction of his allowance.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to the case of Yacoob Sami, one of the seven Egyptian exiles at present undergoing exile in Ceylon.

That the circumstances of that case, which would be found more fully set forth in the Memorial of the 4th December, 1886, addressed by Yacoob Sami to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, were shortly as follows.

That under an arrangement between the Egyptian Government and that of Her Majesty, the former agreed to allow Yacoob Sami a monthly subsistence allowance calculated originally at the rate of 30*l.* per month; but that subsequently, on the representations of Her Majesty's Government, that that sum was quite inadequate to the reasonable wants of himself and his family, the rate was increased to 37*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* per month, which sum was regularly paid up to October 1886.

Insufficiency of his property to pay his creditors.

That Sami's movable and immovable property in Egypt, which had been confiscated by virtue of a Judicial Decree, dated the 14th December, 1882, had proved quite insufficient to meet the claims of his creditors, amongst whom were Messrs. Cathavi, Fils, et Cie., of Cairo. That on the application of that firm, who had obtained a Judgment against Yacoob Sami in respect of a debt of 2,000,000 piastres (about 2,000*l.*), the Egyptian Government, purporting to act under the provisions of Article 496 of the "Code Mixte de Procédure Civile et Commerciale," had issued directions to the Imperial Ottoman Bank to retain monthly one-fifth part of Sami's subsistence allowance, and that in pursuance of that direction the sum of 7*l.* 9*s.* 0½*d.* per month had lately been deducted from his allowance, and that the balance remaining over after such deduction had been made had alone been paid to him.

Sami's protest.

That Yacoob Sami had protested against that proceeding as being altogether illegal, and petitioned Her Majesty's Government for interposition on his behalf in the matter.

Grounds for Egyptian action.

That section 496 of the "Code Mixte" provided that in certain cases of insolvency, after the other property of the debtor had been exhausted, resort might be had to "les salaires et gages des gens de service, les appointements d'employés et les traitements et pensions," and that it was contended that under those latter words the allowance paid to Yacoob Sami was liable to attachment.

But that it would appear to your Lordship that, granting that under Article 496 "traitements et pensions" of Government employés and others could be attached in the hands of the Government in the manner and to the extent mentioned, the exiles did not come within the purview of that section at all. That they were State prisoners, for whose support the Egyptian Government had agreed with Her Majesty's Government to pay monthly allowances, which, with the consent of Her Majesty's Government, could be discontinued at any moment, and which did not therefore appear to fall properly within the designation either of "traitements" or "pensions," such as were contemplated by the language of section 496.

That, under those circumstances, your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether Her Majesty's Government could properly object to the subsistence money of those exiles being reduced from any cause; and whether in Yacoob Sami's case the deduction from the allowance should be resisted on the ground that the payment to him was an act of State in pursuance of an International

1887

Agreement, and that as such it did not come within the purview of section 496 of the "Code Mixte," or on any other ground.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Deduction should be resisted.

That, in our opinion, the deduction from Yacoob Sami's allowance should be resisted, on the ground that the payment to him was an act of State in pursuance of an International Agreement, and that, as such, it does not come within the purview of section 496 of the "Code Mixte de Procédure Civile et Commerciale."

Section of "Code Mixte" not applicable.

We are of opinion that upon the true construction of that section it cannot be held to include the payments agreed to be made as subsistence allowance for Yacoob Sami and his family.

Referring to the "Code Indigène."

We may mention that in the event of any further question being raised, it may, we think, be worth considering section 436 of the "Code Indigène,"* which will, we believe, confirm our view.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

"Egypt No. 5 (1883)" (Foreign Office No. 2655).
"Egypt No. 8 (1883)" ( „ „ No. 2691).
"Egypt No. 21 (1883)" ( „ „ No. 2758).
"Egypt No. 37 (1884)" ( „ „ No. 2919).
Colonial Office, January 8, 1887.
„ „ January 27, 1887.
Sir E. Baring, No. 102, February 10, 1887.

---

No. 11.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received March 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, March 28, 1887.

Free navigation of the Suez Canal. Proposed Convention.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 1st instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a copy of an article by Sir Travers Twiss, published in the "Revue de Droit International," on the proceedings of the International Commission which was assembled in Paris in 1885 to draw up an Act to secure the free navigation of the Suez Canal.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was also to inclose a Memorandum giving a brief account of the discussion, and a Parliamentary Paper containing the whole of the Protocols, procès-verbaux, and other correspondence, for reference in case of need.

That the draft Treaty voted by the majority of the Commission would be found in Appendix (F) of the Memorandum, and as an Annex to Protocol 6 of the Commission (p. 309 of the Blue Book).

Question as to limitation of belligerent rights in Red Sea.

That the point to which your Lordship wished to draw our attention was the statement made by Sir Travers Twiss, at p. 622, and again at p. 629 of his paper, that Article I of the draft Treaty voted by the majority of the Commission, which contains a provision that "the Canal shall never be subjected to the exercise of the right of blockade," must be interpreted as prohibiting a belligerent from stationing a line of cruizers in any part of the Red Sea, or even in the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, for the purpose of seizing vessels intending to pass through the Canal, "quite as much as if all acts of hostility had been interdicted in those waters;" and that, consequently, the proposal of the Russian Delegate at the Paris Conference for the neutralization of the Red Sea would seem to be superfluous.

That it was presumed that a blockade of the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb would be equivalent in law to a blockade of the Suez Canal, by reason of the geographical conditions of the Red Sea. (See "Blockade of Coast of Courland." Deane's "Law of Blockade," p. 95).

But that the language used by Sir Travers Twiss was very large, and seemed open to the construction that, in the opinion of the learned writer, enemy's ships bound for the Canal from the south would, by reason of the interdiction of a blockade of the Canal in Article I of the draft Convention, be entitled to immunity from capture in the Red Sea, "quite as much as if all acts of hostility had been interdicted in these waters."

---

* This section is identical with section 498 of the Mixed Courts Code, which might be more appositely quoted.

That the words of Article I were: "Le Canal ne sera jamais assujetti à l'exercice du droit de blocus." That that referred, no doubt, to blockade jure gentium, that was to say, to the right of any Power at war with Turkey to establish an effective blockade of the Canal as against vessels of all nations.

But that it was conceived that such prohibition could not affect the ordinary belligerent right of capture to which enemy's ships remained liable in the Red Sea as elsewhere.

That it was for the purpose of protecting enemy's ships against such capture in the Red Sea that the Russian Delegate advocated its neutralization in the sense of prohibiting acts of war in its waters.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether the provisions of Article I of the draft Convention interfered with the belligerent right of capture of enemy's vessels on their passage to or from the Canal, in the Red Sea or elsewhere, and, if so, to what extent.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Effects of Convention as to :—
(1) Right of blockade of Canal.

That, in our judgment, the effect of the proposed Convention would be threefold :—

1. All nations abandon the right of blockade so far as the Suez Canal is concerned, that is, they abandon the right to close the entrances of that Canal against neutral vessels. They do not abandon the right incidental to a state of war, viz., of capturing an enemy's ships wherever they may be found out of the territorial waters of a neutral State.

(2) Neutralization of Canal.

2. They engage that no acts of war shall take place in the Canal or its approaches.

(3) Turkish territorial rights.

3. Turkey abandons her territorial rights so far as those rights might be exercised to close the Canal, or to engage in hostile operations against vessels using it.

Limitations confined to immediate approaches to the Canal.

There is no implied or consequential cession by any Power of its right to seize an enemy's ships anywhere outside the immediate approaches to the Canal.

We are of opinion that, under the original terms of Article V,* the Gulf of Suez would be protected from being the scene of any hostile operations, but, under either form of words proposed, we are of opinion that there is no limitation of belligerent rights so far as the Red Sea is concerned.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

"Revue de Droit International." Tome xvii, No. 6, p. 615.
Memorandum (Sir J. Pauncefote), June 23, 1885. Confidential No. 5135.
"Egypt No. 19 (1885)." Parliamentary No. 3068.

---

No. 12.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 13.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 12, 1887.

Capture of the "Zarafa," with Italian colours, by Her Majesty's ship "Albacore," and her condemnation for contraband trade.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir P. Currie's letter of the 7th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the correspondence marked in the margin† relative to the capture by Her Majesty's ship "Albacore" of a sambouk, or native boat, which was sailing from

---

* The French Government have agreed to a modification of the original terms of the Article in the manner proposed by the British Plenipotentiaries

† List of Papers.

Telegraphic correspondence with Sir E. Baring, April 19–28, 1887. See Confidential Nos. 5467 and 5493.
Sir E. Baring, No. 137, Telegraphic, May 4, 1887, Confidential No. 5467, p. 159.
„ „ No. 253, April 23, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 112 A.
To Mr. Kennedy, No. 129, April 21, 1887, Confidential No. 5493, p. 112.
Admiralty, June 28, 1886, Confidential No. 5322, p. 162.
Law Officers, January 21 and January 23, 1886 (Confidential No. 5440, p. 21).

1887

Massowah bound for Rarat (Taklai), on the African coast of the Red Sea to the south of Suakin.

That the information which had been received as regarded the capture and condemnation of that vessel was somewhat defective, being principally contained in telegrams from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo, but that the following appeared to be the principal facts.

That the boat was captured at a distance of 10 miles from the coast upon suspicion of being engaged in Slave Trade.

That she hoisted Italian colours, and had an Italian bill of health from Massowah. But that in that document she was described as being under the Turkish flag.

That her original voyage had been from Suakin to Massowah, whence she was returning to Taklai, and that she was entirely manned by Egyptian subjects.

That the Court-martial before which she was brought did not find sufficient evidence of slave-trading, but that she was condemned, apparently by the same Court, for contraband trade, being freighted with a cargo of Manchester goods, and of rice, beans, dates, &c.

Ground of condemnation.

That it was presumed, though it was not specifically stated, that the ground of condemnation was that she was openly bound for a port on the coast over which the Egyptian authorities claimed jurisdiction, but which had not yet been opened by them as a port of entry.

Objects of closing coast to trade.

That the object of keeping that part of the coast still closed to trade was not merely to protect the Egyptian Customs revenue, but also to prevent the receipt of supplies by certain tribes which still maintained an unfriendly attitude towards the Egyptian authorities, though no active hostilities were now taking place.

That the instructions under which Her Majesty's cruizers in the Red Sea were acting were contained in a letter from the Admiralty of the 28th June, 1886, which was inclosed for reference.

That copies were also inclosed of opinions given by the Law Officers as to the nature of those instructions.

Instructions to cruizers.

That it would be seen that the instructions authorized the seizure of provisions fit for military use on the coasts adjoining the territory occupied by the insurgents, whether such provisions belonged to the insurgents or not, but that "this service should be performed within the territorial waters on the coast of Egypt in the Red Sea, including the Eastern Soudan, within such limits as might be prescribed from time to time, by warning of grain dhows, and, if necessary, by seizing them;" and in the latter case by subsequently "handing the dhows over to the Egyptian authorities at either of the ports of entry, and by giving such information as may lead to their condemnation for breach of Egyptian Customs Regulations."

Italian protest.

That the Italian Government had protested against the capture and condemnation of the boat, which they understood to have been sentenced on suspicion of trading with the insurgent tribes.

That they contended that so long as there was no blockade or equivalent notification any captures were, according to the law of nations, both arbitrary and inadmissible.

That Colonel Kitchener, on the other hand, asked for a confirmation of the sentence, and advised confiscation of the boat, but release of half the cargo on account of extenuating circumstances.

That Sir E. Baring urged a speedy decision, as a considerable number of prisoners remained in custody until the question was settled.

Questions as to irregularity of capture and answer to Italian protest.

That Sir P. Currie was to request that we would take the papers into our consideration, and would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion whether the information in the possession of Her Majesty's Government was sufficient to justify a confirmation of the sentence of condemnation pronounced against the vessel, or whether there was such evidence of irregularity in the capture and mode of procedure as would make it proper that she should be liberated. And further, as to the nature of the reply which should be returned to the Italian Government. That your Lordship would also be glad to be favoured with any further observations which might occur to us in regard to the questions raised in the papers.

We were also honoured with a letter from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 9th instant, stating that with reference to Sir P. Currie's letter of the 7th May relative to the capture of a boat by Her Majesty's ship "Albacore" in the Red Sea near Suakin, he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us a despatch[*] and its inclosures from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General at Cairo, containing some additional details as to the circumstances of the capture.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take those papers into consideration with those already forwarded to us.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken all the papers into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

Proceedings irregular, should release dhow and crew, and inform Italians of wrong use of their flag.

That, in our opinion, the proceedings which have taken place in respect of the seizure and condemnation of the dhow "Zarafa" are irregular, and that the vessel and the persons seized thereon should be released.

In communicating this decision to the Italian Government, the attention of that Government should be called to the fact that the dhow, when seized, was wrongfully carrying the Italian flag.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

No. 13.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 17.)

Royal Courts of Justice, May 16, 1887.

My Lord,

Blockade of African coast near Massowah by Italians.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 9th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying note[*] from the Italian Ambassador at this Court, announcing that, in consequence of the state of war existing between Italy and Abyssinia, the Commander of the Italian forces at Massowah had established a blockade on the African coast from Hanfila as far as the point opposite the Island of Difnan, and that the Prize Court in connection with such blockade would eventually be held at Massowah.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was also to inclose a decypher of a telegram[†] from Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Egypt, reporting the objections raised by Colonel Kitchener, the Governor of Suakin, to the blockade of that portion of the coast situated between Difnan Island and Ras Harb as being Egyptian territory.

Coast not Abyssinian. Objections to blockade.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to observe that no portion of the coast placed under blockade belonged to Abyssinia, and that, nominally at least, it must be assumed, together with Massowah, to form a portion of the Ottoman dominions, for which the Egyptian Government still paid tribute to the Porte. That on that account, when a proposal was made some months ago by the authorities at Suakin that the limits respectively of Egyptian and Italian influence should be fixed at Ras Harb, it was decided that Her Majesty's Government could not enter into any arrangement that would commit them to a formal sanction of the Italian occupation of Massowah, and that in any understanding as to the limits of Italian influence they must carefully abstain from any express admission of that kind.

That the Italian Government had recently proposed that the limit of their authority should be fixed at Ras Kasar, considerably to the north of Difnan Island, but that the Egyptian authorities objected strongly to such a division.

That it must, at the same time, be admitted to be doubtful whether Egyptian authority could be said to be established on the coast now placed under blockade, or whether importation on the part lying between Difnan Island and Ras Harb could be controlled otherwise than by naval measures.

That, under those circumstances, Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion—

Whether the notification of the blockade should be inserted in the "London Gazette";

Whether Sir E. Baring's advice to Colonel Kitchener might properly be approved; and that we would also offer any further observations which might occur to us on the questions raised in the papers.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

---

[*] Sir E. Baring, No. 273, May 1, 1887.

[*] Count Corti, May 6, 1887.

[†] Sir E. Baring, Telegraphic, No. 142, May 6, 1887, Confidential No. 5467, p. 161.

Notification should not be gazetted. Approve Sir E. Baring's advice to Colonel Kitchener.

1. That, in our opinion, no notification of the blockade should be inserted in the "London Gazette."

2. That Sir E. Baring's advice to Colonel Kitchener may properly be approved.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

Annex.

Sir E. Baring to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 6, 3·30 P.M.)

(No. 142.)
(Telegraphic.) Cairo, May 6, 1887, 2·10 P.M.

ITALIAN Consul informed Kitchener officially of blockade. Kitchener told him verbally that he considered from Ras Harb to Difnan Egyptian waters. He suggests protest, and asks for instructions. I have approved his language, but have added that as question of assigning limit to Italian right of surveillance is now under discussion in London, he need make no further official communication to Italian Consul.

He thinks that no notification is necessary. I have approved.

Italian Consul-General tells me that blockade has been notified to Porte. I have informed Nubar Pasha.

---

No. 14.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 28.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 26, 1887.

Petition of Mr. B. H. Clere for remission of sentence for libel.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 17th instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the case of Mr. B. H. Clere, a British subject, who was by profession a journalist, and was until lately the editor of a newspaper entitled the "Times of Egypt."

That Mr. Clere was tried in Her Majesty's Consular Court at Cairo before Mr. Consul Cookson, the Judge of the Supreme Court for Egypt, and a jury of five persons, on a criminal indictment for libel.

That he was found guilty of the charge, and was, on the 19th March last, sentenced by the Judge to six months' imprisonment.

That immediately after his conviction he forwarded to the Foreign Office a Petition praying for remission of that sentence, and that he had since transmitted a further Petition to Her Majesty to the same effect from the Corradino Prison at Malta, where he was now confined.

That the various grounds which he put forward in support of his release would be found fully set forth in those two documents.

That the libel itself, which consisted of a pamphlet, appeared to have been of a very gross and scandalous character, and was originally published anonymously, although the prisoner subsequently acknowledged its authorship.

That he, moreover, justified the whole of the statements contained in that pamphlet on the ground that they were true in substance and in fact, and were also published for the public good; but that both those pleas were negatived by the verdict of the jury, and were in fact not supported at the trial by any serious evidence.

That the Judge who tried the case did not consider it one in which Her Majesty's clemency should be extended to the prisoner, and that Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Egypt concurred in that opinion.

That your Lordship was also at present inclined to think that the case was not one in which your Lordship would be justified in advising Her Majesty to remit any portion of the sentence passed upon Mr. Clere, but that before coming to a final decision upon that point your Lordship wished to be favoured, for your Lordship's guidance, with our opinion on the subject.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion on the question submitted in his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

No good cause for acceding to Petition.

That, in our opinion, no good cause has been shown for a remission of the sentence passed upon Mr. B. H. Clere by Her Majesty's Consular Court at Cairo.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

Mr. B. H. Clere's letter of March 26, 1887 (marked A).
Mr. Clere's Petition to the Queen, April 14, 1887 (marked B).
Pamphlet: "Colonel" "the Honourable" John Colborne (marked C).
Sir E. Baring's No. 16, Consular, May 2, 1887.
Inclosures 2 and 3 in Mr. Cookson's No. 23 of April 30, 1887 (notes of the trial and charge to the jury).
Particulars of Prison History of Mr. Clere (Inclosure 2 in Colonial Office, May 7, 1887).

---

No. 15.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received November 7.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, November 7, 1887.

Action against Osman Pasha Fanzi for breach of contract for purchase of camels.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 2nd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list relative to an action which had been brought by Colonel Clerk, the Senior Commissariat Officer of the British forces in Egypt, acting on behalf of the Secretary of State for the War Department, against one Osman Pasha Fanzi, for breach of contract in declining to carry out an Agreement signed by him for the purchase of the surplus camels which remained after the breaking up of the Suakin field force in 1885.

Incompetency of International Court.

That the matter came in the first instance before the Cairo International Tribunal, which declared itself incompetent to adjudicate on the case as being one in which the plaintiff was not suing in his private capacity, but as the official representative of a Department of the British Government.

That the exact grounds on which the Court based its Judgment were not specifically stated, but that it was believed that the Judgment proceeded on the assumption that the Mixed Courts in Egypt could only admit any person—even a foreign Sovereign—to sue therein "à titre de réciprocité," and that, as a foreign Sovereign could not be sued as of right by a private individual in those Courts, he was, therefore, not entitled, either directly or by representative, to sue a private individual therein.

Appeal to higher Court.

That an appeal lay from the decision of the Cairo International Tribunal to the Court of Appeal for Egypt, and that notice of such appeal had been given on behalf of Colonel Clerk.

That the appeal could not, however, be limited to the question of the competence of the Court below to entertain the case, and that if that point be decided in favour of the appellant, the Appeal Court would proceed to adjudicate upon the merits of the action itself.

As to limited submission to the Courts.

That it would be seen from the War Office letter of the 17th August last that, in Colonel Clerk's "acte d'appel," the appellant had submitted to the jurisdiction of the Tribunals "for the purposes of the present action only," and that, in reply to the last-mentioned letter, your Lordship had caused the War Office to be informed (Foreign Office to War Office of the 24th August, 1887) that, in your Lordship's opinion, there would be no objection to proceeding with the appeal; but that if the Court should decide that Her Majesty's Government could not limit their submission to that particular action, and would render themselves liable generally to be sued, the action should be dropped.

That the War Office thereupon took legal advice on that point at Cairo, and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to refer us to the joint opinion of Mr. Royle and Dr. Mifsud, which was inclosed in the War Office letter of the 27th October, as well as to their previous opinions, viz., Mr. Royle and Dr. Mifsud, War Office, of the 11th January, 1887, Inclosure 2, Mr. Royle, War Office, of the 17th August, 1887, Inclosure 2.

That we should observe that, in the opinion of Mr. Royle and Dr. Mifsud (in War Office of the 27th October), it was not possible to say what view the Court of Appeal might take as to the effect of the submission by Her Majesty's Government to the jurisdiction in that particular action, but that it was difficult to see how the Court could hold consistently with the principles and practice of jurisprudence and international law, that such submission would render Her Majesty's Government subject to the jurisdiction of the Mixed Tribunals in all other cases.

1887

That it would also be seen that Consul-General Cookson,* while disagreeing with the decision of the Court of First Instance, and considering that it ought certainly to be carried to the Court of Appeal, appeared also to share in the view that there might be some reason to apprehend that the Court of Appeal might decide, not merely that Her Majesty's Government was entitled to sue "à titre de réciprocité," but that such reciprocity was not to be confined to any counter-claim which the defendant might possess with regard to the particular suit. but extended generally to other matters.

Objection to general submission to Courts.

That, in view of the peculiar conditions existing judicially and politically in Egypt at the present time, your Lordship considered that it would be injudicious to permit Her Majesty's Government to be rendered amenable generally to the jurisdiction of the Mixed Courts, and that it seemed to your Lordship that were such a decision as that above indicated as possible to be given by that Court, it would be by diplomatic action alone, which might, moreover, possibly prove ineffectual that such a result could be prevented.

That the "Règlement d'Organisation Judiciaire" was altogether silent on the subject of the immunity of a foreign Government from the civil and criminal jurisdiction of the Tribunals established under its provisions, while it was contended that, according to the general principles of international law, such immunity was well recognized.

Limitation of reciprocity.

And that it was suggested that any decision of the Mixed Tribunals granting a reciprocity more extensive than that which, in similar circumstances, would be recognized by the Courts of this country (where it was understood to be confined to matters raised in the particular action, and not to extend beyond all such cross actions, counter-claims, and steps of procedure to which it would be competent for a defendant to resort in a suit between private individuals) might, in the circumstances, be successfully resisted as being contrary to the established principles of international law and the general usage of European nations.

Importance of case.

That in view of the large number of contracts made in Egypt for army service, many of which were still outstanding, it was important that the right of suing, before the Mixed Tribunals, for breaches thereof, should be maintained on behalf of Her Majesty's Government, unless such a contention would, if successfully urged, indirectly entail upon them reciprocal obligations and legal liabilities more than counterbalancing the advantage immediately gained from a favourable decision.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted with his letter into our consideration, and that we would favour your Lordship, at our earliest convenience, with our opinion as to whether, having regard to the various considerations above indicated and to the general circumstances of the case, the appeal now pending might properly be allowed to proceed.

That your Lordship would also be glad to be favoured, at the same time, with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have taken the papers into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

No materials for opinion as to appeal.

That we have not before us the materials necessary for forming an opinion as to the probability of the suit succeeding upon its merits, nor as to any technical question affecting the appeal, such as the period of time within which an appeal must be brought.

Appeal may proceed.

General submission objectionable.

Apart from these considerations, however, we are of opinion that the appeal may properly be allowed to proceed. It is obviously impossible, as Mr. Cookson has pointed out, to predict what Judgment the Court of Appeal will pronounce, but in any event, we are clearly of opinion that a decision declaring "à titre de réciprocité" that the British Government would, on future occasions, be liable to be sued in the International Tribunals, would be contrary to the fundamental principles of international law, and would be properly regarded by Her Majesty's Government as wholly ineffective.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

* See Mr. Cookson's letter of December 10, 1886 (in Sir E. Baring's No. 54).

List of Papers.

War Office, January 11. 1887.
To Sir E. Baring, No. 19, January 14, 1887.
Sir E. Baring, No. 54, January 23, 1887.
To War Office, February 4, 1887.
War Office, February 15, 1887.
Sir E. Baring, No. 240, April 18, 1887.
Ditto, No. 116, Telegraphic, April 22, 1887.
Ditto, No. 251, April 22, 1887.
War Office, May 3, 1887.
To ditto, May 4, 1887.
To ditto. May 9, 1887.
War Office, August 17, 1887.
To ditto, August 24, 1887.
War Office, October 27, 1887.

Règlement d'Organisation Judiciaire. (Confidential No. 4682.)

---

France.

No. 16.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received January 18.)

My Lord,

Royal Courts of Justice, January 17, 1887.

Land claim in Tunis of British protected subject, General Ben Ayad.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, stating that he was directed to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the questions (1) whether a certain General Ben Ayad, who enjoyed British protection in Tunis, was, under the circumstances stated, bound to take steps to defend his rights before the French Tribunals in Tunis; and (2) whether, in the event of his failing to do so, he must nevertheless abide by its decisions.

That Mr. Consul Sandwith's despatch No. 20, Commercial, of the 28th October last, stated that a French subject had recently applied, under the provisions of Land Registry Law (copy of which was inclosed in Mr. Sandwith's despatch No. 13, Commercial, of the 22nd July last), for the registration of certain property, in which was, however, included a piece of land claimed by the above-mentioned General Ben Ayad. That by reason of General Ben Ayad being under British protection he must for the present purposes be considered as a British subject. That the right of British subjects to hold land in Tunis was founded on the Convention of the 10th October, 1863; that that Convention was, however, silent as to the Tribunal to determine disputes relating to land which might arise between a British subject and a foreigner. But that the Convention of 1875 was general in its terms, and provided in Article XXIV that all civil differences between a British subject and any other foreigner (a definition that would therefore include the case now under consideration) should be settled solely in the Tribunals of the foreign Consuls. That that opinion would be found in the Report of the Law Officers of the Crown of the 3rd March, 1881, respecting the Enfida estate.

That formerly, therefore, the present case between the French subject and General Ben Ayad would have been decided in the British or in the French Consular Court.

That the French Memorandum as to the jurisdiction of the French Courts in Tunis, which would be found at p. 26 of the Parliamentary Paper No. 1 (1884) stated, under the head of "General Observations," that no modification was made in the system of real property, the French Tribunals being merely substituted for the Consular Courts. That the French Tribunal would therefore appear to have, in the present case, the jurisdiction which formerly belonged to the French Consular Court.

That with regard to the jurisdiction in the present case which would formerly have been vested in the British Consular Court, the Order in Council of the 31st December, 1883 (which would be found at p. 31 of the Parliamentary Paper No. 1

1887

(1884), recited the Decree of the Bey of Tunis of the 3rd March, 1883; and stated that it was therein declared that the subjects of foreign Powers whose Consular Courts in the Regency should be abolished, should be justiciable by the French Tribunals under the same conditions as French subjects; and that Her Majesty the Queen had consented to abandon her Consular jurisdiction with a view to British subjects becoming justiciable by the said French Tribunals under the same conditions as French subjects, and to the extent of the jurisdiction vested by law in the said Tribunals.

That the Order then proceeded to declare that (except as to judicial matters pending) Her Majesty's Orders in Council regulating Her Majesty's jurisdiction in Tunis should cease to be in force in Tunis as regarded all such matters and cases as came within the jurisdiction of the French Tribunals. That it was presumed, therefore, that as title to land for purposes of registration was now brought within the jurisdiction of those Tribunals as regarded French subjects, British subjects "become justiciable under the same conditions" in respect of their lands as French subjects.

That thus it would appear that the jurisdiction which would formerly have belonged in the present case to the British Consular Courts now belonged to the French Tribunal, as was also the case with the former jurisdiction of the French Consular Court; and that General Ben Ayad was bound to appear before the French Tribunal, and would be bound by its decisions.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to observe that in his despatch No. 20, Commercial, of the 28th October last, Mr. Sandwith stated that the application to register the land of which General Ben Ayad claimed a part had at that time been already made, and that any third party claiming land advertised as about to be registered, must defend his claim before the French Tribunal within three months from the date of the advertisement, or run the risk of seeing the other claimant enter into possession. That Mr. Sandwith did not say whether the advertisement had in the present case already appeared; but that it was possible that the period in question might expire before the 28th instant, in which case it would be necessary to ask us to be so good as to consider our Report at our earliest convenience. That Mr. Sandwith had been requested by telegraph to state when the delay expired, and that his answer would be communicated to us.

That Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would take the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and that we would favour the Secretary of State with our opinion on the questions submitted at the beginning of his letter, and with any general observations which we might have to offer on the case.

We were also honoured with a Memorandum from Sir Julian Pauncefote, dated the 15th instant, stating that, with reference to his letter of the 11th January, he had the honour to inclose a telegram from Her Majesty's Consul at Tunis in reply to the inquiry addressed to him as to when the time would expire for parties, in the particular case of General Ben Ayad, to appear before the French Tribunal, from which it appeared that notice was given to all British subjects that the time would expire on the 16th December last.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 11th instant, we have taken the papers transmitted therewith into our consideration, and have the honour to report—

French Court has jurisdiction and its decision is binding.

That in our opinion it is quite clear that General Ben Ayad was, under the circumstances stated, bound to take steps to defend his rights before the French Tribunal in Tunis, and that, in the event of his having failed to do so, he will nevertheless be bound by the decision of that Tribunal.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

List of Papers.

1. Convention between Great Britain and Tunis, October 10, 1863. Treaty, No. 474.
2. " " " July 19, 1875. Treaty, No. 586.
3. "Tunis No. 1 (1884)," No. 2767, Parliamentary.
4. "Tunis No. 4 (1881)," No. 2410 "
5. "Tunis No. 6 (1881)," No. 2415 "
6. Mr. Sandwith, No. 13, Commercial, July 22, 1886.
7. Mr. Sandwith, No. 20, Commercial, October 28, 1886.
8. Law Officers and Dr. Deane, Q.C., March 3, 1881. Confidential 4637, p. 66.
9. Consul Sandwith, Telegraphic, January 11, 1887.

No. 17.

M. Clunet to Viscount Lyons.

M. l'Ambassadeur, 1, Place Boïeldieu (Opéra Comique), Paris, le 26 Mars, 1887.

Certificates of denationalization in France.

VOUS me faites l'honneur, par votre dépêche du 23 Mars, 1887,* de me demander: "Quelles sont les formalités qu'un citoyen Français doit accomplir pour obtenir un certificat de dénationalisation ?"

Voici ma réponse:

No formalities necessary for throwing off French nationality. Causes of its loss.

Dans notre droit, il n'est pas nécessaire de remplir aucune formalité administrative ou judiciaire en France pour dépouiller la nationalité Française.

L'Article 17 du Code Civil dit que: La qualité de Français se perd (1) par la naturalisation acquise en pays étranger; (2) par l'acceptation non autorisée par le Président de la République de fonctions publiques conférées par un Gouvernement étranger; (3) enfin, par tout établissement fait en pays étranger, sans esprit de retour.

L'accomplissement d'un de ces faits suffit pour que le Français perde sa qualité d'origine.

Decree of 1811 as to naturalization abroad.

Cependant Napoléon I<sup>er</sup> a rendu un Décret le 26 Août, 1811, dans lequel il a déclaré: Article 1<sup>er</sup>, qu'aucun Français ne pouvait être naturalisé sans son autorisation et a frappé de certaines peines, notamment de la confiscation des biens, le Français qui se faisait naturaliser sans autorisation.

On a discuté, et on discute encore, la constitutionnalité de ce Décret, et la question de savoir s'il est encore en vigueur. Des décisions se sont prononcées pour l'affirmative. Le Ministère de la Guerre et le Ministère de la Justice sont également de cet avis.

Penalties for its non-observance.

Toutefois, tout le monde est d'accord sur deux points: (1) la peine de la confiscation des biens n'est plus applicable; (2) le Décret de 1811 n'édicte que des peines contre le Français qui se fait naturaliser à l'étranger sans autorisation: mais, l'effet de la dénationalisation se produit tout de même; au point de vue du droit civil aucune autorisation n'est nécessaire pour la perte juridique de la qualité de Français.

Conséquemment, si une autorisation de se dénationaliser est demandée par le Français, qui entend acquérir une nationalité étrangère, c'est uniquement pour ne pas être exposé aux pénalités du Décret de 1811.

Formalities for obtaining authority for naturalization of French citizens abroad.

Les formalités pour obtenir une autorisation du Gouvernement de se faire naturaliser en pays étranger sont les suivantes:—

1. L'impétrant doit adresser une requête tendant à obtenir cette autorisation à M. le Garde des Sceaux.

2. Il devra y joindre les pièces suivantes:—
(a.) Son extrait de naissance.
(b.) Son certificat de service militaire délivré par le Ministre de la Guerre.

3. Il prendra, dans sa requête, l'engagement de payer les droits de sceaux qui sont de 625 fr. 75 c., ou s'il est indigent, expliquera les motifs avec pièces à l'appui, pour solliciter une remise du droit.

Pour gagner du temps, l'impétrant remettra le dossier composé des pièces ci-dessus indiquées à l'Ambassadeur de France, s'il y a un Ambassadeur dans la ville étrangère où il réside, ou au Consul de France, à défaut d'Ambassadeur.

Cette remise à l'Agent Diplomatique ou Consulaire Français a pour but de permettre à ce dernier de faire une enquête qui le mettra à même de donner des renseignements au Ministère des Affaires Étrangères Français.

Le dossier est ensuite transmis au Ministère de la Justice, qui ne statue qu'après avoir pris l'avis du Ministère de la Guerre.

Si l'impétrant fait encore partie de l'armée active ou de la réserve de cette armée, l'avis du Ministère de la Guerre est souvent défavorable. Il est favorable au contraire si le Français a atteint sa 30<sup>e</sup> année.

Veuillez, &c.
(Signé) ED. CLUNET,
Avocat à la Cour de Paris.

P.S.—Ci-joint les pièces communiquées.†

---

* See Lord Lyons' No. 131 of March 28, 1887.
† See Inclosures in Lord Lyons' No. 131 of 1887.

1887

No. 18.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received May 14.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, May 12, 1887.

Paolo Lia, British subject, arrested in Tunis and removed to Algeria for trial for crime committed in Algeria.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir T. V. Lister's letter of the 3rd instant, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the accompanying draft of a despatch which it was proposed to address to Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris on the subject of the attitude at present taken up by the French Government with respect to the case of Paolo Lia, a British subject of Maltese origin.

That the case had already formed the subject of a reference to us, and that the circumstances under which Her Majesty's Government protested against the action of the French authorities with respect to Lia, as well as the grounds upon which that protest was based, would probably still be within our recollection.

That they were, however, fully set forth in the reference from the Foreign Office of the 24th November, 1886, and in our own Report thereon, dated the 29th of the same month, which were sent therewith.

French refusal to admit British protest.

That the French Minister for Foreign Affairs had now informed Her Majesty's Ambassador at Paris that the case of Paolo Lia had again been carefully and impartially examined into by the French Government, but that they had arrived at the conclusion that the protest of Her Majesty's Government against his removal to Algiers for trial, and against the exercise of any jurisdiction over him at Tunis in respect of an offence committed by him out of the Regency, was totally inadmissible.

But prosecution withdrawn.

That M. Flourens further stated that although his Government could not, if it were put forward as a matter of right, admit the demand of Her Majesty's Government on Lia's behalf, yet that they had instructed the judicial authorities in Algeria and Tunis to desist from the prosecution instituted against him, on the ground that certain considerations operated in his favour, and also out of courtesy to Her Majesty's Government.

That he added that the French Government had also been moved, in arriving at that decision, by the desire to promote the friendly intercourse existing between the foreign colonists established in Tunis, and that they hoped that gracious act on their part would be fully appreciated by Her Majesty's Government.

Dissent from French views.

That it appeared to your Lordship that the position taken up by the French Government in the matter was not tenable, as it seemed to be based on the assumption that Her Majesty's Government had waived the rights of this country under the Capitulations and Treaties with Tunis unconditionally, whilst it was directly laid down in Lord Granville's note of the 20th June, 1883, to the French Ambassador at this Court, that Her Majesty's Government were only disposed to surrender those rights in so far as it might be necessary to give full scope to the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over British subjects by the then new French Tribunals.

That, moreover, Her Majesty's Government certainly did not agree to give the French Tribunals a retrospective jurisdiction, nor to allow them to try a British subject, as in the present case they were proposing to do, for an offence committed years ago.

That your Lordship considered it desirable to put formally upon record the dissent of Her Majesty's Government from the views advanced upon those points by that of the French Republic, and, with that object, proposed to address the inclosed despatch to Lord Lyons upon the subject.

That before doing so, however, your Lordship would be glad to be favoured with our opinion as to whether its terms were such as, in the circumstances, were right and proper; and also with any general observations and suggestions which we might have to offer on the case.

Approve draft dissenting from French views as to surrender of British rights in Tunis.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

That we approve the terms of the draft despatch submitted to us.

We have, &c.

(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

To Viscount Lyons, No. 22, May 19, 1886.
" " No. 23, May 19, 1886.
" " No. 25, May 22, 1886.
" " No. 26, June 1, 1886.
" " No. 49, October 27, 1886.
" " No. 51, November 2, 1886.
" " No. 54, November 19, 1886.
Viscount Lyons, No. 19, May 20, 1886.
" " No. 21, May 25, 1886.
" " No. 23, May 26, 1886.
" " No. 24, June 2, 1886.
" " No. 25, June 14, 1886.
Mr. Egerton, No. 46, October 18, 1886.
Viscount Lyons, No. 50, November 6, 1886.
" " No. 52, November 7, 1886.
" " No. 53, November 7, 1886.
" " No. 54, November 9, 1886.
" " No. 59, November 22, 1886.
To Consul-General Playfair, No. 9, May 12, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, May 18, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 2, 1886
Consul-General Playfair, No. 31, May 14, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, May 22, 1886.
" " No. 35, May 19, 1886.
" " No. 37, May 22, 1886.
" " No. 71, October 23, 1886.
" " No. 74, November 4, 1886.
" " No. 75, November 13, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 21, 1886.
To Consul Sandwith, Telegraphic, May 26, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 1, 1886.
Consul Sandwith, Telegraphic, May 14, 1886.
" " No. 24, Political, May 17, 1886.
" " No. 26, Political, May 27, 1886.
" " No. 31, November 3, 1886.
" " No. 33, November 8, 1886.
" " Telegraphic, November 20, 1886.
Law Officers' Report, April 28, 1886 (Confidential No. 5440, p. 40).
Parliamentary Paper, "Tunis No. 1 (1876)" (Treaty No. 586).
" " "Tunis No. 6 (1881)" (Foreign Office No. 2429).
" " "Tunis No. 1 (1884)" (Foreign Office No. 2767).
Draft to Law Officers, November 24, 1886.
Viscount Lyons, No. 17, February 25, 1887.
" " No. 20, March 11, 1887.
Law Officers' Report, November 29, 1886. Confidential No. 5440, p. 43.

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Viscount Lyons.

(No. . Consular.)

My Lord, Foreign Office, May , 1887.

I HAVE carefully considered your Excellency's despatch No. 20, Consular, of the 11th ultimo, and its inclosure, relative to the case of Paolo Lia, a British subject of Maltese birth.

M. Flourens, in the note he addressed to your Excellency on the 9th ultimo, a copy of which formed the inclosure above referred to, stated that the case of Paolo Lia has again been carefully and impartially examined into by the French Government, and that they have arrived at the conclusion that the protest of Her Majesty's Government against the removal of this British subject to Algiers for trial, and against the exercise of any jurisdiction over him at Tunis, is totally inadmissible. M. Flourens further stated that, although the Government of the French Republic could not, if it were put forward as a matter of right, comply with the demand of Her Majesty's Government on Lia's behalf, yet they had instructed the judicial authorities in Algeria and Tunis to desist from the prosecution instituted against him, both on the ground that certain considerations operated in his favour and also out of courtesy to Her Majesty's Government. He added that the French Government had also been influenced in arriving at this decision by a desire to promote the friendly intercourse existing between the foreign colonists established in Tunis and the French authorities, and that they hoped this gracious act on their part would be fully appreciated by Her Majesty's Government.

The action of the French Government is apparently based on the assumption, that 1887

Her Majesty's Government have waived the rights of this country under the Capitulations and Treaties with Tunis unconditionally. This view of the French Government is, however, entirely at variance with facts. It was distinctly laid down in Lord Granville's note to the French Ambassador at this Court of the 20th June, 1883, that Her Majesty's Government were only disposed to surrender these rights in so far as it might be necessary to give full scope to the exercise of civil and criminal jurisdiction over British subjects by the then new French Tribunals. Moreover, Her Majesty's Government did not agree to give the French Tribunals the right of exercising criminal jurisdiction over a British subject retrospectively, as in the present case, in respect of an offence committed many years ago.

Her Majesty's Government contend that they were justified in representing the case of Paolo Lia to the French Government under the arrangements agreed to between them in 1883, and they consider that in the present condition of things in Tunis it would be inexpedient to alter such arrangements.

I have to request your Excellency again to draw the attention of the French Government to this subject, and to point out to them that Her Majesty's Government duly appreciate the expression of friendly feelings towards them conveyed in M. Flourens' note, but that they are not prepared to accept, further than to the limited extent indicated in Lord Granville's note to M. Tissot above referred to, the view which the French Government appear to entertain, that Her Majesty's Government have consented to surrender the rights which have been secured to this country under the Treaties and Capitulations with Tunis, and that they adhere to the opinion that the recent proceedings of the French authorities in Tunis against Paolo Lia were not warranted by law or by Treaty.

I am, &c.

---

No. 19.

The Law Officers of the Crown to the Marquis of Salisbury.—(Received August 24.)

My Lord, Royal Courts of Justice, August 24, 1887.

Jurisdiction over British fugitive criminals in Tunis.

WE were honoured with your Lordship's commands signified in Sir Julian Pauncefote's letter of the 21st ultimo, stating that he was directed by your Lordship to transmit to us the papers noted in the accompanying list, relative to the mode of dealing with such British fugitives from justice as might take refuge within the limits of the French Protectorate of Tunis, a question which, under a somewhat less general aspect than it had now assumed, had already formed the subject of a reference to us on the 9th December of last year in connection with the case of a fugitive offender of Maltese origin, who, having committed a fraud against his employers at Tripoli, had fled to Tunis.

That it would be remembered that at the date of the assumption of the Protectorate of Tunis by the Government of the French Republic the British Consular Courts within that Regency had jurisdiction under the combined operation of "The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881," and the Ottoman Order in Council, 1882, section 10, by which that Act was (with the exception of Part II thereof, relating to the inter-colonial backing of warrants) applied to the Ottoman dominions, and expressly to Tunis, to apprehend British fugitives from justice who had escaped from any part of the British dominions, and to cause them to be returned to the place from which they had escaped.

That so also, under section 263 of the Levant Order in Council of the 12th December, 1873, the British Consular Court had power to arrest British fugitives from any part of the Ottoman dominions, and to return them to the place whence they had escaped.

Abandonment of British jurisdiction does not apply to extradition cases.

That on the establishment, however, of the French Protectorate at Tunis, and the institution consequent thereupon of French Judicial Tribunals within the Regency, Her Majesty's Government, while in no respect abandoning, except to that extent, any rights of this country under the existing Capitulations and Treaties, consented to waive British Consular jurisdiction, both civil and criminal, over British subjects in that Regency as regarded all such matters and cases as came within the jurisdiction of those French Tribunals.

That the precise limits within which Her Majesty's Government agreed to waive such jurisdiction were to be gathered from Earl Granville's explanatory note to the French Ambassador of the 20th June, 1883, and from the Order in Council with regard to its abandonment, which, after having been privately submitted in draft to the French Government before its publication, and approved by them, was promulgated on the 31st December of the same year.

That that latter Order in Council provided, as would be seen, not for the absolute cesser of British Consular jurisdiction, but only for its waiver to such extent as it might be practically now exercisable by the new French Tribunals, and that it was conceived that no British fugitive, whether from Her Majesty's or from the Ottoman dominions, was justiciable by those Tribunals, inasmuch as in every such case the alleged crime or offence had been committed out of the Regency. Nor could such a fugitive be surrendered by the French Government under the Extradition Treaty in force between France and Great Britain, since that Treaty had no application in Tunis.

That it would therefore appear that the arrest of such fugitives and their conveyance out of the Regency was one of those "matters and cases" which still remain within British Consular jurisdiction.

Proposed despatch to Lord Lyons.

That a draft of a despatch embodying the conclusion above indicated, and the considerations upon which it was based, had been prepared for transmission to Lord Lyons to be by him communicated to the Government of the French Republic; and that Sir Julian Pauncefote was to request that we would be good enough to take that draft into our consideration, in connection with the other papers transmitted therewith, and that we would favour your Lordship with our opinion as to whether its terms were such as in the circumstances were right and proper.

That your Lordship would be glad, at the same time, to be favoured with any general observations which we might desire to offer upon the question.

In obedience to your Lordship's commands we have the honour to report—

Approve despatch.

That, in our opinion, the terms of the despatch are in the circumstances right and proper.

We have, &c.
(Signed) RICHARD E. WEBSTER.
EDWARD CLARKE.

---

List of Papers.

Colonial Office, June 11, 1887.
To Colonial Office, July 5, 1887.
Law Officers, January 26, 1886 (Confidential No. 5440, p. 80).
Order in Council (Tunis), December 31, 1883 (Confidential No. 4905*).
Law Officers (Paolo Lia's Case), November 29, 1886 (Confidential No. 5440, p. 43).
" " " " " May 12, 1887 (see ante).
Levant Order in Council, December 12, 1873 (Confidential No. 2873).
Ottoman Order in Council, May 3, 1882 (Confidential No. 2873).
Fugitive Offenders Act, 44 & 45 Vict., cap. 69.
Printed Correspondence respecting establishment of French Tribunals in Tunis, 1882–83 (Confidential No. 4853).

---

Annex.

Draft of Despatch to Mr. Egerton.

(No. . Treaty.)
Sir, Foreign Office, August , 1887.

I TRANSMIT to you herewith a copy of a letter from the Colonial Office, and of my reply thereto,* with reference to the mode of dealing with British fugitives from justice who may take refuge in Tunis, and I have to invite your attention to the following observations on this subject.

